City awaiting sewage fund OK

By Mary Whittler
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Federal approval of a $5 million program to upgrade Carbondale sewage treatment is expected within a week, City Manager Carroll Fry announced Friday.

The proposal calls for a new north-west sewage plant and improvements and additions to the southwest plant. The plans received Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) approval Thursday.

The plan includes the extension of sewage service to the Southern Illinois Airport and construction of sewer lines from the northwest plant to the Big Muddy River.

Fry said the Illinois EPA will forward the plans to the federal EPA for final approval and funding. If the plans are approved, the federal government will fund 75 per cent of the cost. State and local funding will cover the remaining 25 per cent, Fry said.

Bill Boyd, director of public works, said that funds are received, the new plant could be completed in 12 to 16 months.

Effluent currently being discharged into the Little Crab Orchard Creek is "not in compliance with EPA standards," Fry said.

The effluent is not meeting treatment standards because the Carbondale sewage treatment plants are "overloaded," Fry said.

The city is operating its sewage plant through a variance from the EPA which gives a temporary exemption from state standards. James Mayhugh, superintendent of water and wastewater treatment, said the variance was requested in October, 1973, and has been in effect more than a year.

Under the new system, sewage would be discharged into the Big Muddy River. Fry said that because the Big Muddy is a free-flowing stream the effluent standards are not as stringent as those for the small Little Crab Orchard Creek.

Boyd said that in larger bodies of water the effluent becomes more diluted. Therefore, less of an impact on the quality of the water results.

The present northwest treatment plant would be used for pretreatment of industrial wastes when the new plant is in operation. Industries would be required to pretreat wastes and an additional tax for this service will be charged.

The sewage will go after pretreatment to the new plant for further treatment.

Presently, the airport treats its sewage but its sewage system cannot be expanded. The EPA prohibits the airport from adding to the existing load of the system, Gene Siebert, airport manager, said.

Siebert said that the new EPA regulations caused the airport to be "out of step." The airport, however, is "not under any violation" because the EPA has allowed the airport the necessary time to build facilities which meet EPA standards, Siebert said.

Boyd said the extension of the sewage line to the airport will cost an estimated $190,000. If the extension of the line is approved by the federal EPA, federal funds will pay 75 per cent of the costs. The major portion of the remaining 25 per cent would be paid by the Southern Illinois Airport, Boyd said.

County road funds expected soon

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Federal funds for a county road marking system to enable emergency vehicles to pinpoint rural accidents may be granted within 60 days, the Jackson County highway superintendent said.

The marking and numbering system would be financed by U.S. Department of Transportation funds, said Bill Munson, county highway superintendent. He estimated that $35,700 of the $51,000 total project cost would be paid by the federal government.

"The federal government finances this highway safety project with 70 per cent funding. The county makes up the other 30 per cent," Munson added.

County workers' labor and time spent to install the signs can be applied as part of the local share of expenses, Munson added.

The grant's approval hinges on how much funding Washington still has available, Munson said. If approved, the sign installation may be postponed until October or November, when the road crews cannot do other work, Munson said.

"The sign project sounds like a good wintertime project," Munson observed.

He said the project would speed up the delivery of ambulances and sheriff's cars to rural areas and help persons not familiar with the area in finding rural houses.

Jackson County Sheriff Don White said his men currently use a landmark system in answering distress calls.

"Most of my men are familiar with the specific landmarks of Jackson County, and have no trouble finding their way around, but the system will be very helpful to outsiders who go to rural areas," White said.

Displaying white letters on a green background, the signs would be posted at each intersection on all town and county roads and would have the number code that was given to the intersection. Munson added the number code is designed to allow persons living along the road to number their houses if they wish.

Munson said the original plan for the signs allowed the county or township to name the road and have the name put on the federally-funded sign, but the government decided against continued payment for road names. He added that the township or county may add a road name sign of their own at some later date. Munson said the federal funds for numbering were allocated to pinpoint road accidents within 1-100 of a mile. This pinpointing will show the highway superintendent exactly what stretch of road is causing problems.

"Some people might criticize this project and say the money could be spent on other needed road work, but the federal government is interested in reducing the number of rural accidents, and this will aid in finding out the trouble spots," Munson said.

Building class gets experience constructing houses as projects

By Leonard Sykes, Jr.
Student Writer

If the nation's home building industry is in the middle of a deep depression, the full effect of it hasn't prevented students in the Carbondale Vocational Center's building trades class from finishing their job.

They're building a house at 108 Parrish Lane which is scheduled for completion in early June.

This isn't their first construction job, according to Larry Swope, trade and industrial supervisor at the center. The building trades class has built and sold two other houses.

The job was funded by the Carbondale Community School Board and the School Board of Education. Several labor unions in Murphysboro also supported the class because they were in "need of skilled laborers," Swope said.

"All we needed was the initial funds to get started," he said, "and whatever we got for the sale of the first house went right into construction of the next."

The building trades class is a two-year program for juniors and seniors at the center. Eighteen students are enrolled in the class, and each student is required to work on the building five days a week for three hours, Swope said.

"They get exposed to setting up electrical installations, heating, plumbing and carpentry work," Swope said. "They work in just about all facets of home construction."

Last year, job placement in the building trades class "was just about 100 per cent," said Swope.

The drafting class at the vocational center designs the blue prints for the houses, he said.

"We set it up as a contest in the drafting class," Swope said. "Each senior designs a house with a set of working drawings. At the end of the year students vote for the best plan," he said.

Working on construction jobs helps to bring students in the class closer together. Some of the students in the class have formed a basketball team, Swope said. "They're real proud of what they've done," he said.

Instructors in the class have been considering buying old buildings and having students renovate them.

"The way the economy is right now there's just not much construction going on. Renovating old buildings would be a good project for the students," Swope said.

Cross race opens area cycle season

By Hope Marston
Student Writer

An old strip mine region will be the setting for the area's first motorcycle cross race of the season at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Sponsored by Cyclesport Inc., a franchise club of the American Motorcycle Association, the race will include some "rough action" according to Matt Hall, local motorcycle dealer and founder of the club.

Riders on bikes will jump 8 to 10 feet, and be required to make several 180 degree turns. Hills and narrow paths will make the course difficult, he said.

The race will be divided into five classes based on motorcycle size. A trophy will be awarded to the winner of each division. Hall estimated that 100 cycles will be entered in Sunday's race.

It is one of four motorcycle events taking place through May. On April 20, the club plans to sponsor a "Hare Scrambles" race, including three hours of continuous riding. This will also be broken down into different classes, the rider with the most laps winning a trophy.

Motorcycle crossings, such as the one Sunday, will be run on May 4 and 8.

Five other races, extending through Nov. 2 will conclude the club's season. The last four races, on Oct. 5, 12, 19 and 26 will constitute a race series determining the champion of District 18 (the lower part of Illinois and all of Missouri). Hall expects a large crowd at these races, "a thousand on a good day."

Practice runs begin at 11 a.m., followed by a mini-bike race for 80 to 90 cubic centimeter (cc) bikes.

Of the 30 to 40 members of the club, Hall remarked, many come as family groups. He and his wife, Catherine began the club 13 years ago, when several customers began to pressure him for some motorcycle activity in the community.

Hall said proceeds from admission to the races supports the club and are used for leasing one raceway and caring for the track. Hall, a former club officer, stated that the organization is now planning to buy a water wagon for the track.

Greenbriar Raceway is located six miles east of Carbondale, one and one half miles north on Greenbriar Road. Admission is $2.50 at the gate, and advance tickets of $2.00 will be sold until 6 p.m. today at both Yamaha cycle shops in Carbondale.

Memorial conducted for Faisal

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

About 60 persons gathered in the Student Center Auditorium Friday for a memorial service in homage to King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

King Faisal was assassinated March 24 in Riassa Palace in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia.

In their eulogies, the three speakers—Khalil Assaadi, graduate assistant in physics and astronomy, Earl Hanson, professor of political science, and Abdullah Kabba, Ph.D. candidate from Saudi Arabia—told the solemn audience of the modest life the slain Saudi Arabian leader led.

Each speaker gave a brief background of King Faisal and praised him as a superb statesman, military leader and world figure.

Faisal was proclaimed king of Saudi Arabia in 1964 after being foreign minister for 30 years. He was also the founder of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Hanson and Assaadi lauded Faisal for living modestly.

"He lived and was buried as a simple human being," Assaadi said.

"The remarkable thing about this man was the simplicity of his life," Hanson said. "In food, in religion and in behavior he pursued the simple life."

"The simplicity of his end was an example of the simplicity of his life," Hanson added, referring to the austere burial.

Kabba referred to Faisal as a spiritual leader in Saudi Arabia. He told the audience, made up largely of Arab students, that the murdered King was a symbol of change in a society characterized by a minimal number of changes.

The service was sponsored jointly by the office of International Education and the Arab Student Association.

F-Senate to consider 'sit-in' plan

By C. Karahalios
Student Writer

A proposal to enable members of the community who are not students to sit in on University classes will be considered by the Faculty Senate Tuesday for preliminary approval.

If the senate passes it, the proposal will go to the Board of Trustees for final approval, said the program's originator, John Dotson, director of the President's Scholars Program.

Dotson's proposed Listener's Permit program would allow anyone who is not currently enrolled for credit in the University to purchase a "listener's permit" for $10. The holder of the permit could sit in on classes where space is available. No credit would be gained, however by the holder for classes attended.

"The permit would be an extension of the concept of auditing classes," said Dotson. "The difference lies in that auditors are usually drawn from the student body. The intent of the listener's permit is to draw in members of the community outside the University."

The listener's permit would also allow the holder to use Morris Library on a limited basis. A library courtesy card would be issued on presentation of the permit. The holder could use Morris Library until his permit expires.

The holder of a permit also could purchase a yellow, silver or red parking decal.

Dotson said such a program is needed because, "older members of the Southern Illinois community shy away from attending the University."

"They have the feeling that the University comprises a social system to which they are outsiders," said Dotson. "This program will give them something concrete—a card—which in effect says they have as much right to attend this university as anyone else."

Participation at discipline system, code inquiry called 'disappointing'

By Jon Kartman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Student participation in the hearing Friday on the campus disciplinary system and the proposed Student Conduct Code was termed "disappointing" by John Hardt, executive assistant to Student President Dennis Sullivan.

Hardt, chairman of the hearing, said the hearing's purpose was to get testimony from students who have had difficulties with the present disciplinary system.

No students testified, however, about problems they have had with the present disciplinary system.

During the hearing, several members of the Campus Judicial Board voiced opposition to certain sections of the proposed conduct code.

Rich Riggio, chairman of the Campus Judicial Board, said he objected to section 9-101 which provides that students brought before the board have their choice of an open or closed hearing. All hearings are presently closed to the public and the press.

"An open hearing may destroy a student's academic and social life by having the case repeated in the paper regardless of his guilt or innocence," Riggio said. "The press, by printing his name and the charges against him, may influence his professors, prejudice his friends or damage other relationships."

Lloyd Haims, J-Board member, said he objected to section 11-101 which says that if any section of the code is declared void by a court of law, the Board of Trustees has the power to ratify a new section to replace the old one.

"I'm not sure the Board of Trustees is going to want something like this dumped in their laps," Haims said. "The Vice President for Student Affairs should be the one who ratifies a new section."

The proposed conduct code is scheduled to be implemented fall semester if it is approved by the Board of Trustees.

Double-duty educator sees no conflict

By Mike Springston
Student Writer

Charles Hindersman leads a double life as an educator.

The dean of the School of Business is also president of the Carbondale High School Board. This gives him the unusual opportunity to administer education at two different levels.

Hindersman sees no conflict in his dual role of college dean and high school board president, but he did note that having a university in the community does have an effect on high school student's behavior.

"The (high school) students have a tendency to imitate what's going on on the SIU campus," Hindersman said, and the pattern has mixed results.

"On the one hand it's good because many students can use facilities like Morris Library that would otherwise be unavailable to them," Hindersman said. "But then you also find the kids imitating some of the wilder stunts."

Hindersman cited high school student participation in the 1970 riots and the 1960's drug cult as some of the negative aspects.

"SIU students don't realize that they're setting an example for the area high schoolers," Hindersman said, but he remained enthusiastic about the academic role the University played on the high school.

Hindersman said that University teachers and graduate students often lecture at the high school, but that the school must eventually pay the price of its association with SIU.

"Carbondale is a diverse community," the administrator noted. "Some of our students have been around the world and others have never been past Murphysboro. We have to meet the needs of both types of students. Our program is more expensive than most areas because we have to provide both honors classes and vocational programs."

As a result of the attempt to balance the school's curriculum, the board is already borrowing money against next year's taxes to pay this year's bills, he said.

Finances are not the only problem facing the school board. A recent Supreme Court ruling made it possible for students to sue members of the school board if they feel that their constitutional rights are violated, he said.

Hindersman said he does not feel personally threatened by the ruling since the school carries liability insurance, but he did foresee other developments.

"It's about time we recognized that a student's rights don't end at the school house door."

News Roundup

South Vietnam's premier, cabinet resign

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Faced with heightened uncertainty and crisis, South Vietnam's premier and cabinet resigned Friday and President Nguyen Van Thieu ordered formation of a "war government, one that will not ask to surrender to the Communists."

Thieu himself resisted continuing demands that he step down to open the way for a political grouping that might deal with the Communist side in an effort to reach a negotiated settlement of the war. The Viet Cong repeatedly have declared they will not negotiate with a government headed by Thieu.

The political developments came on the second day of relative quiet on the military scene. But it was a tense lull that only increased fears of what the next move might be by powerful Communist-led forces that have taken swift control of three-fourths of the country in a month-long offensive.

Reports from Washington quoted U.S. intelligence sources there as saying the North Vietnamese command was sending more than 1,000 fresh troops a day into the south in an apparent buildup for a final blow.

Number of unemployed continues to climb

CHICAGO (AP) — The growing number of unemployed in Illinois jumped sharply in the month of March and there are now nearly 400,000 persons in the state looking for jobs.

The March unemployment rate increased from 6.9 per cent in February to 8 per cent in March, statistics showed Friday, nearly double what it was a year ago.

The number of the unemployed and their percentage of the work force in the state are the highest now since the years of the Great Depression, said Christopher W. Nugent, head of the Illinois Employment Security office who released the figures.

All reporting areas of the state, except Decatur, reported increased unemployment in March and both Rockford and East St. Louis, the most severely hit, went above the 10 per cent mark.

Nationally, the unemployment rate went from 8.2 per cent to 8.7 per cent in March, the Labor Department reported at the same time in Washington.

Viet orphan airlift ends in tragedy

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The first official American effort to airlift Vietnamese orphans to the safety of new homes in the United States ended in a roaring, flaming disaster on the outskirts of Saigon on Friday.

In one of the most tragic events of the long Indochina war, a giant U.S. Air Force transport crashed 35 minutes after taking off from Tan Son Nhut airbase, with 305 persons aboard, nearly 250 of them Vietnamese orphans.

Almost half the children survived the disaster, which apparently resulted from a "massive explosive decompression in the cargo compartment" at 23,000 feet, U.S. officials said.

President Ford said he was "deeply saddened at the loss of so many lives" on the first official U.S. orphan evacuation flight from Saigon, but that the airlift will go on.

U.S. officials said there were 305 persons aboard the Air Force Galaxy C5A transport, including 243 orphans, 44 escorts, 16 crewmen and two flight nurses.

Walker prison system proposal draws fire

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. Dan Walker's criminal justice system proposals will increase the danger to the public, a former state prison director said Friday.

Peter Bensinger said at a legislative commission hearing that the governor's plan to give a prisoner one day off his sentence for each day of good behavior "will subject the public prematurely to persons who can adjust to the abnormal life of a prison rather than placing emphasis on the offender's past record, present employment opportunity, potential family support and the prisoner's emotional stability."

Bensinger, who headed the Illinois prison system for three years, was the first witness before the commission which is considering Walker's proposals. Bensinger, a Republican, ran unsuccessfully last year for Cook County sheriff.

Bensinger also said he opposed Walker's plan to reduce prison sentences because, he said, under the proposal a new trial would be required for a parole violator "which means the violator could be out on bail for as much as a year."

Spring storm continues destructive path

By The Associated Press

The fiercest storm of the season battered parts of the Northeast Friday, taking nearly a dozen lives and dumping almost three feet of snow in some places.

The storm's icy embrace extended from Canada to the Carolinas and from Lake Erie to the Atlantic Coast.

It swept into the Northeast after staggering parts of the Midwest with heavy snow and contributing to the deaths of 55 persons in the Chicago area. Some travelers were still stranded after two days at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, where partial service was restored after a 24-hour shutdown.

As the Northeastern storm churned to the coast, blizzard warnings went out to residents of northern Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine. The National Weather Service said 12 to 32 inches of fresh snow piled up in the area, stranding motorists, disrupting commerce and creating treacherous driving conditions where travel was possible.

Student candidates declare platforms

Because of a lack of space in Friday's Daily Egyptian the pictures of Vernon Stubblefield, student vice-presidential candidate, and Gary Ferguson, student trustee candidate, could not appear with the stories announcing their candidacies.

Vernon Stubblefield, 21-year-old junior in history, is the Progressive Coalition Party's Candidate for student vice president. The Party's platform lists cutting tuition, blocking dorm and fee increases and unionizing student workers among its priorities.

Gary Ferguson, senior in journalism, said he is running for student trustee because the trustee needs to work with and for all the students.

Ferguson cited the special needs of international students and a lack of funds, manpower and facilities for SIU's Black American Studies program as his concerns.

Liquor code amendment on City Council agenda

The Carbondale City Council is scheduled to act on a proposal to amend the city's liquor code Monday night.

Among other provisions, the amended proposal would establish the city council as the liquor commission. Also, the proposal would allow grocery stores to operate a liquor business if it were conducted completely separate from their grocery business. This would necessitate an outside entrance and exit separate from the ones in the grocery store.

The council also is scheduled to consider action on a proposed resolution to be sent to Springfield, urging the legislature to take steps to decriminalize possession and personal use of marijuana.

The council also plans to act on a proposal to allow Carbondale residents to grow personal gardens on specified tracts of city land. Approximately 272 acres have been set aside by the city. The program is set for April 21 to October 15.

Carbondale residents who use the land for gardening are required to sign a lease with the city and are responsible for maintaining the property during the set dates.

No charge has been determined yet by the city for the use of the land.

The council will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in the Community Center University City.

Give some time

"In an age of over-commercialized sports, many of us have forgotten that play is what athletics is all about." And athletics and playing are what the Special Olympics are all about.

The kind of athletics that excludes no one; the kind of rare athletics where the win or loss ranks no higher than the joy and satisfaction of participation.

On May 1, at Carbondale's Bleyer Field, Southern Illinois' special olympians will begin their big day with the oath: "Let me win, but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt."

A beautiful phrase, but more special is its meaning to the hundreds of mentally retarded youngsters from the Southern Illinois area who will compete in their own unique way on Special Olympics Day.

If those youngsters are to have their moments of glory four months from now, if they are to be given the chance to develop and test their strength and coordination, if they are to experience the wonders of winning and losing and trying, the people of this area must come forward and offer their time and financial assistance to the Special Olympics.

Much like a doner who puts out his arm and offers a bit of his life's blood so that others can continue to share with him the rewards of living.

Through a "tag-day" drive in April, every community in Southern Illinois will be given the opportunity to contribute monetary support to the 1975 Southern Illinois Special Olympics.

And every person in Southern Illinois has the opportunity right now to contribute his or her time and interest.

The strength of the Special Olympics is only the strength of its volunteer staffers. A strong Olympics will have a great force of active, enthusiastic people willing to pass on what they know about track and field, gymnastics, basketball, volleyball, swimming and softball throwing.

Volunteers are needed in all administrative positions that are the backbone of a successful Special Olympics Day—in organization, publicity, fund raising, etc.

Last year's Special Olympics Day was a spectacular event. Over 1,200 mentally retarded youngsters had their "time in the sun."

Eunice Kennedy Shriver, president of Special Olympics, Inc., said, "The Special Olympics is a shining example for all who believe that a just and good society is one which cares for those who may be less able, but who are in no sense less worthy."

How bright that example shines here in May is up to the people of this area of the state. How much sunshine will they share?

Moral bankruptcy

In the wake of Vietnam, Watergate and all the other assorted scandals that seem to break almost daily, it is evident that America is caught in a moral depression.

The moral depression is not the direct result of any one condition or set of circumstances, but rather, the end result of many years of being without a strong leader whom the people can rally behind and fully support.

The influence of an example cannot be underestimated. A strong leader sets the moral tone and leads the public morale of the country, no matter what his actual achievements in office may be.

For example, if President Kennedy had lived and finished his terms in office, it would have made a major difference in the racial issue. It would have been unacceptable to be a racist in America because the President of the United States said it was unacceptable and did something about it. How different is that from the "benign neglect" racial policy of the Nixon administration?

Presumably, Kennedy's policy on Vietnam, general foreign policy and the economy would also have been different. But more important, the example of honesty and dignity that Kennedy exuded would have had a contagious effect on the whole country.

The Johnson and Nixon administrations have morally bankrupted the nation. The nation is reaping what it has sown, and the lies and deception that our leaders have perpetrated upon the nation are beginning to catch up with us.

America is desperately hungry for a leader who will restore confidence and renew a morale to the nation missing since the death of President Kennedy. Whether the 1976 national election fills the leadership gap is something we can only look forward to with anxious anticipation.

Freedom fighter refuses to rot in Indiana prison

A proud, vilified black father of three children spends his days in the Terre Haute penitentiary preparing fellow inmates for a high school equivalent degree exam.

He baffles authorities because he does more than sit in a cell and rot. He remains committed to social action while his family in Cairo and friends in Cape Girardeau and St. Louis fight for his parole.

His name is Bobby Williams, a civil rights worker railroaded into prison by a biased judicial system and slick prosecuting attorneys dispatched by the Internal Security Division of the U.S. Department of Justice.

"What kind of person was Bobby?" his wife, Shirley, asked. She paused. "He was a man trying to accomplish and gain equal rights for black and low-income people in this area."

In late 1969, Williams turned down a job promotion to the Office of Economic Opportunity agency in Champaign and became director of the Cape Girardeau United Front. The United Front had been formed to promote public housing and equal job opportunity for blacks. Most blacks then lived in an impoverished shantytown called "South Cape," a collection of dilapidated shacks offering, for $25 a month, substandard heating, plumbing and electricity.

Williams received threats on his life. On Nov. 21, 1969, he secured a gun permit and purchased a hand gun; that afternoon, city police arrested him for carrying a concealed weapon. Pre-trial arguments would last 10 months.

Williams took up residence in Cairo and attached himself to that city's own United Front. He returned to Cape Girardeau after the Mississippi River flooded South Cape in May, 1970. He organized marches, demonstrations, and courthouse sit-ins. The city responded by bulldozing much of South Cape and locating a city dump on the condemned sites.

On August 21, 1970, a wave of arson hit the mayor's lumber yard, an equipment shack at the dump, and a fleet of garbage trucks. Damages totaled $500,000. Newspapers immediately pinned the blame on "militant" United Front "instigators." The managing editor of the Southeast Missourian, John Blue, still insists, "It was Bobby Williams and that bunch."

On Sept. 18, 1970, an all-white jury convicted Williams. The judge sentenced him to one year in prison. William's co-worker and attorney, Richard Snider, appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court, which in June, 1972, overturned the conviction. Williams meanwhile had returned to Cairo. Threats continued on his life and on members of his family.

In May, 1971, Williams purchased two rifles in Cape Girardeau. On June 4, a complaint was filed in federal district court alleging Williams had lied to a firearms dealer by producing a valid Missouri driver's license while living in Cairo, and that he had bought a gun despite his conviction. At the time of purchase, he had informed the clerk of his conviction and appeal on an offense punishable by up to five years imprisonment. The clerk, Snider insisted, okayed the purchase nonetheless.

Between 1971 and 1974 Williams faced the federal district bench three times. The 8th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals reversed, on technicalities, the guilty verdicts delivered by all-white juries.

On Oct. 29, 1973, a third all-white jury in the Federal District Court, Cape Girardeau, convicted Williams. He was sentenced to five years. The appellate court upheld the lower court May 31, 1974. The U.S. Supreme Court denied William's Writ of Certiorari. On Sept. 3, 1974, Williams surrendered to a federal marshal and was transported to Terre Haute to begin his five-year sentence.

"The children miss him very much, of course," Shirley Williams said. "But during his trials, before he went in, he had a chance to prepare them for it. They understand. He explained to them the type of repression going on in this country and what happens when you try and speak out."

Audrey Aronson, a staff coordinator on the Committee to Free Bobby Williams in St. Louis, insisted, "Bobby Williams is not a criminal. He was entrapped on very minor charges and given five years in jail—on charges I'm told by area attorneys that carry an average penalty, in that part of the country, of six month's probation and a $5,000 fine."

Snider stated, "No place could he have been tried—no place." Williams was a black man who refused to stay "in his place. That was why he went to prison. Justice" just doesn't exist in America in that respect."

After a state prosecutor blew the first federal case, the U.S. Justice Department sent in two attorneys from its Internal Security Division. The decision to enter the matter evidently was made in Washington, Snider said. Other federal officials came to Cape Girardeau—at one point, even an investigator from the Central Intelligence Agency. Snider contends, though he cannot remember the agent's name. "It just wasn't that big a thing to me at the time, and I just played it stupid."

Williams impressed members of a parole board last December. They ranked the severity of his crime low, his institutional behavior high; but they still denied him his freedom. Snider explained, "What they basically said was you're okay, but you haven't been here long enough. He'll be free in June, I'm sure."

Shirley Williams expressed more caution. "All I can be is optimistic; of course, I don't know if they'll let him go or not."

Was Bobby Williams' sacrifice worth it? Mrs. Williams said, "I think that his activities in civil rights—well, I can't say it's done a whole lot, but I can say blacks are aware of what's happening to them, and they're beginning to have pride."

Change in procedure delays draft registration

While men are still legally required to register for draft there is no longer any way to do so, according to the deputy director of the Illinois Selective Service System.

Lt. Col. Robert W. Brittin says the Selective Service is no longer accepting registrants and probably won't until late this year because of a change in the registration procedures. Brittin explains that while the old system registration was suspended April 1, no provisions have been made for replacement procedures and none are expected until "the end of 1975."

Brittin emphasizes that the situation does not change the requirement to register with the system. He says potential registrants will just have to wait a while.

Prior to April 1, a man was required to register with the Service during a 60 day period beginning 30 days before his 18th birthday, but that procedure was eliminated by a proclamation signed by President Ford late last month.

Byron V. Peppone, Director of the Selective Service says planning is under way for a new registration procedure that would have a registration period of a few days in each year. Young men born in a given year would be required to register during that period. But Peppone reports the replacement procedure won't be ready for several months yet.

Prospective SIU students must indicate prior interest

High School students planning to enroll at Southern Illinois University and are planning to take the American College Test in April can consider themselves admitted to the University, provided they indicate SIU-C as institution to receive the ACT scores and those scores are high enough.

Students who have ACT scores sent to SIU-C will automatically be contacted by the University, according to Director of Admissions Jerre Pfaff. Those who have high enough test scores will receive tentative acceptance forms. They need only return the acceptance form along with a copy of their high school records to gain admission.

Those students who do not score high enough on the ACT for tentative admissions will receive an application for admission and literature describing the University's academic and service programs. Further information may be obtained from the Office of Admissions, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, 62901.

Candidate for Park Board will conduct write-in drive

Lillian Lonergan, 1 Hillcrest Drive, announced Thursday that she will conduct a write-in campaign for Carbondale's Park Board.

Lonergan said she is running for Park Board because she is "particularly interested in providing facilities and programming for Carbondale teens." She said she wants to see a swimming pool built in Carbondale.

Also, she wants to provide more services and transportation for the elderly.

Coordinating all activities and funds to avoid duplication of efforts and funding is important to her, she said. She added, "I'm objecting to the manner in which funds for the Park District are spent."

Lonergan is the volunteer director of the Parent Teen Board, Inc.

President's Scholars course will feature TV discussions

By C. Karahalios
Student Writer

A course being offered next fall will give president's scholars a chance to participate in TV studio discussions with Yale chaplain William Solane Coffin Jr., and Time film critic Richard Schickel.

Liberal Arts 303 "The Role of the Humanities in a Changing Society" will bring guest speakers to the SIU-C campus every Monday night of next fall, between 7 and 9 p.m..

Schickel will be in Carbondale Monday for the official dedication of the Faner Building. Both he and Coffin have accepted invitations to speak next fall. Barbara Jordon, (Dem. Texas) who served on the House Judiciary Committee during the impeachment proceedings, has also been invited as a guest speaker. Jordon, however, has not accepted the invitation yet.

Arnold H. Barton, an associate professor of history and one of the three instructors of the course, said "President's scholars will be allowed to go to the studio the afternoon following the lectures and do taped interviews with the guests."

"This class is open to all students, but the President's Scholar students will do the interviews in order to receive honors credit."

Barton will be instructing the course along with David J. Goibert, professor of Foreign Languages, and Keith R. Sanders, associate professor of Speech.

The course was first offered on an experimental basis spring quarter of 1974. Three speakers came to SIU in conjunction with the program at that time Julian Bond the first black to be elected to the Georgia legislature, Gerrard Piel, publisher of Scientific American magazine, and D.O. B. Harrison, director of the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington.

"Last year we couldn't say far in advance who would come, or when they would come, or even where the class would meet," said Barton. "This time we definitely have a scheduled time and place, and at least two speakers."

A Chicken and Dumpling dinner is scheduled for 3:30 to 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Newman Center, 715 S. Washington. Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for children six to twelve years old and free for children under six. The dinner will be served family style. It is sponsored by the Carbondale Knights of Columbus Council 5867 and the Carbondale Sphinx Shrine Club.

The membership drive for the 41st season of the Southern Illinois Concerts ends at noon Saturday. The five concert series begins Saturday and continues through March, 1976. Ticket prices are $12 for adults, $6 for students and $30 for families. Tickets may be obtained at 457-2420 or 457-2539.

Alpha Kappa Psi is sponsoring a Slave Day from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Saturday. Questions and requests can be directed to 549-8607 or 549-8736.

The Model School for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Study Commission will hold a public hearing 11 a.m. Tuesday in the Crab Orchard Room of the Marion Holiday Inn.

The public hearing is to gather information from organizations or individuals who would like to present testimony to the commission.

Gary Ferguson, candidate for student trustee position, is challenging his opponents to a 4:30 p.m. Wednesday television debate on cable 7 news. Bill Zey will be moderator for the program.

The La Leche League of Carbondale and Murphysboro will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Brookside Manor, Building 17, Apartment 4B. The topic will be "Baby Arrives: The Family and the Breastfeeding Baby."

The Alto Pass Civic Club is holding a family-style chicken and dumpling supper from 4:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday at the Alto Pass Grade School. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children. Proceeds from the "all you can eat" dinner will go to the building and furnishing of the Alto Pass Fire Department and Station. Tickets are available from Alto Pass merchants or at the door.

The Archway School for special children will hold a walkathon April 26 to raise money for the school. Anyone may participate in the event, but all persons are asked to obtain their own sponsors. The school is on Tower Road off old route 13. Barbara Parrish is chairwoman of the walkathon, at 549-7189.

Explorer Scout post teaches police procedure to students

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Most people quit the Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts because of growing pains. They feel too old for frolicking in the forest.

At least 15 high school students from Carbondale and Murphysboro have found Explorer Scouting, a step beyond boy scouting, to be the answer to their needs.

The students interested in law enforcement and police careers have joined Explorer Post 301 which is sponsored by the SIU Security Police.

Community Relations Officer Mike Norrington and Officer John Hudson serve as group advisors. The group meets every two weeks to discuss educational topics about law, police procedures and police equipment.

"They select their own activities and come to us to see if they can do the activities," Norrington related. Firearms safety, use of firearms and drug abuse are a few of the topics they have suggested, Norrington said.

The security office has sponsored the coed post since December. The post received its charter about two weeks ago, Norrington said.

The security police assist in the funding of the post, but the majority of the money used for activities is made in group projects.

The post is planning a campout at the Little Grassy Boy Scout Camp from noon Saturday to noon Sunday. Norrington said they are also planning an August canoe trip in Wisconsin.

Besides having a good time, Norrington said, the activities show the participants what a career in law enforcement is all about.

Giant City production seeks puppet players

The Giant City State Park Visitor Center is looking for persons who would like to participate in the environmental puppet play "The Saga of Jack Boulder."

Tim Merriman, park naturalist, writer, producer and director of the play, said auditions are set for 10 a.m. April 12 at the Giant City Visitor Center.

Eight puppet characters are used in the three act play. Merriman said. Three of the characters' voices are already conceptualized. Merriman said one will have a voice like John Wayne, one like the Peter Falk character Colombo and the third like John Denver.

The persons volunteering to do the voices won't have to come repeatedly, Merriman said. Their voices will be taped during the production.

Meeting planned on Earth Week

Student Environmental Center is holding a meeting 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Student Government Offices at the Student Center. The meeting will be the discussions of activities and plans for Earth Week, for which no date has been set.

Bifocal or single vision contact lenses can be fitted now with the aid of a computer. Bifocal lens has no segment or line to distort the vision and looks like a single vision lens.

With the use of a PhotoElectric Keratometer called PEK Mark III a photograph of the eye is made. The photo, along with the prescription is sent to the Visual Data Center in Chicago where they are put into a computer. The computer calculates the structure, size, tear layer and the RX required.

The advantage of the lens is usually more comfort and longer initial wearing time.

Area schools to participate in science fair on Saturday

The annual science fair sponsored by the Illinois Junior Academy of Science will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. in the Pulliam Hall gymnasium.

The fair will be part of the Liberal Arts Week which began Friday and continues through April 13.

Approximately 25 junior and senior high schools in Southern Illinois will participate in the fair. There will be 210 exhibits representing 15 different categories of science.

The entries will be judged from 9 a.m. until noon. First, second and third place certificates will be awarded. First place winners will advance to the state competition at the University of Illinois, Champaign and will receive a cash award provided by the SIU College of Science and the College of Liberal Arts. The exhibit will be open to the public from noon until 3 p.m.

In other Liberal Arts Week events, the final session of the Southern Illinois Liberal Arts Conference will meet at 9:30 a.m. in Student Center Auditorium. The purpose of the conference is for high school and college teachers of the liberal arts to share information, innovations and knowledge of the current state of liberal arts education.

The topic of the final session is "Relating Liberal Arts with Rap- port," and will be chaired by Matthew Kelly, associate professor of philosophy at SIU.

The Community Concert Association concert at 8 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium will be given in memory of Robert D. Faner, founder of the association. Sandra Warfield and James McCracken of the New York Metropolitan Opera will perform.

New School has benefit concert

The Carbondale New School, a nonprofit private grade school, will sponsor a benefit concert 10 p.m. Tuesday at Merlins. "Night Hawk" will play and admission will be $1.

New School offers an open classroom type of education with individualized instruction, Harry Schiller, director of the school, said.

"We're trying to raise $20,000 by June to offset increased rental costs and we're trying to raise teacher salaries," he said.

A Tupperware Party will be sponsored 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Executive Club of the Ramada Inn, Carbondale. The New School will also hold an open house April 14 to 18 from 8:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. The school is located in the Dorchester Building, 610 E. College.

Attendance is by membership only. Guided tours of Faner Hall will begin at 2 p.m. Sunday. Identical tours will start in each of the building's three wings. A reception following the tour will be held on the second floor of the C wing.

Synthetics increase fire hazards in the home, safety officer warns

By Marjorie Johnson
Student Writer

Society's progress has created many fire hazards, Ray Schlager, SIU housing safety officer, said.

Although housing may be fireproof, problems are created by articles within the home, he told a group of Evergreen Terrace residents during a speech about fire and home safety.

In the past, University housing was furnished with wooden desks, Schlager said. Now desks are made of compressed sawdust and plastics. Schlager said these materials burn three times as long and nearly four times as hot as wood.

Other fire hazards in the home are stereos, made mostly of plastics, and dacron and nylon clothing.

Schlager said one of his greatest concerns is the high-rise dorms. The highest ladders on fire equipment extend 90 feet, he said. This equipment could evacuate people in the first eight floors, according to Schlager. The high-rise dorms have 17 floors.

Schlager explained three classes of fires. Class A fires are the most common, caused by burning wood, paper, trash, furniture, etc. Class B fires are grease, chemical, oil, or gasoline fires. Class C fires are electrical fires.

Any fire is a result of an interaction between heat, fuel, and air. Schlager explained that eliminating one of these components will eliminate the fire.

Homeowners will question city candidates

Carbondale citizens will be able to question Carbondale's mayoral and city council candidates at a meeting hosted by the Northwest Homeowners Association Tuesday, April 8.

The candidates will address the group for a few minutes and will then answer questions from the audience, Jack Cooper, President of the Homeowners Association said.

The meeting is open to the public and will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Central Illinois Public Service building, 344 N. Illinois Ave.

Beg your pardon

The "practice test" offered by the Minehart Corp. of New York for students planning to take the Medical College Admissions Test is not endorsed by and is not available at the Testing Division of the Career Planning and Placement Center, according to Harley E. Bradshaw, psychometrist.

The Daily Egyptian implied in a story Thursday that information and registration bulletins for the practice test were available at the Testing Division.

Bradshaw said the Minehart Corp. practice test is a commercial venture and the Testing Division is not associated with it in any way.

The DE incorrectly reported in Thursday's paper that the Illinois First Annual Prisoners' Arts and Crafts show will be held from Friday to Tuesday in the Student Center.

The show will be on display from Saturday through Tuesday in Ballroom A and the Gallery Lounge at the Student Center.

The article also stated incorrectly that the founder of the Longbranch Community Services Foundation sponsoring the event, Pete Allison, said that the show is a continuation of a program started at Menard Prison. The show is a continuation of the Longbranch Community Art Gallery which operated in Carbondale last summer.

The article also failed to mention that Congressman Paul Simon (D-Carbondale) will attend the show at about 4 p.m. Saturday.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—In ceremonies here, an internationally recognized physicist, author and educator, Robert L. Sproull, has been installed as the seventh chief executive officer in the 125-year history of the University of Rochester.

In dealing with a fire, Schlager said people must understand that fire extinguishers are not intended to get out fires. They are intended to get a person to the door safely, he said.

If a person becomes trapped by a fire, Schlager suggested spraying the extinguisher on the areas around the body while moving toward an exit. Depending on the type of extinguisher, it may be sprayed directly on the person's clothing.

Schlager also suggested a quick drenching in the shower before attempting to pass through the blaze.

Great care must be taken in purchasing a fire extinguisher, he said. Schlager showed an example of a useless commercial home fire extinguisher.

On the front of the can was a warning that the can should not be used near heat or flame, two conditions which accompany fires.

On the back of the can, another warning stated that the extinguisher produced a particular fatal gas and should be used in a well ventilated area. Schlager pointed out that most fires occur inside the home, a poorly ventilated area.

Schlager said that he could not and would not give specific directions about what to do in case of fire. He suggested doing whatever was necessary.

Saluki gymnasts third after first round of NCAA meet

California is supposedly a couple of years ahead of the rest of the country. Not in gymnastics, though, until now.

The Golden Bears, third in the country a year ago, spurred out to a commanding lead in Thursday's opening round of the NCAA National Championships at Terre Haute, Ind.

Only Louisiana State remained within convenient striking distance after the compulsory competition, tallying 211.75 to the Bears' 213.60.

The Salukis led the rest of the pack with 208.95 but needed a huge comeback to move any higher. Right on SIU's heels was Big Ten champion Michigan at 208.60.

Host Indiana State, the smallest qualifying school, was sixth at 205.25, behind Nebraska's 206.80. Iowa State, the defending champ, was seventh at 203.25, with Arizona State at 198.551, far out of the running.

After Friday's optional competition, the top three teams are pitted against each other for Saturday's team chamampionship battles. The top eight individuals in each category will also decide their titles, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Pommel horse contender Tony Hanson and rings man Jack Laurie found the most success for the Salukis in individual competition Thursday. Each tied for fourth, Hanson with a 9.4 and Laurie with a 9.2.

Laurie missed last year's nationals with an injury, after qualifying as runner-up in the regionals.

Saluki Ed Hembd, who finished fourth in the pommel horse last year, stood in 12th after Thursday's work. Glenn Tidwell was the only other Saluki in contending shape, placing sixth on the parallel bars with a 9.2.

They were the only ones in the top 12 slots, although Thursday's competition was just half of the scoring to be considered for reaching Saturday's finals. Saturday's scores for the final eight contenders then count the same as the first two days' totals combined.

California's Tom Weeden grabbed a narrow lead in all-around competition Thursday, scoring 53.15 to 53.05 for LSU's Mike Carter and 53.00 for Brigham Young's Wayne Young.

Weeden also tied Oregon's Bob Rikli for the lead in floor exercise at 9.25 and trailed just Oklahoma's Rich Bova in the high bar, 9.3-9.25.

Ted Marcy of Standord scored the highest one-event total of the day, gaining a 9.8 on the pommel horse. Arizona State's L.J. Larson still managed to stay in contention, though, with a 9.65.

The rings competition was the closest, with Laurie being one of six men maintaining a good shot at the title. Carter, Mark Lundy of California and Larry Blow of California State-Northridge led the pack with 9.3's. Laurie, Pierre LeClerc of Michigan and Elandy Fernandez of Indiana had 9.2's.

Michigan's Richard Bigras nosed out Brian Dawson of Cornell and Yoichi Tomita of Long Beach State for the vaulting lead. Bigras scored a 9.4 to the other two's 9.35's.

A three-way resulted in the parallel bars, with Bigras, Don Clifford of LSU and Dabi Lufi of Washington State scoring 9.4's. Tomita had a 9.35.

Meet scores were slow coming out after Thursday's competition—because of Chicago's snowstorm, oddly enough. The Nebraska Cornhuskers were held up in Chicago over 24 hours and didn't arrive in Terre Haute until 9:45 p.m. Thursday.

The team ran through its routines after an hour warmup, winding up about midnight.

Dogs at home

The Saluki baseball team will return home Monday for a single game against Murray State, starting at 3 p.m.

SIU lost its season opener at Murray, Ky., in late March, 3-2.

The Salukis face the Miami (Ohio) Redskins in a doubleheader Saturday at Oxford, Ohio, before returning home. The two teams also battled twice Friday.

Beg your pardon

Friday's edition of the Daily Egyptian announced the time of Saturday's SIU tennis match starting at 2 p.m. Instead, tennis action on the SIU courts will get underway at 9 a.m.

Signup slated

Registration for the Carbondale Junior Sports baseball program will be held at Lewis Park Saturday and Sunday, April 5-6, from 1 to 5 p.m.

All youngsters aged 7 through 16 living within the boundaries of the Carbondale High School District are eligible and invited to participate in this program.

All participants must register on the above dates, including those who will be returning to the same-teams they played on last year. A parent should accompany each child, bringing along the youngster's birth record, if possible.

Tryouts will be held at Lewis Park Saturday, April 12, at 11 a.m. for the following leagues and age groups: Major League (9-12), Pony League (13-14) and Girls Softball (9-14). All boys moving from one league and age group to another must attend the tryouts.

Boys who will be returning to the same team they played on last year in the Major or Pony Leagues will not try out, nor will Colt Leaguers (15-16).

All 7,8 and 9-year-olds wishing to play in the Tee-Ball or Minor Leagues need not try out. They will be assigned to teams after registration.

The Major League will begin play Saturday, May 3. The Tee-Ball, Minor, Girls Softball and Pony Leagues will not play May 10. The Colt League will begin May 30.

All youngsters interested and properly registered will play on a team. Some of the dates were listed incorrectly in the March 22 Daily Egyptian.
