Student, instructor hurt in crash

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff Writer

An SIU-C flight student injured Friday when the plane he was flying crashed near Vergennes is expected to leave intensive care today.

The instructor accompanying him was released from Memorial Hospital of Carbondale Sunday.

The student, David Meyer, 20, Carbondale, was listed in stable condition Sunday. He had undergone surgery Friday for a broken right leg and broken left ankle.

PART-TIME INSTRUCTOR
James Wakeford, Carbondale, received cuts to his jaw and lost teeth in the crash of an SIU-C-owned, two-seat Cessna 152 at 12:50 p.m. Friday in a field about four miles southeast of Vergennes, which is about seven miles north of Murphysboro on Illinois 127.

The crash was the fourth incident this semester in which the pilot of an SIU flight school plane had to make a forced landing. However, it is the first crash landing in which there were injuries since the flight school began in 1960, according to Ron Kelly, director of the SIU-C Air Institute.

THE PLANE, which took off at about 12:30 p.m., was flying within a designated practice area when it crashed in a muddy field off the Truax blacktop one mile east of Route 13-127, Kelly said.

A witness told Jackson County authorities the plane first hit the ground with one of its wing tips. The impact of the crash bent the plane into an upside down V-shape with its nose and tail to the ground.

A DeSoto village employee, who refused to disclose his name, examines the wreckage of a plane owned by the SIU flight training program. The plane crashed Friday near Vergennes, injuring a student and instructor.

THE PLANE did not catch fire but was leaking gas when Jackson County deputies arrived. The two men were conscious and able to speak but could not indicate what caused the crash, Sergeant Jim Nesler said.

Meyer said Sunday that he and Wakeford do not remember everything that happened at the time of the crash and did not recall notifying the control tower that they needed help.

"It wasn't an emergency situation until a few minutes before it happened," Meyer said.

FEDERAL AVIATION Administration officials from Springfield, Ill., inspected the crash site Saturday before the plane was taken back to the airport. Kelley said the FAA would give its findings to the National Transportation Safety Board in Chicago. The NTSB will release its deter-

City unity is key to DeFosse's mayoral bid

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

Daniel DeFosse, a 49-year-old business education student at SIU-C running for mayor, wants to join the student community with the rest of the city and says the City Council needs to change its spending priorities.

"A lot of ordinances we have here are targeted at students and used against students," DeFosse said.

HE SAID the city's R-1 residential housing zoning ordinance is a prime example of how the city tries to separate the students from the rest of the community. In areas of the city zoned R-1, no more than two unrelated people are allowed to reside in the same house or apartment.

The City Council is "trying to pretend that students don't live in many areas of the city," DeFosse said, adding that the city should rezone some areas of the city to allow students to reside there and then enforce the codes. He also said violations of the zoning ordinance should result in a fine for both the renter and the tenant, not just the tenant.

DEFOSSE SAID he favors eliminating the downtown convention center and the railroad relocation projects. He said both projects are costing the city millions of dollars that could be put to better use providing services for the community.

"If the convention center was such a great deal, private enterprise would have picked it up a long time ago," he said.

DeFosse said declining rail traffic has eliminated the need for the railroad relocation project.

HE ALSO said he wants the mayor to take a more active part in the government. He said the city manager position has become comparable to "an unelected mayor."

"If you want to know what's going on in Carbondale, you ask the city manager, not the mayor," he said.

DeFosse said he favors a ward-alderman form of government, which has been proposed by mayoral candidate Norvell Haynes and former City Council candidate Dave Madlener.

Officials argue funding of 'union-busters'

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

The two unions pushing for collective bargaining at SIU-C are in an uproar concerning the amount of money spent by the Office of the Chancellor to retain what they call "union-busting" legal counsel.

Since summer 1984, the University has paid at least $185,428 to the Chicago law firm Seyfarth, Shaw, Fairweather and Geraldson to represent it in union determination hearings.

What the two unions are concerned about is that taxpayers' money is being used.

"The amount they've spent is staggering," said Charles Zucker, an Illinois Education Association representative.

"IT'S REALLY unseemly for a public university to retain the services of a law firm that has gained a national reputation for union-busting," he said.

Tom Britton, executive assistant to the chancellor, said money from the University's budget has been used to respond to petitions filed by the unions.

"We aren't seeking to retain a union-busting firm, just the best legal advice on collective bargaining," he said. SSFG

Honduras says U.S. planes aided in attack on border

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — The United States provided unspecified air support Sunday for Honduran troops to help repel a "flagrant violation" of Honduran territory by Nicaraguan government forces, the office of President Jose Azcona said. Honduran warplanes also strafed Nicaraguan troops along the two countries' rugged and poorly defined border, the Tegucigalpa government said in a separate statement read on national radio. The U.S. government declined to comment on the initial report.

Iranian blasts media handling of arms deal

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — The speaker of Iran's Parliament, who touched off the Iran arms scandal in Washington, has criticized the U.S. Congress and the media for attacking President Reagan, a Tehran newspaper reported. Hojatoleslam Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, a key Islamic clergyman, said Reagan did "something foolish" by sending former White House aide Robert McFarlane with a plane load of arms to Iran, but said Western media and Reagan's "enemies" in the Democratic Party in Congress were blowing the incident out of proportion "for their own political ends."

Israel denies former official aided exchange

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The Israeli Foreign Ministry Sunday denied news reports that its former director-general, David Kimche, suggested to Washington that Israel send U.S. arms to Iran. Israel has insisted that U.S. officials suggested the scheme to ship arms to Iran in hopes of improving relations with moderates in Tehran and securing the release of American hostages captured in Lebanon.

Dispute hurts cease-fire, Filipino rebel warns

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A rebel leader warned Sunday that a dispute over the right of communist guerrillas to carry weapons could doom a pending cease-fire between insurgents and the government before it even starts. Rebel negotiator Antonio Zumel said President Corazon Aquino must clarify the rules of the cease-fire, including a statement from the armed forces chief that forbids carrying guns without a government permit.

Anti-poverty plans ineffective, study finds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reduced government programs lift fewer people out of poverty and the declining impact of those programs accounts for 30 percent of the rise in poverty since 1979 among families with children, a new study said Sunday. An analysis of Census Bureau information found that in 1979, nearly one of every five families with children was lifted out of poverty by cash benefits such as Social Security, unemployment insurance or public assistance. In 1985, however, only one of every nine families with children was lifted out of poverty by those programs, the study said.

Pearl Harbor survivors conduct memorial

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — About a dozen survivors of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor held a wreath-laying ceremony Sunday at Arlington National Cemetery on the 45th anniversary of the action that pushed the United States into World War II. During the solemn half-hour ceremony, a handful of survivors remembered the Dec. 7, 1941 attack that took the lives of 2,335 U.S. servicemen and 68 civilians.

Rhodes Scholarships given to 32 students

CLAREMONT, Calif. (UPI) — Rhodes Scholarships were awarded Sunday to 32 students, including 11 women, the first black selected from Mississippi and a Vietnamese refugee who became a top cadet at the Air Force Academy. Yale University led this year's list of schools represented with four winners, followed by Georgetown University with three, said David Alexander, American secretary of the scholarship trust and president of Pomona College.

Undercover Santas set out to foil shoplifters

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI) — Fort Myers police officers dressed as Santa Claus are patrolling malls this holiday season as part of Operation ST. NICHOLAS — "Special Theft-Negation Initiative Combating Holiday Offenses, Larcenies And Shoplifting." No arrests were made the first day of the program's operations Saturday and Detective Oral Cooley said few shoppers realized the Santas were cops.

Dennis Franz, SIU alum and star of NBC's "Hill Street Blues," speaks at a press conference Saturday. Franz was a guest speaker for McLeod Theater's 20th anniversary.

'Hill Street' actor enjoys playing a sleazy character

By Laura Milbrath
Staff Writer

Dennis Franz doesn't mind playing a sleazeball. In fact, he's having the time of his life. Franz, a 1968 SIU-C graduate, plays Norman Buntz on NBC's Emmy-winning series "Hill Street Blues." He returned to campus Saturday to celebrate the 20th Anniversary of McLeod Theater, where he had performed in the theater's first production, "Long Day's Journey Into Night" in 1966.

FRANZ SAID that the performance "remains one of the highlights in my memories of theater experiences. I learned a lot. I'm very happy to be back. It's my first visit in 18 years and a lot of old feelings have come back to me."

Franz has worked with directors Brian DePalma and Robert Altman and has appeared in such movies as The Fury, Blow Out, Dressed to Kill, Popeye and Psycho II.

IN THE 1982-83 television season, Franz played "Bad Sal" Benedetto on "Hill Street Blues" but the character killed himself after only five episodes. Two years passed and Franz kept busy by making guest appearances on other television shows such as "Simon & Simon," "Riptide" and "The A-Team," but was anxious to return to "Hill Street Blues" because of the quality of the material.

In order to come back to the show, Franz told producers he would "dye whatever hair I had left blonde, shave my moustache or come back as Benedetto's gay brother. I wanted to be back on "Hill Street."

WHEN NEW producers took charge of "Hill Street Blues," they remembered Franz and created the character of Norman Buntz for him. Buntz has brought new life to the program with his original antics, mannerisms and wild outfits. Franz said of Buntz's wardrobe, "I get offered a selection of bad clothes and I get to pick from that selection."

Buntz's habit of chewing gum came out of Franz's own habit of chewing gum to relax on the set. When he saw the opening credits, he saw that the producers used a clip of him putting a stick in his mouth and thought "Well, I'm stuck with it now."

FRANZ BELIEVES that television today "is asking more of viewers and giving the viewers more credit than in the past. I don't think our show has ever emphasized sex or violence." He believes the writing on "Hill Street Blues," is what makes the show so successful and says that the writers "challenge the censors, they challenge our imaginations."

Franz said that everyone on the "Hill Street" set gets along well. "They really are a great bunch of people. We socialize together, we seek each other's company. Not all shows are like that."

City to consider restructuring loan program

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

Carbondale's top planner is recommending the city restructure its Rental Rehabilitation Loan Program to increase landlord participation.

Community Development Director Donald Monty favors an approach that would provide forgivable loans to landlords participating in the program. Under current guidelines, landlords receiving money to upgrade their properties must repay the loan to the city.

The City Council is slated to discuss Monty's recommendation Monday night.

Only one loan has been made under the program since its inception two years ago, Monty notes in a memo to City Manager Bill Dixon dated Dec. 3. Unless the city utilizes an $80,000 Rental Rehabilitation Grant from the state Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, Monty says, DCCA will recall the funds and distribute them to communities with more successful programs.

According to information provided by Ed Lowe of DCCA, Monty says in the memo, "communities having the most success with their programs were those that have structured their rental rehabilitation assistance in the form of grants or loans which are forgiven unless the properties are sold within a certain period of time."

The city of Rockford, which offers Rental Rehabilitation assistance in the form of grants with no pay-back requirements, has been particularly successful in attracting landlords to the program, Monty notes.

Under Carbondale's

program, landlords can receive funds covering up to half the total cost of rehabilitating their properties. The landlords must then match the funds dollar for dollar. Monty's proposal would preserve the matching-fund requirement.

Only properties in which 70 percent of the units are occupied by low-income tenants are eligible for loans under the program.

GOP must mature to keep Oval Office

PRESIDENT REAGAN'S COVERT IRAN ARMS deal has dominated the news for at least two weeks. It probably will a while longer.

Afterward, Republican conservatives will have another worry: They won't win the White House in 1988 if they don't rally around an acceptable Republican candidate soon.

The first real indication of this came in the spring. Reagan-lovers instituted a campaign to repeal the 22nd Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Created in the wake of Franklin D. Roosevelt's 12-year term, it does not allow the president more than two consecutive terms in office.

THAT SUCH A MOVEMENT TOOK ROOT says little for GOP Reagan successors but says a lot about the Republicans' outlook for 1988: all-embracing charisma won't be a factor to their political or media advantage as it will for the Democrats.

Two Democrats in particular have an early lead in the charisma race, U.S. Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, a dark-horse surprise in the 1984 Democratic primaries, and Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York. They got it during the 1984 elections by being the only people who spoke of the need for change in the future.

Reagan-blinded, neither the electorate nor the Republicans listened. Both are now, but it's the GOP that's listening with a degree of panic.

THE REPUBLICANS' PROBLEM IS at least three-fold. The GOP conservative bloc hasn't found a viable voice. This is what won Reagan two terms in the first place.

Also, there's Reagan's almost-legendary popularity, unequalled in the post-World War II era. Until the Iran arms mess, Reagan garnered at least 60 percent in popularity polls, a percentage that usually lasts only six months into a new president's first term.

Finally, current issues differ from those in 1984 and 1980 but the GOP is lost on how to approach them. Reagan promoted reducing taxes, bolstering the military and reducing the size of government.

IN 1988, THE ISSUES ARE LIKELY to be the federal deficit, our foreign trade imbalance — we're currently importing more than we're exporting — and the state of the world's economy, which will determine how the trade imbalance can be managed.

All of these issues are GOP promulgated. Campaigning for change is hypocritical, which is why there's plenty of room for a dark-horse to carry the GOP banner. Such a new face could bring moderation to the GOP's ultra conservatism and a means to circumvent the party's rapidly aging policies.

GEORGE BUSH, VICE PRESIDENT, isn't it. He'll probably get the GOP nod, but only as a last resort, if his silence on "Iragate" hasn't already cost him.

U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., isn't it either. He'd rather ignore trade deficits, or any kind of deficits for that matter.

Television evangelist Pat Robertson really isn't it. His campaign flies in the face of America's constitutional separation of church and state. And Reagan's friend Paul Laxalt won't work because he'll never be recognized as anything else other than "Reagan's friend." Worse, he doesn't mind that designation.

THE PROBLEM IS, YOU EITHER HAVE a Reagan clone or you don't, and a Reagan clone isn't what we need. If the GOP wants to keep the White House, conservatism has much growing up to do in less than two years.

Al Somit may be D.C. - bound

During the first week of January 1987, Dr. Albert Somit will vacate the president's office in Anthony Hall. As we all know, Dr. Somit is taking a one-year leave with pay before coming back to SIU-C as a political science professor. His purpose of leave, as reported by the D.E., is "to allow him to update his knowledge of research in his discipline."

enhancing disciplines are concerned.

If Dr. Somit is having problem in that respect, he can consult Dr. James Brown, our vice-chancellor. Dr. Brown, if I'm not mistaken, spent his study leave in Florida several years ago with pay. Thanks to the vice-chancellor's guidance, SIU and the education system in general is in better shape after he took his time off somewhere in that Sunshine State.

But wait a minute! Dr. Somit probably prefers a place where the real action is — a place where the discipline of political science is constantly being scrutinized and exercised. That place is none other than Washington D.C.

His six bureaucratic years in Carbondale and Springfield will help him in finding contacts on Capitol Hill and even the White House. Reagan, who is desperately looking for some good advisers for his foreign policy could probably use Somit's expertise and wit.

Now, that would make all of us — students, faculty members and the SIU community proud. It'll be a dream come true. Yeah, sure. Keep on dreamin'. — Nasir Haji Ibrahim, graduate, Department of Linguistics.

Excess should be cut where it's at

It has come to my attention that the Religious Studies and Russian departments are in jeopardy of being cut. If this is due to lack of funds it is a travesty; if it is due to lack of majors it is an even bigger travesty.

eliminating two of the most cost-efficient departments in the College of Liberal Arts.

Perhaps the dean's committee should look into the tenured faculty who aren't doing their jobs and eliminate them.

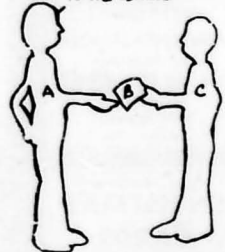

As long as there is one student who is interested in Russian or Religious Studies as a major, minor or self-fulfillment class, the option should be open to him.

It is obvious that quality in education is not the issue or the topic of cutting entire departments would not even be broached. Since that ought to be the only issue at hand, I see no reason why quality and economy cannot be reached by the same means: Cut the fat where the fat is.

Jennifer Gerdes, senior, English and Religious Studies.

mination of the probable cause of the crash in six months or more, he said.

"If it's a maintenance problem, we'll take our lead from what they suggest," Kelly said.

THE PLANE, which was purchased in October 1984, had 50 hours of flying time on it since it was last serviced and had another 50 hours to go before it was due for inspection, Kelly said. The plane never had experienced mechanical difficulty before, he said.

The flight school does not expect punitive action from the NTSB from the problems of mechanical difficulties with the planes this semester, Kelly said.

was frequently recommended as the top public employer labor relations firm in the state, Britton said.

John Pohlmann, president of the University Professionals of SIU, an affiliate of the Illinois Federation of Teachers, said he believes the Board of Trustees should not have had to spend more money on legal counsel than the employee organizations.

THE IFT, represented by the Chicago-based Cornfield and Feldman law firm, will have spent less than $30,000 on labor relations by the end of the year, Pohlmann said.

Zucker said the IEA, represented by the nationwide law firm Winston and Strawn, will have spent more than $100,000 by the end of the year.

Money for both labor groups' legal counsel comes largely from union dues.

In fiscal 1987, which started July 1, the University has paid the law firm $33,297 for labor relations, Britton said he wouldn't be surprised if the University spent another $60,000 by the end of the fiscal year, June 30.

"WE DON'T know what kind of new activities are going to come up," Britton said. "There already are unfair labor charges. Then there's preparation for the election, compiling lists of eligible voters and appeals that might be made."

The money spent has been used to state the University's preferred position, he said. "If we don't state our position, the labor board chooses a union. And they can't agree on the best units in which to hold an election."

The IFT wants to represent

"I DON'T EXPECT anything negative in that area because of the program and the way it's structured," he said.

Air institute planes are inspected once or twice each semester. Flight school students are covered by insurance and the university is protected from lawsuits in this type of situation, Kelly said.

An increased flight school enrollment from 221 last year to 345 this semester increases the chance of mishaps occurring, Kelly said. The maintenance and teaching staffs have not grown in proportion to the increase in enrollment, he said. The program has 10 full-time and 30 part-time instructors, five full-time and five part-time maintenance workers.

SIU-C faculty and staff in the same bargaining unit. The IEA says the two groups of employees should be in separate units because of a "different community of interests," such as contract length and job descriptions.

BOTH GROUPS say that SIU-C and SIU-E should be represented by separate bargaining units.

The University's company line is that bargaining is neither inevitable nor desirable, but if faculty and staff choose unionization, it should be done systemwide.

Pohlmann and Zucker say delays caused by SSG's attorney Ted Clark during the unit determination hearings are at the heart of the University's tab.

The hearings took 41 days over an eight-month period. Zucker said the hearings probably could have been done in about 20 days over eight weeks time.

THE UNIVERSITY called 11 witnesses during the hearings, which began in October 1985. IFT called 11 witnesses, IEA called five and the American Association of University Professors, which seeks to represent only SIU-E faculty, called two.

The University hired SSG in about 1974 to give the trustees legal advice on bargaining, Britton said.

In October, SSG was listed by Harvard Law School students as one of five firms they would not be seeking employment with.

The more than 200 students signed the petition, saying that the listed firms assist management in maintaining union-free environments. This is the third year such a petition has been signed.

"WITH THE amount of flying we're doing this is not something out of the ordinary," Kelly said. "What is happening here is not that uncommon at flight schools of similar or larger size."

Other incidents of forced landings of SIU planes include an emergency landing in late September near Du Quoin. Carburetor icing caused the plane to malfunction.

THE OTHER two incidents occurred in early October. The second emergency landing took place in a field near DeSoto when a plane's engine lost power from a stuck intake valve. Malfunctioning nose gear caused a third emergency landing to occur at Southern Illinois Airport four days later.

THE IEA also has charged that the University is acting against the labor relations act, passed Sept. 23, 1983, which gives employees of state universities the option of unionization.

The act states that educational employees have the right to organize and choose freely their representatives.

Britton denied the charge. "We acknowledge the faculty's right to choose. We want them to vote," he said. "and around election time, we'll be encouraging them to vote."

A decision from Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board hearing officer Ira Epstein is not expected until spring 1987, Pohlmann said. An election is not expected to be held until spring 1988, provided no appeals are made.

Troupe brings magic to 'A Christmas Carol'

By Tom Mangan
Staff Writer

During the holidays, nobody likes a Scrooge. But if he's playing the lead in the Nebraska Theater Caravan's portrayal of the classic Charles Dickens' tale "A Christmas Carol," his chances for popularity increase dramatically.

The theater troupe's Midwest tour stopped Saturday night at Shryock Auditorium, singing, dancing and living the story of a crotchety old miser whose life of nose-to-the-grindstone money changing inevitably clashed with the poor-but-merry mores of his neighbors, relatives and debtors.

Undergoing adaptations for stage, screen and even animated cartoon features, "A Christmas Carol" remains such a strong story that only the most inept cast of characters could screw it up. Thankfully, the Nebraska troupe proved that you don't have to be from Broadway to give a gripping theatrical performance.

The play was set in the 1880s, rather than Dickens' original 1840s, but Charles Jones' script held close to the original story line. Ebenezer Scrooge, who has been brought to life by such notables as Alistair Sim, Henry Winkler, Redd Foxx and the near-sighted Mr. Magoo, was convincingly cheap, and repentant, in Jonathan Beck Reed's Shryock performance.

Reed brought a refreshingly human treatment of Scrooge. Before his ordeal with spirits of Christmas past, present and future, Scrooge called Christmas lovers a gang of "jolly idiots who should be boiled in their own pudding and buried with a stake of holly through their hearts." But faced with a terrifying encounter with the ghost of his past partner, Jacob Marley (played with chilling realism by Scott Kessler), Scrooge cringed in terror as Marley warned of the impending spiritual visits that will teach a lesson in proper Christmas etiquette.

Marley's spine-tingling entrance to Scrooge's room amid a blast of green smoke was a credit to director Carl Beck's ability to set a mood of fear, mystery and surprise when Scrooge meets his former-friend-turned-tormentor.

Versions of "A Christmas Carol" have run the gamut from light comedy to solemn tragedy. Beck takes a decidedly light touch throughout the performance. Everybody knows of Scrooge will come around, so there's little point in hammering away at his miserly mentality.

Cast members shared a strong sense of comical timing, so that when Scrooge declared that the poor should starve to "eliminate the surplus population," audience members were more likely to share a chuckle than gasp in horror.

Reed unquestionably was the star of the show, but his supporting cast added depth and diversity that ensured an enjoyable production. Scrooge's nephew, the effervescent, unfailingly jolly Fred, was delightfully portrayed by David Boughtin. Bill Murphy and Kathryn Hammond put in a competent, but slightly lifeless, performance as Bob and Mrs. Cratchit. Of course, it's difficult to break new ground on secondary parts that have been done so many times by so many actors.

Easily the busiest member of the cast was Jay Leggett, who played the Baker; Mr. Fezziwig, Scrooge's unbelievably jolly employer during Christmas Past; and various other smaller roles.

In the best Peter Pan tradition, Tim Cratchit is played by Annie Rinke, a young girl whose "God bless us, everyone" does credit to her many predecessors in the role.

Ben Wilson as Peter Cratchit, Bob's oldest son, shows great promise as an actor. His young voice was strong and carried well in the cavernous Shryock Auditorium, where at least one other actor, Barry Lambert as the Ghost of Christmas Present, was hardly audible during his attempts at song.

With a 16-foot Ghost of Christmas Future, realistic sets and costumes reminiscent of England in the 1880s, the Nebraska Theater Caravan brought a tour de force performance to the Shryock stage. From the giggling of young children in the audience to the songs of the children on stage, there wasn't a Scrooge left in the house.

Local journalist, 64 dies after heart attack

Lloyd "Tony" Stevens, 64, Southern Illinoisian reporter and member of the SIU-C School of Journalism's Hall of Fame, died Saturday in Missouri Baptist Hospital in St. Louis after he suffered a recent heart attack.

Mr. Stevens' career as a journalist spanned 40 years in Southern Illinois, working first as a sports reporter at the Murphysboro Daily, a paper which later was merged with other newspapers to become the Southern Illinoisian. He had been an editor and political reporter for the Southern Illinoisian.

Mr. Stevens was recognized as a Master Editor by the School of Journalism in 1985 and was given the school's "Golden em" award, which marked his election to the school's Hall of Fame.

Mr. Stevens, who had lived in Murphysboro since 1927, also was known for his historical writing on Southern Illinois and was presented the "Delta Award" by SIU-C's Friends of Morris Library for his work.

Long-time friend and co-worker, Ben Gelman, editor of the SIU-Courier and former Sunday News Editor of the Southern Illinoisian described Mr. Stevens as the "universal newsmen of Southern Illinois." Mr. Stevens was active in the Jackson County Historical Society, a member of the Sallie Logan Public Library Board and a member of the Murphysboro Elks Club. His hobbies include golf and collecting coins, stamps and postcards.

Survivors include his wife, Rose Catherine Kelly; two sons, William Kent of Orlando, Fla., and Kelly Ellis Stevens of Murphysboro; four grandchildren; and two cousins, Bill Rosemberger and Micky Wilson, both of Murphysboro.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Crawshaw Mortuary Chapel in Murphysboro. Burial will be at Pleasant Grove Memorial in Murphysboro.

Daniel Edwards, 3, from World of Oz Child Development Center, takes a coolie break to watch a videotaped cartoon during the "Operation Happy Holiday" festivities Friday in Student Center Ballroom A. The annual event, sponsored by the Inter-Greek Council, drew children from three local preschools to sing carols, talk to Santa and receive gifts donated by local businesses and the IGC.

Preschoolers, Santa swap holiday cheer

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

Santa Claus paid a visit Friday afternoon to the Student Center, bringing gifts and holiday cheer to more than 100 local preschoolers.

The event, billed Operation Happy Holiday, was sponsored by the Inter-Greek Council. Kim Roberts, a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority, said the group distributed nearly 150 presents during the two-hour event. The gifts were donated by local businesses and the council.

"The merchants are wonderful," said Patricia McNeil of the Office of Student Development. "Each year they have helped with gifts for the program." McNeil acts as fiscal adviser to the IGC.

About 60 children filled Ballroom A at any one time, sitting in groups of about 10 singing songs and playing games. Sorority members, dressed as elves, roamed through the crowd, making sure a good time was had by all.

Santa Claus, played by Jay Elwell of Theta Zeta fraternity, handed out the presents and took note of the children's wishes for Christmas morning. The children came away with puzzles, candy, comic books and other toys and games.

It suddenly seemed as though Christmas had arrived several weeks early. Wrapping paper littered the floor and the jolly children compared gifts.

Beth Burion, chairwoman of the event, said the IGC has been sponsoring Operation Happy Holiday for more than a decade, "just to ensure a merry Christmas to all the children in the area."

"The people who run it have just as much fun as the kids," Roberts said. Seven sororities and six fraternities participated in the event.

Children from three area preschools were invited to participate in the event: Puka Preschool, World of Oz Child Development Center and Rainbow's End.

Postmaster offers mailing advice

Holiday cards and packages can arrive at their destinations on time and in good shape if mailed with a little bit of care, says Postmaster Hubert L. Goforth of Carbondale.

As well as mailing early, postal customers are urged to properly address cards and packages with the name, house or apartment number and street or post office box number, with the city, state and ZIP Code reserved for the last line, Goforth said.

Customers also are reminded to check Christmas and other holiday card envelope sizes. Goforth said letter size standards require that envelopes be at least 3 and one half inches high and 5 inches long to be accepted for mailing.

Some of Goforth's suggestions for mailing parcels include: proper cushioning of items by using crumpled newspaper or commercially available padding to fill empty box space; avoiding overwrapping or improper sealing by closing parcels only with pressure sensitive, nylon-reinforced, kraft paper or glass-reinforced tape; using smudge-proof ink for addressing; positioning addresses properly and remove all other labels; and correct timing by mailing early in month and early in day.

If you run out of time, Goforth said, Priority Mail affords First-Class handling and two- to three-day delivery anywhere in the country for packages weighing over 12 ounces and up to 70 pounds. The service can be sent from any post office station or branch or through rural carriers and is available with insurance, return receipt, COD, certificates of mailing and Special Delivery.

Express Mail Next Day service offers weekend and delivery on Christmas Day at no extra charge, Goforth said. Packages up to 70 pounds can be sent by Express Mail.

Ebony Fair brings high fashion to Shryock

LaSean Williams, Kansas City, Mo., models during the Ebony Fashion Fair.

By Dave Wrone
Staff Writer

In a glittering explosion of exotic clothing designs and fast-paced musical accompaniment, "Fashion Scandal," Ebony's 29th annual Fashion Fair, gave Carbondale a tantalizing taste of high-fashion modeling.

According to Ebony, more than 200 works by some of the world's most well-known designers were featured in the show, which will eventually travel to 188 cities in the U.S., in addition to a performance in the Virgin Islands.

"Fashion Scandal" featured 13 professional models wearing works by Chloe, Yves Saint Laurent, Oscar De La Renta and Pierre Cardin, which were displayed during nearly two dazzling hours to a small but enthusiastic Shryock Auditorium audience Friday.

Ebony Magazine is an affiliate of Johnson Publishing Company, which owns and produces the Fashion Fair. The "Fashion Scandal" Carbondale show was sponsored by SIU-C's Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, according to Ebony, and the sorority will donate the show's proceeds to the United Negro College Fund. According to Ebony, the Fashion Fair has enabled its sponsors to raise over $23 million.

Titillating, spectacular and occasionally bordering on the verge of gravitational defiance, the plethora of contemporary and futuristic designs that flashed and swirled across Shryock's stage rarely failed to draw audible expressions of awe and approval from the audience.

Fashion compositions included winter sportswear, traveling clothes, daytime dressing, evening wear, swimming suits and a new line entitled "Futuristic Fashions for after Dark."

The models — 11 women and two men (identical twins) — were recruited from all regions of the U.S. Members hailed from Maryland, Kentucky, North Carolina, New York, California, Arkansas, Texas and Missouri.

Model LeSean Williams, a 1986 Kansas City, Mo., high school graduate, said she first learned of Ebony Fashion Fair through the efforts of her mother, who garnered the necessary information from the Fair's headquarters in Chicago and then convinced Williams to submit the required portfolio of photographs. After being interviewed along with 85 other applicants, Williams survived four "cuts" and was eventually chosen to be one of seven models needed to fill the vacancies left by departures from the 1985-86 troupe.

Like the other members of the troupe, Williams draws a weekly salary. She said she is very happy with "Fashion Scandal" and has learned much about the modeling industry from her travels with the troupe, which ends its tour in May, 1987.

In regard to the formidable number of designs she and her 12 co-workers model during a show, Williams said, "We change very quickly."

Tastebuds tantalized at Wine Expo

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

Table 13 held several bottles of Tobias Piesporter Gold-tropfen Riesling Auslese, vintage 1983. A case of 12 sells for $165.96.

The price was slightly less than that during Wine Expo '86 and while there weren't many buyers Thursday, nearly 500 people tasted about 165 wines in the Student Center ballrooms.

Illinois Liquor Marts, a cooperative of seven liquor warehouses in Southern Illinois, sponsored the event.

WSIU-TV gets the proceeds after expenses, said Steve Hoffmann, one of the co-owners of the ILM and organizer for the event. The amount garnered by the exposition was not available Sunday.

Hoffmann said an Expo provides an enjoyable atmosphere for people to learn about wine.

"It's fun. People come here because they're curious about wine," he said. "At an Expo, there are more wines than anyone can consume, even by sipping."

Five wholesalers used 43 tables to display their wines, including White Zinfandel, Chenin Blanc, Chardonnay and Riesling.

Tom Wikle, graduate student in geography, attended last year's Expo and returned this year. Although he said he's primarily a beer drinker, Wikle said he likes a White Zinfandel, a pink, sweet wine from Germany and usually served with light meals, chicken or tuna salad.

David Hilgedieck, who works for Kirner Distributors of Effingham, participated in last year's Expo. A serious wine drinker for three to four years, Hilgedieck says wine drinking is a "labor intensive activity."

The same grape can render different styles of wine, depending on the production methods used, he said. From the same grape, the French can make a smooth dry and the Germans, a semi-sweet, fruity wine.

Hoffmann said Americans immediately like German wines because they're sweet. "We're all part of the Pepsi generation," he said, "and we like anything with sugar."

He added that in courses he instructs, black coffee drinkers are usually the first to appreciate wine, especially red. "They already like something that isn't sweetened."

"Wine and food are natural combinations," Hoffmann said. "But wine is not to become inebriated on. It's for the appreciation of the beverage with a meal."

Hoffmann is planning to sponsor Wine Expo '87 and says that word-of-mouth will attract more people than a lot of advertising.

The Third World Connection

Peace Corps volunteers gain rewarding experience

Editor's note: This is the final article in a series on Southern Illinois' ties to Third World nations.

By Chad Ruback
Student Writer

If you think the cup is half empty, you might not be ready. But if you think the cup is half full, then the Peace Corps might be right for you, according to an early sixties ad campaign.

Tom Bik sees the cup as half full. And so does Jeff Kellogg. They experienced the thrill of seeing the cup filled. However, they let go of some American customs that had been convenient.

"I was given a mud house with a grass roof to live in," recalls Kellogg. "The standard of living was far lower than what we see here. But you have to realize that they are generally happy people."

BIK REMEMBERS coming home from journeys through the villages of Sierra Leone, Africa, and eating dinner with his neighbors, who he paid to cook for him.

After dinner, Bik explains, "I usually cleaned up, then went into the village. I'd sit by a lantern at one of the three corner shops. We'd sit there and talk or have a cigarette and then move on to the next shop."

But why leave a heated home in the United States for a bed inside a shack where the mosquito nets were as thick as the blankets? Why leave a highway-filled country to live in a land where crossing the country takes days of walking? And why subject yourself to continual questioning of whether you are involved with the CIA?

"I WAS raised in a family that valued helping other people. It was very important," said Kellogg of why he joined the Peace Corps.

Kellogg received a bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of Arizona and was working on a graduate degree from the University of Nebraska when he decided to take a break from school.

Kellogg decided to join the Peace Corps and packed his bags for a two-year stay in Jamaica. He, along with eight others, were recruited to train guidance counselors and to develop systems to teach counseling.

"We had to walk miles to get to the four-room schoolhouse," Kellogg remembers. "We even had to get a jeep just to get textbooks to these kids."

FRUSTRATED BY feelings of commonality, Kellogg and the other Peace Corps volunteers set up a more organized central office in the country's capital of Kingston. With help from the many state ministries, Kellogg filled the director's position of the new office.

He also helped with a child guidance clinic in which children from all over the country came seeking his help. Another director's position was given to him at the clinic. However, Kellogg feels his most satisfaction came when asked to work with a hospital.

Kellogg recalls the hospital being in bad shape when he arrived, adding that the patients were not adequately cared for and the run-down building smelled of human feces.

"THE QUESTION was really attitude change or functioning toilets, which comes first" said Kellogg, reasoning his choices of what to do with the few allotted monies.

"When we were looking around the hospital," Kellogg continued, "we found 45 children who had never been accounted for. They couldn't speak. They were like animals. When we placed food out for them, they would attack it."

Kellogg helped the Jamaican people design and set up a child adolescent unit for the National Psychiatric Hospital.

"It was interesting to watch these children learn to talk and grow," Kellogg added.

FOR BIK, the Peace Corps meant talking with people about their health problems as he walked from village to village in Sierra Leone.

"To us," Bik said referring to Americans, "sickness means one thing, treating it with an aspirin. They have different definitions of sickness and about sixteen different medicines to treat it with. I had to learn about their problems and definitions."

Bik also worked to set up a clinic, the first of its kind in the district. The clinic housed a maternity ward and a staff dispenser, whose job was to give vaccines and medicines to the villagers. Also, the staff dispenser referred patients to other, larger hospitals, sometimes miles away.

IN SETTING up the clinic he had to attain support from many ministries.

"We needed fruit trees for food and shade, gardens and materials," Bik explains. "We tried to involve as many ministries as possible, and as many people as possible to avoid any disturbance to the clinic if there was a political or even a family argument."

While helping people in Sierra Leone, Bik kept some working theories.

"I could have paid for the materials and things out of my own pocket. But I wanted to involve the native people. It's better for them to say it's 'our' project rather than saying it's the white guys'," Bik said. Kellogg agrees: "I was not interested in making people into anything. You have to really respect their individuality and attitudes. You are there to help them. It's easier to do things yourself, but don't."

BIK ENJOYED the custom of "samba," gift giving. He says everyone was always asking "what did you bring for me?" It was not considered a handout, it was an exchange. It was not a gift, it was the thought.

Bik recalls giving the caffeine-filled cola nut to the postal workers in exchange for his mail.

"They had a phrase, 'he who gives cola, gives life.' It was greater to give a cola nut than a transistor radio," Bik said.

Both agreed it was personally rewarding and challenging; it has also made it hard to readjust to the way of life back home in Southern Illinois.

Saluki center Mary Berghuis was named the Dial Classic tourney MVP this weekend in San Diego, Calif. Berghuis earned the honor by averaging over 14 points and 14 rebounds per game for the cage tourney, which the Salukis won.

Eackles, last year's juco player of the year, this year's offensive headliner and NBA material in one of the next two years, put on quite an offensive show for the sparse crowd that attended the consolation game, finishing with 35 points.

Eackles combined his talents with former Tulane starter Leroy Grandison to score 30 of NO's 44 first-half points.

Both games saw SIU-C in various zone defenses in an attempt to keep the over-matched Salukis in the game. The defenses applied by both Virginia and New Orleans clearly displayed that both

I think they didn't expect us to play as well as we did."

Saluki center Berghuis earned tourney MVP honors by scoring 23 points and grabbing 15 rebounds in a first-round thumping of Northern Arizona Friday night, 77-58.

As for highly-touted NAU center Dana Brickhouse, Berghuis said she would play a center like her any day. Aztec center 6-9 Connie Wakle surprised the bruising Berghuis though, who said she couldn't push that tower around.

Berghuis got the best of the championship matchup with Wakle despite having early foul trouble and scoring just six points. The Saluki post player did grab a game-high 14 boards.

Scott said she knew only one purpose for the Aztecs playing Wakle. "She took up a lot of space in the paint."

Kattreh, an all-tourney selection, nailed 30 points for the weekend. Bonds also made the all-tourney team, collecting totals of 27 points and 19 boards. The three Saluki all-tourney selections out of six possible choices could easily have included Fitzpatrick, who notched 24 points and 14 rebounds for the tourney.

Aztec Haynes, NAU's Mindy Sherrod, and Monmouth's Linda Wilson also were named to the all-tourney team for their outstanding efforts.

Seals also did a fine job from her new position on the point, making only 5 turnovers while snagging three steals for the tourney.

SALUKI SCORING against Northern Arizona: Kattreh 16 points, Bonds 18, Berghuis 23, Fitzpatrick 10, Seals 6, Marialice Jenkins 2, Wallace 2. Saluki scoring against the Aztecs: Kattreh 14, Bonds 9, Berghuis 6, Fitzpatrick 14, Seals 8, Jenkins 2, Wallace 2, Cathy Kampwerth 4.

teams were afraid of SIU-C's three-point abilities. Saluki forward Doug Novsek was the victim of a swarming defense every time he touched the ball.

Herrin and squad will now prepare for Wednesday night's 7:35 matchup with Big Eight power Nebraska at the Arena.

EIU grid team eliminated from I-AA playoffs

By Kent McMill
UPI Sports Writer

Eastern Kentucky eliminated Eastern Illinois from the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs this weekend, 24-22. Mike Whitaker threw two touchdown passes for the Colonels, who raised their record to 10-2-1 and advances to the semifinals.

Eastern Illinois finished its season 11-2. The Colonels had a 17-3 lead early in the third quarter and had a 24-10 advantage going into the final period. But Eastern Illinois quarterback Sean Payton, who is third on the NCAA all-time passing list with 10,996 yards, completed his first touchdown pass of the game, a 24-yarder to Roy Banks, midway through the fourth quarter to cut the difference to eight points, 24-16.

Payton hit Banks again with a 9-yard pass later in the fourth quarter but on the two-point conversion attempt, receiver DuWayne Pitts was bumped out of bounds by an Eastern Kentucky player, and Payton's pass fell incomplete.

An official dropped a penalty flag but after a conference by officials the pass was ruled uncatchable, nullifying the penalty.

"To overrule a call like that, it was a terrible way to go out," said Payton. "I hate having a game taken away from us like that."

"I don't think we played well enough as a team," said coach Al Molde. "We let some opportunities get away from us in the first half and that turned out to be crucial."

In other I-AA playoff action, No. 2 ranked Arkansas State downed Delaware 55-14 behind running back Ricky Jemison's 159 yard, two-touchdown performance.

Top-ranked Nevada-Reno smashed Tennessee State 33-6, and Georgia Southern knocked off Nicholls State 33-6 to complete the final four playoff field.

AUGUSTANA has set an NCAA record by advancing to the NCAA Division III championship game for the fifth straight year.

The Vikings will play Salisbury State for the Division III title next Saturday in Phenix City, Ala. Augustana advanced to the final by

SIU women take Dial cage classic

Saluki Berghuis tourney MVP

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — As a last second shot careened off the glass, the Saluki women cagers held on Saturday for a 59-57 win over San Diego State to take their third Dial Classic tournament.

A 31-all halftime stalemate broke open in the second period with the Salukis scoring six unanswered points. The Aztecs, who played well in spurts, stayed within range of SIU-C on the strength of point guard Lisa Stevens' and forward Jessica Haynes' heady play.

Led by guard Ann Kattreh and forward Dana Fitzpatrick, the Salukis used quickness and a sticky defense to build a 12-point margin with five minutes left in the contest. With tourney MVP center Mary Berghuis on the bench with foul trouble, Saluki coach Cindy Scott gambled on Cozette Wallace, who responded with seven rebounds down the stretch.

But a few mistakes with time running out threw a wrench in the works, as the Aztecs pressured for a couple of key turnovers and gathered Saluki misses. With 2:25 left, Aztec Brooke Meadows canned a pair of free throws to tighten the score to 56-53.

After a pair of untimely turnovers, a Saluki inbound pass at midcourt went to Bridgette Bonds, who breezed by Meadows for an easy layup to make the score 58-53. The Salukis got their final point when Kattreh hit the front end of a one-and-one with :49 left for a 59-55 margin to ice the game.

Haynes countered for the Aztecs with :22 left off an offensive rebound to make the final score 59-57.

Down the stretch the Salukis experienced trouble at the line, repeatedly throwing bricks after Aztec fouls. After Saluki guard Tonda Seals joined the list of masons with :18 left, Wallace gathered in her missed free throw only to give the ball back to the Aztecs.

In the final :15, the Saluki defense swarmed key Aztecs, leaving a shot to San Diego's Lynette Nutter, who missed hard off the iron. The rebound came out long to Haynes, and she managed one more Aztec shot from ten feet before time expired.

Although she led the game scoring with 23 points, Haynes most important shot fell astray to give the Salukis their third Dial title in as many appearances.

"We tried to give it away, but San Diego didn't want it either," Scott joked to a gathering of Saluki alumni after the game.

Aztec coach Earnest Riggins said, "We showed character each night by coming back." The Aztecs had to come from behind Friday to beat Monmouth (New Jersey), 54-52. "We gave Southern a run, and

Flutie stars as Bears wreck Bucs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Quarterback Doug Flutie ran for one touchdown and threw for another to spark a 21-point second quarter Sunday and Chicago's defense forced five turnovers to lead the Bears to a 48-14 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Flutie, who Coach Mike Ditka had promised would play, relieved Tomczak in the second quarter. The former Heisman Trophy winner, who had seen brief action in Chicago's 23-3 triumph over the Bucs in Tampa last month, scored on a 4-yard run and hit Payton on a 27-yard touchdown pass with 20 seconds left in the first half to move the Bears to a 28-0 halftime lead. Flutie completed 2 of 7 throws for 79 yards in playing one quarter.

Walter Payton, who went over the 16,000-yard career rushing mark, scored a pair of touchdowns. Mike Tomczak, who started at quarterback for Chicago, threw for one score and ran for another against the NFL's worst-rated defense.

Chicago, 12-2, won its fifth straight and sent the Buccaners, 2-12, to their fifth loss in a row. Tampa Bay lost its eighth straight to the Bears on a day when intermittent rain made the Soldier Field artificial turf slick.

The Bears forced three fumbles, two interceptions and recorded three sacks of Steve Young.

Tampa Bay was held to only four first downs in the first half and committed turnovers on four of its first eight offensive plays.

Men hoopsters fall to Virginia, New Orleans

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

Despite going 0-for-Virginia, the Saluki men's basketball squad returns from the Investors Classic a better club.

A pair of losses didn't land coach Rich Herrin his pretournament goal of splitting the East coast action, but the Salukis did play respectable basketball against two teams with vastly superior talent.

Facing their toughest competition of the year, the Salukis played well but lost to host Virginia 94-82 on Saturday night.

The Cavaliers threatened to blow it out twice in the first half, but each time the Salukis scrapped back to keep in the game. SIU-C managed to pull within 45-40, but a series of quick buckets and a foul call with no time showing on the clock gave the Cavs a 55-42 lead at the half.

A quick barrage of points opening the second half put the Cavs up 62-45, prompting Herrin to call a timeout and regroup his squad.

The point margin varied from as much as 23 points to a low of 11, but the Salukis could never pull closer. Six straight points at the end of the game pulled the Dogs to within 94-82 at the final buzzer.

"I was very pleased with the effort," Herrin said. "We couldn't be laid down and given up at the half, but we kept on fighting."

The Cavs were led by 6-7 forward Andrew Kennedy, who hit on 10-of-15 field goals and 10-of-13 free throws for the first Cavalier 30-point game since the days of Ralph Sampson. Kennedy's counterpart at forward, Tom Sheehey, turned in a 10-of-11 field goal performance to finish with 21 points.

Saluki forward Doug Novsek hit on six of nine three pointers to keep the Dogs close, but his three-point bonus shots couldn't overcome the advantage SIU-C handed Virginia at the free throw line.

While SIU-C shot just 13 freethrows (hitting on 10), the Cavs were hitting on 28 of 38 at the charity stripe. Despite a lopsided final score of 93-77, the Salukis played well against the University of New Orleans in the tournament consolation game, but couldn't overcome 29 turnovers and the offensive punch of junior Lydell Eckles.

SIU-C jumped to an early five-point lead, but twice fell behind by 10 points before Randy House hit a LONG three-pointer at the buzzer to pull within five at 44-39.

The Privateers came out smoking, though, and combined sizzling field goal shooting with a trio of Salukis misses under the basket during the first two minutes of the half to build a 64-44 lead. In the first eight minutes of the half, NO outscored the Salukis 20-5 and the game was never in question again.
