Whether walking around a track for 37 hours straight, cleaning up sections of a highway or dressing up in a green silk worm costume for Coaches vs. Cancer, Beta Theta Pi Fraternity is dedicated to helping others.

Fifty-one members of Beta Theta Pi have completed 2,002 service hours during Fall 1998, averaging about 40 hours per member.

Scott Clemenson, vice president of Beta Theta Pi, wanted to start Coaches vs. Cancer at SIUC to show greeks care about SIUC sports and promote a good cause.

"We wanted to do something that was nationwide," he said. "This will benefit people all over. You know that this money is going somewhere that matters."

Coaches vs. Cancer raises money for the American Cancer Society.

The fraternity recruits pledges for each three-point shot made during SIUC men's and women's basketball games. The fraternity hopes to bring in $10,000 for the cause.

For each game, about 10 members of the fraternity spend three hours each recruiting people to pledge money for the program, and another member dresses in a silk worm costume to cheer on the Salukis.

Greek volunteering increases by 200 percent

KAREN BLATTER
ACADEMIC AFFAIRS EDITOR

Greeks at SIUC have increased the number of community service hours they completed in Fall 1998 by more than 200 percent compared to all of last year.

In Fall 1998, greeks participated in 20,776 hours of services, and in Fall 1997 and Spring 1998 greeks completed 6,652 hours.

Andy Morgan, assistant program director of Student Development, has been keeping track of all the hours in which greek organizations have been participating.

The top fraternities and sororities with the most hours are Beta Theta Pi, Pi Kappa Alpha, Alpha Phi Alpha and Sigma Lambda Gamma.

Greeks participate in many service projects during the semester.

Some groups volunteer their time working with children, participating with Habitat for Humanity or "Adopting-a-Highway" to clean-up.

Fraternities and sororities also gained service hours for articles of clothing collected or saving soda-cans tabs.

Beta Theta Pi gained all of their hours through service projects, while the other groups gained a majority of their service hours from clothing drives and saving soda can tabs.

Matt Schober, president of Beta Theta Pi, said community service is an important pillar of his fraternity and leaves him with a good feeling.

"It is important that the city sees the students as a positive," he said.

"This is another way we can give back to Carbondale."

"It is a positive thing to learn a lot about life and what you have by helping people who are less fortunate."

Laurie Eves, graduate assistant for the Saluki Volunteer Corps, said the Corps relies on the greeks for completing service hours.

Eves said the Corps receives

Kelly announces write-in campaign for council seat

TIM CHAMBERLAIN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Student-activist Pat Kelly announced his write-in candidacy for Carbondale City Council Thursday with the intent of being the student voice.

"I feel that there are no City Council candidates in the field that are tackling student concerns," Kelly said.

Kelly was originally scheduled to appear on the ballot but failed to turn in his receipt of economic interest from the county, to the city. When asked about his chances as a write-in candidate, Kelly admitted it would be an uphill battle, but he is counting on student support.

"I need the support of the students," Kelly said. "And I think they need my representation on the council."

Kelly said one of his main reasons for running for City Council is to assure that progress continues to be made at City Hall.

He stated he would hate to see Carbondale go back to the way it was before the election of Larry Briggs and John Budslick to City Council.

"The city should not be tax collectors with badges," Kelly said.

"A lot of newer students don't remember the Carbondale of two or three years ago.

"We reduced the bar entry age, we capped towing fees, we stopped the riots. It seems like we've got a kinder, gentler Carbondale growing here."

Kelly points out that he does have the qualifications for the position. He has had experience with three different boards, each of which had a larger budget than the Carbondale City Council.

He served two terms as the alternate student board member for the Illinois Board of Higher Education. Previously he has been a student member of the Boards of Trustees at College of DuPage and at SIUC.

Kelly believes this experience gives him the background on a number of issues, from municipal bonds to pension-funds, to make him an effective member of the council.

New chief fights fire with fury

DAVID FERRARA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Carbondale firefighters bravely destroy raging and unpredictable flames in the war against fire, led by Jeffery Anderson, their unassuming but confident new chief.

Anderson, who became Carbondale's new fire chief in December, will admit he is not an outspoken man. But when it comes to fighting fires and climbing the ladder of the Carbondale Fire Department, he lets his actions speak for themselves.

The department agrees Anderson is a "level-headed chief" and "very safety conscious for the sake of the manpower."

He follows former chief Cliff Manis, who retired from the position in November after 28 years on the force.

City Manager Jeff Doherty selected Anderson from four internal applicants as Fire Chief.

Anderson said he trusts his firefighters will do their job the best they can.

"I have full confidence in all my shift commanders and officers that they can do their job, so I leave them alone and let them do their jobs," he said.

As a Vietnam veteran, Anderson sees the similarities between battling enemies and fighting fires.

"It's like a battle — fire is unpredictable," he said.

"You never know, [fire] is a battle, not only against (the fire) but to preserve your life and to save somebody else's life. So it is kind of like a war."

Anderson said the department's standards match the military field, but discipline put on a firefighter may be more lenient.

"It is pretty much like a military organization," he said.

Anderson, a lifelong Carbondale resident, did not always aspire to be a fireman, but had dreams of working on a police force. His career was almost diverted before he became a firefighter 23 years ago.

"I probably lean more toward police work," he said. "But the opportunity unveiled itself. I thought it was interesting, and the pay was certainly more than I was accustomed to at the time."

JUSTIN JONES/Daily Egyptian

With 23 years of service, Jeffery Anderson climbed his way to the top of the fire department's chain of command. In December Anderson was appointed Carbondale's fire chief when his predecessor Cliff Manis retired after serving 28 years in the department.

The same day he was supposed to begin work at Menard Correctional Center in Chester, Anderson was offered a fire-fighting role in Carbondale.

He chose to stay at home and fight fires.

"Needless to say, the choice was pretty easy," Anderson said.

Although Anderson is bogged down with more paperwork as chief, he said he enjoys his work. But there are conditions of being a fireman that he misses.

"What I really liked was the 48 hours off," Anderson said.

Anderson said his current wife Dollean, who is a clinical psychologist at SIUC's Women's Center, also cherished the two-day breaks.

"I had all kinds of 'honey-dos,' all kinds of things she had planned for me to do," he said.

"I think she got to enjoying that quite a bit."

At the beginning of the decade, Anderson was a captain. The chief position was only a dream.

Although his move was quick, Anderson did not simply jump from the fire-fighting position to the rank of chief. He had been assistant fire chief since 1992.

Now as the department "general," Anderson will lead the department into the next millennium.

"It appears to me that it's almost been no time at all since I was working as a firefighter and now I'm the chief of the department," he said. "And that's always been kind of a goal of mine."

After 20 years of service, a firefighter can retire and receive 50 percent of his current salary, but for each year more than 20 years, Anderson could receive another two percent.

"There's a possibility that I could get out of here with 60 percent."

In all his years as a Carbondale fireman, Anderson said he was never dissatisfied with his career move.

"I like the fire service — I think it's the right choice for me," he said.

New businesses keep popping up

BOOMING:
Enterprise zones credited for increase in development.

TIM CHAMBERLAIN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

City officials see no sign of the new business boom along the east side of Carbondale stopping any time soon.

Several businesses have opened within the last year in the area including Casey's General Store, Burger King and the Ramada Limited. Three other businesses are under construction or expect to start construction — Super Kroger, Sears and Jim Butler Saturn.

John A. Linehan, executive director of the Carbondale Business Development Corporation, credits a combination of active recruitment of businesses to come to the city and businesses seeking out Carbondale on their own. Linehan also credits the fact that the area is in an Illinois enterprise zone.

Enterprise zones are designated areas within communities that give tax incentives to new businesses to locate in that particular area. These incentives include full or partial property tax abatements for 10 years, sales tax abatement on construction materials if bought in Carbondale and tax credits based on the number of jobs created.

Linehan stated there were about 97 enterprise zones in Illinois.

"Most communities are using enterprise zones as part of an incentive package to bring in business," Linehan said.

According to city officials, the business growth in this area of Carbondale is likely to continue. Tom Redmond, director of Development Services for Carbondale, thinks the Giant City Road area will continue to get new businesses, especially since East Main Frontage Road on Illinois Route 13 is mostly filled.

"I wouldn't be surprised to see more businesses this year," Redmond said. "But nothing official has been submitted yet."

William Searcy, a Sears authorized retail dealer, thinks the Giant City Road area is a prime location for new business. He is also the president of Captain Cheese, Inc. of Carterville, which is the corporation developing the new Sears. This area of the city is where Carbondale will grow, Searcy said. He believes Giant

Former SIUC chancellor passes away at age 80 in Oregon

SARA BEAN
POLITICS EDITOR

SIUC's first chancellor, Robert MacVicar, died recently in Oregon, where he had served as president of Oregon State University.

MacVicar, who saw the University through its most tumultuous periods, died at the Oregon Health Science University in Portland on Dec. 26. He was 80.

When SIUC was torn by riotous demonstrations in May 1970, it was MacVicar that delivered the administration's decision to shut down the school; just two weeks before finals, to the mob of demonstrators.

The announcement came May 12, 1970, following several days of riots in which demonstrators caused thousands of dollars to the campus and city. MacVicar made the announcement at 11:30 p.m. just hours after thousands of demonstrators had attacked the house of then-SIU President Delyte Morris.

MacVicar was recruited to SIUC by Morris. During his tenure, MacVicar rose from vice president for academic affairs from 1964 to 1968 on to chancellor.

Our Word

Minimum standard means minimum efficiency

Undergraduate Student Government is the student body leader at SIUC. When its standards falter, the organization is showing that the student body is not worth an extra effort.

Ben Syfert, a College of Agriculture senator, and his plan to lower the academic requirements for students to participate in USG are misguided. Under Syfert's plan, USG members would only need to have a 2.0 grade point average to participate, whether it be as senators or executives.

Syfert's announcement comes on the heels of a shakeup in USG that saw President Kristie Ayres resign because of concerns about her academic eligibility two weeks ago. As a result, senator Willis Reynolds announced his resignation at the group's meeting Jan. 27.

If the situation involved another campus group, then the DAILY EGYPTIAN could see how stricter academic requirements would be a detriment. Syfert argues that USG's current process, which requires a 2.25 GPA for participation, excludes about 3,000 students from the opportunity to participate in student government — a figure that exceeds more than those who voted in last year's USG elections.

The EGYPTIAN recognizes that strict academic requirements handicap some groups, especially those who struggle with numbers each semester. However, the biggest difference between these groups and student government is USG members are elected officials.

Minimum standards seem to be a popular notion today. Whether it involves President Clinton's impeachment trial or legislature scholarships to public universities based on anything but merit, America is becoming infatuated with just getting by.

Lowering academic standards for a group that is supposed to represent the student body and serve as the liaison between the students and the administration is a slap in the face to those who take their education seriously.

Those who say average students should represent the average students are setting their standards too low, as evidenced by average undergraduate student GPA numbers at SIUC. The average undergraduate student GPA for the 1997-98 school year was 2.8, and these numbers are consistent throughout the past five years. To say 2.0 accurately represents the average student seriously shortchanges the standard set by the student body.

Changing the rules in the middle of the school year is not a wise idea, even if the rule changes improved the system.

The U.S. Constitution puts a ban on ex post facto laws, or "after-the-fact" laws, to prevent courts from punishing some for actions they committed even though their actions were not crimes at the time of the action.

The USG situation presents a similar predicament. By lowering the standards in the middle of the school year, student government is telling the student body USG is not able to balance its extracurricular duties with its schoolwork — the reason it is at SIUC in the first place. Losing 14 out of 41 senators for a variety of reasons in the last two months leaves USG searching for answers, but lower standards cannot be considered as one of them.

USG put FAITH as its platform for this school year, and one of the primary focuses in that platform is academics. With new leadership in office, it's well past time for the student government to live up to its promises.

Stop and smell Stos Stockton's surreal satire

Editor's note: Because of a staggering amount of homework and a suddenly explosive dating life since last Friday, regular columnist Christopher Kennedy has disappeared.

Unsubstantiated reports lead us to believe Mr. Kennedy has hopped up in the House of Nahum in Rudenont with a lussy from Herrin and a brand new edition of the Norton Anthology of American Literature. We received a note written in nearly illegible handwriting which stated that Mr. Kennedy's close personal friend and confidant, Stos Stockton, would be filling in.

"I love my country, but I fear my government?" — Unknown (but presumably the creed of any American with half a brain.)

Look what those Nazis are doing in Washington! Just look! Christ, they're destroying everything this country stands for. It's driving me into a frenzy!

I have fantasies about driving to

Flatulence in Litany

Christopher Kennedy

Flatulence in Litany appears Fridays. Chris is a senior in creative writing. His opinion does not necessarily reflect that of the DAILY EGYPTIAN.

Washington, D.C., with a 500-volt cattle prod and administering massive shock therapy to those morons.

Those bastards in Washington are going to be the downfall of this nation. This whole impeachment fiasco makes me wonder if anyone remembers history anymore.

The greatest empire ever, the Roman Empire, was destroyed in A.D. 476, not by a huge invading army, but by small, numerous and persistent enemies and, more importantly, massive internal conflict in their government. Sound familiar?

Or how about Nazi Germany? Historians have argued the Nazis lost World War II because they opened an eastern front. I say it's because there was disagreement between Hitler's advisers who wanted to kiss his ass and those who wanted to kill it. While half of his advisers tried to bomb him and the other half tried to protect him, the allies rolled over all of them.

Bottom line, when a country's government is busy fighting itself, it can make no progress to improve the country or protect it. If a college drop-out, slacking moocher like myself can figure that out, what's wrong with those over-paid fools on the hill?

Since we live in America, we have a tendency to believe all the propaganda the government spits out at us. We really think we are the best nation in the world and that the "American way of life" will continue forever. There is a very good chance that our government propaganda machine has been bastardized by inept liars.

I tagged along with Chris Kennedy when he backpacked across Europe last summer, and it was an eye-opener.

Everyone knows the French hate us, but are you aware that almost every other country does also? As far as the rest of the world is concerned Americans are meddling, uncultured buffoons. As one Frenchman told me on a train, "What do you care that your President has an affair? It is understood that your President has at least one mistress. You Americans are so stupid!"

Our politicians have made us the laughing stock of the world. The good thing is they know it. I can assure all of you as the Impeachment Trial comes to a close, a lot of our wonderful representatives will do anything we want to try to keep their asses in office.

If we can wake up and exploit a good situation when it comes along, this spectacle could be really good for us "common people."

GPSC president takes issue with landlord/tenant editorial

Dear Editor:

The DAILY EGYPTIAN's coverage of the landlord/tenant story has been thorough and even handed. However, I cannot let the Feb. 3 editorial pass without comment.

From the beginning every effort has been made to include all concerned in the process. For the most part, the landlords we have met and the leadership of USG have been very receptive and open.

It is unfortunate that communication has, from time to time, broken down between ourselves and our undergraduate counterparts. This much I know to be true, USG is every bit as committed to bettering the lives of students as GPSC. As for the landlords, the vast majority of them, those doing business with students on a daily basis in a forthright and honorable fashion, listened carefully to our concerns. The active participants in the landlord/tenant commission are of the opinion that the abuses of a few landlords in the community could only be corrected by legislation.

It should come as no surprise that those who are opposed to additional regulation are the very same who spoke out against the city's inspection program. Now, more than three years later, they are advertising their properties as "city inspected."

It has been suggested that those who are unhappy with the abuses of a few landlords should simply rent elsewhere. This simply overlooks the fact that those few control a significant portion of the market share. Nor can we speak to the common decency or the sense of fair play of those who choose to exploit and not serve their customers. The only way to grab their attention is to hit them where they live — in their wallets.

Current city ordinances fail to provide adequate protections to residential leaseholders. By looking to the ordinances of other cities we sought to avoid reinventing the wheel. This "cut-and-paste job" was the result of an effort to learn from others and to avoid writing legislation that would be subject to constitutional challenges. Nor did we wish to burden the City Attorney's office with additional prosecutorial tasks.

Finally, we need to remember that votes make councilpersons and mayors. Contributions do not.

Students Ski the Hidden Valley

RHONDA SCIARRA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Visions of racing downhill on skis in 20 inches of snow with a crisp chill in the air may seem impossible for students stuck in the middle of Southern Illinois.

But a steep and windy road 2 1/2 hours away, just outside St. Louis, recently led a group of students from Carbondale to a winter world — Hidden Valley Ski Area.

The Area offers skiing in various day, night and midnight sessions daily from Dec. 23 to Mar. 14; weather permitting.

The group of students from University Hall left Carbondale at 7 p.m. last Friday, skied at Hidden Valley Ski Area during the mid-night session and returned back to Carbondale at 9 a.m. Saturday morning.

Evie Younger, a resident assistant at University Hall, said the trip was a unique experience for the 22 students that went.

"It is surprising that in Southern Illinois we have some place like that to ski," Younger said.

"It was really fun since I had never been skiing before."

Kent Graham, president and general manager of Hidden Valley, said their ability to make their own snow provides skiing conditions in spring-like weather.

"We have 100 percent snowmaking capabilities," Graham said.

"It is only Feb. 3 — there is still a lot of winter left."

Younger, a senior in health education from Champaign, and other novice skiers took advantage of free lessons offered from midnight until 2 a.m.

Continue on AH Road for about 1 mile, then take the first right onto Hidden Valley Drive.
Keep right until you reach the Valley.

"The staff was really helpful and patient," Younger said.

Merle Miller, director of the ski school at Hidden Valley, said a beginning skier will probably not have an enjoyable experience on the slopes without some instruction.

"In order to ski safely, you must be able to control your speed and come to a stop," Miller said. "That is what we teach in a beginner lesson."

Facilities at the area include seven trails ranging in difficulty from beginner to advanced intermediate, along with two triple-chair lifts and four tow ropes.

A day lodge, overlooking ski trails, offers all equipment rental, a bar and food service and seating for up to 200 people.

Graham said skiing sessions are popular with college students because it satisfies the active lifestyles of a younger crowd.

"It is one of the few wintertime activities you can get involved in," Graham said. "You can go skiing without going to Colorado."

Younger said the trip is part of University Hall's programming for its residents.

"The hall went last year, as well as this year, and has always had good response," Younger said. "We will probably keep going every year."

Younger said a trip to Hidden Valley is a welcome change to normal SIUC life.

"If you are wanting an awesome experience for the weekend, I would recommend it," Younger said. "It is a lot different than an ordinary weekend in Carbondale."

BUSINESSES

City Road will be the major development corridor in Carbondale for years to come.

"The more new businesses that start, the more will be drawn in," Seary said. "It will feed on itself."

Seary also stated the location, along with the enterprise zone tax breaks, made the Sears location especially attractive. He pointed out the business is near several restaurants, University Mall and the post office, all of which increase traffic in the area.

Linehan thinks Carbondale business is growing because the city has a lot to offer new businesses and new people. One of the attractive aspects of Carbondale are plans for improving educational facilities.

"Part of the reason for business interest is that Carbondale is the regional retail corridor of Southern Illinois," Linehan said. "Coupled with the plans the city is making with the new Superblock, it makes for a very attractive package."

Student playwrights 'Journey' to the director's chair

STORY BY THORRIE T. RAINEY

CLASHING SWORDS, BATTING BROADCASTERS, LIFE AND FRIENDSHIPS AND CONSPIRACY, TO MURDER IS WHAT HAPPENS WHEN ASPIRING SIUC PLAYWRIGHTS COME TOGETHER TO BRING THEIR WORK FROM THE PAPER TO THE STAGE.

Journeys, presented by the Christian H. Moe Laboratory Theatre, is a collaboration of student playwrights who submit their work for the chance to have it directed and performed in front of an audience.

Ten plays will be performed, each lasting about 10 minutes. The 10 plays are split into two sessions — "Journeys To," which will be performed Saturday and Feb. 12 at 8 p.m. and Feb. 14 at 2 p.m. and "Journeys Around," which begins tonight, Feb. 7 at 2 p.m. and Feb. 13 at 8 p.m.

Rhonda Shook, research assistant and theater publicist, said the audience is so large, many people try to cram into the theater to see them.

"There are so many actors that come to the show just to support their friends," Shook said. "That is why it is divided into two sections."

Paul Bawek, a graduate student in directing from Sacramento, Calif., is excited about the performances. He has written one play for "Journeys Around" and directs the play "Struggling With Bob," which will be performed during "Journeys To." This is his directing debut. "Struggling With Bob," is a story about a playwright who is visited by a mysterious stranger. From this encounter he realizes everything in his life is not what it seems.

Bawek said input from both the writer and the actor is essential to the success of any play.

"It's a collaboration with the actor and the playwright," Bawek said. "When we put it together the result is dynamic."

"We have open communication. If the actors feel they have an input in the plays, their performance is going to be even more powerful." Robin Roberts, a graduate student in playwriting from Clemson, S.C., directed two of the 10 plays for "Journeys To and Around." He also has written a play for "Journeys Around" named "Suffering Fools" and a comical play, "The Get," for "Journeys To."

"The Get" is a play about five female broadcasters competing against each other for the rights to televise a story.

Carbondale band Carter and Connelley rehearse in preparation for their CD release concert tonight at 8 at Cousin Andy's Coffeehouse, 401 W. Mill St. The CD is the first for the band and is titled "The Seventh Direction."

'Seventh Direction' from the heart

STORY BY JAYETTE BOLINSKI

WHEN CURT CARTER AND TOM CONNELLEY WERE SEARCHING FOR A TITLE FOR THEIR NEW CD, THEY KNEW SONGS FROM THE SEVENTH DIRECTION PERFECTLY SUMMED UP THE THEME OF THE MUSIC THEY HAD WRITTEN.

Carter had learned years before of the Seventh Direction from a contemporary Lakota storyteller.

The legend tells that after Wakan Tanka, the Great Spirit, had arranged the other six directions — East, South, West, North, Above and Below — one direction remained.

But because the Seventh Direction was the most powerful of the directions, the one with the greatest wisdom and strength, Wakan Tanka wished to place it where it could not be easily found. So the Seventh Direction was finally hidden in the last place humans usually think to look — in each person's heart.

And the heart is where Carter and Connelley tend to find the inspiration for their music.

The legendary Carbondale duo, with Geoff Maring on bass, will perform during a CD release concert tonight around 8 at Cousin Andy's Coffeehouse, 401 W. Mill St.

Songs From The Seventh Direction is the first CD for Carter and Connelley — a work they said has been in progress almost as long as the two have been performing together. Previously they had released two cassette albums, including "Home in the Heartland."

The two classify the music on the CD as "acoustic-American folk rock."

"There's different kinds of music on here," Connelley said. "There are some real simple ballads, there's some Native-American influence, and then there's some rock-and-roll stuff."

"It depends on what mood you're in as to which song's your favorite."

The stories Carter and Connelley tell through their music all are based on experiences they have had and people they have known.

"Every single song has an authentic message that was experienced by either Tom or myself," Carter said.

"They're songs from our lives."

Take, for instance, "Built By Friends," a tribute to Rose Lips, a pillar of the Makanda community for many years who was known throughout the area for being an election judge and delivering eggs.

"If you're a local from Carbondale within the last 70 to 80 years, you know who Rose Lips is," Carter said. "Her friends from church came out and built a barn for her, and she was so touched that she had her daughter make this sign and put it up on the barn," Connelley said. That sign said "Built by Friends," and it is still on the barn today.

"I knew Rose forever," Carter said. "And I knew that she was really ill."

"But one night I was driving down Spring Ridge Road, and I drove by the house and the lights were out."

The lights were always on at Rose's.

Carter said he backed up, pulled into Rose's driveway and sat there for 10 minutes with a lump in his throat because he knew Rose had died. So he

Benyas conducts famed Chicago Chamber Orchestra

STORY BY CHRIS KENNEDY

IN HIS QUEST TO LEARN THE ART OF CONDUCTING, EDWARD BENYAS WOULD BRIBE MUSICIANS WITH BEER AND PIZZA SO THEY WOULD COME TO HIS PLACE AND PRACTICE WITH HIM.

He's come a long way since then.

Benyas, SIUC director of orchestras and associate conductor of the Chicago Chamber Orchestra, will conduct the highly acclaimed Chicago Chamber Orchestra at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Shryock Auditorium.

Twelve years ago, Benyas had just graduated from the University of Michigan's law school. He moved to Chicago, where he worked in a law firm for four years before he felt it was time for a change.

"I had a really good time," Benyas said. "But all the time I was there, the music was just calling."

Even though he had played the oboe since he was a child, Benyas hired a teacher who pushed him until he was able to compete professionally.

Benyas auditioned for the Chicago Civic Orchestra, which is considered by many as the training grounds for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. By playing in the Civic Orchestra, Benyas' reputation grew among the musicians of Chicago.

"In the world of freelancing, it's just a question of who knows your name," Benyas said.

It was around this time Benyas began playing with the Chicago

Chamber Orchestra. It was also the time the pizza and beer sessions began.

Dieter Kober, the music director of the Chicago Chamber Orchestra, recognized Benyas' talent. During the orchestra's 1992 tour of Europe, Kober got married and had the orchestra play for his wedding. It was Benyas' European conducting debut.

The wedding was held in St. Thomas' Church in Leipzig, Germany. It was the same church J.S. Bach had composed his work in.

"We were up in the same loft Bach used," Benyas said. "[We were] playing Handel and some other Baroque music."

In the years since then, Benyas has played with numerous groups, including the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, as well as working to improve the music program at SIUC.

Because of cuts in federal and state funding, the chamber orchestra has to search for money to keep the group going. Although the entire group takes the responsibility to raise money, much of the pressure of locating funds falls on Benyas.

"It's very important for me to work with this professional group," Benyas said. "It's very gratifying to work with people of such high caliber so I want to continue working with them as much as I can, so it's up to me now to go out and find additional sources of revenue to keep it going."

According to Benyas, touring around the world with the orchestra has added a wonderful dimension to his life.

"There's a lot of really great moments," Benyas said. "When you're touring... you're hanging out with these people, you're on the bus with them, you're sight-seeing with them, and then you're making music with them at night. Now that's the way to go to Europe."

The Chicago Chamber Orchestra will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Shroyck Auditorium.
Tickets are $16.50/$14.50 with a $4 discount for children.

Spinning a mix of motown, funk and house music, Terry "spy-d" Lilley (left) and Prince "Love" Taylor, a senior in paralegal studies, will bring their two-man DJ show to Tres Hombres, 119 N. Washington, at 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Tres DJs spin the classics

STORY BY CHRIS KENNEDY

TERRY "SPY-D" LILLEY NOTICED AREA DJs OVERCOMPENSATED FOR THE LARGE COLLEGE CROWDS BY ONLY PLAYING TOP 40 DANCE AND POPULAR MUSIC WHILE FORGETTING THE ORIGINAL DANCE MUSIC ARTISTS.

"Most of what you get around here is '80s, alternative and dance," Lilley, a Carbondale resident, said. "We bring back music from when music was music."

The "we" Lilley alludes to is the DJ show he has put together with Prince "Love" Taylor, an SIUC senior in paralegal studies, which will light up Tres Hombres, 119 N. Washington, at 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Lilley and Taylor will break out greats like George Clinton, James Brown, The Beastie Boys and Marvin Gaye to bring a refreshing alternative to Carbondale's music scene.

"Hopefully it'll be something everyone can get something from," Lilley said. "For the older crowd, it's music they grew up with, but it's music young people can still appreciate."

Lilley and Taylor have known each other since the fifth grade and have been collaborating since high school. According to Lilley, the two work together in bring parties to a higher level.

"We've been doing this so long we have knowledge of the music," Lilley said. "[Working together] allows for a greater collection of music. We complement each other pretty well."

Lilley and Taylor also have distinctly different styles while they DJ.

"It depends on the crowd — but I like to talk," Taylor said.

"I usually shut up and let the music play," Lilley said.

Taylor hones his style on his weekly radio show on WDBX. Every Wednesday at 4 p.m. Taylor and his wife, Rain, send alternative Rhythm and Blues across the airwaves.

Lilley, who has deejayed at other area bars, said they will get people dancing at Tres Hombres. Having hung out at Tres Hombres, Lilley has noticed what gets the crowd there moving.

"Usually at Tres the DJ is there for background," Lilley said. "But we want to move people out of their seat."

According to Taylor, picking music to play is a simple matter of academics.

"Bottom line is that good music makes you feel good and bad music makes you want to leave the bar," Taylor said.

•Spy-d and Prince Love will begin their show at 9:30 p.m. Saturday in Tres Hombres, 119 N. Washington. Admission is free. For more information call 457-3308.

PLAYWRIGHTS

Roberts said Journeys is beneficial to playwrights.

"They learn a lot about the scripts," Roberts said. "This is very beneficial to the playwright."

Bawek said the combination of the actors and the audience is what theater is all about.

"We feed off of the energy from the audience," Bawek said. "You need an actor and an audience to provide a theater. They don't realize how important they are together."

corralled that emotion into a musical tribute to its friend.

Other songs, such as "Everybody Needs a River" and "The Reef," were written as environmental-awareness pieces.

The duo also is in the process of self-publishing a book that will be completed within the year. The book will contain educational activities and ideas for families and school groups. The book and the CD each will stand on its own but make excellent companion pieces to one another, Carter said.

"For those people in Carbondale who know us or who know about our music, 'The Seventh Direction' is a different project than Home in the Heartland was," Carter said.

"It's a CD about life."
The Seventh Direction will be available at Cousin Andy's tonight. The CD costs $15.

More women become college professors but receive less pay

COLLEGE PRESS EXCHANGE

WASHINGTON—More women are becoming college professors but are getting less pay and fewer promotions than men in the same profession, a new survey has found.

In 1974-75, women made up 22.5 percent of all faculty members in the United States. By 1997-98 that figure escalated to 33.8 percent.

But the study released Tuesday by the American Association of University Professors indicates that, regardless of the institution, more than half of women work in lower positions, such as lecturers and instructors.

In 1997-98, women made up 55.6 percent of lecturers, 58.6 percent of instructors and 46.8 percent of assistant professors, which is considered the profession's entry-level position.

Only 18.7 percent of women worked as full professors during the same academic year. The study also revealed that women are more likely than men to work at community colleges, which typically pay less than four-year institutions.

The data are based on annual survey of about 2,500 public and private college administrators. The response rate is about 75 percent, researchers said.

important to Kelly, and he said he feels this is a citywide concern. The Graduate and Professional Student Council will present housing ordinances at the next City Council meeting, and Kelly thinks they have a good plan.

Minor improvements are what Kelly is looking for in Carbondale housing standards. He believes the GPS-C plan is a good idea.

"We want to see minor improvements in standards in rental housing around here," Kelly said. "We're not asking to overhaul the whole system."

Overall, Kelly wants to see the positive changes continue that have been occurring in Carbondale. He said he believes the students must be heard in order to maintain this momentum.

"For years, the City Council has been run by old cronies that controlled the town and used the students," Kelly said. "We made a change in that two years ago, and now we just have to take over."

Missouri and an alumnus of Beta Theta Pi. Stewart, who is a cancer survivor, started the program during the 1993-94 season after his mother died of cancer.

The national program is sponsored by the American Cancer Society, National Association of Basketball Coaches and Women's Basketball Coaches Association. The fraternity also has recruited local business like Silkworm and Kinko's to help promote the program.

Betty Jo Williams, field representative for the American Cancer Society, has worked with the fraternity on a variety of projects, including Coaches vs. Cancer.

Williams said the American Red Cross had tried to get the program started at SIUC but were unable to do so until they were approached by members of Beta Theta Pi.

"Last year we didn't have the volunteers that we needed," she said. "Without them we wouldn't have been able to get the program off the ground."

Beta Theta Pi has been on campus for three years and just received its national charter at the beginning last semester. The amount of service hours they completed last semester is more than most other fraternities and sororities.

Clemenson said community service is an important part of being a member of Beta Theta Pi. The fraternity requires each member to do four hours of community service a month.

Katie Sermersheim, assistant director of Student Development, has been impressed with the amount of work the fraternity is putting into the community.

"They really understand what it means to be a greek organization," she said. "Anything they can do to help the community is a step in the right direction."

Clemenson said the volunteer services the fraternity provides is just a rewarding to the members as it is for the community.

"People don't realize the importance of community service," he said. "This is something good in the greek system. We can have just as much fun tearing down a house as we could if we were drinking."

many last-minute calls requesting service with which greeks are ready to help out.

"We can always count on the greeks," she said.

Many greek organizations require members to complete a certain amount of service hours. Also, Select 2000 requires 80 percent of members in a fraternity or sorority to participate in one large community service project each semester.

Katie Sermersheim, assistant director of Student Development, said participating in community service is important to change the image of the greek system.

Sermersheim said the negative image of the greek system overpowers the positive activities greeks participate in.

"For members of greek organizations it is important that a positive image comes out," she said. "Our goal is to help members be the best possible individual and member of society they can be."

Morgan said participating in community service builds stronger relationships within the members of the fraternity or sorority.

"It's all about brotherhood," Morgan said. "When you get up at 8 a.m. on a Saturday and clean up garbage for six hours to do service, it makes you feel good. It helps people, and you can accomplish something together."

Women fall to Panthers

PAUL WLEKINSKI
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The SIUC women's basketball team dropped a 65-51 decision to the University of Northern Iowa Thursday in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Shooting a mediocre 44 percent in the first half, the Salukis trailed 36-25. They then shot a mere 28 percent in the second half.

The Salukis had three scorers reach double digits, including sophomore guard Terica Hathaway

Salukis 51

(20), junior center Melaniece Bradley (10) and senior guard O'Desha Proctor (10). Hathaway was also one rebound shy of a double-double.

Mary Koch and Allison Starr led with the Panthers' offense scoring 13 and 12, respectively.

The Salukis get a chance to return home with a split as they travel to Peoria to face Bradley University, who is winless in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Salukis edged out a 59-57 win over the Braves in the SIU Arena Jan. 9. They had three players reach double-digit scores including Terica Hathaway (21), Melaniece Bradley (11) and Maria Niebrugge (11).

The Valley's third-best scorer Heather Best (18.5 ppg) pummeled the Salukis with 25 points. The Braves had no other scorers reach double figures.

Two Yankee stars face arbitration

NEWSDAY

NEW YORK — Brian Cashman, the New York Yankees' general manager, Wednesday refused to engage in any arbitration rhetoric involving Derek Jeter and Mariano Rivera.

The two sides will have the chance to state their cases later this month, if they follow this process to its bitter conclusion, and Cashman is more than prepared to face his players across the arbitration table.

As for recent comments made by Jeter's agent, Casey Close, Cashman didn't feel the need to respond. Close criticized the club for what he perceived to be a lack of initiative toward a multiyear deal for his client. "It's a dead issue," Cashman said. "That's all I'll say."

Close did not return phone calls Wednesday, and Cashman has not spoken to the agent since the GM tried to avoid arbitration with a $3.5 million offer. Jeter, who was renewed at $750,000 a year ago, filed for $5 million; the Yankees countered with $3.2 million.

Despite a history of bad blood with Bernie Williams, who nearly fled to the Boston Red Sox in November after a series of contractual battles before re-signing for seven years and $87.5 million, the Yankees do not expect to make any more concessions for Jeter.

Jeter is still three years away from free agency, so there is no sense of urgency to get him tied up with a long-term contract. But avoiding arbitration is always a good idea with a valuable player such as Jeter, who could be scarred if the hearing turns nasty.

Jeter's price is certain to escalate in the next few years. The shortstop flashed a wide smile when Boston's Nomar Garciaparra signed a five-year, $23.25 million deal last spring, and that market already is outdated.

Jeter was named the American League's Rookie of the Year in 1996 and finished third in the MVP voting last season after he batted .324 with 19 home runs, 84 RBI and 30 stolen bases.

the running corps will help the team go for another victory.

"I'd like to see us come out of this meet with a good showing," DeNoon said. "I don't know if it's possible to beat Indiana, but I know the composite of the teams that are there are not real strong field teams."

The Salukis have proved themselves a strong field team meet after meet, from Hill and Nitzsche's performances to sophomores Tawnjai Ames and Caryn Poliquir, consistently putting up high finishes in the throwing events.

"Our typical performances from our field kids will still look awfully strong," DeNoon said.

Like all meets and practices this season, this weekend will serve as a proving ground for runners looking to make their mark in the conference.

"On an individual basis, we had some people (last weekend), like Sarah Bobsin (4th in the 400), who finished highly in a major meet," DeNoon said. "That certainly helped her confidence, and some of our kids are making a lot of progress."

The Salukis will travel to Bloomington Saturday for the Indiana-Mid America Invitational.

Bryson, whose 17.5 points per outing are fourth in the MVC, sat out of the Jan. 30 meeting between the two teams because of a stress fracture in his leg. But he's returned to top form, as he scored 11 of the Redbirds' final 13 points in their win over Southwest Missouri State University Wednesday night.

"A big key will be Bryson coming back," said Weber, whose team won the first meeting 60-47 at SIU Arena. "He's 17 points a game and that gives them more of a perimeter threat, which they were kind of lacking in our game."

Bryson's outside scoring abilities could help the Redbirds utilize their superior height advantage.

Forward L. Dee Murdock is out for the season after tearing his anterior cruciate ligament against the Salukis, but ISU still has big Leroy Watkins and 7-footer Sean Riley.

"Their size is a major factor because they're so big," Weber said. "They did lose Murdock, but they still have Riley and Watkins. One is tall and one is wide, so they're really going to try to get it inside."

Not just a Normal trip for Jenkins, Dawgs

PART TWO: Basketball team invades Illinois St. for chance to win third straight game.

SHANDEL RICHARDSON
SPORTS EDITOR

Monte Jenkins almost has his checklist complete.

One by one, Jenkins, a senior guard for the SIUC men's basketball team, has shut down the opposition's top scoring threat. Aside from being his team's leading scorer (14.3 ppg), he has been the team's best defender.

"You just go down the line," SIUC coach Bruce Weber said. "Kind of whoever we've asked him to guard, he's done a pretty nice job of defending. He's taken a pride of being a pretty good defensive stopper."

When SIUC played the University of Illinois-Chicago, Notree came into the game averaging more than 20 points per game. Jenkins allowed him only two points on 0-for-5 shooting, and the Salukis' two meetings with Wichita State University, Perez (16.1 ppg) shot just 5-of-16 and scored only 16 points.

Can't forget about the game where Jenkins shadowed Woodley (12.3) when Drake University came to the SIU Arena. Woodley scored six points, all of which came from the foul line.

Or what about when he placed the glove on Wilson, the No. 3 scorer in the Valley, while the Salukis (12-8, 7-5) were in Evansville, Ind. Wilson had just six points, four free throws came in the final two minutes:

"I've always thought I was a pretty good defender," Jenkins said. "This year, I've kind of made it a point to check it in with the defense. It's worked for the most part."

Most recently, Jenkins held Buford, the MVC's marquee player, to just 11 points (4-of-14) in the Salukis' 85-78 win against Creighton University Monday. By the way, he also poured in a game-high 25 points.

"He's playing as hard as he can defensively, and he still gets 20-some points," sophomore guard Abel Schrader said. "You see him out there playing hard defense, and you don't want to let the team down. You've got to play as hard as he is."

Bradley University's Rob Dye has been the only guy to really get away from Jenkins. Dye scored 25 points Jan. 6, in a Bradley victory.

"I don't think that's going to happen at Bradley," Jenkins said.

He'll have to wait until the last game of the season in order to redeem himself, but before he can get to Dye, Jenkins still has one more mark to make on the checklist. When the Salukis play Illinois State University (13-10, 5-7) Sunday in Normal, guard Tarise Bryson will be in uniform.

DOUG LARSON/Daily Egyptian

Senior guard Monte Jenkins (23) attempts to block a University of Creighton player's shot during Monday night's 85-78 victory. Jenkins and the Salukis enter the Illinois State game Sunday with a chance to move one step closer to first.

Track teams take winning ways to Indiana University

ROB ALLIN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Both SIUC track and field teams are looking to take their winning ways to Indiana University this Saturday.

The men and women will participate in the Indiana-Mid America Invitational in Bloomington, Ind.

The Saluki men will be up against a field of about 10 teams, including Indiana University, the University of Tennessee and Eastern Illinois University. SIUC is fresh off a victory in its own Saluki/McDonald's Invite last weekend.

This week, the Salukis have followed a practice routine similar to the one they will the week before the Missouri Valley Conference Championships, Feb. 20-21, in Normal.

"We've eased up some this week," head coach Bill Cornell said. "We hope we get some spring back in our legs."

"We hope the hard work we've done the past couple of weeks will pay off."

The Salukis had better make their coach happy in Bloomington this weekend because the tough work-outs resume next week. The home meet Feb. 13 will be used as sort of a light practice, a rest from the tough week of workouts.

"We want everybody to have season bests (this weekend)," Cornell said. "We want to start moving up the (MVC) charts before conference."

Among the Salukis looking to excel this weekend are sprinters

Orlando McKee, who finished second in the 200-meter dash last weekend, and Elliot Young, a surprise winner in the 60-meter high hurdles. Cornell also expects a solid performance from junior high-jumper Brad Bowers.

The women won the Saluki/McDonald's Invite in true record-setting fashion. Juniors Felicia Hill and Michelle Nitzsche set school marks in the high jump (5 feet 9 3/4 inches) and pole vault (10' 6"), respectively.

This Saturday, the duo takes their high-flying act to a stiff field of competition in Hoosier Country. The women's version of the Invite will feature a similar number of teams as the men.

The Salukis will have the services of one of their top distance runners, junior Erin Leahy, who has been out since cross country season because of an ankle injury, for the first time this season. Coach Don DeNoon hopes the added depth in
