MOSCOW (UPI) — Lithuania's parliament, overlooking a Soviet army raid on the local prosecutor's office, acknowledged for the first time Thursday that Soviet constitutional requirements should be considered in any independence talks with Moscow.

Nepal's king fires government, accepts reforms

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — King Birendra dismissed Nepal's government Friday and announced broad democratic reforms, authorizing the new gov-ernmert to meet with the opposition and naming a panel to rewrite the constitution.

Birendra also said he would order a "fact-finding mission" to investigate the "loss of life" of at least 23 demonstrators who died during the 6-week-old pro-democracy uprising, and he called for a special session of parlia-

Birendra then sacked the gov-

The king authorized the Chand's new Cabinet to open talks with Nepal's growing opposition, which has demanded the kingdom abandon its partyless

"panchayat" system of govern-ment in favor of true political pluralism. He also vowed to begin a process of constitutional reform.

"I want this government to negotiate with people of different opinions. I will constitute a commission to reform the constitu-tion," the king said.

The sweeping announcements followed a day of mounting ten-

Local politicians: Clean air bill hurts economy

Local legislators criticized the U. S. Senate for "playing unfair" with the clean air act, but com-mended the two Illinois senators for voting against the bill.

U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, said at the Williamson County Airport that the Southern Illinois economy will suffer a drastic blow if the controversial clean air bill becomes a law.

The Salukis should have some momentum built up from last weekend's Western Illinois Relays. The team was fortunate enough to capture first place finishes in 12 of 19 events.

Field events were strong last weekend with SIU-C capturing the top three spots in the shotput event. Freshmen shot putters Jennifer Bozue had a toss of 43 feet 5inches, Cheryl Evers threw 42-9 and Cynthia Grammer fin-ished up with a toss of 39-1 1/4.

'Our freshman throwers were highly successful athletes in high school," DeNoon said, "I don't see how a meet of this sort is going to effect them within their performance level."

Sophomore Jamie Dashner placed fifth with a javelin throw of 121-7 1/2 at last year's SEMOtion meet. She will be expected to move up following her performance at Western. Dashner dominated the competition at WIU with a meet record throw of 130-7

"I think Jamie Dashner is prob ably the best returning thrower in the javelin," DeNoon said. "She probably has a real good shot at winning that event.'

Junior Michelle Sciano placed second in the 400 meter hurdle at the SEMOtion last season with a time of 1:02.24. Sciano is coming off a meet record 1:01.61 in the same event at Western.

"Sciano will be the top returning runner because of her 2nd place finish last year," said DeNoon. "Michelle has a good shot of winning it."

Attention landlords: Play fair, or get out

MOST PEOPLE can wait for a lot of things, but few can wait patiently for money.

Students usually have the hardest time waiting for money, so it is no wonder that when a Carbondale landlord delayed returning residents' deposits, somebody made a TELLING TENANTS that their safety deposits have been lost in a shuffle of papers because ownership changed hands rates very high on the list of things tenants don't want to hear. Tenants not only don't want to hear 11, but they shouldn't have to listen to it.

But that's exactly what some residents are told: Yes, you paid $200 for a damage deposit, and no, you are not getting it back through no fault of yours or ours. Sorry.

SUCH PRACTICES are bad for business. But in a town with a high resident turnover rate, some different victims will be looking to rent next year. Right?

So far, six students have lodged complaints with the University's Student Legal Assistance. At the forefront of landlord/tenant mix-up is property manager Bonnie Owen, former owner Equity Investors and a handful of Pyramid Apartments residents.

SADLY ENOUGH, the majority of residents who have waited four months for their deposits are international students. Think for a moment what this says about acceptable business practices in the United States. OK, Carbondale; but if it happens in Carbondale, it's bound to happen elsewhere.

Think also of the disadvantages international students might have doing business with our investors who apparently have some really foreign business practices.

MANY INTERNATIONAL students cannot idly bide time waiting for a $200 check-in-the-mail. Almost all students can ill-afford a four-month wait for money that very likely already has been budgeted. Next semester's books or a tuition down payment may be wrapped up in disputes between landlords.

Finagling students out of their deposits seems out of place with a few things. Students are thought by some to be less responsible than folks who own property. Students supposedly are a high credit risk, too. The sole credit risk in the Pyramid's case is obvious.

STUDENTS ENCOUNTERING problems with their landlords should contact the landlord/tenant union on campus. Student attorneys are available to residents who have complaints about landlord practices and many times have helped to resolve them.

Being out money is bad enough, but silence indicates acceptance. Speak out!

Cruel, just punishment given

By Donald Kaul

Scripps Howard News Service

A compelling story involving a lethal drunken driver and the ingenious punishment visited upon him by the parents of his victim surfaced in Virginia the other day. The Washington Post reported that a young man, found guilty of manslaughter in the drunken driving death of an 18year-old girl some time before, was brought into court because he was behind in his compensatory payments to the girl's parents.

The payments were $1 a week.
That was the deal the parents,
Patricia and Louis Herzog, accepted when they settled their $1.5 million suit against the then 17-year-old driver who killed their daughter on New Year's Eve in 1982. He was to mail them a $1 check, made out to their dead daughter, every Friday - for 18

"We just wanted a remem-brance or a reminder," the mother said. "We felt like if he did this said. We felt like if he did this for 18 years, he wouldn't forget Susan Herzog. To make a long story short, he kept forgetting." So they brought him into court.

But, as it turns out, the driver, Kevin Tunell, hadn't forgotten.

"It's like I'm not pu posely not writing them because I want to defy the court and I'm trying to hurt the Herzogs. I just don't feel good. It hurts."

It more than hurt. It was driving him crazy. "I used to, like, lie in bed and if I heard the house settling or noises I used to think Susan was going to come visit me," he told the court. As so saying, he cried.

Parking situation deserves attention

I have had absolutely enough of this parking situation. Last Thursday I came to school a full 20 minutes before class began and could still not find a parking space in time for the start of class I ended up parking in a 15-minute zone, and halfway through my class I moved my car to another 15-minute zone and returned to class. Wouldn't you know that by the time I returned to my car after class I had been ticketed by the ever-vigilant parking patrol / Gestapo.

In response to the crescendo of claims that there is an inadequate parking allocation system in operation at SIU, Marilyn Hogan, Director of SIU's Parking Administration, offers the lame retort that there are plenty of spaces available at the Arena parking lot. Hey Marilyn, there are also plenty of parking spaces available on the moon, but is it a practical alternative to park there. practical alternative to park there and then walk to class? The weather in Southern Illinois is so inclement at times that the option of parking at the SIU Arena is

I think that the existing SIU parking policy is ridiculous and irresponsible. It seems to me to be tantamount to fraudulent and deceptive practices and/or breach of contract for Hogan to sell park-ing permits for which no spaces exist. Essentially, Hogan appears to be doing a variation of the number that Jimmy Baker did. If you recall, Baker oversold memberships to a luxury Christian resort. As a result, the resort membership far surpassed the facility's capacity to provide lodging benefits which they had been promised. Baker is in jail, by the way. Hogan is selling parking permits with no reference whatsoever to the number of parking spaces available.

I'm not saying that we should tear up the campus and build more parking lots. There are other possible solutions to this problem. A busing system has been dis-cussed (dismissed?). In the meantime they could limit the number of parking stickers issued according to the number of parking ces that exist (the Arena lot doesn't count!) and could make these stickers available to students in descending priority according to they student's class level at SIU. That way, if there is to be suffering due to a lack of parking space, it would be shoul-dered primarily by those who have the least seniority at SIU.

This sytem seems to me to be a fairer one in this unfavorable set of circumstances. But you can be sure that Hogan and company will not adopt it. If they did, it would mean less revenue for the parking administration due to the decrease in parking fines and parking permit fees. So, in effect, they have tremendous financial incentives NOT to solve the problem.

Wouldn't it be nice if one of our highly paid (via our tuition, folks) upper-level administrators would step right in and bring order, intelligence and fairness to this aggravating and seemingly grafty situa-tion?—P. Scott Parker, graduate student, clinical psychology.

Drivers: Reconsider ability to walk to campus

I am writing in defense of the parking situation on campus.

Students have complained of the lack of parking spaces on our beautiful campus for too long. Why don't all of you who drive to campus try to walk to school for once? It might do you some good. Laziness (or lateness) should not hold water as an excuse for the overflow of cars cramping cam-pus grounds daily and polluting Carbondale is a small enough town that many students living off campus do not require a vehicle to get to and from campus.

The predictable and temperate weather in Southern Illinois should help convince students and faculty members alike to take advantage of their health and walk to campus.

The parking personnel at the University have their hands full trying to regulate those students who must drive to class (and even those who don't). To incessantly complain about the lack of parking spaces to University person-nel demonstrates a lack of tact and resourcefulness

Some students go so far as to make insinuations about the character of the parking administration. Recently, I overheard two students complaining that Marilyn Hogan, director of SIU's parking administration, probably "set-up the students" by selling more parking stickers than there were spaces available.

Personally, I have had it up to here with suggestions of tearing up the campus greenery to make way for even more parking lots. Take a look around, folks. Pretty soon, there's going to be more lots than lawns-if there isn't already.

If there is any complaining to be done, it should come from University faculty. Their status as instructors or higher ups means nothing in a parking lot full of lazy vultures waiting to steal a space just as soon as another lazy vulture leaves.

While I am not suggesting a seniority system to cure any per-ceived parking problems, I am saying that those who must drive to campus (commuters and some University personnel) should be given priority parking.

One more thing: The Arena lot is almost always empty. How many students who have the audacity to complain about the parking on campus have thought of parking there? Probably quite a few. The question is, how many have just one more capable bone in their body than lazy and park there. Feople act as if they have to walk from the moon to class if they park at the Arena. Really!—A. Mary Twombly, junior, political science.

Crime in Morris Library declines; increased patrol cited as reason

By Chris Walka Staff Writer

The Saluki Patrol report card is in and the results are favorable for the group which prowls Morris Library in search of vandals or

Nelson Ferry, the public infor-mation officer for the University Police, said there has been a 57 percent reduction of library related incidents. Ferry said in 1989, from the beginning of the term to March 20, there were 28 incidents. In 1990, involving the same time period, there have been only 12, Ferry said. Police, said there has been a 57

The Saluki Patrol was initiated at the request of the library after a rise in the disappearance and mutilation of library materials.

Ferry also said that to date, three arrests have been made.

The reasons for the drop are varied, but the two most promivaried, but the two most promi-nent are an increased awareness of people not leaving their per-sonal belongings unattended, and increased visibility of student police officers, Ferry said.

Ferry would not comment on the exact number of student police officers in the library, but said both uniformed and plain clothes officers were present. Saluki Patrol officers only detain students who are caught defacing or stealing library mate-rials. University police officers make the actual arrest, Ferry said.

The Saluki Patrol was initiated at the request of the library after a rise in the disappearance and mutilation of library materials, Ferry said.

Roland Person, special projects librarian, said he feels the patrol has been advantageous to the library. Person said the benefits of having the patrol present out-weigh any possible intimidation pairons may feel.

Funding for the Saluki Patrol, however, may not be as certain as the net profit gained from the presence of the patrol. The library is funding the project on a trial basis, but Person said he would much rather have funding taken up by the University.

The ontlook for next year's budget, though the budget is not out yet, does not look promising,

'We hope to be able to continue it," Person said.

Person said a rough estimate of the trial semester's cost is about $9,654. This figure is based on the number of the hours the library is open and the number of hours worked by the officers as a whole.

Person said the service will continue through the end of the fiscal year and will be evaluated to determine if it should be continued or not. Person said if con-tinued, the cost of the patrol may be higher next year due to an increase in the minimum wage.

Suppressed abortion report published in science journal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 1989 survey that finds most women who undergo abortions do suffer significant psychological distress and was kept from release by former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, has been reported in a recent journal.

The survey, conducted in early 1989 by the American Psychological Acceptation of the control o logical Association, is reported in the journal Science.

the journal Science.

The results are compiled by an expert panel convened by the psychological association, which said its review of 19 "methodologically sound" studies on U.S. women's response to abortion turned up no evidence that "postabortion syndrome" is common.

The findings were previously presented in early 1989 to Dr. Koop and members of Congress

However, Koop had told President Reagan that he would not issue the long-awaited report on the after-effects of abortion because "scientific studies do not provide conclusive data on the health effects of abortion on women.

The author of the study, Nancy Adler of the University of California-San Francisco, said although the studies they examined each had shortcomings, when considered together the results are strong enough to draw general conclusions.

"Despite the diversity, the stud-ies are consistent in their fir-lings of relatively rare instances or negative responses following abortion, and of decreases in psychological distress following abortion compared to before abortion,"

"Although there may be sensations of regret, sadness or guilt, the weight of the evidence from the best scientific studies indicates the legal abortion of an unwanted pregnancy in the first trimester does not constitute a psychologial hazard for most women," wrote Adler and her five colleagues.

Federal government authorizes publication of condom pamphlet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Health and Human Services Department has authorized publication of a controversial pamphlet about how condoms can protect against AIDS — nearly two years after the education effort was first proposed, a spokesman said Thursday.

Jim Brown, a spokesman for the Public Health Service, said the Public Health Service, said 583,000 copies of the 14-page condom booklet should be printed by May 1. The pamphlets will be distributed through the federal Centers for Disease Control's AIDS Information Clearing House, as well as at clinics to treat sexually transmitted diseases and drug above. Bloodthirsty' Mizzou issues challenge

Omonpee O. Whitfield and Wayne Wallace

The University of Missouri at Columbia has challenged SIU-C to exceed their number of blood donors during the April 8-13 blood drive at SIU-C.

But seeing may not necessarily mean believing for people from the "Show-me" state as their previous blood drive challenges were unfruitful.

In April 1989, Mizzou's Tigers challenged the Salukis in a drive, and collected over 1,900 pints. The Salukis, however, proved to be more bloodthirsty and collected more than 2,000 pints of blood from donors.

The blood drive in the fall of 1989 turned out to be a cat-andDrive begins Sunday at Student Center dog fight as Mizzou again challenged the Salukis and again were defeated. Mizzou collected 2,849 pints of blood while the Salukis netted 3,033.

Perhaps, then, the Tigers believe that the third time is a charm and again have challenged SIU-C, the national record-holders for the most donations given during peace time.

Having started their blood drive six days ago with one day to go, Mizzou reports that they have already collected approximately 1,500 pints. It would appear, then, that Mizzou has an advan-tage over SIU-C. In reference to this, Vivian Ugent, SIU-C's blood drive coordinator said, "Things looked the same way in the Fall 1989 blood drive. They were announcing to the world that they were surpassing SIU-C, and then we pulled on top."

In keeping with the competitive spirit of the blood drive, this year's theme is "Be a year's theme is "Be a Bloodhound." The blood drive, sponsored by Mobilization of Volunteer Efforts, kicks off at 1p.m. Sunday at the Recreation Center until 6 p.m. Free Domino's pizza will be provided Sunday for all donors.

The drive will continue through Friday in Student Center Ballroom D. Donors may give blood from 12 to 6p.m. on Wednesday, and from 10:30 a.m.

to 4:30 p.m. all other days.

Ugent says she wants the community to come out and support the drive. "That's how we became the national champs in the first place, through the help of the community.

Participation may increase this year because for the first time 16-year-olds will be allowed to participate.

Appointments can be made at tables located in the Student Center and in other buildings around campus. There will also be a sign-up table at Carnival Shoes on Saturday. Students may call for an appointment at either 529-2151 or 536-7768. To volunteer to help out at the blood drive, call 457-5258.

First space launch from airplane; 'Pegasus' dropped from bomber

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — A unique winged rocket dropped from a high-flying B-52 bomber successfully carried a small military satellite into space Thursday, the first payload ever put into orbit by an air-launched booster.

"All indications ... are that the launch was indeed a complete success," said Da id Thompson, chairman of Orbital Sciences Corp., the company that spear-headed the development of the unconventional Pegasus rocket. "Today's Pegasus launch is an important milestone of America's space program and, I think, it's a triumph for our country's commercial space industry."

With its maiden flight running 24 hours late because of bad weather, the white, 49-foot Pegasus rocket was dropped from the right wing of a NASA B-52 at 12:10 p.m. PDT as the eightengine jet was cruising due south over the Pacific Ocean about 60 miles southwest of Monterey,

It was the same B-52 used to launch more than 100 X-15 rocket plane flights in the 1960s and as soon as Pegasus dropped away, pilot Gordon Fullerton, a retired shuttle astronaut, immediately banked his plane to the left to get out of the way.

Five seconds later, the first stage of the falling, 41,000-pound solid-fuel rocket ignited with a gush of incandescent flame to kick off a 9-minute, 37-second flight, a critical milestone in a project to develop a versatile, low-cost booster for small mili-try, commercial and scientific payloads.

"Ignition. And it's starting its climb," said a pilot in a "chase" aircraft monitoring the launch.
"Looking good ... Pegasus is on its way!"

Equipped with computer-controlled steering fins at the base of the first stage, the slender rocket quickly shot ahead of the lumbering B-52 and into a steep climb that subjected its unconventional 22-foot-wide delta wing to some 100,000 pounds of aerodynamic

The first stage fell away, its fuel exhausted, about 82 seconds after ignition. The rocket's more conventionally designed second and third stages then worked flawless-ly to drill a small 450-pound test satellite into a 370-mile-high orbit

Pegasus was built by Orbital Sciences of Fairfax, Va., and Hercules Aerospace Co. of Wilmington, Del., in a private venture to develop a low-cost means of putting small satellites into orbit that do not require the services of larger, more expensive ground-launched boosters.

Civic Center Board presses to get state funds for project

By Nora Bentley Staff Writer

The Carbondale Civic Center Authority Board has taken another step toward revitalizing the downtown area.

In a meeting Thursday, the board decided to push forward with its plans of meeting the July1 application deadline for state funding. City Manager Steve Hoffner presented the results of the first survey sent out to local groups, showing that most responses have been positive.

From about 200 surveys mailed by the board in February, 61 responses have been returned, 47 responses have been returned, 4/ are from groups and 14 from indi-viduals. Fifty-two are in favor of building a center, two are not and seven didn't answer the question. Fifty-three said they are in favor of building in the downtown area of building in the downtown area, three are against that location and Meeting rooms, banquet facilities, a theater auditorium, kitchen and catering facilities, and concert space have been the top type of facilities requested, Hoffner said.

Funding for the center would be 75 percent from state funds and 25 percent from local funds. The maximum cost of the project would be $4,100,558 based on state and local funding levels.

If a city hall is built adjacent to he a city han is built agazent to the center, the 25 percent local funding would come from the city hall bond issue proceeds and the in-kind contribution of the appraised value of the land. The bond issue would be about $2,985,000, and the annual debt service would be $297,822.

The city is now paying rent for the city hall buildings, therefore; the amount available for the debt service in lieu of rent would be $158,953 a year. If a stand-alone center is built the local funds could come from a combination of contributions, loans from local financial institutions and the appraised value of the land. Beethoven Society presents acclaimed concert pianist

By Tracy Sargeant Staff Writer

SIU-C's Beethoven Society will host a concert by guest artist Sylvia Kersenbaum at 8 p.m. tonight and from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday in the in the Lesar Law Building Auditorium.

Kersenbaum will perform Beethoven's "Hammerklavier" tonight and Beethoven's fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh sonatas Saturday, Kersenbaum, currently a professor of piano at Western Kentucky University, has toured all over the world including countries such as Japan, Mexico and China.

She has degrees in performance, pedagogy and composition from the National Conservatory in Buenos Aires. She also has artist diplomas from the Academy of Santa Cecilia in Rome and Accademia Chiggiana in Siera.

Born in Buenos Aires, Argentina, Kersenbaum has been playing piano since tue age of three.

Donald Beattie, director for the Beethoven Society, said bringing an artist to SIU-C gets community and student pianists together.

"It is a wonderful way to bring pianists of all ages together," Beattie said.

Along with the performance tonight, the winners of the Bill Barras-Baldwin Piano Awards will play a few selections of music.

Crowd gets big kick out of footloose comic

By Tracy Sargeant Staff Writer

Quick one-liners, numerous sight gags and audience participation were just a part of Paul Vernier's Comedy Cellar performance Wednesday night.

mance Wednesday night.
Vernier's act was very energetic and thoroughly entertaining. Besides singing several songs while in costume, Vernier an around the audience with a kamikaze silly string gun. He relied heavily on props, masks and his musical talent to get his point across.

All through his act, Vernier depended on the audience to draw material into the show. He got some strange responses from the Comedy Cellar audi-

Members of the audience came up with unusual majors, useless vacations and first date experiences to help the act along. Vernier took this and incorporated the stories into a fabulous act.

Most of Vernier's comments were boarding on the obscene, which he seemed to find hysterical. He couldn't even finish his song pbout Popeye the Sailor without laughing in the middle. The song contained several crude lines about Olive Oil.

Vernier used the exact same material he used on his first visit to the Cellar in 1989. Even though all of his material was still very funny, it was no surprise for people who had seen him the first time around.

Overall, Vernier was an audience pleaser with his constant improvisational lines and his comic antics.

Censorship crusade slowing

WASHINGTON (SHNS) — Legislators in 13 states have backed off efforts to mandate warning labels on rock 'n' roll albums with dirty or violent lyrics, said the woman who began the fight for record labeling.

Tipper Gore, the president of Parents Music Resource Center and wife of Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., said Thursd-y that state censorship is counterproductive because the record industry has promised to set up a uniform labeling system to back up the voluntary agreement it made with the center in 1985.

Label legislation already had been withdrawn or defeated in Tennessee, Iowa, Arizona, Maryland, Oklahoma and West Virginia. Sponsors agreed not to reintroduce the bills. Legislators in Alaska, Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota and New Mexico agreed not to pursue bills.

Pamela Horovitz, executive vice president of the merchandisers' association, joined Mrs. Gore and Ann Lynch, president of the National Parent-Teachers Association, to call on other legislators to halt their efforts.

Illinois economy gets 'C' in criticized study state economist Thursday took issue with a national study giving Illinois only a C-average on a report card assessing its strategy of promoting businesses and improving workers' education, calling the method used for deter-mining the grades "arbitrary."

The Corporation for Enterprise Development in Washington issued its "1990 Development Report Card for the States," concluding the states that are most successful economically are those that abandoned a strategy of luring out-of-state companies with tax breaks and now foster the development of their own

The CfED report graded the economies of every state from A to F, using more than 150 economic and policy measures gathered into four graded indexes: economic performance, business vitality, development capacity, and state policy.

Illinois scored a "D" for economic performance, a "C" in business vitality, and "Bs" in development capacity and state policy.

"Illinois businesses are increasinflows businesses are increasingly competitive and diverse but serious income disparities between the state's very rich and very poor," CfED said.

Analyst: Rural areas must tap city resources

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) - Rural Illinois communities must take advantage of telecommunications opportunities to tap into opportunities in nearby larger cities, a federal Agriculture Department analyst said Thursday. Sara Mazie, assistant director of the USDA's rural economy divi-sion, said rural areas that are adjacent to urban areas will be suc-cessful in the 1990s but other more remote sections of the state will have to work harder for economic opportunities.

"The better jobs will be more likely in urban areas and those places close to urban areas and the poorer jobs will be in rural areas," Mazie told 300 attendees of a conference on "Rural Development in the 1990s."

A recent survey of rural Illinois residents found more than 60 percent are not satisfied with local economic and employment oppor-

Senator wants study on gambling

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois Senate should investigate whether bet loss limits should be imposed on all types of gambling in Illinois, a state senator said Thursday. Sen, Denny Jacobs, D-East Moline, introduce a resolu-tion asking that a bipartisan committee of 12 lawmakers be created to hold a series of hearings throughout the state on the issue. His action came in response to a Senate amend-ment Wednesday that would cap losses on riverboat gam-bling at $500 per cruise.

Jacobs said he is following the recommendation of William Kunkle, chairman of the new state Gaming Board, who favors studying the bet ceiling.
"The questions surrounding the advisability of limiting the amount of money any participant may lose in one day of betting are certainly legitimate," said Jacobs, the sponsor of the riverboat gambling bill approved in January,

"This is an issue larger than just riverboat gambling. It affects horse racing, offtrack betting facilities, the lottery and other types of gambling that are legal in Illinois," he said.

Thompson says Chanute fight 'dead'

SPRINGFIELD (UPI)— It is time to stop fighting the decision to close Chanute Air Force Base and start a state takeover of the site near Rantoul for conversion into aircraft maintenance center, Gov. James R. Thompson said Thursday.

"Efforts to keep Chanute open "Etforts to keep Chanute open by lawsuit or political pressure in Congress are dead — D-E-A-D — dead," the governor said. "At some point the people in that area have to accept it and I think most of them do."

Rantoul Village President Katy Podagrosi said she has been focused on conversion of the base and not its preservation.

"I have thought that way for quite some time," Podagrosi said. United Airlines officials said last week Chanute base is on a list of several semi-finalists for a major maintenance base

"As much as we regret the loss of the Air Force from Chanute, if of the Air Force from Chanute, if we do this right we have the opportunity to replace the Air Force at Chanute with something infinitely better and infinitely more durable to the people of the area," Thompson said. "We're talking about bringing, if we win the United project, 7,000 high-paying new jobs — permanent jobs — not transient military personnel."

Thompson said the state will take over the 2,460 acre Air Force base from the U.S. Defense Department to help the conver-

"Our commitment is to acquire Chanute from the DOD and put it into shape to house the project of United Airlines and hopefully similar projects of other airlines or other airline companies," the governor said.

Journalist, activist speaks on writing techniques in lecture

By Rob Coné

Journalist, human rights activist and critically acclaimed author, Barbara Kingsolver, treated a University audience Thursday to her insights of a writer's mind with short readings and quips from some of her books. Reading from "Homeland and Other Stories," Kingsolver explained to the audience that the story she was about to read spawned from her experience writing a non-fiction book about women and their involvement in the Arizona copper mine strike of Kingsolver said that while writ-ing "Holding the Line: Women in the Great Arizona Mine Strike of the Great Arizona Mine Strike of 1983" she realized "about halfway through, everything had to be true." The novelist said that realization was a "great burden when you lie all the time."

"Why I am a Danger to the Public," is a fictional account hazed on the conper strike and

Combining her love of writing with her skill in the sciences, Kingsolver worked for four years as a techni-cal writer where, she said, she learned to sit and write for eight

The Kentucky native said she doesn't really begin writing with intensity until "the characters begin to get a life of their own."
Sometimes, Kingsolver said her novels will be developed when "they (the characters) wake me up in the middle of the night and say, 'listen, you haven't neard my side of it vet

By "living" with her characters and debating their credibility and predictability, Kingsolver said her novels gradually take shape. She admitted that in the past, she shaped her characters by putting them in situations that would cause her plots to move in the Kingsolver said she never bases her characters on real people. Her reason, she quipped, is simple. "I want the people I know (family and friends) to remain my family and friends."

One audience member asked Kingsolver to address the critics who complain her works don't include many mer. She responded by wondering aloud, "Did people ever write Herman Melville and Kingsolver followed her reading with an evening lecture on "Holding the Line."

109-year-old man dies in Connecticut

ENFIELD, Conn. (UPI) Angelo Noto, 109, was a gentleman who always drank red wine at meals and took frequent naps but worked hard his entire life, said his 81-year-old Catherine Filossie. daughter, Noto, who died Wednesday in a convalescent home, was one of Connecticut's oldest residents. He outlived two wives, a son, a daughter and wives, a son, a daugner and seven siblings.

"He was a gentleman from the old school, the type that tipped their hat when they saw a lady," Filossie said.

Filossie, one of his four surviving children, said Noto lived a life of moderation, never eating after 4 p.m., tak-ing frequent naps and working irequent naps and work-ing hard.

He was still shoveling snow at 103, she said.

Noto drank only red vine at meals, "It was his own personal vitamin pill," Filossie said.

Oil wells granted exemption from clean air bill in House

WASHINGTON (UPI) House committee considering clean air legislation has given an exemption to so-called "stripper" oil wells, 30,000 of which can be seen pumping in fields across Illinois, U.S. Rep. Terry Bruce, D-Olney, said Thursday.

D-Olney, said Thursday.
The wells typically produce only about 30 barrels daily, Bruce said. Bruce, who sits on the House Energy and Commerce Comm*itee, said getting the exemption was a matter of "life and death" for the Illinois oil

Bruce said legislation as it had been written "called for regulat-ing a source of emissions that presents ne threat to human health, and the result would have been severe damage to Illinois' oil industry, Bruce said. "Getting this exemption...was literally a matter of life or death for the industry and thousands of jobs connected to it."

An accord in the legislation was also reached earlier this week that will help farmers, Bruce said. He said a fertilizer used commonly by farmers to provide nitrogen to their crops—anhydrous ammo-nia— was removed from the legislation's list of toxic materials that had to be controlled.

"It (anhydrous ammonia) poses no health threat to humans, and the regulations in the original bill would have required farmers to install equipment on farm vehi-cles to control ammonia emissions. This would have substan-tially raised the cost of farming in Illinois, which makes it difficult for our farm products to compete overseas," Bruce said.

Dole unveils plan to link school, work

CHICAGO (UPI) - U.S. Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole unveiled a new program Thursday that she said would restore a missing link between schools and the workplace workplace.

Dole, during an address before the 43rd Annual Education Writers Association Conference, said American students need to learn skills that will better prepare them for the work-place.

"It didn't take me long at the Department of Labor to realize that education had to be a part of my agenda, for it is the key to building a quality workforce," Dole raid.

"Many of our young pro-ple are discovering that the locks have changed; that the key they received in our schools doesn't fit."

Officials say air quality

Some 112 million Americans were exposed to excessive smog in the scorching summer of 1988, when record high temperatures drove up pollution levels by 8 percent from 1987, the government reported Thursday.

Environmental Protection Agency officials said, however, that preliminary monitoring information shows smog decreased in 1989, again because of weather factors, specifically cooler, damper conditions less conducive to the formation of oxone, the primary component of smog. mary component of smog.

Ozone is helpful in the upper atmosphere, where it screens out the sun's ultraviolet rays, but harmful in ground-level smog. While ozone levels were down in 1989, EPA officials said about in 1989, EPA officials said about 70 million Americans still were exposed to smog above federal health standards, showing that even in "good" years the nation suffers air pollution problems.

The officials said the same weather-related fluctuations in smort levels have been observed.

William Rosenberg, assistant EPA administrator for air and radiation, said the clean air bill now in Congress would substantially tighten emission controls, but he acknowledged it would still take decades for the smoggiest cities to come into compliance.

Currently, 101 cities violate federal health standards for smog. Officials said they did not yet know how many cities would be found in noncompliance when 1989 monitoring data is gathered.

That (censored) club doesn't know what they're doing. Everybody in the world knows I can help a (censored) club like that one. I was in the major leagues for 14 (censored) years. I was in the World Series twice. I was in the playoffs three times. I was throwing 90 miles an hour this spring. And they tell me I'm washed up. No (censored) way am I washed up. I'm a great (cen-sored) pitcher and everyone knows it."

"SO WHAT gives, Wallan'? Why do you think the Expos released you?" 'I know exactly why. There's big, high up - who doesn't want me playing any more. I'm being blackballed."

"Why?

"None of your business. All I know is that I could have won 20 (censored) games for Montreal and they let me go. They told me some bull about me being too

"But Walkin', you are 37, and some people think you're 40."

"There you go talking like a dumb American sportswriter

"BUT WALKIN', I'm not American. I'm Canadian."

Will the (Jack) Buck stop at CBS?

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Jack Buck seems to be the man in the middle. His name, along with that of Al Michaels, is being bandied about with regularity as a possible replacement for Brent Musburger on CBS television's coverage of major-league baseball this season.

The popular theory in broadcast circles is that either Buck or ABC's Michaels will replace Musburger as CBS' lead play-by-play man, the guy who will broadcast the games that are seen in the majority of the country as well as handle the All-Star Game and postseason contests.

Michaels has been in a spat with ABC, and reportedly is attempting to get out of his con-tract. Buck, the longtime Cardinals announcer, has been a solid CBS man for years. He's handled the World Series and pro football for the network's radio

And Buck bristles a bit at the suggestion that CBS-TV may be more interested in Michaels because he is a bigger "name"

"Hell, I'm as good as him," Buck said Wednesday night.

International teams battling for ISC soccer championship

By Dale Walker Staff Writer

The last of the International Student Council Cup qualifying rounds will decide which eight soccer teams will reach the quar-terfinals scheduled for the weekend of April 14.

The soccer matches are being held at Sam Rinella fields, which lie between Brush Towers and Grand Avenue

Thirteen teams made up of students from countries from around the world began competing in the qualifying rounds for the ISC cup the weekend of April 1.

"We get a good crowd," Ali Firouzi, ISC president and soccer committee member, said. "When a team from a certain country plays, a lot of fans from that country come out to cheer on that
