Pentagon admits jet in proper corridor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon acknowledged Thursday that the airliner the Navy shot down in the Persian Gulf was in its normal commercial corridor but said Iran bore responsibility for flying the plane over a sea battle.

Sunday, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. William Crowe, said the Iran Air Airbus A-300 was 4 1/2 miles outside the corridor when the Aegis-class cruiser Vincennes mistook the plane for an attacking F-14 fighter and shot it down. All 280 passengers and crew were killed.

Thursday, however, Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard said the Airbus was not outside the 20-mile-wide corridor of airway claimed by Iran, but only 4 1/2 miles from the center line. The plane was flying from Bandar Abbas, Iran, to Dubai in the United Arab Emirates.

Terrorism not encouraged

"Based on the preliminary information that we have, the aircraft was approximately 4 1/2 miles west of the center line of the airway," Howard said.

He noted that the United States uses air corridors 8 miles wide and other nations 10 miles. Nevertheless, Howard said, "Commercial aircraft are expected to adhere to the center line of that airway. They normally do it."

At the time of the incident Sunday, the Vincennes was engaged in a gunfight with several Iranian gunboats, two of which the Navy ship sank.

"The Iranians are the ones who bear the responsibility ... (to) ensure the safety of their civilian aircraft by not sending them in harm's way," Howard said. "It seems very peculiar to us that the Iranians would send a commercial aircraft ... directly toward a spot where an exchange of fire was taking place."

Howard's remarks were the first from an administration official that suggested Iran may have deliberately sent the airliner toward the cruiser.

Reagan to visit Southern Illinois

President Reagan will reportedly fly into Southern Illinois next week as part of a Midwest fly-around to survey damage caused by the drought.

One area television station reported that the president will fly into Williamson County Airport in Marion. The White House is expected to release further information in an official announcement today, according to one radio station.

An advance team of security personnel for the president will be in the area today.

During his tour, Reagan will fly over the Mississippi River, according to one report.

Scripps-Howard News Service reported that senators from lower Mississippi Valley states are expected today to ask Reagan to order an "emergency diversion" of water from the Great Lakes into the drought-stricken, barge-snagging Mississippi River.

Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., and other senators are planning to release a letter to Reagan asking that he order the Corps of Engineers to divert water from Lake Michigan through the Illinois Waterway to the Mississippi River.

Company that may distribute condoms at SIU-C under investigation for fraud

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

An organization being recommended to distribute condoms on campus is under investigation by the Idaho Attorney General's Office.

Barry Lawlor, who is an AIDS educator at the Wellness Center, recommended in a memo to Health Service Director Sam McVay that the National AIDS Research Foundation be allowed to distribute condoms on campus. Vice President for Student Affairs Harvey Welch would decide whether to install condom vending machines at the University.

The National AIDS Research Foundation is a not-for-profit organization based in Rigby, Idaho, that solicits universities to install vending machines on their campuses and in the rest of the town.

Also based in Rigby is a company called Venco that sells — among other things — condom vending machines. The owner and personnel of Venco are also the National AIDS Research Foundation.

Allen L. Ball, who could not be reached for comment, is the owner of Venco and the president of the foundation. Brett Andrews, a solicitor for the foundation, is in effect, if not in name, a salesman for Venco.

Andrews described the operation as follows:

As a foundation representative, Andrews finds a campus that will "donate space" for the condom vending machines and then finds local businesses that will do the same. Andrews then contracts a local "investor" who will buy and maintain Venco's condom vending machines at the various locations.

The investor signs a contract to send a specified amount to the foundation of which the foundation sends 80 percent back to the host university.

This translates into 20 percent of the condom sales going to the university for support of AIDS-related projects and 5 percent to the foundation to be used for AIDS research grants.

On-campus enrollment for summer is up 12

Off-campus enrollment is down 15 percent

On-campus summer enrollment at the University is at 8,331 students, about the same as last year.

Enrollment at off-campus sites throughout the state, nation, and abroad is 2,992, for a total summer count of 11,323.

The on-campus figure represents an increase of 12 students above last summer's total. Off-campus enrollment is down by 545 students, a 15 percent drop.

B. Kirby Browning, director of admissions and records, said the decrease reflects a natural ebb and flow for particular courses, mainly those the University offers on a cost-recovery basis. For example, a program called Protetch, given for school teachers across Illinois last summer, was not scheduled this year. Enrollment also is down in prison courses and military base programs.

A contract to provide industrial technology degree courses for Illinois Power Co. workers in Decatur also ended this year.

Roland R. Keim, associate director of admissions and records, said, "Whether these classes are taught does not affect University programs on campus."

On and off campus there are 8,134 undergraduate students, 2,924 students seeking master's and doctoral degrees, 99 law students and 166 medical students.

Robotics program faces cutbacks

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

A master of science program in manufacturing systems scheduled to begin this fall has been forced to start on a more modest scale because of the state legislature's failure to pass a tax increase.

The program, implemented in the College of Engineering and Technology last fall, specializes in robotics — the use of automated control in which a mechanical body can be programmed as a general purpose tool.

Kenneth Tempelmeyer, dean of the College of Engineering and Technology, said funding will not be added to the budget for the program.

"We would have gotten $90,000 for the program if the tax increase had passed," Tempelmeyer said. "Without it, we'll just have to start (the program) on a much smaller scale."

So far, 10 students have been admitted to the program and six have registered.

"We're not sure we can handle more," Tempelmeyer said. "Without the tax increase, we won't be able to start up the program with as many students as we had expected."

Tempelmeyer said the failure of the tax hike plan has prevented any new hiring, thus increasing the work load for current instructors.

"We will teach four additional courses to meet the requirements of the program without an increase in faculty," Tempelmeyer said. "We will not be limiting any courses or denying entrance to incoming students. Some undergraduate classes will be a little larger because we've

GUARANTEED STUDENT LOAN INFORMATION

Recent federal regulations require schools to offer Guaranteed Student Loan Exit Counseling. Each counseling session includes information regarding the loan repayment process, deferment provisions, consolidation options, and debt management strategies.

If this is your last semester at SIUC and you have received a GSL, plan to attend one of the exit counseling sessions offered at the Student Center.

South Korea seeks unity, peace with North Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — President Roh Tae-woo presented South Korea's most far-reaching program of unification with North Korea Thursday, hoping to end four decades of bitter confrontation by exchanges of trade and people. The sweeping, six-point policy — called a "Special Declaration in the Interest of National Self-esteem, Unification and Prosperity" — represented a major departure from the previous South Korean strategy of cornering North Korea into international isolation.

Armenian troops patrol city to quell violence

MOSCOW (UPI) — Troops patrolled the Armenian capital of Yerevan Thursday to prevent renewed violence in a 4-day-old strike that has paralyzed the city and triggered a riot that injured at least 36 people, Armenian journalists said. The evening newspaper Izvestia said one person was killed during disturbances Tuesday in Yerevan but gave no details. The newspaper said strikers were ignoring Communist Party officials' calls to return to work.

Schultz negotiates to end fighting in Asia

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Southeast Asian nations joined Secretary of State George Shultz Thursday in supporting negotiations to end fighting in Cambodia but rejected a return to power by the brutal communist Khmer Rouge. Shultz, speaking to foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, or ASEAN, also said China was reviewing its policy of supporting the Khmer Rouge, blamed for the deaths of more than a million Cambodians when it was in power between May 1975 and January 1979.

Candidates claim victory in Mexico elections

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Ruling party presidential candidate Carlos Salinas de Gortari claimed victory Thursday before thousands of cheering supporters, although no official returns were released and the opposition alleged widespread fraud. Cuauhtemoc Cardenas, presidential candidate of the leftist coalition National Democratic Front, or FDN, said his group's vote count showed him leading in Mexico City, where nearly 25 percent of Mexico's population lives, and in his western home state of Michoacan.

Impeachment of Florida judge recommended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee recommended impeachment Thursday of U.S. District Judge Alcee Hastings, the first step in efforts to remove Florida's first black federal judge from the bench. By a 7-0 vote, the subcommittee sent to the full Judiciary Committee 17 articles of impeachment against Hastings, who was not present for the vote. "This is the most difficult decision I've been called upon to make," said subcommittee Chairman John Conyers, D-Mich., who is black.

Eastern, Continental the tops in complaints

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eastern and Continental, subjects of an unprecedented government safety investigation, ranked worst among major airlines in consumer complaints in June, the government announced Thursday. Overall, major airlines received 1,707 complaints in June, the lowest number of complaints in 16 months and far below the 5,774 in June 1987. The Transportation Department's monthly consumer report said it received 341 complaints about Continental in June and 293 complaints about Eastern.

Estimates double for rescue of Texas banks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Home Loan Bank Board doubled its estimate Thursday of the cost of rescuing the savings and loan industry to $42.5 billion because of higher-than-expected costs of merging of 12 Texas thrifts. Bank Board Chairman M. Danny Wall told the House Banking Committee the new estimate was completed at 5:30 a.m. Thursday.

At least four killed in roof collapse in Texas

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (UPI) — The roof of a downtown department store collapsed during a heavy thunderstorm Thursday, killing at least four people, injuring more than 30 and trapping an undetermined number in the rubble, authorities said. Cameron County Sheriff Alex Perez told the Cable News Network he estimated between 100 and 150 people were either injured or killed when the one-story building housing the Amigos clothing store collapsed about 2:30 p.m.

The national tour of the Tony Award-winning musical "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" comes to Shryock Auditorium Nov. 7. Which one of these people really killed young Edwin Drood (center)? Audience members decide whodunnit by voting for the character of their choice. For reservations and information, call 453-3379.

Celebrity Series 'Just for You'

By Carrie Ferguson
Entertainment Editor

Whether it be plays, music, dance or mime, the 1988-89 Shryock Auditorium Celebrity Series has been designed "Just for You," an auditorium employee said.

The Celebrity Series is enjoying its 23rd season and "it's in good shape," Bob Hageman, departmental business manager, said.

"The series now offers a more exciting variety of events, like "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," Hageman said.

"The Mystery of Edwin Drood" is the fourth presentation of the season. It is a solve-it-yourself Broadway musical in which the audience chooses the ending, he said. In 1986, the musical won five Tony Awards including Best Musical.

Hageman said there were many requests from patrons for a story ballet. This season, The Jeffrey II Dancers will bring the classic, "Beauty and the Beast," October 11 to Shryock.

Dance Collective have been called "dancers who look like people who move like dancers."

"They are exciting and expressive in a way that's unlike anyone we've had," Hageman said. "They are easy to relate to and they aren't gimmicky. They use props in the choreography in very interesting ways."

The holiday classic "It's a Wonderful Life," adapted from Frank Capra's 1946 Christmas film, is booked for December 7.

"The film is a holiday standard and the quality of the play is very good," Hageman said.

In choosing acts to book, Hageman said Shryock personally try to think in the broadest sense of their market.

"We try to find something for everybody, but we stay within our own guidelines," Hageman said. "We only book professional companies. (The series) is everything that you would expect to find in a professional theatre."

The Celebrity Series, Hageman said, is in good shape, but it is seeking sponsor support for some of the shows.

"We have gone after area business sponsors with the blessing of the SIU Foundation," he said. "The Illinois Arts Council grant budget was cut severely and we anticipate more cuts for this year."

The names of the sponsors will be announced at a later date, he said.

But, Hageman said, the Celebrity Series should not be affected by the cuts.

"We're faced with the 2 percent plan, we're no different than anyone else on campus," he said. "Inflation is affecting our operation and entertainment is more expensive. But there will be the same amount of productions." The Celebrity Series consists of nine productions a year.

"We will continue to make (the series) a strong offering and continue the variety. Attendance is good, so that means we must be doing a good job," Hageman said.

Celebrity Series schedule

Civil Service Council asks for celebration of Vets Day

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

The Civil Service Employees Council has asked President John C. Guyon to consider a campus-wide observance of Veterans Day on November 11.

Council President David Saunders said details of the observance have not been discussed, but the ROTC might be asked to participate in a ceremony. Details will be worked out after Guyon has looked over the resolution, he said.

Guyon said it sounds like a reasonable idea and he is willing to work with the council to try to implement it.

The council passed the resolution unanimously at its meeting Wednesday. The resolution was drafted after some University employees, who are veterans, voiced disappointment over not having Veterans Day off.

It would take longer to amend the University calendar and create a Veteran's Day holiday, according to Saunders.

Pay hike not enough to clog brain drain ...

HOUSE SPEAKER MICHAEL Madigan should take up plumbing. He did a fine job of keeping the the Illinois brain drain open by blocking Gov. James R. Thompson's tax increase proposal.

Although the Legislature passed a budget that includes a slight 5.7-percent raise in faculty and staff salaries, the brain drain remains open.

TAKE INTO CONSIDERATION inflation and the fact that SIU-C faculty members have not had a raise for the last two years. The 5.7-percent increase amounts to a piddling 2.8 percent, according to Assistant to the Chancellor Catherine Walsh.

The increase, if approved by Thompson, probably will not be enough to keep many of the 63 faculty members who are termed "at risk." These faculty members have either applied for, or have been offered jobs elsewhere.

... and short-term contracts don't help

WITH LESS FACULTY and more students, some departments have no choice but to staff vacant positions with instructors hired on short-term contracts. This causes inconsistencies in programs that need consistency.

Because of budget uncertainty, departments are afraid to offer tenure track positions, so they offer one-year contracts, hoping to appease the growing student population.

BUT TERM APPOINTMENTS are risky. Because Illinois has a reputation as a state that is stingy with its education budget, departments have a hard time finding instructors.

Sometimes when an instructor is hired, it's at the last minute and department heads often don't have complete information about the prospective teacher. It amounts to a real crap shoot for good instructors.

Talented instructors are hired on term appointments when they should be snapped up as tenure tract candidates. Good instructors would be better if they didn't have to worry about where they'll work next year.

... but wait until next year

AND NOW A few encouraging words. According to Walsh, the massive lobbying efforts by education officials helped make education a legislative priority, even if Madigan didn't think so.

Also, polls show that the general public recognizes the need for more education funding.

Wait 'til next year, Thompson says. By next year more faculty will have left and the University will have slipped into further obsolescence.

But, at least there will be White Sox games to watch.

Opinions from elsewhere

The Denver Post

The Soviet Communist Party conference ... was the most politically momentous event in the Eastern bloc since Nikita Khrushchev attacked Stalin's hideous legacy and began the Soviet Union's first era of reform.

Thirty-two years later, the comparison between Khrushchev and Mikhail Gorbachev is telling. Khrushchev's speech to the 1956 party congress was secret, though it eventually leaked out. In stark contrast, Soviet TV viewers saw a delegate openly call for the removal of four senior party officials. While tame compared to what U.S. viewers see daily on C-SPAN, such open debate has been unheard of in the Soviet Union since Lenin overthrew Kerensky. ...

Captain was right in airline downing

By Leonard Larsen
 Scripps Howard News Service

WASHINGTON — It's the best judgment of the Reagan administration and the Pentagon that the downing of the Iranian airliner with 290 lives lost was too bad, but just one of those things that happen.

It's said that, even though the finest training and equipment produced a tragic mistake of enormous consequences, the officers and crew of the Vincennes performed exactly as they should. We regret it, we apologized, but we make no promises it won't happen again.

There have been other appraisals from other officials, from the politically contrived paean by Vice President George Bush lauding the Vincennes' captain and "those heroic kids of his ..." to the arresting witlessness of Sen. John Warner, R-Va.

Warner gave voice to a piece of oddball speculation that the Iranian government may have dispatched the airliner and all its passengers on a "kamikaze attack" against the U.S. Navy missile cruiser.

But the larger consideration ought to be that the U.S. Navy, its ship commanders and crews are instruments of a Reagan administration Persian Gulf policy that was vague from the beginning and has resulted in continuing violence, all the while diminishing U.S. interests and hopes for regional peace.

What began as a unilateral pledge to provide U.S. Navy escort for 12 Kuwaiti oil tankers — none involved in deliveries to the United States — has become something like guerrilla warfare at sea.

Iranian attackers, much as the Viet Cong in the early stages of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, choose the time and place of attack, risk little to damage a lot and goad U.S.

News Analysis

We've come to blame ... (naval) officers in the Persian Gulf for a foreign policy that hasn't worked and needs review. It's not their fault.

forces into "accidents," as when villages were sometimes wiped out and when an airliner is blasted from the sky by a ship performing lawlessly but with indiscriminate force.

In this role of escalating responsibilities, taken on by the United States alone after we rejected any sharing of convoy duties with U.N. forces or the Soviet Union, the U.S. Navy has become both the irritant and the attractive target.

The Reagan Persian Gulf policy, which had as its stated objectives the safe passage of shipping and an end to the Iran-Iraq war, has now produced another crisis in U.S. credibility.

The nation and its leaders appear less intent on peace-keeping than in asserting our presence in the Gulf while warning that anything that floats or flies is at risk if it shows up on our radar.

As in previous exertions of the Reagan foreign policy concerning Iran, the peace-keeping in the Persian Gulf and its costs — including 44 Americans killed so far — have created a mess we can't easily back out of.

When the administration secretly shipped arms to Iran, the exposure not only produced domestic scandal but worsened relations in the entire Middle East.

Now we are not only perceived as a careless bully in the Persian Gulf, but we warn it could happen again and make suggestions it was, after all, Iran's fault that two missiles were mistakenly fired at an airliner on a routine passage through a recognized commercial corridor.

Only one of the sorry aspects of the downing of the Iranian airliner is the prospect that in the end, somebody is going to be blamed for misinformation and for misjudgment, and that somebody is probably going to be Navy Capt. Will C. Rogers III.

Little more than a year ago it was the commander of the U.S. Navy frigate Stark, Capt. Glenn R. Brindel, whose ship was hit by two Iraqi missiles with the loss of 37 U.S. sailors.

Brindel, reasonably, was found by his superiors in the Navy to have been too cautious in not firing on the Iraqi fighter jet, and he was dismissed from the Navy.

It was entirely predictable — inevitable, maybe — that every ship commander assigned thereafter to Persian Gulf duty wasn't going to have happen to him what happened to Brindel.

So Rogers, his ship already engaged with small Iranian boats, having issued radio warnings and believing time was running out, fired on what he thought was a hostile fighter and hit the airliner.

Even if Rogers doesn't get canned from the Navy, he's marked now as certainly as Brindel, and that's a shame. We've come to blame Rogers and Brindel and other officers in the Persian Gulf for a foreign policy that hasn't worked and needs review. It's not their fault.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student-editor-in-chief, the additional page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247 Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letter of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major; faculty members by rank and department; non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Fire alarm, but no fire

By John Walblay
Staff Writer

The Carbondale Fire Department, for the third time in as many weeks, Thursday responded to fire alarms from the Communications Building only to find themselves not needed.

John Manis, assistant fire chief, said he would "rather find out that I'm not needed than to come and find a fire."

Manis said the fire alarm system is a good system but it is very sensitive, and is sometimes triggered by the "smallest thing."

It is difficult to find the exact alarm that has caused the problem since several alarms are connected to one control, Manis said.

Meanwhile, students and faculty at the Communications Building are ignoring the alarms.

The University is under contract with the city for fire protection. Fire calls are not charged on an individual basis.

Two injured in accident

By John Walblay

A mother and her young daughter were treated and released for minor injuries after the car they were passengers in swerved to avoid a bicyclist and rolled over into a ditch.

Cedric Williams, 29, of Murphysboro, was driving east on Chautauqua Road at about 6:40 p.m. Wednesday when the accident occurred.

His wife, Lucille, 28, and daughter Ashley, 2, were taken to Carbondale Memorial Hospital and treated for minor injuries.

Tamera S. Brown, 21, Murphysboro, had stopped her car to help the occupants of the Williams' vehicle when a car driven by Jennifer Maricle, 17, came over a hill and skidded into the rear of Brown's car.

Neither Brown nor Maricle were injured.

The bicyclist, Dewayne Pullen, Murphysboro, also escaped injury.

Cause of death uncertain in one-car accident

By John Walblay
Staff Writer

The cause of death for a Carbondale woman killed in a one-car accident will not be known for some time, Don Ragsdale, Jackson County coroner said.

Ragsdale said he has to wait for a preliminary autopsy report from the pathologist before the cause of death for Linda K. Hale, 40, of Rural Route 2, can be determined.

Hale died Wednesday at about 11:10 p.m. after the car she was driving left the road and turned over in an overflow creek on Spillway Road west of Cartersville, State Police said.

Hale was pronounced dead on arrival at Carbondale Memorial Hospital, Ragsdale said.

State Police said they are still investigating the cause of the accident and it will be some time before the report is made.

There were no passengers at the time of the accident, State Police said.

Idaho Attorney General's Office said he is investigating the foundation to see if money is actually going to AIDS research.

Richardson said because his staff is overburdened by cases he hasn't yet investigated the situation thoroughly.

"I don't have any reason to believe they are legal or illegal," he said. Andrews said he is "not aware of any (money) that has been dispersed" for AIDS research.

Lawlor said he picked up a news release on the foundation at an AIDS conference in Colorado and was contacted later by Andrews.

Lawlor said that he was told by Andrews that Stanford University, San Louis Obispo College, Rutgers University, the University of Western Michigan and the University of Montana were a part of the foundation.

Andrews said that the universities are not involved with the foundation, but he is "working with them."

Andrews would not name any universities where the machines have been installed.

Steve Lux, a health educator at Northern Illinois University also talked to Andrews.

Lux said Andrews told him, "We're going to be supplying them at SIU."

Andrews denied the statement.

"I didn't mean to leave that impression," he said.

decreased the number of sections to open time slots for the added graduate courses."

James Orr, head of the industrial technology program, said the program received hundreds of inquiries when it was first advertised. Such a demand for a masters program in manufacturing systems leaves room for high selectivity, he said.

"High selectivity will lead to better quality students," Orr said. "The better quality the student is, the more chances he has of being hired. Word will get back to the University and make SIU and the College of Engineering and Technology look good."

Iranians cautioned against terrorism

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — President Ali Khomeini, addressing thousands of mourners chanting "Death to America," promised revenge Thursday for the U.S. downing of an Iranian airliner but said terrorism was the wrong response.

Khomeini urged more enlistments for the war against Iraq as 76 flag-draped coffins containing the bodies of some of the 290 Iranians killed Sunday were laid out in front of the parliament building.

"We shall take revenge,"

Khomeini told the crowd of 10,000, shouting "Death to America, death to Reagan," from the top of the stairs of the Majlis, or parliament.

But, he added, "To take one or two persons hostage, whether that person is an ordinary one, or a diplomat, or even a security individual — if such a person is taken captive in any corner of the world, public opinion does not like it."

Majlis Speaker Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, who is also deputy supreme commander of the Iranian armed forces, was conspicuously absent from the emotional ceremonies. The crowd nevertheless invoked his name, chanting, "Hashemi, Hashemi, Hashemi, revenge, revenge."

In a scene reminiscent of the mob fury in front of the U.S. Embassy during the hostage crisis of 1979-81, the American flag and the official presidential seal were placed on the Majlis steps and impaled symbolically with a staff bearing the flag of the Islamic Republic of Iran.

Foreign reporters were also invited to view corpses in the southern port of Bandar Abbas, where the flight originated.

Fourteen victims were buried Thursday in the village of Lar and 10 in Zabedan, while 24 were buried Wednesday in Bandar Abbas.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency said 200 bodies had been recovered from the Persian Gulf, where the plane was shot down by American forces during a clash with Iranian gunboats.

Cycle injuries subsidized by public funds, study says

CHICAGO (UPI) — Motorcyclists who do not wear helmets put themselves at great physical risk, but little financial risk, since they only pay about 1 percent of the medical costs when they are seriously injured in accidents, a study indicated Thursday.

The majority of motorcycle injury medical costs — 63.4 percent — are paid for by public funds, with the remainder paid by private insurers, according to research conducted at the University of Washington in Seattle.

The scientists who conducted the study said they did so to point out that motorcycle injuries are "in essence subsidized by the state," and that, therefore, states had a strong interest in enacting mandatory helmet laws that would greatly reduce fatalities and the severity of injuries.

"The argument has been made that motorcyclists should have a right to put themselves at risk if they choose to," said Dr. Frederick Rivara, of the university's Harborview Injury Prevention and Research Center. "But we thought it was important for policymakers to realize who was picking up the tab."

Rivara said he hoped his study, published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, might convince the 29 states without strict helmet laws to reconsider.

"At one point 47 states had laws because of a congressional mandate," Rivara said. "But pressure from the motorcycle lobby caused that to be repealed in 1976, and 26 states promptly rescinded or weakened their laws. Motorcycle deaths went up 44 percent in the next three years."

Motorcycle deaths now account for nearly one of every 10 motor vehicle fatalities in the United States, with 4,423 deaths recorded in 1985 alone. For every motorcyclist killed another 90 are hospitalized, and not wearing a helmet greatly increases the risk of serious head injuries and permanent disability.

In order to determine the public costs of motorcycle injuries, Rivara and his colleagues evaluated the records of 105 motorcyclists admitted at the Harborview Medical Center in 1985. More than half of the cyclists — 61 — sustained head injuries, seven died and 18 patients were severely disabled or in a persistent vegetative state when released from the hospital.

Direct medical costs, including rehabilitation and home care, averaged $25,764 for each patient.

City attorney: No decision on licences

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

City Attorney Patricia McMeen has not made a decision whether she will recommend a Carbondale businessman's liquor licenses be revoked because he has a felony record.

"A person who has been convicted of a felony cannot hold a liquor license in Carbondale," she said.

Under Carbondale ordinances, a person convicted of a felony cannot hold a liquor license. If an officer of a corporation holding a liquor license is convicted of a felony, the corporation must give up its liquor license.

McMeen said she has not fully reviewed the case involving James Winfree, who pleaded guilty June 29 to charges of eavesdropping on a conversation between his ex-wife and another man. The conversation took place in June of 1986. Winfree was fined $1,000 and put on 12 months probation.

Winfree is listed in city records as an officer of J.P.W. Enterprises Inc., which does business as the American Tap, Gatsby's Bar and Billiards, and Southern Liquor Mart.

Winfree, reached at his home in Carbondale, said he was busy to comment.

Leak blamed for oil rig blast

17 die in blast, 166 missing

ABERDEEN, Scotland (UPI) — A fleet of small rescue ships and aircraft searched the chilly waters around a blazing North Sea oil rig Thursday for up to 166 workers reported missing and feared dead after explosions destroyed the U.S.-operated platform, killing at least 17.

Chief Police Constable Alastair Lynn said terrorism had been ruled out as a cause of Wednesday's night blast. According to witnesses the blast rained fire and debris on would-be rescuers and oil rig workers who frantically tried to escape after the initial blast 120 miles northeast of Aberdeen, Scotland.

Officials of the Occidental Petroleum Corp., the Los Angeles-based company that operated the Piper Alpha rig off the east coast of Scotland, said a series of explosions and fires was sparked by an escape of gas from the rig's "C-module" that compresses natural gas to remove liquids.

The unit had been shut down and isolated for "routine maintenance" and a "series of explosions and fires quickly followed" the initial leak, company chairman John Branding said.

Occidental's vice president for engineering, Gene Grogan, said he couldn't explain the leak in the unit, which he described as "a myriad of pipes."

"Such was the rapidity of the spread of the conflagration that people in the living quarters were unable to make their way to the lifeboats," Branding said.

If the missing workers are dead, it would be the worst disaster in history of North Sea oil fields. In March 1980, 137 people died when a platform keeled over in a storm in the Norwegian Ekofisk section of the North Sea.

There were conflicting reports on casualties. Aberdeen police said about 17 were confirmed dead and 67 people were saved. But 166 were unaccounted for after the explosions smashed through the Piper Alpha rig, which towered 307 feet above the waves.

Branding said 68 people survived the blast and 148 were unaccounted for among the 231 people aboard or near the rig in a rescue boat.

Lynn said most of the men on the rig were Britons, but the complement included Europeans, Canadians, Americans and South Africans. No breakdown or identifications were immediately available.

"There is no question of it being sabotage," Lynn said in announcing that 17 bodies had been recovered from the disaster, which came three days after a U.S. warship shot down an Iranian passenger jet in the Persian Gulf, killing all 290 on board and triggering fears of retaliation.

Acting academic affairs VP hopes for permanent position

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Mary Lou Higerson, who was recently named continuing acting associate vice president for academic affairs and research, said she plans to apply for the continuing position.

Higerson has been acting associate vice president since August 1987 and will continue in that position while a search for a permanent associate vice president is conducted this fall.

Interim and acting deans who also were appointed yesterday could not be so certain about the future of their positions.

Anthony Cuvo, who was appointed acting dean of the College of Human Resources, said it would be presumptuous to think in terms of a continuing appointment since units in that college have been asked to consider moving to other colleges.

Cuvo said Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs, would like to have final plans by April 1989 if the faculty in these units decide to move to other colleges. The move would dissolve the College of Human Resources.

If the faculties decide not to move, a decision about a dean probably will be made before then, Cuvo said.

Peter Goplerud, who was appointed interim dean of the School of Law, said he is "looking forward to the challenge of the position" and will "tackle the job in an enthusiastic and vigorous way."

Goplerud said he does not have the continuing position in mind at the moment.

New financial aid policy does not address student concerns: Student representative

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

A student representative on the Illinois Board of Higher Education said its report on the effectiveness of financial aid policies and levels of funding in Illinois does not properly address student concerns.

The IBHE and the Illinois State Scholarship Commission last year appointed a special committee to address whether changes in the financial aid policy would benefit students.

The special committee conducted public hearings in 1987 and met with student groups for informal discussion. Numerous meetings also were held during the rest of 1987 to consider financial aid issues and alternative policies.

Bill Hall, an SIU-C student and the only student representative on the board, said although the recommendations are good, many areas are ignored.

The recommendations state that: —Need-based programs should be given precedence over non-need-based programs.

—The financial aid application process should be simplified.

—The monetary award program should be extended to the equivalent of six years of full-time study or 12 years of half-time study.

—Long-term tuition increases should be kept at a level comparable to the rate of increase in the Higher Education Price Index.

Hall said IBHE President Dick Wagner has agreed to meet with him, representatives from ISSC, and other student leaders, to hear student financial aid concerns in greater detail.

Hall is concerned that the report does not address specific problems.

"They have good recommendations, but they need to address more student concerns," he said.

A date has not been set for the meeting, but Hall said he is looking for students who have experienced financial aid problems and have found ways to resolve them.

Openings remain in paper making class

By Richard Scheffer
Staff Writer

Four spots are left for the Kids' Paper Making Class, which starts at 1:30 today at the Craft Shop in the Student Center.

The class is open to children ages nine to 12 and meets for four consecutive Fridays from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. The lab fee is $20, which includes materials.

Parents can register their children and complete an insurance waiver at the Craft Shop.

Ronald Dunkel, assistant arts and crafts coordinator, said the children will be making hand-made paper, kites, window hangings and cast paper.

"You get instant results from your work," he said.

Dunkel said paper making is a lost art form that has been rediscovered by the Japanese and is becoming a popular art medium.

This is the last class or workshop the Craft Shop will offer this summer. However, people still can sign up and use the studio without instruction if they have experience, Dunkel said.

Workshops and classes are scheduled to resume a few weeks into the fall semester.

Kay Zivkovich, arts and crafts coordinator, said the Craft Shop is open year round, but with reduced hours in the summer.

Zivkovich said the Craft Shop is trying to meet the needs of the entire community by offering diverse programs, which include educational workshops and visiting artists.

"It's a creative and worthwhile experience," she said.

Ideas for the different classes are selected by suggestions and the interests of the community, she said.

Zivkovich said the shop tries to limit classes to 12 participants so they can be worked with on a one-on-one basis.

The Craft Shop also is trying to design classes to appeal to the international and non-traditional student, she said.

Zivkovich said the shop hires people who are basically interested in art.

The Craft Shop is located at the north end of the Big Muddy Room in the basement level of the Student Center.

Corn and soybean prospects fade fast

MORRIS (UPI) — State Agriculture Director Larry Werries said Thursday the state's drought-parched, heat-withered corn crop is fading fast, and prospects for soybean yields are dwindling daily.

"We might just as well brace ourselves for the eventuality of a complete disaster of the corn and bean crop," Werries told a fund-raising breakfast for Republican Illinois House candidate Jerry Weller.

"The drought is worsening and we're facing imminent disaster," Werries said.

He said consumers can expect higher prices for food — and warned, that, if drought conditions persist next year, some food products could be in short supply.

"I don't think there's any way around it, he said. "The 12 to 14 percent of their income that consumers are spending now for food will surely go up."

"Next year, if dry weather conditions persist, we'll use up the reserve corn in the system (for feed). And the food system in this country could be a disaster," he warned.

Werries said anyone who is a farmer can get a firsthand look at crop conditions by driving around the countryside.

He said that, of the state's six crop-reporting areas, the Rockford area has been hardest hit by the drought.

Water study: June driest on record

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — Last month was Illinois' driest June on record, with less than a quarter the normal amount of rain statewide, the Illinois Water Survey reported Thursday.

The driest area — a band extending from northwestern counties to the east central section of the state — got less than a half-inch of rain in the whole month, experts said.

Wayne Wendland, state climatologist with the state Water Survey, said most of the state got less than one-quarter of the average June rainfall.

Wendland said the band of extreme dryness last month included Mount Carroll, Walnut, Pontiac, Paris and Champaign. He said last month's conditions rivaled those in the drought years of the 1930s.

Winds spare Rushmore from big fire

KEYSTONE, S.D. (UPI) — A 10,000-acre wildfire racing across South Dakota's dry Black Hills shrouded Mount Rushmore with billowing smoke and forced about 2,000 persons to flee before stalling on Thursday 3 miles from the landmark granite shrine to four presidents.

"Everything was so cloudy," tourist Tom Van Winkle of Mesa, Ariz. said. Van Winkle was watching a film with his family at Mount Rushmore National Memorial when they were told to leave their hotel in nearby Keystone Wednesday night.

"Lots of people were panicky. They were packing hurriedly. They wanted to get out fast."

More than 350,000 acres of the drought-parched West have been scorched in the summer's most extensive assault by destructive lightning-sparked wilderness fires, including a huge inferno halted just short of the Alaskan oil pipeline.

Identical twins' have numerical difference

HOUSTON (UPI) — What's the best way to tell apart identical twins Dan and Dennis Hayden, top prospects for the 1988 U.S. Olympic gymnastics team? "Our numbers," quipped Dan.

For the past couple years, gymnastics fans have not had to worry about getting the 22-year-olds confused.

Dennis was sidelined most of that time because of serious back and knee injuries, and the U.S. championships that began Thursday in Summit Arena are his first nationals since 1986, when he finished third.

Dan was the second-ranked member of the 1987 U.S. world team and was the national runner-up in 1986.

Omori resigns

Jon Omori, a top prospect for the 1988 U.S. Olympic team who finished ninth at the 1987 U.S. championships, has been forced to withdraw from this year's nationals after injuring an ankle in practice.

U.S. men's coach Abie Grossfeld said he expected Omori to ask the U.S. Gymnastics Federation to petition him directly into the Olympic Trials, Aug. 4-7 in Salt Lake City. If the petition is granted, the Trials would count 100 percent for Omori.

Nationals will count 40 percent and the Trials 60 percent for the 18 top male scorers who will advance to the U.S. championships to the Trials.

Vault that ended in paralysis lingers in teammates' mind

HOUSTON (UPI) — Christy Henrich has more than just the U.S. Gymnastics Championships on her mind this week.

Many of her thoughts center around 15-year-old teammate Julissa Gomez, who suffered a broken neck May 5 while performing a routine practice vault at the world Sports Fair in Tokyo.

"I think about her every single day," Henrich said. "It's been real hard on all of us."

Gomez was transferred to The Methodist Hospital in Houston in late May, where she remains in a coma and is paralyzed.

Hospital officials have been honoring a request by the Gomez family not to release any information about her condition.

Henrich said it has been very difficult for her to cope with the injury to Gomez. She wants badly to see Gomez, but has been told a visit would not be possible because Gomez is in the intensive care unit.

Henrich, who turns 16 on July 18, believes she is ready to challenge for a place on this year's U.S. Olympic team, and plans to stay in competition through the 1992 Olympics.

"I've been working a lot of hours, perfecting the little things, and I'm ready," said Henrich, who trains under Al Fong in Blue Springs, Mo.

"I've been perfecting everything. I've added some things, but mostly I've been perfecting."

Henrich was ranked 14th at the nationals in 1987, her first year of competition at the seniors level.

She is shooting for a finish between sixth and eighth at the U.S. Championships, which could 40 percent toward a place on the U.S. team.

"They want consistent gymnasts on the team," she said. "You can't be high in one place and low on the other. I think a gymnast should be equal all the way around the events and I really feel I am now. Every meet this year I've had higher scores than the meet before."

Henrich does not come from a particularly active sports family. Her father was a bowler until being sidelined by a back injury and her mother "could have been" an athlete had she had the opportunity, she said.

Her brother, however, is a second-degree black-belt in karate and he helped her with a break-dance routine that she uses in her floor exercise.

Gomez, who was ranked 13th in the country, was taken to Tokyo University Hospital after the accident.

World Cup getting prepared

Soccer hierarchy wants to boost soccer across the country

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hierarchy of American soccer Thursday began drawing the blueprints for the 1994 World Cup with a plan based on strengthening the national team and revitalizing soccer leagues across the country.

"What has to be done is one and one thing only," said Werner Fricker, president of the U.S. Soccer Federation. "Development of the national team."

Fricker spoke at the USSF's first news conference since it was awarded the 1994 World Cup on the Fourth of July by FIFA, world soccer's ruling body based in Switzerland.

In granting the tournament to the United States for the first time, FIFA broke with the tradition of holding the quadrennial extravaganza in Europe or Latin America. Brazil and Morocco were the other contenders. The 1990 World Cup will be held in Italy.

Fricker was joined Thursday by Paul Stiehl, director of World Cup USA 1994, the group that steered the USSF bid; former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, chairman of the group's advisory committee; Warner Communications chairman Steve Ross; the committee's vice chairman; and Rick Davis, senior member of the national team.

Fricker outlined steps he contends will not only prepare the United States for the rigors of international play but generate public interest in a country that largely has rejected soccer on a professional level.

Americans will compete in Olympic soccer at the Seoul Games, where Fricker said they must make a good showing. Players from South America and Europe with World Cup experience are ineligible for the Olympics.

Next, he said, the United States must advance to the 1990 World Cup and demonstrate it can play at such standards. Regional qualifying for that tournament begins July 24 with a game in Jamaica.

The United States, as host, automatically qualifies for the 1994 World Cup. The country could face the indignity of being the first host nation eliminated after one round.

Fricker recommends league play to nurture homegrown talent. He said FIFA most not insist on such a move before awarding the 1994 World Cup.

"There was absolutely no prerequisite," Fricker said.

The USSF president said he envisions three league tiers, similar to the athletic structure of American colleges and foreign soccer leagues.

He said the first division may have 32 teams and play an international schedule. The second division may have twice as many teams and play on a lesser level. The third division of an undetermined number of clubs would consist of local squads.

Currently, there is no outdoor league of any consequence in this country. The top division of the new leagues — which Fricker anticipates in place by the early 1990s — would be drawn from the American Soccer League, Western Soccer Alliance and Major Indoor Soccer League.

Fricker also said the USSF, which governs national soccer, intends to create teams for players 16, 18 and 23 years old. He said quality players need to face 40 to 60 games a year.

New Zealand, U.S. battle in America Cup

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The America's Cup teams from New Zealand and the United States met on the water for the first time Wednesday in a battle of chase boats.

A Stars & Stripes tender nearly rammed a small speedboat carrying two Kiwi observers as they followed the San Diego Yacht Clubs's two catamarans, prompting both sides to complain that their right of way was violated.

"It was highly dangerous and really stupid," said Jim Reynolds, skipper of the American tender Betsy.

The Betsy, with its engines churning in reverse as Reynolds tried desperately to stop his 36-ton vessel, came three inches from the rubber-bulleted outboard carrying Russell Bower and Peter Walker, two of the designers of the New Zealand boat.

NFL Hall of Fame quarterback's son found dead

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The body of Brett Starr, son of NFL Hall of Fame quarterback Bart Starr, was found Thursday in the dining room of his home, a Hillsborough County Sheriff's spokesman said.

Sheriff's spokesman Jack Espinosa said there was no evidence of foul play, but an investigation was underway. He said positive identification of Starr, 24, was made about 4 p.m., but was withheld until his father could be reached.

"We have no idea what the cause of death is, pending an autopsy," he said. "At this time we have no reason to suspect foul play, however, we have our crime technicians at the scene."

Espinosa said Starr had been dead two to three days and said the body was found on the floor of a dining area at the rear of the house in the fashionable Carrollwood area northwest of Tampa.

A neighbor told UPI she last saw Brett Starr Monday night. She said another man entered the house Tuesday and said Brett Starr's car was not at the house Thursday.

Espinosa said Bart Starr arrived in Tampa about 9:30 a.m. Thursday and went to his son's house, which he found locked. He then contacted a regional station of the sheriff's office and expressed concern about his son and was accompanied back to the house by deputies.

Two Rottweiler dogs were inside the locked house and animal control officers were called to the scene. The owner of the house arrived shortly before noon with a key.

A newspaper story in November 1984, on Brett Starr's move to Florida, identified him as a co-owner of Gulf Coast Fisheries, a Tampa firm involved in the tropical fish and reptile business.

"We import exotic fish and reptiles for wholesale distribution," he said at that time. "The reptiles include snakes — venomous and non-venomous — lizards, turtles, the works."

Bart Starr, former star quarterback and later coach of the Green Bay Packers, and his wife Cherry have another son, Bart Starr Jr., 29.

Mast hits 7-under-par 64; Inkster fires 6-under-par 66

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Dick Mast, a PGA Tour journeyman seeking his first victory, capitalized on nearly perfect conditions with a bogey-free 7-under-64 to grab a one-stroke first-round lead in the $650,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

In Indianapolis, Juli Inkster fired a 6-under 65 in sweltering heat Thursday, matching the Mayflower Classic record, to take a three-stroke lead after the first round of the $400,000 LPGA tournament.

Mast, who has lost his PGA Tour card three times since first qualifying in 1973, fired his best round of 1988 and came within one shot of matching the course record at the Kingsmill Golf Club.

Tom Purtzer and Tom Byrum were one stroke behind Mast at 65, with Jerry Pate, Larry Rinker, Bill Buttner, Clark Broughs and Charles Bolling huddled at 66. Curtis Strange, who lives at Kingsmill and is the club's touring pro, posted a 3-under 68 in his first PGA Tour round since winning the U.S. Open last month in a playoff against Nick Faldo.

In women's golf, Inkster's round, the third-best of her career, equaled the Country Club of Indianapolis course record set by Sally Little at the 1978 U.S. Women's Open and tied by Beth Daniel in the 1982 Mayflower. The course was altered to a par-72 layout during Daniel's Mayflower-record round, but played to par 71 for Inkster and Little.

Inkster made four birdies and an eagle on the 6,124-yard course. It was her lowest round since March 1986, when she tied a career-best 64 en route to winning the Women's Kemper Open.

Defending champion Colleen

Walker, trying to become the first repeat winner in Mayflower history, was among seven golfers tied for second at 68. Also three shots back were Betsy King, Tammie Green, Sally Quinlan, Terry-Jo Myers, Chris Johnson and Donna White. Nine others were four shots off the lead.

Inkster eagled the 472-yard, par-5 first hole, using a 4-wood on her second shot to place the ball 6 feet from the cup. She also birdied the 11th, 12th, 17th and 18th holes, with her longest putt a 15-foot effort on No. 12.

The temperature reached 99 degrees under humid conditions, forcing Inkster and most of the field to rest more than usual during their rounds.

"It's hot and getting hotter. You've got to rest, sit down and take your time out there," Inkster said. "I found a lot of shade and sat down a lot.

NFL free agency vote set to go before judge

A judge will decide on the NFL Players Association's request for unrestricted free agency for about one-fifth of the league's players Monday in Minneapolis, U.S. District Judge David Doty's office said Thursday.

Cary Johnson, a clerk in Doty's office, said the judge will rule in a hearing Monday afternoon on the union's motion for a preliminary injunction that would grant free agency to 284 players.

The motion stems from the massive antitrust suit the NFLPA filed against the league last Oct. 15, the day the union ended its 24-day strike. If Doty grants the injunction, any player whose contract with a club expired after the 1987 season would be allowed to sign a contract with any of the league's 28 teams, without his original team receiving compensation or the right of first refusal.

Such stars as Philadelphia's Randall Cunningham, Washington's Russ Grimm, the New York Giants' Carl Banks, Miami's Mark Duper and Chicago's Willie Gault would be made free agents if the injunction is granted.

Doty will have three clear options in his ruling Monday. The judge could grant the injunction for immediate free agency or could grant the injunction, then immediately stay the order for an appeal. Or he could deny the motion and set a trial date, giving the union a chance to persuade a jury that it deserves damages in the case.

NFL Management Council spokesman John Jones said the league is prepared to immediately appeal Doty's ruling if the judge allows free agency.

"It would be a tremendous mess," Jones said. "No one has ever explained how that egg would be unscrambled."

The union's suit claims that in the absence of a collective bargaining agreement, the league's player reserve system, collegiate draft and the standard player contract violate federal antitrust laws. The old five-year collective bargaining agreement expired last Aug. 31.

Team-tennis gets under way

By Brad Bushue Staff Writer

Domino's Team-Tennis league played their first set of matches Wednesday after being rained out June 29.

Intramural Sports Recreation scheduled four teams to play Wednesday but one set was canceled when the Double Faults forfeited their match with the Lob Snobs by not showing up. An automatic 30-0 score was awarded to the Lob Snobs.

The String Teasers won four out of five sets to grab a 28-11 victory over Tony's Aces. The String Teasers won the men's singles 6-5, women's singles and doubles 6-0 and the mixed doubles 6-0. They were defeated 6-4 by Tony's Aces in men's doubles.

Domino's Team-Tennis league plays six games in each set in the men's doubles and singles, women's doubles and singles and mixed doubles classifications. Each team consists of two males and two females and alternates.

Scholarship program set for youths

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)

— Former Minnesota Vikings lineman and Pro Football Hall of Fame enshrinee Alan Page said Thursday he would set up a scholarship program for minority youth.

Page appeared at a press conference with Minnesota Vikings general manager Mike Lynn, who said the club would assist in a fund-raising effort to set up the Alan Page Education Foundation. The Vikings will donate proceeds from 10 box seats during the Sept. 25 Philadelphia Eagles-Minnesota game.

Page and Lynn said the initial goal was to raise $100,000 for the foundation. Lynn said $50,000 could be obtained from the box seats and $10,000 to $25,000 from fan donations during the game.

Page will be enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, on July 30. He will be the first person born in Canton and who played football as a youth in Canton to receive the honor.

He played pro football for 11 1/2 years with the Vikings and 3 1/2 years with the Chicago Bears.

"We plan to provide economic, financial assistance to high school seniors to pursue higher education," Page said. He said the students would receive from $500 to $2,000 a year.

Guyon: Rights fund 'commendable'

By Beth Clavin
Staff Writer

President John C. Guyon says he is impressed with efforts to begin a Women's Rights Defense Fund to support legal rights for women. "As far as I'm concerned, this action is a commendable one," he said. "I think it's an excellent idea to provide help to those who feel they're being treated unfairly."

The fund is in response to the appointment of Jim Hart

Tuesday by Guyon as athletics director over interim athletics director Charlotte West, Nancy Bandy, assistant athletics director, said.

The fund was set up by 12 people who feel West was denied the position of athletics director because she is a woman.

"The Charlotte West case exemplifies the University's continuing disregard for affirmative action and equal employment opportunity laws," Kathy Ward, treasurer, said. "The hiring of a less qualified male reinforces a hostile working environment for women faculty, staff, and students."

West has worked in Saluki athletics since 1957.

"Women experience widespread sexual harassment, limited promotion opportunities, and no recognition for job performance, qualifications, service, and integrity," Ward said.

"The enforcement of affirmative action regulations at SIU-C is arbitrary, capricious, and subject to the political whims of the administration."

Although West said she is not planning to take legal action against the University, the fund will be able to help others who are in similar situations, Bandy said.

"Most of the people who are discriminated against aren't in a financial situation to defend themselves legally," Bandy said.

"The administration is leaving women no alternative."

The group met on Tuesday to discuss setting up the fund. "We have an account and post office box and are seeking contributions to the fund," Bandy said.

She said they have contacted a lawyer to help with the distribution of funds.

Intramurals game has two winners

By Brad Bushue
Staff Writer

With the aid of ASA rules for intramural softball, two opposing teams came out the victor in the same game.

A tie game between the Razmatazz and the Guys and Dolls declared both co-recreation teams winners.

The Razmatazz held a 12-9 lead before walking team captain Joe Trnka and advancing the third base runner to tie the ball game. The "Guys and Dolls" stopped their opponents from scoring in the bottom of the sixth. Brian Walkup and Trnka hit two three-run homers in the first inning, both landing in deep centerfield.

A tight game between the Sixteen Inch Masters and Summer Chill resulted in a 15-11 win for the latter team. With the Masters competing with only seven players against the opposition's 11, they caught the team in the fourth inning with eight runs batted into an error-ridden defense. Summer Chill managed to hold them at 11 runs scored six runs in the following innings. The victors moved their record to 1-2.

The High Flyin' Twelve Inchers improved their 3-1 record with a 19-10 win over the Slimy Mash. The Celibates took advantage of the ten-run-rule in the fifth inning with a 17-2 win over the dragons.

The CoRec Masters-Big Boppers contest was defaulted because of a scheduling error. The Frat Boys failed to show up for a game with the Sixteen Inch Runners.

Governor signs bill to keep White Sox

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gov. James R. Thompson signed into law a bill to get a new, $150 million stadium built for the Chicago White Sox on the city's South Side.

The bill-signing ceremony was held at home plate at Comiskey Park, the nation's oldest ballpark, before the White Sox played the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday night.

Joining Thompson in the ceremony were Chicago Mayor Eugene Sawyer, White Sox owners Jerry Reinsdorf and Eddie Einhorn, several state legislators, White Sox Manager Jim Fregosi and outfielder Harold Baines.

"I just want to send a message," Thompson said after completing the signing. "We don't give up anything in Chicago and we don't let anybody take anything away from us. We are a two-team city and we always will be a two-team city."

The Illinois Legislature narrowly approved the plan last Thursday, technically working past its deadline to get the job done.

Those opposed to the deal warned of a potential lawsuit, contending the proposal needed a three-fifths vote instead of a simple majority to pass in the House since the vote came after the Legislature's scheduled adjournment. To date, however, no such suit has been filed.

Several deadlines still must be met or the White Sox can back out of the deal.

The first deadline comes Oct. 15, when the state must have taken title to 80 percent of the residential property and 100 percent of the commercial property. Residents will not be required to be moved out of the area by then, however.

The deal guarantees the team at least $60 million more than a proposal the team's owners agreed to in 1986. The package is financed by a 2 percent tax on Chicago hotel and motel rooms and $10 million in payments split between the city and the state.

The funds would be used to pay stadium operating costs and the Sox would not pay any rent if attendance does not exceed 1.2 million. In addition, the state might have to buy 300,000 tickets annually if attendance is low in the second half of the 20-year lease.

Reinsdorf admitted the bill signing is merely the first step but said he expects to see the White Sox playing in Chicago for years to come.

"I feel ecstatic," he said. "There are things that have to be done but I believe the stadium will be built."

Reinsdorf credited Thompson for bending legislators' arms to agree to the expensive stadium package.

"It was the most remarkable performance I've seen in my life," he said.

The White Sox were ready to accept a stadium package from St. Petersburg, Fla.

"In the absence of the St. Petersburg alternative I don't think this would have gotten done," he said. "I feel badly for the people of St. Petersburg."

Reinsdorf said he would work to get St. Petersburg a franchise if the American League considers expansion in the future.

Broadcasters bubbly over White Sox legislation

CHICAGO (UPI) — Few in Chicago were as relieved by the legislation to keep the White Sox in the city as the general managers of the two stations that televise the club's games.

SportsVision, the 1983 creation of White Sox owner Eddie Einhorn, splits White Sox broadcasts with WFLD-TV. SportsVision has 78 games on its schedule this year for its 1.2 million cable subscribers, and it would have had to come up with some new programming if the club had moved to the new SunCoast Dome in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Plans for filling that space were already being considered when the Illinois Legislature passed a stadium appropriations bill last Thursday to keep the White Sox in Chicago.

"We had some contingency plans, but until it was done it wasn't something we could prepare for," SportsVision general manager Jim Corno said.

Corno said the word "relieved" did not properly express his feelings about the White Sox staying in Chicago.

"I feel good, not only for us selfishly speaking, but for the city of Chicago," he said. "A lot of people worked very hard. As I understand it, much of the credit goes to Governor (Jim) Thompson."

While Thompson worked state representatives, the public and the media, Corno sat back and watched. Corno decided not to use the SportsVision network to plead for support of the expensive White Sox stadium bill. There were no Corno editorials broadcast while the city waited for the state representatives to make a decision.

"There were no steps we took public," Corno said. "I believed it would be too self-serving. It wasn't our call."

Corno also said he received no calls from White Sox officials suggesting he make a lobbying attempt on the cable network.

Now that the legislature has acted, Corno scheduled several short spots to thank everying for supporting the stadium bill.

WFLD broadcast 67 regular-season games and through June 24 had an average rating of 3.0 in both Neilsen and Arbitron rating services. The low rating numbers were part of the reason White Sox owners were considering moving to Florida, where a statewide broadcast network already was signed up to show the games to a baseball-starved television audience.

Still, WFLD did not want to lose the major-league audience.

"We are very pleased that the decision has been made that the White Sox will remain in Chicago," WFLD general manager Cary Jones said. "We are certain it will revitalize interest among the fans."

Corno mentioned that SportsVision is part of the SportsChannel America network that recently signed an agreement with the NHL to broadcast 50 regular-season games and all of the Stanley Cup games. Although the NHL games are at a different time of the year than baseball, the new agreement would have helped offset the loss of revenue from the White Sox move.

But the White Sox aren't going anyplace and Corno is thrilled.

"Obviously, this whole ordeal has taken a toll on everybody," he said. "Now the focus can be put on playing baseball."
