SIUC Police put K-9 unit on wish list

SIUC Police want to bring a K-9 program to campus to better serve the University by freeing up manpower during suspect searches.

If such a program is implemented, SIUC will be the first Illinois public university to have a K-9 unit as part of its police force.

At Wednesday's Undergraduate Student Government meeting, SIUC Police Cpl. Ken Sneed told the student body what improvements a dog would give to SIUC Police. The presentation included a guest appearance by one of Carbondale Police's drug-sniffing pooches.

Sneed said he hoped USG would endorse the incorporation of a police dog into the squad.

Sneed is seeking donations, though not from USG, to pay for the startup cost of the program. The estimated cost is between $3,300 and $9,500. An additional $700 to $1,000 would be needed each year to pay for maintenance costs, such as dog food and retraining workshops.

Sneed has been trying to get a K-9 unit in place since 1990, but lack of funding always has been a problem.

James Tweedy, vice chancellor for Administration, said that while such a program would improve police service to the campus, the University never has had enough internal funding to pay for a police dog program.

"From a safety standpoint, we could provide many more services to the school," he said, "but we just don't have the resources."

CAMPUS LAKE CONSERVATION

CLEANUP: $75,000 grant from Illinois EPA will aid in two-year study of lake's erosion; sedimentation.

BRIAN S. EBERS
DE CAMPUS LIFE EDITOR

A grant from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency is enabling University researchers to get rid of the scum hanging around Campus Lake and fish out problems deteriorating the lake's health.

Campus Lake was one of five lakes in Illinois selected this year by the Illinois EPA for monitoring. The Illinois EPA granted SIUC a $75,000 grant in April to research the 40-acre Campus Lake for two years.

Sedimentation, shoreline erosion, over-fertilization and storm drainage runoff are problems affecting Campus Lake that University researchers are examining as part of Illinois' Conservation 2000 program.

Conservation 2000 is a six-year, $100-million effort to control pollution and enhance Illinois' natural resources.

More than 20 storm drains empty into the lake, filling up the lake's bottom with sediments. The average depth of the sediment is eight feet, and its deepest point is 14 feet.

At a press conference Friday, University researchers

Allegations of bad business prompt audit of Chadwick's

OPEN THE BOOKS:

Accusations include falsifying receipts, bad checks, liquor violations.

JASON FREUND
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Allegations of unsavory and possibly illegal business practices at Chadwick's Bar & Grill prompted the Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board to recommend that the city investigate the restaurant.

At Thursday's meeting, the liquor board unanimously voted to refer the allegations to the Carbondale Local Liquor Commission and to request an audit of Chadwick's Bar & Grill, 204 W. College St., after an employee alleged various charges about the restaurant's practices.

Bob Eikey, Chadwick's kitchen manager, approached the board after Chairman John Benschoff gave a report of a recent visit to Chadwick's during which some of the items on the menu were not available to customers.

"There's a lot going on at Chadwick's," Eikey said. "They

(the food items) were not available because there was no food in the kitchen."

Chad Little, owner of Chadwick's, was unable to be reached for comment and did not return phone calls. He was not at the meeting.

Eikey alleged that in addition to financial problems, receipts had been changed to meet the 51 percent non-alcohol sales required by a Class A-2 liquor license, and that problems with distributors, bad check writing and the purchase of liquor from sources other than distributors are common business practices for the restaurant.

"They're just trying to keep the doors open, legally and illegally," he said. "They're just doing everything they can to keep the doors open."

Eikey noted that he has filed a formal complaint with the Internal Revenue Service because he alleged employees have not been fully paid or have been paid in cash. He also told the board that Chadwick's owed him about $1,500 in back pay.

Eikey also alleged that some liquor had been removed from another business in Carbondale to be used at Chadwick's.

"They have removed some alcohol from Smil'in Jacks in the past," he said.

Chadwick's had been involved in contract negotiations to manage Mardi Gras, which would have replaced Smil'in Jacks, 760 E. Grand Ave. Smil'in Jacks closed more than a month ago when the lease was broken by Leland Hartsfield, owner of Smil'in Jacks. The building remains closed because a contract could not be reached between Ed Wilmering, the UNSOLVED: Police have suspect; no arrests expected to be made.

Students remember tragedy

SARA BEAN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

For Ruth Saborio, remembering the victims of the 1992's The Pyramids apartments fire is not only important to herself but to the victims themselves.

"You never know which one of us could have been in that fire," Saborio, vice president of the International Student Council, said. "It is something like this that makes us think of our own mortality."

"Each of the victims had a life and a future. We cannot forget, or allow others to forget, or we will deny them of that future."

About 30 students gathered Saturday at The Pyramids fire memorial at Campus Lake for the five-year anniversary of the deaths of five international students who died in one of Carbondale's worst fire tragedies.

Some of the speeches were delivered in English, and some in native languages, but the tone remained the same — somber.

The early morning fire occurred on Dec. 6, 1992, at The Pyramids apartments, 504 S. Rawlins St., which now houses Ambassador Hall. Some of the students who survived the fire jumped from second- and third-floor windows to escape the flames. The fire was ruled an arson, and the case has not been solved.

"The purpose of this service is to bring us together today to remember those people who lost their lives and ensure that a similar tragedy never happens again." Wan Kamal Wan Napi, International Student Council president, said.

REMEMBER: People pay their respects Saturday at Campus Lake for the five students who died in The Pyramids apartment fire Dec. 6, 1992.

Wan Napi and the students gathered near the monument, erected in 1994, in hopes of beginning an annual memorial service.

The monument, paid for by the ISC, Undergraduate Student Government, Graduate and Professional Student Council and some SIUC administrators, bears the names of the five students killed in the fire.

The students killed in the fire were Kimioko Ajioka, 25, a senior in marketing from Osaka, Japan; Ronald Moy, 23, a senior in economics from Chicago; Lai Hung Tam, 23, a senior in marketing from Kowloon, Hong Kong; Mazlina Abdul Wahid, 28, a freshman in vocational education studies from Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia; and Cheng Teck Wong, 23, a senior in electrical engineering from Johor, Malaysia.

Wan Napi said ISC is drafting a proposal suggesting the University organize an annual memorial service for the victims. The bill will be submitted USC for a vote by the student senate, Wan Napi said.

Wan Napi said most of the students in attendance at the service were not at SIUC at the time of the fire, so it was important to let them know what happened.

"This service is not only to remember the students who died in the fire but to remind the international student community of the tragedy," he said.

Wan Napi is optimistic that through the efforts of the police and the other government agencies working on the case, that the case can be solved. Police announced Thursday that they have a suspect. No immediate arrests are expected to be made.

Satoko Mitobe, a graduate student in educational psychology, was attending SIUC at the time of the fire but was living in a different dorm.

"I did not know any of the victims personally," Mitobe said. "But I think that it could have happened to me, so this event was important to remember."

SIUC offers first winter commencement

CAP AND GOWN:

Students ask for graduation ceremony; University hears them.

SARA BEAN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC will have its first winter commencement ceremony for students graduating at the end of the fall 1997 semester as a convenience for those future University alumni, administrators say.

"The original impetus was feedback from the students, particularly students graduating in December," John Jackson, vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost, said. "The option was given for them to participate in the spring commencement ceremony; however, this was fairly unsatisfactory to a large number of students."

The University initiated the ceremony because many students who complete course work at the close of the fall semester are unable to return to participate in the spring ceremonies, SIUC Chancellor Donald Beggs said.

"A need was presented to us by the students and faculty, and we are doing our best to try and meet that need," Beggs, who will preside over the ceremony, said. "We were talking with other institutions, and they said there had been a positive response to the winter ceremonies, so we decided to give it a try."

Stephen Williams,

Admissions and Records officer, said there are about 1,500 to 1,800 students graduating at the end of the fall 1997 semester. About 600 of those students are slated to participate in the commencement ceremony.

Jackson said space at spring commencement also was a consideration.

"The secondary reason was that at the last couple spring graduation ceremonies, the Arena was packed to the rafters with people," he said. "Even if we can get a small percentage out of that number, we think it will help the atmosphere of the spring ceremony."

An honorary doctorate of letter degree will be presented to Ralph E. McCoy at the ceremony. He is the dean emeritus of

Library Affairs at SIUC

Morris Library attained national recognition as a research and publication library under the direction of McCoy. He later created the University's Law School library and helped plan the University's Lovejoy Library at SIUE.

Jackson predicts that the fall commencement will be a success.

"I think there should be a positive response to this," Jackson said. "It remains to be seen how well it goes, but I'm expecting a reasonable turnout."

DIPLOMAS

• The ceremony will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 20, in SIU Arena.

Clinton re-aims nukes at Middle East, China

WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON — President Clinton has ordered adoption of a revised U.S. policy statement on nuclear weapons that explicitly scraps the Cold War's central emphasis on the threat from the former Soviet Union while laying new stress on the danger posed by rogue states such as Iraq.

After more than a six-month study, Clinton has signed a new version of the "presidential decision directive" that instructs the secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff on how to target the military's nuclear weapons.

While the document has been revised several times since the fall of the Soviet Union, this is the first full rewrite of the directive signed by President Reagan in 1981. The Reagan and Bush administrations had also revised the document to reflect the easing of Cold War tensions.

While the new directive calls on the Pentagon to maintain its capability to strike military, civilian and nuclear sites in Russia, its guidance may lead the military to add to the list of potential nuclear target sites in China and the so-called rogue nations of Iraq and Libya.

Perhaps most significantly, Clinton's directive for the first time shifts U.S. nuclear strategy from an emphasis on how to wage a protracted nuclear war to a plan for how to deter the use of nuclear weapons. At the same time, the directive is notable for language that would allow the United States to launch nuclear weapons in response to the use of chemical or biological weapons by enemy nations, a senior administration official said.

The new document "updates our nuclear policy to reflect the new world conditions," the official said. Those changes include the fall of the Soviet Union and the rising threats posed by rogue nations, including the potential use of chemical and biological weapons, the official said.

Word of the new document comes at a time when the administration is looking toward a new round of arms control talks, and when Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin has signaled his interest in further reducing the two countries' strategic nuclear arsenals.

The careful and secretive drafting of the new policy statement may be a signal of the administration's willingness to move ahead to a new round of talks concerning the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, although the official denied that it was intended as the basis for new negotiations.

To the extent that the directive opens the door for further arms reductions, in theory, an end to preparations for a protracted nuclear war would mean the U.S. would need to hold fewer weapons in reserve, the new policy could bring denunciations from some conservative leaders in Congress. Arms control advocates, meanwhile, are likely to call the new directive an inadequate response to the end of the Cold War.

Students assaulted by two Saturday night for cigarettes

Carbondale Police are investigating a robbery that occurred at 10:59 p.m. Saturday in the 600 block of South Poplar Street.

Two male SIUC students reported they were walking south on Poplar Street when they were approached from behind by two men. One of the men reportedly asked for a cigarette and then grabbed one of the victims from behind and choked him. The student reported that the men stole a pack of cigarettes and a key before knocking him to the ground, injuring his forehead.

The other man reportedly tried to grab the other SIUC student, who evaded the men and fled on foot.

When police arrived on the scene, the student who was thrown to the ground was disoriented. He was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, was treated and released.

Neither of the students saw the suspects. It was at first reported that one of the attackers had a handgun, but the student later said he was uncertain if a gun was involved.

Authorities search for student's motivation to kill

Authorities and prosecutors in West Paducah, Ky., are wondering if anyone might have known, in advance, of the deadly shooting that happened at a local high school.

Prosecutor Timothy Kallenbach says that in a videotaped interview with investigators after the shooting, Michael Carmel, the 14-year-old accused of the crime, said he had talked about his plans with friends.

Kallenbach says the youngster might also have been influenced by the movie "Basketball Diaries," in which the star character is a basketball player who turns to drugs.

USG senator's actions, attire not professional

Bring letters to the editor to Communications Building, Room 1247. Dear Editor,
 At the Dec. 3 USG meeting, College of Education Senator Joshua Spencer arrived prepared for business wearing a T-shirt proclaiming "F Select 2000."

While in this offensive attire, the senator had the nerve to question both Carbondale and University Police officers regarding professional procedure.

Bear in mind, USG meetings are videotaped and broadcast on SPC-TV.

The senator's behavior displays a lack of respect for the entire campus — including the Greeks. While the motto emblazoned upon his shirt must express the senator's personal opinion regarding Select 2000, one must wonder which group of students the senator was representing.

The senator's actions mirror the attitude that brought about Select 2000 in the first place — an attitude that shouts, "Let's slam booze, take the Strip, and give the University the finger."

Such an attitude does harm to the very leaders who work so hard to repair relations between students, the administration and the community brought about by drunken behavior.

Responsible student leaders, including members of USG and the Inter-Greek Council, would have found more professional means of addressing their grievances against Select 2000.

While acting as a representative of the student body, USG members are expected to act in a professional manner.

Failure to do so undermines the student voice in important issues and cheapens the perceived integrity of all student representatives. It is the responsibility of the entire USG to maintain decorum.

Perhaps it would be appropriate for the assembly to enact a policy that maintains an atmosphere of professionalism.

An apology to the Greeks, the student body, university administration and the community is in order.

Reader's term 'moral judgment' ironic

Dear Editor,

Sean Whitcomb clearly identified the moral issues related to vivisection (Letter to the Editor, Dec. 4). Unless human beings are more valuable than other life, then sacrificing animals for the benefit of humans lacks moral justification, and boils down to the stronger imposing its will on the weaker.

Mr. Whitcomb views the vivisection as a moral wrong that we must not allow. I would like to know what his basis is for applying his moral judgment to others — to society as a whole. Moral judgments imply a definitive right and wrong that transcend any one individual, mankind as a whole and even the entirety of the physical universe. Any lesser basis degenerates with my preference vs. your preference, my ability to impose my will on others.

Mr. Whitcomb rightly decried the cruelties done in the Holocaust and the syphilis experiments. Unwittingly, however, his stating that "we must not allow" vivisection boils down to the same attempt to impose his preference on others, appealing to some moral imperative that he fails to define or support.

Is the pervasive sense that humans are somehow more valuable than other life an evolutionary product of the drive to survive, or an awareness of a transcendent reality?

Did God create human beings in His own image, and give them a higher place in the hierarchy of creation than other life and inanimate objects? If so, then the sacrifice of animal life to meet human needs is justifiable, but only within Biblical standards of respect for God's whole creation, and of avoiding wanton cruelty to animals.

If human life occurred only as an evolutionary product of time, chance and physical forces, then any definition of right and wrong beyond personal or collective differences logically breaks down. So does any logically defensible basis for meaning and purpose to our lives.

There is not space here to present the historical and logical evidences supporting the Biblical assertion that we are created by God, and that morals and meaning derive from His existence and character.

Vivisection and other issues require examination in the context of a clearly defined moral system.

Approval

K-9 program addition should be endorsed by student government

A POLICE FORCE AS DEDICATED AS SIUC'S own deserves all the available tools necessary to fight crime. Supplying the University Police with a K-9 program would not only be an incredible benefit to the force — but to the Carbondale community as well.

Too often the SIUC Police force is taken for granted by our community. Every day, SIUC Police quietly make our campus a safer place with their existence. They also aid the Carbondale Police Department in a collective effort to make the city a safer place.

So when SIUC Police Cpl. Ken Sneed approached Undergraduate Student Government Wednesday about endorsing the idea of a K-9 program, Sneed's presentation should have met with resounding approval.

Sneed, who has been trying to add a K-9 program to SIUC Police for seven years, gave USG a number of reasons why a new police dog should merit their endorsement.

For example, a police dog can track missing people or suspects from a crime scene in cases of sexual assaults or burglary. The DE Police Blotter reported two cases of burglary of on-campus residential buildings in November that were under investigation. Maybe those cases would have been helped by the presence of a police dog.

A police dog would be a considerable aid to SIUC Police in searching for suspects in large campus buildings. Sneed said it might take 45 minutes for a team of four officers to clear a building — giving would-be suspects ample time to evade police. With a police dog and a dog handler alone, a large building could be cleared in only 15 minutes.

WITH CONVINCING RESULTS SUCH AS these, it is little surprise that Michigan State University's police force has had a successful police dog program for 14 years. Sneed said that campus' police chief later decided to add more dogs to the campus police force.

In the past, SIUC Police have had the option of borrowing a patrol dog from Carbondale Police or Illinois State Police. But other dog handlers are not always on duty or need to use the dogs for other cases. SIUC Police needs its own K-9 program. But the major obstacle involved in obtaining a police dog is funding. Sneed estimates that the startup cost of the K-9 program would be between $8,300 and $9,500. An additional $700 to $1,000 would be needed each year to pay for maintenance costs, such as dog food and retraining workshops. The SIUC Police force needs donations to make having a police dog a reality.

Receiving those donations would be easier if USG decides to endorse the K-9 program — a police dog would be a valuable investment in safety. USG endorsement is a very influential force, and lending this endorsement to SIUC Police is a most responsible move.

AT PRESENT, USG PRESIDENT DAVE Vingen says that although USG has not yet officially decided on whether or not to endorse the K-9 program addition, there is a strong chance of endorsement. This is promising, but it would be even better to see USG support drafted in a resolution.

As Vice Chancellor for Administration James Tweedy recognizes, "From a safety standpoint, we could provide many more services to the school — but we just don't have the resources." When it comes to campus safety, funding should be the least of our concerns. As unfortunate as this deficit has been in the past, there is a good chance that USG may help Sneed's crusade.

All it may take is their endorsement. Then others may see the light and decide to donate money for this cause. Any measures taken to improve our safety should be applauded and acted on accordingly.

"Our Word" represents the consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board.

K-9 UNIT

shepherd police dog named Vader to the presentation, explained benefits of a K-9 program.

For instance, a police dog can be used to track suspects from a crime scene in cases of burglary or sexual assaults. The dog also can be used to track missing people.

Phillips cited cases where she used Vader to find evidence after a sexual assault and where the dog located suspects after a business robbery.

"They were outside a shopping center area, hiding in neck-deep weeds," she said. "We would not have found them otherwise."

Sneed said that if police were searching for a suspect in a building, a dog handler and dog could clear a large building in about 15 minutes. It might take 45 minutes, Sneed said, for a team of four officers to clear the building.

Sneed said a K-9 program likely would be considered successful if implemented. He bases his prediction in part on the success of Michigan State University's police dog program, which began in 1983.

At MSU, the first campus police dog did so well that the campus police chief requested additional dogs before the first dog had completely proven itself, Sneed said.

During a question-and-answer session, College of Education senator Joshua Spencer asked how a drug-sniffing dog would change current patrolling in residence halls.

Sneed and Phillips said that while a drug-sniffing dog could be used to patrol dormitories, it would not change the process by which campus police search for drugs.

Currently, if an officer suspects that a room may contain drugs, the officer must request a search warrant before entering the room. If a police dog indicated that a room contained drugs, the officer still would need to obtain a search warrant, Phillips and Sneed said.

Sneed said that if the primary purpose of obtaining a patrol dog was drug searches, campus police already could be borrowing the Carbondale Police dogs.

Sneed also said Labrador retrievers would be the dog of choice for drug searches, not a German shepherd, which SIUC police would use.

Though campus police can borrow one of the Carbondale Police dogs if needed, the handlers are not always on duty or are using the dogs for other cases, Sneed said. A campus police dog would be more accessible.

"We don't have 24-hour coverage," he said. "If we can't get one from Carbondale, Illinois State Police or some other operation that has a dog, we're just [out of luck]."

demonstrated methods of collecting water and sediment samples. Regional EPA officials presented a new sign near the Campus Lake boat docks, which labels the lake as an EPA study site.

The Center for Environmental Health and Safety, which has monitored Campus Lake for 10 years, will provide data to the researchers. Data includes such factors as water depth, water quality and the amounts of nutrients in the lake.

Erik Talley, assistant director for the Center of Environmental Health and Safety, works closely with Campus Lake. Talley said that by taking monthly samples and submitting them to the EPA, the lake will last longer for more students.

"Studying things like shoreline erosion can help improve the lake water through time," Talley said. "And the studies will help maintain and improve the recreational uses of the lake."

Charles Muchmore, professor in the Department of Mechanical Engineering and principal investigator of the project, wrote the proposal to the state requesting to do the research.

Muchmore is responsible for analyzing the engineering aspect of the lake, such as mapping, depth measurement and gathering data on the measurement of sediments on the lake bottom.

One problem with sedimentation in the lake is that more than 20 storm drains run into the lake, bringing contaminants into the lake. The drains funnel runoff from campus streets, parking lots, buildings and woodland areas. The runoff can contain oil, solvents and other ingredients foreign to natural bodies of water.

"By looking at the storm drains that run into Campus Lake, we can determine where the sediment is coming from and then decide on the most economic ways to stop it," he said.

Sediments, items that collect at the bottom of the lake, include eroded dirt, runoff materials and anything else responsible for filling up the lake.

John Stahl, associate professor of zoology and principal investigator, is analyzing algae, zooplankton and fish populations in the lake. Stahl's work focuses on the growth of algae and other biological aspects of the lake.

"There is a contrast between lakes and agriculture," Stahl said. "In agriculture, you want a lot of fertilizer. In lakes, you don't want a lot of fertilizer like algae.

"A clean lake is more desirable for fishing and swimming. A lot of scum on the lake does not make it too pleasant for fishing or swimming."

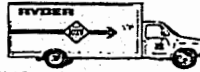

Stahl's work focuses on making the lake look cleaner and clearer. The relationship between zooplankton and fish populations can help Stahl figure out how to preserve lake clarity. There are two types of fish, those that eat zooplankton and those that eat other fish.

Zooplankton graze on algae, which gathers on the surface of the lakes. A larger population of fish-eating fish should allow for more zooplankton, which in turn, will control lake surface algae, improving the lake's appearance. After Stahl examines the situation of the lake, he may suggest altering certain fish populations by selective removal techniques.

Robert Hite, manager of Southern Monitoring and Assessment Unit Planning Section of the Illinois' EPA, said SIUC's application was one of about 20.

Hite said of the 20 applications, SIUC's proposal was one from an area of Illinois where not many applications were submitted.

"One thing the lake association is interested in is lake protection," Hite said. "We went through all the applications and determined that SIU had one of the best lakes for the project."

Survey: Job market best in 10 years

COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

More than 70 percent of employers surveyed said they planned on hiring more college graduates in 1998 than they did this year.

A booming economy, low inflation and a labor shortage will add up to lots of job opportunities and decent starting salaries for college graduates, said Camille Luckenbaugh, the NACE information director.

"The unemployment rate is 4.7 percent, the lowest in 24 years," said Luckenbaugh. Because of the low unemployment rate, employers are having a harder time filling their positions with experienced employees, she added.

"This has created a trickle-down effect," she said. "Employees can't find experienced employees so they're hiring new college graduates."

Overall, hiring will be up 19.1 percent for new grads, according to Job Outlook '98, the NACE's annual forecast released in November. For the report, 1,529 employers were asked to complete a survey about their hiring intentions, and 421, or 21 percent, did. Of those employers who responded, more than 25 percent said they expected to maintain current hiring levels.

Only 3.1 percent of employers said they planned to hire fewer grads.

"This is the best job market in recent years," said Bradley Richardson, author of "JobSmarts: 50 Top Careers."

"Companies are having a hard time finding quality employees, so they're offering more things, like benefits or other perks."

To snag qualified candidates, employers are traveling to campuses more to recruit new hires, according to the survey. More than half of the employers reported an increase in campus visits, and overall, campus visits are up 8.8 percent.

Luckenbaugh said that in the past, employers could take a "wait-and-see" approach to recruitment and offer, made job offers later in the recruitment season. This year, employers who wait risk coming up empty, she added.

"Those who have traditionally hired from the campus are elbow to elbow with those who are turning to inexperienced candidates to round out their workforces," Luckenbaugh said.

Stiff competition isn't the only worry employers face. Preliminary data from NACE's most recent student survey show that 60 percent of 764 students responding said they would renege on a job offer if a better one came along.

Most in demand are graduates with computer skills, said Luckenbaugh.

Entry-level computer science and computer engineering grads can expect to collect paychecks that are 6.3 percent higher than last year.

Board member Morris McDaniel noted to the board the need to remember that the charges were still simply allegations.

"In my opinion, I feel that these are allegations," he said. "I think the

Judge's decision affects college newspapers

COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

A federal judge in Kentucky has ruled that college administrators are "entitled to exercise reasonable control" over the content of some campus publications.

While the decision only directly impacts colleges and universities in the U.S. District Court circuit covering eastern Kentucky, critics fear it could lead to a crackdown on other campus publications by school officials nationwide.

"This is going to have an effect on student media around the country," said Mark Goodman, executive director of the Student Press Law Center. "There's no way legitimate news coverage won't fall victim to this."

The recent decision violates students' First Amendment rights, Goodman said.

"The judge completely ignored that the Supreme Court has also said that colleges and universities are unique places where free expression should be protected," he said.

Students at Kentucky State University made similar arguments after school officials refused to distribute their yearbook. Officials said they disliked the book because it didn't include the school's colors or captions under several photographs, and failed to focus on university activities.

"If you allow school officials to use colors and captions as justification for taking books off the shelf, think of how easy it'll be for them to censor whatever they want for whatever reasons they want," Goodman said. "If they want nothing more than a public relations sheet for the school, then they should be producing the yearbook and not pretending it's a student publication."

But Judge Joseph M. Hood said the university has a right to review the annual publication. In his decision, he cited the U.S. Supreme Court's 1988 ruling in Hazelwood School District v. Kuhlmeier, which states school officials have the right to censor articles in the student newspaper that are deemed contrary to the school's educational mission. Generally referred to today as "Hazelwood," the case and the ruling remain at the center of debate over student expression in secondary schools.

Rescuers have little hope of finding survivors in Russian jet crash

LOS ANGELES TIMES

MOSCOW — Holding out little hope of finding survivors, rescuers broke through layers of ice and battled new flames Sunday as they searched for victims of an airplane crash a day earlier in a residential neighborhood of a Siberian town.

Crews worked round the clock using cranes, bulldozers and other heavy equipment to clear debris from the crash site in Irkutsk. By midnight, searchers had recovered the remains of 42 people.

Officials expect the death toll to rise to at least 65 when rescue workers are able to reach other victims buried in the rubble of buildings destroyed when the huge military transport plane crashed shortly after takeoff Saturday afternoon.

"The problem for the rescuers is the extreme cold," said Marina V. Rykhlina, a spokeswoman for the federal Emergency Situations Ministry.

"The ruins themselves turned into icebergs after the firemen had to pour tons of water on them. That makes the rescue operation very difficult."

The Antonov-124 airplane was delivering two Russian fighter jets to Vietnam when it crashed into the neighborhood on the outskirts of Irkutsk, destroying a four-story apartment building and damaging five other buildings, including an orphanage.

Anxious residents gathered at the crash site Sunday in the hope of learning the fate of missing relatives and friends. But the condition of many of the bodies made identification extremely difficult.

"We have recovered 42 bodies and we have recovered a lot of fragments, like hands, legs, heads and other parts which cannot even be properly identified," Vladimir A. Vygovsky, a supervisor at the aviation factory where the plane took off, told the Los Angeles Times.

"Most of them are burned beyond recognition. It's terrible to be there and see it even if you are not a relative. The relatives are standing around there and they are almost hysterical, but what can we do?"

No official cause of the accident has been established. But according to Russia's Interfax news service, crew members informed the flight control center moments after takeoff that two of the plane's four engines had failed.

The airplane was loaded with 110 tons of aviation fuel, which flooded the apartment buildings on impact, drenching some of the victims and contributing to the horrendous blaze.

With temperatures below minus 10 degrees Fahrenheit on Sunday, rescue workers had to cut through blocks of ice to reach the rubble. When the smoldering ruins and unburned fuel were exposed to the air, they often burst into flames.

"There is very little chance that any more victims can still be alive, considering the weather and the nature of the disaster," said Dr. Nikolai G. Kazantsev of the Disaster Medical Center, which dispatched nine doctors to the scene. "But there is always a chance we can save someone."

Prime Minister Viktor S. Chernomyrdin arrived early Sunday to survey the scene and offer condolences to families of the victims. Looking shocked as he stood on a pile of rubble, Chernomyrdin told reporters, "We need time now to analyze what happened. This is the main thing."

Study: N₂O traps heat better than CO₂

WASHINGTON POST

Nitrous oxide may be laughing gas at the dentist's office, but to atmospheric chemists there's nothing funny about it.

In the air, N₂O contributes to the breakdown of ozone and is also a powerful greenhouse gas. Molecule for molecule, it's about 200 times as efficient as carbon dioxide at trapping heat radiation in the atmosphere.

For well-understood chemical reasons, the largest known sources of N₂O — emissions from soil and ocean bacteria, fertilizer decomposition, combustion and industrial processes such as nylon manufacture — contain relatively little of the heavier isotopes of nitrogen and oxygen.

So it comes as a surprise that two independent research groups report in the Dec. 5 issue of Science that they have found an unexpected abundance of heavy-isotope forms of N₂O in numerous samples from the upper air.

Samples taken closer to the ground, however, contained the anticipated isotope ratios.

"That suggests an unknown atmospheric source or reservoir of nitrous oxide that could complicate efforts to comprehend and model greenhouse warming and ozone depletion.

"It's absolutely certain from the isotope results," said one of the researchers, Mark H. Thiemens of the University of California at San Diego, "that something is going on in the atmosphere that no one has ever accounted for."

HONOR: Black Togetherness Organization member Delemarcus Collins, a senior in early childhood development from Chicago, blows out a candle in honor of slain Black Panther members Mark Clark and Fred Hampton during the 27th Annual Cultural Festival in Grinnell Hall Saturday night. About 50 people attending the event participated in singing and heard people speak about Kwanzaa, a holiday celebrating African traditions.

Kaczynski's house shipped for evidence

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

SACRAMENTO — Theodore Kaczynski's tiny Montana cabin has been shipped to Sacramento, where his attorneys hope it will help save him from the death penalty if he's convicted of being the UNABOMBER.

His lawyers say anyone who lived in a 10-by-12-foot shack for more than 20 years without electricity or plumbing had to be mentally unstable, a finding that could affect the outcome of a trial now in its jury selection phase.

An 18-wheel flatbed truck completed the cabin's 1,100-mile trip from Montana before noon today, when it arrived at Mather Field. The brown shack was wrapped in black plastic, placed on its side and lashed down.

It will be stored in a hangar until federal defenders arrange a field trip for jurors to view it. It has one door and one window, and reportedly reeks of urine.

Prosecutors say the 55-year-old defendant may have built bombs in the cabin, where he lived as a backwoods hermit after teaching mathematics briefly at the University of California, Berkeley.

He was arrested at the cabin in April 1996 to face Sacramento charges stemming from four of the 16 terrorist attacks attributed to the notorious UNABOMBER.

Two of the four bombings were fatal, and two charges related to the one that killed timber lobbyist Gilbert Murray in 1995 carry the death penalty.

Jurors could choose a lesser penalty after considering Kaczynski's circumstances, background and mental capacity.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

Please Be Sure To Check Your Classified Advertisement For Errors On The First Day Of Publication

The Daily Egyptian cannot be responsible for more than one day's incorrect insertion. Advertisers are responsible for checking their ads for errors on the first day they appear. Errors are the fault of the advertiser which lessen the value of the advertisement and will be adjusted.

All classified advertising must be processed before 12:00 noon to appear in the next day's publication. Anything processed after 12:00 noon will go in the following day's publication. Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for those accounts with established credit. A 32¢ charge will be added to billed classified advertising. A service charge of $15.00 will be added to the advertiser's account for every check returned to the Daily Egyptian unpaid by the advertiser's bank. Early cancellations of classified advertising will be charged a $2.00 service fee. Any refund under $2.00 will be forfeited due to the cost of processing.

All advertising submitted to the Daily Egyptian is subject to approval and may be revised, rejected, or cancelled at any time.

The Daily Egyptian assumes no liability if for any reason it becomes necessary to omit any advertisement.

A sample of all mail-order items must be submitted and approved prior to decline for publication.

No ads will be classified.

Place your ad by phone at 618-536-3311 Monday-Friday 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. or visit our office in the Communications Building, room 1259.

U.S.-Iran match stirs emotions

LOS ANGELES TIMES

Of all the 48 games in the first round, the one that already has caused the most commotion is the United States' encounter with Iran in Lyon on June 21.

Hank Steinbrecher, U.S. Soccer's executive director, muddled his Middle East madmen but got the spirit right when he referred to it as "the mother of all games."

The U.S. and Iran have had, shall we say, strained relations ever since the Islamic Revolution and subsequent hostage crisis almost two decades ago.

Aside from the security concerns, the game is going to be played a hundred times in the press before the players ever take the field. Already, the war of words has begun.

"When we got Iran," said U.S. midfielder Claudio Reyna, "it kind of gave us more hope, in all honesty, because we needed a team we felt we could definitely beat."

Countered Akbar Torkan, head of the Iranian Wrestling Association and a former government minister: "The level of U.S. soccer is not at a level that we could lose to them."

Others are trying to calm the waters before things get out of hand. "The meaning of FIFA is peace and unity," said Darius Mostafavi, president of Iran's soccer federation. "We are thinking only of soccer, not politics. We are friends of the people of the USA."

Which prompted Alan Rothenberg, president of U.S. Soccer, to add, "Maybe we can have soccer diplomacy like we had Ping-pong diplomacy with China."

Sure. And the U.S. will win the World Cup. Speaking of which ...

"For Iran to beat the U.S. would be like winning the World Cup," defender Alexi Lalas said.

Other Saluki victories were Beth Ann Erickson in the 100-meter butterfly (58.37), Melanie Williams in the 100-meter breaststroke (1:06.06), Kirsti Albertyn in the 200-meter freestyle (1:54.94) and Diana Roberts in the 200-meter individual medley (2:11.57).

The women's 400-meter freestyle relay team finished second, behind Illinois State, but Albertyn set an MVC record with a time of 52.71 in the first leg of the relay.

Senior diver Karla Gerzema captured MVC Diver of the Year honors after setting both the 1-meter and 3-meter MVC records.

In the 1-meter competition, Gerzema scored 411.30, and in the 3-meter competition, she broke her old record twice. In the preliminaries Saturday morning, she scored 475.53 and then outdid that with a score of 481.5 in the finals Saturday evening.

Gerzema set the title was a great finish in her final MVC championship meet.

"I had the record last year, and I wasn't sure I could do it again," Gerzema said. "I'm happy because it is my senior year, and this was a good way to go out at home."

Kluemper was pleased that the team overcame some of its early season losses with the victory.

"The fact we took a couple hard losses made them more hungry to come in and have a strong performance," Kluemper said.

The women's swimming and diving team will next face action Jan. 17 against the University of Kansas in Carbondale.

After the first day of action Thursday, the team only had a five-point lead, 281-276, over Illinois State.

Kluemper said the team swam strong enough to stay ahead and set up a solid showing for Friday and Saturday.

"We were kind of like a pitcher that didn't have his best stuff but did good enough to get the job done," Kluemper said.

Leading the way for the Saluki women was senior Kiki Sidropoulou, who broke her own MVC record in the 500-meter freestyle with a time of 5 minutes and 3.84 seconds.

SIUC BASKETBALL

Tucker keys Salukis' 75-72 overtime win in Hawaii

Rashad Tucker broke out of a shooting slump to score the SIUC men's basketball team's final three points in a 75-72 overtime win over Long Beach State University at the Power Bar Invitational in Honolulu Sunday morning.

Tucker gave the Salukis a 75-72 lead with 11 seconds left after hitting a jumper and making one of two free throws. Long Beach guard Quincy Nuckles, who sent the game into overtime with a three-point field goal at the end of regulation, missed a three-point attempt to tie the game as the clock ran out.

Tucker made just three of 15 field goal attempts in the game, but he made five of six free throws and scored 12 out of SIUC's final 25 points in the second half.

The Salukis trailed 27-21 at the half as Tucker was shut out of the scoring column. SIUC's Chris Thunell made two free throws to give SIUC a 64-61 lead with 13 seconds left before Nuckles hit a three to send the game into overtime.

James Jackson led SIUC in scoring with a season-high 16 points. Monte Jenkins added 14, while Shane Hawkins chipped in 13.

The Salukis were scheduled to face host University of Hawaii in the tournament championship game at 11 p.m. Sunday night. The Rainbows made the finals with a 76-63 win over Tulane University to improve to 3-0 on the season. Hawaii defeated Indiana University 82-65 Nov. 21 and Illinois State University 84-63 Dec. 1 for its other two wins.

SIUC TRACK AND FIELD

Salukis finish last in meet

The SIUC men's and women's track and field began the 1997-98 indoor season Saturday with third-place finishes at the three-team Illinois State Early Bird Classic in Normal.

Indiana State took first in female competition, while Illinois State won the male division.

Felicia Hill paced the SIUC women's team with a first-place finish in the high jump (5-foot-8 inches) and third in triple jump (22-9.5).

Loren King won the men's high jump with a 6-10 effort. Brad Bowers and Sam Rone earned first-place honors in the long jump and triple jump, respectively.

SIUC FOOTBALL

Senior earns academic honor

SIUC football offensive lineman Jason Krivis' 4.0 grade point average in community media earned the senior a spot on the 1997 Gateway Football Conference All-Academic team.

Krivis was one of 33 athletes to receive honors, announced by league officials Friday. Members of the team must maintain a 3.0 cumulative GPA and have reached sophomore academic and athletic standing.

Saluki swimmers sink foes

BLOWOUT: Nearest opponent trails SIUC men by 222 points.

COREY CUSICK
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

With 16 all-conference finishers and a commanding victory, SIUC men's swimming coach Rick Walker could not have been more pleased with his team's performance in the Missouri Valley Conference Championships over the weekend in Carbondale.

The men's swimming and diving team blew away the competition with a score of 1,012, while its closest opponent, Southwest Missouri State University, scored just 790 points in three days of competition at the Recreation Center.

Walker was surprised by his team's overwhelming victory.

"There were a lot of people, including myself, who thought we wouldn't win by this much," Walker said. "Apparently, the team and swimmers who swam for points didn't think so."

Walker said his team's endurance throughout the weekend enhanced its claim to victory.

"It never amazes me how they can come in from the morning and then repeat a strong performance in the evening," Walker said.

Swimmer Jeff Clark captured his fourth consecutive 50-meter freestyle victory with a time of 20.96 seconds, while Liam Weseloh won his third straight 500-meter freestyle championship (4:34.54) for the Salukis.

Other Saluki victories were Steve Munz in the 100-meter backstroke (51.38), Luke Wotruba in the 200-meter butterfly (1:53.48) and Ryan Gallagher in the 200-meter freestyle (1:41.79).

Weseloh said the team will use the victory as a stepping stone for the future.

"Everyone stepped up and swam well," Weseloh said. "It will be a great experience for the younger swimmers to build on."

MVC Diver of the Year Alex Wright captured his third straight 1-meter victory with a score of 508.5 and set a new MVC record in the 3-meter competition with 555.15 points.

Wright said his 3-meter diving title and new MVC record was established by rigorous training and strong motivation.

"I was motivated this year because I was injured last year, and I wanted to redeem myself," Wright said.

"We put ourselves in a situation where we didn't have to panic."

RIK WALKER
SIUC MEN'S SWIMMING COACH

Men's diving coach Dave Andrey said Wright's hard work has paid off in a big way.

"It just was a great job in training," Andrey said. "He never deviated from the plan. He stuck with it and finished really strong."

The men's team beat out four schools to capture its fourth consecutive title. Following SIUC and Southwest Missouri State were the University of Evansville with 670 points, the University of Northern Iowa with 431 points and Bradley University with 119 points.

Walker said the Salukis put themselves in a solid position from the start.

"We put ourselves in a situation where we didn't have to panic," Walker said. "We just continued to swim well and had a tremendous finish."

The Salukis' next meet will be Jan. 17 against the University of Kansas in Carbondale.

Women upset ISU

Win the Super Bowl and the head coach gets doused in Gatorade. Win the Missouri Valley Conference Swimming and Diving Championships and the head coach gets thrown in the pool.

SIUC women's swimming coach Mark Kluemper was soaking wet, no thanks to his team, as it celebrated its victory by tossing the MVC Women's Swimming Coach of the Year into the pool Saturday night at the Recreation Center.

SIUC edged out favored Illinois State University 972-954 in a hard-fought battle. Following Illinois State was the University of Evansville with 614.5, the University of Northern Iowa with 401.5 and Bradley University with 150 points.

Kluemper said the meet was highly contested all weekend.

"This was a complete and total team effort," Kluemper said. "Illinois State gave us a great fight. We never had breathing room."

"They (Saluki swimmers) proved they could get in a big meet and get a win. Some freshmen maybe didn't know they could do this."
