Iraq bombs Israeli cities

United Press International

Iraq launched a conventional missile attack against Israel early Friday in a move that threatened to draw the Jewish state into the Persian Gulf war and complicate the U.S.-led alliance against Iraq as the Persian Gulf War entered its second day.

Iraq has threatened repeatedly to strike at Israel if attacked, and Israel has said it "would retaliate, an outcome U.S. officials fear could cause the defection of Arab members of the coalition seeking Iraq's ouster from Kuwait.

There was no immediate word, however, on whether Israel would strike back or whether the SCUD missiles fired into Israel caused any casualties or carried chemical warheads.

The missile attacks interrupted what had been 24 hours of good news from allied officials, who reported that bombing raids begun Thursday against Iraq and occupied Kuwait had met with little resistance and much success.

Allied casualties were reported to be light. Preliminary reports said one U.S. F-18C was shot down, killing a Marine pilot, and a British fighter with a crew of two was missing. Kuwait said one of its planes also was shot down.

More than 1,200 sorties had been mounted, and U.S. officials said Operation Desert Storm would continue until Iraqi President Saddam Hussein complies with U.N. resolutions and withdraws from Kuwait, which he invaded Aug. 2.

Allied ground troops in Saudi Arabia were poised at the Kuwait border, but no infantry or armored exchanges had begun.

Israel's government radio said an

Profs: War to end soon

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

University political science professors expressed their expectations and wishes for the war with Iraq to be ended soon.

"It's impossible to put an exact time, but I think it will be over shortly," said David Derge, political science professor and former SIUC president during the Vietnam War protests.

Leland Stauber, SIUC political science professor, said he did not agree with President George Bush's action, but hopes the war will be over soon.

"I've been in disagreement with the policy," Stauber said. "I was in favor of defensive employment of troops to protect Saudi Arabia, but the biggest concern is for the war to be ended as soon as possible."

Both professors said they were impressed with the display of superiority the United States put on in Wednesday's attack.

"I was enormously impressed with the American military planes," Stauber said. "They really showed extreme competence and professionalism."

While Derge was impressed with the outcome, he said he thought the

Family members hopeful

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Area residents with family members stationed overseas in Operation Desert Storm seem concerned but hopeful about the onset of war in the Persian Gulf.

Renee Spillman, sister of Steven Spillman of Carterville, said she hadn't heard from her brother lately, but that her mother had been told by friends that the 101st Airborne Division had not yet been engaged in U.S. attacks against Iraq. The unit may enter the fighting soon, she said.

"We've mainly been living in front of the television set," she said.

Linda Gibbs, mother of Walter Gibbs of the 1244th Illinois

National Guard Unit from Cairo, said Walter Gibbs called her daughter Jan. 5. He sounded anxious but in good spirits, she said, and he joked that he may decide to stay in the gulf.

Linda Gibbs said she was told recently by friends with husbands and sons also in the 1244th that everyone in that unit is all right.

Susan Bean of Marion has two sons serving overseas, Michael in Germany and David in the gulf with the 1244th Illinois National Guard Unit. She said Michael's unit is on alert, but that she hasn't heard from David, who is a driver with his unit, since the fighting began.

Many minorities, women in gulf forces

By Omonpee O. Whitfield
Staff Writer

U.S. Defense Department figures show that African-Americans, women and other minorities make up a large percentage of the troops in the Persian Gulf.

The report also showed that in each branch of the armed forces, African-Americans make up the largest percentage of enlistments and soldiers in the gulf. Figures show that this is particularly true of African-Americans enlisted in the Army.

The department also released statistics that show both the percentages of minorities (African-Americans, Hispanics, Native Americans and Asian-Americans) in the gulf and the percentage of minorities enlisted in the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force as of mid-December 1990.

An article in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported that as of Wednesday, there were more than 415,000 United States troops in the Persian Gulf. This included 245,000 Army troops, 75,000

Marine Corps troops, 50,000 Navy troops and 14,946 Air Force troops.

The Defense Department report gives a breakdown of the number of minorities in the Army and Marine Corps who have combat-arms occupations.

The figures show that African-Americans, Hispanics, Native Americans and Asian-Americans comprise nearly one-third of all the soldiers in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps in the gulf. Soldiers in the four ethnic groups comprise one-fifth of the total number of Air Force servicepersons in the Persian Gulf.

The Defense Department statistics also showed that 6 percent of the troops in the gulf are women.

Cass VanDeMeer, president of the Shawnee Chapter of the National Organization for Women, said she is very disturbed about the number of women in the gulf. She said women have been treated poorly in the armed forces and therefore, she fails to understand why they would want to fight.

"I think that it is absurd that women are there supporting a regime that doesn't allow for civil rights for women," VanDeMeer said. "I also think it's absurd that women are there defending a country that does not allow civil rights for women."

African-Americans comprise about one-third of Army enlistments and comprise nearly one-third of Army enlistments in the gulf. The report also showed that more than one-fifth of all Army soldiers who have combat-arms occupations are African-Americans.

Antonio Washington, Black Affairs Council coordinator, said he is dismayed by the number of African-Americans in the gulf and in the armed services in general. He said he sees wide-scale involvement of African-American soldiers in the war as a plan by the government to undermine the

Women uproot Sycamores

Senior Amy Rakers drills in two of her team-high 20 points in the Salukis' 72-60 win over Indiana State Thursday night.

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

When a pair of women's hoops teams such as SIUC and Indiana lock horns, each possessing a dominating player such as SIUC's Amy Rakers and ISU's Julie Lein, something's got to give.

Something did. Saluki senior guard Alison Smith and sophomore forward Angie Rougeau gave SIUC the 72-60 victory as they combined for 30 points.

Except for Lein, who powered through the Saluki defense for a game-high 27 points, the Sycamores got the offensive output of an unloaded gun. Only one other ISU player could make it into double figures.

But even with little support, Lein put the team on her back and enabled the Sycamores to make a tight game of it for most of the going.

From the snap it was the two seniors, Rakers and Lein taking it right to each other. In one series Rakers nullified a Lein shot. Lein rebounded and stuck it back in. Rakers came right back and drove past Lein on the baseline for a reverse lay-up. But the battle took a casualty.

Rakers went in for a second baseline lay-in, then hit the deck writhing in pain. She sat out the next few minutes with a sore ankle.

Smith kept the Salukis close with a couple early buckets, but Rougeau stepped forward in Rakers' absence.

In a two-minute series, Rougeau fired a smoking entry pass into senior Ced Mitchell for two. Then she scrapped on the floor to steal a loose ball from an ISU player, got up to get back into the offense to drain an outside jumper. Her burst finished with a steal attempt that forced an ISU player into traveling.

Even with the hot play of Smith and Rougeau and the return of Rakers, Lein carried the Sycamores to a 33-31 lead at the half.

"Lein played well," Saluki head coach Cindy Scott said. "We couldn't get her stopped."

With her ankle OK, Rakers took control of the boards immediately in the second half. She pulled down 11 caroms to go with her 20 points on a sharp 9 of 15 shooting night.

Lein, however, began to lose her touch and the Salukis looked poised to take control.

They did, or Smith did actually. Smith decided to put on a shooting display and went on to destroy the Sycamore zone defense as she tossed in 10 second-half points in a short period midway through the half. As a whole, SIUC started drilling shots as the team shot 58 percent in the second period.

"Smith came through for them," ISU head coach Kay Reik said. "She hit and gave them confidence."

With ISU still hanging close, the Salukis went on a run in which Rakers and sophomore Anita Scott hit shots. Rougeau drove for two straight tough scores to give the Salukis their biggest lead at the 3:55 mark at 66-54.

The rattled ISU squad could not mount any further attack and the Saluki came out with their sixth straight Gateway Conference victory.

Schedules to continue despite War

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

The Missouri Valley and Gateway Conferences have decided to go ahead as scheduled with games, despite war in the Persian Gulf.

The presidents of the MVC schools voted 9-0 Thursday morning to let the schools decide whether or not to continue competition and the Gateway Conference has also left the decision to the individual institutions.

The discussion has come as a result of the U.S. air attack against Iraq around 6 p.m. Wednesday.

"It just seems as though other activities—athletically and academically—need to go on," SIUC President John C. Guyon said. "We cannot make any changes in the situation here, so I think business as usual is the way to approach this."

Gateway Commissioner Patty Viverito and MVC Assistant Commissioner for Communications Ron English expressed concern about the war and said their conferences will continue to monitor the situation and consider further developments.

Salukis blown away by Golden Hurricane 72-67

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

The Salukis road problems continued Thursday night at Tulsa as the Golden Hurricane defeated SIUC 72-67.

The Salukis fell to 0-5 on the road and lost their first Missouri Valley Conference game of the season. SIUC's 2-1 conference mark is still tops in the Valley, but fell to 8-6 overall. Tulsa upped its record to 9-6 overall and 2-2 in the conference to slide into a fifth-place tie in the MVC.

The Salukis were down by 10 with 3:35 left in the second half, but battled back to make a contest of it late. Senior guard Sterling Mahan tossed in four free throws and freshman guard Chris Lowery hit a 3-pointer to pull the Dawgs within two at 69-67. But five missed shots from the stripe with a couple minutes remaining cost SIUC the ballgame.

It looked as though the game could turn into a repeat performance of the Salukis' overtime 97-89 win last year in Tulsa. But the Saluki attempt at a comeback was stifled when the Golden Hurricane broke the SIUC press and capped off the possession with a dunk by senior forward Wade Jenkins with just seconds left in the game.

Throughout the game, SIUC had troubles holding onto the basketball. Tulsa, a senior dominated ballclub, forced 22 turnovers and turned many of those into buckets.

Senior guard Marcell Gordon helped bring Tulsa back from a 33-31 halftime deficit with 13 second-half points. He ended the contest with a game-high 19 points.

SIUC was led by Mahan with 18 points, while senior forward Rick Shipley contributed 15 points and pulled down 9 rebounds.

Junior forward Kelvan Lawrence and sophomore center Ashraf Amaya each dumped in 11 points.

The Saluki defense shutdown Tulsa's 3-point shooting, which was second in the Valley behind SIUC. It wasn't until early in the second half that Tulsa hit its first triket.

SIUC continues its southwestern road swing with a conference matchup against Wichita State, which posts a 2-2 Valley mark and 9-7 overall. Wichita State upset Tulsa in Oklahoma 83-74 earlier in the season.

New NCAA rules get reaction from faculty

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Just a week after the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention ended, some of the endless list of new rules are already getting negative reaction from college officials, coaches and athletic directors around the country.

One of the major proposals passed at the NCAA convention, which took place in Nashville, Tenn., included the limiting an athlete's practice time to four hours a day, 20 hours a week and eight hours a week in the off season.

This, according to coaches at SIUC, should have little effect.

Most coaches agree the limitations won't severely alter their practice schedules.

"The 20 hours rule doesn't phase us in the least," Saluki head women's basketball coach Cindy Scott said. "Most sports should not be hampered by it."

Swimming coach Doug Ingram said he's upset there are so many problems in college sports that the NCAA must now institute these rules.

"It's too bad the legislation has to be put forth to restrict people that are trying to strive for excellence in any area," Ingram said, "whether it be athletics, music, drama,

Women ready for Saluki Invitational

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

SIUC women's track and field team will compete in the 1991 Saluki Invitational, its second indoor meet of the season, Saturday at the Recreation Center.

Saluki coach Don DeNoon is optimistic about this meet, which begins at 9:30 a.m., and believes his team should perform well despite the month-long holiday break.

"Our last meet was on Dec. 7, and since we didn't have mandatory practices over finals week, it had been a full month since we've had a structured practice," DeNoon said.

Due to the cold, wet weather that covered Illinois this holiday season, DeNoon said his athletes were unable to train outside.

"We design alternate training programs that the girls can put together themselves, but it is not the same as running. It takes someone with a lot of discipline to continue training when they can't do the sport they love," DeNoon said.

DeNoon believes his athletes overall are in good condition and their two weeks of practice should be enough to prepare them for this meet.

"Our team has potential to score in every event in every meet this year," DeNoon said. "We have no weak athletes, only weak events."

"Our jumpers, throwers and sprinters look very good right now," DeNoon said. "They had a very strong showing in our first indoor meet of the season at Illinois State by posting at least one personal best in each entry."

DeNoon said he expects his team to score most of its points in the field events, namely the shotput and the high jump. "When it comes to running around the track, we're not impressive but we hold our own, so I think we have great winning potential," DeNoon said.

Georgia Tech, who won this meet last year, will be the team to beat again this year, DeNoon said.

Last year the Salukis took third place behind Georgia Tech and Murray State, but DeNoon said he is hoping to pull ahead and take first place this year.

"Georgia Tech has outstanding half milers and just a strong program overall," DeNoon said. "Murray State is good but they were mainly a senior team last season. We'll score our share of points but we definitely have our work cut out for us."

"This is going to be one heck of a meet," DeNoon said. "There is going to be good, quality competition especially when you have a national qualifier and a multiple All-American like Stephanie Saleem of Murray State."

Georgia Tech and Murray State are returning this year along with the University of Mississippi, Arkansas State and Mississippi State.

Kuwaiti leaders say bombs have Iraqi troops deserting

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — A Kuwaiti official said Thursday allied bombing raids have caused hundreds of Iraqi casualties in Kuwait city, and that many of Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein's troops have abandoned their positions in the occupied country. Abdul Fahman Al-Awadi, minister of state for Cabinet affairs, said he was in touch three times Thursday with Kuwaiti resistance leaders inside the country. He said there are three main areas where Iraqi soldiers are deserting, including central Kuwait and the coast, which he said had "suffered heavily from the bombing."

Czechs plan response to Lithuania invasion

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — The leaders of Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia postponed a summit called to accelerate their withdrawal from the Warsaw Pact military structure because of the Soviet crackdown in Lithuania. Czechoslovakian Foreign Minister Jiri Dienstbier told a news conference Thursday he would meet instead with his Hungarian and Polish counterparts to consider a joint response to the use of troops last weekend to takeover buildings in Vilnius, the capital of the mutinous republic, in assaults that left 14 people dead and dozens injured.

Norway's king dies after 33 years on throne

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — Norway's King Olav V died Thursday night at the age of 87 after suffering a heart attack earlier in the evening, the Royal Palace announced. The king had been ailing since May when he suffered an infection affecting his heart. He died at his winter holiday home on the outskirts of Oslo, where he had been celebrating Christmas and the new year. King Olav had been head of state since 1957 when he succeeded his father, King Haakon VII. He is succeeded by his only son, Crown Prince Harald, 53, who becomes King Harald V. Harald has been performing his father's duties since last May in the capacity of regent.

Stock traders aggressive before war started

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks closed higher Wednesday in choppy trading as investors hunted for bargains, feeling that even the outbreak of war may not take prices much lower. Most analysts feel the market would not plunge if and when shots were fired, but could rally because of all the cash built up on the sidelines waiting to see what happens in the Mideast. So aggressive money managers decided to move now and buy rather than take a chance on missing a rally. The late bout of bargain-hunting then took prices up into the close. The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 6.68 Tuesday, added 18.32 to 2508.91.

Pentagon asks for civilian blood shipments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The civilian blood system Thursday increased blood shipments to the Persian Gulf to help the military prepare for any casualties from the war against Iraq, officials said. The American Association of Blood Banks and the American Red Cross each began sending 1,000 units of blood a day to McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey in response to the first request from the Pentagon for blood from the civilian supply since World War II. Current civilian blood supplies are sufficient to meet the added demand so no national appeal for blood donors is needed, officials said.

Right to move brain-damaged daughter won

CLAYTON, Mo. (UPI) — A man has won a judge's permission to move his severely brain-damaged daughter to a hospital in Minnesota, where he may seek removal of the feeding tube that has kept her alive for three years, his attorney said Thursday. The ruling came late Wednesday in the case of Christine Busalacchi, 20, whose father wants to move her out of the Missouri Rehabilitation Center at Mount Vernon in southwest Missouri. Busalacchi has been in a persistent vegetative state for more than two years.

Prof: Expect slow drop in gas prices

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

The stock market climbed and oil prices and interest rates sank as a result of the initial success of Operation Desert Storm, but the U.S. economy is far from out of the dark, an SIUC professor said.

Although crude oil prices dropped today, Richard Ellis, SIUC economics professor, said it will take a while before gasoline prices are substantially reduced.

"It's too early to make a judgement," Ellis said. "You can't go by the stock market. It goes up or down and it doesn't mean anything as far as the economy."

In Southern Illinois, gasoline distributors reported decreases in the wholesale price of gasoline.

Rodger Walker, owner of Hicks Oil Company in DeSoto, said wholesale prices of gasoline had dropped six cents a gallon at his distributorship.

"It doesn't mean gasoline prices will be down six cents, but wholesale is definitely down," Walker said.

Carbondale City Manager Steve Hoffner said oil and gas prices are a crucial concern of the city.

"The city with all of its equipment is already over its budget for oil," Hoffner said.

The high prices for gasoline have also affected local residents, many of whom must make long commutes to work, he said.

Walker said it appears gasoline prices will continue to dwindle if the events in the Persian Gulf continue to go well, but prices have a long way to go before they are reduced to what they were before the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

"Prices have been going up significantly—15 to 18 cents in the last week," Walker said. "The drop today just puts us closer to what prices were two weeks ago."

"It will be much more gradual than you or me would like," Ellis said. "Unless something happens, it will probably take until summer to be comparable to before the war."

Local VA hospitals prepare for casualties of war

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

Soldiers in the Persian Gulf are not the only people preparing for a military outbreak in the Middle East.

Veterans Administration hospitals across the United States began training their staff members and conducting daily bed counts in August when U.S. troops first moved into the gulf.

"The VA serves as a backup to the Department of Defense in all national emergencies," said Frances Gilliam, public affairs officer at Marion VA Hospital.

The St. Louis VA Hospital also has made preparations.

"We have been counting beds, testing our facilities and reviewing our plan to make certain we are prepared for incoming casualties," said Atha Neil, public affairs officer at the St. Louis VA Hospital.

All VA hospitals are required to provide medical care and a set number of beds for incoming Desert Storm soldiers according to the 1982 VA/Department of Defense Contingency Plan, Neil said.

Bed counts are determined by the number of empty beds available plus the number of beds occupied by patients who could be transferred or released.

The plan provides for the availability of 9,200 beds nationwide 24 hours after casualties break out.

The Marion hospital will provide 27 medical beds and 11 surgical beds, Gilliam said.

This number will increase as the war goes on, Gilliam said. Within 72 hours, 43 medical beds and 23 surgical beds will be available in Marion.

The Marion VA Hospital is considered a secondary medical center because its facilities are not as equipped as larger hospitals.

Because of its secondary status,

Marion hospital's reserved beds will first be filled by transfer patients from St. Louis VA Hospital which is a primary medical center, Gilliam said.

The hospital's preparations for a possible flood of casualties centered around improving communication facilities and drilling staff on common Middle East illnesses, Gilliam said.

"We're a hospital every day," she said. "We will take care of whoever we can, as best we can."

Peaceful protesters display intelligence

WHILE LOCAL PROTESTERS display their intolerance for the war, the rest of the community should tolerate their efforts to express their views.

The rallies, most notably those by the Coalition of Mid-East Peace at the federal building and the Interfaith Center, have been peaceful thus far.

Hopefully they will remain that way.

THE REMAINING CITIZENS, even those who strongly oppose dissension to President Bush's war move, must remember the First Amendment right to peaceably assemble.

The actions of the Coalition for Mid-East Peace contradict the typical connotation of protests as violent and erratic.

Fears of terrorism have spread in the past week, and some may unjustly discriminate against those students, and some citizens may even feel uncomfortable with the presence of Mid-East students in this region.

THIS PORTION OF THE COMMUNITY must be the most tolerant of all. Sane thoughts must prevail over feelings of prejudice and discrimination, and compassion should be shown to those students whose families live overseas and directly face the threat of war each day.

While each minute passes with uncertainty, the community must tolerate the opposing views of others and place understanding above unwillingness to listen.

CARBONDALE HAS SEEN violent war protest before. In May 1970, hundreds of demonstrators clashed with SIUC police over U.S. involvement in Cambodia and the deaths of students from Kent State.

Building damage and fires across campus and the surrounding city resulted from protests that replaced a message with sheer emotion.

The message underlying this current opposition, if it remains organized and peaceful, will reach both our representatives and the community by fighting with intelligence instead of emotion.

Quotable Quotes

"He and his like will rot in hell." —said Saddam Hussein referring to Bush and his decision to use military force, adding that Bush is a "satan in the White House."

"We cannot make any changes in the situation there (Persian Gulf), so I think business as usual is the way to approach this." —SIUC President John C. Guyon said in reference to the Missouri Valley Conference voting to continue athletic events despite the war.

"It's o.k. to prefer a sports report to a casualty report." —Mike Downey of the Los Angeles Times said in reference to the possible cancellation of televised sports events because of the war.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potential libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed by its author. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

History close to repeating itself

I'm tired of the "Hawkeye Pierce Jr.s" chanting "no blood for oil." I agree, war is ugly. I'd rather have a contained war in the gulf, however, than to have another world war.

Thanks to the sissies of the world, however, Hussein was allowed additional weeks of preparation time for war.

Good pressure-pacifist idiots, instead of annihilating Iraq swiftly, let them fortify, consequently allowing more U.S. casualties. Peace demonstrators, look back at history.

Enraged by the Versailles Treaty, Hitler reversed its settlements by reclaiming the Rhineland and Sudeten land.

The political climate was similar to now with mutants recalling the last war's hell. Consequently, Hitler attempted world domination.

How many lives could have been saved if the sissies of the 1930s would have shut up sooner and made a stand against Hitler?

But then, Hitler practiced in Spain before executing the Blitzkrieg on Poland, France, et al., and had comrades in Italy and Japan.

Now, Hussein claims Kuwait is an old province of Iraq, has had practice in Iran for 8 years, and can count on Muron Kadaffi and Idiot Arafat. For me, there are too many parallels.

If this sounds like a history lesson, remember, "Those who fail to learn their history are doomed to repeat it."

Personally, I prefer peace to war. The "Peace Militia" need to take their blinders off and realize World War II didn't just happen—it was allowed, and we could allow another.

Actually, everything would be great if the CIA had an assassination policy. Hussein must evaporate for peace to exist.

"But no, let's again not confront Hussein, like we didn't confront Hitler, so history will repeat itself."

Sounds idiotic, huh? Implicitly, the U.S. pacifist girlie-men of the 1990s are trumpeting that as their motto.—John Wallace, graduate, experimental psychology.

U.S. influence justified overseas

This is a rebuttal of William Ford's comments about my letter.

First of all, the flag hasn't been displayed in any gaudy fashion, the military just won't allow our flags to be displayed anywhere—soldier's quarters, base camps, flag patches and on soldiers uniforms.

You say you don't want foreign flags flying in this country? Foreign flags have been flying here for decades, and there's nothing you can do to stop it!

Foreigners who live here display their flags, and if we allow them to fly them here, it's only fair that they let us fly our flags there, period.

Second of all, the comparison of the flag and the entertainment industry was to show that the military used bad judgment in thinking the flag would offend Saudis.

As for exposure, some people need to learn that some customs they perform are damaging their social status and are way behind the rest of the world's ways of life.

Third, you think the Constitution has no meaning to Americans abroad. Wrong.

It is in force in military bases and embassies abroad, and many countries modeled their constitutions after ours.

Finally as for other countries calling us the "Great Satan", only the countries that support terrorism or are untested refer to us as that because of the ruling parties' propaganda.

If you think Saudi Arabia would threaten us to get out of their country or die, then you are nuts!

Just like the rest of your comments ir, what looks to be a minority opinion.—Steven Lucas, freshman, computer processing information.

No Americans should lose blood for oil

No war in the Middle East!

Our Congress and president vote yes to war on Jan. 12. Will they be bloodshed after the fifteenth? I hope, wish, and pray no one will die for oil!

As our own people go hungry, homeless and under-educated, we plunge into war.

As our stock market crashes, taxes rise and jobs are lost, we march out of our borders to war.

As our forests are being depleted, our waters and soils are poisoned, we build bombs and sell chemical weapons.

When are the people of this great nation going to tell their Congress and president, "No more!"

President Bush and draft-dodger Vice-President Quayle tell us that the United States is in Saudi Arabia to free Kuwait.

If our leaders are so well-intentioned, then why haven't they seriously sought a solution to the Palestinian, South African and Cyprus problems? The war that might be fought in the Middle East is a poor person's war.

The state militias that are stationed in Saudi Arabia are composed of single mothers, needy students, fathers, sisters, brothers, daughters, sons and friends.

Thirty percent of those people are minorities that are trying to be "all that they can be" and supplement their incomes and educations.

Experts who tell us the war will last only a few weeks and cost no more than a couple of thousand lives, have delivered 45,000 body bags to our troops. No war is ever as short as the experts predict.

The experts predicted that the Civil War would last 90 days, with only a few casualties. That war lasted four years and cost half a million lives.

I urge everyone who wants peace, for whatever reason, to join a grassroots movement.

Please call 457-4487 or 549-7193 for more information.

In this modernized war there will be no winners—only bloodshed, chemical/biological death and ecological destruction of Grandmother Earth. Love thy neighbor, all of them.—Loie F. Morris, junior, political science.

WAR REPORT

Students demonstrate as war rages in Mideast

War brings protest, support from SIUC

By Amy Cooper and Tiffany Youther
Staff Writers

Reaction to Operation Desert Storm in the Persian Gulf brought protest as well as support from SIUC students and area residents.

The Coalition for Mid-East Peace protested the Persian Gulf war at the Federal Building, bringing mixed feelings from those attending.

Bill Quinlan, building manager of the Federal Building, said the protest was generally non-violent and non-destructive.

"It made everyone (working in the building) nervous because you never know what to expect," he said.

Protesters throw paint

Red paint was splattered against the front of the building Wednesday night, but Quinlan said he did not think the damage was related to Thursday's protest.

Beginning at noon, about 200 demonstrators spoke to the crowd, sang songs, read poetry, carried signs and distributed yellow armbands to onlookers.

Michael Parker, an SIUC student, said the government should have waited for sanctions to work. According to some U.S. senators, the sanctions slowly were draining the resources of the Iraqi army, he said.

A group of spectators shouting opposing views on the war from across the street sparked anger from several of the demonstrators, many of whom made their way across the street to argue.

Jeff Thom, an SIUC student opposing the protest, said now that the war has started, U.S. citizens should stand behind their president and support his decision to use military action. "The troops over there—they see this—and maybe these people aren't against them, but they see that, and I believe they get the opinion that these people are against them," Thom said.

"Now that we are at war, we have to get it over with the best way possible. We have to stop it now, because if we don't, there will come a time when we will have to go over there, and there might be a much greater loss of life," he said.

Student plays anthem

Near the end of the demonstration, SIUC student Eric Durdov stood on a roof and played the national anthem on his electric guitar. He said he did not agree with the protest.

"I support the troops in the gulf, and I am confident in our president and his decisions," Durdov said.

A few pro-war demonstrators were present at the demonstration.

Eric Tureson, an SIUC student, said he feels the protesters were ignoring the real issue.

"If they're truly for peace, I'd be seeing a sign here that said, 'Saddam get out of Kuwait,'" Tureson said. "We went in to help another nation. We need not start this."

Linda Stromberg, president of Friends for Native Americans and a member of the coalition, said she came to the rally because she believes the U.S. government cares nothing about people.

"All they care about is oil or anything pertaining to energy," Stromberg said. "They don't care if they are committing genocide, or whatever it is they're doing over there. I can't see blood for oil."

Resident speaks at rally

Sister Kathleen McGuire, a Carbondale resident, was one of the speakers at the rally.

"George Bush has said we are in the process of building a new world order," McGuire said. "But we are using all of the old tools, all of the old tactics and all of the old weapons. We cannot build a new world order out of old world material. The only thing we will get is an old world with a different shape."

Several SIUC students not present at the rally said they firmly supported U.S. military action.

"It's too late to keep talking. I

College students react to war in gulf

By Jackie Spinner

Students at college campuses around the country Thursday learned about living through a war—many for the first time.

The textbooks that taught them were the same, the lessons they learned much different.

Lucy Soto, news editor at the University of South Carolina Gamecock, said demonstrators were silent on the South Carolina campus Thursday, although professors participated in a teach-in against the war Tuesday.

"Everyone was buzzing with talk of the war," said the senior from Greenville, S.C., "but there were no formal protests or marches."

Soto said students at the University of South Carolina are split between support for and against military force in the gulf.

At Eastern Illinois University in Charleston, nobody demonstrated Thursday against the war or in support of military force, said Lori Higgins, campus editor for the Daily Eastern News.

"Nothing has gone on and nothing is planned," she said.

Higgins, a senior from Chicago, said most students turned to television networks for information about the war against Iraq.

Students at Howard University in Washington, D.C., did more than watch protests from televised reports, said Jennifer Goslon, campus editor for the Howard University Hilltop.

"These people aren't dealing with television," said the sophomore from Fort Washington, Md. "You look out the window, and (the protesters) are there."

Group urges U.S. support

By Amy Cooper

A group gathered Thursday to encourage motorists to honk to support U.S. military action in the Persian Gulf.

Scott Williams, specialist in the Carbondale unit of the Illinois National Guard, stood in battle fatigues in front of the Interfaith Center at the corner of South Illinois Avenue and Grand Avenue holding a "Honk to support our troops" sign.

"I wanted to hear from the silent majority who support our troops," Williams said. "This is patriotism."

Only about one in seven cars were not responding to the sign, he said.

Mike McGuigan, freshman in law enforcement from Schaumburg, and Brian Sharp, sophomore in administration of justice from Decatur, were two of about 12 who gathered with Williams.

"We want to get the people behind the troops," Sharp said.

McGuigan said a few motorists gave obscene gestures, and others yelled to "go join the Army."

"You can avoid them, but you can't ignore them," she said. Golson said students at Howard who want to protest military force in the gulf can do so directly to the gulf war players because the university is located in the nation's capitol. "It's a direct response to the president himself," she said. Scott Forbes, student trustee at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana, said students are spending a lot of time listening to the radio and watching television.

Anti-war protesters planned to protest at the city building around 4 p.m. Thursday as other anti-war protesters demonstrated on campus around noon, said Steve Warmowski, photographer for the Daily Illini. About 300 students Thursday marched down Sheridan Road in Evanston toward Chicago, Julie Anthony said from the Daily Northwestern newsroom at Northwestern University. "A lot of people just don't know what they support," the city desk reporter said. "They want to support the troops, but don't want war." Kevin Sheh, assistant city editor at the Arizona State University Press in Tempe, Ariz., said about 200 students debated the gulf war on campus Thursday. Sheh said talk of the war was everywhere around the ASU campus Thursday, and developments later in the day made increased tensions among students. "We're watching the attack on Israel right now," the sophomore from Chicago said. "Everyone's pretty horrified."

think we should be there until we eventually win," said Amy Welch, a sophomore in English from Le Roy. Welch and others said they did not agree with the anti-war protest. "It's great that they want peace and they're trying to get the Americans home, but you still have to support the government," said Julian Lambert, a junior in civil engineering technology from Wheaton. "I just hope it ends quickly with the least amount of casualties possible," he said.

The protesters aren't going to do any good, Welch said. She said she would have liked to have gone to the protest to see what the protesters had to say but basically feels the time for peaceful talks is over.

unknown number of missiles began exploding in Israel shortly after 2 a.m. (6 p.m. Central Standard Time Thursday).

In Tel Aviv, one missile left a smoking crater, indicating a conventional warhead.

At the White House, press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Iraq also launched a missile attack against Saudi Arabia, but gave no details on the exact target or any casualties.

"The president is outraged at and condemns this further aggression by Iraq. Coalition forces in the gulf are attacking missile sites and other targets in Iraq," Fitzwater said.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said a "handful" of Iraqi SCUD missiles hit Israel in the first wave.

He could not confirm any target or whether the missiles contained chemical or biological warheads.

A senior Pentagon official said he was "relatively certain" that permanent SCUD sites in Iraq were knocked out by allied bombings. He said he believed the missiles used against Israel were launched from mobile sites in Iraq said to be maintained underground.

An Israeli Embassy official in Washington who requested anonymity said his government could confirm that eight missiles exploded in Israel, two in Tel Aviv, two in Haifa, three in unpopulated areas and one in an unknown location.

Israelis were warned to don gas masks and stay in sealed rooms. About an hour and 15 minutes later, civil defense officials said residents could remove the masks but should stay inside the sealed rooms.

The air attack was the first against Israel since the 1973 Yom Kippur War.

On the Iraqi front, allied officials said the U.S.-led air attack against Saddam's forces was conducted on several levels, from B-52 bombers assaulting positions occupied by Iraq's elite Republican Guards to the dropping of propaganda leaflets.

The raids continued steadily during the first 24 hours of the war, and Fitzwater ruled out any pause.

"We don't think there is any need for a pause for Saddam to change his mind," he said. "If at any point he wants to change course here, all he has to do is surrender and comply with all the U.N. resolutions."

Allied military leaders were assessing the bombing raids on Iraq's chemical and nuclear weapons plants and the fixed SCUD missile sites.

The early Iraqi response had been limited, although Iraq did shell the Saudi border town of Khafji, forcing a small evacuation.

Reports of damage in Iraq and Kuwait were sketchy. A Kuwaiti official said in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, that resistance leaders inside his country said the bombing raids had caused hundreds of Iraqi casualties and many of Saddam's troops have abandoned their posts.

Pentagon officials were clearly pleased with the way the early stages of the operation had gone, although the possibility of a long, deadly ground war to remove Iraq from Kuwait remained.

"So far, so good," Defense Secretary Richard Cheney said at a briefing. Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, added, "I think we have damaged their command and control system. I don't think it's collapsed yet."

Meanwhile, financial markets' euphoria over the U.S.-led allies' successes in their opening air gambit in the Persian Gulf dissipated late Thursday—already Friday in Japan—on reports Iraq had lashed out at Israel with missiles.

Word that eight to 10 missiles landed in the vicinity of Haifa, Tel Aviv and other points in Israel, apparently fired from Iraqi SCUD mobile launchers, put a damper on the ebullient Tokyo Stock Exchange, then up by 400 points.

The key Nikkei average ended the morning at 23,676.39, up 229.58 points. At mid-morning, it had been down 80-plus points on the missile reports.

African-American race.

"I feel that it is a conspiracy," Washington said, "a conspiracy to, by any means necessary, to destroy people of color. You take away minority scholarships and grants and offer the military as the only means of income. There's something 'rotten in the cotton'."

A breakdown of the number of African-American and other minority soldiers is as follows:

- In the Army, African Americans comprise 28.9 percent of the total number of enlistments and 29.8 percent of the total number of soldiers in the gulf. As a whole, minorities make up 34.7 percent of the total number of enlistments and 35.5 percent of soldiers in the gulf.

- In the Navy, African-Americans comprise 14.8 percent of the total number of enlistments and 21.3 percent of the total number of soldiers in the gulf. As a whole, minorities make up 24.4 percent of the total number of enlistments and 31.6 percent of the soldiers in the gulf.

- In the Marine Corps, African-Americans comprise 19 percent of the total number of enlistments and 15.9 percent of the total number of soldiers in the gulf. As a whole, minorities make up 34.1 percent of the total number of enlistment and 27.4 percent of the soldiers in the gulf.

- In the Air Force, African-Americans comprise 15.2 percent of the total number of enlistments and 13.5 of the total number of soldiers in the gulf. As a whole, minorities make up 21.1 percent of the total number of enlistments and 18.3 of the total number of soldiers in the gulf.

United States had overestimated Iraq.

"They forgot Iraq is a Third World Country with a second-rate military," Derge said. "It might be large, but it's not good."

Stauber said he is concerned about the military becoming overconfident after its initial success.

"None of us is there, no one knows how damaged the Iraqi military is," he said. "I'm fearful of the mistake of over confidence leading to beginning a ground war too soon."

A ground war would be Saddam Hussein's strength, Stauber said.

"I'm somewhat alarmed about things that seem to hint that ground action was considered in the next day or so," he said. "I'm alarmed because it could lead to high and unneeded casualties."

The issue of a high number of casualties has raised questions about a draft, but Derge said the situation was improbable.

said her son Keith who flies aboard C-130 cargo planes with the 314th Tactical Air Wing Unit, called his wife a few days ago to say that he was fine.

Gene Temple of Carbondale said his son, Scott, a pilot with the 101st Airborne Division, has been in the military for 14 years.

He said he received a call from the younger Temple just before Christmas, and got a letter a few days later. Gene Temple said he is concerned about his son, but has dealt with this sort of situation before.

"I feel really confident in my son," Gene Temple said.

Sandy Fisher of Anna said her husband Jim, a mechanic with the 1244th Illinois National Guard Unit, called Wednesday. He said he was transporting supplies, rations and troops into the Persian Gulf, and would call with more information soon, she said.

Group inserts unauthorized protest flyers

By Tiffany Youter
Staff Writer

Flyers for an anti-war protest organized by the Coalition for Mid-East Peace were inserted into issues of the Daily Egyptian Thursday without authorization from the newspaper's business office.

Catherine Hagler, business manager for the DE, said she could not reach any member of the coalition for comment on the matter but would keep trying.

Hagler said she plans to discuss the regular procedure for DE inserts with coalition representatives so this will not happen again.

She said the charge for inserts ranges from $185 for 5,000 inserts to $729 for full circulation.

Hagler said it appeared that issues of the DE had been removed from racks at the Student Center and were redistributed containing inserts in small stacks throughout the building.

She said a stack of newspapers containing the insert was seen on the Mid-American Peace Project table on the north side of the Student Center.

BAC breakfast to recognize King

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

SIUC's Black Affairs Council will participate in a breakfast meeting to recognize the birthday of the late Martin Luther King Jr.

The breakfast, scheduled for 8 a.m. Monday in the Student Center Ballrooms, is sponsored by the Carbondale chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

A keynote speech will be delivered by Otha Davis, executive vice president of the Springfield Urban League, said Antonio Washington, BAC coordinator.

"(The breakfast) signifies an effort by African-American individuals to come together and unite for justice and equality," Washington said.

Davis, a former Carbondale resident, has been active in Springfield's Urban League since 1975 and was promoted to his present position in 1983.

Contacted at his office Thursday, Davis said his brief address will "center on the need for heroes in the community."

"Today, we, especially as African-Americans, want to be role models for young blacks," Davis said.

Davis said he sees King's philosophies as fully relevant to the war currently between the United States and Iraq.

"(King's work) is definitely applicable to what's going on today," Davis said. "Dr. King, to me, was a citizen of the world. The direction he was trying to move was one of world justice."

SIUC buildings undergo spring renovations

By Amy Cooper
Staff Writer

One of the oldest buildings on campus will get a new look this spring as part of a $2 million renovation project.

Wheeler Hall renovations will begin by mid-March, said Alan Haake, supervising architect for SIUC's Physical Plant.

Other campus buildings also will undergo repairs and renovations this spring, he said.

Funds were released in May 1990 for the project as part of the state's Capital Budget. The Illinois Capital Development Board will administer the project, Haake said.

Heating, cooling, electrical and plumbing systems in the 88-year-old building will be updated and attic space will be remodeled to increase the building's operating space, Haake said.

"It's just an old building and we're going to give it a total renovation," he said.

Also, asbestos will be removed from the building before renovation projects begin. But the asbestos is minimal and most of it has already been removed, he said.

The majority of administrative offices and classrooms for the School of Medicine occupying Wheeler Hall have been relocated to the Baptist Student Center for the 14- to 15-month renovation period, Haake said.

The move has caused minimal inconvenience for School of Medicine faculty and staff, Haake said.

Work also will begin on other repair projects on campus with the aid of the Build Illinois fund, said Donald Wilson, treasurer of the SIU Board of Trustees and vice chancellor for financial affairs.

SIUC will receive about $2.2 million through the fund and about $1 million will be allocated to the SIU School of Medicine in Springfield.

SIUC's projects include an expansion of the campus central cooling system, roof repairs in the Communications Building and a section of Faner Hall, and fire alarm system improvements in Shryock Auditorium, the Arena, Rehn Hall, Lawson Hall and Lindgren Hall, Wilson said.

The projects have no order of priority and all of the repairs and renovations are things that need completion, he said.

SIUC has been allocated about $800,000 for the expansion of its central cooling system.

The Build Illinois fund, a separate program of the state capital budget, was designed to enhance economic development.

Former Gov. James R. Thompson established the program as a temporary five-year fund.

This is the last year the Build Illinois fund will be in effect, Wilson said.

Dentist to pay $19 million for fraud

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A dentist who illegally charged the government for unauthorized cancer screenings on elderly patients must pay nearly $19 million in the largest judgment ever in a Medicare fraud case.

John Lorenzo, 56, of Bala Cynwyd, outside of Philadelphia, was ordered to reimburse the federal government $18.8 million for filing 3,683 false claims for reimbursement under Medicare, according to a judgment filed Tuesday.

U.S. District Judge Joseph McGlynn ruled, in a non-jury trial, that Lorenzo illegally billed the federal insurance program for the elderly for dental exams of nursing home patients in Pennsylvania and

New Jersey.

Between 1983 and 1988, Lorenzo assigned dentists — most of them recent dental-school graduates employed by a company headed by Lorenzo's wife, Diana — to screen the patients for oral cancer.

In 1986, he began billing Medicare for the exams.

Drug successful in treating kids' AIDS infections

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An immune-boosting drug has proven successful in fending off deadly infections that often kill children who have the AIDS virus, government researchers announced Thursday.

A nationwide study of 372 children who showed symptoms of AIDS found that intravenous doses of a substance called immunoglobulin markedly reduced the development of serious bacterial infections, the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development said.

The results were so impressive that officials announced they are halting the study, and immediately starting giving the therapy to those children in the study who had been receiving phony infusions for comparison purposes.

Only about 1 percent of the youngsters suffered adverse reactions from the drug, researchers said.

Students to occupy positions on off-track betting coalition

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

SIUC students will sit on Carbondale's new off-track betting facility task force.

Officials from Fairmount Park, a race track in Collinsville, have been in contact with city officials since summer 1990 about the possibility of locating an off-track wagering facility in Carbondale, City Manager Steve Hoffner said.

An SIUC student will occupy at least one of the five resident spaces appointed by Carbondale Mayor Neil Dillard, Hoffner said.

Charles Ramsey, president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council, said he would like to see students occupy three positions.

The Undergraduate Student Government and GPSC were contacted by the city manager and will choose the student representative.

The council must approve the student representative.

"(Off-track betting) could be a potentially large concern (for students)," said Richard Fasano, a graduate assistant for the Wellness Center. "Gambling can be an addiction just like alcohol and drugs. Students might start spending their school loan checks (at the betting facility) instead of for school."

The 11-member task force will study the possible effects that a betting facility could have on the city. Task force members will include two people each from the Chamber of Commerce, Carbondale Development Corporation and the Convention and Tourism Bureau.

"We want to have people on the committee who know something about it and who will ask questions and speak their minds," Dillard said. "They must have some spare time and be willing to travel to one of the other facilities."

The council will make appointments for these positions at its next meeting Jan. 29.

Fasano said another concern for the task force is controlling the access of the facility to prevent underage gambling.

A similar facility in a Peoria recreation center has had problems with underage gambling, Fasano said, because the recreation center is a popular place for high school students.

Fasano said the facility should be separated from any building or activity that attracts minors.

Fairmount already has off-track wagering facilities in Springfield and Grayville.

If a facility were to locate in Carbondale it would be similar to the Springfield facility, according to a letter sent to city officials from Brian Zander, vice president and general manager of Fairmount Park.

The Springfield facility generated more than $164,000 in wagering taxes for the city. "We're treating this as a new business," Dillard said. "It must meet state laws and city regulations."

In 1987, a similar facility attempting to locate in Carbondale was opposed and the issue never reached the council. But it remains to be seen if there will be the same kind of opposition for this facility, Hoffner said.

Fairmount has a policy of only locating in areas where its venture is well-received.

Terrorism task force formed by state police

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois State Police Thursday opened a center called the "Crisis Action Team" to deal with possible terrorism threats and to intensify intelligence gathering.

State police spokesman Bob Fletcher said the agency began to gear-up when the threat of world hostilities increased. By coincidence, Fletcher said, the CAT opened at nearly the same moment as forces from the United States and its allies began to rain bombs and missiles on Iraq and occupied Kuwait.

"Essentially, it's an extension of our intelligence gathering capability," he said. "It's to handle information about potential terrorist activities."

Fletcher said the state police's Division of Criminal Investigation is in charge of the operation at its intelligence analysis branch in Springfield.

"Our intelligence covers a wide range of topics," Fletcher said. "We have one of the most extensive files on gypsies, terrorists and white supremacist groups."

"We have a very extensive intelligence reach with the FBI, our own people and the Chicago Police," he said, adding the center is also the Midwest center for the European police agency Interpol.

However, Fletcher said there was not a specific fear of terrorism in the Prairie State.

"There is absolutely no indication of any terrorist threat to any facilities in Illinois," he said. "Nevertheless, we want to be able to gather and disseminate information to local or federal authorities."

Gov. Jim Edgar, in only his third day of office, told reporters he has been consulting with the state police.

"Everything that needs to be done that can be done is being done at the state in this time," Edgar said. "I don't want to create a panic out there but necessary security steps have been taken."

"In most cases they were taken before yesterday, but I think everyone is aware of the potential for problems. The state has taken the necessary steps and I think the same is true of all the other levels of government that have responsibility for security," he said.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

Please Be Sure To Check Your Classified Advertisement For Errors On The First Day Of Publication

The Daily Egyptian cannot be responsible for more than one day's incorrect insertion. Advertisers are responsible for checking their advertisements for errors on the first day they appear. Errors not the fault of the advertiser which lessen the value of the advertisement will be adjusted.

All classified advertising must be processed before 12:00 Noon to appear in the next day's publication. Anything processed after 12:00 Noon will go in the following day's publication. Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for those accounts with established credit. A 25¢ charge will be added to billed classified advertising. A service charge of $7.50 will be added to the advertiser's account for every check returned to the Daily Egyptian unpaid by the advertiser's bank. Early cancellation of a classified advertisement will be charged a $2.00 service fee. Any refund under $2.00 will be forfeited due to the cost of processing.

All advertising submitted to the Daily Egyptian is subject to approval and may be revised, rejected, or cancelled at any time.

The Daily Egyptian assumes no liability if for any reason it becomes necessary to omit an advertisement.

A sample of all mail-order items must be submitted and approved prior to deadline for publication.

No ads will be mis-classified.

Iraq takes CNN, NBC off the air

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three CNN reporters, after broadcasting the gunfire and bomb blasts in Baghdad via a special telephone system for more than 16 hours, were taken off the air Thursday at noon CST.

NBC-Baghdad, reporting through more conventional means, also was cut off.

CNN's Bernard Shaw, John Holliman and Peter Arnett, broadcasting from a room on the ninth floor of the Hotel Al Rasheed, reported at 7:35 p.m. CST on Wednesday that they heard what sounded like an air attack. ABC reported the same thing. The war had begun.

CNN was able to continue broadcasting through the night using what spokeswoman Beth Comstock described as a four-wire telephone system, which picked up for American television audiences the sounds of bombs, anti-aircraft and other fire.

"It is essentially a private, dedicated open phone line that does not go through the standard switching system of standard telephone systems," she said. "It has two lines in each direction. It is a direct microwave communication to Amman, Jordan, where we transmitted by satellite to the United States.

"As of (noon CST) Thursday we were told by the Iraqi government that we could no longer use our four-wire, so we do not have contact with them right now. We will do everything we can to get it re-established."

NBC News spokeswoman

Katherine McQuay said NBC had applied to the Iraqis for permission to install the same kind of equipment after the Iraqis invaded Kuwait in August.

"As recently as December we renewed our request," she said, "but the Iraqi government denied it and only gave permission to use that technology to CNN."

She said correspondent Tom Aspell was on the air from Baghdad live at 10:40 a.m. Thursday morning when he announced that Iraq was terminating satellite communications and he was cut off shortly afterwards.

ABC News depended on the telephone line out of the hotel for its reports from Gary Shepard.

"The war issue is a serious one and one that needs to be taken into consideration," Viverito said, "but it is being left up to the individual institutions right now."

English said many universities inquired last week about the possibility of suspending games if war broke out. He checked with the NCAA's communication staff, which had been discussing the topic earlier this week among conferences and member institutions, and it appeared that there were not any plans to cancel games if war broke out.

Men hope to qualify for NCAA at home

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

Coming off a strong meet performance last weekend, the SIUC men's track and field team is preparing for its first home meet Saturday at the Recreation Center.

Men's track and field coach Bill Cornell said he thinks his team is ready even though it is not in top condition because of the holiday break.

"We are in better shape than usual, and I do think this will be a close meet for us," Cornell said. "Anytime you have Georgia Tech, two Southeast Conference schools, and the other talent we have in this meet, you know it will be competitive."

Last year, Georgia Tech took first place and beat the Salukis by one point, but Cornell said this year he also expects competition from Mississippi and Mississippi State.

Cornell said his team is ready, but he recognizes the fact that it has some holes in the pole vault and 400-meter events. He said everyone must be ready to fill in the holes and concentrate on his strong events.

"We are also excited about the possibility of several NCAA qualifiers," Cornell said. "Along with Darrin Plab who qualified last week, I think we have potential qualifiers in Ed Williams (high hurdles), Bernard Henry (800 meters), Gerallt Owen (mile and 3,000 meters) and Mark Stuart (3,000 and 5,000 meters)."

Nick Schwartz is also an NCAA hopeful who Cornell expects great things from. "He will get near the four-minute mile before the year is out," Cornell said. "He is in the best shape of his life and should enjoy a great 1991 season."

Some strong athletes from the opposing teams are Mississippi's George Kersh who ranked fifth in the world last year in the 800 meters and Arkansas State's pole vaulting team which won all five places in the event last year. Cornell urges fans to come to the meet which starts at approximately 9:30 a.m..

"This is a chance for track and field fans to see an outstanding meet in one of the best spectator facilities in the country," Cornell said. "I think the men's meet will be extremely close again this year, with some nationally-known individuals representing their schools."

"I certainly hope people who have yet to see the new indoor facility will take time to come over Saturday and experience the excitement of this type of meet."

computers or whatever. I can understand why it has to be done, because of some of the abuses that have occurred in some NCAA sports. It's just too bad it has to come down to this."

The new ruling that will reduce football scholarships from 95 to 85, basketball scholarships from 15 to 13 and will cut by 10 percent scholarships in all other Division I sports is receiving the brunt of the criticism. The cuts will take effect within the next three years.

"The scholarship reduction hurts," Scott said. "The opportunities we're trying to provide to student-athletes are being taken away. It should be the last place to cut."

The vote on that issue was 273 for and 52 against. SIUC President John Guyon, who represented SIUC at the convention, was one of 52 university presidents to vote against the proposal, SIUC Athletics Director Jim Hart said.

"It's clear that the NCAA's cost-reduction programs need to go into effect," Guyon said, "But as far as SIUC is concerned, cutting scholarships was not the best way for us to cut costs. Both philosophically and practically it was not the best way to go."

Hart, Guyon, assistant athletics director Charlotte West and faculty representatives Jack Cody and Margaret Matthias met before the convention to discuss how SIUC would vote on the various proposals. Hart said the group agreed in voting against the scholarship proposal.

NCAA Convention Highlights

A summary of the major proposals acted upon at the 85th annual NCAA Convention last week in Nashville, Tenn.

RECRUITING

- Reduced to 70 from 85 the paid recruiting visits Division I and I-AA football programs may offer each year. Reduced from 18 to 15 the paid visits in Division I basketball.

- Required a standardized test of NCAA rules and certification of coaches who recruit off campus.

COST-REDUCTION

- Limited the playing seasons and practice time in Division I and II. Cuts seasons from 26 weeks to 22 for individual sports and team sports other than football and basketball. Cut the number of contests in most sports. Basketball went from 28 to 27, but actually gained two games in that basketball was scheduled to be cut from 28 to 25 next year. Mandated an obligatory day off from practice a week for all athletes. Limited practice time to four hours a day, 20 hours a week and eight hours a week in the off-season.

- Reduced football scholarships from 95 to 85 over three years in Division I-A football and from 15 to 13 over two years in Division I basketball.

ACADEMICS

- Required athletes entering their fourth year in school to have completed 50 percent of their requirements toward a degree.
- Defeated a proposal to require Division I schools to graduate at least 50 percent of their scholarship athletes.

GENERAL

- Abolish athletic dormitories by 1996.
- Require a school, in order to maintain Division I membership, sponsor seven men's sports and seven women's sports.
- Established minimums in institutional and need-based aid options to maintain Division I membership. Two of the options are (1) spending at least $250,000 on scholarships for women and men, excluding football and basketball; (2) offering at least 25 full scholarships for women and men, excluding basketball.
