Greeks bring holiday cheer to preschoolers in day care

The fraternity brothers of Theta Xi raced preschool children through the hallways of the Student Center's fourth floor in little red wagons, bringing smiles to the children's faces.

That was the atmosphere Friday at Operation Happy Holidays, a party for preschoolers sponsored by the Inter-Greek Council.

"It's just a time for kids to come and have fun," Stefanie Jurgens, co-chairperson of the event, said. "It's kind of a tradition every year."

The children were invited from Carbondale's day care centers, including the World of Oz and Rainbow's End, Jurgens said.

"We had about 70 to 75 kids all together," she said. "It seemed kind of chaotic, but that's normal with 75 kids."

Twelve of the chapters in the Inter-Greek Council participated in the event. Each chapter had its own responsibilities ranging from decorations to wagon rides. "Each chapter had to do a particular booth for the children," Todd Abrams, Inter-Greek Council representative, said.

Some of the activities included making stockings, watching Christmas stories on television, decorating cookies and having refreshments.

"Each chapter comes up with its own idea and funds the project itself," Jurgens said. She said the Inter-Greek Council bought all the gifts.

"I feel it was a terrific success. It was a benefit to the kids and it ends up to be a lot of fun for us, too," she said.

"In college, you kind of forget how much kids enjoy Santa Claus," Jurgens said.

Party lets children create crafts

'Twas a Christmas party and all through Stone House about 70 children gathered to make crafts, eat and hear about jolly ole Saint Nick.

SIU-C President John C. Guyon, his wife, Joyce, Chancellor Lawrence Pettit and his wife, Libby, were honorary hosts of a party Saturday for children whose parents are residents of Evergreen Terrace and Southern Hills. The housing units for married students are on the east and south sides of campus.

The children were bussed to Stone House for two hours of refreshments, craft making and fun.

Mike Dunn, director of Intramural Recreational Sports who organized meetings for the party, said this is the first year a children's party has been held at Stone House.

Dunn said children attending the party were about

Western frat to fight ruling of suspension

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity members at Western Illinois University plan to appeal by 4 p.m. today a university ruling suspending the fraternity from campus for one year, John Clopek, fraternity president, said.

The suspension, which will be followed by a one-year probation if members choose to re-form, was ordered after a hearing by the university's Interfraternity Council judicial board and Council of Student Welfare.

The woman who has accused fraternity members of sexual assault was not present at the hearing to either testify or be questioned nor were the names of the accused mentioned during the hearing, Clopek said.

"The so-called evidence used (during the hearing) was circumstantial," Clopek said. "Nothing could or was proved."

Two years ago, Western's charter of Phi Sigma Kappa was Phi Sigma Epsilon until Epsilon merged into Kappa at the national level.

Clopek said the university hasn't wanted anything to do with the fraternity since then.

"They've wanted us off campus for a long time," he said. "They pursued this and threw the book at us unjustly because they finally thought they had something on us."

Andrew Soldati, an SIU Phi Sigma Kappa member who was a member of Western's charter before transferring to SIU, said the group has been on the edge of probation for various things.

"If they lose the charter it's no big deal. They will wait a year and re-establish themselves as Phi Sigma Epsilon, non-national," Soldati said. "I went to Western about a month ago and they were thinking of doing it (changing) no matter what."

"I'm glad I'm here, Phi Sigma Kappa is more me," he said.

However, Clopek claims it's a rumor and that he's never heard of the idea.

Brent Neas, vice president of the fraternity at SIU, said Phi Sigma Kappa concentrates on academics at this University whereas academics are secondary to fraternity members at Western.

"They're (Phi Sigma Epsilon) a bunch of idiots. It's great to have a fun time at a party, but they're just animals and party all the time," Neas said. "I'm not saying that we party less than any normal college student, though."

"They've wanted us off campus for a long time. They pursued this and threw the book at us unjustly."

—John Clopek

"I don't know what their problem is, but we don't have the setting for it," he said.

A Western investigation and hearing was scheduled after a Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority member alleged that she had been gang raped by Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity members at a Nov. 7 party.

There were no criminal charges filed and the Macomb Police Department has closed their investigation.

Ron Gerhon, vice president of student affairs at Western who will decide the appeal, said the regulations the fraternity violated include:

—Alcohol policy for students;

—Putting a person in position of harm or causing harm to a person;

—And, greek responsibilities.

"There was no responsibility shown to control the event that occurred the evening of the incident based on the evidence presented," Gerhon said. "That's what I was told."

However, he said he will consider anything raised in the appeal.

The university hasn't received any major complaints against Phi Sigma Kappa in the last two years, Gerhon said.

Acid rain report upsets Canadians

Editor's note: This is the first article in a three-part series on acid rain.

By Jim Black
Staff Writer

A U.S. report that claims damage from acid rain no longer is increasing has Canadian officials up in arms because they say it implies acid rain-control legislation is not needed in the United States. Canadian officials and many environmentalists say much of the damage attributed to acid rain north of the U.S. border stems from pollutants created in the United States.

However, some experts agree that acid rain has stabilized and that legislation is not needed.

Ross Glasgow, director of the environmental sector of the Canadian Embassy in Washington, D.C., said the main point of contention is the wording of the executive summary. The summary is the part of the report read by most legislators and journalists.

But Daniel D'Auben, manager of the Air Quality Unit of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, said: "I think the NAPAP was pretty successful at taking a balanced ap-

To the dismay of Memphis State coach Mary Lou Johns, her team left its halftime game plan in the locker room.

The Salukis' offense took full advantage of the Lady Tigers' second-half breakdown for an 84-62 victory Saturday.

"We played only half of a ball game," said Johns of her 0-3 club. "I don't know if we forgot to fuel up at half or what. In the second half we packed up and went home."

The Arena crowd of 1,123 — the fourth largest to watch the women's basketball team — saw the 14th-ranked Salukis break free of a slim 3-31 halftime lead and outscore Memphis State 51-31 in the second half.

"It's a big win for our program," said coach Cindy Scott, whose Salukis stand 2-1 on the season.

"Memphis State looks for the quick shot, the quick score, and we took that away from them."

Mary Berghuis had 20 points and 10 rebounds to lead the Salukis. Her second-effort goal off a missed shot at 5:49 put SIU-C ahead 65-51 and ended any comeback hopes Memphis State might have entertained.

Memphis State found its baseline-to-baseline offense curtailed. The Lady Tigers converted only two fast-break baskets, both by guard Rhonda Lauderdale in the first half.

"We tried all sorts of combinations and couldn't find that one to spark us. We had chances to push the ball down court, and we walked it up instead. We never broke out," Johns said.

Scott said her squad's team defense prevented Memphis State from running. "We got back on the transition, a key for us. The defense was good."

Dana Fitzpatrick had seven of the Salukis' 16 steals. Despite having 16 points and six assists, Fitzpatrick was more delighted with her defensive performance.

"That's the part of the game I enjoy. If I had my way I wouldn't set up the offense, I'd just play defense," Fitzpatrick said.

Cathy Kampwerth had 13 points while Bridgett Bonds and Deanna Sanders had 10 each for the Salukis.

Wanda Dillard had 16 points, Beth Brown 12 and Lauderdale 11 for Memphis State.

With 12:25 showing, the Salukis took their biggest lead of the first half when Bonds sank a loose ball basket for a 19-8 lead.

Memphis State had its first lead of the game at 7:55 of the first half 22-21 when Lauderdale went full-court for a layup after a steal.

The score changed hands 10 times before the end of the first half.

Regina Banks collected a back door pass from Bonds with 12:17 left in the game to put the Salukis ahead 51-46. At 9:24 Bonds made a move of her own, losing her defender with a ball fake before driving down the right baseline for the score. That put the Salukis on top 55-48.

No. 54 Cathy Kampwerth and Mary Berghuis keep a Memphis State player from scoring. Second-half domination by the Salukis shut down Memphis as the team won by a 22-point margin Saturday at the Arena. The crowd of 1,123 was the 4th largest to watch the women.

Men cagers split weekend to finish 3rd at Florida meet

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The men's basketball team split two games and took third in the Miami Invitational Tournament over the weekend in Coral Gables, Fla.

The Salukis lost 82-77 to South Carolina, the eventual tournament champion, in the first round. SIU-C then took out its frustration against Colgate in the consolation game, blasting the Red Raiders 105-78.

Against Colgate, the Salukis took a 2-0 lead on a Rick Shipley basket and never looked back. By the 10-minute mark of the first half, the Salukis had a 41-21 lead on the basis of red-hot shooting against a variety of zone defenses. SIU-C hit 16 of its first 19 attempts, including six three-pointers.

Just before the half ended, Kai Nurnberger hit the Page 16, Daily Egyptian, December 7, 1987

Salukis' eighth three-pointer to give the Salukis a 65-38 lead.

The Salukis cruised through the second half and maintained the 27-point margin. It marked the widest victory margin during coach Rich Herrin's three years at SIU-C.

The Salukis improved to 3-2 while Colgate dropped to 0-4.

Steve Middleton, playing in front of his parents, was the Salukis' leading scorer with 28 points. Randy House scored 18, Todd Krueger, who started at center, had 13 and Nurnberger finished with 12.

In the opening round, the Salukis had to play catch-up all game after scoring just once in their first eight possessions.

Much like the Evansville game, the Salukis were hurt by the lack of an inside game. SIU-C was out-rebounded 40-33. South Carolina's starting front line out-scored the Salukis' starting front line (House, Shipley and Richardson), 47-28.

The foul-prone Salukis committed 30 fouls. As a result, the Gamecocks scored 27 points at the free-throw line. By contrast, SIU-C scored 27 of its points on three-pointers.

Eight minutes into the game, South Carolina built a 18-7 lead. Three minutes later, the Salukis cut the lead to four after two Shipley free throws, marking the first score by an SIU-C big man.

But, as happened throughout the game, the Gamecocks ran off a string of points every time they were threatened. South Carolina pulled out to an 11-point lead with four minutes remaining in the half. The Salukis cut the lead to 37-31 at intermission.

The Gamecocks opened the second half by hitting their

The Salukis carded 44 individual wins, paving the way for a men's third-place and a women's sixth-place finish over the weekend at the Alabama National Invitational Tournament.

"We proved the polls aren't lying about our ranking," coach Doug Ingram said. "We came to this tournament to see if our ranking was legitimate."

The Salukis opened up with dual meets against Southern Methodist University. The 17th-ranked men beat No. 18 SMU 62-51 and the women lost a close meet to SMU 74-66.

Team co-captain Lori Rea carded NCAA qualifying time of 55.63 in the 100-yard butterfly and Scott Roberts carded a NCAA qualifying time of 1:49.62 in the 200-yard backstroke. Rea also won the 50-yard freestyle and Roberts also won the 200-yard freestyle.

Swimmers normally do not qualify this early in the season. "I think they will lead the way for our other swimmers, they showed our people that you can make it if you prepare well in and out of the pool," Ingram said.

Other first-place finishes the first day included Eric Bradac with two wins, Harri Garmendia two, Kevin Nagy two, Amy Witherite two, Jim Haefner one and co-captain Karen McIntyre one.

U.S., Canada to complete details of free trade pact

OTTAWA (UPI) — U.S. and Canadian officials were expected to complete work Sunday on the final details of a comprehensive free trade agreement between the world's largest trading partners, a senior American negotiator said. The legal text contained only the broad outlines of a comprehensive pact, including provisions for eliminating tariffs on cross-border trade over a 10-year period beginning Jan. 1, 1989, and a two-nation tribunal that would hear trade-related disputes.

Iranian attack on Danish ship in Gulf kills one

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iranian attacks in the Persian Gulf Sunday killed a seaman on a Danish tanker and left a second ship in flames, while shipping officials said an Iraqi warjet accidentally fired an Exocet missile at a Saudi Arabian island. A helicopter sent to the 50,000-ton Estelle Maersk to evacuate a Dane, who later died, and an Italian crewman who was seriously wounded crashed on landing when its rotor blade struck deck equipment, shipping officials said.

Soviet police detain pre-summit protesters

MOSCOW (UPI) — Police broke up a pre-summit protest by Jewish refuseniks at the Soviet Foreign Ministry Sunday, detained Cable News Network bureau chief Peter Arnett for four hours and roughed up his crew as they filmed the confrontation. At least three of the Jewish protesters, including a 14-year-old girl, were hauled off by police but were released several hours later. Witnesses said they saw Galina Khremin, Boris Chernobylski and his daughter Julia, 14, roughed up and pushed into a blue-and-white police bus.

India shows off new squadron of Soviet jets

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — India displayed a squadron of brand-new Soviet MiG-29 jet fighters Sunday, showing off part of a group of jets intended to counter U.S.-made F-16's possessed by Pakistan, the Press Trust of India said. The Soviet Union is India's main arms supplier and has not provided the MiG-29 to any Warsaw Pact nation, nor displayed its frontline jet at the Paris and Farnborough air shows.

Prison hostages to get bonuses, vacations

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hostages in the 12-day takeover at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary will get $1,000 bonuses, extra pay and a vacation, officials said. Total cost of two Cuban uprisings was put in the tens of millions. Bureau of Prisons officials said the hostages held between Nov. 23 and Dec. 4 will receive 40 hours of pay — eight hours straight pay plus overtime — for each day they were held, a week of paid vacation and the bonus for a total outlay of some $500,000.

Soviets toughen demands about 'Star Wars'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In what appeared to be a pre-summit negotiating maneuver, the Soviet Union stepped away Sunday from an earlier relaxation of their demands concerning President Reagan's "Star Wars" strategic defense program. In assessing prospects for further progress in nuclear arms talks beyond the intermediate forces treaty to be signed Tuesday, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said limits on the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative "is not an issue now."

Marchers push Russia for religious freedom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 200,000 Jewish Americans, many chanting "Let our people go," marched down Constitution Avenue Sunday and urged Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to extend his policy of glasnost, or openness, to Soviet Jews. On the eve of the three-day American-Soviet summit, demonstrators called on Gorbachev to allow 2 million Soviet Jews to emigrate freely and to practice religious freedom.

Memorial to be held for Pearl Harbor attack

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (UPI) — At exactly 7:55 a.m. today a somber hush will fall over Pearl Harbor to mark the 46th anniversary of the Japanese attack that claimed more than 2,400 lives and catapulted the United States into World War II. Military officials aboard the USS Arizona Memorial, just several feet above the watery grave for 1,102 Navy men, plan to observe a moment of silence to remember the exact minute of the Japanese attack on Dec. 7, 1941.

'Christmas Carol' comes to Shryock

By Curtie Winston
Entertainment Editor

A tight cast, realistic special effects, a lavish set and colorful costumes brought the pages of Charles Dickens' classic novel to life in the Nebraska Theater Caravan's musical production of "A Christmas Carol," performed Saturday evening at Shryock Auditorium.

anyone who has had to repair a broken life.

Esvang, a Chicago native who received his master of fine arts degree from Western Illinois University, said the production was "close to the spirit intended by Dickens." He said that he had worked with many of the cast members before, and the close cast made getting into the spirit of the production easier.

Esvang's Scrooge seemed like he might be a decent human being through his humorous portrayal.

Scrooge showed hope towards being human from the beginning when his nephew Fred gives him a bright red muffler for a Christmas gift. In his language and stinging, Scrooge seemed like an uncompromising old man, but when he donned the ridiculously long scarf one could tell his coldness was a coverup for the pain of a bitter and lonely man.

In his apartment, Scrooge appeared almost childish as he warmed his buttocks at the fireplace and loudly slurped his soup.

Other than Esvang's Scrooge, the most memorable and chilling portrayal was Don Richard as Marley's ghost. With a lot of smoke and green lighting, combined with a booming voice, the scary Marley caused many of the small children in the audience to burst into tears.

Some of the other great performances included the crippled Tiny Tim Cratchit, played by nine-year old Allyson Faikie; Scrooge's im-

Theater Review

Richard Esvang led the cast with his brilliant portrayal of Ebenezer Scrooge, a crotchety old miser who tries to make the lives of his fellow men as bitter as his own, and alienates himself from the celebration of Jesus Christ's birthday.

Even though Scrooge is the star, Esvang said "A Christmas Carol" isn't about Scrooge. In a post-show interview in the Shryock lobby, Esvang said the show is about "the people who are affected by Scrooge."

"I don't see Scrooge as a mean person who suddenly changes into a good being," Esvang said. "He's a pathetic person... a lonely person, he's lost his friend and co-worker Jacob Marley."

Now in his third season as Scrooge, Esvang said "A Christmas Carol" isn't just about Christmas either. "After his ordeal with the Ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Future, Scrooge says, 'my life is my own to make amends,' and he means it's not too late to pick up the pieces." He said the part of Scrooge is for six to 10 years old. However, parents who wanted to come with younger children were encouraged to do so, he said.

The expenses for the party, which probably totaled less than $500, were shared by sponsors, Dunn said.

The party was sponsored by the Office of Student Affairs, International Programs and Services, University Housing, Office of Student Development with Rainbow's End preschool, Non-Traditional Student Office, Office of Intramural Sports, and the International Student Council. The children were divided into two groups for activities. One group worked on crafts such as traditional Chinese painting, paper folding and making Christmas ornaments from yarn and popsicle sticks. The crafts will be donated to senior citizens at Christmas.

The other group was given "passports" and pencils for their magical mystery tour around the world. Several international students and instructors brought items from their countries to show the children.

Some of the countries represented were China,

Singapore, Japan, Iran, Colombia, Argentina, Nigeria, Cyprus, Pakistan and Monaco.

A "tour guide" led the children to each display where their passports were stamped, and they wrote something about the country.

When one group of children finished touring, they switched rooms with the group making crafts so the children had a chance to participate in all the activities.

"It's been fun, they're enjoying it," Guyon said

Booze ban reversal a tolerant approach

CARBONDALE'S CITY COUNCIL gave evidence of social tolerance — or at least fiscal awareness — in its decision to allow alcohol consumption at Sunset Concerts. In voting 3-to-2 on Nov. 23, the council overturned its own decision that made drinking liquor illegal at the once-popular summer concerts held at Turley Park.

The Sunset Concerts were held to dwindling crowds last summer, a fact possibly explained by both the booze ban as well as some suspect bands. Traditionally, the Sunset crowds have consisted mainly of University students. A German polka band, while perfectly acceptable for an audience that has an interest in such music, is not exactly the stuff of which swelled, college crowds are made.

By allowing alcohol at the concerts, the council is banking on bigger crowds, thus providing a greater opportunity for the survival of the concert series — and more money for Carbondale.

BEFORE THE ALCOHOL ban was imposed, the crowds at the Sunset Concerts generally were well-behaved, even mellow and "laid back." Violence, such as the commonplace acts of ignorance at Springfest and Halloween, was at a minimum at the concerts.

This overall crowd mellowness probably was the main reason the alcohol ban was instituted in the first place. It's always easier to hassle the sheep than the wolves.

Now that the city has rid itself of an ignorant, unrealistic alcohol policy, it should focus its wrath where there is a need for it: setting traps for the social varmints who terrorize peaceful revelers at Springfest and Halloween.

RAPE, BEATINGS AND other forms of violence occur regularly at these events, which increase in popularity each year. Both the city and the University should take a hard look at the unpleasant facts, as well as the animalistic behavior, associated with the Spring Fest and Halloween spectacles. Perhaps then they would see the glaring light, a light beaming a simple message: these events are out-of-control and a disgrace to the community.

Not many people would advocate going back to farming's horse and buggy days, but there does seem to be a growing reaction against agricultural methods and programs that pollute the environment and disadvantage family operations.

Concern is developing over the almost universal use of chemical fertilizers, weed killers and pesticides...

To be sure, these have led this country to production levels unheard of in most parts of the world. But they also have brought about contamination of streams and ground water supplies and high operating costs that small farms find difficult and often impossible to absorb.

IPIRG feedback needed

Students for IPIRG have finally come before the Student Senate to have their $3 per semester waivable student fee approved. The Student Senate decided to table the issue for further study I voted to table the issue because I want to hear what students have to say.

Spring semester of last year, Students for IPIRG held a petition drive.

The group claims that because 10,000 students signed the petition, that they all are in favor of having to mark on their bursar's bill if they don't want to pay the fee. If they forget or don't know to mark the box, they will get charged.

What I want is for students to voice their opinions about IPIRG through letters in the Daily Egyptian. Students need to write and answer the following questions:

1. Did you sign the IPIRG petition? Why or why not?
2. Are you in favor of a waivable fee, a voluntary fee (in which you mark your bursar's bill only if you want to pay the fee), a fee of less than $3 or no fee?
3. Do you want student government to have any control over the fee?
4. Are you in favor of having an IPIRG chapter at SIU-C?

I would like students to take a stance on this issue. The Student Senate will be making a decision on this issue early next semester. If you have any comments, I'm willing to listen. Chuck Hagerman, student senator, senior, biology.

Commie aggression lurking in DE

My letter saying "peace" groups wrongly used religion (Nov. 11) was edited and a reference omitted. Later, in support of Marxism, another writer chose to attack two distorted phrases the Daily Egyptian signed my name to.

Any student of Marx would realize he had been suckered by a Communist tactic — censorship and its consequent propagation of lies through the manipulation of ignorant readers.

I know people who have been treated to sentence-cutting, rewording and outright censorship (omissions because the editors disagree for some reason) by the DE in various semesters. I asked that this letter not be "edited." The editor assured me it would be edited and that the practice would not be stopped just because I was "irate."

The subject is not whether I'm angry, but whether freedom, truth, accuracy and fairness will be observed by this paper, allowing readers to express (and read) exactly what was meant.

The DE's practice of distorting letters compares to communist censorship in its ultimate concrete effects. Many readers would like to know if Janet Belcove-Shalin, who had painfully unfortunate discussions with campus ministers about graduation prayers, had her words distorted as well. Thanks to local "religious" people and atheists, moral leaders will no longer have the freedom to speak.

So when our pro-Marx reader is contacted by the Church of the Good Marxist and offered a discount trip to and from communist Nicaragua (with impunity, of course — Marxists and anti-Reagan socialists don't need amnesty like Nicaraguan citizens do), or a special place at the head of the table to personally support Salvadoran leftists condemning the United States, he can remember this letter.

He can also remember that there are many who are leaving our Carbondale churches because they actively engage in promotion of leftist political causes in Central America. The communist dream of making the church the oppressor now exists in Carbondale.

Unlike Christianity, communism and Nazism both require the creation of convincing stains upon a society to satisfy the intent to replace a flawed past with a marvelous new world. The answer, instead, lies within the hearts of good people, not in the fantasy of obliterating past woes by concentrating on evil.

Do our ears hear the voices of Marxist liberation theologians condemning fundamentalists while lining up to the Catholics and vice-versa? (In order to simulate the denomination-hatred struggle, as is so prominent now among Hispanics). When the money bucket comes around, do we ask, "Whose political cause am I serving?"

Intellectual questions are disliked intensely by communists. But censorship and "editing" contribute to the ignorance of the masses — a must for Marxism to flourish. Please, DE, don't do it anymore. — Linda G. Nelson, admissions and records.

Police Blotter

A student's vehicle was vandalized and a stereo taken from the vehicle after it had been abandoned on Springer Ridge Road, near Pomona Ridge School House, a representative from the Jackson County Sheriff's Department said.

Tracy Bartoni, 25, of Carbondale, abandoned her vehicle after she swerved to miss a deer and her vehicle landed in a ditch.

Bartoni received a ride into Carbondale by a passerby, according to reports.

All the vehicle's windows had been broken and a stereo taken.

There are no suspects. Anyone with information should contact the Jackson County Sheriff's Department.

A student was arrested and charged with aggravated battery at 2:30 a.m. Dec. 6 in the Student Center, University police said.

Anthony House, 22, of Carbondale, allegedly hit a police officer who was attempting to remove House from the Student Center, police said.

Kimberly Williams, 20, of Carbondale, had asked police to remove House from an Alpha Kappa Alpha dance for allegedly harrasing her. As Williams was talking to police, House hit Williams then hit a police officer who was attempting to subdue him.

House is in the Jackson County Jail awaiting a court appearance today.

poorish-but-merry clerk Bob Cratchit by Peter Colburn; the lovely ghost of Christmas past by Debra Yancy; and the wassail-swilling Ghost of Christmas Present by Michael Moore.

A small touring orchestra of four musicians playing bassoon, clarinet, flute and piccolo, percussion and piano, gave a full sound to the traditional Christmas songs which included "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen," "Wassail, Wassail," "The Coventry Carol," "Holly and Ivy" and "Greensleeves."

Special effects included Scrooge's bed, which mysteriously moved around the stage with no apparent power source, and a 12-foot-high Ghost of Christmas Future.

The production currently is on a tour of 17 midwestern cities. It is one of three companies of the Nebraska Theater Caravan touring the country with "A Christmas Carol." The caravan is the professional touring wing of the Omaha Community Playhouse, where the production was written ten years ago by Charles Jones, executive director of the community theater.

Fred Ruback, production road manager, said the production is in its ninth year, and it progresses from year to year, getting better each time.

"It would be interesting to have a ghost take us back to nine years ago," Ruback said.

The tour of "A Christmas Carol" employs about 120 theater professionals from around the country. Included in the cast was Briget Wiley, who appeared this season in McLeod Theater's Summer Playhouse productions as Mame in "Mame" and as Snookie Updegraff in "110 In The Shade."

The report, labeled as interim by the National Acid Precipitation Assessment Program, marks the midway point of a 10-year research project funded by the U.S. government. It was released in mid-September.

The report makes no recommendation about legislation. It was intended in part to educate legislators about acid rain.

BUT SOME feel that by not addressing whether there is a need for legislation, the summary implies legislation isn't needed.

Scientists say acid rain occurs when sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide emitted by coal-burning power plants and automobiles return to Earth in rain and snow.

Glasgow said the summary presents a "misleading picture of the situation." He added that the research presented in the main body of the report, a four-volume text, is "of very good quality. We have no quarrels with that."

D'Auben, however, said: "The interim assessment only said that basically at this point the problem is stable," he added. "It's not getting worse."

SOME U.S. environmentalists agree with Glasgow.

Betty Olt, assistant director of public affairs of the National Audubon Society in Washington, D.C., said: "We do not quibble with the statistics presented, just the way they were presented."

Glasgow said the summary makes selective use of information from the research to make the acid rain problem seem less severe than the research indicates.

"The basic conclusion of any reader (of the summary) is that acid rain is not a serious problem and that no action is required at this time," Glasgow said.

GLASGOW DISAGREES with this conclusion. "We are absolutely convinced that acid rain is a very serious problem in the Canadian environment," he said. "It is getting worse and will continue to get worse until the levels of (acidic) deposition are reduced."

"We estimate that 50 percent of the (acidic) deposition in Canada comes from pollutants generated in the U.S.," he said.

David Arey, assistant director of SIU-C's Coal Extraction and Utilization Research Center, agrees that the report de-emphasizes the need for legislation.

"If you had to characterize the report," Arey said, "it certainly lies to the less-urgent side of the policy issue."

KEVIN GREEN, research director of Citizens for a Better Environment, put it a bit more strongly.

"The Executive Summary isn't worth the paper it's printed on," he said. "They're playing right into the hands of the coal and utility industries."

Canadian officials are concerned that the implication that stronger acid rain controls are not immediately needed may affect the passage of control bills before Congress.

D'Auben said: "They (NAPAP) didn't give them (Congress) the smoking gun. (But) Canada is saying there is a smoking gun."

Glasgow said he wants to see legislation passed by Congress that would strengthen acid rain control.

"CANADA DOES not want to involve itself in how the U.S. tries to control acid rain," he said. "But we do think we have a legitimate role in saying to the U.S. that it must be dealt with."

Glasgow said he and the Canadian Ambassador to the United States, Allan Gottlieb, have sent three letters urging legislation to House Energy and Commerce Committee chairman John D. Dingell, D-Mich.

Glasgow said he has seen "surprisingly little results coming out of his (Dingell's) committee."

He also objects to the level of acidity that the report uses to define a body of water as polluted.

THE ACIDITY of liquids is shown by the pH scale. The scale runs from 0 to 14. A value of 7.0 is considered neutral; any value less than 7.0 is acidic. The scale is logarithmic, which means pH 5.0 is 10 times as acidic as pH 6.0. The more acid in a lake, the more damaging it is to the organisms living in and around the water.

A level of pH 5.0 is used by the NAPAP to define a polluted lake. Glasgow called the report's use of 5.0 "a very inappropriate bench mark to determine when damage is being done."

"The food chain begins to be affected at pH 6.0 or 5.8," he said. "At pH 5.0 fish begin to die, but they have already been dying from lack of food."

"WE WOULD argue that it would be much more appropriate to use pH 6.0 to define an acid lake," Glasgow said.

"It's outrageous," Audobon's Olt said. "There's quite a lot of scientific evidence that points to lakes being damaged at levels higher (less acidic) than that (pH 5.0)."

Olt noted that fish eggs begin to die at pH 5.3 and that salmon, bass and trout begin to die at pH 5.9.

Arey said the use of pH 5.0 was not a point of contention when the NAPAP was begun in 1982. Canadian officials and environmental groups protested it only when they saw the relatively small number of lakes designated acidic by the use of pH 5.0, he said.

D'Auben said he thinks the use of pH 5.0 is reasonable. "Naturally occurring rain is at pH 5.6," he added.

TUESDAY: Acid rain legislation could cost 6,000 Illinois jobs.

One-man Christmas play depicts rural decay, farmers' problems

By Curtis Winston
Entertainment Editor

The problems of decaying rural life will be examined in "Heritage," a story of farmer's problems to be performed at 8 tonight and Tuesday in the Laboratory Theater, 1045 Communications.

Admission is free.

Set on Christmas Day at a Midwestern farm, "Heritage" is a monodrama, a one-actor play, starring Brent Lappin. It was directed by Charrissa Cook, graduate student in theater.

Lappin, graduate student in theater, said the play was written for him by his former roommate Kenton Kersting, a 1987 graduate of the Department of Theater.

"Kersting and I both came from farm backgrounds," Lappin said. The play was a combination of Kersting's and Lappin's rural experiences.

Lappin portrays a young, recently widowed father who comes back to his parents farm for Christmas Day. The play examines the man's decision whether or not to leave his son with his parents while he gets his life back together or to raise the boy himself.

"I don't want it to be a farm play for farmers... I want the man's conflict to be felt by everyone," Lappin said.

Lappin said the term "monodrama" came about because the term one man show makes people think the play is going to be about a famous person such as Mark Twain, Abraham Lincoln or Franklin D. Roosevelt. He said a monodrama is about "regular people."

Caucus says teens with babies face daycare, support problems

By Tom Trotter
Staff Writer

Lack of day care facilities and family support are two of the biggest problems facing teen mothers, a member of the Illinois Caucus for Teenage Pregnancy said Friday.

"Without day care, the teen mother cannot get a job unless there is family support, which is uncommon," Fred Isberner, assistant professor of consumer economics and family support, said.

Isberner is one of several members of the caucus who met Friday at the Wesley Foundation to discuss problems in providing day care for teen mothers.

Those problems include lack of money to provide proper facilities and lack of transportation for teens to and from day-care centers.

Isberner said many teen mothers face financial strain.

"Even if they get minimum-wage jobs, expenses such as medical costs, food, clothing and shelter are too great," he said.

Last year in Illinois, 12.5 percent, about 22,000, of all babies, were born to teenage mothers, according to a caucus report in June.

Last year in Illinois, 12.5 percent, about 22,000, of all babies were born to teenage mothers.

In Jackson County, teen births made up 11.8 percent of all births, according to the report.

The caucus has three goals for helping alleviate the problem of teen pregnancy, Isberner said:

—Prevent teen pregnancy through education;

—Promote healthy teen pregnancies;

—Promote programs and services to "pull teens up out of poverty and give them hope."

Isberner, as well as Mary Davidson, director of the school of social work on campus, have been elected to the caucus board of directors by members state wide, Isberner said.

Bunny Shupe, director of the caucus' Schools Project, said the caucus will continue to have public hearings and sponsor workshops or solving problems of pregnant teens.

Decision on IPIRG postponed

By Dena Schulte
Staff Writer

Students for the Illinois Public Interest Research Group is seeking the support of the Undergraduate Student Organization for IPIRG and a $3 student fee increase to operate the organization.

USO members last week postponed for the second time their decision on whether to support IPIRG. The decision has been postponed until Jan. 27.

Trudy Hale, IPIRG organizer, said the group is intended to save students money by acting as a student voice against telephone and utility rate increases and proposed cuts in financial aid.

"All successful IPIRGs across the country have a not-for-profit program funded by students through a fee," she said.

At the USO meeting Nov. 18, IPIRG representatives said the fee will be used for travel, insurance, papers and publications.

Hale said she didn't see any problems collecting the fees, predicting that about 10,000 to 12,000 students will pay the fee.

She feels IPIRG has the support of the general student population. Last spring, Students for IPIRG collected more than 10,000 signatures of support.

IPIRG is proposing to have a box, either on the registration form or the Bursar's bill, that students can check if they don't want to pay the fee, Hale said.

Although Students for IPIRG is a Registered Student Organization, if an IPIRG is established, it will not be a RSO. James Quisenberry, member of Students for IPIRG, said.

"We don't want IPIRG to be subject to the University's whims of what the members can research," Quisenberry said.

Hale said: "In the past there was a RSO that called themselves IPIRG, but they were limited to what they could do because they didn't have the findings or resources they needed."

The $3 fee increase could change, she said. "It's like any other fee, it's based on need." Hale said. "Perhaps in five years it will not be a reasonable amount and we will have to ask for more."

IPIRG has gained the support of the Graduate Student Professional Council and is seeking approval of the Undergraduate Student Organization before speaking to John Guyon, University president, she said.

Migrant workers offered job help

The Illinois Migrant Council offers training and job placement for certain agricultural workers.

Migrant or seasonal farmworkers who recently have received a Temporary Work Permit under the new Immigration Amnesty Program may be eligible for these services. The migrant council assists workers in obtaining job skills and getting prepared for the job market.

The council places many farmworkers in good-paying permanent positions. For details, call 457-6727.

Black Fire Dancers' performance features unique music, dancing

By Curtis Winston
Entertainment Editor

Energetic and original dance forms were featured Thursday evening at Shryock Auditorium in "Dance Expresso," a concert by the Southern Illinois Repertory Dance Theater and the Black Fire Dancers.

The campus-based Black Fire Dancers started the concert with a piece titled "Oh Yeah," accompanied by Yello's song "Oh Yeah."

The Black Fire Dancers were well-practiced and cohesive during "Oh Yeah," the first of three works by the company.

The troupe of 24 women did well until joined by three men, who weren't as confident or rehearsed. The male Black Fire Dancers were distracting in "Oh Yeah" as well as in "Dancing Nowhere," during the second half of the program.

They did, however, do a good job of providing the crucial male support role in the ballet-influenced "Melodies of Love," which was choreographed by Saluki

The next presentation by the repertory dance theater, titled "Point of No Return," featured aerobics and jazz dance. The work was highlighted by distinctive aerobics outfits with red, blue and purple trim, which blended well with a similarly colored background of isometric shapes.

Dance Review

Shakers JoAnn Davis and Sherri Jackson, who also dance in the company.

The Southern Illinois Repertory Dance Theater made its debut in karate outfits with the martial arts-influenced dance "Paranoia," cleverly set to Rockwell's "Somebody's Watching Me," a song about paranoia.

The mixture of martial arts and dance proved interesting, even with much repetitive movement.

"Point of No Return," with music by the pop group Expose, was the most energetic dance of the evening. The six women complemented each other with their long, fluffy hairstyles that provided a strong visual effect when the dancers twirled their heads in unison.

Beth Beckovich, senior in marketing, was one of the most dynamic dancers in "Point of No Return" and in the finale, "Silhouette," which

If you've ever dreamed of being behind the controls of an airplane, this is your chance to find out what it's really like.

A Marine Corps pilot is coming to campus who can take you up for trial flights.

We're looking for a few college students who have the brains and skill—as well as the desire—to become Marine pilots.

If you're cut out for it, we'll give you free civilian flight training, maybe even $100 a month cash while you're in school. And someday you could be flying a Harrier, Cobra or F/A-18.

Get a taste of what life is like at the top. The flight's on us.

Get a taste of life at the top.

See Officer Selection Team at the Avtech Lounge to schedule your flight on Dec. 7 from 9-4 or call 1-800-848-0078 • Flights will be conducted on the 8th of December.

Gymnasts finish 2nd to Nebraska at Big Eight tourney in Lincoln

By Jim Black
Staff Writer

The gymnastics team finished a distant second to host Nebraska Saturday at the Big Eight Invitational in Lincoln.

The Cornhuskers won the meet with 280.70 points, SIU-C tallied 259.90 and Iowa State scored 243.30. Gymnasts from Oklahoma also took part in the meet, but the Sooners did not have enough team members to record a team score.

SIU-C was led by junior Brent Reed, who finished with an all-around score of 53.00. Reed was the top Saluki finisher in three individual events.

Sophomore Marcus Mulholland was the top Saluki in the pommel horse with a score of 8.55. Freshman Dean Magliocca led SIU-C in the high bar, scoring 9.1, and junior Tom Glielmi was the top Saluki in the vault with 9.15.

Nebraska, which finished second in last year's NCAA finals, is considered the top team in the nation, Saluki coach Bill Meade said. Oklahoma, which took fourth last season, ranks fourth.

The Salukis return only four lettermen from last year's 11th-ranked squad.

won the 800-yard freestyle relay in 8:45.05. Iris von Jouanne, Witherite, Rea and McIntyre won the 200-yard medley relay in 1:48.33 and Rea, Kathi Wire, Iris von Jouanne and Suella Miller won the 200-yard freestyle relay in 1:28.76.

The second day's dual meets pitted the Saluki men against 13th-ranked Arizona and the Saluki women against New Orleans. The men lost 79-67, but the women won 72-59.

Nagy, Iris von Jouanne, Witherite and McIntyre were double winners that day, while Roberts, Heafner, Jancel Patrick, Tricia Rothenbach, Miller, Rea and Wire carded individual wins that day.

In relay action, Roberts, Nagy, Sean Morrissey and David Morovitz won the 400-yard freestyle relay in 3:01.94 for the men and Iris von Jouanne, Rea, Wire and Witherite won the 200-yard medley relay in 3:57.52 for the women.

The women got out in front early enabling them to shift the lineup, Ingram said.

On the final day the Saluki men upset 12th-ranked Iowa 67-51 and the women lost to Kansas 86-53.

"A great win and a heck of an upset," Ingram said about the men's victory.

Saluki men's relay team of Roberts, Jeff Goetz, Morrissey and Nagy carded an NCAA qualifying time of 3:00.65 in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Garmendia carded three first-place finishes, including an upset of Iowa's NCAA finalist John Davie.

Roberts, Nagy, Witherite and Rea carded two wins apiece on the final day. Bradac and McIntyre each had one win.

Call your mummy.

You remember. She was always there when you were frightened. And if you got hurt, she was standing by with bandages. Wouldn't it feel good to talk to your mother again right now?

Calling over AT&T Long Distance Service probably costs less than you think, too. And if you have any questions about AT&T rates or service, a customer service representative is always standing by to talk to you. Just call 1 800 222-0300.

Sure, your schoolwork and your friends keep you busy. But call home and find out what she's wrapped up in.

Scott does well against mentor

In 1971 the women's basketball team at Memphis State defeated Jackson State Community College.

At the time nothing was considered remarkable about the victory. In fact, the final score wasn't even recorded.

But 16 years later there is something significant about that seemingly obscure event.

It was the first collegiate win for Mary Lou Johns, who at the age of 30 was making the transition from high school to college coaching.

It also was the first win for Cindy Scott, a freshman guard straight out of Lindberg High School in St. Louis.

Today, Johns is the ninth-winningest active women's basketball coach with 340 career victories, while Scott is coach of the 14th-ranked team in the nation.

When the Salukis soundly defeated Memphis State 84-62 Saturday, it marked the completion of a journey for Scott.

Scott, in 10 seasons as the Salukis' coach, has had only one victory in six meetings against Memphis State. There was no doubt Johns had Scott's number.

Early on the scores reflected that Johns truly was the master. In 1977-78 Memphis State won 78-64. The Lady Tigers won the next season 77-71. In the 1983 National Invitational Tournament it was Memphis State again, 77-69.

Yet, in the last few years Scott began closing the gap. The Salukis lost by smaller margins. The scores were 66-65 in 1984 and 66-63 in 1986.

And Saturday marked the perfect opportunity for Scott.

However, she was not out to make this a personal battle. All week she had said such an approach would have been non-productive and distracting.

Yet she did have something to prove. Not to her players, the fans or herself — but to her former coach. Just as she demonstrated with hustle as a four-year letterwinner who set an assist record that stands today, she had to show that those same winning traits had carried over into her coaching.

The 22-point margin of victory confirmed Scott's status as an improved coach, one prepared for the exposure and pressure that comes with having a nationally-recognized team.

This wasn't lost on Johns, who said, "Cindy's been here a long time. She's worked hard to get this program where it is. I had her on the court and in the classroom, and she was always one of my favorites. I knew that she'd be successful."

So, relax coach. The master says you're doing all right.

first six shots to take a 50-38 lead. Once again, the Salukis cut the lead to four but that was as close as they could get.

House finished with 18 points, 16 coming in the second half. Nurnberger was the only other Saluki in doubles figures with 17. Middleton and Sterling Mahan had nine each. Krueger contributed eight off the bench. Shipley, in his first collegiate start, and Erik Griffin each scored six.
