Seale may take stand

Prof testifies for defense

CHICAGO (AP) — A California philosophy professor testified Friday in federal court that a high ranking city official told him that Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago was responsible for granting parade and rally permits during the week of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Donald Kalish, chairman of the philosophy department at the University of California at Los Angeles, was a witness for the seven defendants charged with conspiracy to incite rioting during convention week.

A defense lawyer said the defendants would ask that Bobby G. Seale, chairman of the Black Panther party, be transferred from a San Francisco prison to appear as a witness.

Leonard I. Weinglass said that Seale would be a "key defense witness."

Judge Julius J. Hoffman said

"Seale is a party to this trial but he will be tried separately." Seale, originally a co-defendant, was sentenced to four years in prison for contempt in October and Judge Hoffman declared a mistrial in his case. His name was mentioned during the government's examination of Kalish and this apparently prompted Weinglass' statement.

Kalish said that he and David T. Dellinger, a defendant, met Aug. 26, 1968 with Deputy Mayor David Stahl. They protested against an 11 p.m. curfew in Lincoln Park which set off clashes between police and demonstrators.

"Stahl said he knew the curfew was causing confrontation," Kalish testified, "and he said, 'I have no power to remove it, only the mayor does.'"

Kalish, who was a co-chairman of the Mobilization Committee to End the War during the convention week, also described an incident Aug. 29, 1968 in Grant Park.

Kalish said that James Rochford, a deputy superintendent of police, and two other policemen were surrounded by a crowd of demonstrators at the base of a statue. Kalish said he asked the crowd to clear an aisle for the policemen and the demonstrators obliged.

The prosecution has tried to show that Abbott "Abbie" Hoffman, a defendant and founder of the Yippies Youth International party was urging the crowd to kidnap Rochford. The defense contends this was only a joke.

Proposal to Board: statuary garden as Old Main shrine

By Win Holden
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A proposal asking for a statuary garden to be made from the fire-gutted remains of Old Main will probably be presented to the SIU Board of Trustees in Edwardsville Friday, according to Charles Pulley, University architect.

Pulley declined further comment on the project saying a formal press announcement would not be made until after the Board meeting.

A University official said, however, that the project involves construction of a four-walled open-air structure that could be used for exhibits and informal social gatherings as well as acting as a permanent memorial to the building.

R. D. Isbell, SIU assistant treasurer, said funds allocated by the Illinois legislature for demolition of the building could not be used for funding of such a project.

"Funds for such a project would have to come from sources yet unknown," he said.

The legislature approved releasing $475,000 on June 19, 1969. The funds were to be used for demolition and possible reconstruction of temporary classroom space.

Isbell said as of November 30, about one-fourth of that money had been spent, largely on the temporary building on the corner of South Washington Avenue and Park Street.

Those buildings are being used as classroom space and cost the University $130,000 in lease costs during the first year, Isbell said.

Each subsequent year the buildings are used will cost $113,000, he said.

The SIU Security Police and the Illinois Fire Marshall's office have been conducting an investigation into the cause of the blaze and the possible culprits.

Arson was suspected, but not enough concrete evidence exists to support more than educated conjecture on the part of officials.

Capt. John Robinson of the SIU Security Police, and supervisor in charge of the investigation section, said no new leads have been developing in the case.

Robinson was not optimistic about apprehending the person or persons responsible for the fire.

"Our chances decrease with every day that passes. It may be quite some time before our investigation turns up anything one way or another," he said.

A $10,000 reward is still being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the fire. Any information would be appreciated, Robinson said.

Education meeting to begin Con-Con

SIU student government released the final schedule Friday for its Constitutional Convention beginning with an educational session on student rights at 8 p.m., Monday in Ballroom B of the University Center.

Speakers for the beginning session will be Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar and William Moulton, dean of students.

Mike Bowman, temporary chairman of the SIU Con-Con, said it is hoped that President Delyte W. Morris will also be present. According to President Morris' secretary, he was out of town and she did not know when to expect him back.

On Tuesday, senators will hold rap sessions in their living areas. Nondorm and commuter senators will hold meetings on campus. The times and locations of these meetings will be announced early next week.

Carbondale Mayor David Keene, Tom Bevirt, coordinator of the "Serve the People" campaign and a representative from the Northeast Congress in Carbondale will speak at the Wednesday evening session which will begin at 8 p.m. in Ballroom B of the University Center.

The topic of Wednesday's discussion is "Student Involvement in the University Community."

Senators are scheduled to hold rap sessions in their living centers on Thursday. Friday's session will concern "Students and Faculty Working Together" and "Student Power and the Decision Making Process."

The session will be at 8 p.m. in Browne Auditorium. Speakers include Randall Nelson, professor of government and member of the American Association of University Professors; Willis Moore, professor of philosophy, and George McClure, associate professor of philosophy.

As of Friday afternoon only seven petitions for delegates to Con-Con had been returned to the Student Government Office. All petitions are due Jan. 14.

Con-Con delegates will be elected Jan. 21 with the delegates convening Jan. 26.

Thirty delegates will be elected to represent the student body. The exact number from each area is: Commuter, 5; East Side Dorm, 3; West Side Dorm, 3; West Side Nondorm, 4; East Side Nondorm, 5; University Park, 3; Brush Towers, 3; Thompson Point, 2; University City, 1; and Small Group Housing, 1.

A bill calling for the Con-Con was introduced by Dave Felger, commuter senator, on Nov. 19 and passed unanimously by the Student Senate.

Reading program developed

Bruce Amble, associate professor of educational psychology, has originated a new phrase reading development program on film. It is designed to help break down walls of frustration around pupils with reading problems.

Amble reported that in one research project working with culturally disadvantaged children, 35 per cent more educational achievement was produced with only two per cent of school time involved when compared with regular class curriculum.

Amble began working with the concept while a doctoral student at the University of Iowa and continued the study when he joined the SIU faculty in 1965. He emphasized the program is supplemental and not intended to replace regular reading studies.

He explained that his phrase reading programs are presented on a series of ten separate ten-minute training films, each designed to be shown two or more times during a training program. Each film contains 260 practice phrases, flashed on a screen long enough for the pupil to make a single reading fixation. Doing numerous phrase projections improves the pupil's habit of phrase reading, he said.

The reading phrases are two, three and four words long. Phrase length is increased gradually during a training session, which usually lasts about 20 minutes. Tests are included at the middle and end of each film.

Improvement of reading skills showed up across the board in all subjects in at least one study," Amble said.

Amble's program, sponsored by the University through the College of Education and the SIU Foundation, has been produced by Journal Films, Inc., Chicago. The Foundation has a contract with Journal to act as agent in helping spread the program into the nation's school system. More than 20,000 brochures and 1,000 letters are being sent to teachers and administrators interested in reading development.

Amble, who pointed out that reading skills must grow to keep pace with learning, said that although phrase reading is not a new idea, his system, based on research findings, is new.

He said the program was tested over a six-year period with more than 1,500 students of different backgrounds.

Phrase reading training has shown promise with remedial reading classes at the junior high school level, with slow learners at the high school level and culturally disadvantaged students as well as with students in the usual language arts reading programs in grades 4-7, he said.

Dwight Campbell sets office hours

Dwight Campbell, SIU student body president, announced this week that during winter quarter his office hours will be 11 a.m. to noon and 1-2 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Executive offices of the student government, formerly housed in the University Center, are now located in temporary building T-39, the old Registrar's Office.

Honest Marvin—he's our man

With five seats in the Student Senate up for election on Jan. 21, several students have begun to announce candidacies. Among them is Marvin Goodfink, who I believe to be the most refreshing and honest candidate to announce running for a high student office in recent years.

In an interview with me Goodfink candidly stated the following: "If I'm elected, I promise to serve the students well. I am for getting rid of all women's hours and I am for letting all students have motor vehicles with no restrictions. I will oppose the racists who are running this university and the city of Carbondale.

"Above all, I will try to represent all students, whoever they are, and listen to their every wish in trying to bring about reform. And that especially goes for educational reform. I am for getting rid of grades, in favor of replacing them with a pass/fail system. I am also in favor of extended Black Studies courses and making Free School courses count for hours credit toward graduation. Elect me and you can't go wrong."

Naturally, I asked him if he really intended to do all of this after he got elected.

"Of course not," Goodfink replied. "I plan to act just like every other person who ever got elected to the Senate. I plan to sit on my duff. Of course, I'll apply a little lip service to these issues from time to time at Senate meetings and such, but I plan to generally imitate Lot's wife after she looked back. I will introduce bills from time to time requesting extended library hours or removal of "Keep off the Grass" signs from various places on campus, but that is all I expect to really do. If, by some error, some of these big issues come up, I aim to represent my close friends (Irving Sycamore, Clyde Culpeper and Maurice Suttecliff) very well then. The heck if I'll listen to students. The Senate is impotent anyway, so why should they worry what we do?"

"But, why run then?" I asked. "Its a good springboard to get elected to higher office," Goodfink said with glee. "If I run for president and get elected, I can vacation in Hawaii or visit my grandparents in St. Johnsbury, Vt. on student activities money. I can also speak before students and demand the resignation of everyone and then claim 'I never said that' to a Daily Egyptian reporter 48 hours later. Of course, I can also get elected vice-president, but I would only get travel privileges. But then, if I were to get elected activities vice-president, I won't get to travel, but I won't have to keep a 3.00 average, so it all averages out."

"And that is why you wish to be elected?" I asked.

"You bet your life," Goodfink replied with a Gig Young smile on his face. "If they can do it, I can too."

Like I said, he is the most honest and refreshing candidate to run in a long time!

Let freedom ring

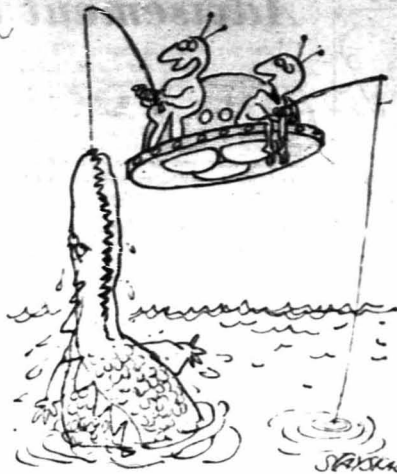

Students who have complained about the way student government has been run in the past should seriously consider becoming a delegate to the student government constitutional convention. Perhaps SIU students will even get a declaration of Independence.

Fraternity life benefits student

To the Daily Egyptian:

With the advent of fraternity rush this Tuesday, I thought that an explanation of fraternities in general might help men at SIU decide if they would like to join one or at least seek more information about them.

The step from high school to college is a big one, and the transition calls for much adjustment. No institution can better assist the underclassman make this adjustment than the fraternity. It is a simple fact that fraternity men have a higher grade point than non-Greeks, and they are more active in campus affairs than other students. This is probably due to the general lack of organization of the entire student body, where inherent in the fraternal system is organization of the most effective kind... that of close friends working together for common goals.

To many men entering college, fraternity is something about which they have heard, but about which they have only limited knowledge. Much of this knowledge is hearsay and some of it is based on distorted or inconclusive evidence. The fact is, that while fraternities do serve the students in campus activities, they also work for the community in projects ranging from heart fund donations to having Christmas parties for orphan children. Through this type of activity the fraternity man may learn much about the problems of society and life-itself. He can gain much valuable knowledge and experience from his frat-er-nity. This is indicated by the large majority of congressmen and presidents who were once fraternity men.

The first fraternity was founded in 1776 at William and Mary College, and Phi Beta Kappa is still functioning as a national scholarship society. Today, there are over 61 national fraternities with a total of over 3,000,000 members.

Fraternities are not perfect, however. Like any other association of men they have their shortcomings, because they are composed of human beings. But despite these shortcomings, which they are constantly striving to improve... and with success... fraternities are making headway in meeting the challenges of a changing world; they are making enormous contributions to the successful careers of thousands of their members. And no substitute association has yet been found which so successfully compliments classroom training to produce a well-rounded, highly educated individual.

Your life can be greatly enriched by the fraternity experience. Fraternities encourage activity in many of the numerous aspects of the university community. I know I speak for all Greek men at SIU when I invite you to see for yourself what fraternities are all about this Tuesday evening.

Cameras ruin Arena events

To the Daily Egyptian:

I never cease to be amazed at the number of people who insist on bringing their cameras to the events at the Arena. In so doing they show a lack of consideration for the rest of the audience and a complete lack of knowledge about their cameras.

The performers go to great lengths to set a mood, but it is all shattered in a fifth of a second by the inconsiderate idiot with a camera. If the people only wanted to hear the performers they would buy a record. But who can even see the stage with a big white dot in front of his eyes?

All this is more amazing to me because these shutterbugs don't have a chance in the world of getting a usable picture. The Kodak Instamatic is a fine camera but it has its limitations. With an aperture of about f/8 and the 1000 candle power per second of the flash cube, the maximum camera-to-subject distance is about 25 feet. If these would-be Alfred Eisenstaedts have a camera with a maximum aperture of f/1.4 and a 2000 BCPS strobe this setup would probably be useless after 100 feet (color film).

But the picture that everyone wanted from the Simon and Garfunkel concert was when the light changed to blue for a deep mood during the singing of "Sounds of Silence." If the pictures had come out, the light from the flash bulbs would have obliterated the blue hue. This picture could only have been taken with available light—something the Instamatic cannot do under those circumstances.

So snapshotters, please stop wasting your film and ruining my evenings. Leave your cameras at home.

'Stolen Cake'

To the Daily Egyptian:

Please inform Michael Yergin and other equally sexually repressed young males on campus who are worrying about dorm rule restrictions contributing to their "sexual repression" and being "harmful to their health and well-being" that they should consider the girls potential harm which is derived from the mental anxiety of waiting to see whether one is really pregnant or not, and then the mental depression, embarrassment and stigma from an illegal abortion or a full term pregnancy waited out in another state.

After all, God made sex as the fullest expression of marital love rather than a plaything for unmarried persons to squeeze in between tomorrow's psychology paper and one's English reading assignment.

Stolen cake is always wrong, frequently crumbly and ironically stale in the end. If you want sex, then find a nice girl and get married—unless you're scared of the responsibility of being a husband. The husband and wife combination conforms to society's formula for a normal married life and you don't have to worry about dorm rules, V.D., getting caught and damaging your "health and well-being."

The high divorce rate in the United States is in large part due to stolen cake. Happy marriages are based on trust. When one can't be honest about his premarital sex life with his wife and compares her with other women he has had, then the first chapter on the road to divorce is already written and the end is just around the corner.

Take your choice. It is very unlikely that you can have your cake and eat it too if you want a happy marriage when you graduate a few years from now.

Japan rebuilds military despite varied opposition

Akihiro Sato, a graduate student majoring in journalism, came to SIU this fall from Tokyo, Japan. Sato worked as an Associated Press reporter from 1966-69 in the Tokyo bureau. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Aoyama Gakuin University in Tokyo.

By Akihiro Sato

Japan is rebuilding her military muscle 24 years after its crushing defeat in World War II.

Despite leftist opposition, the government of Prime Minister Eisaku Sato is pushing a third military buildup plan. Japanese military authorities predict Japan will rank among Asia's strongest nations when the plan is completed in 1971.

Japanese army, navy and air force are designed only to defend the country in a regional war. The United States is responsible for defending Japan in an all-out war under a bilateral security treaty.

The Japanese government set aside $6.5 billion for the build up plan, double the scope of the second defense build up program (1962-66), which involved about $3.2 billion. The first plan began in 1958.

The Japanese self-defense forces were established in August, 1950—after American troops stationed in Japan were rushed to Korea to push back the communist aggression.

The ground defense forces, which began with 7,500 men, will have 180,000 under the current build up plan, while the maritime defense force will maintain a total of 145,000 tons of ships, as compared with 8,900 tons in 1952.

The Japanese air defense force had only propeller-driven trainers in 1954. It will be equipped with 890 aircraft, including some of the most modern planes.

The Japanese government decided earlier this year to choose the U.S.-designed F-4E Phantom fighter-bombers as the mainstay of the air force.

A major purpose of the third defense build up plan, military authorities say, is to replace the secondhand American weapons which the Japanese defense forces began with. They believe those weapons have already become obsolete.

It is time for Japan, they believe, to begin turning out military hardware. The United States ended a program to provide Japan with free military weapons three years ago, after Japan began to produce arms.

An increasing number of Japanese reportedly favor taking care of their own defense necessities without heavily depending on the United States.

Minoru Genda, former chief of Japan's air-defense force who now serves in parliament, said in a recent interview in U.S. News & World Report: "I feel Japan relies upon the United States too much for her defense at the present time. The partnership should be modified, reciprocally."

The authorities say Japan will produce about 80 per cent of her own arms by 1971. Japanese are already making antitank guns, rockets, mortars, artillery and tanks. Aircraft ordered by the Japanese Defense Agency accounted for 90 per cent of the total planes produced in Japan.

Another purpose of the plan is to bolster the mobility of Japan's ground force.

Taking a cue from American helicopter gunships combatting the Viet Cong in South Vietnam, the Japanese government is planning to increase its number of helicopters and organize a helicopter unit. Japan is building a total of 148 small, medium and large helicopters under the current defense build up plan.

However, as Japan rebuilds her military strength, the government is finding itself in a dilemma.

The United States has been pressuring Japan into increasing her armed forces as it tries to curtail her presence in Asia, while Japanese people are telling the government not to do so.

The Japanese government is well aware of the U.S. hope that Japan increase arms and play a more active role in Asia, according to the authorities. The government also knows that it is difficult, if not impossible, to strengthen the nation's military significantly. Japanese officials believe there will be a limit to the growth of Japan's military strength.

The Japanese Constitution clearly renounces war as a sovereign right, and the threat or use of force as a means of settling international disputes. It also prohibits Japan from sending its troops abroad.

Constitutional amendments are necessary if Japan wants to do more than defend itself with its own forces, and such amendments require a two-thirds support of parliamentary votes. At least a third of parliament is controlled by leftist opposition parties which are set against Japan's rearmament.

The Japan Socialist Party, the nation's biggest opposition party, advocates that the defense force be scaled down and be turned into a body aimed at aiding the improvement of society.

The Clean Government Party, another influential opposition party and the political arm of the powerful new-Buddhist Sokagakkai organization, asserts that Japanese military forces should be dissolved.

Efforts to increase Japan's armament drastically are bound to stir strong opposition among Japanese who have experienced first hand the horror and destruction of an atomic bombing.

It is widely believed that Japan would not choose to amend the Constitution in the foreseeable future.

The Japanese Constitution was drafted under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's policy for stripping Japan of its war potential. However, most Japanese seem to support the spirit of the war-renouncing Constitution and are willing to go along with it.

Japanese officials believe that the self-defense forces will not be expanded greatly in the future in the face of the oppositions. The Japanese government, instead, will try to modernize existing forces.

Cop who led Panther raid had no enmity

Abused their rights

CHICAGO (AP)—The leader of a police raid in which two Black Panthers were slain testified Friday he bore no ill feelings toward the occupants of the apartment where the shooting occurred.

The police officer was a witness at an inquest into the deaths of Fred Hampton, 21, leader of the Illinois Panther Party, and Mark Clark, 22, of Peoria. They were killed in a raid Dec. 4 on Hampton's West Side apartment.

An interracial jury of six prominent Chicagoans is investigating the slayings. Martin S. Gerber, a lawyer named deputy coroner, is presiding at the inquest.

Sgt. Daniel R. Groth in charge of the raid, was accompanied on the mission by 13 fellow policemen, five of whom are black. Groth is white.

He testified, "I went there (Hampton's apartment) with no animosity towards anyone and as a matter of fact I didn't even know anyone was in the apartment."

Black community groups have disputed the police account that the men were killed in a gun battle with police. They maintained police knew who occupied the apartment and they fired on Hampton as he slept.

Three weeks earlier two white policemen and one Black Panther were killed in a South Side gun fight.

Privy privilege plea denied

CHICAGO (AP) - Judge Julius J. Hoffman and defense lawyers argued Friday over men's room facilities at the trial of seven men charged with conspiracy to incite rioting at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

The judge ordered that the defendants, who had been leaving trial sessions to use men's rooms in the courthouse corridors, must use facilities in a jail cell adjoining the courtroom.

The judge said the defenddants abused their privilege to leave the courtroom.

William M. Kunstler, defense lawyer, replied: "These men are not convicted yet. They don't have to use a jail cell."

The judge replied: "That is my order. There will be no further argument. If they have to go that's where they will go."

Later, Jerry C. Rubin, a defendant, accused Richard G. Schultz, an assistant prosecutor, of goading him about the judge's order. "Mr. Schultz just pointed to the jail lockup door and said 'Go to the bathroom.'" Schultz replied, "Yes, I did that. It was not very professional. But the defendants have been harassing us for four months just as they have harassed police and officials all their lives."

Kunstler injected: "I want the record to show that I make a motion for a mistrial based on those remarks."

Judge Hoffman said: "And I want the record to show that I deny the motion."

Senior Bowl stars Shaw, Bradshaw

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—A trio of strong-armed quarterbacks, hopeful of impressing professional football scouts for the final time before the pro draft, are all set for an aerial bombardment in the 21st Senior Bowl game Saturday marching talented North and South squads.

With Terry Bradshaw of Louisiana Tech and Bill Capleman of Florida State firing for the Southerners and Dennis Shaw of San Diego State for the North, a national television NBC audience can expect a dazzling passing battle.

The kickoff is scheduled for 1:15 p.m. CST and the game generally is regarded as a tossup.

Despite a pulled hamstring, Bradshaw has drawn the starting nod from South Coach Don Shula of the Baltimore Colts. North Coach Lou Saban of the Denver Broncos will open with Shaw.

War will drag on, Giap warns people

SAIGON (AP) - Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnam's chief war strategist, has delivered some chilling news to his nation's 21 million people. The war in the South is far from over, far from won, and needs more of their sacrifice and effort.

Giap indicated that the military strategy he developed after fashioning the defeat of the French at Dien Bien Phu in 1954, and used in South Vietnam almost ever since, may be changed.

Giap presented to the people of North Vietnam, on a war footing for nearly three decades, the prospect of more of the same grinding conflict and even greater sacrifice. Already the war has cost the lives of about a half-million North Vietnamese men.

The unusually frank views of Giap appeared in seven essays published last month in a Hanoi newspaper.

Giap is North Vietnam's defense minister and a contender for the presidential seat left vacant by the death last year of Ho Chi Minh.

Rusk 'too liberal' for Georgia

By Harry S. Ashmore

There was a time when the opposition to Dean Rusk's appointment to the faculty of the University of Georgia could have been written off as another manifestation of the parochial theater of the absurd still maintained by politicians of the old Confederate States.

The principal objection to the former secretary of state, as voiced by the governor and others, is that he is "too liberal." But one of the dissenting university regents translated this charge into the all-purpose "controversial," and this undoubtedly elevates the issue to the national domain.

Dean Rusk is an honorable man whose professional background and wide experience should qualify him for any university faculty in the land. But he certainly is, as the Georgia regent said, controversial—considerably more so in the national academic community than among the rednecks of his native state.

The imperturbable Georgian runs a close second to Lyndon Johnson as the leading villain of the radical young and their intellectual supporters. By the litmus test of the Vietnamese war he deserves the honor. Over more than 20 years he has emerged as the pre-eminent cold warrior—relentless practitioner of the theory of strategic containment, unabashed defender of the anti-Communist faith.

As far back as the Truman era, Rusk was identified with those who wanted to convert George Kennan's transitional policy for Eastern Europe into a global design that would contain communism everywhere and forever. When he left office after heading the State Department under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson there was no indication that Rusk's original view had been tempered in any way by the great upheavals that had reshaped the world's power balance and changed its ideological complexion.

Dean Rusk's monumental inflexibility made him a prime symbol in the current polarization of American politics. The obverse of his simplistic anticommunism is the professed radical belief that Rusk served as the conscious apostle of capitalist imperialism. But he has always reminded me, most of all, of the hero in the popular song who cried, "Follow me!" and with unflinching rectitude marched forward into the Big Muddy until he disappeared.

It is fitting that Dean Rusk has gone back home to Georgia. They understand the breed there and, despite the haranguing from the branch-heads, they admire it. The campus at Athens is, after all, one of the citadels of the Lost Cause, which never made a distinction between being stubborn and being right. The tragedy of Dean Rusk, and of the nations, is that he didn't, somehow, get headed in another direction.

Center for Vietnamese Study critic gives lecture to SIPC, RYM II

Doug Allen, instructor in the Department of Philosophy and a leading critic of the Center for Vietnamese Studies and Programs, lectured to about 30 representatives of the Southern Illinois Peace Committee (SIPC) and the RYM II faction of the Students for a Democratic Society Thursday, instructing them on the dissemination of ideas and facts about the Center.

At Wednesday's meeting of the SIPC, it was announced that a coalition had been formed between SIPC, student government, RYM II and the Black Student Union in order to move the Center off campus. Thursday's meeting was to inform a nucleus of representatives from each group about certain aspects of the Center.

At the meeting in the Newman Center, Allen spoke of controversial aspects of the Agency for International Development (AID), the State Department agency which granted $1 million for the Center.

He also spoke of its present head, John Hannah, the former president of Michigan State University, as well as principals of the center, H.B. Jacobini, Wesley Fishel (a visiting research professor from MSU), Nguyen Hoa, Robert Jacobs, John King and others.

SIU to present 'Music of Old'

A program of Renaissance and Baroque music will be presented to children from seven elementary schools, the second in a series of children's concerts by the SIU Department of Music.

"Music of Old" will be performed at 2:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Carbondale Community High School Auditorium.

The program will include movements of works for recorder consort and harpsichord. Early dances will be performed to harpsichord accompaniment played by Mrs.

Frances Bedford of the SIU music faculty.

Under the joint sponsorship of the Carbondale Morning Music Etude Club, the University Extension Services, and the Department of Music, the series is open to students from elementary schools in Carbondale, Murphysboro, Carterville, DeSoto, Glendale, Unity Point and Giant City.

Proceeds from the programs are used to supply musical equipment for the schools' music education program.

Burglary suspects face jury

Two men accused of the attempted burglary of the Western Auto Store, 415 S. Illinois, will appear before a grand jury Wednesday, according to Jackson County State's Attorney Richard Richman.

Melburn Lloyd Petri, E. St. Louis and Virgil Everett Williams of Collinsville, were arrested Nov. 23 after three SIU coeds alerted Carbondale police that they had seen two men coming out of the store at approximately 11:45 p.m.

Petri appeared in a preliminary hearing Friday in Murphysboro Circuit Court and was bound over to the grand jury. Williams had not requested the preliminary hearing.

Two witnesses, testified at the Friday hearing.

Electronic aid helps students via telephone

SIU is the only place in the country where a college student can dial "an electronic secretary" and relay to his professor a question about the course, to be answered at the next class meeting.

SIU's Learning Resources Service created this unique teaching aid, according to Harry Denzel, director of the Service's Self-Instruction Center.

Say a student wants to know what the teacher meant by a certain statement in class or wants a less technical explanation of a passage in the textbook. He can dial 453-5793 by day of 453-2554 at night or on weekends and tell it to the electronic secretary.

His message is recorded. Next morning a staff member of Learning Resources transcribes the message and either phones it to the professor or sends a typed copy to him. When the class meets, the professor can give the student a quick answer or discuss the matter for the whole class.

"Our only problem is that too few students are taking advantage of the electronic secretary," Denzel explained. "We would like all the faculty to remind students of this channel for getting problems cleared up."

The electronic secretary is only one of the ways the Self Instruction Center is giving students a helping hand. It has built up a large stock of programmed books, slides and tape recordings which students may use for study and review, each learning at his own pace, while seated in booths in the center.

Working with more than 100 faculty members, it has developed a "bank" or 1,500 taped class lectures, musical assignments with commentary, and other programmed tapes are mounted at one time on a central control board.

Seated in one of the 24 specially equipped booths in the center, the student can push a series of buttons on a small control box, designating which of the 60 tapes he wants to hear. If the one he wants doesn't happen to be on the board, he can dial the attendant and request a substitution.

A group station giving direct access to the central control board is installed in Neely Hall and "mini-instructional centers" have been set up in seven other buildings, including the SIU Airport and the Vocational-Technical Institute, each offering tapes related to specific areas of study.

But that's not all. A student sitting in his own room, either in University housing or in town, can pick up his telephone and "dial-a-tape." He calls one of three campus telephone numbers (453-5791, 3-5792 or 3-5793), gives his request to the attendant, then listens to his selection over his own phone.

Denzel frequently samples student reactions to the services of the center. Typical comments are: "Very useful if you miss a lecture. I wish I had known about this last year." "One of the most useful commodities in the University." "A valuable aid to me. Without it I would never passed the course." "Great. Being a transfer student, I never have seen a place such as this; is a real asset to students to partake."

YMCA campaign begins

The Jackson County YMCA will kick off its 1970 membership campaign Feb. 16.

An open house from 2 to 5 p.m. will be held on Feb. 15 to give prospective members an opportunity to visit the new YMCA facility located on West Sunset Drive. During the open house, diving and swimming exhibitions will be staged.

Four types of year long memberships are possible: family membership for all facilities and activities for $96; individual membership for $48; student membership, all grades and ages, for $24; and a special recreational swimming membership for the entire family for $50 which includes the Riverside Pool in Murphysboro when open.

Study program offered in Spain

SIU and the Latin American Institute are planning a study program in Spain summer quarter. For the first time, SIU students can tour the country while taking fully accredited courses at the University of Madrid.

The entire trip is expected to cost between $850-$890, and includes room, board and tuition, according to Jenaro Artiles, visiting professor in the Department of Foreign Languages. Artiles will organize and conduct the summer study program.

A chartered plane will fly from St. Louis to London. Two days will be spent in London before going to Paris for a day. In addition to studying in Spain, students will tour places of historical, archeological and cultural significance.

The summer study trip is not to be confused with the tourist trip planned in the spring.

Further details on the summer trip to Spain will be made available later.

Graduate wives meet Monday

The SIU Graduate Wives Club will have its monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in the Home Economics Lounge.

Mrs. Clarence Hendershot, wife of the assistant dean of international students, will be the guest speaker. Along with Mrs. Hendershot will be several international student wives around which the program will be centered.

All club members are urged to attend. Those needing rides may call 457-4674.

Outdoor education

Each summer, credit classes in outdoor education and conservation are offered by SIU.

Engineers speak at VTI cafeteria

The SIU-VTI chapter of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers will sponsor a presentation by the St. Louis chapter of S.M.E. on numerical control machining and tooling at 7 p.m. Monday in the VTI faculty cafeteria. All interested faculty and students are invited to attend.

Freshmen to play Bradley

By Bob Richards
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The Saluki freshman basketball team will try to rebound from its first loss Thursday, a 70-41 defeat by Missouri Baptist Junior College, when they challenge Bradley in Peoria tonight.

Thursday's loss in St. Louis was a mediocre performance from SIU's shooting standpoint as the Salukis connected on 17 of 57 shots from the field for a poor 29 per cent. Missouri Baptist put up fewer shots (40) but hit 24 of them for 61 per cent.

SIU was also cold from the free throw line hitting seven of 15 attempts while the hosts put in 22 of 32.

Freshman coach Jim Smel-

ser said that SIU opened well, but couldn't put the ball through the basket and began to tighten up. "We played well defensively," Smelser said, "however we did not operate well offensively."

Smelser said that Missouri Baptist controlled the tempo of the game and were well disciplined. "They did an excellent job of shot selection while we put up some poor shots," Smelser explained.

Leading the Saluki scoring were Don Portugal and Larry Lingle with ten points each. Nate Hawthorne bagged seven points while John Marker and Melvin Meyer each scored six points.

Smelser said he looks for another tough game tonight against the Bradley freshmen. "We won a close one up there two years ago," Smelser said. He added that Bradley is always tough to beat and especially in Peoria.

In their first three games, all played in the SIU Arena, the frosh whipped Belleville Junior College 90-77, crushed Pope Air Force Base 86-49 and hung on against a sticky John A. Logan Junior College team, 85-80.

Following tonight's tilt in Bradley's Robertson Memorial Field House, Smelser's yearlings will stay on the road with contests Wednesday, at Evansville; Jan. 20, at Florissant Valley Junior College; and Jan. 29, at Rend Lake Junior College.

Star can make it as coach

By Paul Corcoran
Copley News Service

San Diego — Coaching superstars such as Wilt Chamberlain and Elvin Hayes in the National Basketball Association (NBA) has been as conducive to employment longevity as Russian roulette.

But Alex Hannum, new coach of the San Diego Rockets, knows it can be done successfully and he sees no reason why his formula cannot work in handling Hayes, the Rockets' scoring whiz.

Hannum, towering former player who coached previously at Philadelphia and San Francisco in the NBA, and Oakland of the American Basketball Association, should know whereof he speaks. He tutored Chamberlain with considerable success — so much success that the Philadelphia 76ers won the NBA championship three seasons ago. In Wilt's long pro career, it was the only time he played on a title team.

Alex, who says he was "really elated" to get the San Diego job so he could return to Southern California, contends there really is nothing different coaching a team with a Chamberlain or a Hayes from coaching any other basketball squad. "It is the same as coaching as anywhere else," Hannum said in an interview. "You have the same basic philosophy. You realize, of course, that you start playing basketball because it is a game and fun. In the pros, the approach still should be about the same."

"The most important thing of all is to play as a team," said Hannum, who is giving the Rockets a crash course on playmaking, Hannum-style.

"Chamberlain and Hayes are very exceptional and unique athletes. Each man has his problems. It is my job to show each player compassion in accordance with his need.

"I have to help the player, whether it is Hayes or (rookie) Bernie Williams, according to his needs so that he can help the team," Hannum concluded.

Hannum, a 220-pounder who stands 6-foot-5, may regard basketball as "fun" but there is nothing humorous about the way he prepares his squad for a game. Nor is he haphazard in preparation.

On a recent game day, he walked out of a business meeting, put on tennis shoes and — still wearing a shirt and pants — put the Rockets through a practice session concentrating on set plays, screening and setting picks for individual shots.

Tradition may go with Kentucky game

By Bob Richards
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

All tradition can be thrown out tonight as the Saluki cagers renew their intense rivalry with the Kentucky Wesleyan Panthers. Currently the top ranked college division team in the nation, Wesleyan dropped its second game of the season Wednesday to Arkansas State, 88-84.

Kentucky Wesleyan publicity director, Jim Elkins said Friday that 500 tickets were still available for the contest which will start at 8 p.m. on the Owensboro Sportscenter floor.

SIU players and coaches have agreed that the Salukis played poor defence and failed to work the ball well on offence during the Saluki's humiliating 100-71 loss at Georgia Tech.

SIU coach Jack Hartman said during the week that it might be necessary to make some personnel changes to beef up the sagging defence.

Regardless of the outcome, the game will be a classic as have previous games with the Panthers. Nine of 24 games with Wesleyan since 1957, have been settled by less than three points. Wesleyan holds a slim 13-11 lead in the series as it tries to extend a home court victory string to 32 straight games.

The Panthers have a 62-3 record at home, since moving into the Sportscenter in 1965. All three losses were at the hands of the Salukis. During the 1966-67 season when the Salukis won the NIT, Walt Frazier scored at the buzzer for a 52-51 Saluki win. The next year, unheralded Bobby Jackson took the heroes role scoring on a jumpshot as the game ended giving SIU a 63-62 win.

The Panthers, sporting a 9-2 record are led by 6-6 John Duncan, averaging 21 points a game. Duncan has helped considerably to fill the void created by the graduation of Panther All-America George Tinsley. Duncan has shown he has great rebounding capabilities, hauling down 16 a game.

SIU will seek its seventh win in ten starts, having lost to California State at Los Angeles 86-82, and Bowling Green 67-57 before the loss to Georgia Tech.

Hoping not to have another down game will be sharp shooting forward, L. C. Brasfield. The 6-3 junior was shut out in the scoring column and grabbed one rebound against Georgia Tech. He had been averaging 19.6 points a game.

It is expected that coach Hartman will start guards John Garrett and Rex Barker, forwards Brasfield and Bruce Butchko and center Juaez Rosborough. Greg Starrick with a 15 point effort at Georgia Tech could start at a guard, while Bobby Eldridge and Stan Powles are also possibilities on the front line.

WSIU-FM will broadcast the game from Owensboro, beginning at 7:55 p.m.

Matmen host Moorhead; Underwood eyes 7-0 mark

By Bob Richards
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Tonight's wrestling meet, pitting SIU against Moorhead State College could be closer than many people think. Coach Lynn Long said that if SIU doesn't win at least two of the first five matches, the Salukis will be in real trouble. Meet time is 7:30 p.m. in the Arena.

Long said he hoped 118 pounder Rusty Cunningham could work for his first victory since Dec. 6. The Saluki coach also expressed optimism for his other lower weight men, particularly 134 pounder Jim Cook and 142 pounder Vince Testone, who have not won in either of the Salukis last two dual meets.

Moorhead coach Bill Garland has built the Dragons into a formidable mat power during his eleven year tenure. His impressive 101-26-3 record speaks for itself. It includes a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championship in 1963-64.

"We should know which team will win the meet, following the match at 150, said Long. He added that SIU would probably do well at 167, 177, 190 and possibly at heavyweight.

Saluki 190 pounder Bob Underwood seeks his seventh win without a loss when he meets Moorhead's John Sigfrid (1-0-1) or Dennis Stamp a sixth place finisher in the 1968 NAIA finals.

Underwood started the season, winning four straight matches to take the 190 pound championship in the Illinois Invitational, Dec. 6. He continued with an impressive victory over Oklahoma's Mike Brundage, and made his record 6-0 with a pin over Iowa State's Ben Peterson.

Coach Long expressed concern about the 134 match, Moorhead is expected to start freshman Tom Bell of Edmond, Okla. who missed the Dragon's first two meets because of a knee injury.

Lineups for tonight's match include at 118, SIU's Rusty

Cunningham (3-1) vs. Harley Haug (2-0), at 126 Val Bravo, (0-3) vs. Roger Cook, (2-0), at 134, Jim Cook, (1-3) vs. Bell (0-0) or Jerry Barnum, (1-1-0), at 142, Vince Testone (0-2) vs. Floyd Thomas, (2-0) and at 150, Vince Rafi, (1-3) vs. Jim Gildersleeve (0-0), who placed fourth in the college division NCAA finals last year.

Trainer finishes second book

Robert Spackman, head SIU athletic trainer, has completed a book on conditioning for wrestling. The book is being published by the Charles C. Thomas publishing firm of Springfield.

"Conditioning For Wrestling" describes pre-season, regular season and off-season exercises for what Spackman calls "one of the most difficult sports for which to condition the body."

Spackman, also an assistant professor of physical education, is the author of earlier books on fitness and conditioning, including "Exercise in the Office," published by SIU Press and condensed by "Reader's Digest" magazine.

Crews enrolls

Alan Crews, former stand-out basketball player at DuQuoin High School, has enrolled at SIU.

Crews was a member of the University of Illinois basketball team until he quit, "because I wasn't playing enough and didn't think I would."

The 6-7 forward-center is attending classes on the SIU campus but must return to the U. of I. for semester finals.

SIU Publicity Director Fred Huff said Crews will be ineligible for a time period of one year. His eligibility date will be in January 1971 but will be determined by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Rain won't cloud Super Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Scattered showers with temperatures in the 50s were on the menu for Super Bowl Sunday as the favored Minnesota Vikings and Kansas City Chiefs completed heavy work for the fourth meeting of champions of the National Football League and American Football League.

Coaches Bud Grant of the Vikings and Hank Stram of the Chiefs appeared at separate midday news conferences Friday and agreed that bad weather would not help either club in a game that is expected to be a defensive battle.

The Vikings are reported 13-point favorites in Las Vegas odds.

Coach Grant said Lonnie Warwick, his only questionable player, was 100 per cent recovered from a sprained left ankle and would be at his usual middle linebacker position.

Stram still has one doubtful starter, free safety Johnny Robinson, who suffered a rib injury in last Sunday's game with Oakland. All the others, including cornerback Jim Marshall, who had a bruised kidney in the Oakland game, are ready.

"We don't know about Robinson and we probably will not know until game time," said Stram. "He worked out the last two days but he still has pain."

A sellout crowd of 80,997 will jam Tulane Stadium, home of the annual New Year's Day Sugar Bowl game.

Raider cornerback threatened

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland Raider cornerback Nelemiah Wilson had threats made against his life shortly before the Raiders played in the American Football League title game here last Sunday, the Oakland Tribune reported today.

Tribune Sports Editor George Ross wrote from New Orleans that Raider officials confirmed that Wilson and his wife had received two threatening phone calls two days before Oakland lost the title to the Kansas City Chiefs 17-7.

Wilson said the caller threatened to kill him if the Raiders won the game. He told Oakland Coach John Madden about the incident the following day and a special guard was hired to protect his wife on Saturday evening while Wilson stayed with the team at a motel near the Oakland Coliseum.

Raider officials said Wilson tended to pass off the incident as a prank and nothing further was heard after the threats Friday night.
