SIUC student accused in East Campus rape

DAILY EYPISTAN REPORTER

University Police arrested a 19-year-old SIUC student Thursday evening, charging him in connection with an alleged East Campus rape that occurred Wednesday. The victim, a 19-year-old female, reported the incident around 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Along with Chang, three men accused in area sexual assaults were released from Jackson County Jail this weekend. Chang, two other SIUC-students and a Carbondale man accused of separate rapes posted $500 bonds and were released from the jail.

Chang posted bond Friday and was released from the jail. Orlando R. Rogers, a 23-year-old from Carbondale, who is a Balliol football player scheduled to produce in May also was released from jail after posting bond Saturday.

University Police issued a warrant for the arrest of Angela J. Fine, 22, in connection with the rape that occurred in East Campus Dec. 3.

As of press time, Chang had not been arraigned, and police said they do not believe he is in the area.

Wendall Allen, of Stokoe, and Sammam J. Hardimon, an SIUC student from Peoria, both 18 years old, were arrested and charged with three counts of criminal sexual assault and attempted sexual assault in the alleged Dec. 3 rape. The two were released from Jackson County Jail on $500 bond after their first court appearance Thursday.

As of press time, Matthew Bay, 21, and William Lynch, 26, were being detained in Jackson County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail. Bay was charged with criminal sexual assault in an alleged rape that occurred Oct. 6. According to Carbondale Police, Bay sexually assaulted a 17-year-old girl at his residence in the 300 block of South Lewis Lane.

Carbondale Police arrested Lynch and accused him of the Dec. 4 criminal sexual assault of a 21-year-old woman who was visiting friends at the Holiday Inn Annex in the 900 block of East Main Street.

Court dates of those charged with the assaults were not available Saturday.

-- Of the six reported rapes in the area since October, authorities said all but the Dec. 4 occurred in situations where the victim and suspect were acquainted.

Resolution addresses spending of tuition, fees

The Faculty Senate will address concerns of SIU President Ted Sanders' use of the income fund at its meeting Tuesday.

A resolution submitted by the Faculty Senate Budget Committee calls for the chancellor's use of the income fund to be brought before the faculty under personnel legislation that report the report of the Senate's Administrative and Academic Affairs Committee. The resolution also requests that any future studies on university business practices include an assessment of regional economic impact and consult with campus organizations before making decisions that "significantly impact campus operations.

Two of the six SIUC employees involved in the school's administrative changes announced Wednesday will receive salary increases, according to University News Service.

Two of the four remaining are pending salary negotiations. SIUC Chancellor L. Gene Angerberger announced changes in three positions associated with the Chancellor's Office in a press conference Wednesday.

Harold Bard, director of SIUC's MedPrep program and associate professor of the School of Medicine, and Raymond Lenzi, director of SIUC's Economic and Regional Development Office, will receive salary increases when they take their new positions.

Bard will receive $10,000 or less from athletic directors, according to Sue Davis of the University News Service. Bardo replaces Athletic Director Jim Hart, who was chosen by Angerberger to fill the new position of associate chancellor for external affairs. Hart's salary will remain at $50,000.

Lenzi, who replaces Tobi Britton as vice chancellor of Institutional Advancement, will receive a $49,990 salary increase. His salary will go from $72,414.56 to nearly $97,000. Britton will return to the School of Law as the associate dean of administration, and the School of Law will negotiate his salary. As insurance, Chancellor Britton made $118,452.

"The University is still working on the details," Davis said. "He won't take a salary cut, but I don't know if he will get more."

Andrew, alum of the School of Business, will keep his salary of $170,314 as he picks up duties as a law school dean and inside vice chancellor of academic affairs. Guerry will replace Vice Chancellor John Sullivan when he takes his position. Jule Jackson will step down as vice chancellor and return to teaching and research.

Jackson's salary of $130,181.04 will be negotiated when he returns to teaching. Davis said, Angerberger indicated Hart, Baptist, Lenzi and Guerry at the press conference. However, Britton and Jackson were not in attendance.

Jackson said he did not feel it would be appropriate for him to attend the press conference. He said he felt the press conference was an opportunity for Angerberger to introduce himself to the campus.

"There were decisions made," Angerberger said at the press conference. "It was done in a way that we always had, it was never one issue or not an issue, but it's a way of really understanding what the future is and what the expectations are."

Jackson said it was his decision to resign. He also said he felt the timing was appropriate.

"It was a good time for me to go back to political science," Jackson said. "I was right for [Angerberger], and it was the right opportunity for her to put together her own administrative team. Now was a good time to do that."

Britton could not be reached for comment. The Chancellor's and Ryan Keith contributed to this article.

Corrections

In the Friday section of The Egyptian, the brief titled "Fire WARNING comes to Copper Dragons" was completely inaccurate. The brief instead should have mentioned Dr. Sheng's trip to Copper Dragons Friday night.

In Friday's Brief section, the Dorcows were incorrectly said to perform Friday from 8 p.m. to midnight. The correct time is Saturday from 8 p.m. to midnight, 1620 W. Main St. The group performed Saturday.

The EGYPTIAN regrets this error.

FUNDAMENTAL SOUL:
Exhibit displays self-caught "African-American folk art".

BY VERA L. RAEVES

Art initiates life. Life initiates art. Without the soul there is no life; therefore, art must initiate the soul.

"Fundamental Soul: The Hager Gift of Self-Taught African-American Art," is the extensive collection of artwork created by African-Americans. The exhibition is on display in the JAC Museum and Art Galleries, 1300 North 15th Street, through the end of the month.

"We have gathered many of the best African-American artists whose work has been displayed at the JAC Museum," said curator Thelma H. Jones. "These artists are well known and respected for their work in the art world. The exhibition is open to the public and is a great opportunity to learn about the history of African-American art.

The exhibition includes works by well-known artists such as Jacob Lawrence, Elizabeth Catlett, and John Biggers. The works range from paintings and sculptures to mixed media and prints.

The JAC Museum is located on the corner of North 15th Street and 1st Avenue. It is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10:00 am to 5:00 pm.

SPC experiences difficulties with change in control

ISSUES: Departure from Student Development jurisdiction delayed due to financial complications

By Dan Craft

Complications have indefinitely delayed the Student Programming Council's move from the Student Center's jurisdiction.

"The move, originally predicted to be complete by the beginning of the semester, may now not be completed until December," said Dan Craft, the SPC chairman.

The move is being held up because of financial issues.

"The administration has insisted on having all the paperwork in order before the move can proceed," said Craft. "This has caused a delay in the process.

The SPC is working with the administration to resolve the financial issues and move forward with the move.

SPC members are frustrated by the delay and are hoping to move as soon as possible.

"We are pushing for the move to happen as soon as possible," said Craft. "We understand the financial issues, but we need to move forward.

NCAA seeks protection from biased lawsuits

WASHINGTON — The NCAA is fighting to prevent lawsuits that could prejudice collegiate female athletes, asking the Supreme Court to protect it from lawsuits based on federal or state law.

The NCAA contends that the Supreme Court is the proper venue for such cases, and that the NCAA is entitled to protection from lawsuits that would prejudice its ability to recruit and provide educational opportunities for female athletes.

Lawyer for Yale student expects plea agreement

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—An Ohio woman accused of taking credentials that gained her admittance to Yale University continues to be the subject of mystery and intrigue after her arrest appeared in court Thursday and showed photos of her bound and gagged.

Woman A, as she doesn't know who sent him the anonymous letter, which appears to be on university letterhead, or if the disturbing image attached. The author claims to be someone in the neurobiology program. The 23-year-old Tonica Jenkins was enrolled. According to Pantis, the letter states that Yale has treated Jenkins unfairly.

Though Pantis said much of the letter is incoherent, claims warrant further investigation. Superior Court Judge Kevin Fasano agreed and gave Pantis one week to get to the bottom of the matter. Fasano also told Jenkins that he would not sign her request.

"Do you understand?" he asked her.

Jenkins nodded but did not speak during Thursday's hearing, which was supposed to be her last chance to accept plea bargains before she faces trial on charges of forgery, escape and two counts of failure to appear in court. If convicted, Jenkins could spend 50 years in prison.

No matter who crafted the mysterious letter, it isn't likely to get Jenkins back into the esteemed university. She is accused of using home in East Cleveland, Ohio, claiming that its claims warrant further investigation. Fasano approved and gave Pantis one week to get to the bottom of the matter. Fasano also told Jenkins that he would not sign her request.

Quigley Hall site for new Macintosh computer lab

KELLY E. HERRIEN
DAILY EUPHONIAN REPORTER

A new computer lab will open in Quigley Hall in March for students enrolled in the College of Applied Sciences and Art and the Department of Art and Design.

The joint effort between the college and the department is to replace the small and outdated computer facility, one official said.

The new computer lab will be located in rooms 106 and 108 of Quigley Hall. Previously used as training classrooms, the spaces have been transformed, remodeled and refurbished to provide 25 Macintosh stations.

Scott Frisch, director of the computer department for the College of Applied Science and Art, said creating the lab has been a combined effort on the part of all the students and college.

"For three years we have been sharing computing 2nd space with the Art and Design students," he said. "We're rolling for a new network and those things required in order to allow the ability to compete with other universities and institutions.

WASHINGTON — When the Senate begins to consider the next steps in the impeachment trial of President Clinton, the first key vote may have nothing to do with acquittal or conviction. Instead, the first vote is likely to be about whether its deliberations over Clinton's conduct will be held in public view or, as the rules now require, in closed sessions.

As things now stand, even the debate leading up to a vote on opening closed-door sessions will take place behind closed doors.

The dispute, which crosses party lines and has split the chamber into the background during the opening phase of the trial, is a clash between history and modernity, a debate between those who have been sensitized by rules crafted in the mid-19th century for the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson and the expectations of openness in government and instant communication at the end of the 20th century.

On one side are two Democratic senators, Tom Harkin, Iowa, and Paul D. Wellstone, Massachusetts, who want to suspend its rules and allow a full debate of the Clinton trial. On the other side are Republicans, notably Majority Leader Trent Lott, Mississippi, and other senators who want to suspend its rules and allow a full debate of the Clinton trial. They are backed by institutions that do not want to see any evidence. And the Senate, which is the body that will determine whether the Clinton trial has unfolded in an orderly manner so far only because it was able to reach unanimous agreement on the initial steps during a closed-door meeting on Jan. 8.

"The public isn't going to believe in this political process if we go into secret or closed sessions," Wellstone said. "The public is not going to have trust in what we are doing if they don't get a chance to evaluate our debate and what we are saying and why we reached the conclusions we reached."

"We have a unique opportunity here. We have a unique and unparalleled opportunity to set the standard for the country." Wellstone said. "We need to remember that there is no cure."

"We’re not good enough to just be pretty and roll up and down and cuss out somebody," Weber said. "I told them if we could hang straight for 30 minutes, 41.08. She also ran a stem-best time in the mile."

"You get no downs there and you’re down 13."

"Andersen did close the show," said Beck. "He was a little bit over it, but Andersen also had the weight of $200,000 bonus riding for theNick."

"The Salukis’ final champion was Sophomore Joy Cutrano, who won the 200-meter dash, with a time of 24.31, winning by a length."

"We’re really strong there," Beck said. "Before we started, we had people step up and fill that need or third."

Bruce Weber was right. His team is learning to know how to win — under any circumstances.

"The win was in the first half," Weber said in his postgame radio show. "I wasn't afraid, but that's how you win on the road."

Junior guard Ricky Calliam led the Salukis with 15 points and four assists. Jefferson, a senior guard, added 14 points and four rebounds.

The Salukis more than doubled their output after the 26 turnovers; they were only able to hit 39 percent from the field in the 73-58 loss to Creighton Saturday afternoon. Senior guard Monte Morris had yet to see his team lose at home:

"It's probably the most ugly-beautiful win we've ever had," Weber said in his postgame radio show. "I wasn't afraid, but that's how you win on the road."

Junior guard Ricky Calliam led the Salukis with 15 points and four assists. Jefferson, a senior guard, added 14 points and four rebounds.

The Salukis have contained their opponents to less than 60 points this season.

"We just said 'What kind of character do you have,'" Weber said. "Are you going to hang in there, or are you going to give up? Bounces went our way, but if you believe and you keep that aggressiveness, sometimes that happens."

The Salukis gradually allowed the head down before finally gaining their first lead of the second half at 49-48 on two free throws from Thunell, with 3:10 left. Thunell caused a jumper nearly two minutes later to open a 3-50 lead.

Event would score his team's final basket to bring the Salukis within one point. Besides that, his two lay free throws with 19 seconds left to seal the win. It marked the eighth time the Salukis have trailed their opponents to less than 60 points this season.

PROJECT IMPACT BEGINS

Jeffery Anderson Appointed Carbondale Fire Chief

Jeffery Anderson, a 23 year veteran of the Carbondale Fire Department, has been appointed Carbondale Fire Chief by City Manager Jeff Poblete. He was sworn into his new position on December 14.

Anderson, 48, joined the Carbondale Fire Department in 1975. He was promoted to Captain in 1990 and in Assistant Fire Chief in 1999. He served as the department's Training Officer and Emergency Management Coordinator for a 6 year period. Prior to becoming a firefighter, Anderson served 4 years in the United States Air Force and attended SIUC and John A. Logan College.

"I'm truly honored and proud to serve the City of Carbondale," Anderson said, "The Carbondale Fire Department has well trained professional firefighters and I look forward to leading it into the next millennium."

Anderson said that Anderson's experience and leadership abilities contributed to his selection to select him. "You only does Jeff have the technical firefighting experience and training, he also has the management and administrative background that is so important to being the Chief and the head of a department in the City."

Anderson is a lifelong resident of Carbondale. He is married to Dellean York-Anderson and has two sons, ages 20 and 14.

The Carbondale Fire Department has put full-time firefighters and an annual budget of $1.84 million. Anderson replaces Cliff Manis who retired from the department on November 30, 1998.

Project Impact is a program of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to encourage communities to become more disaster resistant. Natural disasters are costing the federal government, and thus taxpayers, more each year. Many communities and their citizens have come to rely on the federal government to provide relief and reconstruction funds after disasters. In many instances, the same disaster has struck the same time more than once and people have submitted repeated claims for assistance.

Project Impact proposes to break the repeating cycle of disaster, response, recovery, disaster, etc. by inserting an important new step: mitigation. The concept of mitigation is very simple, if preventive steps are taken before a disaster occurs, then the resulting damage and loss of life and property will be less after the disaster.

Carbondale, like most cities is subject to many different disasters. The one we have heard the most about in recent years is an earthquake. Carbondale is located near the New Madrid fault and several smaller faults. Present predictions place the possibility of a significant earthquake 5% in the next 20 years. Three creeks pass through Carbondale from south to north. Although, there have not been significant floods in recent years, historically Carbondale has experience flooding along Little Creek, Orchard Creek and Piles Fork Creek. Carbondale is located in "tornado alley", that part of the Midwest frequented by tornadoes. Nearby communities including Murphysboro and Marion have suffered from devastating tornadoes. These tornadoes could have just as easily struck Carbondale.

Carbondale foam and snow storms, inlets, new water lines, and other miscellaneous items required to complete the project. Construction on this project began on July 22, 1998 and was completed on November 18, 1998. L.E. Cecil Construction was the prime contractor on this project.

Carbondale has been selected by FEMA to be the site for Project Community in Illinois. That designation has resulted in approval of a grant of $500,000 that can be used by the City to conduct a risk assessment and implement mitigation measures. In the coming weeks and months Carbondale's Disaster Resistant Committee will be meeting to assess risks and plan the mitigation measures. Information about Project Impact will be made available to the entire community and citizens will be invited to play an active role in Project Impact. For more information, contact David Keim, the City's Emergency Management Coordinator, at 457-3245.

Four candidates have filed for the four-year term as Mayor and the main slate have filed for the two four-year terms on the City Council that will come up for election next spring. In order to reduce the number of candidates to two per seat (two candidates for Mayor and four candidates for City Council) state law requires that a primary election be held on Tuesday, February 23, 1999.

Assuming none of the candidates withdraw from the election and that no objections are filed to any of the nominating petitions, the four candidates for Mayor (in order of those placed on the primary ballot) are: John P. Buttsick, 21 Fine Lane Neill Dillard, 509C, Oakland Avenue Nancy Foster, 119S E. Walnut Street, Apt. 6E R. Wayne Saplinlitti, 59W, Forrest Ave #1

There are times in life when our thoughts are with those individuals who once, in their own way, touched our lives. Although there are many, we would just like to remember these three who made a difference in our lives: our community and who passed away recently.

Elisabeth Leighty was appointed City Clerk in 1955 and served until her retirement on May 1, 1977. Elisabeth died in August of this year. She will be missed.

Leilani Weis-Reynolds was tired of writing that Water and Sewer check each month. Do you travel and worry about payment of your bills?

Now you can have your Carbondale Water and Sewer bill automatically debited from your checking or savings account. All you have to do is provide a deposit slip and signed authorization form to Water Office prior to your due date of the bill. After the next billing cycle, your account will be debited electronically. No fees, just the peace of mind that your bill is paid.

And don't forget telephone book recycling or chore, just the peace of mind that you have helped to make this city what it is today. We are forever thankful for your contributions.

TELEPHONE BOOK RECYCLING

Carbondale residents are encouraged to recycle their phone books. Residents with curbside recycling bins may place in their bins the blue recycling bin on regular refuse and recycling days. However, the phone books should not be placed out in wet weather. Residents who do not have recycling bins can take advantage of phone book drop off boxes provided at the following locations: El Greco's, 516 S. Illinois Ave.; U.S. News Center, 641 East Willow Street; Grand Laundromat, 875 East Grand Ave.; KARCO Recycling, 1350 North New Gentle Avenue. 1

COMMUNITY SERVICES

City to Recycle Christmas Trees Again This Year

The City's Public Works Forestry Division will again offer a curbside Christmas tree recycling program during the weeks beginning January 4, 1999 and ending January 22, 1999. Trees should be placed at curbside on the same day as the City collects refuse and recycling in the resident's specific area. Collection and chipping will occur the following day. Those wishing to discard trees on the same day as the refuse day, may use one of the following neighborhood drop-off sites (WATCH FOR THE SIGNS):

1) The Public Works Complex on North Michaels Street (at the gate)
2) Bob Lee Park Parking Lot on East Grand Avenue (northeast corner)
3) Parrish Park Parking Lot on West Sunset Drive (east end)
4) Parks Park on North Wall Street (south parking lot)

SPECIAL NOTE: Trees containing nails and wreaths or pine ropes with wire support cannot be chipped. Dispose of these as refuse.

This is the eighth consecutive year that the City has provided an environmentally safe alternative to the problem of Christmas tree disposal. All chips resulting from the Christmas Tree Recycling Program are made available to the public for mulch.

Questions about this program may be directed to the Environmental Services Manager or the City Forester at 549-5302, extension 332.

Preservation News

Submitted by: Carbondale Preservation Commission

The City of Carbondale has two new landmarks and an existing landmark property which has been expanded as a result of actions taken by the Preservation Commission and City Council this past Fall. Jean Foley, the owner of the William Dixon house at 511 W. Walnut Street, and Bob Simonds, the owner of the Gilbert/Dixon house at 513 W. Walnut Street, had their nominations petitions reviewed by the Preservation Commission and approved by the City Council as Carbondale Landmarks. The City Council also approved the City's petition to expand the Illinois Central Railroad Passenger Depot Landmark to include the railroad tracks and cabboose that have been placed to the east of the building.

The William Dixon house was built in 1898 and is the oldest frame house still standing in Carbondale. The original French Colonial style one and one-half story home occupies the center portion of the present structure. Two additions have been made to the house in the twentieth century. An east parlor was constructed in the 1920's and a two story addition was built in the 1940's. Although the residence includes the two additions and one of the finished windows has been enlarged, the original structure has been well preserved.

The two story Gilbert/Gibbaton house was built by Francis M. Blatson in 1894 and is an example of a "country" Queen Anne-style house which was popular at the end of the 19th century. Two additions have been made to the rear of the house since its original construction which include an upstairs bedroom and bath and a screened-in porch on the first floor. The family of former State Senator John Gilbert, including his son Phil who is a federal judge, lived in the house for many years. Mr. Simonds purchased the property in 1995 and completed restoration work in 1996.

The 1903 Illinois Central Railroad Passenger Depot was placed on the City's Register of Historic Places as a Landmark in 1991. With the recent placement of a cabboose on the tracks that were installed along the east side of the Depot, the City decided to amend the Landmark Design Standards to include this area. The amended District regulations will require all railroad cars placed on the tracks to have a restored exterior finish and preferably be models that predate 1950. The design standards will also guide the construction and placement of any improvements or landscaping around the old depot.

The City of Carbondale's Preservation Ordinance was adopted in 1989 and encourages the identification, designation, preservation and protection of historic buildings and areas of the City. The ordinance sets forth provision for designating properties as historic landmarks or districts. A nomination is reviewed by the Preservation Commission which establishes appropriate design standards for the nomination of property. After a public hearing before the Commission the City Council approves the designation with the accompanying design standards. Petitions for nominating a building or neighborhood to the City's Register of Historic Places are available in the Planning Services Division of City Hall or by calling 457-3235.

CRITTER CORNER
By Cindy Nelson, Animal Control Officer

It's time to get your dog's 1999 Dog License. If your dog has been licensed in the past, you should have received a renewal form. All you have to do is complete the form and send it along with your license fee — $1.00 for neutered dogs and $7.00 for dogs that have not been neutered — to the City Clerk's Office, P.O. Box 2047, Carbondale, IL 62902-2047. If you have a new puppy, 4 months or older, you should also get her/him licensed. You can call the City Clerk's Office at 549-5302, ext. 281, if you would like to have a license form mailed to you.

JUST A REMINDER...
Section 3-4-4. Running At Large Prohibited. This is part of the Carbondale City Code that tells you to keep your dog on a leash, cord, chain, or other similar restraint if he/she is on any public street, sidewalk, pathway, or public area or unenclosed within the City of Carbondale. No leash, cord, chain, or other similar restraint shall be longer than eight feet (8') in length. You also cannot let your cat run at large unless it has been neutered. All license must be inoculated for rabies. Did you know that cat and dog owners are also responsible for cleaning up their pet's excrement?

COLD WEATHER TIPS...
Provide your outside dog with adequate, dry shelter. The doghouse should be windproof, dry, raised off of the ground and facing south if possible. The door should be covered with a heavy cloth or rug. The floor should be covered with straw or dry bedding. Feed your own dog extra rations during the winter months, so the animal can better maintain its body temperature. Fresh, clean drinking water is also a must for the outside dog.

Don't overfeed your indoor dog during winter. The temptation to include your pet is hard to resist. Because animals receive less exercise in winter, the extra treats will only cause your pet to gain weight. Be careful of ice which can build up between your dog's pads and toes. Hook your horn or bang on your hood to alert neighborhood cats sneaking on top of the warm engine block of your car to prevent mutilation from the fan belt or radiator fan.

What will we think of next?
Dog House Recycling...that's what!

Cold weather is here and there are dogs in need of shelter. Carbondale Animal Control is assisting the Humane Society of Southern Illinois in their effort to provide shelter for outside dogs. If you happen to have a vacant dog house in your back yard, they will pick it up and distribute it to a “Needy Dog.” Please call Animal Control, 457-3200, ext 424, or the Humane Society at 457-2362. Thanks everyone. We need your help.
