Allegations probed at Marion pen

CHICAGO (AP) — A prisoner rights group, which says it has uncovered more than 35 cases of alleged beatings by guards at the Marion Federal Penitentiary, has called for a congressional investigation of the problem.

Jan Susler, an attorney for the Marion Prisoners' Rights Project, said Thursday that the group had issued a 34-page report alleging that beatings and other abuses had taken place in retaliation for the October slayings of two prison guards.

Ms. Susler said the group based its report on interviews with about 90 prisoners, who, she said, did not have an opportunity to discuss their accounts with each other previously. "The stories," she said, "basically corroborated each other."

In a statement released earlier this week, the prisoner rights group said officials of the federal Bureau of Prisons and officials at the Marion prison "orchestrated a violent physical attack against the prisoners at Marion" in early November 1983.

At the Bureau of Prisons in Washington, D.C., a receptionist said Thursday afternoon that there was no one available to comment on the accusations. At the Marion prison, spokesman Dean Leech was on another telephone and unavailable for comment. He was not at home later.

Earlier this week, Dennis Hasty, executive assistant to the director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, declined to comment on the report.

During a week of interviews, Ms. Susler said, 12 lawyers and legal workers heard "horror stories" of more than 35 beatings and rectal probes. She said prisoners also reported that the penitentiary had curtailed all religious services and the use of the prison's law library.

Caucus tries to improve status of women

By Terry Leveck
Staff Writer

The status of women on campus has not seen dramatic changes since steps have been taken to increase the number of females at SIUC, but the SIUC Women's Caucus is trying to find ways to change that.

The percentage of undergraduate women enrolled at SIUC has declined in the past three years, while the number of female graduate students has increased the number of women faculty members has also increased, but all changes have been slight.

These were some of the trends reflected in Institutional Research figures and Equal Employment Opportunity reports that were discussed Wednesday at the monthly Women's Caucus meeting.

The undergraduate population has lost just over 2 percent of its female population since 1981. The female graduate student population grew about 1 percent. Since 1975, the percentage of females on SIUC faculty has increased from 18.58

FCC delays access charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission on Thursday tentatively put off until 1985 a requirement that consumers pay more of their phone company's expenses with a $2-a-month "access fee."

By delaying the introduction of access fees, FCC officials acknowledged they were canceling most, if not all, of a planned reduction in interstate long-distance rates. The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. hoped to reduce long-distance rates by more than 10.5 percent in April, but that was linked to the payment of access fees.

The fees, to replace payments now made solely by long-distance callers, had been scheduled to take effect in April. Citing congressional concerns, the FCC said it had decided to take most of this year to conduct further studies to determine whether the fees would force customers to give up their phone service.

The charges are called access fees because they are tied to the ability of customers to "access" the long-distance phone network. Local phone rates now are held down for all customers — including those who don't place long-distance calls — through hidden payments that are built into the rates paid by long-distance callers.

The FCC wants to eliminate that "contribution," or subsidy, paid by long-distance callers to encourage competition and discourage large corporations from building their own private phone systems.

FCC Chairman Mark Fowler said he still believes access charges are needed to stop the building of "bypass networks" by big companies.

The subsidy from long-distance callers to local phone companies has been estimated at $6.5 billion in 1984. The FCC had not planned on replacing all of that revenue with access fees in the first year, so Thursday's decision affected an estimated $2.5 billion worth of fees.

The commission called its decision tentative, and scheduled a final vote Jan. 25. But Jack Smith, the chief of the FCC's common carrier bureau, said he did not expect any significant changes to be made.

Under the tentative ruling: —Residential and small businesses would not have to pay access fees until spring or summer of 1985.

—Large businesses — those with more than one telephone line — still must pay up to $6 a month starting in April, at a total cost of roughly $1 billion the first year.

—A new plan will be developed for residential and small business access charges, with a maximum of $4 a month until 1990.

—Long-distance competitors of AT&T — such as MCI Communications and GTE Sprint — will have more time before they face large increases in the fees they now pay for connections to local switches. Those competitors now pay much less than AT&T for those connections because they're not of the same quality.

Nigerians hail recent military takeover

By Rod Stone
Staff Writer

Nigerian students attending SIUC are optimistic about their country's future in the wake of the New Year's Eve coup that replaced the democratic regime of President Shehu Shagari with a military government.

"We are very happy about the change in government," said Chris Ogbondah, president of the Nigerian Students Association. "Although the change is undemocratic, we feel it will be better than the Shagari administration."

Ogbondah said Thursday that the day after the coup a group of Nigerian students met to analyze the coup.

"We concluded that things would be better and they couldn't get any worse than they were under Shagari's administration, which was leading the country into an economic and political malaise," Ogbondah said.

The new government of Maj. Gen. Mohammed Buhari has cited corruption and economic mismanagement as the principal reasons for the coup, which occurred only five months after Shagari had been elected to his second four-year term as head of the world's fourth-largest democracy.

Ogbondah also believes the Shagari administration to have been corrupt. He said that officials of the government had been trading for their own personal gain with money that was meant to pay the school and living expenses of Nigerian students studying abroad, forcing some students into great financial difficulty.

Ogbondah said that money mailed to him on March 28, 1983, has yet to arrive. This money is for rent, food and transportation, as well as tuition and fees.

"A... this money is not even government money. It's money sent to me by my parents," he said. "I'm not asking the government for a scholarship or a loan or anything at all. All I'm asking is for Shagari to send the money my parents want me to have."

Ogbondah said he is not the only one in this situation. Many others are in the same shoes.

"We hope the new administration will work as sprightly as possible to alleviate these problems," he said.

Jared Dorn, assistant director of international education, said he doesn't anticipate any problems in getting students' aid from the new regime, but added that it is "too early to tell."

"It's been so bad in the past that things have to get better. They can't get any worse," he said.

Dorn said that the way the Shagari government handled student aid may have been a contributing factor in the coup.

Ogbondah said that Buhari has ordered the Central Bank of Nigeria to release to students abroad all funds owed to them. Some of this money has been there for over a year and a half, Ogbondah said.

The mail and telephone systems are working as usual, Ogbondah said. He said that Nigerians at SIUC have been receiving mail from home and have been able to call home, too.

Although Ogbondah is happy about the turn of events in his homeland, he said he and other Nigerians at SIUC are eager for a return to civil rule.

"In as much as we welcome the new regime, we still believe the democratic process is the best way to elect the leaders of a nation," he said.

$9,677 left in Hemphill fund; future of account still uncertain

By Anne Flaszta
Staff Writer

A total of $9,677 remains in the Mark Hemphill fund controlled by the SIU Foundation and, according to Foundation President Stan McAnally, the money will probably not be given to the Hemphill estate "voluntarily."

"It would be my presumption that they (the funds) would not be given voluntarily," McAnally said late Thursday. "That would be a decision to be made by the foundation's executive committee."

A total of $27,685 was collected in the fund by the foundation between Aug. 11, 1980 and Dec. 31, 1983, McAnally said.

Of that amount $18,008 was spent on a specially constructed van for Hemphill and for insurance premiums for 1981 and '82. McAnally said a portion of the fund also went to pay for medical costs not covered by Hemphill's insurance.

Chris Holthaus, attorney for the family of the late Hemphill, said Thursday he still hopes to obtain the money for Hemphill's father, Obra, and daughter, Tiffany, through discussions with John Huffman, the foundation's legal counsel.

Hemphill was paralyzed from the neck down in an SIU-C football game on Oct. 6, 1979. He died of an apparently unrelated heart infection on Nov. 26, 1982.

Holthaus has raised questions regarding both the amount of money remaining in the fund and the University's involvement in how the remaining money will be spent.

Holthaus said that in testimony given during a worker's compensation hearing in October 1980, Fred Huff, assistant men's athletics director, said the money would be placed in a trust fund in Hemphill's name, thereby eliminating the need for Hemphill to receive worker's compensation.

McAnally, however, said

Thursday that the money was kept in an "activity fund" which does not generate interest back into the account. He also said that the fund was never set up as a trust fund in Hemphill's name, and that the money was "intended to be expended rather than endowed."

McAnally speculated that the remaining money could be used as a fund to pay medical expenses for athletes who are injured in the future.

"The people who gave money for this fund thought that it would go to pay any medical expenses not picked up by (Hemphill's) insurance," McAnally said. "It is a possibility that the remaining money would be kept for a similar purpose."

McAnally said the future of the account will be decided by the foundation's executive committee within the next 30 days, probably through a telephone conference call rather than a scheduled meeting.

Court rejects woman's death plea

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court on Thursday rejected a bid by cerebral palsy victim Elizabeth Bouvia for the right to starve herself to death while receiving pain-killers and hygienic care in a Riverside hospital.

In a brief order, with no comment, the entire court denied her request to overturn a lower court decision that prohibited Ms. Bouvia from starving herself to death at Riverside General Hospital while medical workers provide her with pain-killers and personal care to ease the pain of dying.

Botulism cases linked to onions

ATLANTA (AP) — An outbreak of botulism food poisoning affecting 28 people in Peoria, Ill. — the third-largest U.S. outbreak of the century — has been blamed on sauteed onions served in a restaurant.

The national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday that all 28 patients who became ill between Oct. 15 and Oct. 21 had eaten at the same restaurant in a three-day period, and all but four specifically recalled eating a party melt, a cheeseburger on rye with sauteed onions.

It is the first time sauteed onions have been implicated in an outbreak of botulism, the federal health agency said.

As is its policy, the Atlanta-based CDC did not identify the restaurant involved. Health authorities in Peoria have identified it as the Skewer Inn, which has since reopened.

Shultz takes firm stance on talks

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz, acknowledging he made no headway in reopening nuclear arms talks with the Soviets, vowed Thursday the United States would maintain its "willpower and self-confidence" while seeking new opportunities for negotiation.

Shultz said he had "nothing positive to report" after his five-hour meeting in Stockholm on Wednesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on breaking the deadlock in the negotiations.

But he also indicated the Soviets may be preparing to reopen talks limiting conventional forces in Europe. The talks, suspended a month ago, "are in a somewhat different category for the Soviets."

Reagan lifts more Polish sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Responding to an appeal from Nobel Prize-winner Lech Walesa, President Reagan has lifted more of the sanctions he imposed against Poland in 1981, even though the military government has not met all his conditions for doing so, officials said Thursday.

Reagan will allow the Polish government airline LOT to resume landing charter flights in the United States, and Polish fishermen to fish in U.S. waters again. Some other U.S. sanctions imposed after Polish authorities declared martial law in 1981 remain in effect.

State Department spokesman Alan Romberg said an appeal last month by Walesa, leader of Poland's banned Solidarity trade union, weighed heavily in the decision, and other factors were the release of the "vast majority" of Polish political prisoners and the successful Polish visit of Pope John Paul II last year.

Romberg said Poland sought U.S. landing rights for 88 charter flights a year, "and that is the number that they have been granted." He said he did not know the purpose of the flights.

Romberg said the precise fishing quota for Polish fishermen in 1984 would be decided later.

"Very serious human rights problems" still exist in Poland, he said, and Reagan's easing of sanctions was part of a step-by-step approach aimed at improving conditions for the Polish people.

The Polish government, which held 6,000 political prisoners after imposing martial law, says the number detained now totals about 200. Romberg could not say how many were released or still are in custody.

Reagan ordered sanctions against Poland just days after martial law was imposed Dec. 13, 1981, and a ban was imposed on Solidarity, which had been leading a move toward greater democracy.

professor level is $2,400 and $1,400 at the assistant professor level.

The increase in female faculty members was not taken as encouraging by the caucus because most of the increases were reflected in the lower status positions.

The level at which females most closely match males is the instructor level, where 48 percent are women. Only 8 percent of full professors are female.

The technical-paraprofessional area has gained the largest increase of female workers, from 21.80 percent in 1975 to 50.87 percent in fall, 1983.

A piece of good news reported Wednesday was a trend reflected in Institutional Research reports that some women are turning toward the less traditional fields of study.

Education and human resources, areas of study that traditionally maintained the largest segment of female enrollment, have declined more than 7 and 8 percent since 1981.

Business and administration has seen almost a 3 percent increase in the female enrollment. However, the declines also have to be considered with the overall decline in female enrollment over the same time period.

Although the Caucus will be looking for more definite solutions at the next meeting, some reasons for declining enrollment and employment among women were discussed.

Jean Paratore, assistant to the vice president for Student Affairs, said the party school image and concerns about campus safety have deterred women from enrolling.

Pam Brandt, a personnel officer for Personnel Services, cited several more reasons for the low ratio of women at the University, the large number in lower-level jobs and the slow progress toward solving of these problems.

The rural location of Southern Illinois simply does not attract young females and minorities to the area, she said. The inability of the University to provide assurance for employment of spouses, the lack of employment opportunities outside the University, the expense of relocating and the fact that women are 20 years behind in gaining experience and qualifications for higher-level positions are among the key reasons Brandt identified.

The caucus plans to have different speakers and to outline plans for improvement at its Feb. 15 meeting.

SLA nominations to be taken

By Sheila Rogers
Staff Writer

Nominations for Student Life Advisers are being taken, but students aren't required to be nominated to be SLAs.

This is the first year the Office of Student Development is using the nomination process to help in the SLA selection, according to Dan Nadler, graduate assistant for the Student Orientation Programs.

An SLA is a student who shows new students the ropes of the University, Nadler said. Their responsibilities include returning early from summer break to be trained, assisting new students with moving into their new environment, providing campus tours and, in many cases, being the first friend of a new student.

In the past, potential SLA students had to enroll in Higher Education 402, obtain a passing grade and go through interviews.

This year campus faculty, staff and student leaders nominate people they feel would qualify as an SLA. Those nominated would then be asked by Nadler to become an SLA.

Students who want to become an SLA can sign up at information tables on the first floor of the Student Center Jan. 24-26, Feb. 1-3, 8-10. The student must attend an interest meeting at 3 p.m. Feb. 5 in the Mississippi Room, or at 7 p.m. Feb. 5 at Lentz Hall, or at 7 p.m.

Feb. 12 at Trueblood Hall.

In a selection process after the interest session, students will be playing roles and making decisions they will encounter as SLAs. They must attend another meeting Feb. 19 or 26, Nadler said.

"During the selection process, we have specific activities taking place to bring out characteristics in people that we are looking for which we feel is essential for an SLA to have," Nadler said.

Nadler said the characteristics of a good SLA are leadership, self-confidence, enthusiasm, dependability, friendliness and maturity. The requirements to become an SLA are to attend at least one interest meeting, to complete at least one semester at SIUC, to be enrolled as a student, to have at least a 2.0 overall grade point average and to maintain good academic standing through the spring semester.

Nadler said he is looking for about 220 SLAs and that former SLAs must go through the same process if they want to participate this year. Candidates will be selected for team captains, former SLAs supervising groups of SLAs. The team captain prospects must enroll in Higher Education 402, which begins in mid-March.

$32,000 in reserve fund to be disbursed

The remaining $32,000 from a student affairs reserve fund will be freed to provide additional money for specific departments, Bruce Swinburne, vice president of student affairs, said Thursday.

Swinburne said he has received requests totaling $70,000 from a variety of departments, including the Office of Student Life, the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance and the Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee.

A final decision as to which departments will receive money will be made Friday, he said, and each department will have "maximum autonomy as to how those funds will be used."

Earlier in the fiscal year, one-half of the $64,000 originally in the reserve was released, Swinburne said.

Opinion & Commentary

Give Hemphills funds

THE SIU FOUNDATION, which maintains the Mark Hemphill Fund on behalf of the University, has recently shown what appears to be remarkable clumsiness in handling its accounts.

Foundation Director Stan McAnally said Thursday that the $9,677 remaining in the account would not voluntarily go to the late Hemphill estate. But is it really worthwhile to fight for that small amount?

Of course not. The money should go to Mark Hemphill's family.

Hemphill was paralyzed by an injury in a Saluki football game in 1979. A fundraising drive was begun in 1980 to help pay Hemphill's medical bill. Hemphill died in 1982 of causes unrelated to the accident.

The Foundation contends that since the fund was intended for Hemphill's medical expenses, not for him personally, Hemphill's survivors have no right to the remaining money. It is considering using the account to cover medical expenses of SIU-C athletes who might be injured in the future.

DENYING HEMPHILL'S survivors the money ignores the fact that it was the sight of Hemphill, confined to a wheelchair at the same field he used to play football on, that inspired many to make their donations. The 20,000 people who filled McAndrew Stadium on Mark Hemphill Day in 1980 came to give support to him. We doubt that they ever intended for their gifts to go anywhere but to Hemphill.

The Foundation says that a stipulation in the gift donation form spelled out that the money would go for medical bills, but they refuse to release a copy of the form. We doubt that its wording is so binding to prevent, or that any one would object to, giving the money to the Hemphills.

TO USE THAT money for any other purpose than to make up for Hemphill's injury is to, in effect, take advantage of his and his family's suffering. If the Foundation wants an account to pay for sports injuries, which is a good idea, it should start one now. Foundation officials should move quickly to deliver a check to Hemphill's family.

It is ironic that in this, the Football Salukis' championship season, any part of the University would be willing to risk a lawsuit to naggle over money that it came into as a result of a football player's injury. This is the year of Saluki Pride, that pride could easily be lost if the Foundation does not to do the right thing.

New football coach says thanks

On behalf of the new Saluki football coaching staff, I would like to publicly thank the many loyal students, faculty, and staff here at SIU-C.

The response we have received in the three short weeks since we have been here has been tremendous. There have been innumerable instances of helpfulness and hospitality; it's easy to see that the entire Carbondale community and indeed the entire Southern Illinois region have caught the infectious "Saluki Pride."

It will not be an easy task for us to improve upon former Coach Rey Dempsey's record, but we're sure going to try. Our aim is to defend successfully the NCAA I-AA Football National Championship.

Again, my thanks to each and every one of you. It's great to be here at this great university, and I want to cordially extend this invitation for you to meet the real heroes, your National Championship Team, the Football Salukis, at the pre-game ceremonies before Saturday's Saluki-Wichita State basketball game. — Ray Dorr, Head Football Coach.

Democrats united in criticism of Reagan

ANYONE WHO says that there's no distinction between Republicans and Democrats can't tell the difference between a spaceman and a B-movie actor.

The eight Democratic presidential candidates during the televised debate last weekend proved that at least on some major foreign policy issues, the Democrats offer a clear choice to President Reagan. And they seemed to have had a good time doing it.

ON THE TOPIC of vice presidential nominees, all the candidates agreed that they would seriously consider choosing a woman running mate, and George McGovern made a further pledge. McGovern, who took a lot of heat in 1972 when it was learned that his running mate, Tom Eagleton, had undergone psychiatric treatment, said "I don't know who my running mate will be, but I promise that this time I'm going to be more careful."

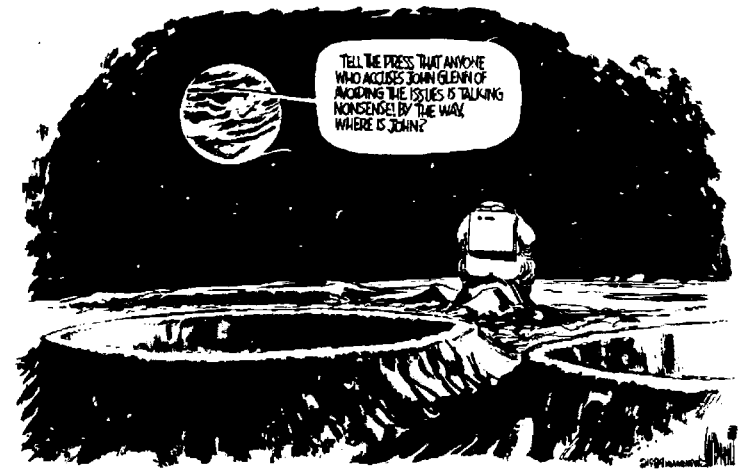

O.K., George ain't no Eddie Murphy, but for someone who got pummeled the last time he applied for this job, it was a pretty good line. And it was good enough to get a laugh from Earnest Hollings, and for my money, the silver haired senator from the South has the best laugh of anyone in politics.

HOLLINGS GOT an even bigger kick out of Jesse Jackson when the laid-back Eaptist pointed his finger at Phil Donahue, the epitome of honky hype, and shouted: "Phil Donahue, Phil Donahue... you just slow down here a minute and let us talk." Anyone who can get Phil Donahue to shut up is presidential material in my book.

Letters

Technology can prevent nuclear war

The Nov. 20 broadcast of "The Day After" by ABC undoubtedly increased the average American's awareness of the horrifying and unacceptable consequences of nuclear war. Millions of us watched Kansas City crumble under the umbrella of a mushroom cloud.

Although the film was upsetting, the panel discussion which followed was more so.

Deterrance, if I understood Messrs. Kissinger, McNamara and Buckley correctly, continues to be the name of the game. Apparently, the best defense is a strong offense, yet deterrance is a doctrine that allows for neither offense nor defense because our fate is the same whether we are the first or the second to push the button. Meanwhile, we spend billions of dollars to perpetuate a political and spiritual paralysis.

On March 23, 1983, Ronald Reagan proposed a technological and political revolution to deliver us from the era of mutually assured destruction. Reagan's plan is a defense based on directed-energy beam weapons. Our rapidly evolving understanding of the principles of plasma physics and the behavior of subatomic particles is the key to creating weapons that can be used exclusively against other weapons. Rocks, bombs and bullets have always been anti-people weapons. They have been "successful" largely because they injure and kill people. If we, the United States, are as moral as we claim we are, we can use the new technology to defend ourselves against nuclear attack without even exploring the possibility of deploying it against people.

Mr. Reagan's proposal is politically revolutionary on two levels. First, he offered to develop beam defenses in cooperation with the Soviet Union. I don't know of any other instance in which a nation has offered its adversary the opportunity to develop a new weapon jointly. This is testimony to the defensive nature of beam weapons and their potential to provide a protective shield against thermonuclear warfare for the entire world. Moreover, such cooperation on a scientific and political level would likely affect American and Soviet perceptions of each other. It is disconcerting that the Soviets have so far rejected Reagan's offer.

The second level of the political revolution is this: Applications of beam technologies in the civilian sector would provide us with unprecedented opportunities to address the economic bases of conflict and political tension.

Biomedical research, metallurgy and eventual energy production via inertial confinement nuclear fusion are just a few of the areas that would be affected by the laser revolution. We could use the economic growth thus generated to develop the agricultural and industrial capabilities of the Third World, a major arena for U.S.-Soviet posturing. Not only is it right that the less-developed countries should be able to make the same economic choices as the industrialized nations, but it would be foolish to continue to prevent them from doing so.

The door of opportunity awaits. Why shouldn't we open it?

views the freeze, as he views so many things, as a communist plot and has said he would not negotiate such a proposal. His resistance has remained steady despite various public opinion polls which show that the freeze is supported by more than 75 percent of the American voters.

ON THE ISSUE of El Salvador, the Democrats all agreed that no further U.S. military aid should be given to Salvadoran government and that all further aid should be contingent upon the government stopping the activities of the right-wing death squads. Reagan has constantly overlooked human rights violations in his blind support for any government which professes to be opposed to any form of Marxism.

The Democrats were also unanimous in their support for an end to U.S. military maneuvers in Honduras — which Reagan supports.

According to a Harris Poll taken last week, 76 percent of the public agrees with the Democrats that aid to El Salvador should not be increased. Fifty-nine percent support linking aid to human rights improvements, and 62 percent agree that the U.S. military has no business in Honduras.

THE DEMOCRATIC candidates also all agreed that economic sanctions should be taken against the apartheid government of South Africa unless it grants full citizenship to the blacks, who make up two-thirds of the nation's population. Reagan, again, merely averts his eyes.

The candidates didn't agree on everything. There were contrasting views about continuing the all-volunteer army, increasing trade restrictions on imported goods, establishing diplomatic relations with the Vatican and formally recognizing the Castro government in Cuba. However, with the exception of the Glenn-Mondale shouting match, these differences were discussed in a friendly manner.

If the Democrats hope to beat Ronald Reagan in November, they need to maintain a unified front during the primary. So far, they're looking good.

The Police slated for Arena bust

Fans of The Police will get a chance to see the band in concert at the SIU-C Arena on Feb. 17 before the trio completes its tour and takes a year off.

The group, which boasts two gold and three platinum albums, is sure to play a variety of its hits, which include "Roxanne," "Can't Stand Losing You," "Message in a Bottle," "Don't Stand So Close To Me," "De Do Do Do, De Da Da Da," "Every Little Thing She Does Is Magic," "Every Breath You Take" and "King of Pain."

Opening for the group will be Re-Flex, whose hit single "The Politics of Dancing" is No. 54 on the national hit record charts.

Tickets for the concert are $15.50 and go on sale from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. on Tuesday at the

Guitarist to play at Shryock

Widely acclaimed Texan rock guitarist Stevie Ray Vaughan and his band, Double Trouble, will play at 8 p.m. February 11 at Shryock Auditorium.

Though he is presently best known for his guitar work on David Bowie's "Let's Dance" L.P., Vaughan is quickly gaining recognition on his own as a power hitting blues guitarist in the tradition of Jimi Hendrix.

Joe Rhodes wrote in Rolling Stone, "He appears to be on the verge of becoming America's newest guitar hero."

Don Waller of the Los Angeles Times wrote, "Vaughan is flashy - playing behind his back or behind his head, soloing one-handed or with his left hand over the fretboard - and it's his ability to make the most predictable musical form, the blues, unpredictable that marks him as a true talent."

Tickets are $9 and $10 and go on sale at 7 a.m. Monday in the Student Center.

N.Y. troupe will present classic ballet

A full-length classical ballet version of "The Sleeping Beauty" will be presented at 8 p.m. on Jan. 27 as part of Shryock Auditorium's Celebrity Series.

The ballet, directed by George Daugherty, will be performed by New York City's Festival Dance Theatre and is based on the fairy tale by Charles Perrault.

Daugherty, 27, has become one of the most internationally sought artists in the ballet world through his work in artistic directing, producing and musical directing.

The prima ballerina of the performance will be Eleanor D'Antuono. D'Antuono, also the artistic director of "The Sleeping Beauty," has danced the lead roles in "Swan Lake," "Giselle," "Coppelia" and "La Sylphide."

The Celebrity Series is supported in part by the Illinois Arts Council.

Tickets for the performance are $10.50 and $9.50 and are available at the Shryock Auditorium box office 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. More information is available at 453-3378.

Mezzo-soprano at Shryock Tuesday

SIU-C students and Southern Illinois residents will get an earful when mezzo-soprano Jennifer Jones gives a recital at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 24 in Shryock Auditorium.

Already a veteran of orchestra performance, Jones has sung with a number of major orchestras under Leinsdorf, Mehta, Tippet, Frubek de Burgos, Lopez-Cobos, Commissiona and Dutoit.

Last season, Jones sang "Carmen" with the Welsh National Opera. She has sung in Blitzstein's "Regina," in "Norma," and in "Rigoletto."

This Community Concert is part of the Student Dinner Concert Series sponsored by Southern Illinois Concerts Inc. A buffet dinner is served from 6 to 7:45 p.m. Students may attend the buffet and the concert for $7.25 a ticket or attend the concert only for $2.

SIC members may attend the dinner for $6.95. Reservations may be made by calling 536-6633.

Cash awards given for best old anecdotes

Senior citizens who have experienced or witnessed dramatic events while living in Southern Illinois car, win cash prizes by submitting an essay to the "Memories of Southern Illinois" writing contest, sponsored by the Community and Educational Arts Association of Carbondale.

The essays might describe: meeting a famous personality, getting by in hard times, farm life, local excitement, coping with a natural disaster or any other memorable event that happened to or was witnessed by the writer.

Entries will be judged in several local contests and then over the Southern Illinois region on the basis of their human interest, historical relevance, conciseness, clarity, sharpness, narrative quality and accuracy. The first place winner in the regional contest will receive $75, with $50 and $25 going to the second and third place winners. There will also be 10 honorable mention awards of $15 each.

The contest is open to all present residents of Southern Illinois 60 years old or older who are living in the counties south of U.S. 70, including those counties that straddle U.S. 70.

The essay contest is funded in part by a grant from the Illinois Humanities Council and the National Endowment for the Humanities. More information can be obtained by calling Bob Knittel or Jean Shisler at 457-8264.

Campaign office opening for Glenn

The Carbondale campaign headquarters for Democratic presidential candidate John Glenn will open at the Hunter Building, 300 E. Main St., at 3:30 p.m. Friday.

David Glenn, the former astronaut's son, will open the headquarters and hold a press conference. The younger Glenn, 37, is an anesthesiologist at Marshall Hale Hospital in San Francisco.

He will also meet with SIU-C President Albert Somit prior to the opening of the headquarters.

Rape victims' group to form

By Sheila Rogers
Staff Writer

The Rape Survivor's Support Group will be a place where women who have been sexually assaulted can discuss their situations in an environment where they won't feel threatened, according to Mary McAuliffe-Schroeder of the Rape Action Committee.

The group will begin meeting in early February if enough women sign up, and will be led by Sally Prane, graduate assistant in Women's Services, and Susan Lomborg, a counseling intern with the Counseling Center.

Lomborg said that her goal for the support group is to give sexual assault victims hope in a supportive environment and to help the women get their lives together.

The three women agreed that women who have been sexually assaulted need a place to talk with other women who share their feelings.

"Many women feel alone and withdrawn. They try to figure everything out for themselves. The support group will help them out," said McAuliffe-Schroeder, who will be referring women to the group from the RAC.

Prane said that some women feel ashamed that they have been sexually assaulted. She said that she will focus on building strength for the victims.

"It will give them an opportunity to let out all of the feelings that go along with this," Prane said.

The three also agreed that it is important for sexual assault victims to know that they are not alone.

"We want them to realize that there are ways to get through this and that it won't take the rest of their lives," Prane said.

Taking a self-defense class may not prevent an attack but it may help a woman be more prepared and feel less vulnerable, McAuliffe-Schroeder said. Lomborg said that self-defense strategies are changing and that self-defense classes not only teach physical defense, but how to be psychologically prepared.

The support group will meet from 4 to 6 p.m. Wednesdays in the counseling rooms in Woody Hall. The group will be limited to eight women, but Prane stressed that no one will be turned away.

If more than eight women are interested, names will be placed on a waiting list and the women will be invited to join if someone drops out of the group. Anyone seeking help will be referred to other counseling centers, Prane said, adding that even if a woman chooses not to join the support group she should seek some form of counseling.

The group is open to the SIU-C community and if not enough women are interested, it will be opened to the Southern Illinois community. Prane said that although she recognizes the fact that men can be sexually assaulted, the group is for only women who have been sexually assaulted, excluding incest victims.

Anyone interested in joining the support group should contact Prane at 453-3655, Lomborg at 453-5371 or McAuliffe-Schroeder at 529-2324. Prane emphasized that confidentiality will be strictly protected and that women calling need to leave only their first names. When the call is returned, no message regarding the support group will be left.

Aldrin wants base on moon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Buzz Aldrin, who walked on the moon with Neil Armstrong, says his old employer, NASA, is wrong in wanting a space station as its next major goal. Americans, he contends, should go back to the moon and build a permanent base there.

"The solar system's most desirable space station already has six American flags on it," he said in an interview. "That's the moon. Let's use it and not turn it over to foreign pioneering frontiersmen."

Aldrin and several individuals and aerospace groups are trying to drum up support for a lunar base as the White House nears a decision on an expanded national space policy for this century. Some are supporting a letter-writing campaign to President Reagan.

The president may announce the new policy in his State of the Union message Wednesday. Details would follow in his proposed fiscal 1985 budget to be presented Feb. 1.

There is sharp division within the administration on what course America should take in space. But there are indications Reagan will strongly endorse an orbiting station, which for years has been the No. 1 priority of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

NASA officials, noting Reagan's recent call for a "grandier vision" in space, said he also may support start-up money later in this decade for a scientific station on the moon, perhaps as an embarkation point in the 21st century for a manned trip to Mars.

Preliminary 1985 spending projections given this month to GOP congressmen by Budget Director David Stockman show the administration wants to add $6 billion to NASA's budget over the next five years. That's a huge increase for an agency that has seen lean years and about the right figure for space station development.

Reagan wants to "recapture the vision of Apollo" and seeks the best way to do that, said Reagan science adviser George Keyworth.

The president hinted at his direction in a speech last October on NASA's 25th anniversary. He challenged the agency to develop more visionary long-term goals instead of just focusing on winning approval of a permanent manned space station.

"We're not just concerned about the next logical step in space," Reagan said. "We're planning an entire road, a 'high road' if you will, that will provide us a vision of limitless hope and opportunity."

The president has been influenced considerably by Keyworth, who said last September that NASA had not been imaginative enough in its long-range planning. He said the agency should be thinking beyond a space station — on how to use such a platform to return humans to the moon and then on to Mars.

Outlook good for rescued boy

CHICAGO (AP) — Color and warmth have returned to a 4-year-old boy whose apparently lifeless body was pulled from Lake Michigan after more than 20 minutes of submersion in the icy waters, his mother said Thursday.

"I've just been to see him," Kathy Tontlewicz said of her son, Jimmy, who plunged into the lake after a sledding mishap Sunday. "His coloring is better, and his body temperature is normal."

She said a brain scan Thursday showed no change from the previous day, when doctors reported for the first time that the unconscious youngster's body temperature had been stabilized at normal.

A neurosurgeon said Wednesday that chances appear better than ever for a full recovery for the youngster, who was described as "technically dead" with no vital signs after he was plucked from the water.

"I'm quite encouraged," Dr. David McLone, chief of neurosurgery at Children's Meetings scheduled for information on international study

The application deadline for students interested in studying overseas through the International Student Exchange Program has been set for Feb. 1.

Students who wish to be considered for placement during the 1984-85 academic year should attend a meeting at 4 p.m. on Jan. 23 at International Services, 910 S. Forest St. The meeting will cover basic information about the program and application procedures.

Requirements for participants in ISEP are a 3.25 GPA, maturity and appropriate foreign language skills. Students may enroll in one of 53 institutions worldwide.

Institutions in Belgium, France, Kenya, Malta, Finland and Canada are encouraging more applications from American students.

Through the ISEP, students can study in other countries for little more than the cost of a year at SIU-C.

An information session for students interested in working in another country over the summer will be held at 11 a.m. on Feb. 8 at International Services.

Memorial Hospital, told reporters. "The preliminary reading looks awfully good. If there was profound brain damage, it would show up in this preliminary EEG (electroencephalogram)."

A final assessment on whether the boy escapes brain damage may take months, he said. But doctors may get another hint when Jimmy regains consciousness from a coma he was put in to control the pressure inside his skull.

Meanwhile, he was still listed in critical condition and was sedated and breathing on a respirator in intensive care, hospital officials said.

WOMEN. YOU'RE EQUAL IN THE AIR FORCE.

Women start out on the same footing as men in Air Force ROTC. Women wear the same insignia and hold the same cadet positions in AFROTC. ... they do later on as Air Force officers.

And the same AFROTC scholarship can be yours as a woman. If you qualify, you can have your tuition, book costs and lab fees paid by the Air Force, and receive $100 a month for other expenses. It helps free you to concentrate on your education. And that's important.

As an Air Force officer, you'll be expected to use your training and education, and be a leader managing people and complex systems. You'll be handed executive responsibility starting with your first assignment.

It's a great way to be equal, and a great way to serve your country. Check into the AFROTC program at your campus. Be sure to ask about AFROTC scholarships — you may be helping yourself earn an exciting new lifestyle.

Program takes SIU-C to GIs

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

Military personnel make up the bulk of the 2,651 students pursuing degrees as part of SIU-C's off-campus programs. But recent changes in the way these students pay for their education might cause an enrollment drop in the next few years, according to Ray Bittle, professor of occupational education.

Under the GI Bill of Rights, 90 percent or more of all educational expenses were paid for by the military, but the number of students enlisting under that program is decreasing. The GI Bill was offered only until about 1978, and those who have enlisted since were eligible for only tuition assistance, a program where the military matches the student's contributions, Bittle said.

The net effect is that military personnel pay for more of their college expenses with tuition assistance than with the GI Bill. Bittle said that while there are still more students paying college expenses with the GI Bill than with tuition assistance, in a few years the percentages will be reversed, which could result in an enrollment drop.

There are 824 students enrolled in occupational education programs at military bases throughout the country.

As part of SIU-C's Capstone Program, students can earn baccalaureate degrees in technical fields. To be admitted to the special program, students must have an associate degree or the equivalent in technical instruction. They are then trained to teach others in the field their knowledge in courses taught by SIU-C instructors at the military bases.

Military personnel must have been on active duty for five years and have achieved the rank of E-5, the equivalent of a staff sergeant in the Army, to be accepted in the program, Bittle said.

Bittle initiated the first of the off-campus programs in 1973, with a class of 34 students at Scott Air Force Base. The idea grew to include the 10 bases in the Military Aircraft Command and then to 30 other bases across the country. The College of Engineering and Technology and the School of Technical Careers also introduced degree programs for military personnel.

Last fall 732 military students were enrolled in the individualized baccalaureate degree programs offered through STC, and 515 were enrolled in Industrial Technology through the College of Engineering, according to Admissions and Records.

Military students can earn a degree from SIU-C without having been to Carbondale, but they must meet all University, departmental, and degree requirements the same as any other student, Bittle said.

Birthright to hold open house

By Mike Pennock
Staff Writer

Birthright of Carbondale will hold an open house from 6 to 8 p.m. Saturday to celebrate its fourth year of providing services to women, according to director Joan Davis.

"Our total effort is helping pregnant women find positive alternatives to abortion, but our purpose is not pro-life. We just help whoever comes to us," Davis said. Birthright deals with direct services and puts "caring and friendship first," she said.

Birthright helps with everything from pregnancy tests and support in deciding whether or not to keep the baby to providing maternity clothes and supplying transportation and financial assistance for visits to the doctor, Davis said. All assistance is free. Even after the baby is born, Birthright helps mothers find jobs, if necessary and provides any other help it can offer.

All information about the mother is kept confidential by the volunteer staff, and the financial support for Birthright is all from local donations.

Birthright of Carbondale, which offers services within a 35-mile radius of the city, receives about 900 client calls a year and gives 45 to 50 pregnancy tests a month, Davis said. The organization has recently moved to larger facilities at 215 W. Main St.

Birthright is a national organization which was begun 15 years ago.

Details of robbery attempt still uncertain

ALTON (AP) — A sting operation was used to foil an Illinois bank robbery attempt last year, but it's still uncertain who was the stinger and who was the stinger.

Joachim Giger, 29, of Belleville, who is scheduled to go to trial on an attempted bank robbery charge Jan. 30, says he was an informer for the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation and was only pretending to go along with the plot to trap his crooked partner.

The partner, Gilbert Raul Wilson, 23, says that he was an undercover man for the FBI and was only pretending, too. Federal officials admit that the getaway car and inoperable weapons to be used in the robbery were supplied by the FBI.

Giger and Wilson were arrested Oct. 25 as they were sitting in a parked car a block from the Bank of St. Libory in St. Clair County. Wilson was driving the car provided him by the FBI, officials said.

Giger was indicted in the case and Wilson was not.

Giger's attorney, William Billeaud, a former FBI agent, is trying to get his client off by what could be considered a plea for special circumstances.

Police arrest 23 minors in local taverns

Carbondale police reported Thursday that 23 underage drinkers were arrested in Carbondale bars in the last two days.

Police spokesman Art Wright said that the arrests were not the result of a special program to control underage drinking in Carbondale, or a first-of-the-semester "scare tactic," but were routine police work.

"We're not out to get anyone," Wright said. "The foot patrols check IDs about twice a week on a regular basis."

Wright said that the police decide at random which nights to patrol the bars.

"We're not on a Tuesday and Thursday schedule," he said.

Fifteen people were arrested at T.J.'s Watering Hole, four at the American Tap, two at Gatsby's and two at the Blue Flambe.

The penalty for underage drinking is a fine, decided by a judge, of $25 to $200. Wright said the average fine is $100.

He said the number of arrests were unusual, but that he did not know of a contributing factor.

"They just happened to be there at the wrong time," he said.

Woman's death declared suicide

Jackson County Coroner Don Ragsdale has ruled that the death of Aletta Lynette Krouse, 36, of 820 W. Mill, was a suicide.

Police said Krouse jumped from her eighth-story balcony at 6:57 a.m. Saturday.

Ragsdale said that the Jackson County Community Mental Health Center had been working with Krouse.

Women gymnasts set for opener

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

Women's gymnastics Coach Herb Vogel has his Saluki squad performing this season just how he wanted them to perform at the end of last season.

Vogel's 10-women squad opens its season Saturday in the Mizzou Quad against national powers Missouri and Georgia and little-known Winona (Minn.) State with basically the same cast it had last year.

Injuries last year cut into Vogel's lineup that included six freshmen. Jackie Ahr, one of the six freshmen on last year's 12-10 squad, did not return to school this season because of family problems.

Vogel, who owns a 20-year 213-51 dual meet mark at SIU-C, said because he had to reach deep into his lineup, the squad "literally had to eat 7.7 scores. If we got 8.2s, we were very happy.

This year five sophomores make up the bulk of the lineup, but the squad will be led in talent by senior Pam Turner. Called by Vogel the team's "ace," Turner should be the squad's top all-around performer.

Turner's 36.85 all-around mark ranks third on the all-time list at SIU-C. Turner won all-around honors seven times last season, including the Gateway Invitational with a 36.55.

Freshman Michelle Spillman and sophomores Gina Hey and Lori Steele will probably perform all-around, Vogel said. Margaret Calicoff will be in the floor exercise, the vault and the uneven parallel bars, although Vogel said she may perform all-around.

Vogel said the squad's strongest event could be the vault.

"If we vault up to our potential, we can run with anybody," Vogel said. "I mean anybody."

Two injuries have already hurt Vogel's squad this season. Maggie Nidiffer is still coming back from a shoulder injury and Jeanice Nieto injured her rotator cuff.

Still, Scott said she isn't taking either team lightly.

"We're very concerned that we might overlook one of these teams," she said. "We just can't afford any kind of slip-up. I'm still scared to death."

Scott's said her major worry is that both teams try to play up-tempo basketball. Both teams run and use pressure defenses. The Salukis, the Gateway's best defensive team, usually walk the ball up the court and rely on a patient motion offense.

"We'll have to control the tempo," said Scott.

Bradley's major problem is size. Coach Angela Beck's team gets crushed on the boards and tries to make up for it by playing aggressive defense. "Try" is the key word there -- Beck says the young Braves are still in a state of turmoil. Guard Judy Burns averages 16.8 points per game.

Western Illinois tries to run too, although the Westerwinds have struggled with that too.

Hartzog's squad to face Nebraska

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

Just how much the cold weather has affected the men's indoor track team will be known Saturday after it takes on a talented Nebraska team in Lincoln, Neb., at 1:30 p.m.

Saluki Coach Lew Hartzog said his squad has a chance to be the "best in the history of SIU-C," while boasting a number of All-Americans plus a wealth of other talent.

SIU-C's mile relay team of Parry Duncan, Tony Adams, Elvis Forde and Mike Franks is capable of winning the NCAA championship, Hartzog said. Franks was ranked third in the nation in the 400-yard dash by Track and Field News.

Hartzog's squad, though, has been faced with poor weather conditions, limiting its ability to condition themselves for the season's first indoor meet.

Because of the lack of an indoor training facility at SIU-C, Hartzog said his squad will have to work hard in order to defeat the Cornhuskers. Nebraska has been able to practice longer than SIU-C and also has the advantage of training in one of the nation's better indoor facilities.

"The only thing that scares me," Hartzog said, "is that Nebraska has been working out for three weeks. We've had four days of regular work. I'm nervous about the meet. It should be very close."

As has been the trend so far, the Salukis had a poor week of training. On Monday and Tuesday they trained on the track at McAndrew Stadium in what Hartzog said were "sluggish" conditions. Wednesday's cold temperatures and snow made it impossible for the team to practice outside.

"There's just nowhere to put our feet on the ground," Hartzog said. "That's our problem."

Despite the poor conditions for training, Hartzog said he is optimistic about the meet and would like to get his team off on the right foot. Forde did not practice last week because he was suffering from bronchitis, but he has gotten better. Sprinter Adams has been "running well," Hartzog said. "It wasn't a very good week to work out," Hartzog said, "but that will happen more this winter."

Hartzog, in his 24th and final year at the helm, said he is a believer in hard work to mold great track teams. His record in the past has given no indication that his philosophy has not paid off.

Senior captain Joe Leo, from Elmhurst, specializes on the horse and sophomore Mike Tasney, from Wilmette, is a ring man. Dunn said the rest of the team is working hard for starting spots. Since Dunn became Iowa's coach, he's led the Hawkeyes to an 11th place NCAA finish in 1982 and 12th place last season.

"We're working to get into the top 10 this year," Dunn said. "That's our goal."

The Salukis will keep the same nine-man lineup they used against Ohio State last week. The senior Levy will be at all-around, while seniors Kevin Mazeika, Murph Melton and Lawrence Williamson, junior Greg Upperman, sophomores Brendan Price and David Lutterman and freshman Mark Ulmer will be in two to four events. Voss will be on the horse.

"We're going to use the same men in the lineup," Meade said.

the meet will not be so clear cut.

The Salukis have a one-second advantage in the medley relay events but the advantage switches to the Cornhuskers in the freestyle relays. In the remaining nine events, the top four swimmers are one to two seconds apart.

One event that will be close, Steele said, is the 200 breaststroke. Nebraska's Tim Brinner, an NCAA qualifier last season, nipped SIU-C's Larry Woolley by one second in the event at the 5-S meet. Woolley, though, beat Brinner by the same deficit last weekend at the Midwinter Invitational.

A few of Nebraska's "big guns" that Steele said he expects some firepower from are Kevin Weires, David Hecker and Mike Edmondson.

Weires, a freestyle specialist, broke the pool record in the 200 free during last year's dual meet. The record was formerly held by Auburn's Randy Gains, the fastest 200 freestyler in the nation, Steele said.

Hecker, a backstroke and freestyle swimmer, was an NCAA qualifier in both strokes last season.

Edmondson, a freshman from St. Charles, Ill., is a "fine sprinter and butterflyer," Steele said. Steele worked hard to recruit Edmondson last season, but lost him to the Nebraska program.

The diving competition will feature a showdown between two Olympic hopefuls, Cornhusker Reynoldo Castro and Saluki Nigel Stanton.

Last year's Big Eight Champion on the one-meter board and two-time NCAA semifinalist, Castro is almost assured a spot on the Dominican Republic Olympic team, Golden said.

Stanton has a high probability of making the Great Britain Olympic team.

In the 5-S meet, Castro was second on the one-meter board and Stanton was third. On the three-meter board, Stanton took top honors while Castro placed third.

"The two (Castro and Stanton) are so closely matched," Golden said, "it's very difficult to predict what will happen."

Steele said a big factor in the meet will be the home pool advantage that the Salukis will enjoy.

"A meet like this can be affected by a big crowd," Steele said.

Saluki gymnast John Levy will receive tough around honors when the two squads meet Friday competition from Iowa's Dar Bachman for top all night at the Arena.

Men gymnasts entertain Iowa

In tournament play last fall, the Saluki men gymnasts outperformed the Iowa Hawkeyes in both the Big 8 and the Windy City Invitationals. But Friday will be the real test as SIU-C, 0-1, and Iowa, 0-1, will go head-to-head at the Arena at 7:30 p.m.

The Salukis lost their opening dual meet to Ohio State Friday, 280.80 to 274.35. The Salukis scored 270.30 in their fourth place effort at the Windy City Invitational on Nov. 5.

In a losing effort against Minnesota last week, the Hawkeyes scored 274.80 points. The Hawkeyes scored 268.10 in their fifth place finish at the WCI.

"Iowa's been behind all the way," Saluki Coach Bill Meade said. "This meet ought to be a real barnburner."

It's been a barnburner for both teams since last year's NCAA Championship tournament. The Salukis placed ninth in the nation while the Hawkeyes placed 12th. But, fourth-year Iowa Coach Tom Dunn has different thoughts about this year's squad.

"We have the strongest team we've ever had," Dunn said. "We're going to give the Salukis a run for their money this Friday."

Dunn said he is going to bring 12 gymnasts to the meet, even though he can only use nine.

"We're looking ahead to Saturday's meet with Illinois," Dunn said. "I'm still trying to put together a nine-man team."

But most of that team is already set. Leading the all-arounders for Iowa is sophomore Dan Bachman. He scored a 55.30 at Minnesota last week and holds Iowa's school record on the pommel horse with a 9.65 mark. That's a far cry from Saluki Herb Voss' scores. He averages a 9.75 on the horse. Bachman and Saluki all-arounder John Levy (55.95 against Ohio State) should provide a good battle for first place in the all-around.

The Hawkeyes also feature sophomore Stu Breitenstein and seniors Aron BreMiller and Kyle Shanton as all-arounders. BreMiller holds the Iowa school record on the rings with a 9.65

Saluki guard Ann Kattreh (left) may be replaced by senior Eleanor Carr in the starting lineup on SIU-C's road trip.

Carr may receive start during Saluki road trip

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

Just when Eleanor Carr was starting to like the idea of coming off the bench, she may be called upon to start. SIU-C women's basketball Coach Cindy Scott said Carr may replace freshman Ann Kattreh when the Salukis travel to Bradley and Western Illinois this weekend.

"She's (Carr) played very well," said Scott. "The only thing we're concerned with is that we like her off the bench. She adds spark off the bench and we don't want to lose that."

Carr, seventh on the team in minutes played, is averaging just 2.4 points per game, but her defense and passing have shaken up the sometimes inconsistent Salukis. In SIU-C's pivotal 64-49 win over Drake, Carr inspired a 10-2 spurge that put the Salukis in command. She had five assists, four rebounds and four points.

Carr had not like her substitute role last year (she had started in junior college), but after the Drake game she said she had accepted it this season. "I love the role I play," she said. "It's a fun role."

Carr said she had "seen the writing on the wall" early in practice, especially with the arrival of Kattreh, a 5-11 guard-forward who is an outstanding all-around athlete and an accurate shooter from outside. But although Kattreh has shown flashes of ability while earning a starting role, she is shooting just 34 percent from the floor and is averaging 5.3 points and 3.3 rebounds.

The Salukis' road trip will bring the squad to Bradley and Western Illinois, two of the worst teams in the Gateway Conference. The Salukis play Bradley 7:30 p.m. Friday and Western Illinois 7 p.m. Saturday.

SIU-C still leads the Gateway with a 4-0 record, while Bradley is 0-3, 3-9 overall, and Western Illinois is 1-3, 4-8.

Salukis win in OT

By Daryl Van Schoouwen

The men's basketball team reeled off 14 straight points in overtime, lifting SIU-C to a 71-58 victory over Bradley Thursday night in Peoria.

The win snapped a 17-game road losing streak for SIU-C and broke Bradley's 12-game home winning streak.

Nate Bufford led SIU-C with 20 points, 12 in the second half and eight in overtime. Voice Winters, Bradley's scoring machine, was held scoreless during a 10 minute stretch, including the final six and a half minutes of regulation.

With the score tied 50-50 with 38 seconds left in regulation, Saluki center Kenny Perry missed two free throws. Winters, guarded closely by Chris George, missed what could have been the winning basket for Bradley in the game's final seconds of regulation.

Both teams failed to score in the final 4:42 of regulation.

SIU-C's starting lineup of Perry, George, Cleveland Bibbens, Nate Bufford and Bernard Campbell played virtually the entire game. The Salukis were without starting point guard Roy Birch and Pie Walker, both suffering from injuries.

The Salukis stayed close in the first half, falling behind by no more than five points for a brief period with 5:40 left before closing the gap to 26-24 at halftime.

The Salukis pulled ahead 43-41 with 9:35 left in the game when Campbell made a layup and Bufford made two free throws, awarded to SIU-C for a technical foul on Bradley Coach Dick Versace. SIU-C never trailed from that point.

Super Bowl guessing begins

Super Bowl XVIII may be a different story from the previous XXVII Super Bowls. Anyone who has a mind knows that the Washington Redskins and the Los Angeles Raiders are in it and it is going to be one major battle. The big question is "Who's going to win?" Your guess is as good as mine.

One thing is for sure, though. It is going to be one great football game! The Redskins are tough, but the Raiders are rough. I'm talking about the two best football teams in the NFL, going head-to-head on Sunday in Tampa, Fla.

Who's going to win? Well, let me try to figure it out. I'll do this "Jimmy the Greek" style. He puts everything into categories, from offense to defense to kicking to punting and sometimes even coaching. He checks off which team is better in each category and then adds up the checks and sees which team has more. Then he concludes with his prediction.

I can see Atari coming out with a "Jimmy the Greek" computer program one day.

Let me look at the offense. First, I'll compare Joe Theismann to Jim Plunkett. I have to go with Joe. He has picked apart more defenses this season than Reagan has cut social programs. Plunkett has a tendency to choke, but then again he's one of two quarterbacks in the NFL who can throw 36 interceptions in one game and still win. Kenny "the Snake" Stabler does it too, but he's an ex-Raider so that explains it. The check still goes to Joe.

From the

I'll compare John Riggins to Marcus Allen. This is a tough one because Riggins is a fullback and Allen is a tailback. Riggins hammers his way for five yards whereas Allen slithers his way for the same five. The thing that counts is that they both have the ability to run for 100 yards in a game. Both are also good receivers out of the backfield and they know exactly where the first down marker and the goal line are. Neither team gets a check here.

A Plunkett-pass to tight end Todd Christensen is as good a combination as vodka and orange juice. However, Plunkett has trouble finding his other receivers. Cliff Branch can get down the field pretty fast, but I don't think Plunkett can see that far. Theismann on the other hand hits all of his receivers — and accurately — especially Art Monk and Charlie Brown. Big check to the Redskins.

If you looked up the word punter in the dictionary, there'd be a picture of Ray Guy. He is great and the Raiders most definitely have an edge with him. Big check to the Raiders.

The Redskins' Mark Mosely and the Raiders' Chris Baner are of equal potential. They can both kick field goals of 40-plus yards, but since Mosely missed four field goals against the 49ers two weeks ago and blew everyone's chance to beat the bookies (they gave the 49ers 10 points), I'm not going to give a check to any team here.

Defense, defense, defense. The Raiders gave up 335 points over the regular season whereas the Skins gave up 335. Dave Butz of the Skins is the only reason Jim Brown won't come out of retirement. Butz is a bruiser, but the Raiders' Ted Hendricks is a crusher. If the two met in a wrestling match, it would probably make a great showing for Channel 23. Whatever, the Raiders are known for their "Big D" so they get the big check here.

That leaves me with two checks and a tie for each team. Jimmy, what do I do now?

Men cagers to host Shockers in rematch

By Daryl Van Schoouwen
Staff Writer

Saturday's Saluki-Wichita State men's basketball game, set for 2:35 p.m. at the Arena, represents a rematch for SIU-C in two ways.

First, it gives SIU-C a crack at the Shockers on its home court after WSU shot down the Salukis 73-63 last Saturday in Wichita. And it gives 6-11 center Kenny Perry another chance at 6-10 Shocker center Zarko Durisic.

Last Saturday, Durisic got the best of Perry with 14 points and nine rebounds. Perry collected 11 points and five rebounds.

Perry, however, played just 20 minutes because of foul trouble. After he fouled out of the game with 5:34 left, Durisic tallied six more points.

It would appear that Perry will have to log more floor time Saturday if the Salukis are to have a chance against the Shockers. He led SIU-C in Missouri Valley scoring and rebounding going into Thursday's game at Bradley with 18 points and 6.5 rebounds per game.

Durisic is just one of the problems Perry and the Salukis will have to solve Saturday. Xavier McDaniel, the Shockers' 6-7 forward who led the nation in rebounding last year as a sophomore, averaged 21 points and 12.5 rebounds through WSU's first four Valley games. He had 19 points and 17 rebounds against SIU-C Saturday.

After a sluggish pre-season, 6-4 Aubrey Sherrod is cranking it up at guard for WSU. He is the key link in the Shockers' explosive fast-break offense and is averaging 17.8 points a game.

Wichita State's other probable starters are Durisic, averaging 13.8 points and 12.5 rebounds in the MVC, 6-7 freshman Gus Santos, 5.7 points, and guard Gary Cundiff, 3.0 points per game.

Wichita State's key substitute players are 6-6 Karl Papke and 5-11 freshman guard Mike Arline.

The early favorites to repeat as MVC champions in 1984, the Shockers appear to be rebounding from a shaky 5-3 preseason and a 0-2 start in the Valley. After losing at Bradley and Illinois State, three WSU players quit the team, including starters Bernard Jackson and Gilbert Wilburn.

On the surface, the loss of those players appears to have had little effect on WSU. The Shockers have since defeated Drake and SIU-C at home before taking on Indiana State in Terre Haute Thursday night.

The NCAA Division I-AA champion SIU-C football team will be honored in a ceremony preceding Saturday's Saluki-Wichita State basketball game at the Arena.

The football team will be honored at 2:25 p.m., 10 minutes before the start of the game.

In addition, all SIU-C students will be admitted to the game free of charge. Men's Athletic Director Lew Hartzog has invited all SIU-C students to be guests of the athletic department in observance of the special occasion.

The Salukis should be happy to be back at the Arena, where they are 8-0.

Saluki men set for swim war

By Scott Rich
Staff Writer

When the gun sounds signaling the start of the men's swimming meet between SIU-C and Nebraska Friday, an all-out war will issue.

Saluki Coach Bob Steele said the battle may not be decided until the final event of the evening.

The meet, scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Recreation Center Pool, is a showdown between two closely matched teams.

"Based on the performances to date, the outcome could rely on one event or one swim in an event," Steele said. "Two to five points will probably separate the winners from the losers and it could go down to the last relay. Everything will be nip 'n' tuck."

The Salukis, 4-1 in dual meets this season, hold a 12-1 advantage in the 13-year dual meet competition against the Cornhuskers. SIU-C finished one notch above Nebraska while winning the 5-S meet in December.

"Most of the events in the meet are a tossup," Steele said, "but we have the distance events wrapped up. They're my money in the bank."

The bankroll Steele has is the 1,650, 1,000 and 500 freestyle events. His primary depositors are Andrez Grillhammar and Gary Brinkman. The pair have combined to post an undefeated record in the distance events this season, winning 14 events for a total of 112 points.

"They (Grillhammar and Brinkman) have blown away everybody this season," Steele said. "When one of them finishes first the other is a close second. They're very exciting to watch."

Steele said the other events in See SWIMMING, Page 18
