SIUC to honor top students

Schools, colleges to award scholarships, recognize academic accomplishments

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

SIUC's top academic undergraduate students will be recognized at Honors Day ceremonies Sunday.

About 1,300 students, averaging a 3.5 or higher GPA on a 4.0 scale for all college work, will be honored in ceremonies held by individual colleges and schools.

Students who received scholarships and other awards in the past year also will be recognized.

A combined reception, hosted by SIUC President John C. Guyon, will follow the ceremonies from 2 to 4:30 p.m. in the Student Center ballrooms.

"Honors Day plays a role in indicating we are an academic institution," Guyon said. "This gives attention to students who have achieved."

Donald Beggs, College of Education dean, said COE will give $50,000 in scholarships this year, with about $26,000 given at the Honors Day ceremony.

"We're really proud to be able to help hard working students," Beggs said. "Ten years ago the college only had $750 to give away for scholarships."

John Jackson, College of Liberal Arts dean, said COLA will give about $15,000 in scholarships.

"It's a very nice occasion to be able to honor our hard-working students," Jackson said.

Juh Wah Chen, College of Engineering and Technology dean, said Honors Day not only

Test tampering brings fine to mine owners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary Lynn Martin said Thursday that owners of about half the nation's underground coal mines have been fined $5 million for tampering with air-quality tests used to determine a miner's risk of getting black lung disease.

Kentucky led the list of fines with 301. Illinois appeared sixth with 20.

Martin said the fines culminated a 20-month investigation by the Labor Department that began after a worker in the agency's Mine Safety and Health Administration noticed during routine inspections what she thought might be tampering of air filters used in machines that test mines' air quality.

Those air quality tests determine if miners are exposed to coal dust levels above federal standards, which could cause black lung disease.

But National Coal Association President Richard Lawson later disputed the government's tampering charges.

Based on conversations he had Thursday with officials of several of the cited coal companies, Lawson said that most, if not all, will fight the fines.

"We frankly can't believe that this is tampering," Lawson said. "We just don't really know what we're dealing with."

He said the alleged tampering was "a phenomena that we don't understand" and called for an independent investigation to see exactly what happened and how. He said only 3 percent of the 92,000 air samples tested by the government in its probe proved to be suspicious.

Lawson also suggested that miners, who have to wear the seven-pound air monitoring machines, might have had more

Yeltsin granted more power

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Russian Federation's legislature tentatively approved legislation Thursday that would permit Boris Yeltsin to rule by decree in the Soviet Union's dominant republic, a boost for the populist leader in his challenge to the central government.

Yeltsin's request for more power and the preliminary approval of a measure authorizing him to issue "decrees that will have the power of law on the entire territory of the Russian republic" came as a surprise on the seventh day of a special session of the Russian Congress of People's Deputies.

Yeltsin was given the same broad powers granted Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, his arch-rival, last year by the USSR congress. Yeltsin has accused Gorbachev of regressing toward authoritarian rule.

CP department roofs damaged by rain

Leaking ceilings to cost $380,000 for replacement

By Amy Cooper
Staff Writer

Students taking cover in the Communications Building's Cinema and Photography Department will find little shelter in a storm.

Rain Wednesday night and Thursday caused more roof damage and leaking in the department, said Communications Building custodian James Ray.

Ray said the roof throughout the building always has leaked on and off, but the worst area was the CP department, which has about 10 rooms with damaged ceilings.

"There's hardly any ceiling tile left," he said. "The ceiling tile gets like oatmeal and it falls down."

A portion of the building, including the CP department, will receive a new roof this summer, said Physical Plant supervising architect Allen Haake.

Funds to replace the roof will come from $380,000 allocated through the state Capital Development Board, Haake said.

David Gilmore, chairman of the CP department, said the leaking Thursday was only in the hallway and had minimal effect.

But leaks are a continual problem and, in the past, the leaks

Los Angeles police chief forced to take leave

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The city's civilian Police Commission forced Chief Daryl Gates to take an involuntary leave of absence Thursday in a dramatic crescendo in the furor over the videotaped beating of Rodney King.

"I feel that I have been disgraced and offended. It is a tragic injustice that will not heal the wounds of this city," Gates declared on emerging from a special closed-door meeting by the commission to decide his fate.

Gates' attorney, Jay Grodin, said he and the chief would be in court Friday to seek a reversal of the decision, which was effective immediately.

The commission named Assistant Chief David Dotson acting police chief.

Reaction to the decision was mixed, with criticism leveled at the commission for stopping short of immediately removing the chief while others said the decision appeared politically motivated.

Mayor Tom Bradley, who called on Gates to resign earlier this week, was in Sacramento when the commission's decision was announced but was scheduled to issue a statement upon his return.

As news of the decision spread through police headquarters downtown, many officers openly expressed disgruntlement and anger. In protest, a number of officers placed black bands over their badges, similar to those used during times of mourning.

"We feel this is politics and the first step in the death of the department," said narcotics Detective Sam Nelson.

"The puppets strings have been pulled," another detective said.

Salukis face Bradley

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

The SIUC baseball team has been beaten, rained on and disappointed. But it is not ready to give up.

The team will break out of the bullpen with a renewed vengeance when it faces Bradley Saturday and Sunday in a four-game series starting at 12 p.m. in Peoria.

After the game Thursday against the St. Louis Billikenz was rained out because of wet field conditions, the Dawgs are ready and eager to engage in Missouri Valley Conference play.

The game was a true cancellation and will not be rescheduled this season.

With a 11-12 overall record and a 1-3 mark in the conference, the Dawgs are disappointed, but are not letting this get them down.

Bradley is SIUC's second team to play in the conference. The Salukis met with disaster in their first conference games of the season March 29 through 30 against Southwest Missouri State. The Bears defeated the Dawgs three out of four games.

So far this season the Braves are 9-15 overall with a 1-3 mark in the MVC. With these statistics, the Dawgs and Braves should prepare for quite a struggle.

The Braves are led in hitting by Bruce Smolen who has a batting average of .347 and who leads the team with three home runs.

Bradley's key pitcher is Tim Johnson who has posted a 2-0 record, one save and a 1.33 ERA.

Leading the Salukis is freshman Dan Epslin. Epslin has a .396 batting average and has slugged out six doubles, three triples and two home runs this season. He also leads the team with 14 RBI. Epslin is currently on a eight-game hitting streak.

"This is a very important weekend for us," Head Coach Sam Riggleman said. "I cannot stress enough how important it is to do the job well. We need these games to get back on top."

The Dawgs have won only one game out of the last six. Losing two games to the University of Evansville Tuesday and three to Southwest last weekend, the Salukis need these wins to re-establish themselves as contenders for the conference title.

Softball team begins battle for Gateway title

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

Even though the softball team's record so far this season is 19-3, its record in the Gateway Conference is still 0-0.

The Salukis will play their first conference game, a double header against Western Illinois University, at 3 p.m. today at the IAW Softball Complex on Grand Avenue.

Conference play will continue with a double header against Bradley University at noon Saturday.

"We are anxious to get started with conference play," Saluki Coach Kay Bretchelsbauer said. "We just need to continue to play good, strong softball. Offensively, we've done very well, but we've got to sharpen up our defense and pitching."

The Salukis' 19-3 record is a result of the cancelled games against Austin Peay on March 27. The two games were awarded to SIUC as a result of Austin Peay's forfeit.

"Austin Peay has been scheduled to play here the last two years, but hasn't come," Bretchelsbauer said. "We tried to reschedule after they didn't show last week, but it wasn't feasible. I don't like forfeits, but they didn't meet their contractual obligations."

Currently the Salukis lead the conference with a .325 batting average, but their opponents will offer quite a battle.

While the Salukis were the No. 1 pick in the Gateway Conference pre-season poll, the Westersterns were not far behind in the No. 3 spot.

Western Illinois has long been a Football opener to be played at Busch Stadium

The football Salukis will play the 1991 season opener August 31 in St. Louis at Busch Stadium. The team will face Southeast Missouri State University from Cape Girardeau. SEMO Sports Information Director Ron Hines said the game was Southeast's idea.

"We initiated it," Hines said. "We wanted to play in a metropolitan area. One of the biggest aspects of this is the media coverage. The last time we played at Busch Stadium, the crowd was small but the media coverage was very good."

Hines said the crowd has averaged about 5,000 in the past four games SEMO has played at Busch Stadium, but he hopes the crowd will be larger this year.

"We think 10,000 people is a reasonable number," Hines said. "It will be fun for the students to come to St. Louis and see the football game. St. Louis is a comfortable drive from both Cape Girardeau and Carbondale, so we hope a lot of fans will make the trip."

SIUC Sports Information Director Fred Huff said this is not the first trip to Busch Stadium for the Salukis.

The spring football practices at SIUC and at other major colleges have taken a small blow on the chin, leaving those in college football wondering if the NCAA will go for a knockout punch.

The NCAA has reduced the time college football players can spend practicing during the spring semester. Now, teams practice 15 days in a 21-consecutive day period and only 10 days in pads. Previously, SIUC had 20 practices during its spring season.

SIUC head football coach Bob Smith said the Saluki football team hasn't been affected too severely by the five-day practice reduction.

The NCAA convention, which took place in January, had its share of college presidents who opposed spring football practice, altogether. It's those voices that have athletes and coaches concerned.

Those against spring football argue that athletes would be better off with more free time in the off-season to spend on academics. Those in favor of spring football practice say this time can be used by players to work out problems from the past season, by injured players for rehabilitation and by coaches to evaluate the talent of players.

SIUC Athletics Director Jim Hart, a supporter of spring football practice, said eliminating spring football probably wouldn't work out that cleanly.

"They (those against spring football practice) are against it under the guise that they are giving the athlete more free time," Hart said. "I think that the athlete, with that free time, would spend it in other, social ways. If we could give student-athletes as much time as other students it would be ideal, but they are used to practicing."

Saluki sophomore guard Mike Strickland said "Spring practice doesn't take away from our time as far as academics."

"Without spring football, I think the quality of college football would be damaged. It's time for teams to work out problems from the past season," he said.

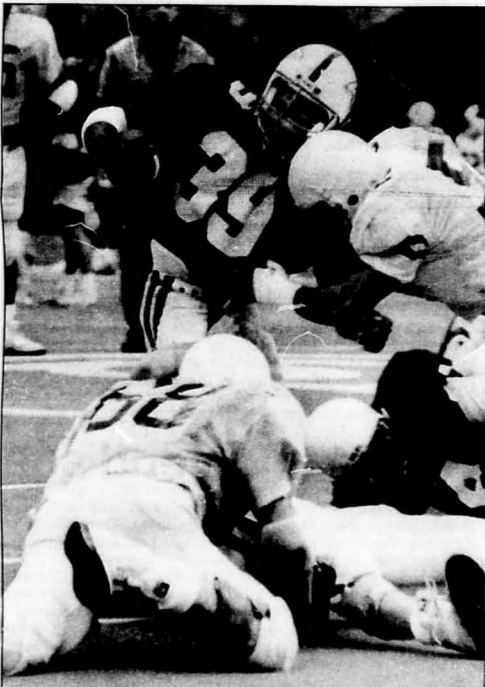

While the summer practices are spent mostly focusing towards the season-opener, the spring is devoted to letting the coaching staff evaluate its talent for the upcoming season.

"It's a time for the players to show what they can do," Hart said. "The coaches get to see everyone's skills. I believe in it (spring practice). I went through it and that's where I earned my position as a starter."

Hart added that he knows there are those adamantly against spring practice, but he feels it won't be abolished anytime soon.

An added benefit of spring practice is for the injured players. These players, who had to sit out all or part of the previous season with an injury, have a chance for on-field rehabilitation. Saluki junior offensive tackle Tom Roth, who had major reconstructive surgery on his knee after tearing

Mexican-Americans rally for Dodger boycott

LOS ANGELES (UPI) -- A coalition of Mexican-American groups, charging Fernando Valenzuela's role symbolizes years of discrimination by the Dodgers against Mexicans, called Thursday for a boycott of the team's games.

One of the most popular players in the team's history, Valenzuela helped pitch the Dodgers to four National League West titles and two World Series championships.

He was released last week after compiling a record of 23-26 and a 4.02 ERA over the last two seasons and an ERA of nearly 8.00 this spring.

At a news conference outside the Dodgers' main ticket office Thursday, members of such organizations as the Mexican American Political Association, League of United Latin American Citizens and Americans for Democratic Action charged Valenzuela's release was symptomatic of years of discrimination by the team against their community.

"Beginning with the destruction in the late '50s of an entire Mexican neighborhood in order to build Dodger Stadium to the present callous and ugly ouster of Fernando Valenzuela, the Dodgers' organization has demonstrated nothing but insensitivity and hostility against Mexicans and Chicanos," said Paul Ruiz, a MAPA vice president.

A Dodgers spokeswoman said the team did not have an immediate comment on the allegations.

Ruiz, a professor of education at Cal State Northridge, said the release of Valenzuela would have been more palatable to the Mexican-American community if the Dodgers had more Chicano players in the past.

The only other players of Mexican ancestry besides Valenzuela to play for the Dodgers in Los Angeles have been Alex Trevino, Jose Morales and Bobby Castillo.

"The Dodgers have gone many thousands of miles out of their way to recruit talented players from the Caribbean area, particularly from the Dominican Republic, Puerto Rico and Venezuela, yet cannot seem to find a single Chicano youngster that can play baseball just a few miles east of their stadium," Ruiz said.

The coalition, he said, is calling for a boycott of all Dodgers' games by the general public, but in particular, by the Mexican community and demanding a federal investigation of the team's alleged discriminatory employment practices.

Ruiz said more than 3 million people of Mexican ancestry live in Southern California, many of them loyal Dodger fans.

"The Dodgers do not like Mexicans but they do like their money," he charged. "For the Dodgers, Mexicans need not apply unless they hold ticket stubs."

Ruiz said the Dodgers do not have a visible Mexican-American in management and most of their employees are relegated to janitorial positions.

Bolivia approves U.S. help in drug war; supplies arrive

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Bolivia's congress approved Thursday a resolution that will allow nearly 600 U.S. military advisers to help fight the battle against narcotics trafficking. Within hours of the vote, a giant U.S. Galaxy transport plane arrived at El Alto airport outside La Paz with equipment for the program, U.S. diplomats said. The diplomats said an advance party of advisers will arrive "very soon," but they did not give a date for the arrival of the full contingent. Bolivia is, after Peru, the world's second largest producer of coca leaves, the raw material from which cocaine is made.

Soviet workers strike in protest of prices

MOSCOW (UPI) — Workers in Minsk gathered Thursday to protest recent price increases and demand pay raises, shutting down most factories in the Byelorussian capital, the independent Interfax news service said. Some of the workers were also demanding the resignation of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and his government, Interfax said. The walkouts began at an automobile plant and a tractor factory, then spread to other enterprises in the city of 1.5 million people, the news service said. "By 11 a.m. the majority of enterprises in Minsk stopped operating," it said.

Study: U.S. unemployment system failing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The unemployment insurance system is failing to protect jobless workers, with just 37 percent receiving benefits in an average month last year, and with the recession taking hold, the situation is likely to get worse, a new study said Thursday. According to the report, by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, 1990 marked the seventh straight year that unemployment insurance protection dropped below 40 percent nationally and more than 4.3 million jobless workers were without benefits. "This consistently low level of protection is unparalleled in the history of the...program," said Isaac Shapiro, co-author.

Advances may help put Kuwaiti fires out fast

United Press International
 New techniques being worked on could snuff out in less than a year Iraqi-set fires that have paralyzed production in Kuwait's oil fields, the head of the company coordinating the fire-fighting effort said Thursday. T.B. O'Brien, president of O'Brien, Goins, Simpson Inc. in Midland, Texas, said the new techniques may allow the fires to be put out "considerably faster" in the more difficult wells. "If that development comes into being, we'll be done in less than a year. I don't want to describe it because it might fall apart," the executive said in an interview.

Gay ROTC cadet fears expulsion from program

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A second cadet in the ROTC program at Washington University may be expelled from the service because he is homosexual. Robert Schwitz of Mount Vernon said Wednesday he was waiting to find out whether the Air Force ROTC will dismiss him from the service because he has admitted being homosexual. Schwitz, 20, said he also has been notified the Air Force may seek a refund of more than $45,000 in ROTC scholarship money he has received. The Army ROTC last year expelled another Washington University student.

Graduate Council approves doctoral program changes

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

A recommendation proposing a reduction in the higher education doctoral program and the eventual replacement of the molecular science doctoral program was approved by the Graduate Council Thursday.

The recommendation was part of an evaluation of the 32 SIUC doctoral programs by the Graduate Council Program Review Committee.

The committee was made up of one representative from each of the Graduate School programs who evaluated the other 31 programs for quality, cost-effectiveness, importance and contribution to the University.

Under the recommendation, higher education would be reduced, anthropology and physics would be enhanced, and the molecular science program would be eliminated once the physics doctoral program is established.

The recommendation will be presented to Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs.

Students encouraged to adopt a gulf soldier

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Students are encouraged to join in welcoming home and thanking SIUC students, faculty and staff members who served in the Persian Gulf.

The Adopt a Soldier Program begins today by providing correspondence between the University population and the soldiers, said Ron McGettrick, program director.

By sending letters to specific SIUC troops, the program directors hope to become liaisons between the troops and the University population.

The program was introduced by student affairs officials and delegated to McGettrick, who is doing an internship for special event planning.

Initially the program was designed to keep SIUC soldiers in touch with the University through letter writing campaigns and to distribute 3,000 yellow ribbons around campus, McGettrick said.

But current events caught up with the program. Before the program could be started, peace was declared. McGettrick said he was glad for the end of the fighting, but it sent him back to the drawing board.

Now the focus is on thanking the soldiers and recognizing them for their service, he said.

Although the Student Development Office cannot legally give out the names and addresses of the soldiers from SIUC, groups or individuals that want to get involved can be assured their letters will be sent to a specific individual, McGettrick said.

When signing up for the program, the person will be given a number that corresponds to a name of a soldier on the master list at the

Clocks to spring forward Sunday

If weekends normally go by fast, this coming weekend will go by even faster.

Daylight savings time goes into effect Sunday at 2 a.m., causing time to skip ahead one hour.

DST was established in 1967 by the Uniform Time Act to set a standard time measure and utilize hours of sunlight.

Chuck Williams, power plant mechanical engineer, said preparing for daylight savings is a routine procedure because the University's clocks are controlled by computers. The University has been on the computer system since 1984, he said.

The system receives signals from WWV, a national radio station in Fort Collins, Colo., which regulates time and frequency across the nation, Williams said.

Bankruptcy courts need another judge

WHEN JUDGE KENNETH J. MEYERS took the bankruptcy bench four years ago, he heard approximately 2,000 cases in his first year alone.

By 1990, that number had tripled. This dramatic rise in bankruptcy cases has left Meyers, the only bankruptcy judge for the 38 counties in the Southern District of Illinois, needing help in maintaining his level of excellence.

FORTUNATELY, SENS. PAUL SIMON and Alan Dixon have noticed this unjust situation in the judicial system and have submitted a bill to the Senate requesting assistance for Meyers. The House of Representatives also is expected to propose a counterpart action later this year.

He already logged 1,655 weighted hours in 1990, which exceeds the national average of 1,254 hours.

This also warrants the authorization of an additional position, which is recommended when 1,500 hours are logged in a district.

The bill came about, in part, because bankruptcy cases likely will continue increasing according to statewide and national trends.

AN INCREASED CASELOAD IN upcoming months or years would not be uncommon; therefore, this bill would attempt to lessen the strain on an overburdened court.

Also, personal attention cannot be afforded to these cases when only one judge hears them.

With increased help, then, cases can be decided more thoroughly.

This request by Simon and Dixon, however, must get through the economic barrier that may have affected a great deal of these bankruptcy cases.

BASED ON GOV. JIM EDGAR'S proposed budget, which attempts to reduce wasteful spending across the state, the funds needed for additional judicial help may be hard to find.

Therefore, other bankruptcy judges in the state may need to take on more cases temporarily to help balance the case load.

Meyers needs any kind of assistance possible. The faster other senators realize this need, the better off Southern Illinois will be.

U.S. victory in the gulf doesn't justify fighting

It is not good at all for a large, powerful country to forcefully invade a small, weaker country, violently kill thousands of civilians, and set up a new puppet government.

This is what Iraq did to Kuwait. This is also exactly what the United States did to Panama.

The United Nations and many countries condemned the "naked aggression" of Iraq on its invasion of Kuwait.

They got together and sent in troops to liberate Kuwait by attacking both Kuwait and Iraq.

The United Nations and many countries also condemned the United States on its invasion of Panama, yet no forces was taken against us.

What would we have done if the rest of the world got together and sent in troops to liberate Panama by attacking Panama and the United States?

Naked aggression is naked aggression, whether it's an Arab country doing the invading or American doing the invading.

To condemn one and not the other not only sends mixed messages to the world, but is complete hypocrisy.

Again, we see America teeming with contradictions in its policy and rhetoric dealing with naked aggression and foreign domestic affairs.

When will we stop our global hypocrisy and begin working on our own most pressing problems here at home?—Douglas R. Peters, senior, University studies.

Students not alone in poor voting turnout

I JUST WANT to alert you, Councilman Morris, that not only was there a poor student turnout, but a poor turnout from the city also.

Instead of patronizing the people, why don't you look at the quality of candidates and draw the obvious conclusion that people as a whole are so disinterested with the current candidates.

Maybe if there was some effort by the candidates to do something other than stay inside and let the papers cover their campaigns, people might react by voting.

REMEMBER some of these students are not voting residents for reasons of dependency.

Why don't you, Councilman Morris, come to campus, set up a table in the Student Center, and discuss the government with us.

I am positive you will have many people stop by and talk to you. I would encourage this for all the candidates.

You are out of touch with the students, the vote was evidence of that.

But on the whole, the city had just as "poor" a turnout as did the school.

I BELIEVE if you make a move to try and get in touch with the community here on campus people will want to get involved more.—Michael Hoffman, freshman, cinema and photography.

SIUC recycling programs enjoying great success

SIUC Recycling has been meeting with great success here on campus.

Currently 150 offices are taking part in the program and more offices are planning to come on line at the end of the semester.

Additional recycling bins have been ordered and should be delivered at this time.

The program is currently recycling newspaper, white ledger, greener computer paper, and drink cans. Colored paper was discontinued due to weak market conditions and difficulty in recycling colored stock.

Problems have recently been encountered with the recycling of white ledger because of large numbers of envelopes mixed in with it.

For this reason, SIUC Recycling is asking that envelopes no longer be saved or placed in with white ledger. Any office that is not currently involved in the recycling program, may become involved by calling Pollution Control at 536-7511.

Also, anyone who would like to help out with the recycling program may volunteer time each week to help with the collection of materials and running of the program.

With Earth Day 1991 approaching, SIUC Recycling would like to thank everyone who has helped the program grow.

This program diverted 61,000 lbs. of material from landfill disposal last semester or the equivalent of 100 dumpsters.

This success has been possible by the contributions of many individuals and this continued success will be made possible by others like them.—Patrick C. Glisson, recycling manager

Quotable Quotes

"I don't want to see us get sucked into the internal civil war inside of Iraq."—President Bush said in reference to keeping American forces out of Iraq's internal affairs.

"After June 1, anyone who sells a car, we're saying that you better treat everybody right because you might be selling a car to the attorney general."—said Illinois Attorney General Roland Burris about proposed guidelines preventing car dealers from advertising purchase prices that do not include all the charges in the total price of the car.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letter that the editors deem objectionable because of potentially libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

The sky's no limit to adventure

After one day of skydiving lessons beginners start jumping out of planes

Fear meets fun when a beginning skydiver flies free of a plane to float on 3,000 feet of air.

The beginner knows to arch the back, keep eyes fixed on the plane and follow other instructions learned during skydiving lessons. But as the plane seems to shrink and the ground moves closer, the first jump can become too much of a blur for procedure.

Dan Albert, the vice president of a machine shop from New Athens, said the most frightening part of his first skydive was forcing himself to let go of the plane.

"After you let go, you don't notice anything. Your mind shuts off for a moment, then when the (para)chute jerks you, you kind of wake up," Albert said.

Albert made his first static-line skydive at the Archway Skydiving Centre in Sparta. Albert took a day of lessons at Archway before making his first static-line jump the following afternoon.

Static-line jumps ensure that the parachute will open because a cord attaches the parachute to the airplane. The parachute opens automatically a few seconds after the jumper clears the airplane.

Albert continued jumping the rest of the afternoon with the intent of accumulating enough static-line jumps to take his first free-fall jump.

During a free-fall jump, the skydiver opens the parachute after a longer period of falling than with a static-line jump.

"Once I get to that point (free falling), and I decide I don't like it, then I'll quit. But by that point I think you're hooked," he said.

Albert said he decided to skydive because he likes sports that have a tinge of danger.

Media class helps students learn pressures of producing

By Jeff Pavlu
Staff Writer

For 12 radio-television students, grades are given point blank.

"Point Blank" is a five-minute interview show produced entirely by students in R-T 369. It airs every Monday at 10:45 p.m. and features a student host quizzing community and University experts on student-related topics.

The show has explored subjects such as weekend alcoholics, campus rape, academics and athletics and off-campus housing.

Class member Scott Miller, a junior in radio-television from La Grange, said this opportunity is important.

"It's great class experience because it's actually on the air," Miller said. "Because it's not just a simulated lab show, we have to deal with things like real deadlines."

Miller said students rotate the responsibility of producing and directing between one or two different people each week, but everyone works on every show in some way.

Topics for each show are chosen by the producers but must be approved by the rest of the class and eventually by instructor Konrad Pregowski.

Miller said Pregowski helps a lot but doesn't run the show.

"He gives us quite a bit of input in the production, but the class is basically a democracy, and he can be outvoted," Miller said.

Ron Palmer and Nicole Chapin, who alternate hosting the program, are radio-television students chosen by audition. Suggestions for topics are accepted at the R-T office.

Great White concert washes out

By Tracy Sargeant
Entertainment Editor

The sharks won't be going to the dawgs, but they will be joining up with the scorpions.

The April 21 Great White, Bullet Boys and Steelheart concert scheduled for the Arena was cancelled Thursday.

Great White cancelled all its concerts after April 15 because the band decided it would get better exposure for its new album, "Hooked," touring with the Scorpions, Michelle Suarez, publicity promotion specialist for the Arena, said.

Six hundred of 4,000 seats had been sold, and refunds will be given through May 7 on the following conditions:

- Refunds can be received through the Arena in person or by mail;
- Cash refunds for tickets presented in person will be given through April 26, after which the refunds will be in the form of a University check;

- If payment was made by a credit card, the account will be issued a credit and no cash will be given;

- Refunds will be given for a 30-day period only and will include the refund price of all service fees;
- No refunds for lost or stolen tickets will be given.

motive to sabotage the filters than the coal companies, although he did not accuse any miners of such activity.

At her first news conference since taking office in February, Martin said the Labor Department had issued 4,710 citations to the operators of 847 of the nation's 2,094 underground coal mines that had submitted mine dust samples that she said had shown "evidence of tampering."

Those 847 mines from which the allegedly tampered air filters came are controlled by 504 companies, she said.

In a statement, Pittsburgh-based Consolidation Coal Co., the nation's second-largest coal company and a subsidiary of Du Pont, said: "We reject the allegation by the government that Consol tampered with respirable dust samples and we intend to challenge the citations."

And the company said the suggestion by the government of an industry-wide conspiracy to tamper with air samples "lacks the credibility that common sense would demand."

Peabody Coal Co., the nation's largest coal producer, pleaded guilty in January to three criminal counts for tampering with mine air dust samples and paid a fine of $500,000.

After Peabody's guilty plea, the Labor Department found a steep drop in the number of suspicious dust samples it tested. And officials said the tampered filters it found in its investigation were exactly like the ones in the Peabody case.

Lawson suggested to reporters that equipment problems could be to blame but could not explain the sharp reduction of suspicious air samples the department received after the Peabody guilty plea or the fact that the 4,700 suspicious air samples unveiled by the government Thursday had the same type of tampering as those in the Peabody case.

Martin said the suspect dust samples were found at mines in 16 states.

Kentucky led the list with 301 violations. West Virginia was second with 243 and Virginia was third with 144. Other states where the department said tampering was found were: Pennsylvania, 53 violations; Tennessee, 28; Illinois, 20; Utah, 16; Colorado, 13; Alabama, 11; Ohio, five; Maryland, four; Indiana, three; Wyoming and Oklahoma, two each; and Montana and New Mexico, one each.

Martin said the department would seek civil penalties of about $1,000 for each of the more than 4,700 tampering violations found — nearly $5 million in all.

In addition, a Labor Department official said criminal investigations are underway in Charleston, W.Va., and in Pittsburgh.

Student Development office.

On Monday members of the program will be going to residence halls to make presentations on what students can do to get involved, McGettrick said.

Letters should be enclosed in a stamped envelope and brought to one of the drop-off points which include the Information Station in the Student Center and the Information Desk and Equipment Desk at the Recreation Center.

The other upcoming event is a banner contest.

Interested students should design a welcome home banner, and the winner will be awarded during Springfest activities on April 20.

McGettrick asked that political issues be left out of the banner and that students focus on thanking troops and welcoming them back to SIUC.

Banners will be displayed around the upper running track at the Recreation Center as they are submitted.

McGettrick said he plans to continue the program in the summer and fall semesters.

Possible future projects include declaration of an official "thank you day" for troops by University President John Guyon.

Athletic Director Jim Hart also has agreed to have a football game named in honor of all area veterans, both old and new.

McGettrick currently is soliciting local businesses to support a coupon book to be given to returning troops.

Any students wishing to become involved in the program may contact McGettrick or Kathy Rankin at the Recreation Center, 536-5531.

have shut down classrooms and darkrooms, Gilmore said.

"It's difficult to keep a darkroom dark if you don't have a ceiling," he said.

Ray said the ceiling has been patched several times in the past two years.

Many times the leaking occurs late at night, he said. When custodians show up for work in the morning, the ceiling has fallen through and photography equipment is damaged.

Haake said the Communications Building roof has not been replaced since 1977 when a "state-of-the-art" plastic membrane roof was installed. But since the '70s, plastic membrane roofs have proven to lose their plasticity and become brittle under the sun's ultraviolet rays, he said.

The roof will be replaced with a rubber membrane, the current "state-of-the-art," Haake said.

Haake said the rubber membrane roofs are used successfully on older buildings on campus, including Neckers Building, the Agriculture Building, Morris Library, Pulliam Hall and Life Science II.

The Capital Development Board fund also will go for a new roof on the B wing of Faner Hall, Haake said.

The A and C wings of Faner roofs were replaced three years ago, but the B wing still has the built-up style roof as when it was built in 1975, he said.

member, said the recommendation still needs fine tuning.

Kammler said the program ranking needs to be clearer. Programs were given an "enhance," "maintain," or "reduce" rating by the committee, but the ratings were not explained.

He compared the recommendation to an instructor who distinguishes between an "A" and a "B" student but not between two "B" students.

Kammler said the committee did an excellent job, but the evaluation is incomplete.

"The raw data going in was far better than the resulting evaluation process," he said.

Dennis Leitner, associate professor in educational psychology, said ranking the results is unnecessary to the evaluation process.

Until Thursday, Communist hard-liners had blocked most efforts to give Yeltsin more power, including discussion of an elected presidency for the republic that was overwhelmingly approved by voters in a March 17 referendum.

But by a 588-292 vote Thursday afternoon, deputies gave Yeltsin the right to issue decrees "to overcome the economic crisis in the country and solve social and economic problems and secure civilian order."

The resolution, which still must be given final approval, also recommends that legal procedures be drawn up so a Russian presidential election can be held in June this year and orders another session of the Congress for May

21. Yeltsin, already Russia's effective president as chairman of its Parliament, said he needed the right to rule by decree and other expanded powers "for the securing of conditions for fulfilling the decrees of the congress, the maintenance of civil peace, the establishment of public order and the preventing of social conflicts."

U.N. document sets terms for ending Iraq's internal war

United Press International

As world concern grows over the plight of refugees caught in Iraq's internal turmoil, the U.N. Security Council has approved a resolution aimed at officially ending the war that ignited the latest efforts to oust Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

Officials agree that Saddam has pretty well beaten back the opposition, but scattered guerrilla fighting still occurs throughout the country.

The Bush administration, which has met with representatives from rebel groups this week, promised Wednesday to turn its "urgent" attention to humanitarian issues, such as the plight of Kurds fleeing Saddam's forces.

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the administration instructed U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Thomas Pickering to pursue the situation of the Iraqi refugees and other issues.

At the United Nations Wednesday, the 15-member Security Council voted 12-1, with Yemen and Ecuador abstaining, for the cease-fire resolution ending the Persian Gulf War. It was one of the toughest such proposals ever before the United Nations. Cuba alone cast the "no" vote.

Iraq protested the demands in the resolution but did not reject it. Iraqi U.N. Ambassador Abdul Amir Al-Anbari, who addressed the council before the vote, called the resolution an "infringement" on Iraqi sovereignty and "economic aggression" against his country.

Pickering said the resolution "endeavors to get at the core of problems which led us into the gulf crisis. And it shows what must be done to lead us out."

"This resolution is tough, but it is fair," Pickering said. He said the resolution contains several "trade-offs" to ensure that Iraq will abide by it.

Except for food imports on humanitarian grounds, the council decided to keep the strict economic and arms sanctions against Iraq.

It will decide in 120 days whether to lift the sanctions provided Iraq has complied with the provisions.

The resolution also demands the destruction of Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, including all chemical and biological weapons and all ballistic missiles with a range greater than 90 miles; holds Iraq liable for damages suffered by Kuwait during its occupation, and calls for a U. N. guarantee of the borders between the two countries.

Allied forces occupying part of southern Iraq since the temporary cease fire declared Feb. 27 by Bush will be able to withdraw once a U.N. observer unit is in place.

With the pressure growing for some international response to Saddam's repression, the United States announced it will turn its attention on an "urgent basis" to humanitarian issues stemming from Saddam suppression of Iraqi rebels.

"Ambassador Pickering ... has been instructed — immediately following passage of the cease-fire resolution — to pursue on an urgent basis Security Council action to address these pressing concerns," Tutwiler said.

Tutwiler said the administration has been holding discussions with the French, the Turks and other countries on what action to take.

U.N. diplomats said the Security Council will hold intensive talks on requests by France and Turkey to deal with the repression of Kurdish rebels and the resulting refugee problem.

Shuttle ready to launch; engineers watch weather

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Engineers tracked threatening weather Thursday and readied the shuttle Atlantis for takeoff Friday to launch a giant space observatory that will peer into the fiery hearts of the most violent bodies in the universe.

Despite a marginal weather forecast, NASA managers elected to proceed toward a launch attempt at 8:18 a.m. Friday to kick off the mission, which also will feature the first U.S. spacewalk in more than five years.

"The shuttle system's been good to us this time," said NASA test director Michael Leimbach. "We've had a real clean countdown to date and we're not tracking any problems that would restrain ... launch (Friday) morning."

Engineers planned to begin pumping a half-million gallons of super cold liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen rocket fuel into Atlantis' external tank shortly before 12 a.m. Friday to set the stage for the first of six shuttle flights planned for 1991.

The only question mark was the weather, with Air Force meteorologists calling for a 40 percent chance of high winds, rain or low clouds that could violate NASA's tough post-Challenger safety guidelines. But conditions were expected to improve over the course of Atlantis' four-hour launch period.

"We feel fairly confident we'll have an opportunity to launch during the period," said Air Force Capt. Mike Adams, a shuttle forecaster. "It's a situation where we're going to have to wait for a break in the cloud patterns to be able to launch."

Atlantis skipper Steven Nagel, 44, co-pilot Kenneth Cameron, 41, Linda Godwin, 38, Jerry Ross, 43, and Jay Apt, 41, planned to strap in aboard the black-and-white spaceplane shortly after 5:30 a.m. Friday to await liftoff on the 39th shuttle mission.

The primary goal of the flight is the launch Sunday of the 17 1/2-ton Gamma Ray Observatory, the heaviest civilian payload ever carried aloft by a shuttle and the most advanced satellite ever built to study energetic gamma rays from black holes, exploding stars, quasars and other especially violent objects.

"The study of gamma rays opens a new window, not only to the universe but to a whole new realm of physical activities," said Charles Pellerin of NASA's astrophysics division.

"GRO can be seen ... as a vessel of human exploration, a probe into the secrets of our universe hitherto hidden from us," he said.

The secondary goal of the mission is for Ross and Apt to carry out a six-hour spacewalk Monday to test hardware.

Plane dives into school; seven dead

MERION, Pa. (UPI) — Sen. John Heinz and six other people were killed Thursday when his small plane collided with a helicopter over suburban Philadelphia and plummeted in flames into a crowded school yard during a recess period.

Heinz, a Pennsylvania Republican and multimillionaire heir to the H. J. Heinz Co. ketchup and pickle empire, was on his way to Philadelphia from Lycoming County when the crash occurred shortly after noon, Heinz spokeswoman Deborah Matthews said.

The dead included Heinz and two other people aboard the plane, two people aboard the helicopter and two children on the ground, Lower Merion Township Manager David Latschaw said.

The children were struck by flaming debris from the aircraft as they played outside the Merion Elementary School in Lower Merion Township. Latschaw said three children and two adults were also injured by the fiery debris.

Sailor killed 1 week after return home

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — A sailor who returned home from Desert Storm duty only a week ago aboard the carrier USS John F. Kennedy was fatally stabbed Thursday in his home in nearby Virginia Beach. Police charged his wife and another man with first-degree murder.

It was the second case of a serviceman returning home unscathed from the Persian Gulf war only to be slain in a case in which his wife was charged.

The victim, whom authorities identified as Richard Swanson, 32, returned to Norfolk Naval Station with thousands of other sailors March 29. Police said he was found in the bedroom of his home with multiple stab wounds.

His wife, 32-year-old Valerie Swanson, told police she had gone out to a store early Thursday. She said she found her husband around 12 a.m., and called authorities, Lou Thurston, a Virginia Beach police spokesman, said.

Authorities arrested her later during questioning at police headquarters, Thurston said.

The other suspect, Alan Marcotte, 24, was arrested shortly after 8 a.m. Virginia Beach police chased him down while he was riding a bicycle. Thurston said he could not comment on the motive or on how the two suspects knew each other. Both were being held in the Virginia Beach City Jail.

Teen convicted for violent spree in Central Park

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 17-year-old youth was sentenced Thursday to a year in prison for his part in the infamous Central Park "wilding" youth gang spree of 1989.

"I did the crime and I'll do the time," the neatly dressed Germaine Robinson said in a sorrowful voice in state Supreme Court.

Prosecutor Elizabeth Lederer said the teenager had cooperated in the case as promised with the district attorney's office, and a single arrest since the incident has been dropped as mistaken.

Justice Thomas Galligan sentenced the teenager to one year in prison as a youthful offender — meaning he will not have a record after his release — under a plea bargain agreement for pleading guilty to robbery.

He originally also was charged with assaulting a male jogger, John Loughlin, as well as taking a Walkman-type radio during his rampage with a gang of youths on April, 19, 1989, and could have faced up to 10 years in prison.

The tall, husky youth was never charged with the nearly fatal beating and rape of a woman who also was jogging in the Park that night.

Just before the rape of the woman jogger, Robertson and other youths beat up Loughlin.

Study: Oil fire damage not as severe as feared

LONDON (UPI) — British scientists said Thursday a comprehensive aerial study of smoke from hundreds of Kuwaiti oil wells set afire by retreating Iraqi troops last month indicated the environmental damage may be less than originally feared.

"It's a very serious event, but it's not the catastrophe that some painted it," Keith Browning, research director of the Meteorological Office told Independent Television News.

The scientists said the smoke had not entered the Earth's stratosphere, where it could do great damage.

A study released Wednesday in Washington by U.S. health and environmental specialists reached similar conclusions, but warned the situation could worsen with the onset of hot weather and diminishing winds.

The preliminary findings in the British study were based on information gathered by the office's C-130 Hercules research plane, which returned Thursday from the first scientific study of the smoke plume over the Persian Gulf area.

Samples of the smoke plumes taken during the project's flights was yet to be analyzed in British laboratories. After the information is evaluated, it will be made available to the gulf states, the office said.

Party patrol referendum loses placement on USG ballot

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The party patrol issue breathed its last breath Wednesday night, when it failed its bid to be placed before the students for their support.

Undergraduate Student Government decided against putting a referendum for the USG Party Patrol on the April 18 ballot.

The proposed party patrol would consist of students who would warn the hosts of student parties that the police have received complaints about it, instead of having Carbondale police deliver the warning.

Jack Sullivan, west side senator and Finance Committee chairman, said he is in favor of the referendum in general but that the party patrol is a complex issue that could not adequately be summed up in one paragraph on a ballot.

He said the senate, which has discussed the patrol since its Feb. 27 meeting, still does not understand the issue completely and he doubted whether voters would either.

"An uninformed electorate is more dangerous to itself than an apathetic one is," Sullivan said.

Michael Parker, west side senator, said the party patrol received a lot of press attention and most students know the issues involved.

He said even though only 10 percent of the student population votes in student elections, they are the voices of the constituents.

"Students should have the opportunity to say yes or no (to the party patrol)," Parker said.

The proposal would have placed a referendum on the ballot asking students if they favored having a party patrol at SIUC and if they favored supporting it with student fees.

Lisa Weimken, communications senator, said she supported placing the issue on the ballot because it was an effective way to sample support from the student population.

Tony Svach, Brush Towers senator, said the party patrol has been defeated in the senate before, and he wanted to see if there is any student support for the patrol

Priority One representatives appeal Finance Committee's funding process

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Representatives from the five largest student organizations appealed the Finance Committee's funding process to the Undergraduate Student Government Wednesday night.

Representatives asked the senate to guarantee Priority One organizations a set percentage of the student allocation fees instead of requesting funds each year.

SPC Chairman Marc Purchin said Priority One groups have the broadest focus of all student organizations, and have a campus-wide impact.

"If we don't receive what we need, others will be affected as well," Purchin said.

The Priority One funding counterproposal would increase the amount Priority One organizations would receive by $21,500, with $9,500 from funds reserved for smaller Priority Two organizations and $12,000 from General Funding, which is available to all RSOs.

The five Priority One organizations are Black Affairs Council, Inter-Greek Council, International Student Council, Student Programming Council and Undergraduate Student Government.

Priority status originally was used to show which organizations had first choice when reserving rooms in the Student Center, but has now come to mean constituency group for smaller organizations.

USG President Lissa Kueche said the senate must treat funding seriously and maturely.

Kueche said she wanted the senate to realize how serious an issue it is because the administration may take funding authority away from USG if funding is done immaturely.

Kueche said she agreed with the counterproposal because Priority One groups represent all students.

Maurice Bisailon, College of Communications and Fine Arts senator and a Finance Committee member, said funding is a difficult issue to debate because there is not enough money available to USG to satisfy everyone.

Bisailon said he feels the Priority One's proposal fails to take overall funding into account.

Amit Srivastava, College of Liberal Arts senator and Finance Committee member, said he commends SPC for all the work they have done, but has reservations about the counterproposal because it takes money away from Priority Two groups.

before he decides to pursue it any further.

Debate on the issue included the title of the resolution, which referred to the patrol as the Student Party Patrol.

Sullivan, who submitted the party patrol bill for funding on Feb. 27, wanted the referendum to reflect the original name, the USG Party Patrol.

Sullivan is running for USG president on the Student Party ticket.

Parker, United Party presidential candidate, said the name change was a writing error and that he was more than willing to put the issue directly before the students, even though he initially opposed the party patrol.

In other USG business, representatives from five Priority One student organizations supported their funding counterproposal for the USG Finance Committee.

Kesnar Hall was added as a confirmed polling place for the April 18 student government election.

New Illinois guidelines target advertised sale prices of cars

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Illinois Attorney General Roland Burris unveiled a new set of guidelines Thursday to prevent car dealers from advertising purchase prices that do not include all the charges in the total price of the vehicle.

"Besides a house, an automobile is the single largest investment that most people will make during their lifetime," Burris said. "These guidelines will make it clear to consumers exactly what they will be expected to pay when making that investment."

Burris said the new standards, which take effect June 1, will require all new and used car dealers in Illinois to include the credit terms, interest rate and the length of payment into the advertised sale price.

He said dealers, whose lobbying groups have approved the plan, will also be required to clarify whether that price is the purchase price or the lease price.

"I firmly believe that the unscrupulous dealers represent a mere fraction of car salespersons in Illinois, but their disregard for fair play gives all dealers a poor image," Burris said at a news conference staged in the parking lot of his office.

Burris also said he would like all media outlets — especially newspapers, television and radio stations — to scrutinize and inform authorities about questionable auto ads.

The attorney general will be sending undercover investigators to monitor car dealers around the state.

U.S. business expects job growth to pick up in second half of 1991

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 850,000 new jobs are expected by the end of the year in the United States, up from an actual increase of about 621,000 in 1990, according to a survey released Thursday by Dun & Bradstreet Corp.

"The forecast of 850,000 new jobs in 1991 suggests that the recent downturn in job creation is temporary and that new-job formation will pick up in the second half of 1991," Joseph W. Duncan, vice president and chief economist for D&B, wrote in the survey of 5,000 U.S. businesses.

The business information company's survey was designed to be statistically representative of the distribution of firms by size and industry in the U.S. economy.

While the forecast is a good sign, Duncan said the employment gains predicted for 1991 are significantly below the high levels of employment growth that occurred during the years following the 1982 recession.

"The driving force behind employment gains this year will be small businesses," said Duncan. "In contrast, the nation's largest firms expect a decline in 1991 employment."

The nation's smallest companies — businesses with less than 20 employees — plan to increase their 1991 employment by 1.7 percent, which will account for 51.5 percent of all new jobs.

Meanwhile, companies with 25,000 or more employees expect an overall reduction of 0.1 percent in employment.

Results were mixed on an industry basis.

The services sector and the wholesale and retail industries expect the largest gains in 1991 employment.

"Last year's Christmas present was scuba diving, this year is skydiving, next year will probably be hang gliding," he said.

Although danger and adventure are what attract many beginning skydivers to the sport, the first jump will be safe if all safety procedures are followed, said Dave Verner, who runs Archway Skydiving with his son Kirk.

"It's no different than table tennis and the lessons will get rid of some of the initial fears," Verner said.

The use of square parachutes at Archway has also helped make the jumps safer, Verner said. The square parachutes are more easily controlled and ensure a smoother landing than the cup-shaped parachutes used about six years ago at Archway.

The first-time jumper has a better chance of finding the airport, since Archway has started using radios to direct the beginner to the ground.

The beginner is given instructions about what toggle to pull to steer the parachute back to the airport and when to pull both toggles for a smooth landing.

While landing it is important to land into the wind for a slow landing and the beginner can listen to the radio for wind direction instead of looking for the wind arrow on the ground.

"Before we had good radios we had people land all over the place. Some people didn't see the arrow and some didn't understand it," he said.

About 1,000 people take lessons at Archway every year and take that big step out of the plane into the sky.

Residents walk across city to raise MS research funds

By Todd Eschman
Staff Writer

Leisure strollers, power walkers and exercise enthusiasts will gather Sunday to keep fit and raise money to research multiple sclerosis in the third annual Super Cities Walk.

The Gateway Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society scheduled the walk to begin at 1:30 p.m. at Turley Park in Carbondale. Walker registration will begin at 12 p.m.

This year's event is organized by Pyramid Public Relations, a student-run public relations firm at the University.

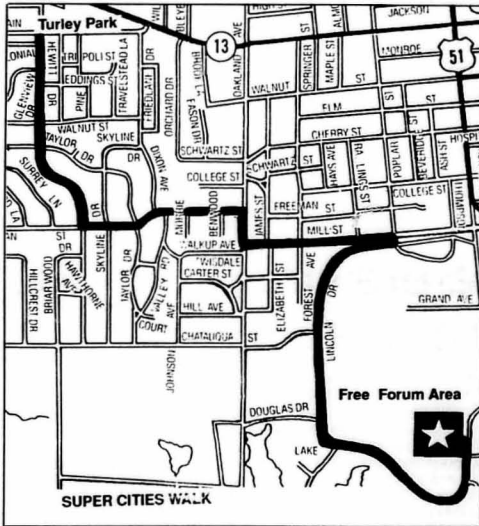

Co-organizer Andrea Simon, senior in public relations, said the nine-mile stroll will start at Turley Park and follow a route to the halfway point at the Free Forum Area north of the Student Center. Walkers then will turn around and follow the same route back to the park.

After trudging the nine-mile hike, walkers will be treated to a free lunch at the park provided by Burger King and Domino's Pizza, Simon said.

She said 130 people have registered to walk so far. Although that figure is more than double for 1990, it is far short of the year's 300 walker goal. Simon says she hopes the 90-minute registration before the walk will bring more participants from the University.

"We hope to get more participation from students," she said. "We contacted a lot of student organizations but only a few are participating. The majority of participants are from off campus."

Simon encourages participants to walk in teams. She added that prizes will be given out to the largest team, the team with the most creative costumes and the team with the highest pledge-per-walker average. Prizes also will be awarded to walkers based on the amount of pledge money that they raise.

There will be two rest areas along the route to supply refreshments to walkers.

"Volunteers are also needed to serve water to walkers and to direct tired walkers back to the park," Simon said.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society describes MS as a chronic, often disabling disease of the central nervous system. Striking people between the ages of 20 and 40, it often effects the victims' ability to walk normally, see clearly or speak properly. It can also paralyze.

The society estimates about 250,000 people in the United States have been diagnosed with MS.

The Super Cities Walk is held in many cities throughout the United States, including Carbondale and Marion. It has been the top fund raiser for MS for the last two years.

Simon says she sees the walk as a chance for people to get out and enjoy themselves.

"This is the perfect opportunity for people with nothing better to do to walk, have fun and get a free lunch," she said. "I encourage everybody with a heart to get out and participate."

Teacher workshop to focus on race

A workshop aimed at helping teachers include material on race, gender and class in their coursework will take place from 9 a.m. to noon on April 6 in the Mackinaw Room of the Student Center.

Registration costs $7 and includes the cost of a workbook. Registrants should send copies of the course syllabi or outlines which they plan to rework with the registration fee to Debbie Morrow at Women's Studies, Carbondale, IL 62901 by April 3.

High school music fest jazzed up

University News Service

After a three-year hiatus, SIUC's high school jazz festival is back on track.

The daylong event on April 6 will feature competitions, clinics and guest performances by jazz saxophonist Christopher Hollyday and the SIU jazz ensemble.

The festival begins at 9:30 a.m. in Shryock Auditorium with a performance by the Murphysboro High School jazz band.

Judges—music faculty from SIU and other universities—also will teach technique for individual instruments, and Hollyday will lead a master clinic.

Robert Allison, an SIU music professor and director of the festival said he hoped the festival would be inspirational for students.

"We hope it will be an inspirational thing that will make (the students) want to practice and learn how to play," said Allison.

Ozone depletion rate doubles—EPA

Skin cancers may increase by 200,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Earth's protective ozone layer has been disintegrating twice as fast as previously believed, meaning there could be an extra 200,000 cases of skin cancer nationwide over the next 50 years, the EPA said

Thursday. Administrator William Reilly of the Environmental Protection Agency said new scientific data shows the ozone layer over the United States has thinned by 4 percent to 5 percent since 1978 — roughly double the depletion previously estimated.

Scientists say erosion of the ozone layer by ozone-destroying pollutants such as chlorofluorocarbons will allow more ultraviolet radiation from the sun to reach Earth's surface.

Health experts believe increasing radiation levels will raise the incidence of skin cancer, cataracts and could impair disease-fighting immune systems in humans.

Environmentalists say studies show heightened ultraviolet radiation stunts plant growth and slows reproduction of plankton, the microscopic animals and plants that are the foundation of the ocean food web.

Ozone depletion was first discovered in 1985 in Antarctica where satellite monitoring detected a huge "hole" in the ozone layer each spring. The seasonal depletion in Antarctica is much larger than global depletion rates, but it is a temporary phenomenon associated with local weather conditions. Scientists have only begun monitoring worldwide ozone levels in recent years, with the first authoritative data provided in 1988 by the Ozone Trends Panel, an international panel of atmospheric experts.

That panel found worldwide ozone depletion at 1 percent to 3 percent, a finding that prompted government officials and chemical companies to call for an accelerated effort to phase out ozone-destroying chemicals.

U.S. officials warn travelers of cholera epidemic

ATLANTA (UPI) — A cholera epidemic in Peru that has moved into Colombia and Ecuador may spread to other South American countries and could affect Americans traveling or eating imported food, U.S. health officials warned Thursday.

But the federal Centers for Disease Control said that even if Americans do contract the sometimes fatal disease,

"sanitation in this country is adequate to make the risk of continued transmission extremely small."

None of the cholera cases imported into the United States since 1961 have spread to anyone, the CDC said.

In late January, cholera appeared in South America for the first time this century, first in Peru, then in Ecuador and Colombia.

Because all three countries export food, there has been concern that the food they ship to the United States might infect consumers, the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

While the health agency conceded that "a small number of U.S. residents may acquire the disease during travel or by eating imported food," it reprinted an article prepared by the World Health Organization that said the risk was small.

The WHO said it "has no documented evidence of a cholera outbreak occurring as a result of the importation of food across international borders." It then listed types of foods, with an assessment of whether they are likely to cause infection. Frozen foods, fresh sea food and fresh vegetables and fruit could pose a Health Organization that said the risk was small.

Cholera is a bacterial disease that results from eating food or drinking water contaminated with feces. It causes severe diarrhea, dehydration and possibly death unless body fluids are replaced. Some people, however, can be infected without showing any symptoms.

The CDC noted that treatment of cholera "is simple and highly effective."

New map helps chart enzymes in AIDS virus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new, three-dimensional map of a key piece of an enzyme the AIDS virus needs to reproduce may lead to more precisely targeted AIDS drugs that produce fewer side effects, researchers said Thursday.

Reporting in the journal Science, a team from Agouron Pharmaceuticals Inc., in La Jolla, Calif., said it has managed to chart the structure of a vital part of the enzyme, called reverse transcriptase, using complex X-ray imaging techniques.

Reverse transcriptase gives viruses like the AIDS-causing human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, permanent access to an infected cell's mechanisms by converting viral genetic instructions into cellular genetic information.

AZT, the only government-approved AIDS drug to directly fight HIV, and similar experimental drugs, DDC and DDI, block the early stage of HIV reproduction by interfering with reverse transcriptase activity.

However, those drugs damage healthy cells along with HIV-infected cells, and can produce side effects that include bone marrow suppression, severe anemia, potentially fatal inflammation of the pancreas and pain in the hands and feet.

No one has yet succeeded in plotting the structure of the entire reverse transcriptase, but the Agouron work is a major step in that direction and may provide researchers with a new mark for drugs against HIV.

The region of reverse transcriptase mapped by the California team is called ribonuclease H — a different component of the enzyme than that attacked by AZT and related drugs.

Final roundup

CBS to end long-running 'Dallas' series with farewell episode

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Dallas," the second-longest running prime time series on network television after "Gunsmoke," ends its 13-year run May 3 with show about what life would have been like at Southfork if J. R. Ewing had never been born.

CBS has called the two-hour show "the greatest finale in the history of 'Dallas,'" a considerable feat for a series known for its cliffhangers.

The most famous was the "Who Shot J.R.?" episode which ended the 1979-80 television season with the gunning down of J.R., played by Larry Hagman.

The answer to the question was aired on Nov. 11, 1980, and became the second-highest rated episode in recorded television history, garnering a 53.3 rating and a 77 share. It was watched by more than 300 million people worldwide. The highest-rated was the 1983 finale of "MASH."

Returning for the "what if J.R. had never been born" finale will be previous stars including Mary Crosby, Linda Gray, Steve Kanaly, Jack Scalia and Ted Shackelford and Joan Van Ark.

Kennedy relative listed as suspect for rape—paper

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — William Kennedy Smith, a nephew of Sen. Edward Kennedy, is listed in a police report as the suspect in an alleged rape at the family's compound, a newspaper reported Thursday.

Smith, 31, issued a statement in Washington Wednesday denying any involvement.

"The news reports circulating about events last weekend at the Kennedy family residence in Palm Beach, Fla., are inaccurate and have unfairly embarrassed my uncle, Senator Ted Kennedy, and my cousin, Patrick Kennedy," said Smith, a student scheduled to graduate from the Georgetown University School of Medicine in May.

"I make this statement in the hopes that it will help stem the tide of unwarranted speculation. Furthermore, any suggestion that I was involved in any offense is erroneous."

The rape investigation was made public Monday. No arrests have been made and police have released only scant details. They would not say who the woman identified as her attacker and would not confirm a report in The Palm Beach Post Thursday that it was Smith, who, the newspaper said, is listed as a suspect in a police report.

The newspaper said police plan to include a picture of Smith in a photo lineup they want to show the woman. Police also refused comment on that.

Smith is the son of Jean Kennedy Smith, Sen. Kennedy's older sister, and the late Stephen Smith, a business analyst who was the Kennedy family's financial adviser.

'Today' co-anchor Norville leaves show to raise child

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC News officials Thursday named Katie Couric co-anchor of the "Today" morning show, replacing Deborah Norville, who says she will concentrate on motherhood after a controversial year in the anchor's chair.

"I am thrilled that Katie Couric has agreed to take over the co-anchor position," NBC News President Michael Gartner said in a statement. "The morning news period is one of the most competitive and difficult in all of television."

The "Today" show's ratings had dropped after Norville became an anchor with Bryant Gumbel in January 1990. The popular Jane Pauley left the show at the same time, creating the impression for many that she had been pushed out in favor of Norville. The ratings have been rebounding recently with Couric filling in for Norville.

Norville, 33, who recently gave birth to her first child, Niki, told network officials that she wanted to spend at least the next year as a full-time mother, NBC said.

"During the past month away from my day-to-day responsibilities, I've had time to reflect on the tumultuous last year and a half," she said in the NBC statement.

"And perhaps my personal situation — being a new mother away from the spotlight — has allowed me to see clearly what I want to do: give my son the best possible start on life and practice good journalism. There is plenty of time for the latter but I'll get only one chance to do the former."

Couric, who is expecting her first child this summer, said she looked upon the new job as "both a great thrill and a tremendous responsibility."

Couric, 34, joined "Today" in June as a national correspondent based in Washington. She was a frequent substitute host on the show and had been in the co-anchor job since February when Norville went on maternity leave.

"Before it is over, we'll be in the thick of things and be as solid as any team in the MVC," Riggelman said. "A simple fact is we are not playing well right now and Southwest Missouri is playing great baseball. We will certainly look forward to playing them in the tournament."

With the Bears now in the MVC there will be 24 league games played this year instead of the previous 20 contests.

"Last season six losses still tied us for the league crown, so you might even grab the title with eight defeats this year," Riggelman said. Riggelman said his strategy for these games is different as he is using a different rotation of pitchers, hoping to grab that needed edge to win.

Opening the series against Braves will be senior Tom Strabavy. Strabavy has a 1-1 record so far this season with a 4.20 ERA. Senior Al Levine will start the second game of the doubleheader. Levine, last season's relief ace, has fanned 17, walked only one and allowed no earned runs in his last 12 innings on the mound. His record is 2-1 with a .92 ERA and three saves.

Junior Pre-Season 1st Team All-different pitching rotation his hitters must carry their weight and then some.

"I want our hitters to be more disciplined at the plate," Riggelman said. "That is what we really need. I also want to see our pitchers come into the game making good location pitches from the first inning on.

"Many times this season our hurlers have done a great job after the second or third inning, but by then we are already down a few runs." Riggelman has complete confidence in his ballclub and expects it to sweep the Braves in a fashion worthy of its talent.

"The main thing is there is no panic," Riggelman said. "We are going to turn things around and I know the players realize I have confidence in them."

American Sean Bergman will lead off the third game of the series. Bergman claims a 2-2 record with a 5.21 ERA.

Senior Bob Finder will pitch the final game of the series and will hopefully make for a strong closing of the contests. Finder's record is 1-3 while posting a 6.95 ERA.

Riggelman said along with the St. Louis," Huff said. "SEMO also has a lot of students from the St. Louis area. This is a chance for both teams to entertain alumni and it gives us exposure to potential new students."

Another added attraction is the Veiled Prophet Fair, which will be held during the Labor Day weekend on the grounds under the Arch. The fair draws in excess of a million people each year.

"Students can come to see the game and stay to go to the VP Fair," Hines said. "We hope to get our students more interested in the game this year."

There is already another game scheduled for 1992 at Busch, but it will be played at McAndrew Stadium if the turnout for the first game is poor, Huff said.

"The game this year is a home game for SEMO," Huff said. "If we want to play the SEMO game at Southern, we can. (Athletics Director) Jim Hart makes the decision for next year."

only cost nothing, but don't take up much of an athlete's time.

"These practices are three times as important for those coming back from an injury," Smith said. "It doesn't cost the program any more money to run them and the players are only here about an hour and a half to two hours a day."

While Smith made the comments, he was watching Saluki quarterbacks Brian Downey and Scott Gabbert in throwing drills. The pair are the top two candidates for the starting quarterback job.

Without spring practice neither would have had the chance to show their wares, nor would the coaches be able to see their improvements.

"We played there twice in the 1960's," Huff said. "They were benefit games for an organization in St. Louis. They paid all the expenses for the team."

Ironically, the tradition of SEMO football at Busch Stadium was started by Saluki head coach Bob Smith, Huff said. Smith used to be the head coach for Southeast Missouri.

Southern Illinois and Southeast Missouri both have strong alumni ties to St. Louis, Huff said.

"There are a lot of SIU alumni in

"I'm getting my confidence back during these practices," Roth said. "Without them I would have had to wait until summer to get a look at what I could do on the leg."

Smith echoed Roth's comments and added that spring practices not

The Westerwinds continue to pose a threat to the Salukis, having a 16-8 record this season with a .303 batting average and a 1.34 ERA.

The last four times SIUC has played Western, the Salukis have fallen to them. Western has never lost a doubleheader to SIUC.

"Western is a solid team," Bretchelsbauer said. "They have a proven pitching staff and good hitters. They are well coached and have given us a hard time in the past. We will find out today how ready we are for conference play."

Sophomore pitcher Angie Mick, who posts a 6-2 record and leads the pitching staff with a .69 ERA said the team has been gearing its practices toward these games all week.

"We have been playing more scrimmage games in order to prepare us," Mick said. "We have been getting very keyed up for these games. The game today against Western will be an especially tough game with stiff competition. Hopefully we will come out as the better team."

Women's tennis travels east

By Julie Autor
Sports Editor

The women's tennis team takes a break from Gateway Conference action this weekend as they travel to Morgantown, W.Va., to play against some stiff competition.

The Salukis begin their matches Saturday against West Virginia University and Rutgers and conclude Sunday against Penn State.

"We're looking forward to playing some different, quality competition," Coach Judy Auld said. "We've never faced any of these teams on a dual basis" Auld said when the Salukis play West Virginia, the match could go either way.

"I'm anticipating it will be one of the stronger matches," Auld said. "We've come up against them individually, so I know they will be strong."

Auld said she has heard little about Rutgers, but she hopes they will be strong competitors.

The (West Virginia) coach said they were down this year," Auld said. "But I think it still will be a good match"

Auld said the toughest match will come Sunday against Penn State.

"I know Penn State will be exceptionally strong," Auld said. "They beat the University of Illinois 8-1, and UI beat us 8-1. It will be a very strong match."

Auld said she is taking the weekend lightly and just hopes to have fun at the matches.

"I'm just viewing this as it will give us some good competition a week before we go into some critical conference matches. We'll use it as a building tool and just keep a positive attitude when we're out there."

Men netters battle Drake Bulldogs

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

The SIUC men's tennis team is travelling to Des Moines, Iowa, to face the Drake Bulldogs in a weekend match.

The Salukis are currently on a four-match winning streak. Last weekend they defeated Murray State and Austin Peay to bring their season record to 8-9.

The competition this week with Gateway Conference foe Drake will be much tougher, Coach Dick LeFevre said.

"Coming into the conference season, Drake has to be considered the favorite," LeFevre said. "Last year we beat them 6-3, but they are a very good team."

Drake has recently built a new indoor tennis facility. It has also added scholarships to help improve its tennis program. However, LeFevre is confident the Dawgs have a shot.

"They recently had an injury to their No. 4 player, so they have to move up their bottom players one step," LeFevre said. "That makes them weaker. We may beat their lower players."

LeFevre also has confidence in his No. 1 player, senior Joe Demeterco.

"Drake's No. 1 player is very tough," LeFevre said. "But Joe is capable of knocking off anybody."

Wednesday's match with the University of Evansville was postponed due to illness and injuries on the Purple Aces squad. It will be rescheduled if possible.

Cardinals option five to Class AAA

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals have optioned five players, including infielder Tim Jones, to the team's Class AAA affiliate in Louisville, Ky., in order to reduce the roster to 25 players for Opening Day.

The other players optioned Wednesday were infielder Luis Alicea, first baseman Rod Brewer, catcher Ray Stephens and left-handed relief pitcher Tim Sherill.

Jones had been a reserve with the Cardinals for the past three seasons. The 28-year-old left-handed hitter has a lifetime batting mark of .251 with one home run and 22 RBI in 140 games.

Alicea, a first-round choice of the Cardinals in the June 1986 free-agent draft out of Florida State University, has been plagued by injuries since he was given the second base job to start the 1988 season for St. Louis. He batted .212 with one home run and 24 RBI in 93 games, and has not returned to the majors since.

Brewer, Stephens and Sherill all made their major-league debuts in brief trials with the Cardinals last season.

The moves left the Cardinals with 11 pitchers on the roster, including left-hander Jamie Moyer, who previously has pitched for the Chicago Cubs and Texas Rangers.

Moyer has a lifetime record of 28-34 with an ERA of 4.51 in five seasons. Last season, he was 2-6 for Texas with an ERA of 4.66 in 33 games. The Rangers released him last November, and he was signed by the St. Louis organization in January.

The Cardinals technically have 23 players on the roster because neither Moyer nor non-roster catcher Rich Gedman officially has signed a major-league contract.

Gedman, who previously played for the Boston Red Sox and Houston Astros, apparently has made the Cardinals' squad as a backup catcher. The Cardinals last week released veteran Alex Trevino, who was competing with Gedman for the No. 2 backstop job.

In his 11 years in the majors, Gedman has compiled a .257 batting average with 83 home runs. The left-handed hitter's best seasons came with Boston in 1984 (.269 batting average, 24 homers and 72 RBI) and 1985 (.295, 18 home runs, 80 RBI).

Also on Wednesday, the Cardinals placed two relief pitchers—right-hander Todd Worrell and left-hander Frank DiPino—on the 15-day disabled list.

Norris to defend against Curry

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Terry Norris, who pounded Sugar Ray Leonard into retirement in February, will eye a similar fate for former two-time world champion Donald Curry when the two meet June 1 for Norris' World Boxing Council super welterweight title.

The bout, at an outdoor tennis stadium in Palm Springs, Calif., will be a co-feature of a card matching World Boxing Association welterweight titleholder Meldrick Taylor defending against unbeaten Luis Garcia of Venezuela.

Norris, 27-3 with 14 knockouts, fought in relative obscurity until he won an easy decision over Leonard. Curry, 33-4 with 24 KOs, has lost to Rene Jacquot and Michael Nunn since winning the undisputed welterweight crown and the title Norris now possesses.

"I wasn't looking for an easy opponent," Norris said at a news conference. "I'm looking to prove myself, not fight bums or guys you can blow down. Beating Donald Curry will make Terry Norris."

"The Leonard fight gave me quite a bit of recognition. People now know Tony and the meaning of Tony. Once he steps in the ring, he takes care of business and he's down to business. Outside, he's a real quiet person, real down to earth."

Norris, a 23-year-old from Campo, Calif., said he doesn't consider Curry a shot fighter.

"Being 29, he's a young guy still," Norris said. "I don't think he's lost that much. I expect a very tough fight. He'll come out with every intention of beating me."

Curry, Fort Worth, Texas, admitted that he hasn't been the same since he was knocked out by Mike McCallum nearly four years ago.

"Mentally, I've never really been there as I was before," he said. "Moving up to junior middleweight from welterweight, I didn't have to work as hard to make the weight division. As close as I've come is the Nunn fight."

The Nunn-Curry bout last October was competitive in the early rounds before the undefeated Nunn used his superior speed and strength to win by knockout in the 10th round. Curry doesn't concede those edges to Norris.

"Styles are what makes fights," Curry said. "I don't foresee anything difficult. He's technically pretty basic."

Kordic needs further treatment-Capitals GM

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Capital John Kordic, who one month ago entered a 30-day substance treatment program after being suspended twice by the team for alcohol abuse, still requires further help, said Capitals General Manager David Poile. "He's going to go somewhere else," Poile, who declined to reveal where Kordic's location, said Wednesday. "His treatment and rehabilitation program is going to take a lot longer than 30 days."

The Capitals suspended the NHL's most notorious brawler indefinitely and without pay when he failed to show for a home game March 2 against the New York Islanders.
