CSBO to ask for mediator in wage hike fight

By Rod Furlow
Staff Writer

Civil Service Bargaining Organization President Lee Hester said Tuesday that he would file on Wednesday for mediation in his dispute with SIU-C over raises for CSBO employees.

Hester said he would file at the Illinois Department of Labor office in Marion.

Hester said he and a CSBO committee met Tuesday with John McDermott, director of the SIU-C Labor Institute, and that the two sides "agreed to disagree" on the issue of whether raises should be given to employees represented by CSBO.

Hester maintains that SIU-C hasn't complied with its 1981-82 contract with CSBO, which calls for 2 percent raises to CSBO employees.

McDermott declined to comment on the contract, the dispute, or Monday's meeting.

Hester said much of the dispute has come about because some range employees are being paid more per hour than CSBO employees.

Hester said that he found out about the differences in pay when he received a list of discrepancies in the wages of CSBO employees and those of some range employees.

The list was drawn up and circulated by Ruth Perk, transcribing secretary in religious studies, and JoAnn Marks, stenographic secretary in the College of Liberal Arts, Mrs. Perk said.

The list shows that some range employees, who are employees paid wages between a maximum and a minimum amount set by University policy, earn more than CSBO employees in five secretarial classifications.

The differences range from 28 to 48 cents per hour. Perk said she and Marks compiled the list from data in Morris Library which was supplied by the SIU Board of Trustees.

Hester said he hasn't checked the list for accuracy, but that "the CSBO accountant is doing that now."

Hester said the range members being paid more than CSBO employees are on a "sensitive range list," and that the list consists of "around 37 employees."

Hester said he has no access to "sensitive range" figures, and that he wasn't aware that they were receiving more than CSBO employees until he saw the list circulated by Marks and Perk.

The list mentioned no names, but used the headings "Range (sensitive)," and "Negotiated (CSBO)" under five secretarial classifications.

McDermott refused to comment about the existence of a University "sensitive range" list.

The list circulated by Marks and Perk shows that "sensitive range" employees received the same hourly wages as CSBO members in 1977, but began earning more than CSBO employees in 1978.

Hester claims he didn't know that sensitive range employees have

Higher ed funding plan OK'd, IBHE to ask for more funds

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Board of Higher Education adopted a plan Tuesday to distribute the $1.2 billion Gov. James Thompson has recommended for colleges and universities in 1983.

But, board members and school officials said they would ask the legislature for more money for faculty pay raises and student aid.

Thompson's higher education budget is $118 million less than the board requested. It is about the same as this year's expenditures and probably would mean faculty and staff reductions and a wage freeze.

"To be told that we in Illinois universities are better off than those in Ohio is no comfort," said Sharon Bartling, a professor at Eastern Illinois University and chairman of the board's faculty advisory committee. "To be told that even though we have no salary increases we are better off than the unemployed in the state is no comfort."

Faculty and student representatives told the board that the governor's budget would mean fewer students would attend college and more teachers would seek other jobs. They suggested that the board seek more money and that the legislature consider a tax increase.

Stan Irvin, a student at SIU-C, student trustee on the SIU System's Board of Trustees and vice chairman of the IBHE's student advisory committee, said the public should be told that there will have to be higher taxes or drastic cuts in higher education.

The board originally recommended a $1.3 billion higher education budget. However, it also is required to prepare a blueprint for spending the $1.2 billion suggested by the governor.

City to petition ICC in Gulf case

By Bob Bondurant
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council moved further Monday night toward resisting Gulf Transport Co.'s petition to abandon its Carbondale-to-Evansville bus route.

The council voted to intervene in Gulf's petition with the Illinois Commerce Commission and to send Mayor Hans Fischer or another council member to the commission's hearing on the case April 29.

The city will notify the ICC that it will be a "party of record" in the case, which entitles it to more of Gulf's records.

The daily Evansville route is the only bus service to the east of Carbondale. In the petition to the ICC, Gulf stated that the line lost $26,897 from November 1981 through January 1982.

Ron Steele, executive vice president of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, told the council that the chamber would also become a party of record in the case. It also will oppose the petition.

Frank Moreno, city economic development director, told the council that Gulf's figures in the petition do not include proceeds from package express, which contributes a significant share of Gulf's revenues from the route. He said express includes the transportation of blood for hospital use.

The council awarded its mowing and clearing contract to Roger Raines of Murphysboro for $16,890. Raines' bid was $8,627 less than the next-highest bid.

Last year's contract, with the Carbondale Mosquito Abatement District, cost the city $69,745 for mowing and clearing. The council cancelled the contract in January, after it and CMAD disputed the amount the district should be paid.

The new program includes some mowing work to be done by the city's forestry division, which will reduce some of the costs of the program, according to city officials.

In other action, the council refused a limited grant offer from the Illinois Department of Transportation to assist the Murphysboro Transportation Co.

The city submitted an application in June 1981 for $81,000 to cover 50 percent of the firm's operating deficit. The request later was reduced to $62,130.

But the IDOT offer was $28,155. It would fund two of the four services in the proposal, transit between Murphysboro and Carbondale and from rural Jackson County to Carbondale, on a trial basis until June 30.

City Manager Carroll Fry was authorized to keep seeking approval for all four services, including service between Murphysboro and Menard prison, and routes within Carbondale.

Thatcher refuses to resign; Argentines brace for attack

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told shouting opposition members of Parliament on Tuesday she would not resign over the Falkland Islands crisis, and put an embargo on Argentine beef and other products.

But with mounting criticism of her failure to avert the Argentine seizure of the islands, panic gripped the London Stock Exchange and the pound tumbled amid fears the crisis could force the Conservative leader out of office.

The British assault ship Fearless steamed out of Portsmouth harbor to join a 40-vehicle British armada whose leading aircraft carriers, Hermes and Invincible, sailed Monday on the two-week voyage to the South Atlantic islands. Their mission was to regain the Falklands by force if necessary.

In Buenos Aires, Interior Minister Gen. Alfredo Saint Jean told reporters the Argentine government will defend the Falklands "at any cost." The government continued to reinforce its garrisons on the islands, with a reported 300 soldiers plus a dozen trucks and various artillery pieces.

The official Telam news agency claimed the Soviet government was supporting Argentina in the crisis and that Soviet submarines were expected soon in surrounding waters. The Soviet Embassy and the Argentine government refused comment on the report.

A spokesman for the British Foreign Office said Tuesday night when asked about the Telam report: "I find this quite remarkable. One of the pretexes Argentina gave for its invasion of the Falklands was the threat Soviet submarines posed in the area."

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass accused Britain of preparing for possible "aggression" against Argentina, but made no mention of any Soviet action.

Pentagon spokesman Henry Catto told reporters in Washington that the U.S. government was steering a middle course in the dispute. West Germany and Switzerland sided with Britain and halted arms sales to Argentina, and the Common Market urged Argentina to withdraw from the Falklands.

Salvadoran army thwart rebel attack

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Government troops Tuesday repelled guerrillas who attacked San Vicente, a provincial capital 37 miles east of the capital, a local military commander said.

The commander, who asked anonymity, said three soldiers were killed and an undisclosed number of troops and civilians wounded in the midnight-to-dawn fighting. He said he did not know if any guerrillas were killed.

Haig rejects nuclear weapons freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. rejected Tuesday as a "leap into the unknown" a freeze of nuclear weapons at current levels, saying that would perpetuate a strategic tilt favoring the Soviet Union.

Haig's reaffirmation of the administration's drive for a major U.S. weapons buildup came a day after President Reagan urged Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev to join him in June at a United Nations disarmament conference in New York.

Reagan to depart for Caribbean

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan departs Wednesday for an extended Easter weekend in the Caribbean that will include talks with leaders of Jamaica, Barbados and other island nations as well as a visit with longtime friend Claudette Colbert.

The president and Mrs. Reagan's trip was drawn up as a vacation at the Barbados home of Miss Colbert, the actress. But it also afforded an opportunity to show support for the mini-states that are the targets of social and economic aid in the administration's Caribbean Basin initiative.

Late season snow socks Northeast

By the Associated Press

A historic April blizzard paralyzed the industrial cities of the Northeast on Tuesday with foot-deep snow whipped into giant drifts by winds gusting to 70 mph, while cold never known this late in the season settled on the Midwest.

The blizzard, which swept from Ohio through New England, brought travel to a virtual standstill in cities such as Boston and New York, where a snowstorm of such ferocity had never hit this time of year.

Schools and factories closed. Offices emptied. Airports shut down. Cars and trucks smacked into each other like billiard balls on the highways. People were urged to stay home.

Veteran New York newscaster Jim Donnelly of WCBS told his listeners, "On this date in 1909, Admiral Robert Peary reached the North Pole. Today, the North Pole came to us."

The National Weather Service said New York City had 10-inch snowfalls in April in 1915 and in 1975, but neither qualified as a blizzard.

Residents of Boston, remembering the Blizzard of '78 that shut down most of the state for more than a week, jammed into grocery stores to stock up on food.

"It's crazy," said James Murphy, a convenience store manager in suburban Braintree. "Nutsy."

By midday, Boston was a city of empty office buildings, vacant parking lots and streets clogged by drifting snow.

In New York City, snow accumulations reached almost 10 inches in Manhattan, with 12 inches on the ground in some suburbs. In Albany, N.Y., where the weather service had forecast 2 to 4 inches, more than 13 inches was on the ground and it was still coming down.

The snowstorm was blamed for the crash of a light plane in Russell, Pa., that killed two people.

State program to aid local governments' economic woes

By Bob Bondura
Staff Writer

The state of Illinois is adding an emphasis on economic development to its new Community Development Assistance Program.

The CDAP replaced the federal Community Development Block Grant program. Officials of the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs run the program, one of 30 such state programs.

Few new grants will be awarded, and the program's effectiveness will be hard to gauge for the next two years, because of previous federal commitments the state must honor.

Grants are awarded on a competitive basis among all small cities (those under 50,000) outside the Chicago and East St. Louis areas.

CITIES APPLYING for grants must submit projects under one of three categories — public facilities and services, housing and housing rehabilitation, and economic development.

Stewart Schroeter, the DCCA's housing and community development head, said the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development had awarded only one grant in Illinois for economic development since 1978.

Schroeter said economic development projects could include purchasing land to provide for an industrial firm interested in moving into a community, or providing needed services without which an industry might have to shut down.

He added that a grant could be awarded a community for low interest loan to a firm, then after repayment, the money could be used for some other community development project.

Board to eye flight class fee increases

By Mike Anthony and Rod Furlow
Staff Writers

The Board of Trustees is scheduled to get its first look at eight flight-training fee increase proposals at 10 a.m. Thursday in Ballroom B of the Student Center.

The proposed increases range from 18.6 to 26.3 percent for courses in the School of Technical Careers.

According to information provided by the board's staff, the proposed fee increases are necessary to meet increased costs of operation, maintenance and replacement of the present fleet of 21 training aircraft.

Other factors to be considered regarding the proposed increases are increases in fuel costs, building rent, wages, lease payments on some aircraft and replacement costs on University-owned aircraft.

The last increases in flight-training fees were approved in June 1980.

The board also is scheduled to consider a new program request at SIU-C for a master of arts degree, major in English, with a concentration in composition.

The new program would prepare students for teaching and research in the area of teaching classes in composition.

The faculty of the English department initiated the request, which, has been endorsed by the Graduate Council and the deans of the College of Liberal Arts and the Graduate School.

President Albert Somit and John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and research, have recommended that the board approve the request.

Recommendations to bestow three honorary degrees also are scheduled to be discussed.

On the recommendations of the Honorary Degrees Committee and Somit, Chancellor Kenneth Shaw is expected to deliver a resolution to the board calling for the presentation of two honorary doctor of letters degrees at the May 15 SIU-C commencement ceremony.

The resolution will recommend awarding Paul A. Schilpp, the founder of the Library of Living Philosophers, an honorary degree.

Schilpp has edited 16 volumes in the library's series and has donated archives from the library to Morris Library. Schilpp began his teaching career 50 years ago and came to SIU-C in 1965. He became a professor emeritus in 1980, but taught as a visiting professor at the University in 1980 and 1981.

The resolution calls for awarding the other doctor of letters degree to Kay Boyle, author of fiction, poetry and social comment.

She has written several novels, most notably "Plagued by the Nightingale," "Gentlemen, I Address You Privately," "Death of a Man" and "My Next Bride."

The Honors Degree Committee and Somit also have recommended that Eddie Albert, movie and television personality, be awarded an honorary doctor of fine arts degree at the Aug. 7 SIU-C commencement.

Opinion & Commentary

Editorial and Letter Policies—Opinions expressed here do not necessarily reflect opinions of the University administration. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the newspaper's Editorial Committee, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published. Students submitting letters must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department. Letters should be handwritten and must not exceed 250 words. All letters are subject to editing.

Letters Gay lifestyle deserves more objective coverage

I am writing in response to Joe Walter's story in the March 30 Daily Egyptian headlined "Fast-change act wins for Miss Gay."

Although it may be perceived by some as encouraging to see some coverage of the gay "happenings" in the Daily Egyptian, it is disgraceful, disappointing and inexcusable that the one article on gay "issues" — please note the quotation marks — covered a drag show.

It has been estimated that only 10 percent of all gay people are transvestites. What about the lifestyles of the other 90 percent of the gay population in Carbondale? Where are the articles on the support groups; on the problem of non-support, indeed repression, of gay issues by the administration; on the issue that the Wellness Center is no longer able to offer support groups, counseling, etc. regarding any gay concerns; or even just a people-profile type of article?

This is a clear indication of the need for the Daily Egyptian to re-order, or at least review, its priorities and cover the news and events relevant to the University community, not just obscure happenings that contribute to the non-gay world's voyeuristic, condemning approach to gay lifestyles. — Beth L. Lawton, Unclassified Graduate Student.

Mavericks are inefficient

In the upcoming Undergraduate Student Organization elections, the Mavericks are again running on their past programs, instead of trying to find some new and constructive platform.

I think that it is a joke if students vote primarily on the Mavericks' past programs. Granted, the Mavericks have done some good things and do have a few good senators. But I also believe they are a very inefficient party.

I was recently at a meeting where all three USO presidential candidates were to speak. Two of the candidates were at the meeting at least 10 minutes early. The Mavericks, however, walked in 10 minutes late. This seems to be normal for the Maverick Party as most of their committee meetings don't start on time either. Is this the way efficient business is handled?

I also recently attended a USO Senate meeting to see how they were run. Again, the meeting started late because the chairman and some of the executive council were late. The meeting lasted over three and a half hours due to the inefficient way that it was operated. Nothing looked organized. For the most part, it was total chaos.

This is the Maverick Party that wants students to vote for them. I think you seriously have to be kidding yourselves, Mavericks. And I think students have to be kidding themselves even more if they do vote the Mavericks into office. — Mark Brazinski, Junior, Agriculture Business.

Graduate loans are needed

Strong and responsible support for the continuation of Guaranteed Student Loans is urgently needed as the hour of decision by Congress approaches. Let your senators and representatives know that the weakening of higher education would be detrimental to America's national interest.

The Reagan administration's budget would give away billions of dollars in price supports for farm products to the owners of factories in the field, thereby fueling the fires of inflation, but does not have one cent for Guaranteed Student Loans. Need is often greatest at the graduate level because of the exhaustion of funds in the four undergraduate years.

Denying assistance to graduate students would restrict America's progress in technology and productivity.

Use your right to petition your government. — Robert Galick, Dean of Admissions, American Graduate School of International Management.

Nuke disobedient cyclists

I'm writing in concern about John Mette's letter about the lack of respect cyclists have for traffic laws.

I agree wholeheartedly with him. I believe that trip wires should be placed at all intersections to ensure that cyclists stop at all designated areas. I also believe that long, deep trenches should be dug and poisonous snakes should be placed in them so that cyclists are prevented from cutting across lawns.

But most of all, I believe that the SIU-C police should be armed with M-16s and grenade launchers to stop fleeing cyclists.

Some think I'm crazy to have these dreams, but this is what I believe. — Patrick Higgins, Senior, Administration of Justice.

Unified bargaining vital to workers

THE EFFORT TO establish what is now known as the Civil Service Bargaining Organization began in the summer of 1975. The Civil Service Committee for Collective Bargaining devoted hundreds of hours of time to ensure that SIU-C civil service employees could exercise their right to vote on the issue of collective bargaining. Our efforts finally resulted in the Illinois Department of Labor calling for secret-ballot elections to resolve the issue.

Two elections in 1978 resulted in an overwhelming majority of eligible employees voting for representation by CSBO. Consequently, 738 employees in 105 classifications were covered by our first contract, which was ratified that same year by a landslide margin of 85 percent.

In addition to securing for the first time at SIU-C the full percentage of state appropriated pay raises for all represented employees, we were able to establish the following provisions in that first contract: (1) recognition by the Board of Trustees, (2) a fair and equitable salary-increase distribution plan, (3) a new and more effective grievance procedure, and (4) the establishment of an auditing and classification commission.

SINCE 1978 we have successfully negotiated four contracts; and, we have continued to win at the bargaining table additional contract provisions that are extremely beneficial to all represented employees.

Although we are not a "union" in the pure sense, but rather an association that does not involve compulsory membership, the false charge has been made that employees are "under the thumb of the CSBO." Anyone who has ever attended one of our meetings can attest to the fact that we are the most democratic of organizations. Voting membership is open to all and any eligible civil service employee is welcome to serve on our executive committee.

We have agreed to an election scheduled for April 14, which will again give all eligible secretaries and aircraft mechanics the opportunity to vote on the question of continued representation by CSBO or no representation whatsoever.

THERE ARE essentially two basic arguments being set forth by those select few who are leading the charge to deprive employees of representation by CSBO. First of all, secretaries are being promised that they will be much better off under the "merit system." This argument is patently false simply because "merit" money can be withheld at the discretion of whomever is in a position to determine your salary increase. Prior to CSBO, it was our unhappy experience that merit increases were not granted on a fair and equitable basis. In other words, non-represented range employees have no assurance that they will receive one cent of merit money. Under the CSBO contract, you are guaranteed the full percentage of state appropriated pay raises with no "merit" monkey business.

Secondly, as suggested in a recent Daily Egyptian letter, the "election organizers are (supposedly) considering other bargaining organizations on campus to replace CSBO."

If it is your decision to vote out of CSBO, we feel you should get the above promises in writing. Because, in these times of impending budget crisis, it will be absolutely vital to have membership in an organization with the legal right to bargain to protect your interests. — Frank H. Graff, Vice-president, Civil Service Bargaining Organization.

Workers can't wait for rewards

In light of the recent debate between the Civil Service Bargaining Organization and some of the secretaries at SIU-C, I think it is time to focus on more facts and fewer allegations.

I am a former Secretary III Transcriber and am now working as a half-time graduate assistant. In spite of the fact that I cut my work week in half, after Jan. 1 I was bringing home only $80 per month less. A 50 percent reduction in work hours brought me only a 16 percent reduction in pay.

During my employment as a secretary, the chairman of the department was unable to reward my professional efforts — not my "cocktail circle" membership, Mr. Hester. He was told that he could not give me a merit raise.

If Lee Hester thinks that the lower classifications are transient — and as such, should not have as high a salary or raise rate as long-term workers — perhaps he should ask himself why they are transient. A person trying to support even herself, much less a family, cannot wait six years to reach her "reward" for staying on. In addition, a person hired at a relatively low rate — SIU-C's average civil service wage is 27 percent below the state average and the work week is longer cannot progress very far with set percentage raises.

Finally, I can honestly say that in six years at SIU-C, I have never met an "intimidating" secretary. I am glad to see the secretaries gaining enough self-esteem to know that they should be able to decide for themselves what is best for them. — Heather Musselman, Graduate Assistant, Economics.

Abe Fortas dead at 71

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abe Fortas, the immigrant cabinetmaker's son whose brilliant legal mind and alliance with President Johnson led to a Supreme Court career cut short by scandal, is dead at age 71.

Fortas, the first Supreme Court justice to resign under the threat of impeachment in Congress, died Monday night of a heart attack.

In a rare interview with The Associated Press just four weeks ago, Fortas said he planned to continue his private law practice "until my clients retire me or the Lord retires me."

Born in Memphis, Tenn., to a Jewish immigrant from England, Fortas rose to the heights of his profession as a member of the Supreme Court's liberal wing under then-Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Shy but often tough-talking, Fortas refused to discuss the events that led to his resignation on May 15, 1969, following the disclosure that he had agreed to accept a $20,000 annual fee from a foundation headed by an imprisoned financier, Louis E. Wolfson.

One of Fortas' former law clerks, H. David Rosenbloom, asked whether Fortas was bitter about his resignation, said: "I don't think so. I have no indication that he harbored any bitterness."

Fortas had served as one of Johnson's closest advisers before he was named to the high court in 1965.

Three years and eight months later he resigned and resumed private law practice, returning just two weeks ago for his first oral argument before the justices since leaving the court.

Fortas was stricken Monday night and died on arrival at Georgetown University Hospital. He is survived by his wife, Carolyn Agger, a Washington lawyer.

He was the last member to hold what had been dubbed the "Jewish seat" on the court. His successor, Justice Harry Blackmun, a Nixon appointee, is Protestant.

Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall are the last members of the liberal bloc which included Fortas and which expanded civil liberties in the 1960s. Brennan and Marshall said they were shocked by the news.

Former Justice Potter Stewart, noting that "we sat next to each other on the bench," said, "He was truly a brilliant man."

Fortas, a graduate of Yale University's law school, came to Washington in the 1930s, serving in a variety of high government posts in President Roosevelt's New Deal era.

He eventually founded a firm that was to become one of the most prominent in Washington's powerful legal community.

Along the way, he argued several important civil rights cases, including the landmark Supreme Court decision that established the right of penniless criminal defendants to a government-paid lawyer.

been earning more, but Perk and Marks have accused the union of "holding down" the wages of starting secretaries by allocating a higher percentage of negotiated funds to secretaries who have been at the University four years or more.

Perk said the list she and Marks compiled reflects the inability of CSBO to negotiate wages for its employees on par with those range employees are receiving.

She said the 2 percent raise was passed by the General Assembly not because of CSBO's efforts, but because "the administration got it for us."

Hester, on the other hand, said the raise isn't being given to CSBO employees by the administration, and that the CSBO is the force moving to get it for the employees.

On April 14, 380 secretarial employees who are members of CSBO will be eligible to vote on whether to continue their membership in the union.

"I'm very disappointed with CSBO — it's not a traditional union," Perk said. "It can't negotiate benefits. Those are laid out by statutes."

Perk said that because of statutes, the CSBO could do little more than divide up the raises it negotiates among its members, and that the CSBO divides it up in a manner that penalizes secretaries who've worked at the University for three years or less.

Asked if she thought any other union could do a better job for the secretaries, considering that the bargaining power of all campus unions is limited by statute, Perk said, "I really don't know. That's an impossible question to answer."

New Big Twist album mixes jazz, funk, rhythm and blues sounding yells. And BTMF's version of the gospel "Lo and Behold," by James Taylor, proves that nobody can make a gospel tune sound as rhythmically together as Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows do.

The classic "Rescue Me" opens up the second side of the album. The band adds much more to this song than most blues bands do, with bass and prominent horns giving the melody a much funkier sound than it usually is given. "Wait Till the Time is Right" is outstanding, featuring Twist talk-singing and Brown plucking a top-notch bass that compares to that of any great jazz bassist.

"The Real Thing" is an instrumental that allows band members to really strut their stuff. Written by Trytten, it leaves plenty of space for leads by each member.

The album closes out with the classic "I Got the Blues," which gives the band's nucleus of Big Twist and Pete Special a chance to leave a lasting impression.

"One Track Mind" is an R&B album with variety, and it certainly shows why Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows have remained a Southern Illinois favorite. — Rating: 3 stars (4 stars tops)

Jim Tuitto, who produced the group's first album and assisted with horn arrangements.

"One Track Mind" consists mostly of previously unrecorded tunes that have been BTMF fans' favorites in concert over the past year. The first side takes off with "Living It Up," featuring main man Twist jiving on vocals while the horn section keeps a funky beat.

"I Wouldn't Treat a Dog the Way You Treated Me" comes closer to the Mellow Fellows' old R&B sound and features a dynamite keyboard solo by Trytten. Twist shows all his stuff on "Cold Woman," complete with that wonderful laugh of his and a few sweet-

Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows have successfully mixed jazz, funk, and rhythm and blues to produce a second album, "One Track Mind," that puts the band in a class of its own.

Due to cosmetic changes in the group, BTMF can no longer be classified as solely an R&B band. New bassist Tony Brown adds a danceable funk to the new album that was unavailable on the debut offering, while Steve Trytten on keyboards contributes a jazz factor that is much more prevalent than in the past.

In addition, the horn section assumes a more important role on "One Track Mind." Lead solos, formerly the sole responsibility of lead guitarist Pete Special, are now evenly shared with Terry Ogilini and Mark Ohlsen on saxophone and trumpet, respectively.

Drummer Wayne Stewart keeps an important beat, and Mike Halpin on trombone gives the horn section the full sound that is quickly becoming the trademark of the Mellow Fellows.

Larry "Big Twist" Nolan sounds as sweet and soulful as ever. The album is produced by

Horses bringing tradition to Arena

The Royal Lipizzan Stallion Show, featuring more than 20 world-renowned, beautiful and talented horses, will bring the traditions of the Austrian Empire to the Arena in a performance at 8 p.m. April 20.

Tickets for the event went on sale Monday at the Arena

Special Events Ticket Office. The heritage of the famous Lipizzan Stallions extends over 400 years of European history, through famous battles and families of nobility. The Lipizzans' recent history was depicted in the Walt Disney movie "The Miracle of the White Stallions," the story of the horses' brush with extinction, which was avoided when Gen. Patton's Third Army rescued them during World War II.

Tickets are priced at $7, $6 and $5, less a $2 discount for students and senior citizens aged 65 and older.

Simon, SIU professor are honored

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-24th District, was named Citizen of the Year and Arnold J. Auerbach, professor emeritus at SIU-C, was named Social Worker of the Year by the Southern Illinois district of the National Association of Social Workers.

Both men were honored at a Tuesday luncheon at Human Resources '82, an annual conference sponsored by the College of Human Resources. Simon was honored because his "philosophic stance is supportive of goals and activities of the NASW," according to Leonard R. Russell, delegate to the Illinois chapter of the NASW. Auerbach has been a member of the NASW since 1964. His career has included refugee resettlement work, group and public welfare services.

Elizabeth Langen, Morrisville, social welfare senior, was honored as the student social worker of the year. She is an intern at Shawnee Health Service and Development Corp.

Robert S. Corruccini demonstrates measuring a wax bite with calipers.

Poor diet affects jaw, teeth, says researcher

By William Jason Yong Student Writer

Most people are not aware of it, but malocclusion is epidemic in the United States.

Malocclusion, an orthodontic term for a range of dental abnormalities such as overbite and crooked and crowded teeth patterns, affects 50 to 70 percent of the people in the United States. Robert S. Corruccini says. He has a theory about why this is so.

This condition is influenced by diet and not by genes, as is erroneously believed by many orthodontists, Corruccini says.

Corruccini, physical anthropologist at SIU-C, has completed a three-year cross-cultural study of malocclusion. His study is based on comparisons of jaw structures of people in rural Kentucky and in Punjab, India. The research reveals marked differences in the structure of the jaws of people in rural and urban areas.

Corruccini said those living in rural areas have a wider jaw structure and fewer cases of malocclusion than those living in urban areas, whose teeth tend to be crowded and crooked.

The trend occurs because of dietary intake, Corruccini said. His research, patterned on the study of early anthropologists, showed that the Punjabi people ate raw, rough foods which created chewing stress on the jaws. Thus, Corruccini said, bigger jaws allowed more space for teeth to "erupt" or grow, resulting in better occlusion.

This eruption process takes place during the first 12 years of a person's life, Corruccini said.

Corruccini used two basic methods to measure the degree of malocclusion. The wax plate, also used by dentists, is inserted into the mouth to obtain an impression of the teeth pattern. From this impression, a model of a teeth pattern affected by malocclusion is constructed and compared to a normal teeth pattern.

The strain gauge is used to measure the muscle strength, Corruccini said. The gauge is inserted into the mouth and the bite is recorded accordingly.

It is much more difficult to conduct the research in the Dana Andrews told a crowd at the Student Center Monday night about life on the wagon.

Actor says his favorite role is that of reformed alcoholic

By Christopher Kade
Staff Writer

"For all the roles I've played in the movies, the role I enjoy most now is that of a reformed alcoholic."

The speaker was Dana Andrews, a film star whose career has spanned some 50 years and 72 films. But he appeared Monday evening before a crowd of about 300 in the Student Center to talk not about his movie career, but a disease which threatened to destroy it — alcoholism.

"In terms of careers wasted and talents gone down the drain, the cost of alcoholism in my own profession has been incalculable," he said.

The star of such films as "Best Years of Our Lives," "Laura" and "The Ox-Bow Incident" said he had gone on many classic "benders" during his drinking career. But after a drinking bout in which he ended up sprawled at the foot of his bed in a pool of blood, his doctor told him, "Dana, I don't think you'll pull through another one of these."

"That was 13 years ago and I haven't had a drink since," he said. "I'm a living example that alcoholism can be treated. I'm 73 years old and I want to tell you that it's never too late to quit drinking — and never too early."

As a participant in the week-long Human Resources '82 conference, Andrews felt the need to justify his presence among a gathering of professionals from the fields of politics, medicine, nutrition and social work.

"I'm not a physician, I'm not a social worker. But I do have my credentials — the battle scars of long years of drinking. From an experiential point of view, I'm an expert on the subject," he said.

The disease of alcoholism, he said, is vastly misunderstood. Many people are unaware that it is the third leading cause of death in America, behind heart disease and cancer. Of the American drinking population — roughly 100 million people — fully 10 percent are alcoholic, Andrews said.

"Alcoholism is a medical illness," he said. "It is not a moral problem or a sin. It is a disease."

It was not labeled as such by the American Medical Association until 1956 and, Andrews said, if the axiom that it takes 20 to 30 years for any concept to gain general acceptance is true, then it is no wonder that many people still find it hard to accept alcoholism as a physical illness.

Many people still see it as a psychological problem, he said. Andrews thought so too for many years, and he went to many psychiatrists. One psychiatrist, searching in frustration for some

Poetry for deaf set at U. Museum

Ruth Casse Hoffman will give a lecture entitled "Poetry in the Palm of your Hand" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the University Museum Faner Hall Auditorium.

Hoffman, formerly a professor of French, is now an account executive with Boger Martin Fairchild and Company of South Bend, Ind. She is known for her poetry in French and English and for her work with poetry in sign language.

Hoffman will bring together the hearing and deaf communities to share poetry. In addition, she will discuss techniques used when a poem is composed in American sign language and the nature of metaphor in sign language poetry.

Hoffman will also be present at the second annual SIU Poetry Festival at 10 a.m. Friday in the Morris Library Auditorium. Accompanying her will be SIU poets from the Poetry Factory and the Poet's Co-op.

'Yanks and Rebs' to square off again

The blue and gray will square off again and visitors to Makanda may see and hear the spectre of the Civil War when the village hosts a "Civil War" weekend Saturday and Sunday.

The main event will be a staging of a Civil War battle between the Union and the Confederacy. Battle lines will be drawn at 1 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of U.S. 51 and Makanda Road.

Company C of the 31st Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry will reenact the Battle of Belmont, Mo.

Saturday events include a drill, camp, and cavalry competition. Reenactors will march to downtown Makanda at 1 p.m. and stage a brief skirmish.

A flag raising ceremony will open the weekend at 8 a.m. Saturday.

All events over the weekend are free. There will be a $1 parking charge.

Leys Lecture set on morals

The director of the Westminster Institute for Ethics and Human Values will deliver the eighth annual Leys Memorial Lecture at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Morris Library Auditorium.

Michael D. Bayles, who has written books on morality and population, will discuss "Moral Theory and Application."

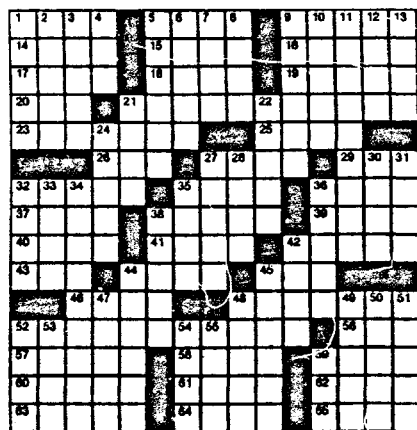

The lecture honors Wayne A.R. Leys, professor of philosophy at SIU-C from 1964 until his death in 1973. It is sponsored by the Department of Philosophy.

The SIU Press will publish the first six Leys lectures in a single volume later this year.

John H. Wotiz, chemistry professor, relaxes in his office in the Neckers Building.

Professor joins elite crowd, earns 1982 Dexter Award

By Randy Readfield
Staff Writer

For those concerned about SIU-C's prestige, it might be comforting to know that the school's faculty includes an innovative professor of chemistry who has earned international honor and recognition — John H. Wotiz. Wotiz is the recipient of the 1982 Dexter Award in History of Chemistry, an award consisting of $1,000, an engraved silver plaque and recognition in the history of chemistry field.

The award will be presented to Wotiz in September at the national meeting of the American Chemical Society in Kansas City, Mo.

The award is sponsored by the Dexter Chemical Corp. of New York, and is administered by the American Chemical Society, History of Chemistry Division. It is given to honor the advancement of chemistry history through publications, teaching or meritorious service of long duration.

According to a press release, the award committee selected Wotiz on the basis of his contributions in five areas: authorship of original research; his work as originator and editor of the "Story Behind the Story" column, which has appeared in the Journal of Chemical Education since 1975; his authorship of "The Directory and Guide to European History of Chemistry Museums and Exhibits"; his work as the originator and director of the European History of Chemistry Tours, an SIU-C summer course for American science professors and teachers; and the authorship of the proposal to establish a Center for the History of Chemistry, operated by the American Chemical Society.

Wotiz, 62, was born in Czechoslovakia and became a naturalized U.S. citizen in 1944. He received his bachelor's degree at Furman University in Greenville, S.C. in 1941, his master's degree at the University of Richmond in 1943, and his Ph.D. from Ohio State University in 1948. Wotiz has been associated with SIU-C since 1967.

Wotiz said sometimes he contributes to his "Story Behind the Story" columns himself and sometimes he solicits material for it.

"When I hear something interesting from someone who knows something," Wotiz said, "I say to the person: 'Well, why don't you write it down?' You sort of pump them for information. And then you turn the table, and say, 'Now you've told me. How about telling somebody else?' So it's an activity that surprises many people.

"They'll appear to think, 'Gee, now I'll have to sit down and work on it. They're glad to tell you an interesting piece of information over a drink, but when it comes to writing it down, it follows a certain pattern. Because then it takes considerable time to look up the references. Writing technical articles is not an easy matter,'" Wotiz said.

Some of the contributions he gets from educators are "atrocious," he said. "Some of them don't know how to spell, and these are people who should know better. You wouldn't believe the difference between what is presented and what finally appears.

"We all have to go through a process of education. We all have to learn. So I'm not surprised at the people who are starting out," he said. "But I'm complaining about what I consider experienced people."

Wotiz' attempts to establish a Center for the History of Chemistry finally became a reality when the American Chemical Society and the University of Pennsylvania decided to locate the center on the Pennsylvania campus, he said. But he said getting the center established was not an easy task.

"Everybody is in favor of motherhood and apple pie. But when it translates into 'are you going to provide some money?' it becomes a lot different.

"To erect a center where you have full-time employees to do the research" was a difficult thing to attain, Wotiz said. "It took five years of talking to people, writing to people, lobbying, writing petitions. God, did I lobby! And finally the center was endorsed and we were able to find the money," he said.

The American Chemical Society is the largest professional society in the world with 125,000 members, Wotiz said. The center is now maintained by "matching funds" provided by both the University of Pennsylvania and the American Chemical Society, he said.

Wotiz designed an SIU-C summer course in Europe "geared to high school and university teachers who want to

Crime-fighting citizens to soon be recognized

People who became involved won't be forgotten. Instead, they will be awarded a Citizen's Award, announced Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemons.

Private citizens who assist in the apprehension and prosecution of criminal offenders will have their names engraved on a plaque which will be permanently hung in the State's Attorney's office for display.

Each citizen also will receive a framed certificate recognizing their contribution to the office.

At the same time Clemons established the award, Donna L. Pleasant was named first recipient. Pleasant provided information that led to the arrest and prosecution of three men for armed robbery.

Cancer victim will get $400 from benefit concert

A benefit concert for Nathan Reigle, 5, of Carterville, held Thursday night at The Bar, raised about $400.

The Mobilization of Volunteer Effort sponsored a concert by David and the Happenings to raise money for Reigle, who is suffering from cancer.

The money has been deposited in an account and will be used to help defray the cost of treating the illness, said Joe Angelillo, coordinator for MOVE.

psychological revelation that would explain Andrews' alcoholism, gave him sodium pentothal.

"Nothing came of it," he said. "Except I became addicted to sodium pentothal."

The same chemical factor which made him so susceptible to the effects of alcohol, he said, made him equally susceptible to sodium pentothal.

"Alcohol is a drug," he said. "And it is the number one drug abuse problem in the United States."

One thing which greatly surprised him, he said, was an alcoholism institute fact sheet which said that the vast number of people who are affected by alcoholism do not have a drinking problem.

It refers, he said, to the great number of families, friends and acquaintances whose lives are disrupted and emotions scarred by loved ones who are alcoholic.

He said it has been estimated that, for every alcoholic, an average of four family members and 16 friends and acquaintances fall into this category. Given the fact that there are 10 million alcoholics in the United States, that means that a total of 210 million people have been affected by the illness, he said.

"Which basically means that every one of us has been affected," he said.

"Throughout the years I drank, I put my family through a lot of suffering, and I lost several friends," Andrews said. "The thing about alcoholism is that it rips everything of value to shreds."

Although Andrews said that Alcoholics Anonymous "didn't work for me," he has the utmost respect for what it has accomplished.

Chopin will come alive in musical salute

Because Chopin's approach to music was highly individual, pianist Robert Guralnik has taken a similar approach in developing his one-man show "Chopin Lives."

Costumed in elegant 19th-century garb, he will portray the composer at 8 p.m. April 17 at the Marion Civic Center.

And as Chopin needed to create new forms to compose his music, Guralnik had to complicated. "I belonged to AA for a while and perhaps I didn't try hard enough," he said. "But what stopped me from drinking was a fear of dying, and what has kept me from drinking, since is that I found out what a wonderful life I could lead without it."

And, considering that the use of alcohol is so widely promoted in the entertainment industry, he said, "it's time that those of us who find life, wonderful, exciting and sexy without alcohol to come out and say so."

Those who don't drink can have a powerful influence on others, Andrews said, "so pass the word on to your friends. You might save a life."

create a new form for his performance. With the aid of New York writer and director Harold Guskin, he developed a theatrical and musical form that creates a more exciting experience for the audience.

Tickets for "Chopin Lives" are $7, $10 and $12 and are available at Hecht's Women's Apparel in Carbondale and the Civic Center box office.

ALTHOUGH FEDERAL funding in block grants has been cut back, Illinois will be receiving about $2 million more in its state allocation for the program than HUD gave out in CDBG grants for Illinois the year previously.

But as local governments' sources for funding dry up, and other grant programs are slashed, CDAP is one of the few programs tailored specifically for small local governments.

"It's about the only game in town," Schroeter said. "Competition will be absolutely fierce."

Frank Pallini, a planner for the Greater Egypt Regional Planning Commission, said that $18 million of the grant is earmarked to fulfill previous HUD commitments in CDBGs, leaving about $13 million available.

CARBONDALE IS one city to which the federal government committed a CDBG, and thus it will not have to enter into the competition for the state grants for two more years.

When it does enter into the competition, the city will face restrictions placed on applicants to the state's program. Donald Monty, Carbondale community development director, said,

The CDBG the city received this year is the first part of a 3-year, $3-million commitment to Carbondale by HUD. The grant ceilings for new programs have been reduced to $750,000 for cities the size of Carbondale (10,001-50,000 population).

Also, when the city applies for dollars from the state, it must "follow a federal guideline in using the grant. The regulation stipulates that the city can spend only 10 percent of its grant on human services."

Schroeter said he expects over 200 applications for the CDAP grants by the May 28 deadline. But 17 to 20 applicants are expected to be funded when DCCA officials are having workshops on how to fill out project applications at locations all over the state. One was held in Carbondale March 16.

"We are making economic development a priority to prove to local governments that it can work," Schroeter said.

learn something about the history of chemistry," he said.

The course is given every other year during the odd-numbered years. "This is one of the things that impressed the selection committee," Wotiz said. He intends to teach the course again in 1983.

Wotiz said he received the award on the basis of his first nomination. Usually, he said, a person is nominated several times before winning the award. The award is usually given to people who have grant awards are announced in mid-August.

ANOTHER NEW approach in the CDAP, differing it from the CDBG program, is that 5 percent of the state's block grant, or $1.68 million, will be set aside after the application deadline "for projects involving unique economic opportunity," Schroeter said.

worked extensively over a long duration in the history of chemistry.

Of the 25 prior selectees of the Dexter award, which began in 1966, only 12 have been born in the United States. (In 1974, the award committee did not find a suitable recipient of the award.)

In the past, "some of the selectees have been given the Dexter award strictly for writing," Wotiz said. "But it just so happens that, in my case, I fulfilled all five categories."

United States because there is no clear distinction between rural people and urban people, Corruccini said. In the United States, even the rural people have access to supermarket foods, and therefore, comparison is not possible.

Cross-cultural study of malocclusion is important because it takes into account environmental variations, Corruccini said.

People in urban areas tend to eat processed food, which are usually canned and soft and consequently not conducive to development of strong jaws. It is Corruccini's hypothesis the less people chew, the less their jaw bones develop, leading to malocclusion.

Corruccini's study in Punjab in 1979, 1981 and 1982 was sponsored by the U.S. National Museum under a Smithsonian Institutional grant and by the National Science Foundation. Last year, eight SIU-C graduate students participated in the research in India.

During a stay in India for about three months last year, Corruccini worked with Samvite Kaul, physical anthropologist at Punjab University.

Corruccini said Kaul had been vital to the research. He helped translate the Punjab language and assisted Corruccini throughout the research. Corruccini said he plans to invite Kaul to SIU-C next year to give lectures.

Corruccini, 32, said he expected to return to India next year to continue the research. Punjab has been selected for the research because it offers a variety of modern and traditional lifestyles within its vicinity upon which the research is best conducted.

Because of increasing interest in the field, the South Asia Study Committee at SIU-C plans to introduce a general studies course on India next year, Corruccini said. Richard Kurin and Robert Hallisley, chairmen of SASC will administer this plan.

Corruccini came to SIU-C in 1978. He earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Colorado in 1971 and a Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley in 1975. His field of study includes bones and burial analysis.

Corruccini's book, "Epidemiological Study of Dental Occlusion in Northern India," will be published next year.

Sometimes even heroic efforts can come back to haunt you

CHICAGO (AP) — Good publicity turned bad for Barry Wright, whose photo during a heroic moment has led to his arrest on drug and weapons charges.

Wright, 37, was released on $15,000 bond Tuesday after police confiscated $500,000 worth of cocaine, more than $13,000 in bills and a cache of machine guns, sawed-off shotguns and other firearms in his South Side apartment, authorities said.

They said a photograph of Wright helping subdue an airline hijacker last month was a key in the investigation that led them to raid Wright's apartment on a warrant Sunday.

"His name had come up in connection with a drug investigation and one thing (investigators) needed was some kind of evidence to show that his traveling habits involved going back and forth from here to Florida," Mike Powers, spokesman for the Cook County state's attorney's office said Tuesday. "One day they were reading the paper and his picture was on the front page."

The picture was an Associated Press Laserphoto showing Wright and another man holding down a third man who allegedly attempted to hijack a Chicago-to-Miami jetliner to Cuba on March 1.

"The picture confirmed that he had been going to Florida," said Thomas Dwyer, head of the state's attorney's narcotics unit. The photo "intensified the focus of our investigation," Dwyer said.

Wright, who police say had no previous arrest record, had been in the limelight often before.

As organizer of the Concerned Veterans from Vietnam — a group which sought to find jobs for vets and protest less-than-honorable discharges — Wright testified before an Illinois Senate Committee on behalf of veterans in 1971. He frequently held news conferences in the late 1960s and early 1970s to highlight the problems of vets.

When he came home in 1968 from serving in the Navy in Vietnam, Wright was met by a delegation ordered by the late Mayor Richard J. Daley. He later worked in a drug abuse program in Florida and was a bodyguard for entertainer Redd Foxx in the late 1970s, his mother, Goldie Wright, said.

Mrs. Wright said Monday that her son has "nothing to do with cocaine. Being his mother, I would certainly know ..."

"Some evil force planted this cocaine because he would never be a part of anything like that," Mrs. Wright said.

"He has nothing to be ashamed of. He's always been very active in trying to improve race relations," she said.

Authorities said Wright and 32-year-old Lowell Collins, also of the South Side, are charged with unlawful use of weapons and possession of cocaine. They said Collins, who walked into Wright's apartment during the raid, had $1,500 in his pocket and was carrying a stolen recording machine. The raid netted 2½ pounds of cocaine, 13 firearms and $13,911 in cash.

Wright was additionally charged with bribery for allegedly offering the raiders $10,000 to "forget the whole thing," authorities said.

recruit James Roberts, 6-3, 237 pounds, is battling with 6-0, 233-pound returnee Steve Pihla for the right guard spot.

The center position, Dempsey said, is where SIU-C is "hurting" most on the offensive line. Karl Schneider, a 6-3, 230-pound recruit from Joliet Junior College, will vie for that spot with 6-4, 235-pound senior Duffy Volkman and 6-3, 231-pound junior Ed Barrett.

Dempsey said he will start to worry a bit if the junior college recruits don't perform up to par with his expectations.

"Sure, it takes a little time to learn our system," Dempsey said, "but if a junior college recruit doesn't even make second string I start to worry a little. These guys are juniors and should have some experience behind them."

Two other key positions which this year's squad must compensate for are the exciting running attack of tailback Walter Poole and the kicking games of Tom Streigel and Paul Molla. All three are graduating.

Poole, though injured for the last two games of his senior year, was the nation's tenth-leading rusher with 1,092 yards, 700 yards ahead of the Salukis' No. 2 ground gainer, Derrick Taylor.

Thus spring practice sets the stage for a battle for the tailback job between senior Jeff Ware, Taylor, Tony Anderson and junior college transfer Terry Green. So far, Dempsey has been impressed with the performances of returnees Taylor and Anderson.

"Both Taylor and Anderson have been running super in practice," Dempsey said. "Anderson runs with great speed and authority. They both have been impressive."

The kicking shoes of Streigel and Molla also will be hard to fill. Molla led SIU-C in scoring with 68 points, while Carbondale native Streigel consistently backed opponents into a corner with his 45.9 yard punting average. Streigel finished his final season as the nation's third leading punter.

Senior Allen Leslie will be in charge of the kicking duties this year, while freshman Ray D'Onofrio of Youngstown, Ohio, will be punting for the Salukis. If punting troubles arise, backup quarterback Rich Williams will get the nod, Dempsey said.

And as for starting quarterback, senior Rick Johnson again will be in charge. Johnson's next four weeks of spring practice will center around his learning to read defenses, plays, and when and what types of passes to throw in certain situations, Dempsey said.

"We'll try to improve Rick at all phases of his position," Dempsey said. "In some situations Rick will have to throw a bullet-like pass but in others he'll have to learn how to loft the ball to his receiver."

On the defensive side, the Salukis appear to be as sound as last year. One "experiment" Dempsey is testing this spring is the switch of positions between John Harper and Ashley Sledge. Harper, 6-3, 234 pounds, and right defensive end last season, has moved over to a linebacker spot because teams in awe of the senior "would always run away from his side of the line," Dempsey said.

Netters top Kansas State, weather

The men's tennis team, after losing to Oklahoma 7-2 and defeating Nebraska 5-2 at the Mid-America Invitational, had scheduled matches with Missouri and Kansas called off because of bad weather.

But the Salukis did get a chance to compete against Kansas State Sunday and came away with a 6-0 win. It improved the Saluki record to 9-11.

"It was a stressful week," said Coach Dick LeFevre. "We were lucky we got those matches in. The temperature in Kansas was 30 degrees, with winds gusting up to 25 miles per hour. It was impossible to play."

The Salukis swept the doubles competition, with David Filer and John Greif defeating Kansas State's Curt Thompson and Gary Hassenflu, 6-2, 6-4; Lito Ampon and David Desilets beating Matt Westfall and Steve Webb, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5; and Brian Stanley and Gabriel Coch slipping by Pat Thomas and Mark Hassenflu, 6-2, 6-7, 6-2.

SIU-C's singles winners included Stanley over Thompson, Greif over Gary Hassenflu and Coch over Mark Hassenflu.

The Salukis may or may not face Northwestern and Western Michigan this weekend in Evanston. Because of the wintry weather up north, LeFevre won't know until Thursday if the netters will make the trip. The matches are scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

7:00p.m.

Evening Seminar-"SHODO" by Shozo Sato. Room 101, Fee $2.00.

"SUMI-E AND SHODO"-The sensitivity of the Japanese people to arts that contain active empty space and lines that possess a lifelike energy can be seen in their taste for sumi-e, or black ink painting, and shodo, the ancient art of calligraphy. The uniting of one's spirit with the physical process of painting forms the basis of these art forms as they reflect the discipline of Zen philosophy. Shozo Sato will demonstrate this process and will explain how the unity of body and spirit will not only enhance artistic expression in the studio but, if applied, will also enrich our daily life activities.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14

11:00a.m.

"JAPANESE TEA CEREMONY"-Lecture Demonstration by Shozo Sato. Gym. Free admission to all.

TEA CEREMONY-Tea ceremony is a unique art form because it is a composite of a variety of individual arts including craft arts, culinary arts, architectural and garden design, and other related arts. More important than these aesthetic elements, however, is the philosophy of Zen and its influence on the lives of tea ceremony practitioners. Zen is the underlying foundation of tea ceremony and the extent of its role can be seen in the fact that "The Way of Tea," a more accurate title for tea ceremony, is often referred to as the twin brother of Zen. "The Way of Tea" embodies so much of Zen's meditative practice and discipline, that many priests find it to be compatible with their own religious study; but, secular people as well, such as royalty, scholars, artists and everyday citizens, also find it ideal to practice the art as their own personal discipline in the search for enlightenment.

Shozo Sato will perform a tea ceremony and his demonstration will include an explanation of its historical background and its relation to Zen philosophy. Also, he will discuss in what this centuries-old tradition of connoisseurship has influenced contemporary Japan's industry as well as the daily life of the Japanese people.

7:00p.m.

"IKEBANNA" (Flower Arranging)-Evening Workshop by Sedako Clarke. Critique by Shozo Sato. Room 101. Fee: beginners $7.00 (includes penholder and flowers), advanced $4.00 (bring your own penholder and flowers). Pre-registration is required by April 9th.

IKEBANNA-The art of flower arrangement bases its precept upon line, rhythm, and color as the means of achieving a recreation of floral growth. Ikebanna emphasizes the line of the arrangement and the art has developed to include stems, leaves and branches as well as flowers.

Cheerleading is more than just cheering

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

It was the second time around for Staci Stanton.

She was more experienced, poised and confident than the first time, she said. When she rushed onto the floor with three others who had similar goals, she stood at attention, a smile on her face.

Staci was trying to show she had what it takes to be an SIU-C cheerleader. Her cheers were loud, her chants strong and peppy, and her dance fun to watch.

But she didn't make the cut. Lissa Hamilton was nervous. Her four-member group was the fourth of five, and though two more groups had to perform before hers, Lissa felt she didn't have enough time. She kept repeating how keen the competition was, and how despite her eight years of experience, she felt outclassed.

Though a case of butterflies in the stomach may sometimes bring out one's best, it played a dirty trick on Lissa. Her cheers were loud and her chants on time, but her stunts weren't up to par, and her dancing was a little out of step.

She didn't make it, either. The event was SIU-C cheerleading squad tryouts. The objective was to find the full-blooded Saluki. One who could chant, tumble, dance and smile all at once with fierce enthusiasm.

Those who were picked for the 1982-83 squad Saturday at the Arena rejoiced. Those who weren't cried. It was an emotional moment for the lucky and not-so-lucky, where gladness and sympathy were bestowed all at once.

"If you can make the requirements, you can be an SIU cheerleader," said Lori Jones, whose tryout was successful for the third straight year.

"But you see, the hard part is being a cheerleader. It takes more than people think. You have to get along with people, learn to compromise and do your best no matter what. It also takes dedication."

Dedication is what made the 20 participants go through months of preparation, five workshops, personal interviews and the final tryout. The years of dedication from all the participants were countless, but only eight women and six men could be picked.

The panel of judges was made up of cheerleading sponsors, administrators and representatives from both men's and women's athletics. They judged the participants in nine categories worth a total of 155 points.

Most returnees said this year's tryouts were more selective, that a format change meant a stiffer search process to filter out the best.

Two categories were worth 20 points. One, cheers, included arm motion, voice and all-around control. The other, pom, included kicks and steps, dance and spirit.

Chants, back handsprings and tumbling were worth 10. Jumps counted 15, and stunts 30. The competition was awesome.

"I was scared to death," said Karla Coleman, a former Carbondale High School cheerleader and a 1981 member of the Saluki squad. "We had so much competition this year, but I know to make it you have to be good."

Karla was one of the good ones. And so were Lori Cecil, Jelelisa Croker, Lynda Franks, Cristy Mullen, Kim Nalley and Leigh Barnfield, the other six women who joined Coleman and Jones on the 1982-83 squad.

"I was really glad to make the squad," said Leigh, a member last year. "There were so many good girls there."

A former Benton cheerleader, Leigh was one of the many who made a few mistakes — mistakes that can't be tolerated in stiff competition. She had to wait over an hour for the ultimately good news.

"You can't make mistakes," said Jones, who also had a long wait after a performance she wasn't quite thrilled with.

Karla agreed, saying "The smallest mistake and you're out."

For Eric Ettl, Doug Gerrard, Pete Grieder, Scott Habel, Keith Kouba and Joe Leggato, it was a little easier. They filled the only six spots available.

According to Tom Mnich, an architect at Fishber and Stein who moonlights as the cheerleading coach, two more men will be chosen.

"Men cheerleaders are second nature to most of the big schools, like LSU, UCLA and USC," said Jones. "But here, we have to recruit, and it's hard to get them and even harder to keep them. Plus, at bigger schools, it's a status symbol."

Mnich, a former head cheerleader at Tennessee, and Nancy Lipe, a former Saluki cheerleader, will direct the handful of cheerleading hopefuls who made the grade.

As for those who didn't make it, like Staci and Lissa, they'll just have to wait until next year and do it all over again.

each this season. This means 84 of their 162 games will be played against teams with which they aren't even battling for a pennant.

The National League's scheduling makes more sense. The Chicago Cubs, for instance, will meet their own divisional rivals 18 times and will face the Western teams 12 times each.

The American League, by chopping its schedule, could have teams meeting their divisional foes 14 times a year and teams from the other division just eight times, which totals 140. Each team could play its two remaining games against a randomly chosen team.

National League teams could play opponents within their division 16 times and foes in the other division 10. They also could lose in two random games.

With this plan fan interest would pick up for the simple reason that with fewer games available, each will be more important to a team's pennant drive. More fans would come out, meaning more cash in the owners' bank accounts. The owners wouldn't lose money by playing fewer games since not as many games would be lost to unreliable early spring weather.

AND LET'S NOT FORGET the end of the season. I don't think too many fans would be in tank tops and cut-offs at a World Series game played in Montreal in mid-October. As well as delaying the start, baseball should wrap up the season earlier.

This year's season is set to end on Sunday, Oct. 3, or about the time Montreal citizens cheer temperatures in the low 50s.

Ending the season a week earlier wouldn't avoid cold weather, but would help hold fan interest being tempted by pro football, basketball and hockey. An early end can be accomplished by scheduling more double-headers.

Only seven twinbills have been scheduled in the AL this year. Both leagues could schedule twinbills between strong teams, like the Dodgers and Expos or Orioles and Yankees, and still fill the ballpark.

Baseball still has a chance to change before it becomes known as a winter sport. All it has to do is realize that less can be better than more. If not, we may see Goose Gosage travel from the bullpen to the mound at Yankee Stadium via dog sled next April.

SEMO wins first game, 3-2

Softball team works overtime for split

The softball team split a double-header against Southeast Missouri State Tuesday, dropping the first game, 3-2, while winning the nightcap, 5-4 in 11 innings, at the Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Field.

The split gave SIU-C an 8-14 record, while SEMO moved to 11-17.

In game two, the Salukis sent junior righthander Donna Dapson to the mound. SIU-C backed her with three quick runs and held a 3-0 lead going into the fifth. The inning proved to be disastrous for Dapson, who gave up four runs — three of them unearned — to give the Otahkians a 4-3 lead.

The Salukis tied the game in the sixth. Karen Koltzow sent a drive to deep centerfield for a triple, and scored the tying run, sliding under the catcher's tag after teammate Nancy McAuley hit a hard grounder to third base.

SIU-C won the game in the 11th inning when third baseman Diane Broe streaked home from third on a wild pitch.

The second game was far from a masterpiece, as both teams committed four errors in the 35-degree weather.

"I really don't think the cold had much to do with the errors today," said Saluki Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer. "Once you get on the field and start playing, you warm up pretty fast. You can't let the cold get to you, because then you let the weather beat you. Both teams have to play in it."

In the first contest, SEMO had a 3-2 lead in the bottom of the sixth inning. Saluki Kim Satterly led off the inning by blasting a triple down the right field line, but was tagged out at the plate trying to stretch it into a home run.

Brechtelsbauer gave Satterly the go-ahead and said she would do it again if she had another chance.

"Kim is a good baserunner and the throw had to be perfect to get her out," Brechtelsbauer said. "Well the throw was perfect, and Kim was gone."

"If we'd been getting some clutch hitting, I probably would not have sent her in. But we've been having trouble scoring runners from third base," the Saluki coach said.

Saluki pitcher Meredith Stengel was tagged with the loss.

Brrr! Major leagues need shorter schedule

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL has issued a new piece of equipment to ballplayers this season — snowshoes.

Actually, the situation isn't quite that drastic. But if Old Man Winter has his way, we soon may see players wearing scarves and mittens that attach to their long-sleeve sweatshirts.

Baseball fans in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Detroit, Chicago, New York and Milwaukee, who were looking forward to seeing their diamond heroes in action, instead were greeted by several inches of snow Tuesday.

Over 52,000 people were expected to be in Chicago's Comiskey Park to see the White Sox play the Boston Red Sox. Instead, the White Sox brass, citing snow removal problems and the forecast of near-freezing temperatures, postponed the opener and Thursday's game as well.

Chicago will try to open the season at New York Friday, which could be difficult since the Big Apple was predicted to receive up to a foot of snow on Tuesday night.

The only Northern team guaranteed to open on time is Minnesota, as the Twins will play beneath the Kingdome in Seattle. The White Sox have arranged to play Toronto in two exhibitions at the Twins' new Hubert Humphrey Metrodome to prepare for the Yankees.

WHITE SOX CO-OWNER Jerry Reinsdorf was quoted by The Associated Press as being outraged "that Minnesota and Seattle both can open in domes, but are playing each other."

Reinsdorf also was upset that four West Coast teams are playing each other. The Sox co-owner must face up to the fact that building domes or arranging the schedule to have every team open in warm climates isn't the solution to baseball's problem.

Most Northern teams don't play in weather which calls for a year-round dome. Those cities that have them — like hot Houston or soggy Seattle — need them. The Texas Rangers get around the problem of playing in hot weather by scheduling most of their home games at night.

What baseball must do is simply trim its lengthy schedule.

Fan attendance usually wanes after the initial opening day rush. The crowds are smaller early in the season, unless the team starts off with a bang or the weather is warm. Most fans stay away from the ballpark until they're sure they won't become a "fansicle" by attending.

Major league baseball teams now play 162 games a year. The season should be trimmed to 142 games, with the opening delayed until the first weekend in May. This way all the teams would stand a better chance of having pleasant weather to open in.

Chopping the schedule, though, presents the problem of where, who and how much.

THE WHITE SOX, for example, are to play each of their own Western Division foes 13 times and their Eastern enemies 12 games.

Rites of spring include drills in fundamentals for gridder

By Bob Morand
Staff Writer

The baseball season may be upon us, but the chilly April weather is climatically reminiscent of October and football.

And although the football season is still four months away, the Saluki football team can be seen on the green carpet of McAndrew Stadium each afternoon — engaging in its annual rite of spring training.

For the next four weeks, Head Coach Ray Dempsey and his staff will be testing and experimenting with newly-acquired recruits and returnees from last year's squad to find that winning combination. Last season, SIU-C finished 7-4 and third in the Valley.

Spring training is also a time for reinstating gridiron fundamentals that might have been forgotten during the off-season.

"We mainly are taking our time to work on fundamentals, to get the players fundamentally sound," said Dempsey, who will be starting his seventh year at the Saluki helm.

"We just about lost our whole offensive line from last year, so a lot of work is being done with the junior college recruits that we have this year. The offensive line will practically have to be restructured."

The Salukis and the rest of the nation's college football teams are allowed 20 days of spring practice, according to NCAA rules. Most teams practice five days for four weeks but Dempsey and team will go four days a week for five weeks, to allow more time for testing.

Dempsey hopes that junior college recruits will be able to fill the gaps left in the offensive line by the graduation of Salukis Chris Lockwood, Chester Cropp, Greg Fernandez and Darrin Davis.

Brad Pilgard, a 6-2, 268-pounder from Harper Junior College, has impressed Dempsey enough to move to the No. 1 spot at the right tackle position. Illinois Valley Junior College
