Faculty Senate ready to vote on resolution protesting cuts

Tuesday's vote to take place before governor's budget address Ben Botkin

Daily Egyptian

On the day before the governor's budget address, the Faculty Senate will vote on a resolution Tuesday that questions Gov. Rod Blagojevich's plans for cutting higher educa-tion funding.

Ever since the governor initially ordered universities in March to set aside 8 percent of their operating budgets for this fiscal year in in anticipation of cuts, higher education officials have been worried about what's in store for public institutions. For the SIU system, the 8-percent figure would amount to an $18.2 million cut for this fiscal year. State sources have said the blow for this fiscal year may not be quite as harsh-2.9 percent instead of 8 percent-but univer-sity administrators, including those at SIUC, anticipate that layoffs and fewer summer classes would be a result of cutbacks. But it is

James Allen, the Faculty Senate member who wrote the resolution, said it's crucial for the university community to respond to legislators and make the case for higher education. "This is an effort to mobilize the university community to defend the institution," he said

Tuesday's meeting will follow last week's elimination of eight positions at SIUC, which is expected to lead to two layoffs. As of Friday, University spokeswoman Sue Davis said additional layoffs have not taken place.

But administrators hope to know more after the governor's awaited budget address on Wednesday. SIU spokesman Steve Binder said he doesn't expect more news to come out beforehand.

I think we're probably in a holding pat-tern until we hear from the governor himself on Wednesday," he said.

In the meantime, Allen said the signals from Springfield continue to be unclear.

Hoax on military families gives false information

Perpetrators identify themselves as Red Cross workers

Sara Hooker Daily Egyptian

In a time when families and loved ones of deployed service members already have a lot weighing on their minds, the American Red Cross has announced a telephone hoax in which family members are given false information about their loved one.

Recently, several family members of deployed service members received a phone call from individuals who claimed they were representatives of the Red Cross. The individuals then made false claims that the person's service member was Missing in Action, the National Guard Bureau reported. Incidents have been reported in Delaware, Alabama and Michigan, but none have been reported so far in Illinois. The American Red Cross reported that in one such case, a woman was told her son had been killed in action, and other situations describe a loved one as a prisoner of war or MIA.

Sandra Webster, director of the American Red Cross Little Egypt network that covers the 14 southern Illinois counties, said the Red Cross is in charge of all of the emergency communication to the deployed service members about family members at home, but not vice versa. She said for example that if one of the troop's mothers were sick at home, the Red Cross would find that person and convey that information

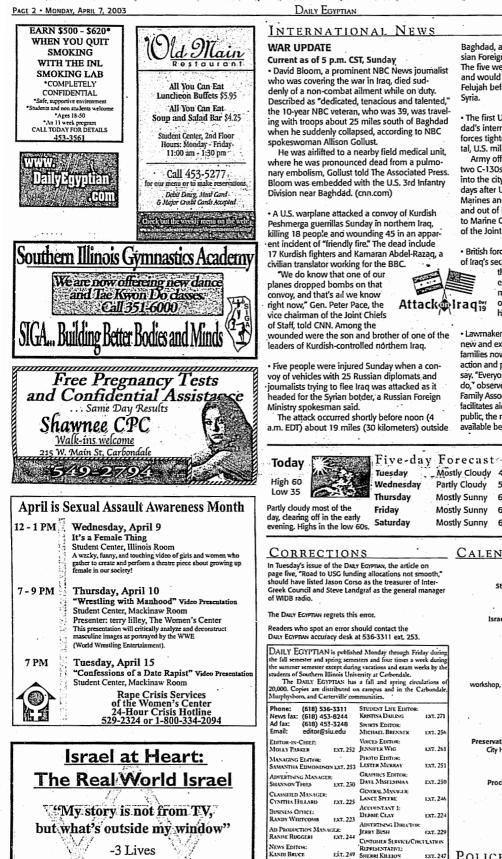

Webster said it is important for families, if the hoax does hit Illinois, to be aware of the situation and not just accept information by the individuals who claim to be with the Red

"If you get a phone call, don't take it for the sure thing because the Red Cross never noti-fies," Webster said.

SIU currently has 94 students and 6 faculty and staff deployed overseas in active duty and

1,191 veterans, guardsmen and reservists. Anyone who has received a hoax call is being requested by the American Red Cross to contact their local military liaison and ort the incident to the a special American Red Cross phone number at 888-309-9679. It will then report that information to the

SIUC Board of Trustees to consider fee increases

The SIU Board of Trustees will officially begin consideration of proposed student-fee increases totaling $31.90 at its Thursday meeting.

The increases, if approved, will go toward the Athletic Fee, the Student Health Fee for Primary Care, the Student Center, Student and Campus Recreation, and the Student Activity

Three presidential candidates

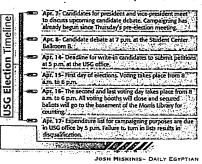

begin to campaign

Jane Huh Daily Egyptian

Presidential candidates for the April 14 and April 15 Undergraduate Student Government elections were permitted to begin campaigning after attending the Pre-Election meeting Thursday at the Student Center.

Mike Rivers is running for Students United Now (SUN), Neal ung for the Freedom party and Paul Ray for the Renewal Party. All three candidates for president announced the party they were running on and had a few minutes to introduce their campaign platforms.

Rivers indicated that he would work toward bridging the com-munication gap between the administration and students. Young suid he would like to work with the new City Council on several sues such as new housing, the encroachment ordinance and the Human Relations Committee. Ray said he would work toward forming a student-tenant union and reforming the current student activity fee distribution process.

A candidate debate is scheduled to take place on April 8 at the Student Center. Vice presidents are also expected to participate. At the meeting, Andrew Jackson, USG election commissioner, went over the campaign guidelines with the candidates and other USG members.

The election commission set financial guidelines for campaign spending. A limit of $400 was set for candidates running for each presidential and vice-presidential team and $40 for those running for senator. When the elections are over, all candidates are to turn in an itemized expense list to the USG office at 5 p.m. on April 17.

Chemotherapy is one area that nanotechnology can make a difference. John Koropchak, vice chancellor for Research and Graduate School dean, said the cancer drugs used in chemotherapy attack the entire body. New drugs created with nanotechnology could help the drugs to attack only cancerous cells.

"It is possible to vision new types of drugs that might specifically go to the cancer cells and release the poisons in effect right at the cancer cells so you get all the effect right where you want it and not in the rest of the body so you're not as sick as you typically are when you're treated with chemotherapy," he said.

Lack of foresight makes us shiver

It's cold in here.

The Physical Plant usually switches from heating to air conditioning between April 1 and April 15. Last week's weather made us grateful that the heat was turned off, but doesn't anyone keep an eye on the weather forecast?

With budget cuts and layoffs expected, now is the time to save money, something Physical Plant Director Phil Gatton said he hoped to do by delaying hitting the "on" switch to the A/C. It was turned on last week, cooler air being noticeable o.a the west side of campus Friday. Switching to air conditioning requires temperatures to be in the mid-to-upper 70s during the day and 50s and 60s for low night temperatures. Today's high is supposed to be about 47 degrees, and while a warm-up is expected according to weather.com, temperatures will not go above 65. We don't need air conditioning just yet.

The fact that it costs between $12,000 and $15,000 a day to run the air conditioning makes us shiver all the more. If the Physical Plant had waited one more week to turn on the air we would save $105,000. Sounds goodwhen we're freezing as we sit in the classroom.

We understand that no matter what happens, the Physical Plant hears complaints. When it's hot and they delay turning on the air, people complain. When it's cold and they turn off the heat, people complain. But in a time when $105,030 is equivalent to three or four salaries of SIUC workers who will soon be laid off, it seems like something they should pay attention to. Weather.com is just

I am not a war monger. I hate the words "war", "conflict" and "combat." When, I hear those words, I think of the many friends I have made over the years. Friends I have sweat with, shared triumphs and, devastations with. I have held my friends close as we cried over tragedies, and bought the next round when we had a reason to celebrate. Friends I have rolled out with, before the sun was even close to coming over the horizon, on a 30-day field exercise to hone our skills. Thie is what I think of when I hear those words.

Yet, the time has come for what we trained for. The last resort for when diplomacy fails. When the call had come to go, a weave that I had taken my fellow soldiers in hand and tr uned them to the best of my abilities to perform under the stress of combat, and survive.

I remember sitting out on the tarmac of Ft. Campbell dressed in my desert camouflage, my vehicle tied down and ready for airlift operations in the years following Desert Storm when the Iraqi government was making troop movements in violation of UN orders. Both my troops and I had our chemical masks and atropine injectors close at hand, ready upon a moments notice to pull them out and use them if subjected to a chemical attack upon landing. I know these things.

But even in the midst of all this knowledge, I know that our soldiers are willing to go, to fight for a cause. Our soldiers are some of the best trained fighting forces in the world. Why do we train so hard — For nothing less than survival in a combat situation. Every time you get killed in training, is one less overlooked item that might get you killed in a real conflict.

Could we have waited another three or our months while Hans Blix played another shell game with the Iraqis? Of course we could. Could we have kept up the embargoes and sanctions the UN imposed that hurt no one except the Iraqi people? Sure we could. Could we have petitioned the United Nations for yet another resolution that could be violated like every other resolution passed concerning the disarmament of Iraq? Why not? Because we have declared enough is enough. To paraphrase an old folk song, "How many resolutions must a country violate, before the world finally gives up?"

Well, we have had enough. Unlike France or Germany, Iraq does not hold a large monetary debt to us which might not get repaid if we invade. Unlike other nations, we are not losing a large influx of capital from illegal arms sales if we invade. Unlike other nations, we declare with the highest law of the land that the security and safety of our citizens is one of the key responsibilities of the government.

Yes, we will take casualties, that is a given. I hold my breath every time the news reports that there is another coalition casualty, waiting to see if it is someoue I know. But the soldiers know we are over for a two-fold purpose: First, to remove a serious threat to the populace of the United States (that whole providing for the common defense as mentioned in the constitution) and secondly to free a populace from the grasp of a murdering, raping, torturous regime. If that is not a just cause, then why didn't everyone protest Bosnia?

My fellow Americans

As inilitary and civilian casualties mount up in Iraq, and resistance gains momentum rather than dispersing according to the predictions of US, propaganda, Americans are beginning to look around themselves again. The red, white, and blue blindfolds are slowly being lifted from America's collective eyes, and polls show that the brief groundswell of support for Bush's war is disappearing. Instead of the quick war of liberation, with grateful Iraqi throngs hurling flowers at our troops, we are seeing angry, sullen civilians, who are hurling epithets — when they are not hurling explosives. Once again, right or wrong, the population of our "target" is looking upon us as an invading enemy, not as a liberator. We are seeing that this war will not be a quick, bloodless one — in fact, "Iraq" may just be As military and civilian casualties mount up bloodless one - in fact, "Iraq" may just be Arabic for "Vietnam".

This special public service announcement has been brought to you by 0-3, the proud sponsor of the upcoming smash reality series "Chug, Toke, and Race!" where today's biggest addiction stars pit their driving skills and their tolerance levels, in quest to find America's number one racing intoxicant! Hit the road, hit a pipe, with Chug, Toke, and Race! Coming this Spring!

Do you want more from your customary respiration process? Is your substandard oxygen intake giving you unwanted aches and pains? Do you enjoy being pawned by manipulation corporations (like us) who engineer products spec ally targeted to your own health-conscious stupidity?

If you said yes to all of these questions (and we know you have) then O-3 is the answer for you! Yes, O-3, the scientifical next step in the wave oxygen revolution sure to lift your lungs to a whole new level!

Oxygen bars have been around since the early 90's, but have become a recent trend in some of America's most popular and sought out night clubs. For just a reasonable price of a dollar a minute, you can have your nostrils shoved in with our flavored state-of-the-art cannulas for a soothing, relaxing journey into one extreme fraudulent, non-existent. nirvana!

The responses have been astounding. But don't believe us. Hear what some of our satisfied customers had to say!

— Matt from Mattoon says, "I smoke two packs a day. But that's why I suck on O-3 for five minutes every night...to even things out, you know. It's kinda like washing your hands after you've (unprintable). You know. Thanks O-3!"

Alumnus draws his own Saluki logo

DEAR EDITOR:

I am a 2001 graduate of SIUC, and this is not my first letter to the editor. The new Saluki atha logo was unveiled while I still attended the University, and I was quick to share my disgust over it with the DAILY EGYPTIAN. Many others followed suit. Recently, the Saluki was again on my mind. I ng as m still follow the basketball team - watch still fullow the basketbal team—watching as many games as I can and tuning in on the intermet radio. Televised Saluki games are tough to come by out here in Oklahorma. March Madness rekindled ray disire to get rid of that new logs, which I refer to as The sock puppet. Now that I am a graduate and a responsible adult (not under the influence of alcohef-the majority of the time). Il decided not to just vent to the newspaper with some smart-alcek comment,, but to go at it another way. I decided to use what

With some final touches from my little brother, a more accomplished artist, I have created a Saluki logo that I think the student body will embrace and, logo that I think the student body will emotize and, hopefully with your support, urge the leadership of the University to adopt. If nothing else, I hope that it spurs more of an interest in a new logo, and periaps a campus-wide contest could be held to allow some a campus-wate contrast could be need to allow some of SIU's fine talent to come up with something even bener. Iraqi reconstruction plan a nightmare

DEAR EDITOR:

LETTERS

In this tumultuous time during the ima Iraq, we often are caught up in the present of the invasion but we pay little attention to the future of Iraq. The Pentagon has its own plan, which calls for American military personnel heading each of Iraq's 23 ministries. This would be a disaster and would create an atmosphere of imperialism in Iraq. The U.S. State Department, the C.I.A., Prime Minister Tony Blair, the major humanitarian relief organizaions, France. Germany, and most of the rest of the countries in the world disagree with this plan. The future of Iraq will be determined in the next few days. I ask you to write and phone your congressper son and demand that the future of Iraq be bright and full of liberty and justice.

tennis player Peter Bong returns the ball to Drake's Anthony Perkins Saturday at the University Courts. Bong lost 6-3, 6-0 as the Salukis fell to the Bulldogs 4-3 in Missouri Valley Conference

Men's tennis 1-1 during weeken

Zack Creglow Daily Egyptian

SIU men's tennis player Peter Bong's prediction of the Salukis' muchanticipated battles against Drake and Creighton would have landed him at the stake 311 years ago for psychic pov

"If we lose, I reckon it will be close. I reckon it will come down to the doubles," Bong said Thursday.

Bong went on as far to even postu-late that SIU "should beat Creighton pretty easily."

Bong was on target as the Salukis split three matches apiece with the Buildogs before losing the doubles point 2-1. Then the Dawgs went on to defeat Creighton, although it was not easy as Bong thought. SIU won 4-3 after pulling out the two wins in the doubles matches for the decisive winning point.

It was a lot closer than I thought it would be actually," sophomore Lucasz Soswa said of the previously thought-of pushover Creighton. They were just better than we expected. We didn't play bad, but they played well. We came out with the win and that is what matters."

The doubles matches were heated and highly competitive in both meets. Against Drake in the No. 1 doubles match, the Bulldogs' duo of Jack Frankowicz and Felipe Montenegro topped SIU's tandem of Soswa and freshman Bojan Illevski 8-6.

Then in No. 2 doubles, Anthony Perkins and Kirk Schuler defeated the ing and Gian Carlo Remigio 8-5. Creighton was equally as difficult. It came down to the final match after Soswa and Illevski lost in the first match to the Bluejays' duo of Kevin Otto and Tom McCarthy 8-4.

"We were kind of disappointed, we were up in the whole match," Soswa said. "We had some bad calls made against us."

Bong and Remigio defeated Vince Meens and Eduardo Pignatari 8-4 set-ting up the decisive rubber match.

And SIU came through as Alon Savidor and Julian Angel Botero destroyed the Bluejays' pair of Richard Gonzales and Evan Kimura 8-3.

SIU head coach Missy Jeffrey has said on numerous occasions that winning the doubles' point is a prime area of concern for her team. She said players have been drilled in practices and have also battled each other in head-to-head doubles matches.

Savidor may have less complaints about the loss than his other Saluki teammates, though. His win in No. 2 singles on Saturday gave him sole possession of No. 20 on SIU's all-time career win list with 47 victories. He defeated Frankowicz 2-6, 6-3, 10-7 and then eked out a nailbiter against CU's Tom McCarthy 6-4, 3-6. 6-0.

Another Saluki who showed spunk was freshman Tomas Gonzales. He annihilated Matt McClure in straight sets 6-2, 6-0 then later wiped out Creighton's Gonzales 7-6, 6-2 to remain undefeated in all of his matches playing in the top six spots in singles.

The only loss the sensation has recorded was at the No. 7 singles spot in the Missouri Valley Conference championship game, his first-ever competition in college.

This weekend the squad treks to Wichita, Kan., to battle the Shockers - which Jeffrey stated was another must-win match - and finish up by taking on Southwest Missouri State in Springfield, Mo.

"It is important for us to pull out at least one of those two," Soswa said. "We are not going to come out cocky anymore.

Women's tennis takes two of three

Zack Creglow Daily Egyptian

Things are starting to look up. A lot has been concentrated on the injuries that have haunted the SIU women's tennis team during the past year, but the players' games in the past two weeks suggest they have received a megawatt defibrillatio

This weekend's 2-1 record just instilled that notion more thoroughly: "I feel pretty good with how the weekend went," S'U head coach Judy Auld said. "It went the way I hearth U.S." thought. We played hard and picked up our game and are progres. That is the main thing, really." sing.

The Salukis' progression started by befuddling Creighton on Friday in a 5-1 victory. The meet, played without any doubles matches, was started by the superb play of SIU's top two competitors Alejandra and Maria Blanco.

Alejandra downed Creighton's top player, Christy Roth, in No. 1 singles action 6-3, 6-4. While Maria, a freshman, also needed just two sets to make waste of her competition Deidre Sanders with her 6 -4, 6-2 victory

The bottom half of the Salukis' lineup, Zuzana Palovic, Zoya Ionarmand and Sophie Bedard all pulled out victories.

The next match came against Drake, but the Salukis were not so lucky against the Bulldogs, who narrowly edged out the Salukis in a tough 4-3 grudge match. Maria Blanco and Jessica Knitter pulled out the two victories. Blanco downed Cindy Skoegerboe 6-5, 6-3 and Knitter beat Melinda Fenimore after she retired in the third set.

But the Dawgs did not recoil after the loss and took it out on

Northern Iowa afterward Bedard was only the Saluki to not win her singles match and SIU also won all of its doubles matches against the Panthers.

Maria Blanco was one of the main stars of the weekend. She finished with an unblemished 3-0 weekend record. Now she is starting to make a strong case for Missouri Valley Conference freshman of the year

"I haven't seen the other freshmen around, but I think she deserves serious consideration," Auld said. "She is starting to turn some peoples' heads. In my eyes, she is one of the top freshman in the conference.

She has a great maturity level and she is willing to work on things on practice and incorporate them on the court. She is very competitive, one of those players who will give you good results playing against some of the top competition." The Salukis improved their record to 6-11 overall and 3-1 in the MVC. Auld thinks that this could be the start to SIU attaining a goal none of them may have thought possible until the recent hot streak

This upcoming weekend, SIU plays Southwest Missouri State and Wichita State. And if the Salukis want to reach that goal, they will have to bring their "A" games to University Courts.

We want to be seeded in the top four of the conference, which means that we have to pull out the next few matches," Auld said. "Our goal is that and to finish in the top four as well.

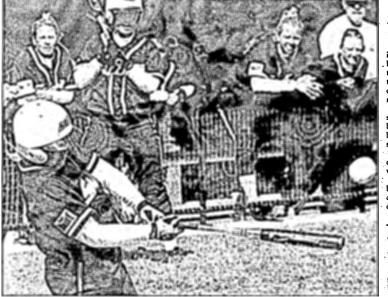

"Every match for us is big from here on out."

The scoreboard in right field at Charlotte West Stadium-Rochman Field was just sitting there mind-ing its own business when quicker than an Amy Harre heater, the ball jumped off the bat of SIU sophomore Kelly Creek and soared through the air. Then it happened.

Thwack!

The ball bounced off the scoreboard's bruised face and fell harmlessly to the field as Creek and the two Saluki base runners ran the bases and came home to give SIU its winning margin of 12-1.

But the euphoria of the slaughterrule victory was short lived as the Bulldogs bounced back to take the second game of Saturday's double-header 2-1. Sunday's series finale was canceled because of rain.

SIU head coach Kerri Blaylock just shrugged when asked her thoughts on how the day shaped up for her 22-6 softball team. "Best and worst, I guess," Blaylock

The Salukis managed .even hits in each of the games, but were able to score just one run in the second contest after the first was called early due to the eight-run rule.

Sophomore outfielder Maria Damico said it is discouraging to her and her teammates to score just the one run on the same number of hits. She said it is made more so because they don't have any answers as to why

"It's frustrating because you don't know why that is," Damico said.

One of the most obvious reasons why is that three of SIUs hits in the first game were home runs with Damico hitting her first of the year and Creek crushing two to raise her season total to seven. The Salukis scored a total of eight runs via the long ball as Damico's was also a three-run shot and Creek's other blast scored two

Damico said the home runs in the first game served a greater purpose than simply adding runs to the score. "I think it definitely changes the flow of the game anytime you get a home run because it pumps every-body up and it gets the other team thinking, 'oh my gosh, here we go," Damico said.

In the first game the Salukis were also helped by numerous Diake errors. In the bottom of the fourth inning, the Bulldogs posted three errors which led to six runs for SIU. As a result of the monster innings, after Harre retired the side in the top of the fifth the game was called due to the eight-run rule.

Harre was her usual dominating self allowing just four hits and one uncarned run in seven innings of work this weekend while striking out 10 Drake hitters.

She said entering the fifth inning with an 11-run cushion was some thing that she thinks the Salukis can make a habit of doing.

"I know our team's capable of scoring runs like that and beating teams like that," Harre said. "We should beat teams like that."

Besides the big hits and solid pitching, something else that helped energize the Salukis this weekend energize the Salukis this weekend was the play of freshman speedster Samantha Carter. Carter was a sparkplug for the Salukis, going 4-of-7 from the plate and using her speed to beat out throws on bunts and score the lone SIU run in the loss on a passed ball.

Her hustle was not enough in the second game as Drake (17-18) rebounded well from the opening blowout to hand SIU a costly loss. Blaylock said the Bulldogs simply came out quickly and showed no ill

"What they did they set the tone early," Blaylock said. "Their pitcher pitches a style where she's going to keep you off-balance and try to jam you and get the batter to hit little dribblers. We kind of played into her hands a little bit."

Harre said the Bulldogs simply showed why the Missouri Valley Conference is such a tough conference because any team can beat anybody as evidenced by 9-21 Bradley beating 19-16 Illinois State this weekend.

"Any team is going to come out any given day and beat anybody so we just got to make sure that we go in and just approach every game the same and hopefully we'll get the good end of the results.

I am not an expert regarding what it takes to run a successful college basketball program. In fact, if I were to take over the women's program, the team may defy every mathematical principle in the universe and put a negative number in the win column. But from the stands, I continue to see the Salukis on the losing end of blowout after trouncing after disem-bowelment, and I'm sure Kowalczyk sees the same thing.

when Kowalczyk's patience runs out. She is safe for the next year because in the midst of a budget crunch and the continuing layoffs of University employees, Kowalczyk MONDAY, APRIL 7, 2003 . PAGE 15 would look pretty ridiculous if he ate a $75,000 contract, especially considering women's basketball is a non-profit program. Opp was on the hot seat after her first year as head coach, and really has been for the remainder of her tenure, so it would not be surprising if the ax was dropped after what will almost certainly be another losing season.

"I think Paul Kowalczyk took a chance on me coming off the 7-20 campaign," Opp said following the 2000-2001 sesson. "And I'm very grateful to him and the University for keeping me on board."

Two seasons later, the Salukis have the exact same record, and one has to wonder how much longer Kowalczyk is willing to give her.

Everything was going SIU's way.

Jake Alley had pitched a gem Friday, lead-ing the Salukis to a 10-0 over Illinois State.

Bryan Rueger threw a complete-game in the front end of a doubleheader, giving up only four hits and one run in the midst of a 5-1 SIU victory.

But the Salukis' hopes for a sweep over the Redbirds, along with second place in the Missouri Valley Conference, fell apart late Saturday afternoon — quickly. Starting pitcher Andrew Weber gave up five runs, all of them earned, in 2 1/3 innings, placing SIU in a hole in was never able to crawl out of. The Salukis lost the game 10-6 and took two of three from the Redbirds.

Weber, like his coach, blamed his control for the poor outing. I just couldn't hit spots," Weber said.

Every thing I left was up and it caught a lot more of the plate than I wanted to." The Redbirds had 10 hits after the fourth inning, and every single one of them was in the game, as evidenced by Saluki first base-man Josh Markle, who had his glove ripped off his hand by a hard-hit grounder early in the fourth inning. SIU was down 7-0 after four innings, and Callahan blamed himself for leaving Weber in the game for too long. "I'm a little discouraged the game got out of hand so quickly," Callahan said. "If I had it to do over again I would have gotten Weber out before the three runs in the third.

"I thought we made a pretty valiant effort just to get back in the game, but that's a pretty ood deficit," Callahan said.

The last game of the series, which was cut short when Sunday's game was canceled due to rainy weather, was the ugly stepchild of what was otherwise an astounding weekend of Saluki baseball.

During the first two games of the series, Alley and Rueger were the only two pitchers SIU sent to the mound, and they were all it needed. The two combined for 14 innings (both games lasted only seven innings), one run, no earned runs and 10 hits. Rueger was quick to give credit to his defense, as well as the fielders behind him.

"I felt really confident up there," Rueger said. "My defense was standing strong behind me and our offense was going good, so I pretty much had the momentum."

Alley was the beneficiary of that luxury in Friday's game as well. His defense bailed him out of a bases loaded with no men out situation in the sixth inning of Friday's game, and the offense scored 10 runs, allowing the game to end in the seventh because of college baseball's 10-run slaughter rule — something Discours 10-run staughter run — sometime, Alley said he has not seen since high school. "I didn't have unbelievable stuff, I didn't have bad stuff, "Alley said of his outing, "I just made some OK pitches and it happened to work out for us.

ence title. "We obviously are happy we're playing OK, but we gotta pick it up still because last weekend we should have taken three from Indiana State and this weekend we shouldn't have lost that game," Alley said. "Those things will happen, but I think we have to pick it up a bit."

SIU women's basketball assis-

Tuesday. SIU head coach Lori Opp is at the women's Final Four in Atlanta, and will be back the same day as Kowalczyk.

Floyd is out of town and Wellmaker is unwilling to comment before Opp does.

The resignations came after SIU's sixth consecutive losing season, and its third straight in the cellar of the Missouri Valley Conference.

Wellmaker was an assistant for all three of those years, in which SIU compiled a record of 20-61 overall and 9-45 in the MVC.

Floyd had been with the Salukis for two years, and left Carbonda'e with a 13-41 overall record and a 5-31 mark in confererce play.

Staci Starkweather, who just completed her rookie season as a Saluki assistant, will be the only returning member of Opp's supporting cast. It is still unknown who will replace Wellmaker and Floyd.

Starkweather came to SIU as a replacement for former assistant Carl Clayton, who left the Salukis after only one season with the club.

We heard all the same things during the preseason. Molly McDowell predicted a .500 during media day. Head coach Lori Opp predicted a sixth place finish and was bold enough to call out those who would surely jump on the Saluki bandwagon as the rose from the dead.

"If you all make the mistake of missing out later, you'll have to catch up," Opp told the southern Illinois media in November.

Unfortunately for Opp and SIU, members of the media did not have to catch up to the Salukis' bandwagon — it never made it off the assembly line.

And as those of you who are still reading probably know, the Dawgs won three conference games during the year and only seven overall.
