MacDonald’s unwanted, student councils agree

By Catherine Edman

The Graduate and Professional Student Council made it clear Wednesday that it does not want a McDonald’s in the Student Center. Though council members voted unanimously to support a resolution favoring a management fee contract over a guaranteed fee contract for the Student Center food service, it did so only after a clause stating that members who voted to support Interstate United-Canteen was taken out. Interstate plans to put a McDonald’s in the Oasis Room of the Student Center if awarded the food service contract.

The GPSC passed a second resolution asking that the Student Center consider other proposals for the management of the Oasis Room. The council voted to support the second amendment 29 to 10. The resolution states concerns about the fast-food chain’s alleged involvement in the purchase of beef from Central America, the nutritional quality of its goods and the possible increase of litter on campus from food wrappers. Filipino elections monitored

By Tricia Yocum

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The Philippines armed forces said Friday they will keep order in Friday’s elections, after a bloody battle between 29-year ruler President Ferdinand Marcos and his opponent, the widow of Marcos’ assassinated arch rival.

The country’s entire military force of 250,000 was placed on “red alert” — the maximum state of readiness — in the event of disturbances in an election that has sharply divided the nation of 52 million people and started a trend of escalating violence.

Aquino threatened to mount a nationwide military coup.

Cans may be banned from Strip at Halloween

By Tricia Yocum

Metal cans may be prohibited from the Strip, in addition to glass bottles, during Halloween weekend if a measure discussed by the Liquor Advisory Board is implemented.

Police Chief Ed Hogan made the suggestion in a report to City Manager Bill Dvorak after people were injured by flying beer cans on the Strip.

Board members said they would not favor banning the sale of alcohol in cans the week before the festival, as bottles were banned, but they would support banning them from the Strip.

The measure would “take something out of the hands of people throwing beer cans,” said Board Chairman John Mills.

Hogan’s report said the lack of something to do during the festivities except “drink and stand in the street is conducive to boredom and intoxication,” and the two are not compatible. At some point during the drinking, the report said, there is the need to “hark up,” and that’s when the event is most likely to have throwing and property destruction generally occur at this time, it said.

Enforcement would be through specific checkpoints, Hogan said. “The ban is enforced now,” Mills said. Although board members said they realize that the problem would probably not be eliminated in the first year, they said it could at least be reduced.

Fate of ecosystems decided by humans, naturalist says

By Tom Mangan

An island near the Antarctic is home for 16 million penguins, but there’s not a whale to be found in surrounding waters. A fish called "suck," a small shrimp-like crustacean, one animal thrives in the absence of the other.

Whaling fleets decimated the whales and caused the penguin population to explode, proving that these foods are capable of deciding the delicate balance of the earth’s environment, which will die and which will survive — says British naturalist Sir David Attenborough.

People must look beyond the temporary economy, he said, and quest for profits that guarantee the longevity of species, whether they are at risk or not. "If they are to prevent further destruction of critical ecosystems," he said, "we must address and arrest the climate crisis that is everywhere, everywhere." Attenborough told and small group that the destruction of the environment is a "red alert" to the species of the world.

The African mountain gorillas are endangered by the human population, which is cutting down the forest to make room for more farmland, he said. But the problem is not clearing but is a temporary solution, he said, because the crops will be washed away during the rainy season, eroding the topsoil and leaving a barren landscape.

Instead of seeing the richest areas in the world, they have a fertile desert and have to hunt for food," Attenborough said. "They shoot everything that moves, including the gorillas."

A project is under way to save the population of about 200 mountain gorillas, he said, showing that people can cooperate to save precious animal life.

It is dependent upon the natural world for our very survival in a very economic and a dietetic sense, but more than that, the natural world is the source of the world’s great wonder and beauty, Attenborough said. "We have the ability to control the destiny of the earth’s plant and animal life," he said. "We can decide whether an amazing range of creatures will be allowed to survive or whether we should allow them to disappear and allow our earth to become desolate. The future is in our hands.

Attenborough has traveled around the world throughout the past 30 years making films on wildlife and conservation. He produced and narrated the critically acclaimed television series "Life on Earth" and "The Living Planet" and wrote numerous books on the environment. He was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II in 1992 for "distinguished services to wildlife study and conservation efforts." Attenborough said his next project will explore the natural world of the remote region of Northeast Africa and the Middle East where humans learned to domesticate crops, destroyed the forest of the continent and started a trend of exploiting nature.

Some complained that the 300 seats in the Auditorium were reserved for local dignitaries such as members of the President’s Council — those who have made substantial contributions to the University Foundation — while students and other Attenborough fans had to watch the lecture from outside the auditorium.

The auditorium reportedly was filled by 7 p.m., an hour before the lecture began. A chorus of laughter echoed through the building when Richard Peterson, director of the Honors Program, announced that the lecture was primarily intended for the students in the auditorium.

Despite the somewhat unorthodox seating arrangement, Attenborough delighted the crowd with a slide-show presentation of the volcano-watching expeditions in Ireland, bizarre animal life in the Galapagos Islands and a mountain gorilla tracking in Central Africa. "This was the message — the need to preserve the earth’s natural resources and the need for us to fight throughout.

Shuttle committee briefed; no closer to understanding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NASA investigators spent more than five hours briefing the president's Challenger commission Thursday but gave no indication they are any closer to understanding what caused the shuttle disaster that they were last week. NASA officials did try to scotch some speculation by saying there was no reason to believe that freezing weather the morning of the launch had anything to do with the loss of the ship and its crew.

Reagan celebrates 75th birthday, feels 39

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, awash in songs, cakes and foreign greeting cards, —from Europe to Asia to the Middle East — celebrated his 75th birthday Thursday feeling "only like 39" and wishing for world peace. Looking fit after a year in which he underwent major surgery to remove cancer from his colon and a minor operation to remove skin cancer from his nose, Reagan heard "Happy Birthday" led by Vice President Bush at a prayer breakfast for 3,900 of Washington's power elite and got a box full of greetings Bush said came from more than 100 world leaders.

Two dozen Hormel meatpackers arrested

AUSTIN, Minn. (UPI) — More than two dozen striking meatpackers who tried to stop replacements from entering the Geo. A. Hormel & Co. plant were arrested Thursday along with a labor leader who promptly began a jailhouse hunger strike. Labor lawyer Ray Komer, who warns by a judge Tuesday he would go to jail if he violated an injunction against mass demonstrations again, was held without formal charges, Mower County Attorney Fred Kraft said.

Police patrol airports after bomb injuries 20

PARIS (UPI) — Hundreds of police patrolled airports, train stations, museums and national landmarks Thursday in a bid to stop a wave of bombings that injured 20 people and prompted tourists to consider canceling Paris vacations. The officials, including Prime Minister Laurent Fabius, Interior Minister Pierre Joxe, Foreign Minister Roland Dumas and Defense Minister Paul Quiles, declined comment as they left the session.

He said the reports were "completely crazy."

FAA orders engine inspections after accident

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal aviation officials Thursday ordered the nation's airlines to inspect hundreds of aircraft with certain Pratt and Whitney engines to look for cracks that could result in a major explosion of the engine breather pipe. The part is a combustion chamber outer case, a large metal sleeve that encases the combustion chambers of the engine. Such a part figured in an incident Oct. 20 involving an Eastern Airlines DC-9 jettiner in which a section of the engine failed and peeled back following takeoff from Tampa, Fla. Three people died in that crash.

Health service fee increase sought by USO

By Brett Yates
Staff Writer

A resolution calling for the SIU Foundation to divest from South Africa was withdrawn and a resolution calling for a fee increase for the Student Health Service was passed at the Undergraduate Student Organization meeting Wednesday night.

The resolution on divestment was withdrawn after some of the senators said they needed more time to investigate it before making a call to divest.

The resolution passed for a fee increase for the Student Health Service says that the Health Service should receive an increase of $36 per student per year and that the front door fee should be increased from the current $3 to $5, but any further funding should be brought from other sources.

A resolution supporting joint funding for building an on-campus day care facility for new investors, which passed at the Jan. 22 meeting, was amended to say that additional funding for the facility should come out of mainstall student activity fee of $2.25. The resolution also noted that student fee support should not exceed 70 percent of the building costs and that the University should pay at least 30 percent of the costs.

A resolution passed recommending that Interstate United Student Center receive the Student Health service contract. After the resolution passed, near the end of the meeting, Mary O'Hara, a graduate assistant who works in Women's Services, told the Senate that she was opposed to the intention of Interstate United Canteen to establish a McDonald's in the Student Center because she said McDonald's is buying beef from Central Specialty calls for growth in doctoral program

By Patricia Edwards
Staff Writer

President Somit told the Graduate Council Thursday he hopes to make a "desired growth" in strengthening and expanding doctoral programs at the University.

This quarter School should try to strengthen and expand new and existing graduate programs until they are full scale doctoral programs, he said.

Research efforts especially should be expanded if the graduate program is to achieve its goal of being a first-class institution, Somit said.

High standards should be employed, he said, to establish and maintain a reputation of quality equal to the University.

He also said a favorable report regarding the need for the graduate program in the School of Medicine would be prepared for consideration. To make this possible, a "major, rounded research institution." Master's programs would need to be combined with doctoral programs in the School, he said.

After the president's address, the council passed a resolution urging the administration to support the proposal for new master's and doctoral programs in pharmacology.

The resolution was proposed by the Department of Pharmacology at the SIU School of Medicine in Springfield. The Medical Physiology Department also expressed interest in graduate program in the School of Medicine that would prepare master's and doctoral degrees in "tracks" of concentration in the fields of physiology, pharmacology, anatomy and biochemistry.

Council members discussed whether the proposal called for separate master's and doctoral programs or a combined program where the student would receive both degrees.

Although it was noted by Robert Jackson, associate dean of the Medical School, that there are a number of universities that follow the combined-degree program, the council decided on a program which separates the two.

The council also discussed a resolution proposing a doctoral program in physics. The resolution was proposed by the College of Science and the Department of Physics. It is expected to be voted on at next month's meeting.

The Graduate Council also passed a resolution clarifying jurisdiction of the Graduate Council and the Faculty Senate with regard to issues of common interest.

In announcements before the meeting, Inter-Greek Council Chairman Mark Glasford, Black Affairs Council Coordinator Gary Hefflin, and USO President Tony Appleman agreed that there needed to be unity between the three organizations.

East Side Senator Dan Sheridan responded to Glasford's statements about unity by saying the IGC didn't consult the USO concerning the removal of the canon by the SAGD at Old Main Mall.

He said the council should be moved to somewhere the students could see it such as the library or the Student Center where it would be more visible. Glasford agreed it should be placed somewhere more visible.

In other business, the Senate decided on an election commission consisting of Mike Grein as a non-voting commissioner; and Sheridan, Hal Parks, Joseph Connelly, John Grivas, and Keith Darl as commission members.

Remember history to improve future

FEARLY HAS BEEN SET aside as Black History Month. It is being observed in the University in a variety of ways, including art exhibits, poetry, and appreciation for black artists, and by movies, lectures and performances by national, and local black artists. In some ways, it has become more than a歴陳teresting time for celebrating black culture also. It is only recently that the role of blacks in American history has begun to be acknowledged, and certainly there is a great deal more to do to ensure that all children grow up with an accurate knowledge of what happened to all people in America while the country was growing. The contributions of black artists, scientists, physicians, businessmen and writers have benefited all members of society.

BUT IT WOULD BE a mistake to honor only the heroes of the past. If the study of history is intended to help people make wise choices about the future, remembering is not enough. Sure, the people and the work they did, such as Dr. Martin Luther King, Phyllis Wheatley, Harriet Tubman, and Dr. Charles Drew, should be remembered by people of all races. Their accomplishments, their compassion, and their courage are models for all people. But the questions they asked, the issues they raised, the problems they confronted, the ideas they came to, must be asked of ourselves as we celebrate black culture also.

IN ADMIRING THE heroes of the past, let's not forget the people today who are working to make life for black Americans better. People like Kini Gray, the resident manager of a public housing project, who organized a college preparatory program within the project. Or SIU graduate Roland Burris, state comptroller and one of the highest-ranking black state politicians in the nation, and 1994 presidential candidate Jesse Jackson, who proved that race does not have to be a barrier to political success. The social workers, teachers and others who are trying to turn around the frightening rate of unemployment among young black males as well as the increase in families headed by single black women, all need support, spiritually and financially, to make it easier to celebrate black culture also.

So, instead of just admiring the works and the spirit of the heroes of the past, we should this month — and all the time — copy their determination to work to make life better. That would be the best tribute of all.

Intellectual Salukis

SIU-C IS DEVELOPING a national reputation for excellence in competitions of the intellect. The University debate team recently reached the quarterfinals of No. 1 in the nation by winning a tournament at Louisville. What makes the debate team's accomplishment even more amazing is that there are five or six black students that are really good at this competition. Congratulations are in order for each member of the team. The team's triumph came in the wake of the law school's moot court team victory in national competition last spring for fulfilling the five year achievement.

New Nepalese student facts

We would like to correct and add some facts about the Nepalese Students Association, which was fully covered by the DF Jan. 23. The student association is NSPAs, instead of NSIA as published in the article. The 27 members of the organization consists of SIU students, most of whom are Nepalese spouses and associate members from other countries. The newly elected executive committee consists of Dipak Thapa, vice president; Ram Krishna Shrestha, secretary; and Shristi Gahatraj, treasurer. The group's activities include a special class for Nepalese students, which is taught by the University'sHimalayan culture.
Thursday morning, eight honors students from the College of Science met with Attenborough for further discussion of his numerous exploits. Botany students Bryan Adams and Jeanette Baker and zoology students Stephen Reilly, Karen Borkowski, Rachel Budelsky, Ken Dulk, Bret Tobaiske and Amy Moser quizzed Attenborough on his most dangerous adventures and some of the most endangered ecosystems on earth.

Attenborough said one of his more harrowing experiences occurred about 25 years ago when he took a film crew to Komodo, a South Sea island near Java that is home to the Komodo dragon, one of the largest lizards in the world. He and his crew sailed a small fishing boat through a series of whirlpools and coral reefs, guided by an islander who wasn’t sure of the exact location of Komodo. Attenborough said he ended up navigating to Komodo himself and the ship stood a good chance of being sunk, but he was lucky enough to reach the island safely.

Attenborough said destruction of rain forests is one of the major ecological disasters in the world. Better planning of the cutting of the forests, as in planting fast-growing trees to replace those cut down, would help to alleviate the dangers of destroying the forests, he said.

Rain forests play a key role in the circulation of oxygen, carbon dioxide and other important elements between the plant world and the atmosphere, he said, and the clearing of the forests is already interfering with the climactic balance in Brazil.

Deaths called 'murder-suicide'

BENTON, Ill. (UPI) — An intensive investigation has revealed that six members of a rural Thompsonville family, in their fire-ravaged trailer home were murdered-suicide, Franklin County authorities announced Thursday.

The bodies of Keith Dial, 39, a Vietnam veteran and truck driver, and five of his children were recovered after the fire was discovered Saturday morning.

A statement issued by the sheriff's department said two of the children died from wounds inflicted with a sharp object and that the others died of gunshot wounds.

Dial died from an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound and a large-caliber handgun was found by Dial's body, the statement said.

Gasoline had been spread throughout the trailer and an empty gasoline can was found inside the locked trailer. All of the victims were dead before the fire was discovered, the statement said.

The murder-suicide conclusion was reached after an investigation by the sheriff's department, state fire marshal, state Division of Criminal Investigation and the Decatur office of State Police forensic laboratory. Sheriff's investigator John Moore said some laboratory test findings had been rushed through to complete an investigation earlier than expected. Authorities had indicated as late as Wednesday that the reports were not expected until Monday or Tuesday.

Franklin County Coroner Robert Lewis was not mentioned in the statement.

Lewis said later that he neither agreed nor disagreed with the findings of the agencies involved in the investigation, and added, "I would and all the individuals in the gathering of this evidence."

But under Illinois law, Lewis said, all official rulings on cause of death in such cases must come from the coroner or coroner's jury.

"No such ruling has been made by this office and none will be made until such future time as all facts and evidence have been assembled and analyzed."

He said he empaneled a jury last Saturday but that all the reports may not be in for another month to six weeks.

Lewis said the bodies of all six victims were found in one room and that his pathology had told him that Dial's wound was a contact wound. Lewis said authorities had been under a great deal of pressure in the case.

"I don't believe a Charles Manson is running around out there and I don't think people should go out and buy a gun or a vicious dog," said Lewis.

Dial had been under a great deal of emotional pressure, including that resulting from the death of his wife last December, authorities said.

CIA analyst defends giving materials to China

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) - CIA analyst and accused spy Larry Wu-Tai Chin testified Thursday he provided U.S. intelligence material to communist China so he could establish his own "hotline" to Peking to improve Sino-American relations.

Chin, testifying in his own defense after the prosecution rested its case, said the money he got for the secrets was to prove to Peking that his information was genuine.

"THE CHINESE are paranoid" and would not have believed the information if it "came free," he told a crowded courtroom.

Chin, 63, faces 17 counts of delivering secrets to Chinese intelligence agents for more than 30 years while he was employed as a CIA analyst. Born in China, he is a naturalized American citizen.

CHIN HAS pleaded not guilty to the charges, which also include tax evasion.

If convicted, he faces two life terms in prison plus 47 years. The government also is asking fines of $2.5 million for income tax, currency and banking violations. U.S. District Judge Robert Merhige told the jury that he expected the presentation of evidence would conclude Thursday and final arguments would be delivered Friday.

The meticulously kept diary also listed dinners Chin is said to have had in Peking with Chinese officials identified by a CIA witness as high officers of the Peking Ministry of Security.

TWO ENTRIES of "mutton pot" apparently referred to a Chinese specialty Chin favored.

Some parts of the diaries were blacked out. A defense lawyer explained to the court that the defense and prosecution had agreed to the deletions, which were not further identified.

Wilfred McCarthy, an IRS agent for 17 years, used giant charts to label the jury of nine women and three men what the IRS had discovered of Chin's financial transactions.

He said they involved the Hong Kong and Shanghai bank in Hong Kong, the purchase in Hong Kong of $16,631 in gold and U.S. real estate deals.

McCarthy said the IRS had traced at least $100,000 in transfers from the Hong Kong bank to the United States, including thousands of dollars to the Sands and Caesar's Palace hotel-casino in Las Vegas, Nev., for gambling losses.

The casinos -- which prosecutor said were referred to in the diary as "sands" and "cas" -- had closed their accounts with Chin, a heavy gambler, because of non-payment of debts, McCarthy said.

The prosecution Thursday, presenting giant reproductions of diary pages that allegedly detailed his meetings with Chinese agents around the world.

The 3-by-5-foot page reproductions, including those from his passport, listed visits that Chin is believed to have taken to Peking, Hong Kong, London and Canada to meet with Chinese intelligence officials.

While he was a CIA analyst, he was accused by then-President Nixon's first visit to the mainland.

JUST AS the White House now has a hotline with the Kremlin for the exchange of top-level information, Chin decided to establish his own link with Peking to bring about Chinese and American relations.

"You lied about your tax returns," Aronica persisted, recalling earlier testimony by an IRS agent that Chin failed to disclose at least $150,000 in bank accounts and was charged with failing to disclose his income from the last 15 years.

Aronica persistently won admission to show the Chin a meeting between FBI agents and Chin, a meeting at which Aronica was identified by a secretary as the CIA analyst.

He said Chin had lied to FBI agents about his purposes and violations of secrecy agreements governing his employment with the Federal Broadcast Information Services, a branch of the CIA.

John Cougar Mellencamp

By Wm. Bryan DeVasher
Entertainment Editor

John Cougar Mellencamp, the rocker from Indiana who advised listeners to “hold on to it” for as long as you can” in 1982, will perform at 8 p.m. Friday at the Arena as Arena Promotions welcomes the first rock concert of the spring season.

Mellencamp, who is currently riding a wave of popularity because of his latest album, “Scarecrow,” and the hit singles “Lonely Ol’ Night” and “R.O.C.K. in the USA,” was one of the organizers of the Farm-Aid concert in Champaign Sept 22. Mellencamp, along with country star Willie Nelson, the father of the Farm Aid idea, and folk rocker Neil Young, was a principal figure behind the 17-hour extravaganza, which raised millions of dollars to help American farmers, a breed that is quickly dying out because of corporate take-overs of farms and farm foreclosures that are caused by mounting farming debts.

Mellencamp is often mentioned in the same breath as Bruce Springsteen and Tom Petty, two musicians known for their strong pro-American stances, as one of the most forceful American voices in music today. Like Springsteen, whose “Born in the U.S.A.” celebrates American life in general, and Petty, whose “Southern Accents,” focuses on life in the South, Mellencamp proudly displays his roots with “Scarecrow,” an album that waves the banner of Midwestern life, which is steeped in traditions such as farming and small town life.

Mellencamp’s first two albums, “John Cougar” and “Nuthin’ Matters and What if I Did,” were commercial failures. However, in 1982, when he began writing about life in the Midwest, his career took off when the song “Jack and Diane,” a saga about “two American kids growing up in the heartland,” became a hit and rocketed Mellencamp to fame. With “Uh huh,” his fellow-up to “American Fool,” Mellencamp continued the trend of Midwestern songs with the epic “Pink Houses,” complete with a video shot in his hometown of Seymour, Ind. Now with “Scarecrow,” the trend has gained national attention, as the album addresses such issues as farm foreclosure and living and dying in a small town. Mellencamp resides in Bloomington, Ind., when not touring and, according to the song “Small Town,” he will probably continue living in a small town until the day he dies.

Mellencamp will bring his “Scarecrow” tour to Carbondale, right in the middle of the heartland, Friday and the hits from “Scarecrow” with him as well as other Mellencamp favorites like “The Authority Song,” “Hurt So Good” and “I Need A Lover.”

Arena Promotions Director Scott Miller says that many good seats for the show are still available. Tickets are $14.50 and can be purchased at the Arena south lobby ticket office prior to the concert.

Seminars to help problem drinkers, friends

By Elizabeth Cochran

Two workshops to help people with alcohol problems and their friends deal with the issue are being offered by the Wellness Center. Both workshops begin next month.

The first workshop, "How Can I Help?" is designed to help friends and relatives of alcoholics. The second, "Out From Under: Substance Abuse in the Lives of Women" explores the concerns of women alcoholic mates of alcoholics and daughters of alcoholics. The workshops are coordinated by Barb Fijolek, Wellness Center counselor.

"How Can I Help?" is designed to help friends of alcoholics recognize the problem, approach the individual effectively and help the alcoholic deal with the disease.

Some of the warning signals to a drinking problem include thinking and talking about drinking often, slacking off in school, having problems with relationships and drinking to get drunk, Fijolek said.

"Answering yes to any one of these could indicate a problem," she said.

If friends exhibit these signals, she suggests talking to them when they are sober and choosing a private place to do so. She said it helps to have examples of their mistakes due to drinking ready, and not to argue with them. Also, she says it's important to be factual, not judgmental, and to let them know you are doing it out of love and concern.

One way to help alcoholics is not to help them, she said. Taking responsibility for their illness, like making excuses for them and getting them out of jams, worsens the problem because "they don't feel the consequences of their drinking," she said.

Out From Under: Substance Abuse in the Lives of Women" explores the concerns of women alcoholic mates of alcoholics and daughters of alcoholics. The workshops are coordinated by Barb Fijolek, Wellness Center counselor. "How Can I Help?" meets Wednesday and Feb. 18 from 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. in the Student Center's Activity Room B. "Out From Under: Substance Abuse in the Lives of Women," meets from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. for three consecutive Thursdays beginning Feb. 13. Anyone interested can register through the Wellness Center at 536-4441.

Ma Hale’s restaurant is more than good food

By Karen Mellinghausen
Student Writer

Ma Hale’s restaurant is a landmark in Grand Tower. From the outside, it looks like an average roadside cafe. The inside is rustic, decorated with dozens of black and white photographs of local patrons as well as those from around the globe. But its patrons think of it as an average restaurant.

Perhaps it is because Melissa Hale, originator of the restaurant in the late 1930s, was not average. Neither is her son, Tom, who took over the restaurant after her mother’s death.

The texture of the 68-year-old man’s hands resembles that of his face, which is lined and creased by years of joviality and sadness, work and play. He wears rainbow-striped suspenders and a diamond ring on his left hand. His steel-blue eyes are penetrating and pensive. The smoke from his cigarette curls up around his head as he speaks.

THE RESTAURANT is his life’s blood and his family’s livelihood. To Jones, it’s talk about it with anyone who is interested.

“We didn’t expect a restaurant to happen at all,” he said. “One day an old man walked up to us and said, ‘I’ll feed all the captain’s crew members as well.’ So began Ma Hale’s restaurant in 1938.

“IT WAS just an old house,” Hale said. “My dad and mother moved off a 600-acre farm and bought the house for $600. There were no facilities for a restaurant at that time, just a round table, an old wood stove and an old sink,” he said.

Before the Hales knew it, people would wait outside on Sundays, rain or shine, for three hours or more to get in. “Oh, we had everything,” Hale said. “Always had a band in the yard. I’d hire clowns. There’d be people from the TV and radio stations here.

“My mother was a German woman,” he said. “Until she got real old, I never saw her walk — she’d do everything in a run. She always told us that nobody would ever leave there without eating. Didn’t make any difference whether they had money or didn’t have money,” Hale said.

IN THE beginning, the main course was a choice of either chicken or ham with side dishes “family style.” It is still served the same way. “You can get just about anything you can name,” Hale said.

Patrons will never leave hungry after eating ham or chicken, mashed potatoes and gravy, corn, ham and beans, noodles, coleslaw, applesauce, green beans, rolls and butter and for dessert, fruit cobbler topped with ice cream.

Everyone loved Ma Hale. Remembering one of her birthdays, Hale said that tourists, neighbors and patrons collected enough money to purchase a plaque in her honor. It read that she had served more than one million people. A large party was held and in a town whose population is 700, more than 2,000 people were fed.

“MY MOTHER wouldn’t stand for an imitation of anything. It had to be real,” Hale said. “We would put pure grape jelly and pure butter in bowls on the tables. You can’t do that anymore. Now you’ve to have all that stuff packaged,” he said.

Every table had to have white tablecloths and napkins.

That was something Ma demanded. “You can imagine the laundry we had to do,” Hale said. “She kept somebody washing, somebody drying and somebody ironing all the time.”

When asked about his mother’s death, Hale said simply, “her heart.” That was all. He looked down at his crooked fingers.

Her death meant the end of a legend, but the institution is still going strong today.

HALE’S FATHER also had a great influence on him, although the man had little to do with the restaurant other than maintenance. “My dad was sort of a prankster, a joker, like I am,” he said. “One time he had picked up a sack of old rusty nails. Why, you could just crush them in your fingers,” Hale said. “One little kid came in with three cents and he sold those rusty nails to that little kid. The kid took them home and his dad made him bring them back. He said, ‘You tell that old man we don’t want those rusty nails,’” Hale said, laughing.

But everybody loved him, especially the children. “When he died, the kids in town went around and collected $20 in pennies and nickels for flowers for his grave.”

“WHEN THE funeral service was over, a bunch of kids came running down the street. One of them yelled, ‘We want...”

Marie Balzett (left), the current owner of Ma Hale’s restaurant, sits with Thomas F. Hale, the past owner of the restaurant that is located in Grand Tower.
Entertainment hotline draws heated response

By John Tindall
Staff Writer

A recording on the Student Programming Council's hotline was discontinued Thursday after an employee from the Carbondale Women's Center expressed concern that the telephone message was "obscene and disgusting." Camilla Stacey, of the Women's Center, said she received calls from two female students complaining about the entertainment hotline's message.

Stacey said she phoned the hotline and found the message to be "obscene and disgusting." "I couldn't believe it," she said. "It was like an X-rated recording that you could call up and get off."

Stacey said the Women's Center complained to Sandy Moore, assistant University programming coordinator and adviser to SPC. Moore said after she listened to the message she felt it was appropriate to turn the hotline recording machines off, but said she was not making a judgment about the recording.

Kevin Wristmû, executive chairman of SPC, said there is no system to review the SPC hotline tapes before they are used. He said responsibility for the messages belongs to the SPC Promotions Chairman Gary Haubner.

A secretary in the Undergraduate Student Organization office said people had been calling all day to get the hotline's phone number.

Energy-aid program set

To help income eligible households pay a portion of their high home energy costs, the Western Egyptian Economic Opportunity Council is administering the Illinois Home Energy Assistance Program (IHEAP) in Jackson County.

All monies, regardless of type, are counted. Maximum income according to household size is as follows: one person, $1,841; two people, $2,305; three people, $2,766; and four people, $3,228.

The IHEAP has assisted 647 Jackson County households so far this heating season with grants. To date grants total $136,785, averaging $211 per household.

License violators face fines

Some students forget about keeping the registration on their vehicles current and as a result are being fined. 650, says SIUC police spokesman Nelson Perry.

One reason students might not update their vehicle registration is if they forget to have it forwarded from their permanent home address, Perry said, but he added “there’s no defense against it.”

If the registration sticker is not on the license plate when a car is stopped or if the driver doesn’t have a valid temporary registration, then “it’s fifty bucks plus costs” said Perry.

The license plate is the first thing a policeman looks at when he’s out on the street, said Perry.

to see Mr. Hale. 'I told the people carrying the casket to put it down, draw and open it, and they did. The kids all liked him even though he had removed the socks off them," Hale said.

The Hales always did things in a big way. About 15 years ago, when they started excursions tours by train from St. Louis to Grand Tower, nearly 1,000 people were left standing on the platform in St. Louis who couldn’t get on, Hale said. About 1,700 got off at Grand Tower.

"I knew they were coming, so we set up in the back yard," Hale said. "We had a barbecue pit 60 feet long. We barbecued 1,000 chickens, backed 20 hams, had a big copper kettle and a fellow named Fleet," he said.

UNTIL 1978, Hale’s was also a boarding house. When it opened, room and board was $3 per week which included all you-can-eat. Ma Hale even did the guests’ laundry for them.

"Can you imagine that?" Hale asked. "Right now, rooms are hard to find. Back then, a lot of widowed ladies in town had big homes that had rooms.

Hale’s is about 30 miles from SIUC and students know it well; they and senior citizens make up most of the patrons.

THE BUSINESS was built on word of mouth. On Parents’ Day at SIUC, students would bring their parents so Hale’s fame. The parents would go back to wherever they came from and tell their friends.

Motion picture Oscar nominations released

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "The Color Purple," the unprecedented story of a rural black woman in the South, and "Out of Africa," the stirring adventure saga of a love affair between an American and an African, each won 11 Oscar nominations Wednesday to become the two shoo-ins for contenders for this year's Academy Awards.

"Prizzi's Honor," a black comedy starring Jack Nicholson, and "Witness," the Amish love story starring Harrison Ford as a big-city cop, each won eight nominations.

THOSE FOUR movies were nominated for best picture, along with "Kiss of the Spider Woman," which got four nominations.

Although "The Color Purple" is widely viewed as being among his most ambitious works, Steven Spielberg — one of the industry's most celebrated directors — failed to win a nomination in the best director category.

Ford and Nicholson were both nominated for best actor, along with James Garner as the druggist in "Murphy's Romance," William Hurt as a homosexual prisoner in "Kiss of the Spider Woman," and Jon Voight as the hero in "Runaway Train."

NOMINATED FOR best actress were Meryl Streep as the beautiful adventurer in "Out of Africa," Ann Bancroft as the mother superior in "Agnes of God," Whoopi Goldberg as the indomitable black woman in "The Color Purple," and Jessica Lange as a country singer in "Sweet Dreams" and Geraldine Page as the old woman returning to her roots in "The Trip to Bountiful."

Among those missing from the nominations were Robert Redford, Sally Field and Jane Fonda, the co-stars of "Out of Africa," "Murphy's Romance" and "Agnes of God."

The list left out Spielberg for "The Color Purple" and Ron Howard for "Cocoon," who last week won nominations from the Directors Guild of America along with Huston, Pollack and Weir.

Nominated for best supporting actor were Don Ameche for "Cocoon," Rosemary Harris for "Out of Africa," William Hickey for "Prizzi's Honor," Robert Loggia for "Jagged Edge" and Eric Roberts for "Runaway Train."

NOMINEES FOR best supporting actress were Margaret Avery and Oprah Winfrey for "The Color Purple," Anjelica Huston for "Prizzi's Honor," Amy Madigan for "Twice in a Lifetime" and Meg Tilly for "Agnes of God."

It was the first bid for each of the supporting nominees.

Nominated for best original song were "Say You, Say Me" and "Separate Lives" from "White Nights," "Kiss on the Blues" from "The Color Purple," "Power of Love" from "Back to the Future" and "Surprise, Surprise" from "A Chorus Line."

THE ACADEMY voted nominations for best foreign language film to "Angry Harvest" from Germany, "Cocoons" from Hungary, "The Official Story" from Argentina, "1 Man and a Cradle" from France and "When Father Was Away on Business" from Greece.

One of the biggest surprises was Kurosawa's bid as director of "Ran," a movie that won wide critical acclaim but was not offered by Japan for foreign film consideration. If Kurosawa wins it would be the first time a foreign film director went to the director of a non-English language film.

THE ACTING nominations were the first for Ford, Garner and Hurt. It was also the first for Goldberg, who hopes to become the fourth actress to win an Oscar for her film debut.

It was the eighth nomination for Nicholson, named best actor in 1975 for "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and best supporting actor for "Terms of Endearment." If he wins, Nicholson will join Walter Brennan as the second actor with three Oscars.

Streep also has won two Oscars, best actress in 1982 for "Sophie's Choice" and best supporting actress for "Kramer vs. Kramer." She has won three other nominations.

Page has been nominated eight times, four for best actress, but has never won. A victory would remove her from the top of the list of most-nominated non-winners. The most nominated of this year's nominees is John Huston, Anjelica's father, whose bid for directing "Prizzi's Honor" is his 14th Oscar nomination; three categories. He has two previous wins, both in 1949 as director and writer of "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre."

a nationwide civil disobedience campaign if Marcos cheated, and military officials said that any assassination squads may have infiltrated Marcos's forces from the southern parts of the country. But officials said the chances of a large-scale attack by the rebels were slim.

Manila's Roman Catholic archbishop, Cardinal Jaime Sin, leader of the nation's 43 million Catholics and a frequent Marcos critic, appeared for sobriety and calm.

"The very future of our country is at stake," Sin said. "Passions are high and the temper of the people is short. On any kind of spark, could ignite a raging fire."

Marcos scoffed at Aquino's charges that he can win another six-year term only by cheating and urged the 26 million voters to "respect each other's choices" in the election which also restores the vice presidency for the first time since Marcos imposed eight years ago and establishes a line of succession to the presidency.

In a statement from Maiacanag Palace, President, who earlier said he was "open" to the election is "a choice between formation about the likely efficiency of the campaign to McDonald's, formal procedures were waived so Mann could have served as student at the Women's Committee, and she was assured of the Computer, nutrition coordinator for the Wellness Center, could add a personal touch to questions from members.

On the other hand, concern about the destruction of tropical rain forests in Central America, and the fears that cattle to grass, Zeher expressed her concern.

The resolution, which was introduced by Senator Eric A. Andrade and the southern delegates, urging the United States to support Aquino, has been supported by him, but the military blamed it on a communist hitman who was killed by soldiers minutes after the assassination.

Aquino predicted a landslide victory for the opposition party over Marcos, first elected president in 1965.

Marcos called the special election 16 months before his term was due to expire in 1987 to blunt widespread criticism of his regime and charges from the United States that communist guerrillas had grown so strong that they posed a threat to Washington's longtime ally in Asia.

The United States maintains its largest overseas military installations in the Philippines, including the main base of the U.S. Air Force's Far East Command and Clark Air Base.

Jose Condeco, chairman of the independent National Citizens Movement for Free Elections, warned that the vote must be clean and honest.

"Anything less can only make us snubbed at the consequences," he said.

His critic, Lindo, who marched with 500,000 volunteers, including 600 nuns and a group of children, said he would work as poll watchers. "We hope this will be a deterrent to goons coming over," he said.

Two periods of discussion were added, each 20 minutes long, to allow council members to voice their opinions on Kate's issue. The opinions expressed ranged from total opposition to total support for the resolution.

U.S. shuns Israeli reprimand

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States Thursday vetoed a Security Council resolution condemning Israel for its military build-up, saying the measure failed to address the underlying issue — terrorism.

U.S. Ambassador Vernon Walters said the resolution, which was introduced by a Palestinian guerrilla leader whom Israel sought to capture was not acceptable.

"Although the United States opposes the resolution in this case, the resolution before us is unacceptable," Walters told the council. "The council does not take into account the need to address practically and appropriately the overall issue — terrorism."

Ten of the council's 15 members supported the resolution, which was abstained were France, Britain, Denmark and Brazil.

The resolution would have condemned Israel for its forcible interception and diversion of the Libyan civilian aircraft in international air space, and its subsequent detention of the aircraft for five hours at a base in northern Israel.

Israeli authorities let the plane leave for Syria Tuesday when it was fast-clear to find the terrorists they suspected were aboard. The aircraft carried seven Libyan officials and two pre-Syrian Lebanese military officials. Walters said the United States opposes interception of civilian aircraft but recognizes the right of a state subjected to terrorist attacks to make "appropriate use of force" to defend itself.

"We believe a state should intercept a civilian aircraft only on the basis of the strongest and clearest evidence that terrorists are on board," Walters said.

We cannot believe that Israel has demonstrated that it action met that rigorous and necessary standard and therefore we deplore that action."

The U.S. veto was the third this year. On Jan. 17, it blocked a resolution condemning Israeli violence in southern Lebanon during the withdrawal of Israeli troops from that country.

Reagan sends legislature outline of goals for future

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan sent Congress a hefty political wish list Thursday, a detailed blueprint he hopes he can carry on a conservative revolution and expand democracy and economic opportunity around the world.

Upbeat and determined on his 75th birthday, Reagan sent Congress a 27-page document that translated the lofty rhetoric of his fifth State of the Union address into an agenda for legislative and administrative action.

WHEN ASKED what he wanted for his birthday, Reagan alluded to criticism from House Speaker Thomas O’Neill, D-Mass., and said, “That would be a great present — his approval even for what we’ve done.”

From removing legal and regulatory bonds on business to promoting free trade, property and democracy in the document — titled “America’s Agenda for Prosperity and Democracy.” The blueprint represented a move by Reagan to change the course of government by implementing his plan “for a freer and more prosperous tomorrow.”

“All of us in this room are part of a historic tide that is rolling back statism and tyranny and expanding the boundaries of human freedom,” he said. “Let us have the courage to live up to our ideals, the energy to reach our potential and the commitment to do the job that has to be done.”

HIGHEST PRIORITIES were attached to using the deficit-reduction mandate of the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law “to lay the groundwork for an ever-expanding economy that leads the world in innovation, performance and productivity.”

Addressing reporters in the Oval Office, Reagan said Gramm-Rudman “will be used as a shovel to dig us out of the results of deficit spending.”

Blacks leave under force, activist says

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Civil rights activists charged police, and soldiers forced blacks to move from their homes for the first time in two years as a government minister predicted the eventual election of a black president in South Africa.

Police and soldiers in armored trucks forced blacks to move from Moutse, northeast of Johannesburg, to the remote northern Transvaal province, said Ethel Walt, vice president of the Black Sash civil rights group.

“The government has once again engaged in an old-style forced removal,” she said. “In the presence of police, people are being loaded into removal trucks and their houses are being demolished.”

IT WAS the first forced removal since blacks were marched at gunpoint from their traditional homes at Magopa two years ago. The removal was designed to “consolidate” the community into a northern tribal homeland.

There was no immediate comment from government officials.

Walt said officials arrived at the Ulvahug village in the Moutse area at daybreak in three buses and nine armored trucks. She said they bullied residents into signing documents, threatening to move them to Immepan, north of Moutse, and then loaded them onto trucks.

Black Sash fieldworker Alan Morris said he saw an armored truck full of police at a house where a family was hiding inside.

“I DID not see anyone actually with a gun at his back,” he said, “but people clearly are scared. They are certainly intimidated by the police.”

He said the community was surprised by the arrival at dawn of officials and police, followed by trucks to move families.

Financial aid awareness key of designated week

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

Financial Aid Awareness Week is upon us in Illinois to help students and parents become aware of financial aid available for college students.

Governor Thompson designated it Financial Aid Awareness Week four years ago as part of his "Illinois Year of Students," according to Dan Mann, associate director at the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

"The main intent is to make everyone aware of the financial assistance available to them," Mann said.

Tables with financial aid information and advisers who will answer students' questions will be at the Student Center.

Unlike many other universities in Illinois, financial aid at SIU-C is promoted all year, Mann said. "It'll be putting special emphasis on it next week," he said.

Among the better-known programs are the Illinois State Scholarship Commission, National Student Loan, College Work-Study and Pell Grant, but many more programs are available for everyone to look into, Mann said.

Many students don't look into obtaining financial aid because they think it's only for "real needy people," Mann said.

"Last year SIUC gave out $91.4 million in financial aid through all the programs," he said. The number of students receiving awards was 18,309 — 80 percent.

Twenty percent of SIU-C students are denied financial aid, mostly because their financial need does not qualify them for aid, he said.

Forty to 45 percent of the students enrolled receive Pell Grants and ISIC awards. "There are a lot who don't receive 'free money,' and they way things are going right now, there will be less financial aid available," Mann said.

Cuts in financial aid have been talked about throughout the years, but nothing yet has affected SIUC, he said. However, the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law, discussed by President Reagan during his State of the Union address Tuesday, brings the University closer to the edge of cuts in financial aid, Mann said.

Financial Aid Awareness Week will also be targeted at high schools to inform students, counselors and teachers of the financial aid available for students to continue their education, he said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two top Chicago prosecutors failed to follow through on a grand jury request for a grand jury inquiry into the G.D. Searle Co. controversy over its artificial sweetener NutraSweet, then joined the law firm representing Searle. Senate investigators disclosed Thursday.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said a yearlong investigation by his staff into the Chicago U.S. attorney's office's handling of the matter "raises serious questions" as to whether all safety questions surrounding the widely used sweetener — marketed as NutraSweet — have been resolved.

Metzenbaum asked the chairmen of the Labor and Judiciary committees to subpoena testimony from all key figures in the matter, including former U.S. attorney Samuel Skinner and a former assistant, William Conlon, who each later joined Sidley & Austin, the law firm representing Searle.

Despite at least three requests from the Food and Drug Administration, the U.S. attorney's office never opened the grand jury inquiry into allegations Searle failed to report concealed unfavorable test results on aspartame, documents released by Metzenbaum revealed.

In one March 8, 1977, memo, Skinner advised attorneys assigned to the NutraSweet review that he was withdrawing from all involvement because he had engaged in preliminary job discussions with Sidley & Austin. He asked them to keep his employment negotiations confidential to avoid any undue embarrassment on the firm of Sidley & Austin.

Only a month earlier Skinner had participated in a meeting with lawyers for the firm to discuss the allegations against Searle. It was not clear, however, when Skinner began discussing employment with the law firm.

In withdrawing from the care, Skinner also recommended that — although the statute of limitations for any reporting violations on NutraSweet was due to lapse by year's end — any decision on opening a grand jury investigation await the appointment of a new U.S. attorney.

Investigators said Skinner's action was a critical factor in withholding the prosecutor's argument the inquiry should proceed, caused a critical four-month delay.

Skinner could not be reached Thursday, but he said in a statement, "I don't have any knowledge as to what happened in this case because I removed myself from any consideration of it shortly after the request came into my office."

Trustee has slowly climbed student government ladder

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

Andy Leighton has come a long way in student government since he first became a Door representative in his dorm his freshman year.

Though he may seem to be one of those people who has always been involved, Leighton, a senior student representative to the SIU Board of Trustees, said his activism did not begin until he went away to college.

"I went to a university and thought 'Well, I've got two friends down here so I better get involved and there's a whole bunch of things to do.' I figured it was a good training ground," he said.

Leighton was a floor representative in his dorm during his freshman year and was cot president of that council the next year.

Jerry Cook, then president of the Undergraduate Student Organization, approached Leighton during his sophomore year with an offer to fill an empty seat on the city-wide Citizen Advisory Council. Leighton said he can't remember exactly where the discussion about running for the council went down.

When the council asked him about reworking the housing codes for stricter enforcement, he voted in favor of the change.

Leighton said he was upset this year when the city shifted its R-I zone burden of proof requirement to residents, because he was opposed to that from the very beginning. He was on an alumnus plans to issue several seminars.

As a west side senator for USO the following year he became a part of the effort to rejuvenate the Landlord-Tenant Union.

He said he would like to see this committee going year round, though the most desirable time for it to be in effect would be January or March when students are looking for housing for the following year. "It's not when it's an application and referral service. We try to educate students about living on campus before they move off campus about what it's like, what they need to know, their rights and responsibilities as tenants and the rights and responsibilities of tenants," Leighton said.

Leighton's upward progress in student government continued the following year when he was elected president of the USO. One of the things he said he is most proud of happened this year.

The efforts of the USO, led by Leighton, to register voters in the 1994 election drew considerable notice. New voting laws enabled at-large registration of voters and the USO took full opportunity of this. USO members registered 3,200 people in the University community as they were walking across campus, in parking lots and in classrooms. This number was not only a record for the county but also for a single registration drive.

After a year of being president of the student government body, Leighton decided to try to go one step farther and become student trustee. He ran for and was elected to that position unopposed.

Now he represents students on the Board of Trustees. He feels he is well suited for the position not only because of his experience but also because he feels he needs to be involved in things he thinks he can change.

This year he said he has tried to be a thorn in the administration's side about covering fees between SIU Foundation investments and South Africa and also about building a major addition to the library.

He was involved in arranging a bus trip to allow students to go to Atlanta for the celebration of the first holiday commemorating Martin Luther King Jr. and he is a member of the Illinois Student Association. He is not only a full-time student and a senior in political science but also has a part-time job at the University Computer Assisted Learning Lab.

"When you're not getting paid, when you're off in orbit here (his office in the brown barracks) you tend to think it's just too big, too much to deal with by yourself," he said. "But I think I have more energy, more enthusiasm for the job. I have high goals."
Flu a factor at GCAC finals

By Sandra Todd
Associate Sports Editor

For three years running, the Salukis swimming and diving teams have been the sole owners of the Gateway title.

This weekend at Normal, they will attempt to make it four in a row when they face GCAC rivals Illinois State, Western Illinois, Eastern Illinois and Northern Iowa.

At last year's championships, the Salukis won 18 of 18 events and finished almost 300 points ahead of second-place SIU. If Gateway individual ratings are indicative of the weekend meet's outcome — SIU ranks No. 1 in every swimming event and one diving event — the Salukis should do as well or better than last year. That is, if the team has defeated the flu first.

"We don't have the depth we had last year and with about 60 percent of our squad out of practice due to flu, we could be in for a tough meet," Coach Bailey Weathers said. "One thing I don't like about the meet format is the lack of flexibility on entries and scratches."

For the majority of bigger meets, normal format allows for entry changes the day before the meet.

"We've put a lot of people in freestyle and individual medley in hopes of making some NCAA cuts," Weathers said. "Not being able to change entries the day before the meet, as is customary at major meets, could leave us weak in some events if our swimmers still have the flu."

The major losses from last year's No.5-finishing NCAA squad who also competed in the GCAC meet are All-American Janie Coontz, a distance freestyler; Amanda Martin, breaststroker; Arni Airakinen, sprinter, and divers Wendy Lucero and Angie Faidherbe.

"My lack of familiarity with some of the teams makes it difficult for me to predict an order of finish," Weathers said. "There are a lot of individuals on other teams who will be very competitive, but I don't think any other team has our depth. If flu keeps our travel squad down to eight or ten, we could have a real close meet on our hands."

To date, the Saluki women are qualified for Nationals in six events, including the 400 freestyle relay team of Lori Rea, Rene Royalty, Wendy Trull and Sue Wittry (3:28.23); the 800-free relay team of Roxanne Carlton, Irick, Claudia Arnold and Stacy Westfall (7:32.53); the 200 medley relay team of Irick, Paty Mullen, Rea and Wittry (1:48.21); the 400 medley relay team of Irick, Mullen, Rea and Wittry (3:32.09) and Rea in the 50 free (25.76) and 100 butterfly (55.73).

In addition to more individual cuts, the team will be looking to qualify the 200 freestyle relay for Nationals.

The results of the 1985 GCAC championships are as follows: in first, SIU with 816.5 points; Illinois State, second place with 592; Western Illinois, third with 316; Eastern Illinois, fourth with 186.5 and Northern Illinois fifth with 153.5.

SIU's Westfall takes weekly Gateway swimming honors

For the third consecutive week, a Saluki has been named the Gateway Conference Swimming and Diving Athlete of the Week.

Stacy Westfall, a senior from Vincennes, Ind., earned the honor by capturing two firsts. Westfall placed first in dual meet action against Auburn and Nebraska last weekend and had the fastest GCAC times in two events.

Against Auburn, Westfall stroked to a personal-best time of 1:06.21 in the 100-yard freestyle for top honors. In a meet where SIU won two events in the 100 butterfly (58.29) and second in the 200 fly against the Tigers.

Against Nebraska, Westfall won the 200 fly (2:04.70) and took second in the 500 free (5:08.76). A food and nutrition major, Westfall is the school-record holder in the 200 fly (2:00.34) at the 1985 National Championships, where she placed seventh; a two-time National Independents Championships in the 200 fly (2:00.67) and 500 free (5:18.60) and All-American who swam the second leg of the 800-free relay which placed sixth (7:25.51) at last year's NCAA's.

Other Gateway results indicate that also for the third straight week the Saluki women are top-rated in every event in the top-two slots in four events and also the top-three in four events.

In diving, Saluki Susan Straub led six in the one-meter board, (17.27) and second on the three-meter (23.92).
Cornell sets sights on NCAA time cuts

By Steve Koulis
Staff Writer

Saluki men's track coach Bill Cornelli hopes five athletes can qualify for the NCAA indoor championships this weekend in the 13th annual Domino's Pizza Invitational at the University of Illinois.

Cornelli says more than 30 teams and 400 athletes are expected to compete in the meet, which is designed to help quality individuals for the NCAA indoor championships. Team scores will not be kept.

"It's a high-caliber meet designed for individuals who want to attain outstanding performances and qualify for the NCAA indoor championships," Cornelli said.

The meet consists of three divisions. The invitational division, which is for athletes who have met the meet's qualifying standards; the development division, for athletes who have not met the qualifying standards for the invitational division; and the open division, for individuals who have used up their college eligibility and are competing for track clubs.

Cornelli said he is going to take five athletes to Cham­paign, with at least 10 competing in the invitational division and 10 competing in the developmental division.

Cornelli said the five Saluki athletes who have the best chance of placing in this weekend for the NCAA indoor championships include field event specialist Tom Smith and middle-distance runner Bill Garrett, Mike Elliott, Antionette Raske and Jobie Kelly.

Smith, a senior from Lake Station, Ind., needs throws of at least 60-6 in the shot put and the hammer throw to qua­lify for Nationals. Smith's personal totals in the event this season are 58-3.25 and 58-10.1 respectively.

Garrett, a sophomore from South Bend, Ind., needs to shave 10 seconds from his personal best of 2:26.54 to qualify for Nationals in the 5,000-meter run. The NCAA qualifying standard is 2:22.00.

Cornelli also hopes Elliott and Petigrew can qualify for NCAA's in the 1,500-meters, but he stressed it will be the first time they have competed in the event this season.

Cornelli also hopes his two-mile relay team, consisting of Garrett, Elliott, Petigrew and Kelly, can qualify for Nationals. The quartet is entered in the two-mile relay for the first time this season.

Other entries for the Salukis in the invitational division include Ron Harrer in the shot put and the 30-pound weight throw; Brian Bradlay in the long jump, Felipe Martin in the triple jump and Bill Henning and Larry Hollway in the 60-yard high hurdles.

In analyzing SIU's performance in the first two meets of the season, Cornelli said his team is better than its two-three-place finishes indicate.

"But when you have a young team, you have to get 100 percent from your in­dividuals," Cornelli said. "Last week we only had 75 to 80 percent of our in­dividuals performing up to their capabilities."

While Cornelli hopes for an improved team attitude, his team is likely going to be hurt by the loss of distance runner David Lamont and pole vaulter Shane Weber, who are off to a good season and will be un­available for the remainder of the season.

After competing at the Domino's Pizza Invitational, the Salukis return to action the following week in a triangular meet at Eastern Illinois University.

Women tracksters travel to U of I

By Rich Houston
Staff Writer

After breaking five school records last weekend at the Eastern Illinois Invitational, the SIU-C's women track team will travel to Champaign Friday for competition in the University of Illinois Invitational.

The seven team meet will be un­expected of the Salukis' campaign coming from Bradley, SIU-E, Illinois, Northwestern, Ohio State and the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Being a non-scoring meet, individual performances will be highlighted.

"The main jist of this meet," said DeNoon, "will be to see how individuals perform. We have a good chance to look in good in this meet."

DeNoon likes the way his team looks going into Friday's meet.

"We appear to be healthy, we have no minor aches and pains, but nothing that will affect us in the competition," DeNoon said. "There are some Salukis to keep an eye on, and I had this to say about who to watch.

"Carlon Blackman (a two­time All-American) should break the school record and qualify for nationals in the 200-yard dash. "DeNoon Blackman will be running the 60- and 300-yard dashes and close close to the school record in both."

"Kathy Raske is continuing to improve in the and will be in definite possibility for a hurdle victory."

"Pam Quarenghi will be close to a school record in the 100-meter run."

"Robin Mc decided and our other throwers should compete well. We should see all listed in the top five in the finals."

"Vivian Sinou and Amy Marks will be in the 3,000 meter run. Vivian has a good record of breaking the 3,000-meter record. Unless she gets sick I don't see the record won't be annihilated."

"Our jumpers have been jumping well. There is a good jumping facility at Illinois. This will be the first time this season they will jump off a jumping board so that should help the performances. '"Our 4,000-meter relay team should exceed the team record."

Even though the meet is officially uncored, DeNoon says the coaches will be keeping their own scores to see how their teams stack up against the other teams at the meet.

"DeNoon said, "Our main competition will come from Northwestern, Ohio State, and the University of Illinois. The other teams are not really a factor."

The three teams that concern DeNoon have a different team strengths. Ohio State comes into the meet with a well-rounded team while Northwestern is mainly a distance team with one good thrower. The Illini features solid runners and are coming off a good year recruiting sprinters.

Friday's meet starts at 6 p.m. in the Armory at the University of Illinois.

"I encourage all 25,000 SIU students to go 230 and see the meet," said DeNoon. "It should be an exciting meet, and the Armory can accommodate all of you."
Gymnasts hope to douse Flames

The SIU women's gymnastics team will take on a young team from University of Illinois at Chicago Saturday in a tri-meet with Eastern Michigan University. According to coach Herb Vogel, the team has been on the road a lot recently and this may affect their performance at the meet.

The Salukis last saw UIIC at the Big Eight Invitational in February 1985 where SIU took first place (179.05) and UIIC got second place with a score of 171.45. Previous to that, SIU and UIIC met in the Illinois Intercollegiate Classic (also in February 1985), where the Salukis beat UIIC (177.15) while managing to edge out UIIC, who took fourth (170.20). UIIC first year coach Paul Price said that the Salukis managed to tie for first place (9.35) with Ulmer second in the nation.

Zarris admitted that the 1985-86 season will be a rebuilding year since he only has three returning performers. The Flames have one senior, one junior, one sophomore and four freshmen. Zarris is counting on the newcomers to be the "key to the future" for the Flames.

Yvonne Bruner, the senior captain of the Flames, has had the team's top scores in both the all-around (9.36) and balance beam (9.35). Zarris said that he thinks Bruner should be the top performer for UIIC this season.

The Salukis' Michelle Spellman owns SIU's all-time scoring records in all-around competition (38.20) and floor exercises (9.80). The Flames' junior, Kim Little, has the team's highest score on the uneven bars (9.90) and is looking to improve upon last year's performance, according to Zarris. Spellman possesses SIU's top score on the uneven bars as well, an impressive 9.75.

Missy Minor, a sophomore at UIIC, should challenge Bruner for top spot in floor exercises and is strong in the vault. Minor's best vault last season was a 9.10 and scored a 9.15 in floor exercises.

Spellman and teammates Lori Steele and Jennifer Moore share SIU's vaulting record of 9.65. Saluki newcomer Dawn Romeo, who scored an 8.60 in the beam against Jacksonville State University will be a significant addition to the balance beam squad and should provide competition for UIIC's Bruner.

The gymnasts will next see action on February 15, when they travel to Normal for the Illinois College Classic meet.

No.6 Salukis travel to Iowa State

The National Association of College Women Gymnasts has ranked the SIU men's team sixth in the nation, four spots behind University of Iowa, a team that the Salukis beat Jan. 31. The undefeated Salukis will meet 20th-ranked Iowa State University Friday at Ames, Iowa.

The Salukis met ISU twice in preseason competition. At the Big Eight Invitational Nov. 16, SIU came away with first place (266.15) out of five teams and ISU was fifth with 259.30. At the Windy City Invitational Nov. 23, SIU took third with 265.75 points behind the University of Iowa (274.45) and University of Oklahoma (267.64). ISU followed closely in fourth place with a score of 264.35.

"We're not really worried about beating these guys," said senior Brendan Price, "They're not a powerhouse team. We would like to improve our average score as a team." The Salukis' team average stands at 270.19, according to the rankings. But the team's scores in the last two meets have been significantly above that at 276.32 against Indiana State University and 276.50 against the University of Iowa.

The Cyclones' Mark Diab will bring tough competition for the Salukis on the still rings. Diab, averaging 9.72, is ranked second in the nation.

Mark Ulmer, junior all-arounder for the Salukis, is ranked thirteenth on the rings with an average score of 9.27. Junior Preston Knauf, who was ill during the meet against Indiana State but still managed to tie for first place (9.60) at the Windy City Invitational on the rings, is feeling "pretty good" and will compete in this meet.

Price said that although the Cyclones may take first place on the rings, they won't win the event.

Price, last season's All-American on the vault, ranked eighteenth in the nation on floor exercises, tied for twentieth with teammate David Lutterman on the parallel bars (9.24) and tied for fifth on the vault with a score of 9.47.

Senior Lutterman, who took first place in the all-arounds against Indiana State (56.65), said that he'd like to average 56 to 57. Ulmer ranked fifteenth in the nation on the parallel bars with an average score of 9.15 and ranked twelfth on the high bar with a score of 9.38.
24-man rosters can save baseball big bucks

The San Diego Padres definitely will, as will the Atlanta Braves and the Detroit Tigers. All three teams are also thinking about having 24-man rosters to save baseball tradition.

The 24-player roster is on its way back. “It's my feeling most clubs will do it,” said Detroit vice president and general manager Bill Lajoie. Lajoie said he feels it won't be long before all major league teams carry 24 players rather than the traditional 25.

There are several reasons for the 24-man roster, but all pale when compared to the green one. You've got it—money.

Atlanta, Denver, and Detroit are all more or less committed to opening the season with no less than 25 players. There will probably be only one less player than the 25 every major league team broke camp with in 1985.

San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Kansas City are reportedly thinking about the move, and some major league teams will soon discover during spring training that they can save on salary dollars without hurting the team.

“There's no problem at all in the American League, where they have the IH,” said Atlanta manager Bob Cox, who managed last year at Toronto. “They could go with 23 even. In the National League, where you have the pitcher batting and you have to punch hit part of the time, 24 would be more realistic.”

Carrying only 24 players could save teams roughly $25,000 in airfare alone during the course of the season. Meal money and hotel bills add up to $60 per player per day for a total of $8,500 since the teams play half of their 170-game schedules on the road.

Salary savings could run as high as six figures, but will probably start at around $40,000 and up.

Sweeney gets offer to coach Cardinals

Fresno State coach Jim Sweeney informed Thursday that he has talked with the owner of the St. Louis Cardinals about the team's coaching vacancy, but denied he had been offered a contract.

Sweeney, who has an overall record of 33-32 at Fresno State, said he met Wednesday with Cardinals owner Bill Bidwill in a motel near the FSU campus.

Sweeney's Bulldogs were the only Division IA team to go unbeaten this year, and with an 11-2 record, the only man on a tie for the University of Hawaii. The Bulldogs capped off the season with a 1-7 trouncing over Bowling Green in the California Bowl to end up ranked 16th in the nation.

Bidwill, who plucked former Cardinals coach Don Coryell from the ranks of college coaches, has earned a reputation for his surprising selections as coaches.

SIU faculty among top 10 swimmers in nation

Three SIU-C personnel have been named among the top-ten men and women masters swimmers in the country by the United States Masters Swimming Committee on national best-record performance.

Included in the selection of the best performances, which are listed for the long-course (50 meter) competition in all age categories, are Clay Kolar of the Botany department; Mary Pohlmann, of the School of Medicine and Edward Shea, professor emeritus of the Department of Physical Education.

In the 35-39 age group, Kolar was listed second in the 200-meter breaststroke with a time of 2:44.66, fourth in the 100-meter breaststroke, 1:16.3 tied with the 50 meter breaststroke, 24.36. He is the national-record holder in the 100-meter event (1:11.43).

In the 40-44 group, Pohlmann ranked third in the 100-meter backstroke, 1:44.99.

Both compared to long world records in the 50- and 200-meter backstrokes, Shea is listed first in the 70-74 age group in the 50-, 100- and 200-meter backstrokes with respective times of 29.64, 1:30.61 and 2:18.45—all of which are national and American records.

Shea is also the third in 1200-meter freestyle (6:38.72) and third in the 1500-meter free, 28:09.00.

These swimmers are preparing for the National YMCA Masters Championships in Indianapolis in April and the National Short Course Masters Championships scheduled for May in Fort Pierce, Fla.

Redbirds win 77-53 on poor Saluki shooting

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

Poor first half shooting did the Salukis in for the second consecutive time as the Illinois State University Redbirds defeated the Dogs 77-53 Thursday night at Normal.

While the excellent man-to-man ISU defense was apparent, for the Buffaloes hit C to 35 percent shooting, the Salukis managed to score credit for their own self-destruction.

"It was our defense as much as it was our offense hurting us," Rich Herrin said. "We're a better basketball team than we showed tonight.

Even the excellent Saluki foul shooting couldn't cancel out that point of weakness, as they hit one of 17 shots from the charity stripe.

"We didn't have the right guys at the line, but these things happen," Herrin explained. Finding themselves in an unfamiliar position on the charity stripe, backup center Grant Martin, reserve forward Dan Weiss and backup guard Wayne Harre missed four foul shots.

The Redbirds performed somewhat better at the line, sinking 17 of 27 free throws.

While the Salukis suffered with poor field goal shooting, Illinois State burned the nets with 56 percent shooting.

Infllicting most of the damage was backup guard Matt Taphorn, who scored 16 points, with 12 in the first half. Seven-foot center Bill Braksick scored 12 points and grabbed eight rebounds.

Steve Middleton tallied 13 points for the Salukis, while Doug Novsek scored 12 points and pulled down five rebounds.

In the first five minutes of the game, the Salukis seemed to be in control when center Ken Dusharm took a Matta pass and sank a nice turnaround jumper to give SIU an 8-advantage.

12-game winning streak on line
for GCAC leading Saluki women

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Round two of GCAC action begins when the conference leaders, the SIU Panthers, visit the home hardwood against the road dogging ISU Redbirds Saturday at 7:35 p.m. in the Arena.

Although they've beaten every GCAC team, including three of the four top teams on the road, the Panthers will neither drop their guard nor be overconfident.

Saluki coach Cindy Scott said, "I think that we have a very special group of players on this team. They're tremendously dedicated to their goal of getting to the NCAA. They'll do whatever it takes to make it happen."

First they must stop a dominant ISU team which has played a tight game at last two games in the first SIU-EIU matchup, but fell in the final minutes of the last half, losing by a 66-58 final.

The Panthers play a balanced attack led by three seniors. Forward Chris Slesinger (18.5 points per game, 7.4 rebounds per game) and Melanie Rathfield (16.3, 4.7) rank seventh and eighth in Gateway scoring. While Tatis is expected to start Sue Hynd (11.1, 4.1) guards the Panthers a strong inside threat.

However, Bridgett Bonds helped by the Saluki victory and she will be inside for a career-high 28 points last time - something which better outside shooting may have to overcome because EIU will be short-handed.

"We've just got to go with the players that we've got and be good enough to overcome it. There's no room for excuses, you either do it or you don't."

In addition to the continued absence of starter Ann Katbreh, several Salukis have been fighting flu. Katbreh keeps improving, however, but needs more time to get her strength back. Scott plans to play Anne at Ann and along with the regular starters, but remains concerned until game time.

"Who knows who will be healthy tomorrow? I'm not sure how many we'll have playing Friday night - in all any years of coaching, I've never seen so many players come down with it, " said Scott.

"We've just got to go with the players that we've got and be good enough to overcome it. There's no room for excuses, you either do it or you don't."

Buffaloes to invade SIU Arena on Saturday

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

Oh, give them a home, where West Texas State Buffaloes roam, or the opposition will beat them all day.

The Buffalo cagers have an 7.3 record in their Canyon, Texas, home court, but are 12-1 including Thursday night's loss at Indiana State on the road, and Rich Herrin's Salukis are looking to add to that loss total when they play Saturday at 7:35 p.m. in the Arena.

West Texas is 9-11 overall and 3-7 in Valley play, and like the Salukis, are trying to stay out of the MVC cellar.

"They've been up and down, but they've been a fine team at times," Herrin said. "They don't have a lot of depth, but they do have some quickness. We'll have to control the tempo of the basketball game."

Probable Saluki starters in the Buffalo hunt are guards Steve Middleton and Greg Matta, forwards Doug Novsek and Randy House and center Ken Dusharm.

Buffaloes coach Gary Moss' squad has only eight players on the roster, but a few of those eight have proved that the Buffaloes are hardly extinct.

Their best player is bullish center Orlando Graham, a 6-9, 225-pound sophomore who leads the MVC with an average of 9.4 rebounds per game. He is also the Buffaloes' best offensive player, averaging 14.4 points.

The rest of the Buffalo herd is made up of 6-6, 216-pound senior forward William Childs (averaging 12.8 pgp, 5.3 rpg), who was named Missouri Valley Player of the Week last week; 6-4, 187-pound junior guard Jerry Sigley (10.4 pgp, 4.7 rpg); 6-7, 185-pound senior guard Fred Johnson (7.7 pgp, 3.9 rpg), 6-5, 195-pound junior forward David Woods, (4.2 pgp, 1.8 rpg).

Back gracing in the West Texas State lineup is 5-11, 190-pound senior guard Earl Davis. Davis missed the last two games when he returned to his Washington, D.C., home to help care for his seriously ill father. Davis returned to the West Texas State campus on Tuesday and may get some playing time against the Salukis.

The sixth man in the Buffaloes' thin ranks is 6-7, 200-pound junior forward Arthur Latus (2.4 pgp, 2.8 rpg).
