Motel developer to ask city for extension of agreement

The developer of the city's downtown hotel-convention center has assured the city that funding has been secured for the project, but has asked for another extension on his development agreement.

Wallace D. Palmer, president of Crystal Development Corp. of Boulder, Colo., has a city manager Bill Dixon to extend the Jan. 31 deadline of their "Amendment to the Preliminary Memorandum of Intent," an agreement that has secured Crystal as the city's developer. Palmer asked the deadline be changed to March 31.

The City Council extended the date Oct. 1986, the original deadline of the agreement to Jan. 31, 1987.

In a status report Palmer said he has secured "full funding for the project with very favorable terms," but

A young boy sits on the floor holding a red chip between his fingers. The sounds of crashing bombs echo throughout the Arena.

The large map of the world, which lay before him, was slowly becoming a sea of red chips. Fifty thousand chips were strewn upon the 35 by 70 foot map, each representing an area that would be destroyed when hit by a nuclear missile.

No land areas remained covered.

"This is the death of the planet," said Medard Gabel, director of Environment Projects, Inc.

Gabel was in the Arena Sunday to present the World Game Workshop, a program designed to let players learn more about the problems facing humanity, such as overpopulation, food shortages, unequal distribution of resources and stockpiling of nuclear weapons.

An estimated 77 people participated in the workshop, which was designed by R. Buckminster Fuller, a world-renowned inventor and philosopher who taught at SUU from 1959 to 1973.

"We were convinced that humanity faced the choice of utopia or oblivion," said Bill Perk, lecturer in Community Development.

"He kept trying to show us that fellow human beings that an alternative path is possible," a 16-year-old Pickup student said.

Cops rough up white protesters

CUMMING, Ga. — While blacks marched peacefully here Saturday, many white counterprotesters found themselves on the losing end of riot batons as officers of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation zealously guarded the town square.

About 1,900 counterprotesters were held behind ranks of club-wielding Georgia National Guardsmen, who maintained a look of detached brutality. It was a town where time stood still, where, for the intolerant, the likes of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and Malcolm X were "uppity niggers who didn't know their place." For the rest, the civil rights movement was something going on somewhere else.

"I've lived here 12 years, and we've never had any problems with the coloreds," one Cummimg resident said.

"Now, a bunch of stupid white trash has to get everything all stirred up. It's idiotic," he said.

He was referring to a march held a week earlier in Cummimg where about 75 demonstrators commemorating King's birthday were pecked with rocks and mud by 400 members of the Ku Klux Klan and its sympathizers.

Hosea Williams, the Atlanta City Councilman who organized the first march, set out to prove Saturday that blacks were not afraid to fight racism, no matter where and no matter how fierce the resistance.

Anti-black demonstrators already were lining the streets of the town square early Saturday morning.

March pits Georgina town against rights movement

CUMMING, Ga. — "Is the clock turning back?"

That was just one of the messages on hundreds of signs carried by some 25,000 civil rights demonstrators who converged on this quiet, all-white hamlet of about 2,500 people Saturday.

For Cummimg, the seat of Forsyth County where no blacks has lived since 1912, it wasn't a matter of turning back the clock. Rather, it was a town where time stood still, where, for the intolerant, the likes of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and Malcolm X were "uppity niggers who didn't know their place." For the rest, the civil rights movement was something going on somewhere else.

Hostages' fates unknown as deadline passes

REIR, Lebanon (UPI) — A Moslem extremist group Sunday took responsibility for kidnapping an American tourist and an Indian who is a legal U.S. resident and stated they will kill them unless West Germany frees a suspected Arab hijacker.

The threat came as Church of England envoy Terry Waite, in Lebanon since Jan. 12 in his latest attempt to win the release of Americans and other Westerners kidnapped in Moslem west Beirut, was not seen in public for five days. In previous missions, Waite had never dropped from sight for more than two days.

The latest victims — among the handful of U.S. citizens left from the once-thriving American community in west Beirut — were kidnapped Saturday by four gunmen disguised as policemen on the campus of Beirut University College.

A caller claiming to represent the Organization of the Oppressed on Earth told the Christian radio station Voice of Lebanon that one of the new hostages would be killed if West Germany does not release Mohammad Ali Hamade, wanted in the United States on charges stemming from the 1985 hijacking of a TWA jet.

"We have asked West Germany that it should not deal with the American administration concerning the extradition of Mohammad Ali Hamade. ... If they don't release him after midnight (5 p.m. EST), I assure you that we will get rid of one of the hostages," the caller said.

The deadline passed without word of the hostage's fate.

Some were carrying Confederate flags, others signs reading "James Earl Ray (King's assassin) was a rational hero." They were ready to stand up for a way of life that had sheltered them from racial integration for most of a century.

"We don't want any problems. Let them stay in their place, we'll stay in ours," a large, bearded man told a Confederate flag-toting camera crew from a major news network.

"Why can't we have a place that's all white?" another man asked the same crew.

The 25,000 marchers, who came by bus from Atlanta, by car from throughout the state and elsewhere around the country, did their best to show them why.

Choruses of "We Shall Overcome" began to echo throughout the crowd of marchers at about 11 a.m. They gathered at a shopping center about 1.25 miles from the town square, awaiting the arrival of their leaders. It would be another three hours before Coreta Scott King, King's widow, arrived on a bus from Atlanta to join Williams in leading the march.

Wedged elbow-to-elbow with hundreds of reporters and photographers, some demonstrators recalled earlier marches, and talked of what they expected to accomplish Saturday.

"I sang 'We Shall Overcome' through Memphis in 1968," one black man said. "All that singing is fine, but it won't get us what we want. We need to be opening businesses in Atlanta and getting more jobs for our people." About 1,700 Georgia National Guard troops and 500 police officers escorted the marchers into Cumming. Police officers with high-powered rifles combed the woods each side of the road into town, searching for snipers.

Four Klansmen were arrested on firearms charges before the march started. Forsyth County Police reported. Sixty arrests, mostly of counterdemonstrators in Cumming, were tallied by sundown, when the marchers already had gathered at a shopping center in Atlanta, by car from elsewhere around the county.

"Why can't we have a place that's all white?" another man asked the same crew.

A total of 60 people were arrested Saturday on charges ranging from firearms possession to illegal alcohol consumption, Forsyth County Police reported.

For more than an hour, marchers poured into the town square to a rally in which Mrs. King, Williams, Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young, former U.S. Sen. Gary Hart, comedian and activist Dick Gregory and Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told them to never surrender in the fight for equal rights.

More jeers and catcalls greeted the marchers as they retraced the route back to waiting buses at the march's starting point. Undaunted, they sang "We Shall Overcome" a final time as they filed out of town, leaving the people of Cumming and Forsyth County to decide whether they would hold on to their own ways or change with the times.

Four Klansmen were arrested on firearms charges before the march started. Forsyth County Police reported. Sixty arrests, mostly of counterdemonstrators in Cumming, were tallied by sundown, when the marchers already had headed for home.

Klansmen counterdemonstrators, stationed behind a cordon of police and guardsmen, chanted "Back to the pigpen!" as the marchers strode arm-in-arm into Cumming.

Georgia Bureau of Investigation officers arrest a white counterdemonstrator Saturday in Cumming, Ga. Moments later, they were forced to call for help as others threatened to attack.

(operators) were totally out of hand," Olson said.

At one point, a small group of GBI officers was cut off and nearly attacked when outnumbered by a group of angered counterdemonstrators. The attack was blunted when the officers called in support from additional law enforcement personnel.

In another incident, two GBI officers pulled a wheelchair-bound man from his chair and placed him under arrest, apparently because his protests were too vocal, West said.

A total of 60 people were arrested Saturday on charges ranging from firearms possession to illegal alcohol consumption, Forsyth County Police reported.

Useless violence in TV news

There's been a lot of soul-searching among television news stations over whether to air last week's on-camera suicide of former State Treasurer R. Budd Dwyer on NBC, ABC, CBS and CNN all said they would not show the gruesome footage in full. Their decisions mark a milestone in the history of television news, for they question the advantage of showing the footage for the viewers' sake.

Similarly, the BBC films on the famine in Ethiopia translated footage about starvation into human beings with bloated stomachs and sad eyes. The tremendous public response, including the Live Aid effort, was unquestionably related to these films. But when viewers are reminded of the starving during every commercial break, it will become redundant, the viewers become indifferent.

A similar example of overexposure is last year's footage on the Space Shuttle Challenger accident. Seeing the footage for the first time, the rocket's rise and muted explosion looked like a grim, smoky ghost representing both the seven astronauts and their story. But when news stations repeated the film for days after, the image became a meaningless puff of smoke.

Arriving that day in Lehanon and the dying in Africa make the world a scary, meaningless chaos to which viewers can only respond by tuning out.

Article unclear on AIDS services

I would like to comment on an article you published about AIDS (January 21, 1987) entitled "Rise in AIDS brings money to educate public." I am pleased that the Daily Egyptian reported the Illinois Department of Public Health's recent funding for AIDS education efforts in the state. I am equally pleased that you provided the most current statistical information on AIDS in your article. It is important for the public to be aware of recent developments concerning AIDS and subsequent educational efforts to prevent further spread of AIDS.

Unfortunately, though, your article painted a rather blurry and confusing picture regarding what the AIDS-related services the Jackson County Health Department offers the community. The Jackson County Health Department (JCHD) has HIV antibody testing services available, the JCHD does not treat persons diagnosed with AIDS, as the wording in your article indicates. And there is a major difference.

The HIV antibody screening indicates if a person has been exposed to the AIDS virus and has developed antibodies for the virus. A positive test result does not mean a person has been diagnosed with AIDS or ever will develop AIDS. The test does indicate a person has been exposed to the virus, though, and could possibly transmit the virus to others (through sexual activity or sharing IV drug needles).

The HIV antibody testing program at JCHD is offered anonymously through a number identification system. Individuals may receive confidential counseling and referral regarding their test results at the health department.

Treatment of diagnosed AIDS patients is an entirely different matter. Persons with AIDS will eventually develop life-threatening opportunistic infections resulting from the destruction of their immune systems by the HIV virus. A diagnosed case of AIDS is a terminal condition. Care for these terminal patients is done in hospitals and other settings, not in public health departments such as the Jackson County Health Department.

Professionals in the media need to be very careful of the language used when reporting about AIDS. Terms such as "AIDS cases," "AIDS carriers," "persons with AIDS," and "persons testing HIV positive" are not interchangeable and synonymous. Interchanging such terms in an article makes for both confusing and incorrect media coverage.

A person who has been diagnosed with AIDS will indeed have a positive HIV antibody test. But a positive HIV antibody screening does not mean a person is a diagnosed AIDS patient. At the health department, we offer confidential HIV antibody screening, counseling and referral. We do not treat diagnosed AIDS patients at our facility, as your article indicated. Timothy Fischer, Director of Health Education, Jackson County Health Department.

At the risk of sounding post-feminist, Rick, it's just not working. With both of us pursing careers, she is being cheated.

Maybe it's different with other people, but it's finally beginning to get old. Sometimes things have to give here.

I want to promise something: You probably won't bother me. You just want to show off. But I think I might actually quit your job.

I can always go back to work at 7:00. Saturday night.

I'm not as practical, Chuck. Rick, here's the one big problem. Right as a &quot;new breed of committed leaders.&quot;

I might actually save money. It's not as far as I'm concerned.

Don't ask. What's going on?

Zipgun at sentencing nets added charges for Phillips

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff Writer

Convicted murderer John Phillips was netted with two counts of attempted murder and two counts of unlawful use of a firearm as a result of his courtroom behavior at his March 12 sentencing hearing for the Joan Wetherall murder.

Phillips will appear in court Thursday to face charges that he tried to obtain a homemade zipgun he used to kill Thomas Mocaby, a key witness against Phillips and former professor at the Illinois Correctional Center, and Matthew Schneider, an assistant Illinois attorney general who assisted Jackson County law enforcement personnel, in his trial.

Phillips tried to kill both men with a homemade zipgun he had smuggled into the courtroom, Clemons said. Phillips also is charged with two counts of possession of a firearm and firearm ammunition by a convicted felon.

The zipgun became visible at the hearing when Phillips threw the weapon toward Mocaby after Mocaby had finished testifying. Clemons said investigations found evidence that Phillips had attempted to fire the weapon at Schneider’s back earlier in the day before he threw it at Mocaby.

The incident was investigated by the Jackson County Sheriffs’ Department, the Department of Corrections and the Department of State Police, Forensic Science Laboratory, Clemons said.

Phillips is on death row at Menard. Clemons said the charges were filed to show that Phillips’ actions would not be tolerated.

“What we are dealing with is the integrity of our courtroom and our criminal justice system,” he said.

Three guards from Menard were suspended and one was referred for a result of poor handling of security when Phillips was transported to the courtroom, Clemons said. No disciplinary measures were taken against Jackson County law enforcement personnel, he said.

Additional security from Menard will be on hand for Phillips’ parole hearing.

Clemons said he will meet with Menard officials before Phillips’ appearance to discuss security measures in detail.

Phillips was being prosecuted for the rape of a former SIU-C student from Brazil, whose testimony against Phillips was used as evidence in the Wetherall trial. Clemons said he would not ask her to come to the United States from home in Brazil to endure another emotional trial experience.

Most participants represented one percent of the human population, 50 million people. Others represented two percent of the population to make up for a shortage of players. “We’ve shrunk the 5 billion people on this planet down to you. We’ve got to be confronted by some rather startling facts and situations,” Gabel told the participants they sat on Fuller’s unique Dymaxion world map.

Gabel spoke of the 14 million people who die of starvation each year and also referred to the literacy rate in the world. Thirty percent of the world’s population is illiterate, he said, and 50 percent of those people live in poverty.

Military spending was an important topic of the workshop. The countries of the world spend nearly one trillion dollars on military hardware each year, Gabel said. The United States spends 29 percent of the world’s military budget, and 85 percent of the nuclear weapons, while the Soviet Union spends 26 percent of the world’s budget and has 42 percent of the world’s nuclear missiles, he said.

320,000 people leave state since 1980, analyst says

By David Sheets  Staff Writer

More people have moved out of Illinois since 1980 than moved in, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

Eighty-seven of the state's 102 counties, including Jackson County, have experienced a net out-migration between 1980 and 1985, said Ann Geraci, census analyst for Illinois' Bureau of the Budget. She defined the term net out-migration as the number of Illinoisans relocating out of the state over and above the number of out-of-staters moving into Illinois. The statistic does not include birth and death rates.

Altogether, Illinois lost about 220,000 people, of which roughly 2,500 were from Jackson County.

"It means that if there had been no net out-migration, the state's population would have been 220,000 higher," she said.

Of the 15 Illinois counties that didn't lose population, Geraci said at least three border Jackson County: Perry, Union and Williamson. She explained that counties with a predominantly agricultural base will gain about as much as they lose, except in Williamson's case, where the population actually increased.

Geraci suggested that the net out-migration was an important reason for Illinois' death of state treasurer

MEADVILLE, Pa. (UPI) — A line of mourners stretched out of a funeral home Sunday in the western Pennsylvania town where Robert R. "Buddy" Dwyer was born and raised and where he was to be buried.

Longtime family friends whispered hushed condolences to Dwyer's wife, Joanne, and his children, Robert, 21, and Dyan, 18, in viewing room overlooking a wake set up with roses and cards at the Robert Waid Funeral Home.

"It seems like the whole town has turned out to support the family," said Janet Waid, wife of the undertaker handling the funeral arrangements. "There's a very tough time. It's a tough time for all of us. But it helps knowing you're helping the family."

Dwyer, 47, concluded a news conference Thursday by pulling a handgun from a manila envelope and shooting himself in front of terrified reporters and aides.

He was to have been sentenced the next day on a federal conviction for his part in steering a state contract to California-based Computer Technology Associates Inc. in a kickback.

In addition, Dwyer was sentenced to seven years in prison for tax evasion.

Dwyer had been hand-picked by Gov. James R. Thompson to become the new state treasurer after the 1982 election, only to be arrested in 1984 on federal racketeering and tax evasion charges.

Students trash restaurant in messy Big Mac attack

MANGONIA PARK, Fla. (UPI) — About 50 teenagers went on a Big Mac attack in a McDonald’s restaurant, throwing punches and food and leaving the manager with a broken nose and a big McMess.

Manager Rich Blech reported several teenagers and dollars worth of broken equipment and ruined foodstuffs. Police said the teenagers, some wearing Suncoast High School shirts, came into the restaurant late Friday night and began to complain of slow service.

A boy jumped the counter and started throwing hamburgers to the crowd, and several others followed, said Mangonia Park Police Sgt. Joe VonDembski. When Blech tried to stop them, two teenagers punched him, breaking his nose. The rest of the crowd joined the food fight, and punched another employee and a customer, VonDembski said.

When police arrived, several boys jumped out through the drive-in window and escaped. Witnesses speculated that the teens were angry over the steal loss of a basketball game to Twin Lakes High School Friday night.

Mangonia Park is a small Palm Beach County community south of West Palm Beach.

Storm pushes rain, sleet, snow across Southeast

By United Press International

Mid-Atlantic states braced for more winter woes Sunday as a storm system pushed freezing rain, sleet and snow across the Ohio and Tennessee Valleys, prompting winter storm warnings for Washington, D.C. and points east and south.

A low pressure system over northern Mississippi spread snow from the southeast Ohio Valley to parts of the mid-Atlantic region, forecasters said.

Cold temperatures were expected to continue in the wake of the latest storm, said Harry Gordon of the National Weather Service.

"The cold wave push will continue south and east following this current storm," Gordon said. "With snow cover in those areas, temperatures are likely to be 7 to 12 degrees below normal." Temperatures in the teens were expected in New England, with readings in the 20s stretching south to Virginia and West Virginia.

Winter storm warnings were in effect for southeastern Kentucky and southern West Virginia, where 4 to 8 inches of snow was forecast, as well as North Carolina, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Tennessee and Washington, D.C.

Up to 8 inches of snow was forecast for nation’s capital, the weather service said.

Snow in the Washington area Sunday forced President and Mrs. Reagan to return to the White House from Camp David by motorcade rather than helicopter.

In north central New York state, squalls dumped locally heavy snow along the shores of the Lower Great Lakes. Barnum Corners, N.Y., about 15 miles southeast of Watertown, had 34 inches of snow for a total of 86 inches on the ground at dawn Sunday.

Freezing rain made roads icy and dangerous across western and middle Tennessee. "It’s rough out there," said Memphis Police Capt. W.M. Moseley. "There is ice all over everything, but there’s not much traffic out."

Forecasters warned the storm could bring heavy snow to parts of the mid-Atlantic coast and southern New England, which were pounded last week by the worst winter storm in the Northeast in four years.

Storm watches were up Sunday from New Jersey to Cape Cod. The low pressure system spread rain from eastern Mississippi to Georgia. A heavy thunderstorm dumped two inches of rain Sunday on Waynesboro, Miss.
'Sheba' makes good use of theater's stage

By Mary Cauley
Staff Writer

Upon entering the Stage Company theater, one may be surprised by how much smaller it is on the inside than expected. The stage is scanty and the auditorium seats a mere 100. But the Stage Company consistently has turned the size of the theater to its advantage.

As a norm it is used as a forum for intimate, emotionally-involved plays that can only gain from the feeling that one is sitting "right in the living room." Such is the case for the Stage Company's current production, "Come Back Little Sheba," which began last weekend and will run two more consecutive weekends, Jan. 30, 31 and Feb. 1, and Feb. 6, 7 and 8.

"COME BACK Little Sheba"

Sheba," written and directed by Craig Hinde, also is grappling for something lost. Something he had been searching for in the bottle throughout his marriage depicts the lives of a married couple whose time together is far from carefree. Hungering for the past they have lost, their fantasies are projected on their young woman boarder and her boyfriend — each seeing a different picture of the budding relationship.

Barbara Gordon-Kupiec puts in a strong performance as Lola, the housewife who gave up her dreams to marry Doc. She has a heavy role to carry, and portrays Lola with firm consistency. As the slightly daffy, always honest Lola, we see her grasping for the romance and innocence of her youth by vicariously living through her boarder's relationship.

DOC. PLAYED BY by Craig Hinde, also is grasping for something lost. Something he had been searching for in the bottle throughout his marriage.

Theater Review

to Lola. A reformed alcoholic now, one sees throughout the course of the play the struggle he is going through for control. Hinde as Doc portrays that tension adequately, though at times he appears stiff and uncomfortable on stage. While this often "clicked" with the portrayal of the struggling alcoholic, sometimes it marred the believability of his character.

The supporting cast put in consistently strong and enjoyable performances. Rebecca Ronaghy and Ed Davis, both SUU students, portray the young couple, Marie and Turk, with sensitivity and add much to the play. All of the cameo performances — Richard Oakley as the Postman, Mary Watson as Mrs. Coffman, Dennis Moran as Marie's long distance-fiance, and Loren Cocking and Gregory Kupiec as Doc's AA buddies — carry the drama well and show the great talent that the community theater has to offer. David Flavin's performance as the body builder-milkman is especially enjoyable.

DIRECTOR JEANNE Dorsett does a good job with the production, handling the problems of the small stage very well. Her staging of the production is natural and believable, with the exception of some of the more dramatic scenes at the conclusion that appear a bit out of control. Dorsett has an effective and subtle touch, so that one almost feels like a voyeur looking in a window rather than a member of the audience at a stage performance.

The stage was used creatively, even to the point of using corners of the set for costume changes — a necessity because the Stage Company has no curtain.

AT TIMES, small technical problems interrupted one's involvement with the show, such as backdrops that didn't last long enough for actors to get off stage. However, these problems are minor and easily corrected, if they haven't been already.

Overall, "Come Back Little Sheba" is a solid production. It is evocative and entertaining, with sensitive performances given by the leading and supporting cast.

Friday and Saturday performances begin at 8 p.m. and Sunday matinees begin at 2 p.m. General admission for all Stage Company productions is $6 on Fridays and Saturdays and $4 on Sundays.
Local residents celebrate anniversary of pro choice

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

"I'm a fighting woman and I'm coming into my strength and I'm a change woman and I'm coming into my strength I won't save the world but I fight any battle that there are us all I'm a foresighted woman and I'm coming into my strength."

THOSE WORDS by Setay Rose easily could have been the anthem for the women who gathered and sang them in celebration of the 14th anniversary of Roe vs. Wade, the 1973 Supreme Court decision that decriminalized abortion.

About 80 women and five men attended the event, sponsored by the Southern Illinois chapters of the National Organization for Women, Thursday at the Unitarian Church, 301 W. Elm.

"Some of you here remember what it was like before Roe versus Wade," said Cass VanDerMeer, legal advocate for the Rape Action Committee at the Women's Center.

"There were back alley abortions. Place that you went to eliminate a pregnancy that you didn't want, didn't know what to do with. But not legal."

During the 1960s, she said, women at SIU-C went to St. Louis for abortions. "We were dropped off in Carbondale in front of the Health Service so none of us would be indicted for what we were doing," she said.

"We knew we needed a choice. We urge you, don't let that choice stop."

Letters addressed to President Reagan were read as "testimonies of choice." The writers spoke of the memories, social stigma and fear associated with their decisions to have abortions.

ONE LETTER writer said that she had "vivid memories of walking up the flight of stairs and down the pitch black corridor" to the alcoholic abortionist who performed her illegal operation.

Another woman wrote about the death of Diane, her University of Illinois friend who died in a dorm room after having an abortion. "At the funeral, no one talked about the cause of her death, except that it was tragic."

The media did not talk about it either, the writer continued. "Illegal abortions don't make pleasant copy and they don't reflect well upon universities."

A third writer said she had an abortion when she was 19.

She went to New York City because it was legal there. "I was more afraid of the place I went to because it was unsafe, rather than having the abortion because it was illegal." See CHOICE, Page 11

Foundation wins judgment in $750,000 bond dispute

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

A two-year argument between SIU-C and the Illinois Auditor General's office over ownership of about $750,000 was settled Friday.

The Legislative Audit Commission ordered an audit hearing in Springfield, ruled in the Foundation's favor primarily because the Foundation had already spent the money, said Rep. James Keane, D-Chicago, a commission member.

Keane said the money in question broke down into a $519,185 overfunding for construction of a dormitory plus $250,000 in interest.

Although the original $519,185 has been the source of dispute for about two years, Annie Carman, Foundation president, said that portion of the money has been in a scholarship fund at least four years.

She said that about $500,000 had been spent through scholarships aimed at attracting high-caliber academic students to SIU-C.

HER EXPERIENCE made her angry, she wrote. “Our great country of freedoms considered me a second class citizen. It had tried to interfere in a very personal decision.”

The Rev. Karen Knodt, director of University Christian Ministries, said the issue of a woman’s right to choose to have an abortion is full of tough questions to which there are no easy answers. The bottom line becomes women’s rights, she said.

“How can I pass judgement on my sisters who, together with me, live in a society where sex education is seen as immoral and where pharmaceutica companies have astrategy of the price and availability of birth control?”

SHE QUESTIONED the church’s role of imparting values to children. Why aren’t churches talking about open relationships, about sex education? Why don’t we teach children, especially young boys, about the responsibility and realities of raising twin babies, of raising one baby?”

THE RALLY was planned to present “another opinion,” said organizer and NOW member Juli Claussen.

“We got tired of hearing one side every year on this anniversary date,” she said. “We thought it was time to speak up and let people know that there is another side.”

About 100 anti-abortion supporters marched through Carbondale Jan. 19 to observe Sanctity of Human Life, which is celebrated every year by the Christian Action Council as a part of efforts to ban abortions.

But attempts to ban abortions will not work, Van-Der Meer said. “The right-to-life people are very strong. They’re saying that if you stop the law, you can stop abortion. It didn’t stop in the Sixties and it won’t stop it now.”

Mandela’s wife detained, released after questioning

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Wife of deposed President Nelson Mandela, wife of jailed African National Congress leader, was detained Sunday by South African police for more than six hours, then was released, family lawyer said.

Her daughter, Zindzi, was arrested an hour after her mother. Both women were released about 10:30 p.m. at the Pretoria police station in the black township of Soweto, 10 miles southwest of Johannesburg, attorney Amichand Somai said.

Another family lawyer, Ismael Ayob, said officers refused to release 13 teenagers, members of a local soccer club, who were playing near the Mandela home in the Orlando section of Soweto when police arrived.

There was no immediate comment by the government. Ayob, who went to the police station, said Mandela was held while police examined documents taken from her home. Mandela was treated “correctly,” and her documents were returned, apparently intact, after her release, he said.

“The police insisted she was not under arrest, but they accepted that she was taken to the police station against her will,” Ayob said. “I cannot imagine Mrs. Mandela going voluntarily.”

Ayob noted that the incident came a few days before a scheduled meeting in Washington between Secretary of State George Shultz and Oliver Tambo, acting president of the ANC. Mandela was jailed for life in 1964.

Quito, Ecuador (UPI) — President Jarvis Cceres, buffeted by violence and political intrigue, is facing increasingly sharp attacks from critics who question not only her ability to govern but her Machiavellian sincerity.

Francisco Tadul, a former information minister and president of the Christian Social Democratic Party, said Aquino has lost the “moral ascendancy” to govern and demanded she step down to avert an “irreversible” crisis.

The other end of the political spectrum denounced her rule as “fascist” and “irreversible.”

And his troubles are only his.

President Leon Febres Cordero, 55, was taken hostage Jan. 16 by paramilitaries, forced to a jail-like general but was freed unharmed when he sweated on Air Force Gen. Frank Varragas Passos from military planes. Acosta was being held on a charge of leading a mutiny last year.

That crisis ended barely before the country’s influential Congress gathered to discuss impeaching Febres Cordero, who took office in 1984.

Opposition legislators are not under arrest, but they insisted she was not under arrest, and her documents were returned, apparently intact, after her release, he said.

The military braced for violence Monday when leftists plan a “National Day of Indignation” to protest the killings. About 20,000 leftists plan to march to the presidential palace after a daylong rally. Rallies and work stoppages also are planned in the countryside.

If he survived a daylong rally. Rallies and work stoppages also are planned in the countryside.

The leader of the rally group said he is determined that the crowd will cross the barricaded Mendiola bridge “at the scene of last week’s shootings.”

Richardson said.

"You couldn't have asked any more of him, especially the first half," Ross said. "He didn't take the ball to the floor - he went straight to the bucket. He was a key factor."

"Tim made the difference," Middleton added. "When he plays and we play like that, we can be tough - tough enough to beat a few more Valley teams."

However, Richardson, being as modest as he is big, shunned the spotlight and heaped the praise on teammate Randy Ross who nailed the first man's game.

Creighton, which fell to the Salukis' lead at 21 points and 15 rebounds, knew it would come sooner or later.

"It feels good but I can't tell you I'm satisfied," Richardson said. "I'm going to keep working." Richardson's been working extra hours in the weight room, beyond the call of duty required by Herrin and staff.

"The weights will pay off soon," Richardson said. "I've really been working on my rebounding position."

Herrin said he was more impressed with Richardson's game.

"He played 31 minutes and didn't foul out even though he was noticeably more intense. That's encouraging," Herrin said. "He played with more enthusiasm and he looked strong throughout."

When Richardson exited the floor at 5:09 afer getting poked in the eye, the crowd responded with a rowdy ovation.

Richardson was quick to point out the importance of the big man's game.

Middleton could challenge for player of week

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

With a 51-point combined effort in two games this week, Saluki guard Steve Middleton should contend for the MVC player-of-the-week award. Middleton, a junior from Peoria, scored a career-high 36 points in SIU's 81-75 loss to Drake Thursday and followed with a 25-point performance to help key an 84-69 win over Creighton on Saturday.

Middleton, a preseason all-MVC pick who holds the league's third-best scoring average, has never landed the weekly award.

Wichita State's Gus Santos will provide the stiffest competition for the honors with a 24-point, eight rebound performance in a 64-53 win over Indiana State and a 15-point showing in a 66-57 win over Illinois State.

In Valley action this weekend, Drake and Wichita State went 2-0 in league play. Tulsa went 2-0 with a Valley win and a nonconference victory over Southern California. Indiana State, Creighton and Illinois State all lost a pair of league contests.

whatever we ask them to do." For a brief time, Denver appeared ready to pull off one of the greatest Super Bowl upsets — jumping to a 10-7 lead in the first period on a 49-yard field goal by Rich Karlis and a four-yard touchdown run by quarterback John Elway. The Broncos then drove to the New York one-yard line midway through the second period and were on the verge of going in front by 10 points when New York's defense made the plays that turned the game.

Three times the New York defense denied the Broncos — linebackers Lawrence Taylor, Harry Carson and Carl Banks made the stops to keep Denver out of the end zone.

Then, Karlis — who missed only one attempt inside 40 yards all season — tried a 23-yarder. Somehow, he missed. The kick drifted wide right, and Denver would not score again until the Giants had run off 26 consecutive points.

New York's first-half points came on a 6-yard pass from Phil Simms to Zeke Mowatt and a safety when defensive end George Martin sacked Elway in the endzone. That left the Giants trailing 10-9 at half, but Denver would never again take the lead.

The Giants seized control with the opening drive of the second half. Simms completed all five of his passes in that stretch, including the 13-yard scoring throw to Mark Bavaro that put the Giants ahead for good.

But the key play of the drive netted only 2 yards. The Giants, fourth-and-one at their 46, lined up in scrimmage formation — a situation in which teams often try to draw the opposition offsides. But backup quarterback Jeff Rutledge took the snap from center and plunged ahead for a first down.

"It was only about two feet and this is for the world championship," Parcells said of the gamble: "We had to take a shot at it. This season, whenever I challenged this team, they rose to the challenge."

New York's defense disposed of Denver in three plays and the Giants' offense remained to the field — this time driving to a Raul Allegre field goal that raised the lead to nine points.

Again, the Broncos failed to produce a first down. Four plays after Denver's punt, Simms hit the pass that removed any doubt as to the outcome.

Sprinter sets record at Purdue

By Scott Freeman
Staff Writer

The Saluki women's track team won five of 15 events at Purdue Saturday, and Carlon Blackman qualified for the NCAA indoor track meet in the 500-meter run.

Coach Don DeNoon said the Salukis, who finished second overall to Purdue in the 10-team field, had 24 personal-best marks for the meet, including Blackman's 1:11.34 in the 600. Blackman's time is also a meet and SIU-C indoor record in the event.

Sprinter Angie Nunn ran personal-best times to take both the 300 and 400-meter dashes. Her times in the 300 (48.53 seconds) and the 400 (56.04) were second-best all-time for SIU-C for those events.

"The biggest surprise of the meet" was Brenda Beatty's victory in the 55-meter dash, DeNoon said. Last week the coach said the 55 could be the team's weakest event, but Beatty cranked off a time of 7.24 seconds (third-all time at SIU-C) for the win. Darrin Stinson (7.48) and Christiana Philippou (7.49) took fourth and fifth, respectively, in the event.

Sae Anderson took the high jump with a leap of 5-3. DeNoon credited the unimpressive leap (Anderson's personal best is 5-7) to track conditions.

DeNoon said Lisa Judiscak ran a "notable performance" in the 1,500, taking third place in 4:43.6 for the third-best time in school history. Judiscak also finished third in the 1,000-meter run to set a school record in 5:01.48.

The 1,500-meter relay team of Nunn, Blackman, Theodora Kyriacou and Felicia Veal finished second to Purdue with a time of 4:05.

Philippou finished third in the triple jump (56-3) and second in the long jump (18-3). Beatty took fourth in the triple (55-4 1/2) and Carmen Robbins placed fourth in the long jump (17-1 1/4).

Former Saluki standouts Connie Price, competing on her own, won the shot put with a heave of 53-6, easily outdistancing the competition, DeNoon said.

Overall, the Salukis finished second with 115 points to a team deep Purdue squad that won with 184 points. Central Michigan placed third with 54 points, followed by Illinois State (St. Louis) 18, Terre Haute (Ind.) Track Club 8, Loyola (Ill.) 7, Louisville 5 and the University of Indianapolis 3.

Notes:

- With their height advantage, the Salukis totally dominated the second-half rout. Kattreh broke out of a short slump to pace outside scoring, and much-improved play off the bench helped secure the win.
- Deanna Kibelkis, a highly-touted freshman from Madison, rated high on Scott's list for her best effort yet.
- "We're getting good intensity and our young kids, like Kibelkis, played a good game," Scott said.
- But WIU also deserved praise for Hill's turnaround of essentially the same club that placed last in the Gateway last year.
- "We knew they'd scrap and they shot the ball well. Hill's done a great job with them," Scott said.

Hill returned the honors by saying, "Teams come in (Davis) and get annihilated. They're halfway and I haven't seen anybody in the conference who can seriously challenge them now."

SUU's record stands at 15-1 overall and 9-0 in the GCAC, with 15 straight wins as the highlight.

Women cagers notch 15th by blowing away 'Winds'

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

The Saluki women's basketball team pounded Western Illinois but waited until the second half to do it at Davies Gym Saturday.

The inside game of Bridgett Bonds and Mary Berghaus, as well as a hot outside hand from Dana Fitzpatrick, opened the contest in the Salukis favor.

But after SIU built a 27-10 lead midway through the first half, the Westernwinds pegged it away to pull back within six at intermission.

A little ear-bending followed, and the Salukis almost didn't appear from the locker room in time to start the second half.

"It seems to be a trait of this team to jump out early and then let the other team back in," Saluki coach Cindy Scott said. "They heard about it half-time."

The Salukis responded to Scott's lecture with defense that held the 'Winds to just 42 points in 15 minutes.

As WIU coach Kelly Hill described, "They just could not get their shot going."

Mary Berghaus went 1-7 from the field, 1-4 from the line.

"It was a big win for us, an emotional win," forward Billy Ross said after the game. "We had to break the home losing streak for our fans. This is definitely the kind of win that can help us out."

On a night when everything seemed to click for the Salukis, a number of things had Herrin pleased.

"With (Doug) Novak a little sick and (Randy) House not at 100 percent yet, Kai Nurnberger's play was a big boost," Herrin said.

Nurnberger hit all three field goals and a free throw for just seven points, but Herrin ignored scoring and looked at the way Nurnberger ran defense and handled the ball.

Herrin also praised the Salukis' defense, which held the Bluejays to 36.8 percent field goal shooting throughout the contest and just 22 percent in the second half.

Creeighton's all-everything Gary Swain, who averaged 17.8 ppg going into the contest, hit only six of 15 attempts. Kenny Evans, averaging 14.1 ppg, was held under double digits on 30 percent field goal shooting while Rob Mason, a 50 percent shooter averaging 13.1 ppg, connected on just 25 percent of his tries.

Another bright spot for the Salukis was a 20-minute appearance by crowd-favorite Randy House. The sophomore recorded 12 points and pulled down three rebounds in his first extended appearance since being sidelined with pneumonia in early January.

"House and Ross did a super job on Evans," Herrin said. "We were really worried about (Evans) going into the game.

Herrin said the win, aided by a 51-28 Saluki domination of the boards, demonstrated the importance of good free throw shooting and strong rebounding.

"We hope to keep the intensity and enthusiasm we played with tonight into practice and into Indiana State (Thursday night)," Herrin said. "We can only hope that could open the door for a few more Valley wins this season."
