Trustees to OK Guyon, projects

By Jacke Hampton
Staff Writer

The Board of Trustees will consider Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit's selection of a new president and a number of construction projects when it meets today at the SIU-E University Center.

Pettit, who appointed acting President John C. Guyon to the post Monday, said he was confident that Guyon will be confirmed by the board. He was selected from three finalists, Utah State Provost Peter E. Wagner, who later withdrew his name from consideration, and David R.

Powers, vice chancellor for academic affairs for the West Virginia Board of Regents.

Among other items to be considered is a $135,000 energy conservation project at Stone House. According to a report by the Chancellor's Office, changes in the heating and air conditioning system will result in savings that will pay for the cost of the project in four years.

Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, said the utility bill at Stone House costs about $52,000 annually. The house has uneconomical electric heating and cooling systems, he said.

"When the house was built, utility costs weren't that high and they didn't have to worry about these things," he said. "Since then, electrical rates have gone sky-high."

Funding for the project will come from state appropriations in the Physical Plant maintenance budget, according to the chancellor's report.

Also on the agenda is a proposal to name architects for the Student Recreation Center addition and a con-

North says Casey OK'd Contra fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lt. Col. Oliver North, implicating William Casey deeply in the Iran-Contra scandal, testified Wednesday that the CIA director approved the use of Iran arms sales profits for the Nicaraguan rebels and also wanted the money for future anti-communist activities.

The Marine officer, who again insisted he never acted in the foreign policy affair without authorization, said: "The decision was made that residuals from those transactions (the arms sales to Iran) would be applied to support the Nicaraguan resistance with the authority that I got from my superiors, Admiral (John) Poindexter, with the concurrence of William J. Casey and I thought at the time, the president of the United States."

"I later learned that the president was unaware of that aspect of these transactions," North said.

Near the close of his second day before the select House-Senate committees investigating the scandal, North also gave a lengthy, philosophical explanation for the administration's passionate desire for secrecy in foreign policy, especially for his own clandestine operations.

He admitted he misled Congress last summer when the House Intelligence Committee questioned him directly about his involvement in the private outreach for the Contras — but insisted there was a reason for the evasions.

"I will tell you right now ... that I misled the Congress," North said with defiance. "At that meeting, face to face, I did, and furthermore, I did so with a purpose ... to avoid the very kind of thing we have now."

In summarizing, North said: "I tried. And I don't regret having done it."

But Senate panel Chairman Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, who lost his right arm during World War II service in Europe,

Meese, North differ on cover-up efforts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edwin Meese is prepared to contradict Lt. Col. Oliver North's claim he was aware of efforts to cover up U.S. involvement in early arms sales to Iran, spokesmen said Wednesday.

In another development, Meese talked under oath with congressional investigators about his approaching appearance before the Iran-Contra committees.

Meese spokesman Terry Eastland contradicted North's testimony Tuesday before the House and Senate committees probing the Iran-Contra scandal that Meese was aware of the attempt to partially falsify the American role in Israel's November 1985 sale of 18 Hawk missiles to Iran.

North told the panels, "The fact is there were many, many people, to include the former assistant to the president for national security affairs, the current national security adviser, the attorney general of the United States of America, the director of central intelligence — all of whom knew that to be wrong."

The differing recollections between Meese and North are about a November 1986 effort to construct a false chronology of events that showed early arms transfers to Iran, in 1985, came from Israel, without any U.S. participation.

Department spokesman Pat Korten said five congressional investigators arrived early Wednesday at the department to depose Meese under oath for most of the day, in preparation for his testimony before the committees, expected later this month.

Korten said Meese was prepared, if asked, to contradict North on when he became aware of the sales.

"The first Meese learned of the Iran initiative was in January 1986," Eastland said.

Imagine yourself lying in the sun — breathing fresh air — surrounded by beer cans, broken bottles, paper and other rubbish left behind by others.

That is the sight you will see if you visit the Lake Kinkaid Spillway before Saturday. That also is when four student groups and other volunteers plan to clean up the area.

Groups sponsoring the cleanup are Students for Pollution Control, Student Chapter of the Wildlife Society, Southern Illinois Native Plant Society and Students for Environmental Concern. This is the third year the groups, with the exception of Southern Illinois Native Plant Society, have participated in the cleanup, Greg Searle, manager of Campus Lake, said.

Through the cleanup, the groups hope to promote environmental awareness of the trash problem at the Spillway, according to Searle. They hope to change the minds of people who visit the Spillway by motivating them to put their trash in wastebaskets, he said.

The groups will focus on cleaning debris out of the lake, from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday. A raindate has been scheduled July 18.

South Korean president releases political foes

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — More than 350 political prisoners were released Wednesday as part of President Chun Doo Hwan's promise to reform his authoritarian regime, but officials warned they would not allow a planned funeral march through the capital for a slain student. Students and dissidents said they would march through Seoul today accompanying the funeral cortege of a student fatally injured by an exploding tear-gas canister June 9 during an anti-government protest at Yonsei University. The student, Lee Han-yol, 21, died Sunday after 27 days in a coma.

Indian judge rejects Carbide's bid to halt suit

BHOPAL, India (UPI) — A judge Wednesday rejected Union Carbide's request to halt Indian proceedings involving a 1984 gas leak that killed nearly 3,000 people until the U.S. Supreme Court decides on related issues. Judge M.W. Deo dismissed the U.S. company's request for a stay and upheld the Indian government's position that it should be allowed to pursue cases in both India and the United States.

Hindus retaliate against Sikhs for bus attacks

CHANDIGARH, India (UPI) — Hindus retaliated Wednesday for the slaughter of 74 bus passengers by attacking Sikhs, burning their shops and trying to drag them off trains in violence that left seven people dead and 21 injured, police and news reports said. One man was lynched after he fired at a crowd attacking his lumber business, police said. The worst violence was in Haryana state, where police said Sikhs were attacked on the street and pulled from vehicles. Five people believed to be Sikhs were killed and 21 injured in the predominantly Hindu state.

Israeli parliament defeats inflammatory bills

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel's parliament Wednesday defeated two proposed laws that have strained relations between Israel and American Jewry because they essentially implied the only true Jew is an ultra-religious Jew. The bills had sent shock waves through the American Jewish community, most of whose estimated 6 million members are in the more secular Reform and Conservative movements.

Envoy: U.S. congress meddling in Panama

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Aquilino Boyd, Panama's high-level envoy sent to repair relations with the United States, defiantly said Wednesday that Congress has interfered in his country's internal affairs and "poisoned the waters of friendship." Boyd, a former foreign minister, arrived in the United States after demonstrations, apparently condoned by the military leadership of Panama, damaged the U.S. embassy in Panama last week.

House challenges Reagan's Gulf policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House challenged the administration's controversial Persian Gulf policy Wednesday, aiming for largely symbolic votes on proposals to ban or stall the "re-flagging" and protection of 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers. Debate on an otherwise routine $2.8 billion Coast Guard authorization bill centered on the gulf policy with two proposals under consideration, one to flatly prohibit the re-flagging and another to stall it for 90 days.

Senate blasts FAA on need for controllers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee chairman slammed the Federal Aviation Administration Wednesday for "double-talk" and foot-dragging on safety — particularly the need for more air traffic controllers. Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., told a hearing his confidence in the FAA has been shaken by the agency's reluctance — until recently — to seek additional controllers or restrict peak traffic levels this summer.

New report slices billions off universe's age

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An American astronomer working in the Netherlands reported Wednesday he has found the universe may be billions of years younger than previously thought. Ha'vey Butcher, a professor at the University of Groningen and director of the observatory at Kapteyn Astronomical Institute, said the universe is probably no more than 10 to 11 billion years old. Previous estimates made using established measurement techniques placed the age of the universe at 16 to 18 billion years.

Summer program highlights scholastic skills

By Michele Eskins
Staff Writer

An academic skills camp conducted at the Eurma C. Hayes Center in Carbondale is providing youngsters an opportunity to hone their academic skills this summer.

Orlando Klark, 12, favors the drawing classes and prefers sketching animals, cars and people.

Marissa Lilly, 9, likes all of her classes and says the July 6 to July 31 program is helping her in school. She said typing and computers are a few of her interests. "So far it's been great."

Leshawntae Wakefield, 11, likes all of her classes as well. The program is helping her decide what career she will choose.

Regina Greer's favorite class is math. The 8-year-old hopes to take after her mom, a former school attendance officer.

"We're trying to keep them interested and working on a few skills, without making it a chore," said Ernest Gardner, Thomas School fourth-grade teacher.

He and Susan Stewart, a teacher for the hearing-impaired from Chicago, agree that the summer sessions allow much more flexibility in lesson planning.

"We don't have to worry as much about tests and grades," Gardner said.

Another aim of the program is to provide new skills that are becoming requirements, such as measuring and thinking skills.

The classes are meant to prepare kids for regular school sessions.

"We hope they're a little

Regina Greer, 8, left, and Marissa Lilly, 9, study a lesson being taught at the Reading, Writing and Arithmetic Camp.

better prepared and maybe they'll remember the fun," Stewart said.

Summer projects include crafts, a book that is part diary and part fiction, and a newsletter produced by the kids. The children also will receive a certificate for their attendance in the program.

The children adapt readily to computer programming and basic language lessons. One reason may be because of they are familiar with video games, and that's what holds their interest, Gardner said.

The program is scheduled from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Computer lessons and guest speakers are also important aspects of the program. Raushanah Khaaliq, coordinator, said.

Guest speakers from different professions will be featured to give children a better idea of potential careers, she added.

The program may include field trips to such University facilities as Morris Library or the Communication Building.

"Many people don't realize the resources the University has," Khaaliq said.

The program, a cooperative effort using SIU-C and community resources, is sponsored by the Community Human Service Center. It is a project of the College of Human Resources, the Health Service, the City of Carbondale and the Jackson County Department of Health.

For more information about the program, which is free to the public, call the Community Human Service Center at 453-2554.

Summer sessions motivate local youths

By Karen Wells
Staff Writer

For some youngsters, going to school nine months a year is enough preparation for that not-so-distant road to the future. But for the 72 area youths — aged 11 to 16 — enrolled in the Southern Illinois Regional Career Preparation Program, extra measures are being taken to ensure a successful navigation of that trail: summer classes.

The program is a "motivational device" designed to increase student interest in completing their elementary and high school educations and obtaining a college education, Lillian Lockhart, Undergraduate Academic Service director, said.

Now in its first year of operation, the program has enrolled students from Jackson, Pulaski, Alexander, Randolph and Williamson counties.

Courses offered include computer science, critical thinking, mathematics, and career development. Students attend classes from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Computer science and career development are taught at John A. Logan College, and math and critical thinking are taught at SIU-C. The courses are taught by professors and counselors.

On Fridays they are involved in a "joint-career development" session where they learn what skills are needed in different professions, Lockhart said.

Students are provided free lunch and transportation to the campuses.

Participants in the program range from fifth through ninth grades. They are mainly minority students, but non-minorities also can participate, Lockhart said.

Students are selected by school principals, community leaders, and parents.

"Parents are the key in many instances in providing encouragement" to the youths enrolled in the program, she said.

Kenyatta Anderson, 14, will be a freshman at Carbondale Community High School East this fall.

"The program is something to keep me busy," she said. "I

Minority students treated to free engineering start

By Teresa Nix
Student Writer

The College of Engineering and Technology is providing a free four-week program for 11 minority freshmen engineering students.

"Its primary charge is to increase the number of black and Hispanic students enrolled in the College of Engineering," said Bruce Krisman, academic advisor of minority engineering students.

Funded by the state of Illinois, the program is designed as a "summer bridge to help students adjust to the rigors of an engineering major," he said.

"Notices were sent out to all freshmen admitted in the fall of 1987," Krisman said. "After screening, I tried to select students with similar abilities in the math area."

The program began July 6. Students are given an intense review of algebra and trigonometry to prepare them for calculus in the fall. They also are studying GED-101 English composition for credit.

The program is "intense, but what I expected," said Seth Jensen after the second

Mascots deserved to get better care

THE SALUKI CATCH PHRASE should be changed from "How 'bout them dawgs!" to "How 'bout them dogs?" The dogs in question are Khalid and Thunder, the Saluki mascots.

Last week, the DE reported that the mascots have a new home. Alumni John and Linda Saunders saw the dogs limping around the track during a football game last season and offered to care for Khalid and Thunder. University officials agreed to the offer and the dogs now live with the Saunders in Chester, about 40 miles northwest of Carbondale.

BEFORE THE MOVE, the dogs were kept in the University kennels at the Wildlife Annex near McLafferty Road. They were cared for by zoology students and the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity. The fraternity also handled the dogs during events such as football games.

Although the dogs weren't mistreated, they weren't getting the special care that the temperamental breed requires. When the Saunders picked up the dogs on Oct. 20, they were in poor physical shape.

No one has been charged with animal abuse, and no one should be. But it doesn't seem right for the school's mascot to be treated so poorly and with such lack of interest.

It hasn't always been this way.

WHEN THE SIU-C MASCOT name was changed in 1951 from the Maroons to the Salukis, the new name brought with it connotations of strength and majesty. The name also tied SIU-C together with the "Egypt" theme that is so prevalent in Southern Illinois — carvings of the Saluki, one of the oldest-known breeds of domesticated dogs, can be seen in the excavated tombs of Egyptian pharaohs and the dog was considered sacred by many ancient religions.

The University got its first live mascot, King Tut, amidst much fanfare in 1953. Other dogs followed, including Bandit, the "bad boy" mascot who was put to sleep last year after suffering from heart problems, and Khalid and Thunder.

FOR 35 YEARS, Salukis have represented the University, and the dogs should reside at SIU-C.

But if the dogs aren't going to be treated with the care and respect that they deserve, they'd be better off living somewhere else. And SIU-C would be better off hiring humans to dress in Saluki outfits.

Opinions from elsewhere

The Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City

Who says Congress hasn't accomplished anything this year?

During the first six months of 1987, 13 new public laws have gone on the books. These include the Higher Education Technical Amendments Act and three amendments to the U.S. Code — to make permanent the new G.I. Bill, to help certain employees in the Tucson, Ariz., area, and to aid retired U.S. magistrates.

Congress also has banned fees at the Statue of Liberty and enacted resolutions recognizing the 125th anniversary of the Agriculture Department, the 40th anniversary of the Marshall Plan, the 300th Ohio State commencement exercise, and the service of the late Wilbur Cohen.

And finally, the lawmakers gave official designations to Baltic Freedom Day, American Gospel Arts Day, National Catfish Day and National Dairy Goat Awareness Week.

Before going home for the Fourth of July holiday, the House passed an appropriations bill that provides a $75 million increase in its operating budget...

No wonder the deficit is so high.

Letters

Two correct answers deserve equal credit

I never thought the Student Center's trivia contest would cause me to reflect on some of the more important aspects of my life at this University, but it has.

Upon checking to see if my answer to the question, "What is the shortest word in English containing the letters A, B, C, D, E and F?" I was pleased to find the answer "feedback" written on the answer board, but surprised that my word "boldface," which is equally as short, was not listed.

When I asked at the desk, "What about my word? What about 'boldface'?" I was told that since the answer they had been given was "feedback," my word would not count.

"But it is equally correct!" I argued. I soon found out, however, that as they did not make the rules and the given word was "feedback," I was out of luck.

I found myself in the position of countless schoolchildren who think boldly and creatively but soon discover that if their answers are not in a book, or if teachers won't believe them, the answers are wrong.

Oh, this may be a minor contest of no real import in the world, but the underlying lessons and principles are important. My very reason for being at this University fights against this blind and narrow-minded attitude.

We must be willing to see the truth when confronted by it and to think for ourselves. If we were willing to accept only those answers given in books, there would be no place for this institution. I only hope that the administrators of this contest never have children who disagree with their teachers or textbooks.

Despite my years and knowledge of the injustice in the world, it still is disheartening to see this mindset prevail, especially in an institution of "higher education."

So, I will speak out for truth: though they do not acknowledge it at the information center: "Boldface" is one of the shortest words in English containing A, B, C, D, E and F.

I did learn something new in all of this. Before returning the next day to harass the information center about my word — hoping that the power of truth and a sense of justice would win out (which it did not) — I checked and found my word in both Webster's Third New World Dictionary and the Compact Edition of the Oxford English Dictionary.

I was amused by the O.E.D.'s definition of boldface: "an insolent person." — Peggy Hill, graduate student, physics.

The woods are clean; the lake looks keen

By now most of you should know, The lake known as Campus Lake Was acquired by SIU-C many years ago Today the fuss is: what are we to do, Leave it as it is or clean it up for A better view.

Some of the Administrators, I will have to agree, Could care less what was destroyed, Poison ivy or an oak tree. They look at changes with a different view As they sit in Anthony Hall. They must see a bigger picture, If they are to please one and all.

If everything that comes up from the ground Was left to stand, Soon the earth would be covered over And there would not be enough room for man.

When you are on campus and see The mowers going and people walking around, You don't make a fuss about the grass Being cut or removed from the ground.

We keep our lawns all dressed

So nice and neat, Our sidewalks all cleaned and trimmed, So we won't get dirt on our feet.

You think it is a crime when someone cuts a vine That would put poison ivy on our hands and Cause them to itch.

Instead, you would leave them free To choke to death the little oak tree.

If you still insist on having your way And stop the powers that be Bring your tent over. Because you too could soon be covered With poison ivy and vines, Just like the big oak tree.

When I look out the window to the east What do I see? You guessed it; Campus Lake in all its beauty Just as nature made it to be.

Thanks to all the people who made it possible. — LaRue Blackwell, accountant, Thalman Hall, Greek Row.

Doonesbury

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

You did a good job, Doc

Thompson Woods looks great. Most of the SIU family that works in the Thompson Woods area approve and laud Clarence Dougherty for cleaning up the mess in Thompson Woods. Now, when you drive along Greek Row, you can see the lake.

Working in this area during the cleaning process, we know that there were no "hundreds of beautiful trees needlessly cut down." A few dead ones, maybe, and lots of undergrowth.

Lots of people who work in this area take a long walk along the lake during work breaks and at lunch time. Now we can find the path.

Thanks, Doc Dougherty. — Donna Hartmann and 34 others.

Law school prestige draws larger number of students

By Clay Moon
Student Writer

More law school applicants are accepting admission offers this year than ever before, said Scott Nichols, assistant dean and director of admissions.

The main reason for the increase, Nichols said, is the reputation the law program has established during the past few years.

He added that 144 students are showing interest in the SIU-C law program.

Law School Dean Rennard St.ickland said he would like to see fall enrollment reach 105 new students, which would maintain an ideal ratio of 13 students per faculty member.

Students who enter the program must meet minimum requirements established by the school.

The admissions committee, made up of five law faculty members, review the applicant's Law School Acceptance Test scores and undergraduate grade point average.

Applicants with an LSAT score of 30 or higher and a grade point average of 3.0 or above are put in a presumptive category.

"Of those who fell into this category, 90 percent were accepted by the director without being reviewed by the committee," Nichols said.

"The nice thing about the system is that the committee only has to review those that fall in the middle area of the scale, he added.

One of the jobs of the committee is to obtain a diverse class, Nichols explained.

"We are trying to get more minorities and older people into the program," he said. Of the 144 applicants, 16 are minorities.

Nichols also has found that many of those entering the program have already pursued a career elsewhere. The average age of last year's class was 26.

"There is no demand for students to enter law school directly out of college," Nichols said.

Sports Center has beer garden on tap

The largest beer garden and outdoor drinking facility in Carbondale is under construction at the Sports Center.

The Liquor Advisory Board approved a liquor license for the facility Tuesday. The Liquor Control Commission will discuss final approval of the license at the June 20 City Council meeting.

The expansion of the center, 1215 E. Walnut, includes a leck, a beer garden with two volleyball courts on each side, and a hill overlooking three baseball fields, Greg Eversden, owner of the Sports Center, said. Fences will surround the fields and courts, Eversden said.

As approved by the board, liquor will be allowed in plastic cups only on the deck, beer garden, and hill. No alcohol will be permitted on the fields or courts. Glass containers will not be allowed in the area.

The beer garden should be completed by the beginning of August and the baseball fields by mid-August.

To prevent underage drinking, four video cameras will monitor the beer garden, Eversden said. If that method does not work, plastic bands may be used on the wrists of those who are underage.

sternly lectured North:

"For the past two days, together with my colleagues on this panel, I've sat here very patiently listening to statements suggesting that members of Congress cannot be trusted with the secrets of this land," Inouye said.

"I'm certain you are well aware that most of the leaks in this city come from the other side of Pennsylvania (avenue)," Inouye said.

"I don't know who you're talking about, but I can assure you that these committee — the House and Senate select committees — can be trusted," he said.

Inouye then announced he was calling a special closed session of the panel on today to discuss classified matters.

Implicating a number of administration officials as having at least a passing notion of his activities, North cited Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams with a general knowledge that North was involved in coordinating what Casey called a "full service" private program to supply the Contras at a time official U.S. aid was banned by Congress.

Last month, in a tumultuous appearance before the committees, Abrams said he was aware of private efforts to aid the Contras but he had no active role in assisting. Wednesday, Abrams' office had no comment.

Police Blotter

Carbondale police said Bruce Scott, 37, 307 S. Graham Ave., was arrested Sunday on charges of damage to property.

Scott is accused of breaking a door knob off a mobile home because the occupant refused him entry.

He was released with notice to appear in city court at a later date.

Kenneth Ballard, 19, 600 E. Campus Drive, was arrested Monday and charged with retail theft.

Carbondale police said

Ballard is accused of stealing $15.20 of general merchandise from Wal-Mart.

Ballard was released with notice to appear in court at a later date.

Carbondale police report that someone broke into Art's Body Shop, 603 N. Illinois Ave., Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

A battery charger, industrial grinder, power sander, tool box and miscellaneous tools with an estimated value of $1,246 were reported missing, police said.

day of classes. The only woman in the program, Kendra Quarles, said her stay so far has been "nice" and added that the dorms are quiet for studying.

"The people here have been good to us and have made us feel right at home," Ernie Allen said.

Aside from the academic program, Krisman included cultural activities for the students during their stay at Thompson Point residence halls.

Shirlene Holmes, coordinator of the cultural events, arranged visits to several buildings to help familiarize the students with the campus.

In addition, they will attend a Campus Lake picnic, a movie at the Student Center Auditorium, "Mame" at the McLeod Summer Playhouse and lecture seminars.

Pat Sweet displays one of her costume creations for a summer workshop play.

Designing writer's talents put to costuming thespians

By Donna Jennings
Student Writer

Talent. It's what you expect from an actor on stage, but it doesn't necessarily have to be in the spotlight.

Pat Sweet, costume coordinator for the Playwright's Workshop Productions, will be putting her unspotlighted talent to work preparing costumes for this summer's scheduled shows.

Sweet, formerly of Cedar Falls, Iowa, has been in the costume and theater business most of her life. She left the business to work on a playwrighting master's at SIU-C.

"I CHOOSE to go back to school to strengthen my independence and to gain my own identity," said Sweet.

It was through the master of fine arts program offered by the Theater Department that Sweet took the costume coordinator position.

Sweet received her bachelor's from the University of Northern Iowa, and has since produced and directed school plays, written two comedy plays and is working on her third play, a serious drama.

The experience she has gained in the costume shop, Sweet said, will be valuable to her future as a playwright.

"AS A WRITER and director of a production, you need to know how each character should look," she said.

"I don't mean to sound like a feminist, but I believe it's time that the women of Vietnam had a little recognition, too."

— Pat Sweet

"Designing and making costumes has taught me what to look for in presenting a character and how to adjust it to be so."

When Sweet decided to return to school, there were obvious reasons to choose SIU-C, she said.

"Playwriting is an important part of the theater program here," said Sweet. "The other schools I looked at included playwrighting, but it seemed like it was a foreign subject to the theater."

Sweet said one of the best rewards she has experienced since returning to school has been becoming part of the "family" in the theater program.

"I'VE BECOME" part of a united effort," she said. "I've never seen so many people willing to help each other all of the time as I have in this program. I've gotten to know everyone very well."

Sweet said the only drawback to her involvement in the costume shop is that she hasn't had enough time to work alone, forcing her to momentarily put her play on hold.

"I'm very anxious to finish my script, but with the busy production schedule for this summer, I spend most of my time down in the shop," she said.

SWEET SAID her current play is based on her personal experiences as a Vietnam veteran.

After graduating from college in 1968, Sweet didn't want to pursue a teaching career. Opting for the army, she worked as a program entertainment director for enlisted men. Sweet said that she had orders to be sent to Germany, but ended up in Vietnam instead.

"I wouldn't trade the experience for the world," she commented. "If I had it to do all over again, I'd do it."

SWEET SAID her Vietnam experiences and a recent divorce have influenced her style of writing. She believes women need to take a stand and do things for themselves.

"I don't mean to sound like a feminist," she said. "But I believe it's time that the women of Vietnam had a little recognition, too."

Sweet hopes to have the script finished by the end of the summer so that she can devote the rest of her time to finishing her master's.

taking off their clothes because of the heat.

Ortiz said it was 95 degrees in Hebronville and Border Patrol agents who found the men estimated the temperature at 115 degrees inside the trailer that was being hauled piggyback on a flatcar.

After their rescue, the aliens were taken to the Border Patrol office in Hebronville, where they were given water and allowed to cool, Ortiz said. None required medical care.

19 aliens rescued from boxcar

HEBRONVILLE, Texas (UPI) — Border Patrol agents rescued 19 undocumented workers Wednesday from a stifling locked trailer on a railroad car six days after 18 illegal aliens died in a locked boxcar, authorities said.

"It's a smuggling operation," said Mario Ortiz, of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Dallas.

The undocumented workers were discovered semiconscious in Hebronville at about 11 a.m. on a train traveling from Laredo to Corpus Christi, he said. Hebronville is about 60 miles east of Laredo and 80 miles southwest of Corpus Christi.

"If the aliens had stayed on all the way to Corpus (Christi), it's very likely some would have been dead or they would have been in critical condition," said Ortiz.

"They were found to be in pretty much a semiconscious state," said Ortiz, adding that some had already started

Falwell wants more 'grandma' cash

FORT MILL, S.C. (UPI) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell said Wednesday that the PTL's problem is not Jim and Tammy Bakker but tight-fisted contributors, and the embattled ministry's chief hymn-singer urged "teary-eyed old grandmas" in the television audience to loosen their purse strings.

"I know you get tired of hearing Jerry Falwell saying this," said Falwell in launching into another frantic appeal on the daily "PTL Show" for funds to keep the bankrupt ministry afloat. "I've told you that I plan to stay. That is not the problem. I have told you that our problem is not the dissidents."

'Jewel box theater' houses history

Theater, music, presidential bid part of Shryock

By Karen Wells
Staff Writer

Shryock Auditorium has been the center of events ranging from this summer's Sunset Concerts to Paul Simon's declaration May 18 of his intent to run for president.

The building in the Old Main Mall on the central-northwest part of campus. The auditorium was constructed and designed by state architect James B. Dibelka.

ON APRIL 4, 1918, the building was dedicated to Henry William Shryock who served as University president from 1913 to 1935. Former President William Howard Taft gave the first public lecture at the building's dedication.

During the late 1960s and early 1970s, numerous famous actors, actresses, musicians and authors visited the auditorium, including Dizzy Gillespie, Imogene Coca, Jane Fonda and Gwendolyn Brooks.

THE AUDITORIUM has 1,200 seats, 800 on the floor and 400 in the balcony. To illuminate the auditorium, approximately 219 bulbs are used in the dome-shaped ceiling. Covering the windows of the auditorium are heavy velour drapes used mainly for acoustical purposes, Robert Hageman, assistant director of the auditorium, said.

Between 1969 and 1971 Shryock was remodeled. In 1980, a ticket box office was constructed in the lobby of the building. Before the box office was constructed, tickets to performances were sold in the central ticket office in the Student Center.

A MAIN FEATURE of Shryock is the Reuter Pipe Organ in the north balcony. The organ, which was assembled during the summer of 1971, was built by the Reuter Organ Co. of Lawrence, Kan. It replaced an 1896 Farrand-Votey pipe organ that was on the Auditorium's stage.

Marianne Webb, University organist and associate professor of music, and Franklin Mitchell, retired tonal director and vice president of the Reuter Organ Co., developed the plans for the Reuter organ. It contains more than 5,000 pipes.

THE ORGAN weighs over nine tons and cost $92,000 to build and assemble, according to Webb. She said it has a replacement value of $450,000.

Shryock Auditorium organist Marianne Webb sits in front of Shryock's 3,000-pipe organ.

It was inaugurated at the University's centennial celebration between 1969 and 1974. The organ also is used for recitals by faculty and students in the School of Music.

"It is a teaching instrument and a concert instrument," according to Webb, who practices on the organ for two hours a day.

The organ is tuned annually, a three-day job, Robert Cerchio, director of Shryock, said

BEFORE MCLEOD Theater was built in the Communications Building in 1947, Shryock served as the home of campus theatrical events. Each year Shryock presents the Celebrity Series, a program of professional and cultural entertainment for children and adults. The series was originated by the late Richard P. Hibbs, coordinator of special programs, in 1966.

Cerchio, who has been director for seven years, said "one of the most difficult problems we face is when a performer or group wishes to change its (performance) date."

He said cancellations of performances are unusual.

PLAYS AND musicals such as "Fiddler on the Roof," "Hello Dolly," "Children of a Lesser God," "Man of La Mancha," "Chorus Line," "The Hubbard Street Dance Company," "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" and many others have been performed in the auditorium.

Some of the upcoming events scheduled for 1987-88 fall and spring semesters include The Chicago Symphony Orchestra, "The King and I," James Dapogny's Chicago Jazz Band and Dicken's "A Christmas Carol."

Although there are other auditoriums in Carbondale, Cerchio said, Shryock is "considered one of the finest facilities." He said the building is often referred to as a "jewel box of a theater" because it is so acoustically perfect.

For information about additional performances and tickets, call Shryock Auditorium at 453-3379.

'Heat' concert to blow cool blues

By Winnie Stones
Staff Writer

Chicago rhythm and blues, played before in Carbondale, will be played again at 7 tonight when West Side Heat performs on the steps of Shryock Auditorium in this week's edition of the Sunset Concert Series.

The Chicago act was founded by guitarist Steve Arvey in 1982 and is described as "roots" rock-n-roll, with the root being the blues. The band's sound features, along with Arvey's guitar and soulful vocals, the screaming blues harmonica of Mark Hoekstra.

The band released its second record, an extended play (EP) on Bittersweet Records. The four-song disc is entitled "Chicago Bound."

Of the four songs, the first and the last are the strongest, not to say that those in between are forgettable. The first song, "Somebody New," starts the EP off with a catchy melodic lead from Hoekstra's blazing blues harp.

In "Somebody New," the band displays a very poppish rhythm and blues sound, somewhat like the Fabulous Thunderbirds or the New Rhythm and Blues Quartet. West Side Heat has served as a warm-up band to the Fab T-Birds in the past.

West Side Heat's style isn't stuck on uptempo rhythm and blues. They also play out-and-out blues ballads, as the last song on the EP, "Mr. Nobody's Somebody" shows.

"Mr. Nobody's Somebody" showcases the entire group, with each musician having his moment. It features Arvey singing in an expressive Bob Seger style voice, with Hoekstra's harp and a wailing Hammond B3 organ heating up the background.

Confiscated lion unwilling to eat donated meat

HOLTSVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Kimo, a 145-pound, declawed mountain lion seized from a garage where he was kept as a pet, refused fresh meat donated by a supermarket Wednesday but was in "good condition," town officials said.

The animal was held at the Brookhaven Town Animal Shelter after it was seized Tuesday night.

First in '76 there was the Peanut.

Then in '80 a wrinkly old elephant ate the Peanut.

Now in '88 someone is going to need a huge shovel.

Dawson requires 24 stitches after beanball hits face

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Cubs outfielder Andre Dawson was sidelined with a swollen left cheek and San Diego pitcher Eric Show was denied a request to attend Wrigley Field Wednesday, a day after being involved in a beanball incident that spurred a benches-clearing brawl.

Dawson received 24 stitches on the inside and outside of his left cheek Tuesday at Northwestern Memorial Hospital after being hit in the face by a Show pitch in the Cubs' 7-5 victory. X-rays on the cheekbone showed no break.

Dawson arrived at Wrigley Wednesday and refused to talk to reporters before the game.

"He looks like a guy who chews and has a big wad of tobacco," said Cubs public-relations director Ned Colletti, who added Dawson will not play until the swelling lessened.

Show was told by Manager Larry Bowa to stay at the club's downtown Chicago hotel rather than join the club at Wrigley. San Diego pitchers normally must attend games following starts.

"There's no reason for him to be here," Bowa said. Bowa again defended Show, saying if Show had intended to hit Dawson, he would have thrown behind him because that is the way batters instinctively lean.

Cubs Manager Gene Michael said he talked briefly with Dawson to ask how he felt.

"He said he had a headache," Michael said. "I haven't heard anything else."

Hurlers strike back with inside pitches

By RANDY MINKOFF

UPI Sports Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Like Howard Beale in the movie "Network," major-league pitchers appear "mad as hell and aren't going to take it anymore."

What else can explain the latest spree of beanball incidents and brushback pitches? Pitchers, the victims of the lively ball that has made home-run totals soar, have come back with the only weapon they know to silence the big bats: pitch close and tight. Send a message: stay off the plate.

Tuesday's brawl between the Chicago Cubs and San Diego Padres was typical of what has been happening all year in the majors. The Padres, tired of seeing Andre Dawson belt ball after ball out of the park (Dawson has seven homers against the Padres this year), decided to move Dawson off the plate.

But Eric Show, who isn't accustomed to throwing close to batters, put one too close to Dawson and hit him in the head. The prototype baseball brawl — shown over and over again on local sportscasts — followed along with the usual retaliation pitches.

This season has included a plethora of homers in both leagues. At the halfway point, 10 clubs had hit at least 100 homers, including the Cubs. For years, pitchers usually answered someone who had taken them deep with a brushback pitch.

Two reasons are given for the home-run explosion: the lively ball and the poor quality of pitching.

Pitchers can't do "much about the lively ball except to scuff it. Some who do can avoid the home-run curse, but a scuffed ball is tough to control.

The other alternative is for pitchers to move the batters off the plate. Dawson has hit 24 homers this season and did not start Wednesday against the Padres because of a swollen left cheek.

"They've been throwing at

his head a bunch of times this season," Cubs catcher Jody Davis said.

In normal years, players such as Dawson, Jack Clark, Eric Davis or Mark McGwire would receive the brunt of the brushbacks. But when Luis Aguayo and Rafael Santana start taking pitchers deep, they can expect the same treatment.

The result will likely continue to be more brushbacks, more beanballs, more fights and more replays of brawls on the nightly sports shows.

Ironically, it was Cubs Manager Gene Michael who during spring training urged his pitchers to throw closer to hitters.

"We've got to learn to throw inside," Michael said. "It's part of the game."

After his star was struck Tuesday, Michael took a different view.

"I don't believe in throwing at anyone. I don't believe it's part of the game to throw at anyone's head," Michael said.

Brushback pitches are nothing new. Sal Maglie earned his reputation as the "barber" not for his hairstyles but for his inside pitches. Hall of Famer Bob Gibson's success was due in part to his throwing inside.

"I was never afraid to come back and throw one in if the guy had taken me deep the time before," Gibson said.

In some cases, the brushback pitch does work. But more often than not, sluggers such as Dawson just come back angrier and move closer in on the plate to tee off on a pitch.

The by-product of the home-run barrage in the second half of the season is likely to be a replay of the Cubs-Padres incident in selected cities across both leagues. It may get worse during the hot days of July and August before things simmer down.

little more difficult to adjust if I'd have just been thrown in and had to start from scratch this fall."

When Jenkins graduates and begins looking for her first coaching job, she'll continue a family tradition started by her father. Pat Jenkins coached boy's high school basketball for 11 years, and his female protegee credits her solid basketball background as a key to her success on the court and off.

Jenkins made the high school varsity team when she was in fifth grade. By the time she graduated from Fordsville (Ky.) High School, she had acquired eight varsity letters, was selected to the all-state team three times and ended up as Kentucky's No. 2 all-time prep scoring leader.

player. Shipley's defense could use work.

"He'll have to improve his defensive play a little, but practically everybody is like that anyway," Herrin said. "He's got tremendous jumping ability which helps out anywhere he plays, be it outside or inside on the boards."

Shipley, one of three players SIU-C signed to scholarships this spring, averaged 18.6 points per game his senior year. He also averaged 11.2 rebounds and 3.7 assists per game while leading Centralia High School to a 20-7 mark and its first Centralia Tournament victory in 22 years.

"In the Centralia Tournament quarterfinals, Shipley showed me he could put the ball on the floor against the good, quick players," Herrin said.

Prairie State basketball competition begins July 16th in Champaign-Urbana. Corn said while the starting lineup has not been determined, Shipley will most definitely be on the floor at the opening tip.

Saluki spikers set for Prairie games

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

When Sonya Locke, assistant volleyball coach at SIU-C, leads the Region 8 squad into competition at the Prairie State Games, she'll have a lot of familiar faces to keep her company.

Locke will lead a roster dominated by players she coaches all year round. Six of the nine athletes she'll take are members of the Saluki volleyball team, while two others are former Salukis.

Included on the roster are Carbondale native Dorothy Buchanan, Terry Noble, Sue Sinclair, Dawn Thompson, Linda Walker and Joan Wallenberg. All six will either start or see considerable action this fall for head coach Debbie Hunter.

Locke said that while it really doesn't bother her to use so many SIU-C players, she'd like to see more interest in the Games from participants in the Southern Illinois area.

"I know there are a lot of players in the area that'd be able to help this team out," Locke said. "The interest in this region doesn't seem to be as strong as it is in some of the other regions."

Though coaches for Prairie State teams hold tryouts to select team members, Locke said a general lack of interest made the tryouts difficult at best.

A former All-American and two-time Prairie State participant herself, Locke held the tryout on an "extremely" busy weekend and just five people showed up. Two immediately withdrew because the Games conflicted with previously scheduled plans, but the other three are all on Locke's roster.

Locke said many of the players on her roster could have chosen to compete for another region. Noble and Thompson, residents of Riverton, had the option to play for the West-Central region. Joan Wallenberg, of Morton Grove, could have played for North Shore region as she did last summer.

With so many Saluki regulars on the team, Locke said SIU's team could be the benefactor of experience gained this summer.

"There's no doubt that being on the court so much together will help us out as a team this fall," Locke said. "We'll learn more about each other and know a little bit more what to expect."

Locke said spending so much court time together would also improve the team's communications, a vital part of volleyball.

Future Saluki opponents also will suit up for the Games, Locke said. The West-Central region features players from Illinois and Illinois State, two teams that appear on SIU's fall schedule.

The Games run from July 16-18 on the University of Illinois campus in Champaign-Urbana. Opening ceremonies are set for July 15 at Memorial Stadium and the volleyball competition kicks off Saturday morning at the Intramural Recreation Building, located adjacent to Memorial Stadium.

Wacky names belie intensity of intramurals

By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer

Divisions have been established for summer play in 3-on-3 basketball, 12-inch and 16-inch softball, according to Eddie Rankin, graduate assistant in the intramurals department.

"We expect to have some good competition this summer," Rankin said. "The leagues give people an opportunity to participate in sports activities and have a good time doing it."

The men's A division of 3-on-3 basketball is supposed to be a higher level of competition, Rankin said, and features only two teams, the Cusourros and the Decons.

The Bangers, Crabs, Defectors, Enthymemes, Goonies I, Green Team, Hormones, Miles, Predators, Rim Jobs and Touch-n-Go compile the 11-team B division.

The men's 16-inch softball division is compiled of the Bumbling Oafs, Longballers, Defenders, Little Rascals and Blue Bells.

Aidsless, Motor Kings, Team Sports, Generics, Power Crew and MICA form the 12-inch core league.

The men's 12-inch is split into two divisions, the Giants and Cubs. The Giants division features the Longballers, Hamburgiers, Cusourros, Team Mets, Bumbling Oafs and the Sky Dags.

The Cubs division features the One-Hitters, Alfes, Goonies, Defenders, T-Point and Puff Divers.

Rankin said the intramurals office will issue rankings Monday after all the teams have had a chance to play a few games.

Greg French (15) of the Bangers pulls down a rebound against opponent Steve Powers of the Hormones during heated 3-on-3 intramural basketball action at the Rec Center Tuesday night. The Bangers thrashed the Hormones 22-10. Regular season play runs until late July with playoff games ending in early August.

Sharpshooter Jenkins nails coaching position

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

Now that competitive basketball playing days are behind her, former Saluki sharpshooter Marialice Jenkins is ready for the next big challenge in life — coaching the game that's been her No. 1 priority for the past 10 years.

This year's Prairie State Games in Champaign-Urbana will provide Jenkins with her first opportunity to coach, an occupation she soon hopes to do on a full-time basis.

As coach of the Region 8 open division women's basketball squad at the PSG, Jenkins hopes to conduct an impressive performance in her first game at the helm.

"I just hope I don't embarrass myself," Jenkins said. "With the quality of players I'll have, I don't think that'll happen."

Jenkins will choose from a squad of 12, including former teammates and current Salukis Anne Thouvenin and Mary Berghuis. Former teammate and ex-Saluki Cozette Wallace and Saluki newcomer Deanna Sanders also will be on the squad, giving Jenkins a lot of familiar faces to identify with.

"Having some people around I know will make it a lot easier on me," said an admittedly nervous Jenkins. Jenkins said she's hasn't planned any fancy or complicated strategies for the PSG but did say her team would try some things that had been successful for SIU-C the past few seasons.

"We'll try to run a little," Jenkins said. "It won't be real structured, but we'd like to try some simple things that have worked for coach Scott."

Jenkins, who has never coached at all or competed in the PSG, says she really doesn't know what to expect. She went to the PSG regional tryout at John A. Logan College with the intention of trying out for a spot on the roster, but left as coach.

Jenkins serves as an intern for head basketball coach Cindy Scott this summer and graduates in August with a degree in recreation. This fall, she'll serve as Scott's graduate assistant while working on a master's degree in sports management.

Jenkins says her relationship with Scott hasn't really changed that much since her transfer from player to helper.

"I guess it's a little more laidback for coach Scott," Jenkins said. "But I still think of her as coach. People ask me if I call her Cindy now, but I could never do that — it'll always be coach Scott to me!"

Jenkins said the internship she's serving this summer will make the transition from player to graduate assistant this fall easier to deal with.

"I'm already getting familiar with the paperwork and office chores," Jenkins said. "It would have been a

The Prairie State Games showcase the best amateur athletes in Illinois, and SIU-C basketball recruit Rick Shipley will get a chance to play against the high caliber of talent he'll face throughout his collegiate career.

"Anytime a player gets the opportunity to go against players his equal or better, he's made aware of what it takes to get the job done on a regular basis," said Dick Corn, head coach of the Prairie State scholastic division. "The competition can't help but benefit Shipley and help prepare him for collegiate basketball."

Shipley agrees and said the strong level of play in the Prairie Games would be a valuable experience.

"Playing good competition is going to give me a taste of the kind of talent I'll be facing in college," Shipley said. "The kids in the Prairie State Games are bigger, stronger and quicker. You can't get any better unless you play with and against good players."

Saluki men's basketball coach Rich Herrin doesn't want to be overly optimistic about the incoming freshman, but he thinks the 6-foot-8, 210-pound Shipley could be a solid contributor to the Salukis his freshman year.

"I'm not trying to add any more pressure, but I think he can contribute. I know he wants to, and that's a plus," Herrin said.

"I don't feel that much pressure as a freshman," Shipley said. "People don't expect freshman to do that much. If they do perform, it's great, but if I don't, people will say 'he's just a freshman.' But I think coach is going to give me a chance to play, and when I get the chance, I'll do my best."

Herrin cited Shipley's quick first step as an impressive ability, but said, like any
