FCC delays access charge

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Communications Commission on Thursday delayed indefinitely a long-distance charge requirement that consumers pay more of their phone company's expenses with a $2-a-month access fee.

By delaying the introduction of access fees, FCC officials acknowledged they had overestimated the impact of canceling most, if not all, of a prior cut in interstate long-distance rates. The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and several other long-distance carriers had objected to the FCC's decision.

By delaying the payment of "access fees," phone companies can replace payments now made solely by long-distance callers, had been scheduled to take effect in April. Citing congressional concerns, the FCC said it had decided to take this step to conduct further studies to determine whether the fees would force customers to give up their phone service.

The charges are called access fees because they are tied to the ability of customers to "access" their local phone service. Local phone rates now are held down for all customers because they spend less for local service than for long-distance calls.

The FCC plans to eliminate that "contribution," or subsidy, paid by long-distance carriers to encourage competition and discourage large corporations from building their own privately owned phone systems.

FCC Chairman John Fowler said he still believes access charges are needed to stop the building of "bypass networks" by big companies. The subsidy from long-distance access fees until spring or summer of 1985.

Ogbondah said that money was earned to create the number of female students at SIUC, but the SIUC Women's Caucus is trying to find ways to change that.

The status of women on campus has not seen dramatic changes since steps have been taken to increase the number of females at SIUC, said the tentative ruling.

The new government of Maj. Gen. Mohammed Buhari has cited corruption and economic mismanagement as the principal reason for its coup, which occurred only five months after Shagari had been elected to his second four-year term as head of the world's fourth-largest democracy.

Ogbondah also believes the Shagari administration to have been corrupt. He said that officials of the government had been trading for their own personal gain with money that was meant to pay the school and was "at the disposal of the Nigerian Students' Academic Union." He also believes the Shagari administration to have had a mismanagement of its resources.

Nigerians have been able to call home, although Ogbondah is happy with the regime, but added that it is still not the best one in this situation. Many others are in the same shoes abroad all funds owed to them. The mail and telephone systems are still working, he said. That Nigerian students at SIUC have been released from their obligations to pay, he said, is because they have been able to call home, too.

Although Ogbondah is happy with the regime, he believes the democratic process is the best way for the leaders of a nation, he said.

The status of women on campus has not seen dramatic changes since steps have been taken to increase the number of females at SIUC, but the SIUC Women's Caucus is trying to find ways to change that.

The percentage of undergraduate women enrolled at SIUC has declined in the past three years, while the number of female graduate student population has increased by more than 1 percent. Since 1975, the percentage of females at SIUC has increased from 18.58 percent to 21.81 in fall, 1983. The increase in women faculty has also been slight, the report shows.

The women's caucus was hoping for more significant changes, but realized that the meeting will be seeking plans of action to change the unbalanced situation.

In addition to the male-female ratio, there is still salary imbalances between male and female faculty members, the caucus tries to improve status of women. The problem has been implemented.

When equally matched in qualifications, experience and published articles, women in the field of science are paid $2,000 to $3,000 less than their male counterparts, said Ogondah.

"We are very happy about the change in government," said Chinedu Ezell, president of the Nigerian Student Association. "Although we do not wish to change the system, as long as it is democratically run, we will feel we are better off under the Shagari administration," he said.

Ogbondah said that money was earned to create the number of female students at SIUC, but the SIUC Women's Caucus is trying to find ways to change that.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Responding to an appeal from Nobel prize-winner Lech Walesa, leader of Poland's banned Solidarity trade union, President Ronald Reagan has lifted more of the sanctions he imposed last year even though the military government has not met all his conditions for removing so, effecting a compromise, said Thursday.

Reagan told the Polish government airlines LOT to resume loading charter flights in the United States and Polish fishermen to fish in U.S. waters again. Some other U.S. sanctions imposed after Polish authorities declared martial law in 1981 remain in effect.

State Department spokesman Alan Romberg said an appeal last month by Walesa, leader of Poland's banned Solidarity trade union, weighed heavily in the decision. He said the money would be used as a fund to pay medical expenses for athletes who are injured in the future. The money would be kept for a similar purpose.

Reagan said the future of the account will be decided by the foundation's executive committee. The money will be spent.

Holthaus said the foundation's policy, which held that the remaining money would not be used as a fund to pay medical expenses for athletes who are injured in the future.

Romberg said Poland sought the return of the money in a somewhat different context for the foundation's executive committee within the next 30 days, probably through a telephone conference call rather than a scheduled meeting.

Washington (AP) — An outbreak of botulism food poisoning affecting 28 people in Peoria, Ill., the third-largest U.S. outbreak of the century — has been blamed on sauteed onions served in a restaurant.

The national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday that all 28 patients who became ill between Oct. 15 and Oct. 21 had eaten at the same restaurant in a three-day period, and all but four specifically recalled eating a patty melt, a cheeseburger on rye with sauteed onions.

It is the first time sauteed onions have been implicated in an outbreak of botulism, the federal health agency said.

As is its policy, the Atlanta-based CDC did not identify the restaurant involved. Health authorities in Peoria have identified it as the Skewer Inn, which has since reopened.

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz, acknowledging he made no headway in reopening nuclear arms talks with the Soviets, vowed Thursday the United States would maintain its "willpower and self-confidence" while seeking new opportunities for negotiation.

Shultz said he had "nothing positive to report" after his five-hour meeting in Stockholm on Wednesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on breaking the deadlock in the negotiations.

But he also indicated the Soviets may be preparing to reopen talks limiting conventional forces in Europe. The talks, suspended a month ago, "are in a somewhat different category for the Soviets.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court on Thursday rejected a bid by cerebral palsy victim Elizabeth Bouvia for the right to die while receiving pain-killing and hygienic care in a Riverside hospital.

In a brief order, with no comment, the entire court denied Bouvia for the right to starve herself to death while receiving pain-killing and personal care to ease the pain of dying.

The increase in female faculty members has not been as encouraging as the increase in women since most of the increases were reflected in the lower status positions.

The level at which female faculty members were not taken into consideration with declining enrollment and employment among women were discussed. Joan Paratore, assistant to the vice president for Student Affairs, said the party school image and concerns about campus safety have deterred women from enrolling.

Pam Brandt, a personnel officer for Personnel Services, cited several more reasons for the low rate of women at the University, the large number of lower-level jobs and the slow progress toward solving these problems.

The rural location of Southern Illinois simply does not attract young females and minorities to the area, she said. The inability of the University to provide assurance for employment of spouses, the lack of employment opportunities outside the University, the expense of relocating and the fact that women are 20 years behind in gaining experience and qualifications for higher-level positions are among the key reasons Brandt identified.

The same reasoning is to be considered with the overall decline in female enrollment over the same period time.

THE SIU FOUNDATION, which maintains the Mark Hemphill Scholarship Fund, has received a donation that appears to be remarkable clumsiness in handling its accounts.

Foundation Director Stan McNally said Thursday that the $9,577 donation was mailed to him, with a request to pay Hemphill medical bills. Hemphill died in 1982 of causes unrelated to the accident.

The Foundation contends that since the fund was intended for Hemphill's medical expenses, not for his personally, Hemphill's surviving brother, Mark, should be using the account to cover medical expenses of SUI-C athletes who might be injured in the future.

BRINGING HEMPHILL's survivors the money ignores the fact that it was the sight of Hemphill in the same field he used to play football on, that inspired many to make their donations. Of the $200,000 people who filled McKendree Stadium on Mark Hemphill Day in 1980 came to give support to him. We doubt that they ever intended for their gifts to go anywhere but to Hemphill.

The Foundation says that a stipulation in the gift donation form spelled out that the money would go for medical bills, but they refuse to release a copy of the form. We doubt that its wording is so broad as to render that any one would object to, giving the money to the Hemphill's.
Fans of The Police will get a chance to see the band in concert at the SIU-C Arena on Feb. 17 before the trio completes its tour and takes a year off.

The group, which boasts two gold and three platinum albums, is sure to play a variety of its hits, which include "Roxanne," "Can't Stand Losing You," "Message in a Bottle," "Don't Stand So Close To Me," "De Do Da De Da Da Da Da," "Every Little Thing She Does Is Magic," "Every Breath You Take" and "King of Pain."

Opening for the group will be Re-Flex, whose hit single "The Politics of Dancing" is No. 54 on the national hit record chart. Tickets for the concert are $15.50 and go on sale from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesday at the Arena south lobby box office. Line reservation cards will be randomly distributed from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Monday at the south lobby box office. There will be a 10 ticket limit and $65 check limit. Remaining tickets can be purchased Wednesday at arena ticket outlets or by calling 633-2541.

N.Y. troupe will present classic ballet

A full-length classical ballet version of "The Sleeping Beauty" will be presented at 8 p.m. on Jan. 27 as part of Shyrock Auditorium's Celebrity Series.

The ballet, directed by George Cope, will be performed by New York City's Festival Dance Theatre and is based on the fairy tale by Charles Perrault.

Daugherty, 27, has become one of the most internationally sought artists in the ballet world through his work in artistic directing, producing and musical directing.

The prima ballerina of the performance will be Eleanor D’Antuono, also the artistic director of "The Sleeping Beauty," has danced the lead roles in "Swan Lake," "Coppelia" and "La Sylphide."

The Celebrity Series is supported in part by the Illinois Arts Council.

Tickets for the performance are $10 and $5 and are available at the Shyrock Auditorium box office 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. More information is available at 433-3377.

Guitarist to play at Shyrock

Though he is presently best known for his guitar work on David Bowie's "Let's Dance," LP, Vaughan is quickly gaining recognition on his own as a power-hitting blues guitarist in the tradition of Jimi Hendrix.

Joe Rhodes wrote in Rolling Stone, "He appears to be on the verge of becoming America's newest guitar hero."

Don Warner of the Los Angeles Times wrote, "Vaughan is flashy - playing behind his back or behind his head, solos one-handed or with his left hand over the fretboard - and it's his ability to make the most predictable musical form, the blues, unpredictable that marks him as a true talent."

Tickets are $9 and $10 and go on sale at 7 a.m. Monday in the Student Center.

All sales $1.50 to $3.50 per seat. Group rates are available by calling 338-6633.
Cash awards given for best old anecdotes

Senior citizens who have experienced or witnessed dramatic events while living in Southern Illinois can win cash prizes by submitting an essay to the "Memories of Southern Illinois" writing contest, sponsored by the Community and Educational Arts Association of Carbondale.

The essay might describe:
- Meeting a famous personality
- Getting by in hard times
- Local excitement
- Farm life
- Local excitement
- Coping with a natural disaster or any other memorable even that happened to or was witnessed by the writer.

Entries will be judged in several local contests and then over the Southern Illinois region on the basis of their human interest, historical relevance, coherence, clarity, sharpness, narrative quality and accuracy.

The contest is open to all present residents of Southern Illinois who are living in the counties south of U.S. 70, including those counties that straddle U.S. 70.

The essay contest is funded in part by a grant from the Illinois Humanities Council and the National Endowment for the Humanities. More information can be obtained by calling Bob Knittel or Jean Shisler at 457-8264.

Campaign office opening for Glenn

The Carbondale campaign headquarters for Democratic presidential candidate John Glenn will open at the Hunter Building, 300 E. Main St., at 3:30 p.m. Friday.

David Glenn, the former astronaut's son, will open the headquarters and hold a press conference. The younger Glenn, 37, is an anesthesiologist at Marshall Hall Hospital in San Francisco. He will also meet with SIU-C President A. Scott Somm at the opening of the headquarters.

Rape victims’ group to form

By Sheila Rogers
Staff Writer

The Rape Survivor’s Support Group will be a place where women who have been sexually assaulted can discuss their situations in an environment where they won’t feel threatened, according to Mary McAuliffe-Schroeder of the Rape Action Committee.

The group will begin meeting in early February if enough women sign up, and will be led by Sally Prane, graduate assistant in Women’s Services, and Susan Lonborg, a counseling intern with the Counseling Center.

Lonborg said that goal for the support group is to give sexual assault victims hope in a supportive environment and to help the women get their lives together.

The three women agreed that women who have been sexually assaulted need a place to talk with other women who share their feelings.

“Many women feel alone and withdrawn. They try to figure everything out for themselves. The support group will help them out,” said McAuliffe-Schroeder, who will be referring women to the group from the RAC.

Prane said that some women feel ashamed that they have been sexually assaulted. She said that she will focus on building strength for the victims.

“It will give them an opportunity to let out all of the feelings that go along with this,” Prane said.

The three also agreed that it is important for sexual assault victims to know that they are not alone.

“We want them to realize that there are ways to get through this and that it won’t take the rest of their lives,” Prane said.

Taking a self-defense class may not prevent an attack but it may help a woman to be more prepared and feel less vulnerable, McAuliffe-Schroeder said. Lonborg said that self-defense strategies are changing and that self-defense classes not only teach physical defense, but help prepare women psychologically.

The support group will meet from 4 to 6 p.m. Wednesdays in the counseling rooms in Woody Hall.

The group will be limited to eight women, but Prane stressed that no one will be turned away.

If more than eight women are interested, names will be placed on a waiting list and the women will be invited to join if someone drops out of the group. Anyone seeking help will be referred to other counseling centers, Prane said, adding that even if a woman chooses not to join the support group, she should seek some form of counseling.

The group is open to the SIU-C community and if not enough women are interested, it will be opened to the Southern Illinois community.

Prane said that although she recognizes the fact that men can be sexually assaulted, the group is for only women who have been sexually assaulted, excluding incest victims.

Anyone interested in joining the support group should contact Prane at 453-3633, Lonborg at 453-5271 or McAuliffe Schroeder at 52-5294. Prane emphasized that confidentiality will be strictly protected and that women calling need to leave only their first names. When the call is returned, no message regarding the support group will be left.
Aldrin wants base on moon

WASHINGTON (AP) - Buzz Aldrin, who walked on the moon with Neil Armstrong, says his old roommate, President Reagan, has spent "a lot of time" in wanting a space station as its next major goal. Americans, he contends, will look back on the moon and build a permanent base there.

"The solar system's most desirable space station already has been identified," the former astronaut said in an interview. "That's the moon."

Aldrin and several individuals and aerospace groups are trying to drum up support for a lunar base as the White House nears a decision on an expanded national space policy for this century. Some are spreading a letter-writing campaign to President Reagan.

The president may announce the new policy in his State of the Union message Wednesday. Details would follow in his proposed fiscal 1986 budget to be presented Feb. 1.

There is sharp division within the administration on what course Americans should take in space. But there are indications Reagan will strongly endorse an orbiting station, which for years has been the No. 1 priority of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

NASA officials, noting Reagan's recent call for a "grander vision" in space, said he also may support start-up money later in this decade for a scientific station on the moon, perhaps as an embarking point in the 21st century for a manned mission to Mars.

Preliminary 1986 spending projections given this month to GOP congressmen by Budget Director David Stockman show the administration wants to add $2 billion to NASA's budget over the next five years. That's a huge increase for an agency that has seen lean years and wants an about the right figure for space station development.

Reagan wants to "recapture the vision of Apollo" and seeks the best way to do that, said Reagan science adviser George Keyworth.

The president hinted at his direction in a speech last October on NASA's 25th anniversary. He challenged the agency to develop more visionary long-term goals instead of just focusing on winning approval of a permanent space station.

"We're not just concerned about the next logical step in space," Reagan said. "We're planning an entire red, a high road, if you will, that will provide us with the limitless hope and opportunity."

The president has been influenced considerably by Keyworth, who said last September that NASA had not been imaginative enough in its long-range planning. He said the agency should be thinking beyond a space station - on how to use such a platform to advance space science, go to the moon and then on to Mars.

Seminar offered

The School of Technical Careers and the Journal of Spacecraft and Rockets are sponsoring a professional development seminar on publishing from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Jan. 27 in the Mississippi Room of the SIU-C.

The featured speaker will be D. Bar-y Lumsden, professor of higher and adult education at North Texas State University.

Fees for the seminar are $15 or $30. For further information contact Joe Lynch at 536-7751.

A final assessment on whether the boy escapes brain damage may take months, he said. But doctors may get another hint when Jimmy regains consciousness from a coma he was put in to control the pressure inside his skull. Meanwhile, he was still listed in critical condition and was sedated and breathing on a respirator in intensive care, hospital officials said.

Program takes SIU-C to GIs

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

Military personnel make up the bulk of the 2,691 students pursuing degrees at the Carbondale campus of SIU-C's off-campus programs, but recent changes in the way they are accepted into the special program may mean an enrollment drop in the next few years, according to Ray Bittle, professor of occupational education.

Under the GI Bill of Rights, 90 percent or more of all educational expenses were paid for by the military, but the number of students enlisting under that program is decreasing. The GI Bill was offered only until about 1978, and those who have enlisted since then are eligible for only tuition assistance, a program where the military matches the student's contributions, Bittle said.

The net effect is that military personnel pay for more of their college expenses with tuition assistance than with the GI Bill. Bittle said that while there are still more students paying college expenses with the GI Bill than with tuition assistance, in the last few years the percentages will be reversed, which could result in a drop of enrollment.

There are 284 students enrolled in occupational education programs at military bases throughout the country. As part of SIU-C's Capstone Program, students can earn baccalaureate degrees in technical fields. To be admitted to the special program, students must have an associate degree or the equivalent in technical instruction. They are then trained to teach others in the field their knowledge in courses taught by SIU-C instructors at the military bases.

Military personnel must have been on active duty for five years and have achieved the rank of E-5, the equivalent of a staff sergeant in the Army, to be accepted in the program, Bittle said.

Bittle initiated the first of the off-campus programs in 1973, with a class of 34 students at Scott Air Force Base. The idea grew to include the 10 bases in the Military Aircraft Command and then to 26 other bases across the country. The College of Engineering and Technology and the School of Technical Careers also introduced degree programs for military personnel.

Last fall 722 military students were enrolled in the individualized baccalaureate degree programs offered through STC, and 95 were enrolled in the School of Technical Careers through the College of Engineering, according to Admissions and Records.

Military students can earn a degree from SIU-C without having been to Carbondale, but they must meet all University, departmental, and degree requirements the same as any other student, Bittle said.

Police arrest

23 minors in local taverns

Carbondale police reported Thursday that 23 underage drinkers were arrested in Carbondale bars in the last two days.

Police spokesman Art Wright said that the arrests were not the result of a special program to control underage drinking in Carbondale, as are first-of-the-month "scare tactic," but were routine police work.

"We’re just trying to get it under control," Wright said. "We’re trying to get everyone on a regular basis." He said the policy would be reviewed at regular times to patrol the bars.

"We’re not on a Tuesday and Thursday schedule," he said. "We have specific plans to get it under control." He said the average fine is $25 to $100.

Women gymnasts set for opener

Women's gymnastics Coach Herb Vogel has his Saluki squad performing this season just how he wanted them to perform at the end of last season.

Vogel's 10 women squad opens its season Saturday in the Missouri Quad against national powers Missouri and Georgia and little-known Winona, Minn., State with basically the same cast it had last year.

Injuries last year cut into Vogel's lineup that included six freshmen. Jackie Ahr, one of 12-10 freshman, said he had to school this season because of family problems.

Hartzog's squad to face Nebraska

ally David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

Just how much the cold weather has affected the swimming and diving squad is hard to determine. The indoor track team will be known Sept. 20. In the indoor season, the Salukis take on a talented Nebraska team in Lincoln, Neb., at 1:30 p.m.

Mike Brinner, an NCAA qualifier, is a Big Eight Conference champion in the 200 freestyle and 200 medley relay. In the 50 freestyle, he is ranked third in the nation, nipped Nebraska's Tim Donovan by one second in the meet at McAndrew Stadium in the pool record.

Because of the lack of an indoor training facility at SIU-C, Hartzog said his squad will have to work hard in order to defeat the Cornhuskers. Nebraska has been able to practice longer than SIU-C and also has the advantage of training in one of the nation's better indoor facilities.

"The only thing that scares me," Hartzog said, "is that Nebraska has been working out for three weeks. We've had four days of regular work. I'm pretty nervous about the meet. It should be very close."

As has been the trend so far, the Salukis had a poor week of training on Monday and Tuesday they trained on the track at Memorial Stadium. Hartzog said SIU-C's Larry Wooley by one second in the 50 freestyle, though, beat Brinner by the same deficit last weekend at the Midwinter Invitational.

A few of Nebraska's "big guns," Mike Brinner and Mike Edmondson, were a freestyle specialist, broke the pool record in 50.20 free during last year's dual meet. The record was formerly held by Ashburn's Randy Gains, the fastest 50 freestyler in the nation, said Hartzog.

Edmondson, a freshman from St. Charles, Ill., is a "fine swimmer and butterfly," Steele said. Steele worked hard to recruit Edmondson last season, but lost him to the Nebraska program.

The swimming competition will feature a showdown between two Olympic hopefuls, Cornhusker Reynolds Castro and SIU-C's Larry Wooley. Last season, Castro beat Wooley in the 50 freestyle, with Castro placing second on the one-meter board and SIU-C scored a 1-2-3 to almost assured a spot on the Olympic team, Golden said.

Stanton has a high probability of making the U.S. Olympic team. In the 50 meet, Castro was second on the one-meter board and Stanton was second. On the three-meter board, Stanton took top honors while Castro placed third.

The two (Castro and Stanton) are so closely matched," Golden said, "it's very difficult to predict what will happen."

Steele said a big factor in the meet will be the home pool advantage that the Salukis will enjoy. "A meet like this can be affected by a big crowd," Steele said.

Hartzog, in his 24th and final year at the helm, said he is a believer in hard work to mold great track teams. His record in the past has given no indication that his philosophy has not paid off.

Hartzog has defeated the Cornhuskers in backstroke and freestyle swimmer, was an NCAA qualifier last season. Edmondson will be in two to three events. Voss will be on the board. Wooley by one second in the freestyle relay. In the 50 meet, Castro was second on the one-meter board and Stanton was second. On the three-meter board, Stanton took top honors while Castro placed third.

The meet will not be so clear cut. The Salukis have a one-second advantage in the medley relay events but the advantage switches to the Cornhuskers in the remaining nine events, the top four events in the Big Eight Conference. The top four events are due to two seconds apart.

One event that will be close, Steele said, is the 200 freestyler. Randy Gains, a freshman from Glenwood, Iowa, was an All-American last season.

Steele said Wooley's "big factor in the meet will be the home pool advantage that the Salukis will enjoy. "A meet like this can be affected by a big crowd," Steele said.

Saluki gymnast John Levy will receive tough competition from Iowa's Dan Bachman for top all-around honors when the two squads meet Friday night at the Arena.

"Iowa's been behind all the way," Saluki Coach Bill Meade said. "This meet ought to be a real barnburner."

It's been a barnburner for both teams since last year's NCAA Championship tournament. The Salukis placed ninth in the nation while the Hawkeyes placed 12th. But, fourth-year Iowa Coach Tom Dunn has different thoughts about this year's squad.

"We have the strongest team we've ever had," Dunn said. "We're going to give the Salukis a run for their money this Friday." Dunn said he is going to bring 12 gymnasts to the meet, even though he can only use nine.

"We're looking ahead to Saturday's meet with Illinois," Dunn said. "I'm still trying to put together a nine-man team." But most of that team is already set. Leading the all-arounders for Iowa is sophomore Dan Bachman. He scored a 9.90 at Illinois last week and holds Iowa's school record on the pommel horse with a 9.65 mark. That's a far cry from Saluki Herb Voss' scores. He averages a 9.95 on the horse. Bachman and Saluki all-arounder John Levy (9.90 against Ohio State) should provide a good battle for first place in the all-around.

The Hawkeyes also feature sophomore Stu Breitenstein and seniors Aron BreMiller and Kyle Shanton as all-arounders. BreMiller holds the Iowa school record on the rings with a 9.65.

Men gymnasts entertain Iowa

In tournament play last fall, the Saluki men gymnasts outperformed the Iowa Hawkeyes in both the Big 8 and the Windy City Invitational. But Friday will be the real test as SIU-C, 0-1, and Iowa, 0-1, will go head-to-head at the Arena at 7:30 p.m.

The Salukis lost their opening dual meet to Ohio State Friday, 270.30 to 274.35. The Salukis scored 270.30 in their fourth place effort at the Windy City Invitational on Nov. 5.

In a losing effort against Minnesota last week, the Hawkeyes scored 274.80 points. The Hawkeyes scored 380.10 in their fifth place finish at the Windy City Invitational.

Carr may receive start during Saluki road trip

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

Just when Eleanor Carr was starting to like the idea of coming off the bench, she may be called upon to start. SIU-C's women's basketball coach Cindy Scott said Carr may replace freshman Ann Kaitre when the Salukis travel to Bradley and Western Illinois this weekend.

"She (Carr) played very well," said Scott. "The only thing we're concerned with is that we like her off the bench. She adds spark to the bench and we don't want to lose that.

Carr, seventh on the team in minutes played, is averaging just 2.6 points per game, but her defenders say her quickness has shaken up the sometimes inconsiderate Ladye Pivotal 6-6 49-69 win over Drake. Carr inspired a 12-2 platter that put the Salukis in contention. She had five assists, four rebounds and four points.

Carr had not like her sub­stitue role last year; she had started in junior college), but after the Drake game she said she had accepted this season. "I love the role I play," she said. "It's a fun role.

Scott said, "It seems the writing on the wall" early in practice, especially with the arrival of Kaitre, a 5-11 guard-forward who is an outstanding all-around athlete and an ac­ceptable shooter from outside. But although Kaitre has shown flashes of ability while earning a starting role, she is shooting just 33 percent from the floor and is averaging 5.3 points and 3.3 rebounds.

The Salukis' road trip will bring the squad to Bradley and Western Illinois, two of the worst teams in the Gateway Conference. Saluki guard Perry 7:30 p.m. Friday and Western Illinois 7 p.m. Saturday.

SIU-C still leads the Gateway with a 9-0 record, while Bradley is 0-3, 9-0 overall, and Western Illinois is 1-3, 1-8.

Salukis win in OT

The men's basketball team re­eled off 14 straight points in overtime, lifting SIU-C to a 71-58 victory over Bradley Sunday night in Peoria.

The game was a 17-game road losing streak for SIU-C and broke Bradley's 13-game home winning streak.

Nate Bufford led SIU-C with 20 points, all in the second half and eight in overtime. Vose Williams, Bradley's scoring machine, was held scoreless during a 10-minute stretch, including the final six and a half minutes of regulation.

The Salukis were down 53-50 with 46 seconds left in regulation, Saluki center Kerry Perry missed a free throw. Wines guarded closely by Chris George, missed what could have been the winning basket for Bradley in the game's final seconds of regulation.

Both teams failed to score in the final 4:42 of regulation.

SIU-C's starting lineup of Perry, George, Cleveland Bihbee, Nate Bufford and Bernard Campbell played virtually the entire game. The Salukis were without starting point guard Roy Allen and Fred Walker, both suffering from injuries.

The Salukis stayed close in the first half, falling behind by no more than five points for a brief period with 3:40 left before closing the gap to 25-24 at halftime.

The Salukis pulled ahead 43-41 with 3:35 left in the game when Camell籹 made a layup and Bufford made two free throwers, guarded closely by Chris George, missed what could have been the winning basket.

Carr should be happy to be back at the Arena, where they are 8-0.

Super Bowl guessing begins

Super Bowl XVIII may be a different ballgame than the previous XXVII Super Bowls Anyone who has a mind knows that the Washington Redskins and the Los Angeles Raiders are in line for the major battle. The big question is, "Who will win?" Your guess is as good as mine.

One thing is for sure, though. It is going to be one great football game! The Redskins are 10-0, but the Raiders are 10-0, too. I'm talking about the two best football teams in the NFL, going head-to-head in Tampa, Florida.

So, who will win? Well, try me to figure it out. I'll do it "Jimmy the Greek" style. He puts everything into categories, from offense to defense, from bench depth and sometimes even coaching. He knows that Carr is better in each category and then adds up the checks and sees who wins on the final team. Then he concludes with his prediction.

I care if Aari coming out with a "Jimmy the Greek" computer program one day,

In an interview with a reporter, Carr had stated that we like the idea of coming off the bench, she may be getting a longer look this game. She has started in the first two games of the season and still win. Kenny "the Snake" Stabler doesn't do it, too. The A's can do it, except for ex-Raiders who are Carr a fullback and Allen is a tailback. Carr harnesses his way for five yards whereas Allen shies it off the way he can.

The five that Carr is winning in the super bowl are tough, but the Raiders are Carr: a showdow."m between Theismann to Jimmy Plunkett. I think he's out of the backfield and they know exactly where the front line and the goal line are. But Carr has seen enough Plunkett to know that he is a three-year senior, averaging 21 points per game.

"I'll compare John Robbins to Marcus Allen," said Carr. "Both are Carr a two-footed tailback with a good vision for running the backfield. After the Drake game she said, "I think we can win over Bradley." The Salukis stayed close in the first half, falling behind by no more than five points for a brief period with 3:40 left before closing the gap to 25-24 at halftime.

The Salukis pulled ahead 43-41 with 3:35 left in the game when Campbell made a layup and Bufford made two free throwers, guarded closely by Chris George, missed what could have been the winning basket.

Based on the performances to date, the outcome could rely on one event or one person. "Steele said. "Two points for the best points, and it could go down to the last relay. Everybody will be there, too.

The Salukis, 4-1 in dual meets this season, hold a 1-1 advantage in the 13-year dual meet competition against Bradley. The Salukis defeated the Braves one notch above Nebraska while Bradley won the MVC meet in December.

"Most of the events in the meet are a tossup," Steele said, "but we have the distance events, which are very strong, and I'm very happy in the money in the bank."
