Meningitis case alarms students

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

Students should not be afraid of eating in an east campus cafeteria after a food worker was diagnosed with meningitis, officials said Thursday.

Meningitis is not a food-borne illness and likely cannot be contracted as a result of contact an SIUC food worker had through his job at Grinnell Hall, health officials said.

A 56-year-old SIUC food worker in Grinnell Hall was diagnosed with bacterial meningitis Wednesday. He is listed in stable condition at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale.

Only two students have called the Jackson County Health Department to ask questions about the disease, said Virginia Scott, administrator for the agency.

Officials are concerned about the illness but students should not panic, Scott said.

SIUC students have bombarded the University Health Service with requests for vaccination against meningitis after a food service employee was diagnosed Wednesday with the deadly disease.

Health Service officials are advising students only to request the antibiotic if they have come in regular, direct contact with the infected person.

ISA may face losses

U of I starts plans to eliminate ISA membership

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign has started plans to pull its membership from the largest student lobbyist organization in the state.

The U of I is one of 10 schools with membership in the Illinois Student Association and contributes $35,000 in financial support, about one-third of the ISA's budget. But the U of I Student Government Association task force, which started investigating ISA last September, has recommended pulling its membership.

Students will vote in a referendum this month on whether to stay in the organization.

ISA membership also will appear on an SIUC spring referendum, and Undergraduate Student Government Jack Sullivan said an ISA evaluation committee will be reconvened to inform the students about staying in the organization.

The possibility of U of I withdrawing from ISA poses a significant change in the structure of the organization, Sullivan said.

"I see this as a crippling blow to ISA," he said. "I think we will have to re-evaluate and possibly make a recommendation to the student body on the feasibility of staying in ISA."

Bill Hall, SIUC student trustee, said an ad hoc evaluation committee, comprised of both undergraduate and graduate representatives, voted last fall to retain SIUC membership in ISA.

Herrin man arrested in Marion death

By Sarah Anderson
Special Assignment Writer

Police arrested a 20-year-old Herrin man Wednesday in connection with the murder last month of a 40-year-old clerk at a Herrin dry cleaners.

Paul E. Taylor was arrested Wednesday night just west of Carversville in Williamson County.

Taylor had just left a Van Halen concert at the SIUC Arena, said officer Bruce Graul of the Herrin Police Department.

Kathy Anne Woodhouse of Marion was killed Jan. 18 after she apparently had opened Fox's Laundry and Dry Cleaners, 713 S. Park Ave. in Herrin.

Capt. William R. Barrett of the Illinois State Police Division of Criminal Investigation said the attack occurred sometime between 8 and 8:30 a.m.

Taylor has been charged with five counts of murder.

Women's basketball loses at buzzer

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

In the biggest upset of the season, the SIUC women's basketball team was stunned by Northern Iowa in a 60-59 loss Thursday.

The victory gave NIU, 1-9, its first win in the Gateway conference and its first win ever against SIUC. The Salukis, 13-5, dropped to 8-2 in the Gateway and out of a first-place tie with Southwest Missouri State. SMSU beat Indiana State 91-57 Thursday, giving the Bears sole possession of first place with a 9-1 record.

The Salukis had a chance to tie the game on a free throw by junior forward Angie Rougeau with 30 seconds to play, but she missed the shot. The Salukis got the offensive board but were unable to score as time ran out.

Despite an outstanding performance by senior guard Karrie Redeker, who dropped seven 3-pointers, a season high and school record for SIUC, the Panthers overpowered the Salukis. Redeker is No. 2 in the Gateway in 3-point shooting and with Thursday's performance has a chance to move into the No. 1 spot.

Both teams had a slow start. SIUC took an early lead, but the Panthers came back leading five minutes into the first half on a 4-0 run. SIUC tied the game three times, but the Salukis could not get the edge and trailed 35-30 at halftime. Southern could not get the offense going and missed several shots underneath the basket.

A basket by junior point guard Anita Scott and a trey by Redeker early in the second half tied the game for the Salukis, 35-35. SIUC trailed by nine points with 14 minutes left to play, but the Salukis whittled down the lead to 1 on two free throws by junior center

Kelly Firth with less than five minutes to play.

The game went down to the last shot. Coach Cindy Scott said before the game that NIU was a scary team to play because it had never won a Gateway game, and its luck could change at any time.

The Panthers' turn to win came against SIUC.

Redeker had 25 points, and Firth had 12. Julie Street had 13, Angel Robertson had 12 and Ann Miller had 10 for NIU.

SIUC next plays Drake at 2 p.m. Saturday. The game will be on 103.5 WUEZ-FM.

Out of place

Indiana State pushes Salukis from first with 66-47 victory

By Tony Mancuso
Sports Editor

The Saluki men's basketball team bumped the Indiana State Sycamores too much Thursday night. As a result, the Sycamores bumped the slumping Salukis out of first place in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Dawgs lost their third game in a row and were held to their lowest point total of the year as Indiana State hammered them 66-47.

The Sycamores, the league's leading free throw shooting team, hit 24 of 30 shots from the line, and the Salukis were allowed to shoot just seven free throws in the game.

Saluki head coach Rich Herrin said the Salukis played good defense but fouled too much.

"You can't put a good free throw shooting team like that on the line," Herrin said.

SIUC was held to less than 70 points for the fourth straight time. The ISU defense played a tough zone, filling the lane with defender, and forcing the Salukis to shoot from the outside.

But the Dawgs could not hit 15-footers from the field and were just four of 20 from 3-point range.

Herrin said the Salukis were not able to make uncontested shots from the outside throughout the game.

"We have some good shooters on this club, but they just didn't fall for us tonight," he said.

SIUC was 10 points behind early in the second half and could not overcome the deficit.

"It is very difficult to play catch-up basketball," Herrin said. "After the halfway point of the second half, we had to shoot right away and play a risky defense."

SIUC drops to 7-3 in the Valley and 14-5 overall. With the loss, the Dawgs dropped one-half game behind Tulsa, which is 7-2. ISU improves to 8-3 in the MVC (one-half game ahead of SIUC) and 9-10 overall.

Senior guard Jeff Lauritzen scored 18 points and senior forward Greg Thomas had 15 to lead the Sycamore attack.

Junior forward Ashraf Amaya, who leads the Valley in scoring, was held to 11 points, 9 below his average. He scored all but 2 points after the Dawgs trailed 43-32 with 10 minutes left in the game. Sophomore guard Chris Lowery led the Salukis with 12 points.

After trading buckets with SIUC in the early going, the Sycamores led 18-12. But after a series of turnovers by the Salukis, Indiana State opened up their largest lead of the game at 32-20.

Lowery hit a 3-pointer and freshman Marcus Timmons scored on a put-back to cut into the lead, and the Salukis trailed 32-25 at the half.

Not only were Lauritzen and Inman hot from the field in the first half with 11 and 7 points respectively, but the Dawgs got into early foul trouble.

Indiana State leads the Valley with a 75 percent free throw average, and with 6 1/2 minutes left in the half, SIUC put the Sycamores in the bonus. ISU hit nine of 10 charity tosses in the half.

In addition, the Dawgs' big men were unable to solve the Sycamores' zone defense before halftime, and he managed 2 points.

The Dawgs next take on the last-place Bradley Braves, 2-8 in the conference and 6-15 overall, at 7:05 p.m. Saturday in Peoria. The game will be broadcast on WCIL-FM 101.5.

Beach boys to boost Dawgs' defense in '92

By James T. Rendulich
Sports Writer

In an effort to bolster what recruiting coordinator Tom Seward said is a defense that has several holes and lacks depth, SIUC's football team has made defense the emphasis of this year's recruiting.

As of Thursday, the Dawgs have had 71 athletes sign letters of intent to attend SIUC and play football in the fall. Of those players, 14 line up on the defensive side of the ball.

Seward said the emphasis on defense is not solely because the defense is weak but because the defense has lost more people to graduation.

"Along with a solid offensive line, we already have three freshman quarterbacks and don't need anymore," Seward said. "Right there you eliminate six positions we don't need any help in."

Of the 21 athletes who have signed letters of intent so far, seven are from junior colleges and are expected to have an immediate impact, he said.

"The players from junior colleges that we are bringing in are players that we hope can step in and play right away," Seward said. "However, although we can do a lot for these kids, the one thing we cannot do is play for them."

Of the seven junior college athletes, all are from out of state and six are California natives.

"The idea of recruiting from California is to get some size on the defensive line," Seward said. "Also, since we had some problems last year on the defensive line, we had to move some of our linebackers to defensive end which leaves us short at linebacker."

Outside linebackers Joe Estes and Tyler Cortright are both from Orange Coast Community College in Costa Mesa, California.

Also coming from California are linebacker Davis McLeod and defensive end Joe Hay from Golden West Community College, defensive tackle Chris Moore from West Los Angeles Community College, and linebacker Jim Murphy from Long Beach City College.

The remaining junior college player is tight end Burt Pachello from Scottsdale Junior College in Arizona.

Seward said players may not stay at the position they were drafted for.

"One of the many things we look for in a player is athletic ability and with that they have versatility," Seward said.

Swim coach to experiment at Saluki Invite

By Cyndi Oberer

The SIUC swimming and diving team has one more chance to work on its strokes before the conference championships.

Saturday and Sunday the Salukis will compete in the Saluki Invitational at the Recreation Center, and head coach Doug Ingram said it will be the team's last chance to tune up at home.

The Eastern Independent Conference Championship is Feb. 20-22, and the Gateway and Midwest Conference Championships are Feb. 26-29.

Ingram said he is not worried about how well his team does because the meet just will be one final workout.

"The meet will be strictly that—a tune-up," he said. "We are going to be putting different people in different events and experimenting with our line up. It will be the meet to decide to put which people in which

RE-MAP ARGUMENTS TO CONTINUE — Lawyers for Democrats and Republicans Thursday told a federal panel it may take more time than originally expected to complete arguments on new legislative districts for Illinois. Less than six weeks remain before the March 17 primary, during which voters are to choose candidates for 118 state House and 59 state Senate seats. The map is revised every 10 years to reflect changes in the census.

PRISON PANEL TO DISCUSS OVERCROWDING — Gov. Jim Edgar Thursday appointed a task force to tackle prison overcrowding in Illinois, an effort to ease a crisis in the state with one of the fastest-growing inmate populations in the country. Edgar announced the 21-member panel headed by Anton Valukas, a former U.S. Attorney from Chicago, will look for alternatives to building new prisons in an effort to accommodate the increased inmate population.

Celebrating the world

International festival to present students' cultures

By Fatima Janvekar
General Assignment Writer

The SIUC International Student Council is bringing a world of students together next week for an 18-year-old festival of international culture.

International Festival 1992 runs Feb. 10 to 17 at the Student Center.

The festival displays students' tradition and skills.

People from a number of countries come together annually to celebrate the unity of their cultures with music, dance, drama and exhibits.

"This year's festival is going to be bigger and better than past years" because we have more events planned, and this time we are going to extend the celebrations for a whole week," said Nabarun Ghose, ISC president.

"In addition to the annual international exhibition, fashion and cultural show on Feb. 14, 15 and 16 respectively, we have an International Menu week planned, where people can get to taste food from all over the world," Ghose said.

Attorney General: New law needed to tighten credit reporting agencies

By Todd Welvaert
Politics Writer

Illinois Attorney General Roland Burris proposed legislation Thursday that would require credit reporting companies to provide consumers with free copies of their credit report.

The legislation would toughen requirements on consumer reporting agencies.

The proposal would give the attorney general enforcement powers under the state's Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Practices Act, which includes the authority to seek civil penalties of up to $50,000 for each violation.

The 19-point legislation proposal would require credit card companies to provide a "plain-english" explanation of their credit report and an explanation of their credit score, which is a numerical evaluation of the consumer's credit worthiness.

"This will be the most comprehensive and far-reaching credit-reporting legislation in the nation," Burris said in a statement. "According to the Federal Trade Commission, credit reporting errors are the number one source of consumer complaints in America."

Burris said if a credit-reporting agency judges a person not to be credit-worthy the person could be turned down for a mortgage, an automobile or personal loan, or even for a job.

Credit reporting agencies argue that the credit reports are an accurate way to determine credit-worthiness.

"We provide half a million credit reports a day," said TRW spokeswoman Susan Murdy. "We rely on reports from other lending institutions and public records so we are highly accurate. If we were not, lending institutions would not use us. Inaccuracies occasionally occur because of human errors that really can't be helped."

Murdy said the Association of Credit Bureaus recently concluded a study that stated the error rate for credit-reporting companies was below 3 percent, much lower than consumer credit groups claim.

Charles Cleveland, a spokesman for the Illinois Consumer Protection Agency disagrees with Murdy's claim.

"It's a national phenomenon," Cleveland said. "Among the people who check their reports a very high percentage of them report a high number of errors on their reports. We received 1,000 complaint calls over the fiscal year 1990, with the majority being credit-reporting complaints."

Bush education plan a sleight-of-hand job

MISDIRECTION IS "THE OLDEST TRICK in stage magic. Sleight-of-hand is much easier when the audience's attention is focused on the magician's end result, rather than on the means he used to achieve that end.

President George Bush's proposed education budget uses the same technique, putting the emphasis on the final package—which has its good points—while trying to downplay the cuts and modifications used to put the package into effect.

ON THE POSITIVE SIDE, Bush wants federal financial aid for next year boosted 17 percent over 1992 levels, an increase of almost $2 billion to put aid at $13.69 billion. Pell Grants would grow from an average of $2,400 to $3,700, with extra incentive for students with good class rankings.

The proposed restructuring of financial aid makes it more difficult to meet federal qualifications. Larger monetary amounts of financial aid would be given, but fewer students would qualify. Underprivileged students would be favored over middle-class applicants.

FEW WILL ARGUE AGAINST the prerequisite that students prove their eligibility before receiving federal money. Federal aid should be earned, not just expected, and in a recession every dime must be accounted for carefully.

But the chunks torn from education in other areas cast Bush's proposal in a different light. The College Work Study program, one of the cornerstones of federal financial aid, and the Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant are the two victims of the proposed shift in funds. College Work Study loses 20 percent of its federal funds in the president's plan, and SEOG is stripped of a painful 38 percent.

TO ADD INSULT TO INJURY, the Bush administration wants U.S. colleges and universities to share the financial burden of CWS, taking up the slack for College Work Study students where federal funds have been slashed.

The intentions of the plan are good; it aims to help the students who need help most and who prove they can handle scholastic responsibility, rather than coasting on the government's tab.

BUT THE PRESIDENT SEEMS NOT TO REALIZE that it is the state universities that are sailing through the most dire financial straits. Asking a cash-strapped university such as SIUC to help carry its CWS students is like asking a broken-legged mule to haul a cartload of rocks up a steep incline.

CWS provides a valuable service to students and SIUC alike. With the program's funding emasculated, the University would be forced to reduce the number of CWS workers on campus. Suffering departments employing CWS workers would have to pay them directly, which means that many services staffed by work-study recipients would be shut down altogether because of lack of funds.

THE PRESIDENT'S HEART SEEMS TO BE in the right place, even if his accounting is flawed. Larger financial aid awards are something to be applauded, and a higher standard for applicants is a sensible measure. But Bush cannot simply siphon off money from one segment of the education system to pump up benefits in another. To do so is to arm students with federal funds while crippling the universities they attend.

The education system needs a touch of real magic, not just sleight-of-hand.

Out-of-closet comics character encourages hazardous lifestyle

You can't even trust the comics anymore.

Now Marvel Comics is promoting homosexuality. This is tragic indeed, since such behavior is so detrimental to homosexuals and society. Consider the following:

1. Homosexuality is a learned behavior. People are not born that way. No one has ever found a single replicable genetic, hormonal or chemical difference between homosexuals and heterosexuals. Even sex researchers Masters and Johnson believe that homosexuality is a learned behavior.

2. Homosexual behavior is not normal sexual behavior. Robert Mapplethorpe's notorious art features typical homosexual behavior: sexual sadomasochism, etc. The average homosexual has 20 to 100 partners per year and 300 to 500 per lifetime. Now is this normal sexual behavior?

3. The number of sexual partners that homosexuals have is so large that sexually transmitted diseases are spread rampantly. Homosexuals comprise about one percent of society and yet are infected with 50% of the syphilis cases and about 60-75% of cases of the deadly AIDS disease. Fifty to 75% of homosexual men have or have had hepatitis B, which is over 20 times more prevalent in gays than in heterosexual males.

4. "Gay rights" laws result in simply promoting STDs. In San Francisco, when homosexual rights laws were enacted, the city's venereal disease rate rose to over 20 times the national average. It is outrageous to encourage a behavior that impacts severe health risks and threatens society with the most deadly epidemic the world has ever known.

5. Homosexuals have the same rights as all Americans under the Constitution. The political homosexual movement does not want tolerance. They want special privileges. As early as 1972 the gay rights platform had as its goals: repeal of all sodomy laws, prostitution laws, laws governing the age of sexual consent (e.g. intercourse with children should be acceptable), laws prohibiting homosexual marriage, etc. It asks for release of homosexuals in prison for sex offenses.

(All of these statistics were taken from "The Homosexual Agenda," available in the reserve section of Morris Library under ENGR 400).

Crying "homophobia" at anyone opposed to homosexual behavior is a smoke screen. It is usually used to intimidate the opposition rather than provide a forum for discussion based on facts and reasoning.

We do not need homosexual-bashing either. Most are suffering enough with their own problems. They need help, but we do not need the comics encouraging people in such a self-destructive life-style.—Wayne Helmer, professor in mechanical engineering and energy processes.

Scholar-athletes' 'right to fail' subject to University obligation

This is in response to the letter of Evan Taylor (Feb. 5) in regard to the right of student-athletes to fail.

When a student-athlete signs a contract to attend a university to perform athletic feats in consideration of free or substantially reduced tuition, that athlete is under a moral requirement to keep his/her grades above the stated level (in most cases, it is the NCAA level of 2.0).

In instances where an athlete nears or goes below the level of 2.25, it is obvious that the student-athlete is experiencing some difficulties in his/her course load. To help the athlete, and to be frank, to protect its own interests (and investments), the administration has every right to demand that the he/she seek some help. To do otherwise would be an act of blatant irresponsibility.

Athletes should be grateful that the administration does go that extra step in helping, and should accept these "forced" study sessions in the spirit of insuring that the student-athlete does indeed achieve a quality education while attending the university.

As to the right to fail, if the athlete is so concerned about his/her right to fail, he/she should renounce the scholarship and try to go it alone. Then his/her failure would be his/hers alone.

This would open up a scholarship to some other individual, someone who might appreciate the fact that a university would want them to compete for that university and for the chance to obtain a quality education.—William E. Poole, graduate student, political science.

Nightmare of SIUC parking

Parking on campus is a nightmare! Seven thousand people fight for a parking place every day! Is SIUC for learning, or for making money off parking tickets? It seems that at $8 a ticket, new lots could be built. Many times students park illegally—otherwise they'll be late for class. Running to get to class after stressing out trying to find a parking place is not the best way to prepare to learn.

With tuition increasing and financial aid decreasing, it's becoming a nightmare to try and get a quality education.

Parking for students should be a priority. After all, what is SIUC without students? Don't we deserve at least a parking place at a University that we pay to attend?—Terri Bozovich, senior, special education.

Supreme swing

Roe, election agenda hinge on court review

By Brandi Tipps
Special Assignment Writer

THE FATE OF a 1973 Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion in the United States could hinge on a pending Pennsylvania case slated for spring.

The review of a Pennsylvania abortion law could overturn Roe vs. Wade, say some. Others predict a decision will thrust the abortion issue onto the 1992 presidential plate.

The Supreme Court recently agreed to review the restrictive Pennsylvania abortion law in April but declined a request to directly confront the question of whether women still have a constitutional right to choose abortion, a right that was granted by the Roe vs. Wade ruling in 1973.

The justices said they would weigh the narrow issues brought forth in five restrictions in the Pennsylvania Abortion Control Act.

THE LAW requires a woman to wait 24 hours after deciding to have an abortion, and if married, inform her spouse.

Ken Grambihler, an SIUC political science professor, said the effects on abortion if Roe vs. Wade were overturned would be much less than what many people think.

"The impending demise of the right of choice is overstated," he said.

About one-third of the states specify the right to privacy in their state constitution.

IF THE SUPREME Court overturns Roe based on the failure of the Bill of Rights to specifically provide for the right to privacy, the states will still provide for that right.

Carole Chervin, senior staff attorney for the National Federation of Planned Parenthood, said even if a state includes the right to privacy in its constitution, it does not necessarily mean the state will say abortion is a matter of privacy.

But Grambihler said there is no reason to believe the state legislatures will outlaw abortion if Roe is overturned.

Even the states that do not

This chart ranks the 50 states according to the level of support for legal abortion. The factors considered include:

- whether the state currently enforces restrictions on abortion
- whether the state provides constitutional or statutory protection for the right to choose.

provide for the right to privacy in their constitutions would probably be reluctant to completely outlaw abortion, he said.

Polls show most Americans support legalized abortion. The first state to outlaw abortion possibly would lose so many incumbents in the legislature that no other state would want to outlaw abortion, Grambihler said.

PRO-CHOICE voters were not as concerned with how candidates stood on the issue because the law was already in their favor, he said.

If Roe is overturned, those same voters will start to look at the candidates' position on abortion, Grambihler said.

"It will cause them (the candidates) to put up or shut up," Grambihler said. "As long as abortion is legal, pro-choicers will rarely go to the streets to demonstrate."

"BUT IF THE court overturns Roe, pro-choicers will demonstrate and the issue will have an impact on the 1992 presidential election as well."

A "checkerboard" of rights would eventually emerge if Roe is overturned, he said.

Some states would keep the same laws governing abortion as if Roe was still law. Others would have varying degrees of restrictions, Grambihler said.

The greatest impact would hit the poor when a person's economic position affects their right to choice, such as in states where abortion is outlawed except in certain situations. The woman would have to travel to another state to receive a legal abortion.

If the woman were not financially able to travel to another state, her right to choice has been eliminated, he said.

Many people think the Supreme Court might overturn Roe because the court is basically conservative and would interpret the Constitution and Bill of Rights literally, Grambihler said.

LIBERAL JUSTICES, on the other hand, tend to interpret the Constitution and Bill of Rights and make comparisons to current situations, societal values and norms.

When the Bill of Rights is interpreted literally, it does not

History of restrictions cloud future of law

By Brandi Tipps
Special Assignment Writer

Since the legalization of abortion almost two decades ago, restrictions have made it unclear whether Roe vs. Wade is still the law of the land.

In 1965 officials at Planned Parenthood Clinic in Connecticut publicly announced that the facility would distribute contraception to married women.

A physician at the clinic, and Estelle Griswold, the executive director of Planned Parenthood of Connecticut, were arrested for aiding in the use of contraception by distributing it.

Griswold took her case to court. The justices decided the use of contraception was a matter of privacy. Arresting people for using contraception is invasion of privacy.

The case of Griswold vs. Connecticut set the precedence for Roe vs. Wade in 1973. The Griswold case provided for the first time the right to privacy, said Ken Grambihler, an SIUC political science professor.

If the Griswold case had been decided differently, Roe vs. Wade might never have been heard by the Supreme Court because the right to privacy would not have been a defense for the right to legal abortion, he

SIGNIFICANT CASES SURROUNDING ROE vs. WADE

Griswold vs. Connecticut 1965 Provided for the right to privacy regarding birth control.	Hodgson vs. Minnesota 1990 Upheld requirement that both parents of a minor be notified of the abortion and there be a 48-hour waiting period between notification and the abortion procedure if there was a judicial bypass procedure. This procedure would allow the minor to appear before the judge to prove her maturity to make her own decision regarding abortion.
Roe vs. Wade 1973 Legalized abortion and established a woman's right to privacy between her and her doctor during the first trimester.	Ohio vs. Akron Center for Reproductive Health 1990 Court upheld statute that required a doctor to give notice to one of the minor's parents.
Thornburgh vs. American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists 1986 Revised Pennsylvania statutes involving: informed consent to abortion doctor requirements to report the test used to determine viability of fetus.	Rust vs. Sullivan 1991 The gag-rule was upheld by prohibiting federal funded Title X family planning clinics from distributing out abortion information.
Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services 1989 Upheld restrictions on abortion placed by Missouri state law, prohibiting public employees from performing abortions and prohibited public funding of abortion.

Carole Chervin, senior staff attorney for Planned Parenthood Federation of America, said the case probably still would have been heard, but it would have taken a lot longer before the Supreme Court would have heard it.

In Roe vs. Wade the Supreme Court found that a woman's right to choose to have an abortion was a part of the fundamental constitutional right to privacy.

The Supreme Court overturned a Texas statute, which prohibited obtaining or attempting the abortion of a human fetus except when necessary to save the life of the mother.

The court held that the statute violated the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, which states that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or the pursuit of happiness without due process of the law.

The court said the statute unjustly deprived a woman of liberty in that it infringed on a her right to privacy.

But the court allowed government regulation of abortion practices if it were narrow enough to promote a compelling interest. The court held the government had a compelling interest in the protection of a woman's health after the first three months of pregnancy.

This compelling interest would justify prohibiting all abortions, except those that are necessary in protecting the life of the mother, after the fetus became viable.

Experts said the Supreme Court seemed to abandon a strict trimester analysis just a few years after Roe was decided.

By the 1980s, the court was using a reasonableness test. The court would uphold the regulation if the justices believed it was reasonable to protect the health of the woman and would invalidate the regulation if it was thought only to deter abortions.

Since Roe was decided, several cases brought before the Supreme Court determined whether restrictions on abortion were constitutional.

The 1989 Webster v. Reproductive Health Services case is the only case to directly challenge the decision set forth by Roe vs. Wade, Grambihler said.

Kevin J. Todd, legal counsel for Americans United for Life, said Webster has specifically provide for the right to privacy. But those rights not specifically named are left to the people.

"Privacy is such a basic right that what the forefathers really did was list the exceptions. If there were no right to privacy, there would be no reason to require police officers to obtain search warrants," Grambihler said.

Chervin said the Supreme Court could construe the case so narrowly as not to bring Roe into question. Or, the justices can look at the case broadly so Roe is brought into question.

"The Supreme Court has great autonomy to frame its opinions how it wants," she said.

The most recent cases have had major splintering among the justices. Rarely has there been one clear majority opinion, Chervin said.

"I think we will see a ... fractured opinion coming out of the court from the Pennsylvania case," she said.

If Roe is overturned, there are other implications besides the ban of abortion, Chervin said.

In 1965, Griswold vs. Connecticut allowed for the right to privacy when obtaining birth control.

"If the Supreme Court says there is no right to privacy for abortion because of a compelling interest in a fertilized egg then the decision would have definite implications on many birth control issues," Chervin said.

If privacy is thrown out as a defense for legalized abortions then birth control is next to go, she said.

Michael Esler, an SIUC political science professor, disagrees with Grambihler about the effects on states and the abortion issue if Roe is overturned this spring.

"It's not at all clear they will use this Pennsylvania case to overturn Roe vs. Wade," Esler said.

The court will look at the case more narrowly and probably rule similarly to the Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services case in 1989, he said.

In this case the Supreme Court upheld as constitutional three provisions of Missouri state law restricting abortions. The Supreme Court did not rule on whether a state could establish statutory criteria that would bind individual doctors in determining the viability of a fetus, which was a fourth provision.

Esler does agree that if the Supreme Court overturns Roe, state legislatures or state supreme courts will decide the issue of abortion.

Some state legislatures may decide that the explicit right to privacy is stated in their constitution and gives women the right to an abortion, but others could say abortion is not a matter of right to privacy, he said.

The consequences of the Supreme Court overturning Roe would include a wide range of abortion laws, with southern states having the heaviest restrictions, Esler said.

Kevin J. Todd, legal counsel for Americans United for Life, said most states probably will act to pass laws restricting abortion until the court hands down a definitive decision regarding Roe vs. Wade.

"Most will wait because it is election year and this is a hot issue," he said. "It will give another year for the public to work with the legislatures, so next year, if Roe is reversed or substantially cut, a bill will be in the wings and you can go ahead with it for both legislatures."

Diane Schmidt, an SIUC political science professor, said if Roe were overturned, it would take a constitutional amendment by Congress to either ban abortion nationally or provide for the right to an abortion nationally.

Other ramifications of Roe being overturned is that interest groups will become much more active, with pro-choice groups probably having more organizational power, Esler said.

"When the law goes against you, you work harder because you feel you are losing your rights, so this would motivate pro-choicers to a greater degree," he said.

opened the way for state legislatures to pass laws restricting abortion.

"Since 1989, legislatures that are interested in passing meaningful protection rather than just regulations on performing abortions, have been able to do so," he said.

Despite the legality of an abortion, the Supreme Court has been bombarded with cases concerning the constitutionality of abortion restrictions and medical and procedural requirements.

In Doe vs. Bolton, 1973, the Court invalidated several procedural restrictions on a woman's ability to secure an abortion.

Other medical restrictions on the woman's right to receive an abortion were examined in Planned Parenthood of Central Missouri vs. Danforth in 1976.

The court upheld a requirement that the woman give written consent to the abortion and that the hospital keep records of any abortions performed.

Many other cases heard by the Supreme Court have regarded similar statutes or other restrictive state statutes.

"The issue of abortion is not an easy one and is not likely to be solved in the near future no matter what the Supreme Court decides this spring," Grambihler said.

"There is no way that the disease can be transmitted through food," she said.

"Students should also be reassured that the employee never came in contact with food."

As a kitchen laborer the employee did not prepare or serve food. His duty was to clean pots and pans at Grinnell Hall.

The employee's last day of work was Jan. 31, said John Otolini, a specialist at the Illinois Department of Public Health's regional office in Marion.

The organism cannot survive outside of the human body for any given period of time, Otolini said.

Only individuals who came in close contact with the individual are at risk, said Mary Pohlmann, interim chief of staff for the Student Health Program.

"Measles is not an easy disease to get," she said. "You are at risk if you touch or kiss an infected person, if that person sneezes or coughs on you and if you share cigarettes, straws, glasses, or eating utensils with the infected person."

advisory committee, reported a plan to the Graduate Council that would incorporate attrition and student tuition increases during the next two years to raise SIUC employee salaries to be competitive with the national average.

"The advisory committee decided salary is the most serious problem facing the University," Muller said. "The most serious problem at SIUC is closer to being resolved."

"The national average for faculty salary is figured using a survey conducted by the University of Oklahoma that takes salary averages from peer universities to find a median range.

Illinois is 10 to 15 percent behind the national average for faculty salaries.

"Roughly $8 to 9 million would be needed to put salaries at the average range for 1991, and the average keeps getting higher," Muller said.

The plan is not one that will institute lay-offs and major budget cuts within the University, Muller said.

"This plan is in no way connected with the 21st Century Plan. It is based on normal attrition that occurs within the University," Muller said.

"The plan is simply an effort to raise salaries to comparable rates to help alleviate the worries of losing faculty and staff members, while allowing the University to employ new faculty and staff at comparable rates," he said.

"Everyone who stays at SIUC will benefit from this plan by keeping and increasing the quality of the institution," Muller said. If ratified, this plan would only affect those employees not represented by a union.

"In effect the University is investing in itself," Muller said. The Graduate Council waived rules dictating any new business must be voted on the week following its presentation to reach the decision. Two council members abstained from the vote.

Graduate Council President Hans Rudnick said the council was concerned about the ways the salary increase would be instituted.

"This plan is just one way the budget advisory committee thinks would be most effective to combat the increasing problem of salaries in the University," Rudnick said.

"The council is glad the plan does not include lay-offs, and since it involves attrition the students will not be hit as hard by the tuition increases," he said.

If ratified, the plan would be put into effect within the next two to three years.

This plan is not related to the 3-percent rescission the University recently instituted or the 2-percent University deans were asked to cut from their budgets and set aside for possible salary increases.

Benjamin Shepherd, vice president of Academic Affairs, said the proposed plan would create some problems in his department.

"Because of the re-allocations, the money used for programs and support systems is not available, so those areas of Academic Affairs are lacking the funds it needs," Shepherd said.

"The committee voted to release funds to ISA," he said. "Committee members felt that ISA was doing a sufficiently good job."

The U of I task force charged ISA with focusing on internal problems instead of student concerns.

U of I SGA Treasurer Deanne Wapinski served as executive member to the Select Committee to Investigate ISA and said ISA lacked commitment to effectively fill positions in the organization, change the voting structure to benefit larger schools and recruit new schools to increase involvement.

ISA only represents about one-fifth of the students in higher education in Illinois.

"We submitted these three major contentions to ISA to work on and there was no sign of commitment to doing much about them," she said. "We basically gave them an ultimatum, but there was no sincere dedication."

ISA was made aware of the task force's complaints in a preliminary report but were not fully met, Wapinski said. The next step was the final report made to SGA.

The task force presented the report to SGA on Jan. 22, which recommended the university to discontinue further support or involvement in ISA, Wapinski said.

U of I SGA President Mark Begevhich said the organization fails to adequately represent students' interests.

"The last time we saw anyone from ISA on our campus was when they got the referendum passed two years ago," he said. "We don't feel our students are represented well in its current formation."

Begevhich thinks the campus will follow SGA's recommendation to pull its membership from ISA, he said.

A U of I SGA task force investigated the ISA two years ago and came up with the same conclusions recently found, but failed to pursue the matter and students voted to stay in ISA, Wapinski said.

ISA Legislative Director Susan

Filion denies the allegations and says the U of I dispute stems from a "power struggle."

"U of I doesn't have a legitimate complaint," she said. "That campus started an in-house power struggle and continued hate-mongering all year long."

U of I demanded a change in the voting structure so it would get more votes in order to control the board, Filion said.

"The voting structure now creates a balance of power between large and small schools and the board voted not to change that," she said. "When we get down to the issue, we're all in agreement, so what difference does it make what school is in control over the board?"

Mike Waldinger, chair to the Select Committee to Investigate ISA, said larger schools should get more say in the organization.

"We felt we should get more back for the buck," he said. "But the proposal fell upon deaf ears and failed to pass."

ISA acting Executive Director Phil Lyons said the organization lacked direction, is starting to look more prosperous.

"I see problems," he said. "But I see a brighter future."

ISA was established to find the different types of legislation available, forward the information to the student governments and get opinions to take to the legislature.

ISA can regain this focus, but Lyons fears the result U of I's withdrawal if it occurs, he said.

"The ramifications of (U of I) pulling out are monstrous," Lyons said. "ISA will go through some real dire straits and other campuses will probably pull out also."

If U of I students fail to pass the referendum to retain membership in ISA, the organization will survive by streamlining the budget, Filion said.

"We can definitely survive and maintain the quality of service," Filion said. "We would prefer they stay in and we have done everything to accommodate them by discussing their issues at great length."

Show draws audience into world of jazz legends

By Kristi Rominge,
Entertainment Editor

Sandra Reaves-Phillips becomes the women she portrays.

The singer/actress performed a fast-moving, colorful tribute to the "Late Great Ladies of Blues and Jazz" Wednesday night in Shryock Auditorium.

Reaves-Phillips shared problems of love and loneliness and bits of advice through the six women she represented.

Well-known jazz-era singers Ma Rainey, Bessie Smith, Ethel Waters, Billie Holiday, Dinah Washington and Mahalia Jackson were alive on stage through Reaves-Phillips' interpretation of them. The tribute was her own creation and part of the Shryock Auditorium 1992 Celebrity Series.

Along with her five-piece jazz band, Reaves-Phillips took the audience on a journey back in time to view these women in the performing prime of their careers.

For each characterization, she changed costumes and literally "became" the respective jazz singer on stage. Interaction with the audience was convincing, especially when she portrayed Ethel Waters and had the audience help her sing "Shake That Thing."

Her final act, a testimonial of Mahalia Jackson, who is known as the greatest Gospel singer of all time, was the most uplifting and motivating act in her show.

Audience involvement, along with great spiritual selections such as "He's Got The Whole World In His Hands" and "When the Saints Go Marching In" made for a spectacular finish — her band even joined in the dancing.

"On my journey, I've noticed many have fallen off by the wayside," Reaves-Phillips as Mahalia Jackson said. "Money cannot buy happiness, joy or peace of mind. So if we help just one person on the way, our lives won't be lived in vain."

When called back onto stage after a standing ovation, she sang the title song from the motion picture "Lean On Me," just as she sang it when she played Mrs. Powers in the movie.

Speaking to the students in the audience, Reaves-Phillips gave words of encouragement.

"Young people are our future. Set high goals, because if you fall, you might fall among the stars. You will achieve if you believe, so open your heart and your hands to find what you deserve."

Reaves-Phillips has more than 30 years worth of performances behind her, including her portrayal of Mama Younger in the Tony Award-winning Broadway musical "Raisin." Her other stage roles include national tours of: "One Mo Time!," "Miss Moffat," with Bette Davis, "Don't Play Us Cheap," and "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas."

Her film performances include "Round Midnight" as Buttercup and "Lean On Me" as Mrs. Powers.

She said she really enjoys playing at colleges and universities.

"I get to meet America's youth who are on the way to being our leaders, and if I can somehow inspire them, then I'm doing something right."

Reaves-Phillips said it is important for students to experience culture.

"Culturally, the music I'm doing is an American art form, and I think it is important to know about all of our different types of music," she said. "Music took such a turn in the 1950s and 60s, and many women got out of the field. But I think we will see more women entering into it again."

Basic education means a lot, she said. And education should progress just as music has.

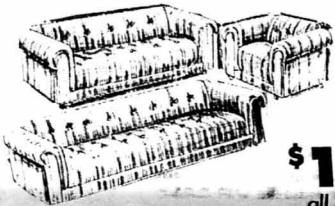

"If you are interested in something, you should stick to it and don't take no for an answer," she said.

Joyner to perform at SIUC to raise money for charities

By Ronn Byrd
Entertainment Writer

Some people look at things the way they are and ask "why?" Mario Joyner, comedian and host of MTV's "Half Hour Comedy Hour" prefers to ask, "Does anyone else think this is funny?"

Joyner will bring his style of comedy to SIUC at 8 p.m. this Saturday in the Student Center Ballrooms.

The appearance is part of the Pontiac All Star-Comedy Tour, which raises funds for Comedy Relief.

Comedy Relief is a non-profit organization that provides health care to homeless people in the United States. Entertainers including Robin Williams and Whoopi Goldberg use their talents to contribute to the organization. Comedy Relief has raised about $20 million from 1986 to 1990.

Joyner has played college crowds for years. He says there is no difference between playing before college students and patrons in nightclubs.

"Four or five years ago, there was a difference," Joyner said in a telephone interview. "But now there is so much comedy on television and the market is so saturated with it that college students know what to expect."

His material has changed along with the students, Joyner said.

"I tend to keep my material cleaner for the college kids," he said. "But even that is changing."

Joyner has made several appearances on various talk shows. He has begun taping the third season of "Half Hour Comedy Hour" and made ABC pilot with fellow comedian Colin Quinn about two comedians on the road.

Joyner also made his acting debut in "Three Men and a Baby" and in his first feature role in "Hangin' With the Homeboys."

Joyner has been compared to Eddie Murphy, who also began his career as a comedian and then went on to movies. But Joyner said there is little about him like Murphy.

"I'm totally different," he said. "I mean, that type of association is positive because Eddie is a true professional. We're alike in that I'm funny."

The performance is sponsored by Student Programming Council.

Tickets for the show are $3 for SIUC students and $4 for the general public. They are available in advance at the Student Center ticket office or can be purchased at the door.

Noted musician to perform recital

By Kristi Rominger
Entertainment Editor

Harmonica virtuoso Robert Bonfiglio, noted for bringing an unlikely instrument to the recital stage, will perform with the Robert Bonfiglio Ensemble Feb. 10 at Shryock Auditorium for the Dinner Concert Series.

He will be accompanied by his ensemble—a trio of flute, violin and cello.

This year marks the 15th anniversary of the Student Center's Dinner Concert Series in conjunction with Community Concerts.

John Corker, director of the Student Center, started the program to bring classical and cultural exposure to SIUC students.

Mark Roemeling, a graduate student in higher education and organization from Carbondale, said student participation in the Dinner Concert Series has increased during the years, but student participation overall is rather low.

"These dinner concerts are just one way of offering something to the students to enlighten and inform them," he said.

The buffet dinner is from 6 to 7:45 p.m. in the Old Main Room at the Student Center, and a concert begins at 8 p.m. at Shryock Auditorium. Students may purchase tickets at the ticket office in the SIUC Student Center. The dinner-concert package is $10. Concert admission is $3.

Taxpayers may contribute to Alzheimer's fund

By Trumier Camphor
General Assignment Writer

SIUC professor emeritus Herbert Portz lives with his wife's Alzheimer's disease every day. Elizabeth "Betty" Portz, a former school teacher at Carbondale Junior High School, has had Alzheimer's disease for eight years.

Elizabeth spends most of her time either in a wheelchair or in a hospital bed.

Portz does most of the care himself but sometimes has to work with a licensed practical nurse and a nursing assistant who stays with his wife when he cannot.

"There is a tremendous amount of pressure involved in taking care of an Alzheimer's patient," he said.

Portz said his wife is confused most of the time and becomes frustrated because she cannot understand why she is so disoriented.

After his wife was diagnosed with the disease, Portz became involved with the Southern Illinois Alzheimer's group.

Portz and other Southern Illinoisans benefit from an Alzheimer's Disease Research Fund sponsored by the Illinois Department of Public Health.

Illinois taxpayers can contribute to the fund on their income tax forms.

Public Health department spokesman Tom Schafer said in 1989, money raised from the Alzheimer's fund went toward the research efforts of two SIUC School of Medicine students.

The Alzheimer's fund has appeared on the Illinois income tax form for the past six years and allows taxpayers to donate at least $1.

Portz, also president of the local Alzheimer's support group, said the fund is important because it helps educate those coping with the disease.

"It is difficult for caregivers to have to deal with the disease," he said. "Contributions to the fund will provide assistance to many who really need education and training."

Alzheimer's disease afflicts more than 10 percent of those over 65, which is more than 150,000 Illinois citizens.

The disease causes gradual memory loss, personality changes and total helplessness before it kills.

The disease has no cure, vaccine or preventive measure.

The department also is sponsoring a program to help people with AIDS through tax forms.

The Ryan White AIDS Victims Assistance Fund will be used to provide grants and medical care, counseling and assistance for persons with AIDS and HIV.

Southern Illinois AIDS Task Force coordinator Virginia Scott said while the number of reported AIDS cases in Southern Illinois is low, the money contributed to the White fund will help pay for needed counseling in this area.

"There is a smaller number of cases in Illinois because you are looking at a smaller population," Scott said. "What we see is only what is reported, but we know there are others out there."

Downstate AIDS cases increased 44 percent from 142 reported in 1990 to 204 in 1991.

Southern Illinois has 12 reported AIDS cases.

State Health Director John R. Lumpkin said in a statement that money from the Ryan White fund will go to projects such as the new educational campaign to target women of childbearing age.

The campaign will include TV public service announcements, brochures and posters.

Schafer said both funds are good opportunities for people to get involved.

"People who are filling out their tax forms may know someone who has one of these diseases and this is a way for them to contribute toward possibly finding a cure," Schafer said.

More than $1 million has been raised through the Alzheimer's fund, according to the Illinois Department of Public Health.

Schafer said he hopes the AIDS fund is as successful as the Alzheimer's fund has been.

Russian students study cars, tools in Carterville to learn U.S. culture

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

Three SIUC students are learning the parts of U.S.-made cars before they learn to speak English.

Sergey Stolbov, Sasha Vasianov and Roman Rejabinkein are new SIUC students this semester from Vladimir, a town 100 miles from Moscow, Russia.

The three Russian students, who did not pass the Test of English as a Foreign Language exam, have come to SIUC to learn a little of U.S. culture.

They spend four hours a day at the College of Technical Careers in Carterville studying complex U.S. machinery virtually alien to them.

"Our car machinery and tools are so far advanced compared to the Russian car market that the students are amazed at the tools and cars we have here, and barely know the names of them," said Jeff Wheeler, a graduate student in automotive technology who works with the students. "They've never heard of automatic mirror adjustment or air-conditioning in cars."

The students are instructed by Joe Cash, an instructor at the College of Technical Careers, Wheeler, and Sergej Dragomirov, their Russian professor who is himself learning about automotive technology.

"I sort of serve as a teaching assistant, but it's Joe that teaches them virtually everything," Wheeler said.

Cash teaches the three students about automotive technology, working with them in the classroom as well as a lab.

"I take the three of them to our lab where we work on car engines and use tools, and I also teach the students in a classroom about car machinery and tools verbally and with drawings of the machine parts," Cash said. "Many times they draw better pictures than I do."

In future weeks the Russian students will begin to work with the other students at the school, Cash said.

"We're going to try and build some relationships between our students," Cash said.

The three students will stay only for one semester and then return to share their knowledge of U.S. machines.

Stolbov said the students have had 10 years of general education, two years at a technical school in Russia and are continuing their education in the United States.

Stolbov and Rejabinkein are both 19, and Vasianov is 22.

Cash and his students are working on taking apart a car engine to see how it works. They plan to put it back together and take the car for a test run.

"We've driven some cars before," Cash said. "We're going to drive this one, aren't we?" he asked his students.

Cash said as long as he speaks slowly and carefully his students understand him.

"We're very lucky to have them," Cash said. "I plan to have them over for dinner one night so we can get out some maps so I can see exactly where they come from."

James E. White, coordinator of automotive technology, said he is very pleased that his school was chosen to help educate the Russian students.

College presents agriculture award to farm president

By Kara Grover
General Assignment Writer

The president of the Illinois Farm Bureau in Bloomington has been awarded the SIUC Outstanding Service to Agriculture award for 1991-92.

John White Jr. is in his ninth year with the farm bureau.

"I'm the chief executive of a 365,000-member organization," he said. "Our mission is to improve the life of farmers in rural Illinois and to improve net farm income."

White lives in Elburn, where he has about 800 acres of farm land.

"You can take a boy out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the boy," he said.

His job as an advocate for farmers is different than his job as a farmer, White said.

"My role is very different at home than it is at work," White said. "I go home on the weekends and I farm. My idea of relaxation is to get out in the combine and do work," he said.

The College of Agriculture will honor White for outstanding service to agriculture Feb. 28 at the SIUC All-Agriculture Banquet.

White said the award from SIUC is an honor.

"I'm really elated that they are honoring me," he said.

White also is president of the insurance and investment companies comprising the Country Companies, the Illinois Agricultural Association Trust Co., Communications Co. and AgriVisor Services Inc.

Prior to his position as farm bureau president, White served as vice president. He also was president of Kane County Farm Bureau.

White said there never was any doubt about what he would do with his life.

"I was born and raised on a farm in Kane County, right next to where I live now," he said. "There wasn't any question about what I wanted to do, so I just went out and did it."

preparing to participate in the various events, lively and informative entertainment, Ghose said.

International Programs and Services has planned a tax seminar for faculty and students from 5 to 7 p.m. Feb. 10 in the Student Center Ballrooms.

The International Coffeehouse, organized by the Student Programming Council, also will be feature of the week.

"This is the first time we are having the coffeehouse in conjunction with the ISC, and we hope to offer an opportunity to the students to sample coffees and teas from different countries," said Paul Haynes, SPC fine arts chairman.

The Dorian Brothers Celtic band, a folk music group, will add an ethnic flair to the coffeehouse, with Irish, Scottish and North American music.

A national teleconference on the earth summit is planned from 7 to 9 p.m. Feb. 12 in Ballrooms A and B.

"Universities nationwide are going to participate in this summit, and it will obviously be a big event," Ghose said.

SPC also will show an African film, "Yaaba," Feb. 16, at the Student Center auditorium as part of its international film series.

To add to the cultural aspect of the week, Student Center dining services will prepare a buffet of international variety.

Recipes from 20 countries will be used to serve culinary delights such as Korean Kimchee pickles and honey cakes from Hungary.

All the festival events, except the buffet and Robert Bonfiglio ensemble dinner concert, are free to the public.

More information on the International Festival can be obtained by contacting the ISC at 453-3497.

Mary Pohlmann, interim chief of staff for the SIUC Health Program, said regular, direct contact is being in contact with the employee "four to five hours a day for the past week, elbow to elbow."

Health Service officials are cautious about prescribing the oral antibiotic, Rifampin, to students who have not had direct contact with the person who contracted the disease.

Widespread administration of the antibiotic actually could contribute to the spread of the disease, Pohlmann said.

"If you kill off the sustaining bacteria, then only resistant bacteria, that which is strong enough to fight the antibiotic, would survive," she said. "This would cause the bacteria to become stronger as a whole."

Pohlmann said students should understand the meningitis bacteria is pretty common.

"About 25 percent of people have the bacteria living in their nose and throat already, she said. "It gets spread from person to person but the disease doesn't necessarily come out."

The chance of passing the bacteria from a cafeteria dishwasher to a student eating in the cafeteria is less than minimal, Pohlmann said.

"The bacteria is generally passed through coughing, kissing and sneezing because the bacteria lies in the nose and throat," she said.

City Council establishes Class A3 liquor license

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

The Carbondale City Council has established a new liquor license category that allows a comedy club to open in Carbondale.

The council voted Tuesday to establish a new Class A3 liquor license category.

Peoria resident Dan Schmechel applied for a liquor license for a new comedy club in Carbondale.

He plans to open the club at 315 S. Illinois Ave.

The new Class A3 liquor license is similar to the Class A1 and A2 licenses because it demands the holder of the license generates at least 51 percent of its total revenue from other sources besides the sale of liquor.

In addition to the similarities, the new license also contains a clause preventing the entrance of persons under 21 onto the premises of bars with the Class A3 license.

To resolve the question of the definition of "food", the license states that food is meat, poultry, fish, dairy products, vegetables and fruits.

The ordinance also states that these items may be eaten alone or in combination with each other but may not contain any alcoholic liquor except trace amounts remaining from the cooking process.

The licensee may not deliver alcoholic beverages to patrons free of charge or at a reduced price either, according to the new ordinance.

Councilman John Yow was the only board member to vote against the new liquor license category.

Yow said too many liquor licenses are not good for any city.

"We have not given the cap we put on Carbondale a chance to work," he said. "My feeling is this is just a way to maneuver around the tap to have new classifications."

If Carbondale was not the home of SIUC, the city's number of liquor licenses would probably be cut in half, Yow said.

"Liquor is the trend in this country and I have to take that into consideration," he said. "But I don't know if the new license will be good for Carbondale or not—it's too early to tell."

Above, Sammy Hagar's non-stop, high power stage energy brings audience members to their feet for two hours of rock 'n' roll excitement at the Van Halen concert at the SIU Arena. Right, Hagar and Eddie Van Halen perform together one of many songs including "Finish What You Started," "You Really Got Me" and "Panama." Eddie Van Halen played a 20 minute solo while the crowd chanted "Eddie!" Band members Michael Anthony and Alex Van Halen also played solos. Hagar played his first solo of the tour.

Van Halen rocks SIU Arena with energized performance

By Ronn Byrd
Entertainment Writer

Draped in a bed sheet with the letters "SIU" painted boldly on it, Sammy Hagar asked a packed Arena Wednesday night about the banner that had been thrown to him.

"So how many people are going to sleep tonight without sheets?" he asked the crowd, which responded with roaring applause.

Hagar, along with his bandmates Michael, Alex and Eddie of Van Halen performed at the SIUC Arena Wednesday night to a near capacity crowd. Tickets still were on sale when the show began, but only the higher second level seats were left.

The Baby Animals led the show at 7:30, launching into "Rush You" with fire and enthusiasm from the entire band. Lead singer Suzie DeMarchi pointed and reached out to the crowd, and the rest of the band seemed to be enjoying themselves, yet despite their best efforts, the audience barely responded. Most had not even taken their seats yet.

Following up with "One Word," "Painless" and the hard driving "Ain't Gonna Get It," the Baby Animals finished with a simple, "Thanks for showing up! Good night!" from DeMarchi.

Van Halen began its set with Eddie playing a spirited "Star-Spangled Banner" on his guitar while staying out of sight. The entire band erupted on stage and into "Poundcake" from its album "For Unlawful Carnal Knowledge."

The crowd responded wildly when Van Halen took the stage and bombarded the stage with hats, coats, shirts and banners.

Hagar slipped on many of the coats and took interest in one in particular.

Holding high a jacket that read "SIU Drinking Team", Hagar told the crowd, "I guess now that I touch it, it's become a novelty."

Meningitis

Definition and Cause

Meningitis is an inflammation of the membranes that surround the brain and spinal cord. Meningitis can be caused by viruses or bacteria.

- Viral meningitis (also called aseptic meningitis) is generally less severe than bacterial meningitis and resolves without specific treatment. Viral meningitis is most frequently due to a viral infection in the stomach and intestine (enterovirus). A small number of cases are transmitted by insects such as mosquitoes or ticks (arbovirus). There tends to be seasonal increases in viral meningitis cases in late summer and early autumn. There are, on average, 500 cases of viral meningitis in Illinois annually; fewer than 1 percent are fatal. The highest attack rates are in children younger than one year.
- Bacterial meningitis is often quite severe and may result in permanent brain damage, such as hearing loss or, rarely, mental retardation. Before antibiotics were used, at least 70 percent of persons with bacterial meningitis died of the infection. With modern antibiotic treatment, the fatality rate is usually 15 percent or less, but the patient may still suffer long-term neurologic problems. Bacterial meningitis occurs most often in three forms:

- 1) Haemophilus meningitis, caused by Haemophilus influenzae type b or Hib, is the most common bacterial meningitis in children aged 5 years or younger. (Occurrence of the disease in persons older than aged 5 is extremely rare.) There are, on average, 230 cases of Haemophilus meningitis in Illinois annually; fewer than 10 percent are fatal.
- 2) Meningococcal meningitis, caused by Neisseria meningitidis, is primarily a disease of young children. The incidence of cases declines with ages older than 1 year, and the relatively few adult cases generally occur among those housed under one roof, such as in barracks or dormitories. The disease most often occurs during spring and winter. (In a very small proportion of infected persons, the organism can cause meningococemia, a severe blood infection.) There are, on average, 100 cases of meningococcal meningitis in Illinois annually; approximately 7 percent are fatal.
- 3) Pneumococcal meningitis, caused by Streptococcus pneumoniae, generally strikes infants, the elderly and high risk individuals. There are, on average, 100 cases of pneumococcal meningitis in Illinois annually. In general, 5 percent to 10 percent of cases are fatal; however, in persons with certain pre-existing serious illnesses, the rate can be 20 percent to 40 percent.

How It's Spread

Meningitis is not highly contagious. Both viral and bacterial meningitis are transmitted from person to person through direct contact with nose or throat secretions. In addition, healthy persons can have these bacteria in their throats and spread them to others. In addition, fewer persons can have these bacteria in their throats and spread them to others. Fortunately, fewer than one in 100 household, day care or classroom contacts of a person with meningitis will become sick with meningitis. An infected person can transmit the disease by coughing or sneezing directly in the face of others, kissing a person on the mouth or sharing a glass or cup.

Viral meningitis can also be transmitted as a result of failure to wash hands after contact with infected stool. Children, whose hygiene practices are below the level of most adults, are more likely to transmit and suffer from meningitis.

Symptoms and Susceptibility

Meningitis usually starts with sudden fever, headache and stiff neck. Other symptoms may include nausea, vomiting, aversion to bright light, confusion and sleepiness. In newborns and small infants, the classic findings of fever, headache and neck stiffness may be absent or difficult to detect, and the infant may show only extreme listlessness, irritability, poor feeding and sometimes vomiting. As the disease progresses, both infants and older patients may have seizures and decreased alertness progressing to coma. Meningitis can also produce very mild symptoms, such as low-grade fever, malaise lasting 2 to 3 days and headache.

Although persons at greatest risk of meningitis are household contacts, most persons are not susceptible to meningitis because they have had prior exposure to the particular strain of viral or bacterial infection and have become immune.

Treatment

Bacterial meningitis requires immediate medical attention by a physician and can be treated with a number of antibiotics. Appropriate antibiotic treatment of most common types of bacterial meningitis should reduce the fatality rate to less than 10 percent, though the fatality rate is higher in infants and the elderly.

The diagnosis is usually made by growing bacteria from a sample of spinal fluid. The fluid is obtained by performing a spinal tap, in which a needle is inserted into an area in the lower back where fluid in the spinal canal is readily accessible. Identification of the type of bacteria responsible for the illness is important for selecting effective antibiotics.

In cases of viral meningitis, treatment is usually limited to keeping the patient hydrated and reducing fever.

Prevention

Transmission of meningitis can be prevented by raising the level of hygiene among persons at risk of infection and those who might be spreading the disease. Persons should cover their noses and mouths when sneezing or coughing and discard used tissues promptly. Wash hands thoroughly following exposure to respiratory secretions or fecal matter, including handling of soiled handkerchiefs, diapers and so forth. To avoid exposure, persons should not share cigarettes, straws, cups, glasses or eating utensils. Eating and drinking utensils can be used by others after they have been washed.

For bacterial meningitis, household contacts and others who have close personal contact with infected persons are recommended to receive the antibiotic, rifampin, which kills bacteria living in throat secretions. Since the recommendations for use of rifampin vary according to the specific situation, it is best to consult a physician or local health department for recommendations. Even if rifampin is taken, close contacts should be observed, and any signs of disease should be promptly evaluated by a physician.

Vaccines for Hib and Neisseria meningitidis are now available. Two vaccines for Hib are licensed for use in infants beginning at 2 months of age. The American Academy of Pediatrics and the Advisory Committee of Immunization Practices both recommend vaccination of all infants beginning at 2 months of age. A third vaccine is only licensed for children 15 months of age or older. Neisseria meningitidis can attack persons of any age, but is relatively uncommon in the United States; therefore, meningococcal vaccine is recommended only for persons traveling to other countries where epidemics are in progress.

TIPS

Good hygiene practices prevent the spread:

- ✓ cover nose and mouth when sneezing or coughing;
- ✓ discard used tissues properly;
- ✓ wash hands after handling soiled tissues, handkerchiefs or diapers; and
- ✓ don't share cigarettes, straws, cups, glasses or eating utensils

Men begin practice for Olympic downhill event

ALBERTVILLE, France (UPI) — Markus Wasmeier was the first man to master the all-new Face Belvedere downhill course on the opening day of training Thursday.

Meanwhile, Austria's Martin Hollwarth led the vee-jumpers in practice on the 90-meter hill.

Wasmeier clocked 1 minute and 52.64 seconds on the new piste at Val d'Isere to head Guenther Mader of Austria and France's Denis Rey.

Wasmeier, winner of six super-giant slaloms and two downhill in a career which began in 1984, mastered a turn-filled course which has been compared to a super-g by many racers.

"There is a huge difference between the line that you want and the one that you are able to hold," Wasmeier said. "It's a fight all the way down, you're always getting ready to begin another turn."

Mader, an all-round skier, said that his skills may have helped on the course.

It was designed by Swiss Bernhard Russi, who was the 1972 Olympic downhill champion.

"This is a special downhill with turns, it's where my training may mean an advantage," he said.

The Face Belvedere run is unlike any other downhill on the World Cup circuit.

It is cut in a series of sweeping curves across the face of the mountain, allowing no opportunity for all-out speed.

In the second day of ski jumping practice at Courchevel, Hollwarth lead his teammate Ernst Vettori in the second day of practice.

Hollwarth is a convert to the new vee-jumping style, which has altered the face of ski jumping in the last couple of years.

The Finnish team, led by 16-year-old wonderboy Toni Nieminen, is scheduled to make its first appearance on the practice hill Friday.

Face Belvedere 'most physically demanding'

VAL D'ISERE, France (UPI) — Olympic skiers have never raced on anything like the Face Belvedere, site of Sunday's glamour alpine event of the Winter Games, the men's downhill.

The 14.5 mile course is dominated by sweeping bends. It has none of the speed of a traditional downhill and no time for doing anything but carving turn after turn from start to finish.

"It's the most physically demanding course that we've ever seen," said German Markus Wasmeier, who set the pace during the first day of training Thursday.

"There is no chance to get a feel for your skis on a flat. It's nothing but carving turns. I'd love to have just one little flat passage, but it isn't there."

The course was made to order by Swiss downhiller Bernhard Russi, the 1972 Olympic champion who now makes a living designing race hills. When Russi's friend Jean-Claude Killy, the 1968 French Olympic hero and co-organizer for the 1992 Games, asked for a unique downhill, it didn't take long for Russi to get to work.

The result was a track carved back and forth across the face of a mountain with a finish line which drops sharply into the center of Val d'Isere, just a few hundred yards from shops, hotels and restaurants now filling fast with Olympic visitors.

Besides the turns, which give the piste the feel of a super-giant slalom, there are two jumps.

"They're long but safe," Wasmeier said. "You get a lot of air."

Tests for banned substances not out for '92 Winter Games

COURCHEVEL, France (UPI) — The chairman of the International Olympic Committee's Medical Commission Thursday said blood testing for banned substances may be used at the Albertville Olympics.

"I don't know if (the use of blood tests in Albertville) it's likely or unlikely," Prince Alexandre de Merode of Belgium said. "I just know it's a possibility."

"We have more or less completed development of a test. But we require the authorization of the Executive Board (of the IOC). I may ask the Executive Board for confirmation in time for the Albertville Games."

If blood testing is accepted by the IOC Executive Board, it could be used in conjunction with urine testing to detect banned substances.

Jamaicans ready for fame in 1992

ALBERTVILLE (UPI) — This time, they are plenty wiser.

It's one thing when your T-shirts become the hit of the Olympics. It's quite another when a downtown merchant takes you to the cleaners.

The Jamaican bobsled team, its yellow and green shirts the lasting fashion statement of the 1988 Calgary Games, is back. To be sure, there will be T-shirts for a new wave of fans at the Albertville Olympics, only this time they'll come by way of a respected German manufacturer.

The Jamaicans didn't go to Calgary with entrepreneurial aims.

They were just happy to be along for the ride. Then an Australian tipped them off to the prospect of gold — money, not medals — in T-shirts. So the team headed downtown, found a businessman and had the shirts mass produced.

"He was not the reputable sort," says bobsledder Dudley Stokes.

Still, the bobsledders managed to break even, no small thing for a team short on cash. Money shouldn't be a problem now. The bobsledders are learning the ways of the market, having cut a television beer commercial and travelling to Albertville under the sponsorship of their country's tourist board.

Stokes and teammate Devon Harris stopped in New York recently, making the rounds for interviews. They have become roving ambassadors. A movie on their exploits is to be released this summer.

Stokes, 29, is a pilot and part-owner of a helicopter tour service. Harris, 27, is an army officer. They grew up playing soccer and running track under a tropical sun.

In the Alps, the Jamaicans will have seven bobsledders — two two-man sleds and one four-man sled. The team has trained in Calgary and Europe for the event.

Owners to put off decision on Mariners' buyout

SEATTLE (UPI) — Major League Baseball's Ownership Committee Thursday put the brakes on a bid by a Japanese-led Seattle investor group trying to purchase the Seattle Mariners for $100 million.

The committee announced it needed "additional information" before deciding the fate of the bid and indicated a decision might not come before the expiration of Mariners owner Jeff Smulyan's March 27 deadline. After that, he will consider bids from other cities, most notably Tampa-St.

Petersburg.

"There is additional information and documentation that needs to be reviewed," committee chairman Fred Kuhlmann said. "The Committee will meet again in March, but it is unlikely that the matter will be ready for submission to the major league ownership at that time."

The statement left backers of the bid "puzzled" but still eager to cooperate.

Bob Hartley, a spokesman for the Baseball Club of Seattle, said the group was waiting to get specifics on what "additional information" was required.

"We'll provide it quickly and completely," Hartley said. "We're still confident as fair-minded people that they'll see the proposals in the best interest of baseball."

Hartley added, "We're a little puzzled they've indicated an inability to decide soon. It's kind of an open end to this process. So we're going to try to do everything we can to expedite it."

"As part of that, we would look forward to a meeting of the principals involved," Hartley said.

Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent has criticized the proposed sale of the Mariners to a group that is backed 60 percent by Nintendo Co. Ltd. President Hiroshi Yamauchi of Kyoto, Japan. The remaining 40 percent is composed of top executives from Seattle-based corporations Boeing, Microsoft, Puget Sound Power & Light and McCaw Cellular Communications.

Yamauchi would give operating control of the franchise to his son-in-law, Minoru Arakawa, a Japanese citizen and 12-year Seattle resident who is president Nintendo of America Inc., which employs 1,500 people in the Seattle area.

Supporters of the group have pointed out that the all-cash, $100 million offer, which includes an additional $25 million in operating capital, would give the Seattle team unprecedented stability, unlike the highly leveraged Smulyan.

On Wednesday, Vincent said that just because there's criticism of the offer, it doesn't mean Smulyan, who has lost money each of the past three seasons, is free to move the team if a sale in Seattle does not materialize.

Aging Holmes out to prove 'hammer' still heavy

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — At age 42, Larry Holmes no longer has the legs, stamina or chin that made him heavyweight champion for more than seven years.

One thing he says he still has is his jab, which was once the best in the sport and is the weapon he believes will enable him to upset Ray Mercer Friday night. Mercer, 30, unbeaten and on the way up, is a 7-2 favorite over the former champion.

"He's going to get hit with a hammer, the 'Holmes hammer,'" Holmes said. "That's the left jab. If he can't get out of the way, he's in trouble."

Getting out of the way is not Mercer's forte. He has won all 18 of his pro bouts by taking all the punishment his opponents could give. Bert Cooper hit him for 12 rounds in losing a decision, and Tommy Morrison belted Mercer for four rounds before getting knocked out in the fifth. Francesco Damiani outboxed Mercer for eight rounds, then suffered a broken nose with one right uppercut that ended the bout in the ninth.

"I ain't no Damiani or Bert Cooper," Holmes said. "I'm going to use that left jab, all night long."

In his prime, Holmes had one of the best left jabs in boxing history. It was not as quick as Muhammad Ali's, but was so hard and accurate that Holmes used it as a power punch. "My jab is better than my right hand," Holmes said.

Bert Holmes' jab was of little use when he lost two decisions to Michael Spinks in 1985 and 1986, ending his reign as champion. And Mike Tyson exploded a right hand over a lazy Holmes jab to score the first of three knockdowns in a 1988 knockout victory over Holmes.

"I think his speed and power's gone," Mercer said. "His jab'll look good for a couple of rounds but I don't think he has the whole game."

Holmes says he will have a surprise for Mercer, if Mercer expects the the ex-champion to come out moving. Holmes hopes to take advantage of Mercer's slow starts.

"If he waits on me, the fight will be over once he gets started," he said. "I'm not going to run from Ray Mercer."

And Mercer says he will have a surprise for Holmes.

"Larry's going to be in the middle of the ring alone," Mercer said. "I'm not going to be there."

Holmes said he expects Mercer to be on the outside of his jab. At 6-foot-3, Holmes is 2 1/2 inches taller than Mercer and has a substantial reach advantage.

he looks for athletic ability—specifically speed.

"Eight of the 10 recruits in this class run a 4.6 or better in the 40, so we are pleased with the speed available," Smith said.

Of the players on the offensive side, the Dawgs have added three running backs, two wide receivers and two tight ends.

Joel Dant of Prairie View is one of the running backs added. Dant racked up 2,055 yards on 311 carries during the regular season at Stevenson High School, which led the state. He also scored 17 touchdowns on the year and was named a second-team all-state selection.

One of the wide receivers added is local native Jermaine

Gray of Carterville. Last year at Carterville High School, Gray caught 39 passes for 758 yards and was a first-team all-state pick.

"He is a good jumper with great hands and fine strength," said Carterville head coach Ken Jagger.

On special teams, the Salukis have added kicker Brad Bohannon from Alton.

"Brad is one of the finest kickers I have seen," Smith said. "He is also an excellent punter and we feel he will be able to soon help us in both areas."

Even with 21 new players, Seward said SIUC still is waiting for decisions from a few athletes and are expects to sign three more by Monday.

events."

Ingram said the teams have been experiencing a bit of flatness because of the practice schedule.

The Saluki men post a 7-6 mark while the women stand at 6-7 for the season.

"We have tapered down our heavy load of practicing for the conference championships," he said. "The adjustment is hard to make, and it caught a few of our swimmers flat."

Assistant coach Rick Walker said even though some swimmers have been flat, the past few meets have shown how much potential the team has for the conference championships.

"The Jan. 24 meet against Nebraska and the Feb. 1 meet against Kansas have shown us we will have some good swims," Walker said, "and that makes the anticipation all the greater."

Ingram said he thinks the teams will be ready for the championships.

"We will be using this meet as a practice," Ingram said. "But I think we will be ready."

The Invite, which usually is a large meet, has been scaled back this year to include just Milliken and SIUC, Ingram said.

There are a few big meets coming up in the next few weeks, and the team needs to relax and train for them, he said.

The meet begins at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Seles enters German tourney as two-time champ, top seed

ESSEN, Germany (UPI) — Top seed Monica Seles begins her action in the $350,000 Nokia Grand Prix women's tennis tournament Thursday when she meets German qualifier Angela Kerek for a berth in the quarterfinals.

The 19-year-old Seles, who won her fifth Grand Slam crown 10 days ago at the Australian Open in Melbourne, is attempting to win this former invitational tournament for the third time. She previously won it in 1989 and 1991.

Kerek earned her assignment against the world's No. 1 player by edging Italy's Laura Garrone, 2-6, 6-3, 7-6 (7-4).

Second seed Mary Joe Fernandez, who fell to Seles in straight sets in the Melbourne final, also joins the action in the round of 16, along with No. 3 seed Anke Huber of Germany and No. 4 Katerina Maleeva of Bulgaria.

Fernandez meets Germany's Claudia Porwik, a 7-5, 6-3 first round winner over Nathalie Herreman. Maleeva plays another German, Wiltrud Probst, who defeated compatriot Silke Frankl, 6-4, 6-2, Monday night.

Tyson trial testimony resumes after blaze delay

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Miss Black America contestant who has accused Mike Tyson of rape was only interested in the former heavyweight champion's money, two other contestants testified Thursday.

Defense attorneys called Madeline Whittington and Cecilia Alexander after the trial resumed following a one-day recess triggered by a fire at the hotel where the jury was sequestered.

One juror was excused because of stress caused by the blaze that left three people—one hotel guest and two firefighters—dead. An alternate was seated.

Tyson, 25, is charged with rape and criminal deviate conduct for an alleged attack on the 18-year-old woman in his hotel room last July 19.

Tyson faces up to 60 years in prison if convicted on all charges.

Whittington testified the accuser was excited shortly after Tyson asked her on a date the afternoon before the alleged attack.

She said she and the accuser talked in a bathroom just after Tyson met contestants at a pageant rehearsal.

"She told me Mike Tyson asked her out. She said she was very excited," Whittington said.

"Yes, of course I'm going," she quoted the accuser as saying. "It's a lot of money. And he's dumb. See what (actress and ex-wife) Robin Givens got out of him?" She was very determined to go out with him.

Whittington said Tyson was rude a few hours later at opening ceremonies for the Indiana Black Expo, coming on to contestants and mocking the Rev. Jesse Jackson as the preacher spoke.

"I heard (Tyson) say, 'You want to come to my room? You want to party? I know I'm not going to get none but you want to come anyway?'" Whittington recalled.

Whittington said she told Tyson to be quiet because she wanted to hear Jackson speak, to which she said Tyson replied: "Who does she think she is, little Catholic school ..."

Alexander also said the accuser talked about Tyson's wealth.

"(Another) contestant said, 'Here comes your husband.' The girl said he can't speak very well," Alexander said.

"Mike doesn't have to know how to speak," she quoted the accuser as saying. "He'll make the money. I'll do the talking."

Dr. Margaret Watanabe, an Indiana University gynecologist, disputed earlier expert testimony by saying she has examined women who have suffered vaginal cuts during consensual sex.

She said she reviewed the report from Dr. Thomas Richardson, who examined the accuser about 26 hours following the alleged attack.
