Lambert resigns to take job at Auburn

By Bud Vanderzack
Sports Editor

Paul Lambert has resigned as head basketball coach to take the same position at Auburn, the Daily Egyptian has learned.

Lambert reportedly will receive a salary of $35,000, which represents a salary increase of $6,000, and a weekly television show during the basketball season.

Both schools will hold news conferences Friday morning and the one at SIU will involve Lambert, said Tom Simons, Southern Illinois' sports information director.

Athletics Director Gale Sayers said Wednesday that if Lambert resigned it would take at least six weeks to find a successor.

Robert E. Lowder of Montgomery, Ala., a member of the seven-man selection committee at the Southeastern Conference school, said Lambert was chosen over several candidates for the job.

Lambert, who was on the Auburn campus Wednesday for an interview, was unavailable for comment.

Lowder said the committee was impressed by Lambert's past record, which includes a 126-84 mark in eight years at SIU.

"We took him because he is a winner," Lowder said. "He has always been a winner and he can give us a winner at Auburn. I feel real good about the whole situation."

Lambert is expected back in Carbondale Friday. The 43-year-old native of Kansas City was also mentioned as being one of the top candidates for the head coaching position at Missouri Valley rival Wichita State. Ted Bredeshoff, Wichita State athletics director, said Wednesday Lambert was "one of the final three candidates" for the job.

J-Board to decide fate of presidential hopeful

By Michele Ransford
Staff Writer

The student election campaign is only three days old, but a dispute between a presidential candidate and Election Commissioner Brian Adams is headed for a decision by the Judicial Board Friday.

Adams has ruled that the names of presidential candidate Pete Alexander and his running mate, Kathy Mack Cannan, both juniors in political science, not be placed on the ballot.

Adams said Alexander had only 196 of the 200 petition signatures needed to be placed on the ballot.

However, Alexander said the problem is with the interpretation of the election bylaws not the number of signatures on his petition.

For the first time, candidates for president and vice president must run as part of a ticket under a ruling by the election commissioner.

Alexander said the bylaws are not clear as to whether the ticket needs 200 signatures or each candidate needs 200 signatures.

The section of the bylaws under question states, "Candidates for any other Student Government office must submit petitions with a minimum of 200 individual signatures and addresses of student."

Adams said he told several candidates that if petitions contained the names of both candidates at the top, any signature on the petition would be counted for both of them.

Although petitions for the Alexander-Cannan ticket had 426 signatures on them, petitions with Alexander's name on them had only 199. The remainder of signatures were on petitions with only Cannan's name.

Alexander and Cannan are appealing the decision to the Judicial Board for Governance, which has final jurisdiction in election cases.

The J-Board is holding a hearing on the issue at 2:30 p.m. Friday. The site of the hearing has not yet been determined.

Bo Belter, J-Board chairperson, said he expects a decision after the hearing Friday. He said this is the first case to be brought before J-Board this year.

Adams said he may have to go through the ballot lottery process again if the J-Board rules in Alexander's favor. Adams said he expects complaints from other candidates if that happens.

Families snub housing loans

By Steve Lambert
Staff Writer

Carbondale city officials again are trying to generate public interest in a federal housing rehabilitation loan program—a program they say has received limited local support.

The project, sponsored by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), is designed to provide loans of up to $14,500 to lower income families living in substandard housing.

However, since Carbondale became involved in the program in 1974, only about 20 local families have taken out loans.

One possible reason for the low participation in the program is that it takes from 60 to 90 days to complete the paperwork and process the loan application.

"People don't want to bother with it," says Bob Hinson, a rehabilitation officer for the city.

Specifically, to be eligible for a loan, residents must live between Main Street to the north and Mill Street to the south, and between Oaklawn Street to the west and Wall Street to the east.

The loans are to be used to upgrade the conditions of substandard housing. At least 60 percent of each loan must be used to rectify code violations—poor plumbing, leaky roofs and inadequate electrical wiring. The rest may be used for general house improvements.

A family may be eligible for a loan if it meets the following family size and income requirements:

total annual income of no more than $9,700;

—A two-member household with a total income of $11,050 or less;

—A family of three with a total income of no more than $12,150;

—A family of four with a total income of $13,850 or less;

—A family of five with a total income of no more than $14,700;

—A six-member family with a total income of $15,550 or less;

—A family of seven with a total income of no more than $16,850;

—A family of eight or more with a total income of $17,300 or less.

In addition, an applicant must have owned or occupied the house for at least one year, and must be capable of repaying the loan.

Loans may be paid off at a 3 percent interest rate for up to 20 years.

Loan applications can be obtained at the city's Division of Renewal and Housing at 609 E. College St., or by calling 540-5302, Extension 257.

Panel: Change in education hampered

By Ray Valek
Staff Writer

Vandalism, limited funds and too much television viewing hamper work to change the public education system, according to a panel of three faculty members.

"The state of public education is in turmoil," said panel member Charles H. Hinderman, professor in marketing and member of the Illinois State Committee of the North Central Association of Schools and Colleges.

The panel included Edward B. Sasse, professor in educational leadership, and Roy K. Weshinsky, assistant professor in English and president of the Board of Education, Carbondale District 165. Elmer J. Clark, dean of the College of Education, was the moderator. They discussed "Troubled Condition of Public Education."

About 50 people attended the debate, the second session of the 1977-78 University Forum series, held in the Morris Library Auditorium Wednesday. The University Forum's purpose is to provide a forum for faculty, staff and student participation on significant issues.

Hinderman agreed with a member of the audience who said that change cannot be made in public education until the question of who the policymakers are is solved.

"The public generally believes the school boards have the authority," Hinderman said. But he added that school boards receive all of their power from the state.

Hinderman said he thinks most people feel the school board should be the final voice in education decisions.

He added that school boards are very easily criticized, although most of those who serve on the boards are people who come from a variety of backgrounds.

"It's amazing they have functioned so well over such a long period of time," Hinderman said.

Hinderman also talked about the problem of discipline in schools. According to the 1977 Gallup Poll, lack of discipline is the major problem in public education.

"Learning cannot take place in a hostile environment," Hinderman said. He added that discipline is not just an inner city school problem.

"Teachers should be given the authority to enforce discipline," he said. Teachers often "wear black hats" and are not supported by school board administrators, he said.

The Gallup Poll also indicated that public confidence in education has lowered. The top five problems in public education, according to the poll, are lack of discipline; the integration, segregation and busing issue; lack of proper financial support; difficulty of getting "good" teachers and poor curriculum.

Sasse noted the financial problems of public education. He said 70 percent of school superintendents polled think that financing education is their biggest problem.

Sasse said 63.8 million people are directly involved in day-to-day American education.

"The business of trying to find the funds to run a system with 63.8 million people involved is a real dilemma," Sasse said.

Sasse said $4.2 billion was used last fiscal year to finance education with $2 billion coming from the state, $1.9 billion coming from the local level and $3 million coming from federal programs.

Sasse noted a 1977 Census Bureau report which said that kindergarten enrollment had declined from 3.5 million to 3.2 million.

"Each time this group hits a grade level, there will be a surplus of 12,000 teachers," Sasse said.

He said school systems which expect a decline in enrollment must also expect a substantial decline in state aid, which must be made up by local funds.

"Property taxes provide the lion's share of the money. But people are fed up with increases in property taxes," Sasse said.

He said local funds paid a $1 billion bill in 1966 for education. In 1977, $1.9 billion was paid by local funds—a 90 percent increase.

Weshinsky said one of the major faults of public education has been the failure to recruit the best students to be teachers.

He said many elementary school teachers do not know simple subject matter such as the English language and easy math and instead try to gimmick up their teaching.

He said students get into bad habits in the pre-school years, such as watching television instead of reading books. He emphasized that children should read things they have interest in.

"If a student wanted to read about hanky-panky in a New England town, I'd rather he read 'The Scarlet Letter,' but I'd rather they read 'Peyton Place' than nothing at all," Weshinsky said.

Committee endorses state tax limit

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A constitutional limit on state taxes tied to taxpayers' ability to pay was endorsed Thursday by the Senate Executive Committee over the opposition of Gov. James R. Thompson.

"I hope everybody realizes that those who vote are voting for an increase in the local property tax," said Sen. Phillip J. Rock, D-Chicago, arguing that if state revenue is limited, schools will increasingly have to be funded by local taxes.

"If you don't believe the people back home are interested in this, then we haven't been talking to them," said Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, a crusty conservative and Senate co-sponsor.

The proposal is in the form of a resolution which calls for a November referendum to place a constitutional limit on state tax revenues. The limit would equal 7 percent of the total personal income in Illinois.

The measure was opposed by David A. Ward, an analyst in the governor's Bureau of the Budget. He said that if the initiative is approved by voters the state would lose billions in revenues.

Supporters, using different figures, argued that under the amendment the state could still levy an additional $325 million in taxes before reaching the limit.

The bipartisan resolution was approved by the committee, 8 to 6. It now goes to the Senate floor for consideration. It passed the House in November, 115 to 45.

For the initiative to be placed on the ballot, it must clear the General Assembly no later than May 7—six months before the election.

New York Trib stops publication

NEW YORK (AP)—The Trib, New York's fourth major newspaper, folded Wednesday, three months after its first issue was published, sources at the newspaper said.

Leonard Saffir, publisher of the paper, was not immediately available for comment.

The newspaper, which published five days a week, was in questionable health from its beginning Jan. 9. Advertising averaged no more than four or five pages each day in the tabloid.

Last week, Saffir acknowledged that Colorado beer magnate Joseph Coors was a member of the newspaper's board of directors, and had contributed part of his fortune to the newspaper's survival.

Court turns down Nazi march delay

CHICAGO (AP)—A federal appeals court Thursday struck down a lower court order delaying a proposed march by a Nazi group in the heavily Jewish suburb of Skokie.

Judge Bernard M. Decker of U.S. District Court had ruled unconstitutional three Skokie ordinances designed to block the march. But on March 17 he delayed enforcement of the ruling pending an appeal.

It was this delay the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals struck down. Even so, any march still requires a village parade permit, obtained no less than 30 days before the event.

The appeals court said it would review within 30 days Decker's decision.

Senate attempts to replace Cronin as education chief

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—State School Superintendent Joseph M. Cronin got a slap in the face Thursday from the Illinois Senate, which approved a measure seeking to replace him with an elected state school chief.

"We have a fella who wasn't even born and bred in Illinois," said the proposal's sponsor, Sen. Leroy W. Lemke, D-Chicago. "(Cronin) is from Massachusetts, he doesn't know anything about the education problems here."

By a vote of 36 to 18, senators voted to the House a resolution asking voters in November to make Cronin's post an elected one, as it was prior to adoption of the 1970 Illinois Constitution. Under the new constitution, the superintendent is appointed by the governor, subject to Senate confirmation.

The House must approve the resolution by May 7 for the question to be put to the voters in November's general election. A similar resolution was approved 106 to 57 by the House in 1976 but died in the Senate.

"When we make the office totally political, we have gone beyond the weighting of politics and administration," argued Sen. Arthur L. Berman, D-Chicago, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, who opposed the measure.

"It always amazes me when someone stands up and says that...it should be a bureaucracy that does what it damn well pleases after it gets in," said Sen. James C. Soper, R-Cicero, arguing for approval. "If that's the case, why don't we just have a king? We don't need a governor, we don't need a legislature."

Cronin became Illinois' first appointed school chief in 1974, after serving since 1972 as secretary of educational affairs in Massachusetts.

Cronin, 42, has said he would resign if the 17-member state Board of Education asked him to or if he thought he was being ineffective.

"But if you think you're doing your job and you're getting criticized for doing it, the worst thing in the world to do would be to contemplate resigning," he has said.

Activist: Human rights drive a joke

By Daniel Conditine
Student Writer

President Carter's human rights campaign is a "born again joke," Florence Kennedy, feminist and human rights activist, said at a press conference at SIU Thursday.

The press conference was to preview a human rights forum sponsored by the Committee for Artistic and Intellectual Freedom in Iran (CAIFI) featuring Kennedy, Kateh Vafadari, and Ali Shokri.

Vafadari is a member of the "CAIFI six" who were arrested at Jersey City State College in January for demonstrating without a permit. The charges against them have since been dropped.

Shokri, a former Iranian air force mechanic, defected from Iran in 1973 while training in Texas. Since that time he has been seeking political asylum in the United States but has been turned down by the state department and faces possible deportation.

The conference centered on the United States government's support of the Shah's regime in Iran. Kennedy called the support a "rightist plot involving the U.S. government and the Shah and coerced by the seven largest American oil companies."

Kennedy said the "deal" between the United States and the Shah is clear. "The United States agrees to supply all the arms needed to hold up the Shah's regime and the Shah agrees to keep out his opponents and keep the flow of oil going.

At the same time, Kennedy said "The oil companies keep prices high thus helping their profits and keeping the Shah incredibly wealthy, while the people of Iran face poverty and a total lack of human rights."

The three activists agreed that this "deal" is held secure by the American news media and primarily The Associated Press and United Press International wire services. They claimed that the UPI and AP have failed to report the "obvious human rights violations" that have occurred in Iran since the Shah regained power in 1973, an event which they said was engineered by the CIA.

Kennedy claimed that the failure of UPI and AP to report the "Shah's atrocities" and secret police is the result of outside government pressure and "chauvinist pigs" within the two wire services.

The three also agreed that the only way to change the present United States-Iranian relationship is to inform the American people of the injustices that the Shah has imposed on his people.

Vafadari and Kennedy referred to Shokri's case as a typical example of the Shah's "oppression." Shokri said he witnessed what he called many human rights violations in Iran and he referred to his military training there as "animalistic."

He said that on one occasion he was made to fall on his knees before a commanding officer as punishment for holding a religious service on the base.

"He stopped torturing me after two hours only because I passed out," Shokri said.

Nuclear firm refutes story to discredit Scott

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Claims by Illinois Attorney General William J. Scott that the nuclear energy industry is orchestrating an attempt to discredit him are untrue and inflammatory, an executive of the Kentucky firm that operates a nuclear waste site in Illinois said Thursday.

Scott's allegations that the nuclear dump at Sheffield poses health and safety hazards are scaring the public and forcing the site to close, said Sydney Wright, an executive of Nuclear Engineering Co. of Louisville.

Meanwhile, Scott said in a statement Thursday that "his office has scored a major victory for the citizens of Illinois by forcing the temporary shutdown of the nuclear waste burial site at Sheffield."

Scott is running a $100,000 television-advertising campaign in his re-election bid that claims the federal government and the nuclear energy industry are out to get him. The ads say their action results from Scott's filing suits against the company and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to force Sheffield to close.

"Those statements are untrue," Wright said in a telephone interview from Washington, where the firm's president testified Wednesday before a special Senate subcommittee investigating radioactive waste storage.

"Scott's remarks are inflammatory and obviously politically motivated."

He contended that the materials stored at the Sheffield site are low in radioactive levels and pose no threat to area citizens.

"Scott has lumped Sheffield with the high-level problem," he said. "Anytime you hear of radioactivity, people think of the bomb, and that's unfortunate. We don't handle high-level radioactivity."

"Shipping radioactive waste from all over the country to bury here in Illinois is wrong," one Scott television ad says. "The federal government disagrees and that's why the U.S. attorney is fighting me so hard."

The ad's reference is to a federal grand jury in Chicago investigating alleged campaign fund irregularities by Scott.

Inflation forces grade school staff cuts

By Jack Breslin
Student Writer

Rising inflation and declining enrollments could make personnel cutbacks an annual affair at Carbondale Elementary School District, says Superintendent George Edwards.

A committee composed of District 96 board members, staff and parents was appointed in December to review finances and to study possible alternatives to personnel reductions. Edwards stressed that any decisions will be made objectively from an educational and financial position.

With revenues down and expenses up because of inflation, Edwards noted that the 1977 deficit of $228,756 was inevitable.

"Our cost per pupil has increased 42 percent over the last five years," Edwards said. "Our average cost of $1,555 per pupil is above the state average of $1,391 and the national average of $1,461."

Based on Carbondale's controlled tax base, Edwards said that the only possible ways to meet the district's financial needs would be to cut back expenses or propose a tax referendum.

"This year we have balanced our budget and reduced the deficit considerably," Edwards said. "As a matter of fact, there's a very good chance that the accumulated deficit could be eliminated."

Edwards said the district's decline in enrollment will probably continue, forcing staff reductions and possibly a school closing or a consolidation with other Jackson County districts within the next five years. In 1972, 132 staff supervised 2,207 students. By 1977, the enrollment had declined to 1,550 students but 130 staff members were still employed.

"Even experiencing the results of the declining birth rate, we had made no comparable cuts," Edwards said. "It was time to cut, so we did, based on established objective positions and not political areas."

Last spring the district cut 13 positions amidst considerable controversy from the teachers' union and the community.

A study submitted to the district by the Research Department of the Illinois Office of Education indicated that declining enrollment trends will continue for the next five years. The district's present enrollment of 1,753 is already below the study's projected enrollment of 1,755 for next fall. The study predicted that at the district's enrollment will fall to 1,400 by 1984.

"The mobility of the SIU population intensifies our problem of declining enrollments," Edwards added. With these figures and the mandatory issue, Edwards said the district must begin to develop alternatives for the next five years, possibly including closing one of the district's seven existing schools.

"Another alternative is consolidation of districts in Jackson County," Edwards said. "The local boards should not be put in the primary responsibility but the IOE must be the primary force in encouraging future consolidations to deal with declining enrollments."

Even though four of Jackson County's eight districts have enrollments under 300, Edwards stated that local boards are not anxious to merge and consolidation is a sensitive issue.

Edwards stressed that the personnel cuts have not affected programs, class sizes or racial balance in the schools.

"We didn't cut programs but reduced staff," Edwards said. "All of last year's programs are still in existence. Class size is not an issue since we average 23 children per class even with the closing of Brush School and cutting positions."

Housing limit blocks Greeks' growth

By Mary Ann McNulty
Student Writer

The biggest limit to the growth of the Greek system today is housing, says Kevin Wright, Inter-Greek Council chairman.

Of the 27 fraternities and sororities on campus, eight are located in University housing and five are located off campus.

Others hold meetings and rushes for new members in the Student Center and in apartments. More than 1,000 students are involved in these organizations.

"The housing shortage is also a hindrance to the growth of the Greek system as a whole," Wright said.

"Many national fraternities and sororities are interested in colonizing at SIU, but they are all aware of our record on housing."

A housing committee, made up of Greek advisers and students, has been formed to look into the problems of the present housing situation and possibilities for getting more living facilities.

At their last meeting, the committee defined some long- and short-term goals. The long-term goals include more housing on Greek row, while the short-term goals involve housing for Greeks in the dorms.

"The whole thing is very much in the planning stages right now," said Betty Mitchell, co-chairman of the housing committee and adviser to Alpha Gamma Delta sorority.

"One of our primary concerns is to find out what each group wants to do. We have to know before we can suggest or plan anything."

"We have had problems with organizations," said Wright. "One year a group will be content with a house and the next year it is not. There is definitely a shortage of houses though."

Six of the 14 buildings designed as fraternity or sorority dorms were converted to University offices a few years ago, when the Greek membership declined and filling the houses became a problem.

"If we could get the houses back from the Law School and some other offices, we would have no problems," said Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs. "But right now, there is no place else for them to go."

Fraternities and sororities at Greek row currently rent the houses from the University at a fixed rate per year.

"For the first year, in order to help the groups out, we compute the rent at $710 for 25 residents," said Joseph Gasser, housing administrator. After that the rent is $710 for 31 residents, Gasser said.

Each house houses between 25 and 50 people. Each individual house charges rent for the resident.

Many possibilities for finding additional housing are being investigated. The problem is finding the best solution—financially and desirability wise, Swinburne said.

Building a second circle of houses at Small Group Housing, as the original plans for the area had called for, was one of the suggestions. The circle would be behind the Alpha Gamma Rho house and the Health Service parking lot. The area is only large enough for about three or four houses, said Steve Hankla, Phi Sigma Kappa, and co-chairman of the housing committee.

Projects such as this one would have to be financially feasible, Swinburne stressed. "We need some solid commitments by the groups and some solid, well-thought-out plans before we can do anything," he said.

One problem that must be faced is that enrollment, according to statistics, will be declining. The University would have to keep up with the payments if SIU built the buildings, Swinburne said.

"The University also has to look at certain facts when contemplating building more houses," Swinburne said. "Do we watch for the development of a strong, stable organization, or do we put members in a house and hope a strong, stable organization develops? For the University's best interest, we have to look at the group first."

Individual groups have expressed interest in obtaining housing. Craig Froeter, president of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, a new group on campus, said his fraternity is definitely interested in getting more housing at SIU. The fraternity is located in part of one wing in Neely Hall this semester.

"One solution to the shortage is to kick everybody, except for Greeks, out of Small Group Housing," Froeter said. Small Group Housing presently houses the health service, pharmacy, Law School, Board of Trustees office, accounting and purchasing offices.

Delta Sigma Theta sorority also expressed interest in housing. Beverly Baxter, senior in Business administration sciences, said more houses are needed at Small Group Housing. "Right now we have our meetings and rushes at different members' houses and it's very difficult to generate new membership."

Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority would also like to see more housing built, according to Cathy Zukoski, vice president. "A good portion of our members are interested in University housing," Zukoski said.

Bottle deposit price change causes panic

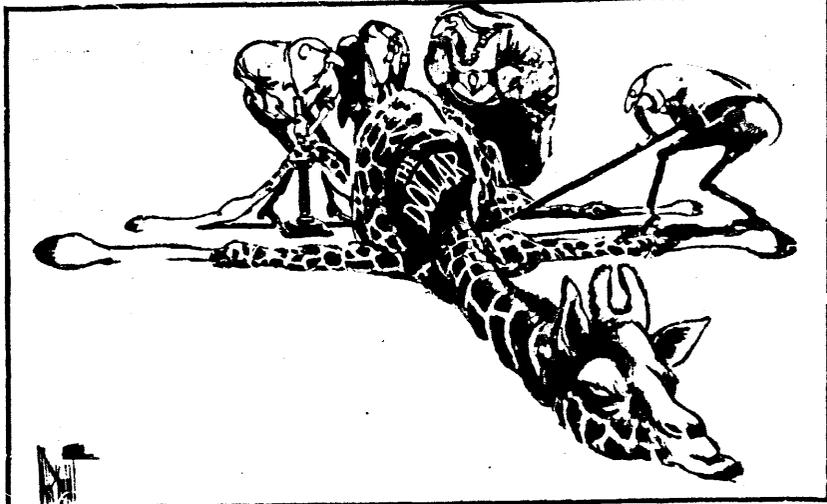

By James J. Kilpatrick

In recent weeks, bankers, private traders, and writers in the financial press have concentrated upon the fading value of the dollar in the money markets of the world. The dollar is down against the mark, down against the yen, down even against the Italian lire.

Two weeks ago, in the Washington metropolitan area, the rate of exchange on the CB jumped overnight from 5 cents to a dime. The CB, of course, is the Coke Bottle. It has been trading frantically in the supermarkets of Georgetown, Alexandria, and points as far west as Manassas, Warrenton, and Sperryville.

Because the Coca-Cola empire is infinitely divided into Balkan franchisees, each with its own bottle currency, I cannot report on the extent of revaluation elsewhere in the nation. I happened to be in Kentucky last week, and learned that the deposit on returnable went from 5 to 10 cents nearly a year ago. Louisville took the lead, but within two weeks, in self defense, Shelbyville and Lexington revalued. Other markets collapsed, including southern Indiana, and the rate of exchange has widely stabilized at the 10-cent level. More bottles are being returned, but sales have significantly declined.

I caught wind of the Virginia situation the afternoon of Friday, March 24, when I dropped by my friendly country bank in Culpepper. Ordinarily it's possible to pass the time of day with the president of the bank, just hanging around, talking politics, trading baseball cards, whatever. But this afternoon my easy-going friend Ralph was like a man possessed by demons. He was coatless; his tie was loose; he had a telephone in each hand.

"No time to talk!" he shouted at me. "The money markets have gone mad!"

The head of his foreign exchange division came rushing in. "Winchester's going!" he yelled. "It's quoting 7 cents on Dr. Peppers, 7.2 on Pepsi, and 10 cents on Sprite!"

"What do you have on ginger ales at Woodville?" my friend asked.

"Steady at a nickel, sir. No charge in the past hour."

"We're going short on Cokes," Ralph said into one telephone. He was suddenly very cool. "And we're going long on ginger ales. Get me an option on one million GA's at 4. We'll straddle on the puts and calls. Keep an eye on Charlottesville. If the CB breaks the 8-cent barrier at Charlottesville, stop our diversion to Fredericksburg. Albemarle will have to go to 10, and we'll make a killing."

He hung up the other phone, and stared frowning at the mass of quotations on his desk. "Returnable Seven-Ups are still five at Morgantown," he said to himself. The clock struck three, and he drew a weary breath. "Market's closed. That's it till Monday morning. I tell you, we hit it just right on CB's. They've been better today than gold."

What had happened, of course, was a stunning revaluation of returnable soft drink bottles in relation to the dollar. Classic economic influences had done their work. In an increasingly affluent society, customers were failing to return bottles on which they had paid only a five-cent deposit. The incentive was too small. In an effort to spur the return rate, bottlers revalued. Instantly the returnable picture changed. Since then, we have seen the Kentucky experience repeated in Virginia. The return rate is up; sales are down.

The hectic trading two weeks ago is bound to cause unease in London, Bonn and Zurich. This is the second major revaluation of CB's in less than eight years. Every grown man who was once a little boy will recall that the Coke Bottle for fifty years provided a stable currency in a madly changing world. It was two cents asked, two cents bid. You could tour the neighborhood on a Saturday morning, pulling a wagon behind you, and collect a case of empties—enough for a movie and a milkshake. With Coke Bottles, you knew financially where you stood.

Then, in June of 1970, the exchange rate leaped from two to five. Now it's gone from five to ten. Is nothing steadfast in these tumultuous times? Two marks to the dollar, less than 50 British pence to the dollar, only 900 lire to the dollar! Sometimes, I would say to our worried President, we learn our economic lessons face to face. Hereabouts, we are looking in a Coke bottle darkly. Hold you! Confederate money, boys, the South may rise again.

At last. After all these years, a piece of correspondence from a reader that makes sense.

The reader is Bob Baker of Thousand Oaks, Calif. His missive begins in the usual way ("You know, Greene, you're nuts. I mean, dangerously nuts. You show a sick side that should be kept cloaked in black.") But he encloses a piece of proposed legislation that demands publication.

The piece of legislation—which Baker wishes the U.S. Congress to enact—concerns itself with a topic that I am, alas, too elderly to comment upon myself. Certain things are now outside my limits, and, my slavish dedication to "James at 15" notwithstanding, I have come to accept it.

But this guy Baker is all right. He writes, "The deal is about to go down; say hello to THE RULES AND REGULATIONS OF ROCK AND ROLL... This creeping fungus of pseudo-intellectual music passed off as rock, these long-haired, bemused looking, contemplative cats like Yes or the Electric Light Orchestra. Or these hideous, blatantly bland folksingers like John Denver. Or even these semi-legitimate rock groups which fell and refuse to emerge from the pit of that ugly, sticky adjective 'mellow,' like the Grateful Dead, the most boring band inventible... So no more 'Good-bye Yellow Brick Road.' In fact, good-bye Elton John. Creep." Baker's preface rants some more, but I feel that it is now time to give you his classic text. Hence:

RULES, REGULATIONS OF ROCK AND ROLL

1. Instruments and Musicians

Article A: No band shall consist of more than five persons. Each person shall be male, unless the Commissioner of Rock Personnel finds that the applying female can drink two quarts of Southern Comfort without falling down.

Article B: No band member shall be older than 24 years. Members turning 25 will be able to amortize their talents for 30 days after their 25th birthday; after this, they must quit immediately.

Article C: Instruments will be limited to electric guitar, electric bass, drums, piano and electric organ. Piano shall be allowed, but only in acts with four or more persons. Saxophone will be allowed only with approval from Commissioner of Rock Instrumentation. No other horns will be tolerated.

2. Solo Acts

Article A: There shall be no solo acts. Individual entertainment has been found to encourage displays of personal, musical mush in levels harmful to the public health, safety and welfare. This ban may be dropped once per decade by the Commissioner of Artistic Discipline.

3. Dress

Article A: Musicians shall dress in solid colors. Article B: Musicians shall not wear facial hair. Exceptions will be made for sideburns that are stringy. Fuzzy sideburns are cause for $500 fine.

4. Heritage

Article A: Performers must be citizens by birth of the United States to record or perform in this country. It is the expressed concern of the Commissioner of Rock Aesthetics that those not born in the U.S.A. are incapable of doing anything but pervert the spirit of the Real Music. The Commissioner has ruled there shall be one exception made each quarter-century, and has designated John Lennon as the exception from 1959 to 1978.

5. Topics

Article A: Songs may be neither written nor performed nor read nor complimented if they involve traveling; being on the road; the need for one class of individuals to unite against some form of repression; the concept of "brotherhood;" affection for elders; or discussion of concept of friendship.

Article B: Songs are encouraged to take on the following topics, topics which the Commissioner of Rock Routines feels are linked to traditions which bolster, not weaken, The Real Music: cars; obsession with young females; incidents involving both cars and young females; high school—but expressly not college; dancing; sexual frustration; sexual conquest; bragging about any or all of the aforementioned topics.

6. Duration and Structure of Songs

Article A: No song shall be more than three minutes in length. One exception shall be made every 15 years, with the 1960 to 1975 selection being "Going Home" by the Rolling Stones.

Article B: No song shall contain more than three separate stanzas. The same stanza may, however, be repeated as many times as desired within the three-minute limit.

Article C: There shall be no drum solos.

7. Nostalgia Prevention

Article A: To ensure that another tasteless wave of nostalgia does not pervert the freshness of rock and roll, the Commissioner of Rock Memory shall be charged with destroying everything three years after it is produced. This shall include destruction of records, tapes, photographs, lyric sheets and any person who violates Section 7, Article A.

8. Attitude of Performers

Article A: The performers should maintain an attitude which complements the nature of their music. Thus their behavior should range within acceptable limits, hereby defined as from surly to psychotic.

9. Attitude of Listeners

Article A: Listeners should complement the attitude of the performers by exhibiting appropriate disrespect for every person involved in the production, distribution, sale, review and public performance of said music.

Article B: Listeners should also exhibit the highest respect, at all times, for the Commissioner of Rock, who is:

Article C: Eddie Harper, age 17, Bellflower, Calif.

Grand Ave. work to take 2 months

Conditions along Grand Avenue are bound to get worse since the resurfacing project has been started this past week.

Ed Reeder, a civil engineer for the Public Works Department, said the project will take at least two months.

"The firm had to wait until the ground had firmed up enough so that the heavy equipment could be brought in," Reeder said.

Reeder said that the firm, Evansville Cement Finishers, worked on four streets in the northeast section of the city last year.

"Once the weather got good enough for them to come in, they did a real quick job," Reeder said.

The resurfacing is going to be done in two steps, according to Reeder.

"They will first do the section from Washington to Wall, and then across the railroad tracks to Illinois," Reeder said.

"People traveling from the East to campus will be able to turn and either take Wall to College Street, or take the street that goes behind Brush Towers," Reeder said.

"That may not be of much help to some cars."

The most effective tampon is the most economical, too

Tampax tampons are made with a special, highly compressed material to give you maximum absorbency. What's more, unlike most other brands, they expand in all three directions—length, breadth and width—to conform to individual body contours. Which means there's far less chance of leakage or bypass.

And here's something else you'll like about Tampax tampons: the price. The economy-size package of 40 costs less—tampon for tampon—than any other brand.

So if you want a lot of protection at very little cost, open a package of Tampax tampons. We promise you, it's there.

School of Music to sponsor recitals

By Martin Reeves
Staff Writer

The School of Music will be looking not only to its own talent but to Los Angeles, Cal., Evansville, Ill., Akron, Ohio, and Du Quoin, Ill. when it sponsors three recitals this Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Carol Reich, a soprano, is a visiting lecturer from Los Angeles. She will present a voice recital at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel (OBF).

Reich taught music in Beverly Hills and Los Angeles schools, was a member of the Los Angeles Master Chorale, and has been a soloist at the Idylwild School of Music Summer Festivals and the Claremont Summer Festivals.

Her recital will feature a work called "Great Day for Up," a personal picture of the performer and her family with voice, piano, and tape.

Reich will also sing "Dictionary for George," a composition by SIU faculty member Heidi Von Gunten, set to a poem by Ju-Jy Little of the SIU English department.

Margaret Simmons will accompany Reich on the piano, assisted by Ivan Bergt, harpist, Robert Bergt, violinist, Christene Greeska, cello, and George Hunsey, oboe.

Simmons will also be in a recital at 3 p.m. Sunday in OBF in a group called "Drei Musikanten," with visiting faculty members Roberta Veazy and Boyd Mackus.

Pianist for the group, Simmons is coach-accompanist at SIU and works with The Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theatre. Veazy, soprano, is director of the Opera Workshop at the University of Evansville. Mackus, baritone, is on the faculty of the University of Akron.

The group will perform the complete "Italienisches Liederbuch" by Hugo Wolf.

Charles Schuster, from Du Quoin, Ill. will conduct a trumpet clinic at 6:30 p.m. and a recital of trumpet music at 7:30 p.m. Monday in OBF.

Schuster studied trumpet at SIU with Donald Lemstra, Ed Brauer, and at the Juilliard School of Music with William Vacciano.

He has been principal trumpet player with the American Ballet Theatre Orchestra, the Kansas City

Philharmonic and the Milwaukee Symphony.

Recently Schuster designed an E-flat trumpet and a piccolo B-flat-A trumpet.

The clinic and all three recitals are open to the public.

Designers to hold exhibit

"Design '78," an exhibit by Design Initiative, a group of design students, will open with a reception from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday in the Mitchell Gallery and Lounge of the Heene Economics building.

Live music will entertain while students have an opportunity to show over 100 pieces in the categories of visual, commercial and product design.

Woody Allen encounters himself as a 9 year-old in "Annie Hall," a touch that shows the influence of directors Ingmar Bergman and Federico Fellini on his work.

Woody's Oscar-winner to be shown

By Dave Karger
 Entertainment Editor
 "Annie Hall," the Woody Allen film that won an Academy Award for Best Picture this week, is a man's film about a woman, as opposed to the two much-trumpeted women's films it was chosen over: "Julia," and "The Turning Point." It is a remembrance, a recollection by Alvy Singer (Allen) of his romance with Annie Hall (Diane Keaton).

Although he was seemingly less than thrilled, Allen richly deserved the Oscars he received for writing and directing "Annie Hall" because of the brilliant structure and technique displayed in the film.

The film draws its form from the workings of Alvy Singer's memory, effectively employing techniques innovated by master directors Ingmar Bergman and Federico Fellini to illustrate his thoughts about his love relationship with Annie.

Singer's past is shown as he reflects on past loves and the formative years of his childhood, wondering how they affected his and Annie's love relationship. At one point, he even interacts with himself as a boy.

The new vulnerability that Allen shows in "Annie Hall" while still maintaining a high level of comedy was a risk that paid off, resulting in Allen's finest work to date.

The film will be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Student Center Auditorium. Admission is $1.

Band's new sound 'works'

Local music freaks will get The Works this weekend when the band by that name appears from 4 to 7 p.m. Friday at Das Fess, at Merlin's Friday and Saturday nights and at Gatsby's Sunday night.

Dave King, Chris Fitzgerald and Vinnie Bourke kept the name of their old band, Ricochet, at first after Ben Pennisi joined last November, but as their music started to change, they decided their name should too.

"We didn't want to be entirely country-and-western anymore," Fitzgerald said.

"It was gettin' old," Bourke added. "You can see it anywhere in town. We still have fun playing the country songs we do, but we can't play 'em all night."

"We're all from the City and we didn't grow up on country music," Fitzgerald said. "We grew up more on rhythm-and-blues, soul music and rock-n-roll."

In recent months, The Works have emphasized these roots more in their music and have found the crowd response to rhythm-and-blues and soul to be very good.

"We try and modernize them a little," Pennisi said of these songs, which are primarily from the '60s.

"We pulled out some of this old '60s stuff to provide danceable music without repeating the old characteristic disco," King added.

King explained that while The Works are synthesizing their new style, they have still maintained their versatility. Their music ranges from songs by the New Riders of the Purple Sage and Marshall Tucker to Bruce Springfield and Paul Butterfield to Otis Redding, the Four Tops and the Fantastic Johnny Sea.

Although they presently do no original tunes, Pennisi explained that the creativity in their music comes in their improvised lead solos and arrangements. This is evident on their version of the Doobie Brothers' "Wheels of Fortune," where Bourke's drumming, King's bass and Pennisi's and Fitzgerald's guitars meld together to give the song a hard-driven, jazzy feel the original never had. Not bad for a band whose theme song is "The Clutch Cargo Theme."

SGAC looking for help

Student Government Activities Council (SGAC) is looking for additional applicants for the chairperson position of several of their committees for next year. Persons interested in heading the lecture, concert, film, video, fine arts, travel or home-coming committees are urged to apply, says Josh Grier, SGAC chairperson.

"We were going to choose this Friday but it's been delayed a week," said Grier, stressing that they're especially interested in having people from outside the current SGAC committee members apply.

Committee heads are paid for eight hours a week and are allowed to work an additional 12 hours a week at another student job if they wish. Grier said they can also arrange to receive credit from their academic units if their position is appropriately related.

Interested people can talk to Grier or one of the various chairpersons at the SGAC offices on the third floor of the Student Center. The application blanks are available from the secretary there.

Grier said a selection committee will screen the applications and choose three promising persons to be interviewed. One of the three interviewed will be suggested to the 10-member council, made up of the current chairpersons.

Comedy to be read

A visit by General Lafayette to the nearby town of St. Genevieve, Missouri, is the subject of an original full-length script written by Thomas Hischak, a graduate Theater student in the HFA Playwriting program.

The Department of Theater Playwriting Workshop will hold an open reading of Hischak's folk comedy, "The General Comes To Town," at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Laboratory Theater of the Communications Building. The public is invited.

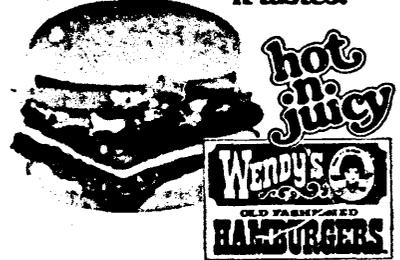

"It will be a script-in-hand performance. The purpose of this performance is for the discussion and critique of the play. This is not a final performance," said Hischak.

Gypsies troublesome for police

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Eleven Gypsies charged in a series of local burglaries had been arrested more than 500 times in various parts of the country—but authorities always let them go because they were too much trouble to prosecute, a law enforcement official says.

"No one wants them," Deputy District Attorney Thomas Hardy said. "They create so much havoc in jails when they're arrested that they've always been let go after they pay their bail and fines and return the stolen property."

The Gypsies, who wear the colorful skirts and shirts of their native central Europe, face preliminary hearings next Wednesday in connection with thefts in nearby Borrego Springs.

Several children traveling with them—including a 12-year-old girl who authorities believe cracked a safe—have been placed in a county home or in Juvenile Hall, Hardy said.

Hardy said police from Chicago to California report at least 500 prior arrests for the same group of Gypsies, but as far as he knew they had not been prosecuted until now.

Deputy Sheriff Sam Bove said the women make a habit of tormenting their jailers by such acts as throwing excrement at them.

"If we keep them in custody and convict them, the penal system will have done a tremendous chore," Hardy said. "Breaking a 2,000-year-old habit—stealing."

Hardy said the seven women and four men jailed here are thought to be among an estimated 100 Gypsies who migrated to Mexico from Europe a few years ago and crossed into Arizona. The Gypsies, who apparently do not speak English, have no lawyer. An 18-year-old exchange student from Yugoslavia entered an innocent plea at their hearing this week.

Hardy said immigration officials have declined to take action against the Gypsies, who are considered stateless.

One of the jailed men, George Ivan Konovalov, 44, is described by Bove as "king" of the roving band. Bove said that usually when the Gypsies run afoul of the law, a "king" flies out from Chicago to post bail.

Vietnam vets set Chicago rally

By Victoria Press
Staff Writer

"Used race and thrown away" is the slogan adopted by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW) for a rally and march to be held April 22 in Chicago.

The day chosen by the VVAW for its Vietnam Veterans Day is one week before the third anniversary of the evacuation of Americans from Vietnam.

Pete Zastrow, one of four national coordinators of the Chicago-based VVAW, said the event was "an attempt to provide a real focus for the anger and frustration a lot of vets face."

According to Zastrow, one of the major issues to be brought up is the demand that the Veterans Administration test and treat veterans affected by the defoliant "Agent Orange" used in Vietnam from 1967 to 1978.

Its use was stopped in 1979 because of objections from the Vietnamese who said the defoliant was causing skin diseases and birth defects, Zastrow said.

Recently a Chicago television station broadcast the results of a three-month investigation into effects of "Agent Orange." The program reviewed the skin diseases, nervous conditions, multiple miscarriages and deformed babies born to Americans allegedly affected by the defoliant. Zastrow described it as a "chemical time bomb in the loches of Vietnam vets" because its results are becoming evident 10 years after its use.

Because the public is now reviewing the American experience in Vietnam through books, movies and TV shows, the VVAW national office chose this time to establish Vietnam Veterans Day.

In a letter addressed to veterans, the VVAW said, "All this hype and publicity is what gives us the opportunity to get out there."

Counseling Center plans free workshop series

By University News Service

Help for college students who are anxious about the future is being offered in a series of free workshops sponsored by the Career Counseling Center.

The workshops, directed by counselor Richard Hagberg, are designed to help students find out about course majors, career opportunities and job qualifications and to "help them discover their own personal interests and values."

More than 30 percent of last fall's incoming freshmen SIU didn't have majors and many upperclassmen are uncertain about their courses of study, Hagberg said. Students as far along as the post-doctorate level have sought counseling about career alternatives—something he believes demonstrates widespread need for career help.

Making a choice of college majors can be an agonizing experience, Hagberg explained, and the anxiety usually is caused by several false assumptions about career choices.

"We try to dispel three myths," he said. "The biggest one is that there is one right career for each individual, and that simply is not true. We try to help students work on alternatives."

"Secondly, many students ask for a career test that will tell them what to major in and what their 'right' career should be. Tests simply help students organize their thoughts, discover their interests and possibly generate career suggestions."

"The third myth is that many people believe, once they have chosen a particular career they are locked in, they can't change it for the rest of their lives," he said.

The two-hour workshop sessions will be at 10 a.m. Friday, 3 p.m. Monday and 10 a.m. April 14.

Talk on sports psychology set

Robert N. Singer, an expert on motor learning and sports psychology, will deliver a free public lecture Tuesday at SIU.

Singer, director of the Motor Behavior Research Center at Florida State University in Tallahassee, will speak on "Two Directions in Sports Psychology in the United States" at 7:30 p.m. in Morris Library Auditorium.

Singer, a consultant to the U.S. Olympic Committee, has lectured widely on the topics of sports psychology, sports medicine and motor learning.

The lecture is co-sponsored by the College of Education and the Department of Physical Education.

Legislation proposes changes in state's federal court districts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Legislation to change the boundaries of federal court districts in Illinois has been introduced by Sen. Charles H. Percy and Adlai E. Stevenson.

The senators said their proposal, which would change federal court district boundaries in Illinois for the first time since 1905, would recognize the east-west flow of business in the state and make getting to court more convenient for lawyers and their clients.

Under the measure, the Northern District of Illinois, with headquarters at the Dirksen Federal Building in Chicago, would remain unchanged, except that it would add to its jurisdiction Kanezoo County, which currently is in the Eastern District.

The 45-county Eastern District, which takes in Kanezoo, Danville, Champaign-Urbana, Belleville, East St. Louis and all of Southern Illinois south of Madison County, would be abolished and replaced with a Central District.

Peoria, Bloomington, Decatur, Springfield, Rock Island, Moline, Quincy and Alton, which now are in the Southern District, would be in the Central District, and Southern Illinois would be in the Southern District.

The Northern District would have 16 judges, the Central three and the Southern two. Currently the Northern has 13, the Southern two and the Eastern two. Even if the measure is not approved, the state most likely will get the additional four district judgeships anyway, under a bill now in a House-Senate conference committee.

The senators said that they would ask the chief judge of the Northern District to appoint a full-time judge to sit in the district's western division. They said that action would address the belief among some in western Illinois that the region lacks adequate federal judicial service.

Percy said that the proposal, which arose out of a study of federal courts in Illinois by a special committee headed by former State Bar Association President John R. Mackay of Wheaton, "will greatly reduce the cost and inconvenience now faced by many Illinoisans using the federal court system." Stevenson said it would "establish a more sensible, convenient and geographically accurate division of the state."

Here are the boundaries of the proposed districts: Southern: All counties south of the Central District boundary.

New York official pleads innocent to solicitation charge

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Frederick Richmond, D-N.Y., conferred to his constituents but pleaded innocent in the courtroom Thursday to having solicited sex from two young men at his capital home.

After sending Brooklyn voters a letter in which he said, "I prayerfully ask for your compassion and understanding" of his homosexual overtures, Richmond stood mute as he was formally charged in city court.

The arraignment, on a misdemeanor count of sex solicitation, took a scant two minutes after Richmond's attorneys had arranged with prosecutors to have the two-term congressman enrolled in a program for first offenders.

The charge is punishable by up to 90 days in jail and a $250 fine.

Superior Judge Dyer Justice Taylor set May 5 as the date for a non-jury trial, as requested by Richmond's counsel. However, it is unlikely under the first-offender system that the case will be prosecuted, provided that Richmond lives up to his attorney's promise that he will "continue professional treatment" between now and the trial date.

Despite the entry of the innocent plea, a technical necessity for the leniency program, the congressman publicly admitted the veracity of the government's case in his letter to constituents.

Richmond, who is 54 and divorced, acknowledged he had solicited "a young man," said by government sources to have been 18 years old, after taking him to his home about a year ago. And "Last February, I made further solicitations with payment of money, in my own home to a man who, unbeknownst to me, was an undercover police officer," he wrote.

In his "Dear Neighbors" letter, Richmond said that "during various periods of personal stress, I made bad judgments involving my personal life."

ZWICK'S

Professor: Alcohol study false

By Vicky Lohavich
Staff Writer

A campus study which found that one-third of SIU students may be "probable alcoholics" is erroneous, claims Jack McKillip, social psychologist who has studied other alcoholism findings at the University. He criticized an alcoholism study, based on 500 students' responses, which was distributed by Dr. Lee Spatt, Health Services psychiatrist. The study, conducted during the winter of 1976-77, suggested that more than half of the student population suffers from alcohol-related problems.

McKillip said students were asked to check alcoholism symptoms including blackouts, medical complications or drinking binges that applied to them in the past or at the time of the study. This does not measure current alcohol use at SIU, he said. "Another survey administered to dorm students in 1977 found that that only four percent of those surveyed drink daily and 60 percent do not even drink once a week," said McKillip, who has been on the Psychology Department faculty since 1974.

The 1977 survey was administered to dorm students by Russell Wright, assistant professor in the School of Medicine, and Erwin Atwood, professor in journalism.

The Wright-Atwood survey included a randomly selected sample of 610 students—41 percent female and 59 percent male—living in three University housing areas during February 1977. The response rate was 60 percent, with 500 students responding.

The study was aimed at determining student knowledge, attitudes and satisfaction with the Health Service. It included a section on alcohol and tobacco use by students.

The survey indicated that four percent of the dorm students drink daily, 37 percent drink weekly, 47 percent drink less than weekly and 13 percent do not drink.

"The Wright-Atwood study had a 60 percent return rate whereas the Spatt study had only a 20 percent return. Mailed questionnaires should have a 40 percent return rate to be accurate," McKillip said.

He said that 700 percent of the students who drink daily meet the criteria for possible alcoholism. One way to look at the study is that 60 percent of the respondents drink less than weekly, he said.

He added that the alcohol use was lower for older students, with 25 percent of the graduate respondents indicating they drink weekly, along with 40 percent of the juniors. This could be because of the selection factor of living in the dorms, he said.

"I'm not saying there isn't alcohol abuse at the University. Alcohol use is widespread, but not very heavy and probably cyclical in nature," McKillip said.

He said a study by Thomas Westbrook, graduate in Higher Education, found that only three percent of the dorm students surveyed considered themselves heavy drinkers.

Westbrook distributed 104 questionnaires to a random sample of students living in four of the residence halls at Thompson Point. The survey was distributed in November 1976 and students responded in 10 days.

Data was analyzed from the 103 responses, of which 53 were from females and from 51 males. The survey pertained to six topics, including the alcohol incidence level of the respondents before and after college enrollment.

The survey also found that 41 percent of the respondents considered themselves light drinkers and 11 percent abstained from alcoholic beverages.

"The Westbrook study reports a higher percentage of alcohol use by SIU dorm students than the Wright-Atwood study, but it is still within the normal college range," McKillip said.

BEAT sponsors convention

Blacks in Engineering and Allied Technology (BEAT) will sponsor its first student chapter convention at SIU Saturday and Sunday. Activities will be held in the Student Center Ballroom B. Students from Midwest colleges and 24 black business representatives will attend the conference.

BEAT, a student chapter of the National Technical Association (NTA), has designed its conference to aid black students in their entry into technical and scientific careers.

Karla Bell, coordinator of the conference and co-sponsor of BEAT said, "We hope the conference will help promote unification among and within student chapters. It will also give students encouragement and insight in their respective fields."

Ford Motor Co., Caterpillar Tractors, and Bell Systems are sending representatives. Guest speakers will include President Warren Brandt, Richard Mullins, director of Minority Engineering Education Effort, and George Arnold, design engineer for the Bendix Corporation in Indiana.

Activities will include a contest in technical writing with cash awards.

Witness supports Walus' slave claim

By Marc Wilson
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—An elderly white-haired woman with an easy smile and a bearing and look the witness stand Thursday and supported the claim of a man accused of being a Gestapo agent who killed hundreds of Jews in World War II. Rita Heichinger said she helped prepare the health insurance documents that are critical to defendant Frank Walus' claim that he was a Polish slave worker in Germany during the war—not a Gestapo agent in Poland.

Walus, a 75-year-old retired laborer, has been identified by 11 prosecution witnesses as being a Gestapo agent who killed Jews in Poland. If U.S. District Court Judge Julius Hoffman finds Walus guilty of lying to U.S. immigration officials about his past, Walus can be stripped of his citizenship and deported.

The U.S. Attorney's office claims the health insurance documents were forged as a cover by Gestapo agents who feared reprisals after the war ended. But Heichinger, an employee of the German General Health Insurance Agency since 1941, testified that she recognized her handwriting on the documents.

"Everyone's favorite grandmother," is how Assistant U.S. Attorney William Conlen described Heichinger to reporters. "But appearances may be deceiving." Conlen said he would "have a nice discussion" with Heichinger on cross-examination later in the trial. He wouldn't say how he would attack her testimony, but said "it should be very interesting."

Conlen and Assistant U.S. Attorney John Gubbins have said during the trial that some of the defense witnesses will be proved to be Nazi agents or sympathizers.

Earlier Thursday, the government completed cross-examination of Wilhelm Rehle, also an employee of the government-run General Health Insurance Agency. Rehle said that the agency was run by a Nazi Party member during the war. He said he was not sure if the Gestapo had control of the agency and its records during the war.

Thompson, Bakalis disagree on campaign debate proposal

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Governatorial candidates James R. Thompson and Michael J. Bakalis have disagreed over a format for campaign debates, in a dispute resembling the hassle over the shape of the negotiating table during the Vietnam peace talks.

"I have examined your proposal for the execution of these debates and have determined that I cannot accept it in total," said Democrat Bakalis in a letter to Thompson, the Republican incumbent.

Thompson, responding fit for fat, said at a news conference that "I'm not satisfied with (Bakalis' debate proposal). I think it's completely unacceptable."

The two sides have proposed debates on such weighty issues as economic development, education, and transportation problems. But for now, they can't even agree on who asked whom to debate.

Bakalis said Thompson "a few weeks ago accepted my challenge to engage in a series of debates." Thompson in turn referred to "my invitation (Bakalis') to debate."

Thompson proposed four debates. Bakalis wants six. Bakalis wants most time spent on one-to-one exchanges between the two candidates. Thompson proposes questioning by panels of reporters.

Thompson proposed a debate in Peoria. Bakalis didn't. "There's no discrimination against Peoria," Bakalis explained. "...There's no real way to satisfy everybody in terms of location."

Tax troubles rebuked by Scott

CHICAGO (AP)— Atty. Gen. William Scott has begun a state-wide television commercial campaign, contending his federal tax troubles stem from his efforts at cleaning up pollution.

The $100,000 campaign began Tuesday with the commercials being shown on 27 television stations in the state. A spokesman for Scott said they are intended to rebut a cartoon advertisement run during the primary election campaign by Richard Troy. Scott's Democratic opponent in the fall.

Troy's animated advertisements depicted a short man with wavy hair gleefully playing with cash in a bank's safety deposit box. It referred to the nearly $50,000 Scott kept in a safety deposit box and which is the subject of a federal grand jury investigation. Scott said the money was used for political purposes and thus, not taxable.

In one of the three Scott commercials, the attorney general says, "Shipping deadly nuclear waste from all over the country to bury here in Illinois is wrong. The federal government disagrees and that's why the U.S. attorney is fighting me so hard. So are the giant corporations. Millions of dollars are involved..."

Last weekend, Scott told the Northern Illinois Newspaper Association that the nuclear industry also was behind what he described as an orchestrated effort to discredit him.

U.S. Attorney Thomas P. Sullivan declined to comment on the latest Scott charges.

Don Ramsell, Scott's press secretary said the nuclear reference in the ads is to a suit by Scott against the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission to force it to hold hearings over a radioactive waste storage site at Sheffield.

"Talking on giant corporations, polluters or even the federal government isn't easy or popular, but that's my job and I do it," Scott says in the advertisements.

"We waited until there was enough misinformation around."

Construction on Grand Avenue to cause move of softball field

By J.W. Campbell
Staff Writer

When the City of Carbondale proceeds with its plan to widen East Grand Avenue the women's softball team will lose its playing field across from the Recreation Building.

The women thought the problem would be solved by an agreement with University officials to construct a new diamond just west of Abe Martin Field.

The construction of the new diamond, however, was stopped because plans for the proposed Saluki National golf course may call for the use of that land for the links.

So...the women do not know where they will be playing next year.

"We were told well over a year ago that we would have a new field west of the baseball field,"

Charlene West, women's athletics director, said. "Softball Coach Kay Bechtelbauer and some of the players even staked the field out and some of the materials for the backstop were ordered. But while I was away from campus over spring break the construction that had started was ordered stopped."

Although the site that the softball team had staked out was one of two proposed spots for the new field, West was less than enthusiastic about the alternative site. The second proposed spot for the field is located between Abe Martin Field and Thompson Road.

"I usually practice golf in that area (of the second proposed site) during the spring," West said. "It's a virtual quagmire—I have to wear special shoes."

Whether or not the area west of the baseball diamond will be used for the golf course is a question no one seems to know. Judging from the plans I've seen there's a hole that would apparently overlap with the field."

Clarence Dougherty, director of campus services, said he considers both sites viable alternatives and with some changes both the golf course and the softball field may be built on the originally proposed sites.

"I think the concerns of the women are a little bit unfounded," Dougherty said. "People have concern when they aren't as well informed as they should be. The ladies at women's athletics refuse to even consider the alternative site."

"I would think it unfortunate if we couldn't build a golf course because of a softball diamond, when there are other possible locations where a softball field could go."

Dougherty said the decision on where the softball field will go will not be made until the appropriate time, but he declined to say when that would be.

"I assume that the women won't need a softball diamond before the start of next season," Dougherty said.

The present women's softball field is not due to give way to the bulldozers until the team completes its season, but the team has already endured one scare this year.

That scare occurred on March 30, the day before the women opened their home schedule.

"The construction crew was ready to tear down the fence and begin work on the road-widening project inside the field," West said. Larry Schaake, coordinator of intramurals, who is familiar with our program, saw what was happening and got them to back off until it was checked for an ok."

Women tracksters to run at Murray

By Steve Casran
Staff Writer

The SIU women tracksters and the Murray State Racers must be growing accustomed to each other's faces. They should be—the Salukis have faced the Racers in all three of their meets and are scheduled to head to Kentucky Saturday for their fourth match-up of the year with Murray State in the 12-team Murray State Invitational.

"We are not going back to Murray to run against the Racers but we are going for the other 11 schools," said Coach Claudia Blackman.

The Salukis, who opened their season with a 76-61 dual-meet loss to Murray State, have since outscored the Racers twice—29-15 in the 15-team Memphis State Invitational and 111.5-61.5 in the Saluki Invitational.

But the Salukis have their own reasons for making the trip.

"We're more interested in Illinois," Blackman said about the team's annual chief rival for the state title. "I want to know how they're doing. Illinois won it last year and I believe that the Illini and Western are the teams to beat this season for state honors."

Blackman expects Eastern Kentucky, Illinois, and Western Kentucky to be the toughest teams at the meet. She is hoping for the right kind of weather.

"We're close in several events," Blackman said of SIU's chances of qualifying athletes for the AIAW national meet. "A lot of it depends on the weather. We have two kids that have come within five feet of qualifying in the javelin event. Depending on the strength and direction of the wind, they could do it."

SIU's coach feels that the Salukis' strength in field events could provide the winning margin.

"The field events will make a great deal of difference," she said. "They've got the skill and technique. If they get confidence in themselves and relax, they should do extremely well."

While SIU also figures to score a lot of points in the long-distance runs, Blackman is still concerned about the relays.

"We've been having trouble with our handoffs," she said. "Really, you get four kids when they're freshmen and try to keep them together through their senior years. Just we have already made two changes this far."

"Most of it is confidence in one another. People have been talking off sooner than they are supposed to.

Golf team to compete at Champaign

By Jim Miesman
Staff Writer

The Saluki golfers need a good performance to boost their confidence and Coach Jim Barrett hopes they can come up with Saturday when they travel to Champaign for the Illinois Invitational.

"We need to play well at U of I," Barrett said. "We're a week behind where we should be mentally and physically and we still need something to help our confidence."

SIU placed fourth at Illinois with a five-man total of 563 last year. Illinois State won the meet with a 78 total, followed by Illinois with 79 and Michigan State with 79.

8 U's Jim Brown, who has graduated, placed second in the meet with a 152 score. Illinois State's Jay Zartman's 150 was low score.

Three Salukis who played last year will compete Saturday in the 36-hole meet at the Orange course at Saveny—Jim Reburn, Jay Venable and Walt Semaglusz.

Reburn shot 158, Venable 143 and Semaglusz 146 last year.

Butch Poshard, who will play the No. 1 position, Jeff Linn and Todd O'Reilly will also play for SIU. O'Reilly and Linn combined for a 68 in Monday's best-ball tournament at St. Louis to tie SIU-Edwardsville's Russ Agne-Steve Gower team.

SIU scored a team total of 213 to win the meet, edging SIU-E by two strokes. Columbia College scored 219 to place third.

Barrett noted that the performance at St. Louis was an encouraging sign.

"We're starting to play better as a team," Barrett said. "So I can't be too disappointed, but I still think we may not be ready until about April 15 when we play at Peoria."

The golfers, who haven't played well in windy conditions this year, will be tested at Illinois' Orange course, according to Barrett.

"It's a tough course," Barrett said. "It'll play long and the greens are small, fast and treacherous. The course is in a flat area and it's very windy there."

Barrett has mixed feelings about the tourney.

"The guys are going to be psychologically up and ready to play, but I still think we're a week or so away from playing consistently yet," he said.

JEWELRY BEADS

Three gymnasts to go to finals

By Steve Coonan
Staff Writer

Although the men's gymnastics team failed to win the Midwest Regional and qualify for the NCAA national meet, SIU will still be represented at the national Frisco and Saturday in Eugene, Ore.

All-around men Rick Adams and Scott McBroom and pommel horse specialist Dave Schieble all scored high enough in the Salukis' regional to qualify for the nationals but have to be considered dark horse candidates at best during their efforts for individual national titles. The last time a national champion wore an SIU uniform was in 1972 when SIU's Tom Lindner won the horizontal bar title and the late Gary Morava took the vaulting championship.

Of the three Saluki entries in the meet, SIU Coach Bill Meade feels that Schieble has the best shot at a national championship.

Schieble, who finished sixth in the country last season on the horse, averaged between 8.1 and 8.2 most of the season before really turning it on the last few weeks.

Schieble, a sophomore from Mount Prospect, was the Salukis' top returning specialist this season. He averaged 8.95 last season and according to Meade, has improved tremendously from high school to college. Meade considers Schieble an extremely dedicated gymnast and a very hard worker. He has great hopes of Schieble becoming SIU's first pommel horse national champion either this year or next.

Adams, one of three outstanding junior all-around men on the team this year, had a fine year while coming off knee surgery. A four-time Kentucky state all-around champ, Adams won the regional all-around competition with his score of 197.35 and goes into the nationals ranked as the No. 4 all-around man in the country.

All-around man McBroom got into the nationals by earning the third-highest vaulting score at the regionals. A junior out of Rochester Pa., McBroom helped Salukis finish eighth last year at nationals with his 8.25 v.n.u.

Baseball team looks to solve problems against Louisville

By Bud Vandersaick
Sports Editor

Saluki baseball Coach Itchy Jones is not one to shy away from an unpleasant situation. He only hopes his team will cease being shy on the field.

A 9-0 record for the Salukis at this point in the season is not unusual since the diamondmen seldom get a quick start out of the blocks. However, Jones is still concerned because his team has not been playing well recently, especially in the pitching and defensive departments.

If salvation is to be found soon, it will have to come on the road as the Salukis will travel to Louisville this weekend for three games with the Cardinals, who have lost six straight games and have a record of 12-10. The series opens with a doubleheader Saturday and ends with a single game Sunday afternoon.

The shyness Jones is concerned about was evident in the Salukis' 6-5 loss to Vanderbilt Wednesday. SIU raced to a 3-0 lead in the first inning, but Jones said the team turned flat after that and the Commodores eventually caught and passed the Salukis. The Saluki mentor wants to see more aggressive play from his club.

"The players have to get themselves motivated," Jones said. "We play one or two tough innings and then we seem to lay down. I still think we have good talent, but we have to put it together immediately."

The pitching problems could not have been predicted since the mound staff figured to be one of the team's strongpoints before the season. Injuries have not helped the situation, as senior Kevin Waldrop apparently has not completely recovered from off-season elbow surgery.

He was removed from a game against Miami of Ohio last Saturday after only 2 and one-third innings when he developed soreness in his arm. Jones said he is now concerned about getting Waldrop in condition for postseason play, which begins with the Missouri Valley tournament May 18-21 at Omaha.

Rob Simond did not make the trip to Vanderbilt because of strep throat, but he is expected to see action against Louisville. Depth and injuries are not the only pitching problems that worries Jones, however. He has been less than pleased with the performances of his healthy pitchers.

"Our pitchers are definitely having problems right now," Jones said. "They're not putting the ball in good location and they haven't been able to get the breaking ball over the plate. In college baseball you have to be able to get the breaking ball over the plate to be effective. All our pitchers are capable and have good arms, but they are going to have to make some adjustments."

Even the defense, which is traditionally a Saluki trademark, has been struggling as of late. The Salukis, who finished fourth in the nation in fielding percentage last year, committed three more errors Wednesday, giving them 12 in the last five games. Jones has no real explanation for the fielding lapse, but he thinks it will be solved with increased playing time.

"We have made some costly errors on routine plays," he said. "They have not been what I call 'tough errors.' The fact that our infielders haven't had a real chance to take ground balls might be a reason for our troubles. We haven't been taking a lot of ground balls because our infield is still soft."

Simond, Bob Knezevich and Rick Keeton are the probable starters in the series against the Cardinals, who dropped three close games to the Salukis last season at Abe Martin Field. There may also be a new, but familiar face behind the plate in the series.

"Steve Stieb is making the trip with the intention of catching the first game Saturday," Jones said of the senior who has not played yet this year because of an injured hand. "It will be entirely up to Steve. He'll catch if he says he is ready to catch. I am not going to push him. In any event, he will not catch both games of the doubleheader."

"This weekend could mean a lot to our season. Louisville is a good hitting club and they always play well against us. We could come home with one of the worst records any SIU team has ever had if we don't play well."

Following the Louisville series the Salukis will travel to St. Louis Tuesday for a single game with Washington (Mo.) before returning to Abe Martin Field next Friday for a single game with Indiana State. The game with the Sycamores will mark the beginning of a nine-game homestand in six days for the Salukis.

Track team to run against Hoosiers

By George Coak
Staff Writer

Revenge. Sports teams are constantly getting revenge on one another. If one team makes the other look bad at a meet or game, the lowly one never forgets it.

The Indiana Hoosiers are in this situation. The Saluki track team overpowered them 97 1/2-56 1/2 at McAndrew stadium last year, but Coach Lew Hartzog doesn't expect that easy a road when SIU invades Bloomington Saturday for a dual meet.

Indiana is no pushover. They have a "truly great quarter-miler" in Tim Peters from Nigeria. He is the Big Ten champ in the quarter and is a former Olympic competitor.

Another Big Ten champion is Jim Cannon, who earned the conference championship with an indoor triple jump of 52-9.

Hartzog added that Indiana is "loaded in the steeple chase event. They have three men who have done it in nine minutes. I think they'll sweep it on us."

Jerry George and Scott McAllister will compete in the steeple chase for SIU. George has a time of 9:11.4.

Tim Graf of Joliet should give Saluki sprinter Mike Kee all he can handle in the 100 and 200-meter dash events.

The Hoosiers also have a super mileer and another good quarter-miler who switches off with Peters, Hartzog said. Indiana also has the edge in the high jump with three entries over seven feet.

"It should be a very fine meet," Hartzog said. "we got to them pretty good and beat them here last year and I don't think they've forgotten it. It'll be a little tougher this time."

The Saluki coach added that the team had three of their best practices so far on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. He added that Scott Dorsey has been coming around and will be ready to run the 400 meters at the meet. The rest of the lineup will be the same as last week.

"We have no excuses, and I know we'll be ready for them," he said.

The Hoosiers have a new professional track that was installed just two years ago. The track was designed by Hoosier coach Sam Bell, who was one of the Olympic assistant coaches in 1976.

Steele: Rest, poor pool facility doomed swimmers

There was good reason for Saluki swimming Coach Bob Steele to be disappointed following the NCAA championship meet at Long Beach, Calif.

He had wanted to place in the top 10, but had to settle for 17th place, one notch lower than last year's 18th place team.

Steele returned from California last week for a couple of days to reflect his feelings on the meet. The coach had stayed in Long Beach for a few days to do some recruiting, and he left earlier this week for Texas and the AAU meet.

Steve Herzog will be the lone Saluki competing in the meet which will be held at the new pool at the University of Texas.

Steele attributed the team's failure to place higher to the poor condition of the pool as well as too much rest for his swimmers.

"So many people qualified who were close to making the standards in other events, so we got just about everyone to make the cut in these events," the seventh-year coach explained. "We should have just taken the swimmers who were strong in their events and worked with them."

Greg Porter scored 17 of the team's 19 points at the meet as he placed third in the 100 butterfly and eighth in the 200 fly.

"He was solid in both events," Steele said. "He was just great. His swims were the only great swims we had out of 25."

But great swims were few and far

The Mad Serbian

Staff Writer

between. Out of 613 swimmers in the three-day meet, 343 made the seed times that they had going into the meet. And only 178 of the total swimmers made national time standards. This gives an indication of how slow the pool was. There were hardly any records set.

"The conditions of the pool really didn't electrify anyone," Steele said sarcastically, "at all."

"The exact same thing happened five years ago at the same pool," he added. "We had high hopes of doing well and we bombed. The pool there is so rough and shallow that it is difficult to turn in good times."

But Steele said he wasn't using the pool as an excuse. He said that the team was really high after winning the National Independent Championship meet and so many of the guys were clear and wanted to qualify, that he gave them a chance.

"So we had to keep resting for another week and it took some starch out of the performances we had at the NCAAs.

"We should have worked hard to get the guys prepared who qualified and then rested. We lost conditioning because we sat out so long. But when you're in a situation like we were, it was like walking a tightrope. I did what I thought was the best for the team, but it didn't work out."

The swimmers, too, were disappointed, Steele said.

"Oh sure, when the whole season comes down to personal goals and a stopwatch," he explained. "And you tell a guy like Jorge Jaramillo that they can do much better than 1:50 and they get psyched up and then they don't do well because the pool was bad."

"But you can't focus you're whole season on one meet."

David Parker placed 11th in the 1650 freestyle at the meet. The freshman sensation from Coventry, England was put on a carbohydrate diet by Steele so he could be ready by the distance event. But he had a disappointing finish, according to Steele.

"We should have stuck to his old diet and kept him on harder work longer. He, too, may have gotten too much rest."

Ral Rosario and Dean Ehrenheim were one second off the best times of the meet in the 100 backstroke, but Steele said that they swam well.

But he added that Bob Samples and Pat Looby should have done better. And Dan Grubel in the 200 freestyle was one second slower than his season's best. This was due to the pool and too much rest, but Steele said that things will be a bit different in the future.

"I don't judge the season on the last meet," Steele said. "I'm like Paul Lambert. Too many good things happened during the year and many fantastic things happened as a team. We set 12 school records and lost only two dual meets out of seven. We won the Rolla Relays, the state meet, the Saluki Invitational and the NIC meet and placed 17th in the NCAA tourney. That makes the 21st time in the last 22 years that we've placed in the top 20."

While Steele is daily trying to recruit a breasrother or two or three to replace this year's only graduating senior, Steve Jack, Jaramillo and Jorge Delgado will participate in the Latin Cup meet at Puerto Rico.

They will be swimming both butterfly events and Jaramillo will also swim the 400 individual medley.

The Latin Cup is a meet that includes Franco, Italy, Portugal and the South American countries.
