Promoters not singing the blues; Shryock sells out in record time
By Ronn Byrd
Entertainment Writer

The double-billed Shryock performance of Blues Traveler with legend Buddy Guy has become legendary in its own right.

The tickets at Shryock Auditorium, expected to sell out during a period of two weeks, sold out in a record two hours and 15 minutes. No Student Programming Council sponsored performance has ever sold out.

For Shryock ticket sales, Ray Charles and B.B. King held the previous record, nearly eight years ago. And that took two weeks.

Laura Moore, chairwoman of the SPC.consorts committee, said the sell out was a complete surprise.

"We didn't expect it to sell out on the first day," Moore said. "For an SPC event, it's a first."

Bob Higemox, business director of Shryock Auditorium, said he believes the rush for tickets was helped largely by a local radio station - "Tom Miller, the station manager at Rock 105 FM heard a rumor that the concert was coming," Higemox said. "And he started announcing it on the radio. He promoted it because his station plays the blues and he felt it represented his station's programming.

"The Buddy Guy and Blues Traveler concert is unique. "The combination of Buddy Guy and Blues Traveler is something special," Higemox said. "Blues Traveler being new and hot, and Buddy Guy is a legend, the combination is just great."

Gus Bode says the way my classes are going this semester, I'm already singing the blues.

Tape makers from Germany could build new plant in city
By Tari Lynn Carlock
City Writer

An international corporation is considering Carbondale as the site for a new manufacturing and warehouse/distribution facility - a decision that could boost the city's economy.

Tesa, a global company headquartered in Germany, is the largest private sector employer in Carbondale, providing about 400 jobs. For several months city officials and representatives from the Carbondale Business Development Corporation have been talking with representatives of tesa about the possibility of expanding operations in the United States.

"They seem very impressed with our stability of employment and because we are a very low turnover," the said. The Tesa tesa team would be.

Although the project would create jobs and bring economic development to the area, it would require the construction of a new plant in Carbondale.

NHL owners ready to continue strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — NHL owners dismissed a new offer by the players as insignificant Monday, leaving the six-day strike at a roadblock and the Stanley Cup playoffs in peril.

NHL President John Ziegler said the owners would meet through the night to rework the union proposal and submit the new offer to the NHL Players Association.

"In the judgment of the committee, none of the proposals really looked at the key issues," Ziegler said following a daylong meeting of the NHL Board of Governors. "They were helpful, but they were not something that was going to make a difference in the owners' position."

Late Sunday, the players submitted a new two-year contract proposal to the owners that would be retroactive to last September. The proposal includes a clause in which the agreement could be renegotiated after one year.

"I think the owners could have ended the strike too," said Bob Goodenow, executive director of the NHLPA.

The Stanley Cup playoffs were to begin Wednesday, but now almost assuredly will be pushed back to next week at the earliest. But if the two sides do not quickly settle the first strike in the league's 75-year history, the playoffs will be lost, largely because the arenas will not be available.

For instance, the New York Rangers — who had the league's best record at the time of the walkout — would face the possibility of not playing at Uniondale, N.Y., or the New Jersey Meadowlands because Madison Square Garden will be under renovation in preparation for the Democratic National Convention.

"We can't be reassuring," said Ziegler, when asked how hockey fans should respond to the dispute. "The owners are not on strike. Ask them (the players) why they are really striking.

"The plan of giving a contract that not free agency, continues to be the major stumbling block. Tradir cases, which have been suspended since $11 million annually, represent 8 percent of the NHLPA's license money.

SW Louisiana sweeps SIUC netters of courts

By Thomas Gibson

The SIUC men's tennis team played competitive but got blown away 6-0 by Southwestern Louisiana Monday.

The netters lost three straight matches. Some players expressed frustration.

\[Uwe Clasen, who lost to John Phillips was up one set and leading in the second but couldn't hold on. Clasen ended up losing the match 6-4, 6-4, 6-1.\]

Clasen said inconsistent play has been a problem with most of the team. They play good for 1 1/2 sets, then falter.

"The whole team is frustrated," he said.

Freshman Alfa Merchant was beaten by Greg Wood 6-4, 6-4, 6-4. Merchant said he was up 4-2 in the first set and ended up losing it 6-4.

"I played well in spurs, but that wasn't good enough," he said.

Coach Dick LeFevre said the inability to put away the opponents was mental. Often players get relaxed with a lead and the other players catch up and beat them.

"They'll get over that with experience," he said.

No. 1 man junior Jay Merchant lost to Hail Bohlinger 6-3, 6-0. Bohlinger is ranked 26th in the nation by UPI poll.

No. 2 junior Tim Derouin lost to Mike Abendorf 6-4, 7-6 in straight sets.

Sophomore No. 5 man Krai Kramer lost to Mike Richards.

6 6 man Andre Goransson, who played after an injury to his eye prevented him from playing against Southwest Missouri State, lost to Shawn Heinrichs 6-2, 6-3.

LeFevre said Goransson had to wear protective goggles the doctor prescribed.

"It's tough to play wearing goggles, but I was happy the way he played wearing them," LeFevre said.

With the loss to the Southwestern Louisiana the Salukis fall to 4-9 on the season. The netters' next match will be played at Illinois State University April 10.

Mets, Braves picked to win NL titles

The 116th edition of Major League Baseball got under way Monday, as the 26 franchises began 6 1/2 months of regular season games.

In the end, the 162-game season will narrow the field to four division winners. Some of the projections already have strong candidates for the two wild cards; others promise to remain tight all the way to Game No. 162.

After coach conjecture and argument, the Daily Egyptian sports staff is hereby making its choices for the best and worst of the 1982 season in the National League. Just a reminder: Any republication, broadcast or other use of this column without the express written consent of the DE is prohibited.

Three teams will go to the wire in the NL East, which may be the toughest division in baseball. The Pirates and Cardinals have a wealth of young pitching talent and sparkling defense, whereas the Mets loom large in position for consideration with a major off-season overhaul.

FIRST PLACE: NEW YORK. The Mets are the team to beat in the NL this season. Even if five-time Cy Young award winner Tom Seaver has been slowed by a shoulder problem, the rest of the staff has been outstanding. The Mets' offense can be just as dangerous, with Gary Carter and Dave Magadan in the experimental stages at third.

Golfers dip to 11th spot at Indiana

By Karyn Viverito

A day of stormy weather combined with 36 holes of golf in one day did not do much for the young women's golf team at the 16 team Indiana Invitational last weekend, coach Diane Daugherthy said.

After coming off two consecutive successful invites, the Salukis fell to an 11th place finish, as Indiana won its own invite and was followed by Minnesota and Northern Illinois.

Daugherthy said her team was up against some good competition, and even with a disappointing finish, they finished ahead of some very good teams that included Nebraska, Michigan, Purdue and Notre Dame.

Daugherthy also said she was not pleased about the ninth place finish by Gateway rival Illinois State, which topped SIUC by strokes.

"We do not like any time that we finish below your expectations," she said.

"We would like to finish as the top team from our conference." The Salukis finished ahead of the Redbirds two weeks earlier at the Lady Topper

Women netters win one, lose two

By Norma Wilke

The SIUC women's tennis team is struggling to get injured players back into its lineup and become solid throughout, coach Judy Auld said.

The Salukis, 3-9, started off the weekend with a 3-2 victory over Louisville, but then fell to Ball State 4-5 and Miami of Ohio 6-7. Miami is ranked seventh in the Midwest region.

Sophomore Lesaa Joseph, No. 3, did not make the trip because of a hand injury in the upper leg, and other players were down from previous injuries. Already, they have had to make a couple of lineup changes.

"Our main concern is to get everyone healthy again," Auld said.

"I'm glad we kept our record strong against Ball State. I hoped we could have won against Ball State. I knew it would be a close match against them. Miami is a really strong team."

SIUC won its first match in the singles matches.

The NHL owners are ready to continue their strike

The NHL Players Association has missed a new offer from the NHL owners. NHL President John Ziegler said the owners are ready to continue the strike before the Senior Shag.

Ziegler said following a daylong meeting of the NHL Board of Governors, they were helped but they were not something that was going to make a difference in the owners’ position.

Edgar to call for alteration of education boards

By Todd Welvaert
Politics Writer

The review, proposed by Gov. James Edgar, will decide if it is possible to abolish two of the state's higher education governing boards. The review will scrutinize the Board of Regents, which oversees Northern Illinois University in DeKalb, Illinois State University in Normal and Sangamon State University in Springfield and the Board of Governors, which encompasses Chicago State and northeastern Illinois universities in Chicago, Eastern Illinois University in Charleston, Western Illinois University in Macomb and Gov. State University in University Park. It will include the University of Illinois Board of Trustees and Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees. Although the two are not under the same scrutiny, SIU administrators fear this might be the first step in consolidating all Illinois boards.

Donald Wilson, SIU vice chancellor for finance, said he does not understand why a further review is needed. "Apparently they will be doing this annually," Wilson said. "We just went through two state-sponsored studies that confirmed the structure works well. My personal opinion is that if the boards are consolidated, SIU will lose a heck of a lot." SIU Board of Trustees is responsible for the Carbondale campus, Edwardsville campus, a dental school, the School of Medicine in Springfield and the School of Law.

Edgar is expected to reveal more information about the proposed review in a announcement today about the state budget.

"All of this should be placed in a new light tomorrow," said Ross.

Asimov dead at age 72

Science fiction author wrote more than 375 books

By Jackie Spinner
Special Assignment Writer

Isaac Asimov, the patriarch of science fiction who lured millions of readers into an unknown world and made them feel at home, has died.

Asimov, the author of more than 375 books, died of chronic heart trouble and kidney failure Monday at New York Medical Center. He was 72.

Bruce Appleby, SIU professor of English, said Asimov gave readers what writer Ray Bradbury calls "a logical projection of reality."

"He is not fantasy," Appleby said. "You read it and think it really happened." Asimov was a biochemist by profession and a longtime professor at the Boston University School of Medicine.

In his 1974 book, "Tales of the Black Widowers," Asimov observed his first and chief literary love was writing science fiction, but during his lifetime, his books spanned subjects diverse as science, religion, mathematics, the Bible and Shakespeare.

Jim Guenther, director of the Carbondale Public Library, said Asimov was unique as a science fiction writer because he drew newer interest in the area of general science as well.

"Most have an area they stick to," Guenther said. "He was probably within the top two or three. He made science fiction interesting." Asimov was born in Petrovichi, Russia, Jan. 2, 1920. He came to the United States in 1923 and was naturalized five years later. He graduated from Columbia University in New York in 1939 and in 1941 with a master's degree in biochemistry and in 1948 with a doctorate. He served as a chemist with the U.S. Navy during World War II.

Asimov began writing science fiction short stories for magazines in 1939. He published his first books, "Pebbles in the see ASIMOV, page 6

The Buddy Guy and Blues Traveler concert is unique.

"The combination of Buddy Guy and Blues Traveler is something special," Hageman said. "Blues Traveler being new and hot, and Shoes Traveler being something different, it's a good match."

The SIUC women's tennis team is struggling to get injured players back into its lineup and become successful, according to coach Judy Auld said.

The Salukis, 3-9, started off the weekend with a 6-3 victory over Louisville, but then fell to Ball State 4-5 and Miami of Ohio 0-7. Miami is ranked seventh in the Midwest region.

Sophomore Lesea Joseph. No. 3, did not make the trip because of a hand injury in the upper leg, and other players were down from previous injuries.

"Our main concern is to get everyone healthy again," Auld said. "I am glad we kept our record strong against Louisville. I hoped we could have won against Ball State. I knew it would be a close match against them. Miami is a really strong team."

Golfers dip to 11th spot at Indiana

By Karyn Viverito
Sports Writer

A day of stormy weather combined with 36 holes of golf in one day did nothing for the young women's golf team at the 16 team Indiana Invitational last weekend, coach Diane Daugherty said.

After coming off two consecutive successful meets, the Salukis fell to an 11th place finish, as Indiana won its own invite and was followed by Noblesville and Northern Illinois.

Daugherty said her team was up against some good competition, and even with a disappointing finish, they finished ahead of some very good teams that included Wisconsin, Michigan, Purdue, and Notre Dame.

Daugherty also said she was not pleased about the ninth place finish by Gateway rival Illinois State, who finished second SUIC by strokes.

"They do not do like any time that they beat us," she said. "We would like to finish as this team from our conference."

The 116th edition of Major League Baseball got under way Monday, as the 26 franchises began 6 1/2 months of regular season games.

In the end, the 162-game season will narrow the field to four division winners. Some of the almost assured winners already have strong assured for winners; others promise to remain tight all the way to Game No. 162.

After much contemplation and argument, the Daily Egyptian sports staff is hereby making its choices for the best and worst of the 1992 season in the National League. Just a reminder: Any republication, broadcast or other use of this column without the express written consent of the DE is prohibited.

National League East

Three teams will go to the wire in the NL East, which may be the toughest division in baseball. The Pirates and Cardinals have a wealth of young pitching talent and sparkling rosters, but the Metsloom large in possible consideration with a major off-season overhaul.

FIRST PLACE: NEW YORK. The Mets took off quickly in the third week of September. Bud Harrelson was the first casualty, ending his first season as a major league manager in the unemployment line.

New manager Jeff Torborg will enjoy the task of juggling the best and most intriguing group of starting pitchers in baseball: Dave Cone, Dwight Gooden and Sid Fernandez will be joined by former two-time Cy Young winner Bob Saberhagen. Unfortunately, the pitching staff won't have much help from the defense. Howard Johnson is a liability, to say the least, in center and Dave Magadan is in the experimental stages at third base.

EUROPEAN COMMUNITY RECOGNIZES BOSNIA — European Community foreign ministers Monday recognized the breakaway Yugoslav republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina and offered to lift trade sanctions against the Serb-led Yugoslav federation if certain conditions are met. Yugoslav Foreign Minister Josa de Sabotic, current chairman of the foreign ministers council, said recognition of Bosnia-Herzegovina will officially take effect Tuesday.

Peter Arbeni, a 38-year-old teacher of Albanian language and literature who spent 28 years in prison, was elected during the second sitting of the new parliament, where the anti-communist Democratic Party has 62 percent of the seats. Arbeni, 59, was arrested during the country's totalitarian rule.

ADMINISTRATION RULES OUT HEALTH REFORM — The administration has ruled out passage of a major comprehensive health care reform proposal this year. MANUFACTURERS' PROFITS DECLINE — Layoffs and downsizing cut manufacturers' profits 49 percent in the fourth quarter to 49.2 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, the Commerce Department said Monday. Declining sales in the third-quarter, manufacturers' sales fell only $2.2 billion from quarter to quarter. Most of the fallout in profitability resulted from extra compensation to employees laid off.

WORKERS BREAK PICKETS AT CATERPILLAR — Workers trickled past picket lines Monday as the deadline came and went for more than 12,000 striking United Auto Workers union members facing a back-to-work ultimatum from Caterpillar Inc., the nation's largest manufacturer of heavy equipment. Police had braced for trouble at the company's factories but there were no immediate reports of violence. "We're preparing," Peoria police Sgt. Henry Minnis said Sunday.

AUDIT MENTAL HEALTH SPENDING UNSUPERVISED — The state Mental Health Department cannot be sure if $500 million in funding for community mental health services is well-spent because it does not visit the centers often enough, a state audit found Monday. Auditor General Don Granatstein said Monday his office has not made recommendations to improve supervision of community mental health providers that receive state aid. The community centers are to be visited four times a year.

Improvements planned for dam to avoid floods

By Annette Holder
General Assignment Writer

A $5 million to $10 million improvement on the Little Grassy Dam southeast of Carbondale will prevent flooding and enable it to meet new federal regulations.

The federal regulations are necessary because of disasters involving dams in the past, said Alan Brandenburg, fish hatchery manager.

Little Grassy Lake Dam, built in 1943, will receive the improvements to prevent it from overflowing. The changes will create little change to the appearance of the dam.

The money is provided by the federal government to the Fish and Wildlife Service.

The changes include more rip rap, rocks that are placed on side of the dam so soil does not wash away; a new outlet valve, which releases water from the lake and reduces pressure on dam; and concrete parapet walls, an extension of dam walls that keep water from going over the top.

Clearing of some trees and brush is part of the improvements, said Tom Palmer, forester for the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge.

"Roots grow into the dam and this prohibits water from going through," Palmer said.

The odds of needing the dam improvements are slim, said Brandenburg, who still is glad the changes are being made.

The fish hatchery is north of the dam.

"We're below the lake, and we're happy they're doing the work," Brandenburg said.

"But it would take an improbable flood or a storm of intense duration for several days for it to make a difference," Brandenburg said.

The dam is southeast of Carbondale, off U.S. Highway 24. The lake is on the south side of the highway, and the dam is on the north.

U.S. Highway 24 goes over the dam and dips into a valley where a emergency spillway will be placed.

Greek's donate to Carbondale charity

SIU fraternities and sororities are trying to improve their image in the community by devoting a portion of their annual Greek Week activities to a fund-raising effort to benefit local women.

The organizations sponsored an All Greek Philanthropy at Old Main Monday.

Fraternities and sororities were asked to donate as much money as they could for the Carbondale Women’s Center. All 22 fraternities and sororities at SIUC participated in the event.

The event raised $505.85 for the center. The money raised was turned in to quarters for the center.

"This was a chance to help all the fraternities and sororities together for one cause," said Judy Hasenstab, a senior in psychology from Belleville and chairwoman of the philanthropy, said the service project improves the image of Geek events, which have in the past been viewed as just wild parties. Consolidate boards to aid state colleges

GOV. JIM EDGAR MAY ANNOUNCE a review of Illinois' complex system of governing higher education today—and not a moment too soon. To call the state's alphabet soup of governing boards a system is to credit it with some organization and cohesion that it possesses.

In part, Edgar's announcement is sparked by a bill in the General Assembly to abolish two state governing boards, the State Board of Regents and the Board of Governors Under the IBHE, to incorporate the eight schools they represent under the IBHE.

SUCH A REWORKING MAY NOT BE the best way to put Illinois universities on equal footing, but equal footing is what Illinois universities desperately need. The multiboard system now in place has little logic to it, and while some educational programs feast on state funds, others are neglected and atrophied.

Only the University of Illinois has a Board of Trustees that is elected statewide. Every other school falls under the jurisdiction of boards handpicked by the governor and appointed by their boards; but this system leaves students, faculty, staff and administrators saddled with boards that may not fully represent their interests and whose selections may be the results of partisan politics.

ILLINOIS EDUCATION DESERVES TO BE something more than a political bargaining chip. Perhaps a centralized system can help assure each school and program a fairer shake than it has gotten under the multiple boards. Consolidation would help save state funds.

Further, the entire question of the governance of state universities is one that needs closer examination.

Businessman finds satisfaction by shedding oppressive wealth

At first, I didn't recognize him with my stubbly beard, shaggy hair, clothes and almost all my teeth. Then he raised his glass in a weary greeting. Yes, it was George Edgar, our state's top legislative civic leader, political activist, family man and all-around swell guy.

"It's me," he said, seeing the look of disbelief on my face. "Come over and buy yourself a drink. I'd buy, but I can no longer afford such extravagant gestures."

I joined him, and, as diplomatically as I could, asked what had brought him to such a sorry state.

"What do you mean by that?" he asked.

"You know what I mean. I am looking at your seedy appearance. If you stopped me on the street, I would have given you a dollar.

"Good," he said, "because that means my efforts have not been in vain.

Your efforts? You look like a bum.

"I look exactly," he replied.

"Tell me, what has happened? It has been a while since I last saw you. Did your thriving business falter? Did your happy marriage collapse? Did you develop an incurable slice and sufficient the shame of a high handicap?"

"No, it was much deeper and more profound than that. I'm not sure you would understand.

"Try me."

"I took a good look at myself and began experiencing guilt, shame, remorse and self-hating."

"For what?"

"For being back a sob and said: "For being white, male and successful."

"Is that all?"

"Is that all, you ask? Isn't that enough—that I and those who are like me have brought almost all of our society's evils and injustices, greedy exploiters; defenders of the status quo, oppressors of everyone who isn't white, male and successful?"

I hadn't noticed. How did you manage to do all that?

I went next door and tried to dance with my neighbors' Dobromar but he hit me on the leg, which confirmed my sense of unworthiness. And I decided to renounce my evil ways and change myself into someone more worthy of respect.

"By not shaving?"

"No. I knew I could not stop being white, since I happened to be born that way. And while I could stop being a male, I've always had a terrible fear of surgery, so I ruled that out. But there was one thing I could change."

And that is?

"Being successful. When I thought about it, I realized that was my major flaw. You seldom hear anyone criticized for being a white male who is a failure in a mediocrity, even if he's a Cub. So I rejected my success."

"And do you do that?"

"I stopped going to my office. I'd sleep late, play Nintendo all afternoon, then go dance with women."

"How? Just by being what I was. Don't you follow current affairs? Look in today's papers. There, a story about the chairman of Chicago's City Colleges. See what the National Organization for Women said about him?"

"Yes, the executive director of NOW's Chicago office told the college board: "Do not allow yourself to be influenced by a chairman who is white, rich and male."

"See? She has him pegged, the swine. And it's happening everywhere. We are being exposed for what we are." When did you make this self-analysis?"

"It began when my kids came home from college on spring break and told me they had taken a course in political correctness and were subdued to have a father who was white, male and successful, and why didn't I go dance with wolves like a decent guy?"

"Kids, they break your heart."

"Then my wife told me she was sick and tired of lying home and making cookies and having tea."

"I always thought she made swell cookies."

"Then I went to a board meeting of that charity, Businessmen for Hope and Joy, and I was pelted by six different groups for flaunting my white, male, successful connotations. And that is when I looked in a mirror and realized that I was an ass."

"What did you do?"

"Well, I couldn't find a wolf, so I went to the hospital, took an aspirin and prayed."

Abortion gag constrains clinics

The Daily Illini

Champaign-Urbana

New stipulations of Title X—commonly referred to as the abortion "gag rule"—have fuelled debate over the controversial law.

While the Bush administration might be praised for the back for these new, more "lenient" regulations, the "new" gag rule will do extremely little to help low-income women learn about their legal options for dealing with an unintended pregnancy.

Under the new law, four conditions must be met to warrant the discussion of an abortion with a client: The patient must initiate the topic of abortion; only a doctor may discuss abortion with a patient; abortion can only be discussed if the doctor believes it is a medical necessity; and doctors may refer clients only to clinics that do not provide abortions as their primary service.

On the surface these regulations may seem more lenient. But upon examination, it becomes clear that the rule is just as strict. Even a woman who was a victim of rape or incest would not be allowed to receive information.

Only those who meet all four stipulations would be eligible to receive any information at all. Clearly, this rule has unfairly made it illegal in almost all circumstances to talk about a legal activity.

Every woman has the right to be informed of all her legal options. But under the gag rule, women who cannot afford a private physician are unfairly subject to different rules than those who can.

Propositions of Title X argue that taxpayers who are morally opposed to abortion should not have to give their money to support abortion. But this regulation is far more complex. It means the type of stipulations that forces a state to raise its drinking age before it can be eligible to receive federal highway funding. The difference lies in the fact that this rule involves the suppression of information—legal information that should be available to all women, regardless of their income.

"Hodel, deputy director of the Illinois Board of Higher Education, "If the two boards are abolished it will change the structure at the department of higher education unlike any other in the nation, but that’s the direction the legislation passes and that’s a big if."

"I think the system is very efficient," said SIU interim chancellor James Brown. "It’s complicated because it evolved through solving problems. It seems to line up with what has been done if it’s changed. It would not be wise to second guess such a complex matter."

If the review suggests dismantling the boards, the IBHE may represent the universities and serve in the position of the board, placing the department in what some say will be an ethical dilemma.

"It is a conflicting responsibility to advocate and participate," said SIU student trustee William Hall said. "How could the department of higher education advocate and participate?"

Faculty brass trio to perform transcribed, orthodox music

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

Haunted by a lack of literature for brass combos, the SIUC Faculty Brass Trio associated three Transcribed pieces written for other groups of instruments.

The trio, which includes trumpeter Robert Allison and horn player Dan Phillips, will perform several pieces transcribed by members of the group, along with traditional brass music, at a recital at 8 tonight at the First United Methodist Church.

Tom McMillin, Robert Weiss said the distinct lack of material from brass trios forced the group to work around the problem.

"Half of the program are transcriptions originally written for other instruments," said Weiss, assistant director of the School of Music. "Sometimes things aren't meant to be played on these instruments."

Weiss said the trio ran into technical problems when performing some of the pieces. For example, Beethoven's "Trio, Opus 87" was written for two horns and an English horn. Weiss emulates the cold precision of the horn with a slide "mumble," which is not a precise instrument.

Dan Phillips arranged two choral works for the trio: "Confessum Dominio" by Alejandro Costantini and "Canante Dominio" by Caimasco Asolo.

The program also feature Arcangelo Corelli's "Sonata da Chiesa, Opus 1, No. 3," a piece written for a string quartet.

The trio's years of playing experience should smooth out the rough waters of the technically difficult music in the program, Weiss said.

"I enjoy the fact that both of them are fine musicians," he said.

"It really challenges me to practice and play my best," said Organist Mary Matthews will join the trio on two pieces: Beethoven's "Trio" and Robert King's "Preludes and Fugue."

Weiss said the organ was one of the reasons the trio opted to perform at the Methodist church, rather than at Shryock Auditorium.

"We wanted to play in a nice hall with a good organ, but not as huge as Shryock, which is a big place for three players," he said. "The church is a very alive sounding room."

The Faculty Brass Trio travels throughout Southern Illinois, performing for school children, Weiss said.

"It's a valuable service for area schools, and it gives us a gratifying professional performance outlet," he said.

The trio will embark on a three-week long voyage trip to Latvia May 1 to perform.

Celebration sends message of African common heritage

By Fatima Janvekar
General Assignment Writer

History traces humankind to the continent of Africa and nations of people who have been uprooted from their homeland and transported to other lands. But African students are connected by heritage; Africans and African Americans share part of Africa Awareness Week, sponsored by the SIUC Student Association.

"Africans and African share the same heritage, the same ancestry," said D. Agbogbogba, president of the ASA.

“Our association welcomes home brothers and sisters, and we want to send the message that we want to share in their lives and ask them to share in ours," he said.

That message was sent last week during Africa Awareness Week to promote harmony and understanding among Africans and people from other countries including the United States. Yvonne Atiba-Davies, doctoral student in vocational education, is from Sierra Leone in West Africa. She is one of a nation of people who have vowed never to forget the "holocaust of slavery" that the colonists subjugated generations of native Africans to in the 19th century.

Africa, the second largest continent in the world, has a unique location in the world paleoanthropologically, geographically, and historically. The oldest known examples of primates were the order containing men, apes, monkeys and lemurs dating back 40 million years. Archeologist and anthropologist L.S.B. Leakey discover c several ancient sites, characteristics of facial bone and dental structure similar to homin sapiens structure in the early human lineage. "Koobi Fora," prompting him to suggest a common ancestor for modern humans and much of Africa are more than five million years old.

This discovery led to the theory that Africa could be the land of human origin. Whatever it was in the remote past, its place in history as a home of early humans and sisters is undisputed.

The Egyptians were a civilized people as far back as 6,000 years ago, and for centuries their influence was felt throughout the ancient world.

The Pyramids of Giza, the Sphinx, and the Nubian and Kushite kingdoms and Tutankhamun’s remain evidence of Egypt's glorious past to this day. Much of Africa is bordered by the Mediterranean Sea became known as the ancient Near East and was because of easy access over land and sea to neighboring European countries.

Much of the tropical lands were cut off by the Sahara and remained unknown until the Arab and Moor conquests of the 1000s.

Early in the 18th century, the outside world had little knowledge of Africa except for the mapped parts of its coastal regions. By the close of the century, vast parts of its interior had been mapped and the magnificent waterfalls, lakes and other bounties of the land were seen by European lands for the first time. Britain, France, Germany, Belgium and Portugal scrambled to claim the newly-discovered territories. Africa's bond slaving had started. Portugal was the first European power to explore Africa's coastline south of the Equator. The Portuguese established settlements closely linked to the slave trade. By the 1870s, it had extensive possessions in Angola in the East and Mozambique in the North.

Britain too had gained links to the slave trade and to the pala oil and cocoa riches African lands offered. France, weakened by the Napoleonic Wars, turned to Africa to recapture its lost territories and prestige. Germany made sure it had enough colonies in Africa to further its hold on the world as a major power. By 1895, the scramble was at an end. Only a few areas needed to be claimed to complete the partition of Africa by Europe.

Soon, a joint British-Egyptian government was established over Sudan. Morocco was divided between France and Spain, and Italy gained control of Libya. By 1912, only Ethiopia and Liberia remained independent of European rule.

The two World Wars brought changes to the African map. Germany lost all her colonies. South West Africa was given to the Union of South Africa. Tanganikaya, the German East Africa was passed to British rule, as were a number of other regions.

Each former colony came to be known as a mandated territory because it was held mandate by the League of nations, and was later taken over by the United Nations.

They were renamed trust territories and continued to be administered as such until they were able to determine their own future status. For the slave trade, it dwindled considerably, both because of humanitarian and economic reasons, but not before British colonists came to America, bringing slaves with them. The colonists claimed independence as Americans and settled in their new pastures, forcing their African slaves to work in the fields, mills and mines.

Most African Americans today can trace their ancestors to those fields. "That Africa is a dark continent is nonsense," said Lionel Bender, professor of anthropology, who also was one of the panelists for a lecture tour on the way to bridge the gap between Africans and African Americans.

"African Americans share a common history of slavery and colonialism with Africans, Indians, Australians and Indonesians; yet Africans' genetics are closer to that of European genes than Asian's," he said.

"There needs to be a collective effort to bring all Africans and the rest of the world together and in touch with each other. Africa is a very exciting place, with exciting people and colors," he said.

Victor Njiti, doctoral student from Cameroon, in West Africa, said when people visit Africa they say they had a wonderful time and they loved the culture. "Africa is not just wildlife. It is our way of life, our existence," he said.
SPC presents Japanese animated movie again

Realistic, action-packed "Akira" back by demand after first successful run

By William Ragan

Entertainment Writer

The Student Programming Council will present the first English-language showing of the Japanese animated film "Akira" in the United States this week, a film brought back by popular demand. "Akira" will be shown at 7 and 9:30 every night this week until Friday in the Video Lounge on the fourth floor of the Student Center.

"Akira" is one of the highest-grossing and most expensive animated films to date.

The film, produced by Ryoho Suzuki, features some of the best and most realistic animation ever seen, said Al Reitz, chairman of SPC Video.

The feature-length film required eight production companies to fund the enormous budget, more than 30 companies to create the animation and contains 150,000 drawings, enough for three standard animated films.

"Akira" contains more than 2,000 scene cuts, each requiring a different hand-painted background, and 50 of the 327 colors used were custom-blended for the film.

The film features a musical soundtrack recorded by more than 200 musicians and appeals to an adult audience.

The comic book the film is based on continues to run in Weekly Young Magazine, a Japanese comic periodical.

Katsuhiro Otomo, creator of "Akira," adapted the storyline from the original comic book and changed the ending so it would remain a surprise to those familiar with the comic series.

"Akira" was the most heavily attended video last Spring with 325 people viewing the film in four days, Reitz said.

Last year, SPC Video was able only to secure the rights to the Japanese version of the film. Thus while audiences feasted their eyes on the mind-blowing animation, the fast-moving plot evaded most audience members.

This year, however, Streamline, an American company that distributes Japanese animated films, has agreed to grant the English version rights to SPC Video, and audiences can at last totally experience the film.

"(Streamline) wasn't planning on having public performances on video. This is a new thing for them," Reitz said. "We proposed the idea of showing it on video."

Reitz is negotiating with Streamline to bring more animated Japanese films to SIUC, but "Akira" still is the jewel in Streamline's crown, he said.

""Akira" blows everything else away. I was really impressed by the animation," he said. "There seems to be a big audience for it."

Released in 1988, "Akira" is set 31 years after World War III in Neo-Tokyo, which contains a frenetic pace for the rest of the film.

"Akira" is the name of a child who was part of a government experiment that genetically altered his brain to give him extraordinary powers of Extra-Sensory Perception and telepathy.

The child caused the destruction of Neo-Tokyo and is kept cryogenically frozen in a vault underneath the city.

Another child under control of the government, Tetuo, has inherited Akira's powers and is both worshiped and feared as the second coming of "Akira."

The movie focuses on the government's attempts to control the god-like force of Akira, and the resistance to their experiments by the gangs of Neo-Tokyo.

"Akira" is sponsored by SPC Video.

‘Body Walk’ gives students chance to learn about health

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

Local elementary students will take a walk today in the International Lounge in the Student Center, a walk that will take them through the human body.

Students from Jackson, Williamson and Franklin counties will take part in Body Walk, an educational project where students will walk through a simulated paper human body.

Kyaw Naing, director of health education at the Jackson County Health Department, said the event is an appreciation of 1992 World Health Day, which is celebrated today.

“Students will go through and view body parts such as the brain, heart, liver and muscles,” Naing said. “At each station there will be a presentation for at least six or seven minutes where information about the organ and how to keep it happy will be explained.”

“The entire Body Walk takes about 50 minutes to complete,” he said.

The Body Walk idea came from a similar event designed by the Idaho Dairy Council, Naing said.

“We did not like the original because it only focused on nutrition, so we enhanced it to include the effects of drugs and other things,” he said.

The Body Walk is only part of the events at SIUC, where 820 students are expected to attend. SIUC President John C. Gasson will open the World Health Day at 9 a.m.

Other events scheduled are: the Long Fellow Whale Tale, a video and puppet show about water safety, Vince and Larry crash test dummies from Eastern Illinois University and O’Malley the Safety Monkey, who will speak of emergency situations for children.

Outdoor activities in the Free Forum area include Smoke House, a wood house where firefighters from Herrin Fire Department will use artificial smoke, teach kids how to deal with a fire.

The event is sponsored by the SIUC Registered Student Organizations Student’s for Health,Eta Sigma Gamma and the President’s Council, SIUC’s Wellness Center. Jackson County Health Department, Illinois Department of Public Health Region 5 Office and Franklin-Williamson Bi-County Health Department.

Naing said the event is one of the largest events in Illinois concerning World Health Day.

Joe Baker, environmental health and safety coordinator for the Wellness Center, said the official date of April 7 was changed in 1954 from July 2 because April 7 was the official day of the World Health Organization.

Morrison, Jays stop Detroit in baseball's opener

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit manager Sparky Anderson won't have to worry about Toronto pitcher Jack Morris having a Cy Young-type season this year.

"This might be his biggest year ever the way that clubs catch the balls," Anderson said after Morris stopped the Tigers on five hits to lead the Blue Jays to a 4-2 victory. Pat Borders and John Olerud hit solo home runs to support Morris.

There's no telling how many games he might win for that club," Anderson said. "He's got a chance to go 20 and maybe even 25. Whether he's going to be shaving the ball in the perfect spots all day.

Morris agreed with Anderson's assessment.

"We've got a lot of talent here. All the aspects are in place for a good season. It's just a matter of going out and getting the job done," Morris said.

Morris won 21 games with the Tigers in 1986 and had 20 victories with Detroit in 1983.

Morris, who set a major-league record with his 13th consecutive opening day start, blanked Detroit until Cecil Fielder led off the ninth inning with a home run. Two outs later, his lead was cut when a fellow on a full-count pitch sent the Blue Jays' lead to two runs.

I figured I had to give up a two. But I was happy to get Brian Hunter on a ball."

Baltimore (UPI) — President Bush threw out the ceremonial first pitch Monday that bouncy sky of homeplate to open Baltimore's nostalgic new playground, Oriole Park at Camden Yards.

A capacity crowd of 48,041 cheered, putting Felix Jose in the game. Jose was 0-for-3 with two walks and a run scored.

Bush, wearing a blue cardboard, wished the Blue Jays luck as he placed himself on the forehead as he walked from the mound, with his grandson George, who threw a strike.

Joining the broadcast booth a few innings later, Bush announced two plays and said of his pitch, "I made the mistake once again of breaking it off every time I throw it into the dirt."

The base-711 diamond was announced by Oriole legend before Bush delivered his pitch.

President Bush, introduced as the "greatest baseman in history," said, "This stadium makes me feel like playing again. It is a beautiful place."

The White Sox defeated the Tigers, 4-3.

The Mets will be tough to beat, however, if free agent signee Bobby Bonilla and Edgardo Alfonzo restore the offense to the glory days of 1986 and the rest of the team remains healthy.

SECOND PLACE: ST. LOUIS. The Cardinals took the expression "boys of summer" literally in 1991, putting fence Joe, Ray Lankford, Todd Zeile and Albert Pujols in a bid to win their first first-place finish as regulars. The Cardinals' youth brigade nailed second place in '81, and with the addition of Andres Gainera and the return of Joe Magrane and Todd Worrell this team figures to get better.

The Redbirds may have the best bullpen in the major leagues with Mike Thompson, Gerald Perry, Rex Hudler and Bernard Gilkey itching for a chance to get into the "closer" role, but young pitchers such as Oscar Olivares, Rheed Coriner and Donovan Osborne still may be a year away. Ozzie Smith anchors a good defense, with the exception of Florida Pedro Collar, the future third baseman.

THIRD PLACE: PITTSBURGH. The two-time defending NL East champs may be on the way out with the loss of Bonilla, 20-game winner John Smiley and bullpen closer Bill Landrum.

The Bucs still feature a strong pitching staff in Doug Drabek, Zane Smith and Randy Tomlin— but the offense cannot be counted on to produce as it has in the past.

 Expect Andy Van Slyke to spend time on the shelf with back problems and Barry Bonds to lead the NL in intentional passes and complete balls in the field.

FOURTH PLACE: CHICAGO. The Cubs pitching staff is wonderfully inadequate. Greg Maddux and Mike Morgan anchor a staff of several retreads and Airporters.

Lancaster and his sisterly 171 million contract are gone in the post- Sandberg salary wars.

The Cubs will slog it out with other teams but find themselves on the short end of many Q-7 contests after George Bell headed south to the White Sox. The Cubs' aging in the consistent product of Andre Dawson, Ryne Sandberg and Whitey Ford are two magic from new manager Jim Lefevre.

FIFTH PLACE: PHILADELPHIA. The Phillies' youth movement appears to be starting to pay some dividends. Pitchers Kyle Abbott and Andy Ashby are three to stay in the Phils' rotation and hope to enjoy more support with Lenny Dykstra and Darren Dalton healthy again.

(Phil'lls were 36-26 with the duo in the '91 lineup.) The loss of John Kruk's left to a separated shoulder will have big, round, fast-in the lineup and in Phillys' chances.

SIXTH PLACE: MONTEREY, CA. The Spor are a long way from contention as they continue to rebuild. Ivan Calderon is unable to carry the load on offense as an aging Tim Wallach and an aged Greg McRae. Morris has future potential in his pitching staff led by Brian Bannister and Kevin Mitchell will be wasted.

But the left-handled Bush, a former Yale first baseman, was greeted with a mixture of cheers and boos that turned to laughter when his first pitch bounced in the dirt, inches in front of catcher Chris Hoiles.

Bush, wearing a blue cardboard, wished the Blue Jays luck as he placed himself on the forehead as he walked from the mound, with his grandson George, who threw a strike.

Joining the broadcast booth a few innings later, Bush announced two plays and said of his pitch, "I made the mistake once again of breaking it off every time I throw it into the dirt."

The base-_II diamond was announced by Oriole legend before Bush delivered his pitch.

President Bush, introduced as the "greatest baseman in history," said, "This stadium makes me feel like playing again. It is a beautiful place."
