Shepherd resigns

Other vice chancellors' futures unknown

By Signe K. Skinion
DE Government/Politics Editor

After 17 years as SIUC provost, Benjamin A. Shepherd resigned from his office Tuesday because, "it is time," he said.

Shepherd, who is also academic affairs vice chancellor, said the other three vice chancellors should offer their resignations as a matter of professional courtesy to Chancellor-elect Donald Beggs.

Shepherd said he made a decision to resign in June after SIUC Chancellor John C. Guyon announced his final day would be Aug. 16.

"I'm ready to step down from here on August 16 when John (Guyon) leaves, but I will stay until Don Beggs decides it is appropriate," he said.

Beggs, College of Education dean, said he did not expect Shepherd's resignation and wants Shepherd to stay longer than Aug. 16.

"I need to have his experience this fall," Beggs said. "He and I have a strong working and personal relationship and I will continue to seek his advice even after he steps down."

Shepherd said after consulting with Beggs, a tentative date of Jan. 1 has been set as his last day as provost and vice chancellor. He said he will go back to teaching zoology at SIUC when he steps down.

"I feel no remorse about leaving," he said. "In fact, I am really excited about going back to teaching. I've logged in 17 years as an administrator and it's time for me to return to where I began."

Shepherd began as an SIUC associate professor of zoology in 1976. He said he will be getting updated on the changes in teaching zoology during the next few months.

"I haven't forgotten what I knew when I stopped teaching," he said. "I am really looking forward to less structure. And sometimes the students are more understanding than an irate customer when there's been a misunderstanding of information." SIUC President Ted Sanders said Shepherd's resignation is not surprising following Guyon's resignation.

"It is really a question of professional courtesy to offer some flexibility to Don Beggs," he said. "I have never been at an institution where the top administrators did not offer their resignations when there has been a change in leadership."

Sanders said both Beggs and the permanent chancellor-elect should have the opportunity to choose their vice chancellors. He said Beggs does not have to accept any resignations, but should have the choice.

"It's always been understood that two years down the road, the permanent chancellor should have, and will have, the opportunity to choose the leadership on campus that will work best with him," he said. "That individual will have choices in keeping the leadership already on campus or choosing new leaders."

Beggs, who will serve as SIUC chancellor from Aug. 17 through June 30, 1998, said when he accepted the chancellor position, he did not expect any resignations from the vice chancellors.

"I truly do not feel that any resignations are necessary, it was not a condition under my employment,"

SIUC student dies in auto collision

Daily Egyptian Reporter

Sonja B. James, 23, an SIUC music education major, was struck and killed by a car at 12:10 a.m. July 13 while crossing the I-57 overpass in Mt. Vernon.

Coroner of Jefferson County, Dr. Richard Garretson, said James, of Fairview, was pronounced dead at 2:06 a.m. July 13 after bleeding to death from massive trauma.

The driver of the car that hit James, Charles E. Rohlfling, thought he hit a something and proceeded to drive to his parents home about two blocks away from the accident scene, Mt.

Vernon police said.

Rohlfling, 46, of Savoy, notified authorities that he thought he may have hit a piece of luggage on Interstate 15 after inspecting the under carriage of his car, police said.

Mt. Vernon police said witnesses saw a female walking east in the westbound traffic lanes just prior to the accident.

Two cars driving ahead of Rohlfling swerved to the left and then pulled to the right shoulder to avoid hitting James. The drivers of the two cars claimed James was lying in the road, police said.

City water use interrupted

Workers fix problem; several buildings go without water

By Colleen Heraty
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Two water main breaks occurred within several hours of each other on campus Monday which caused several buildings to go without water for a few hours.

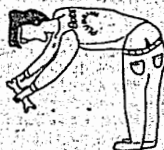

One of the breaks was a city water main transmission line running along Grand Avenue into campus, and the other break was a University water main.

The 12-inch cast iron metallic pipe owned by the city broke around 10:30 a.m. on Monday on the south side of Quigley and was repaired around 6:30 p.m. that evening by city water management, according to Edward Reader, director of public works.

James W. Swayze, Carbondale water operations manager, said water main breaks are not uncommon and occur 60-70 times a year. He said the cause is not known,

SOUTH AFRICA TO OK ABORTION ON REQUEST

— JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Continuing its move toward a far-reaching liberalism in this once insular state, South Africa is poised to adopt one of the most permissive abortion-on-demand laws of any country. President Nelson Mandela's Cabinet this month gave preliminary approval to a measure that guarantees an abortion to any woman who requests it — no questions asked — setting off a firestorm of protest from religious groups and other opponents of abortion. Under the proposed law, which is virtually certain to be approved when introduced in Parliament by September, women seeking an abortion need not notify parents or spouses, or obtain their consent. No woman or girl, however young, may be denied an abortion. The law makes it a criminal offense, punishable by fines or a jail sentence, to block access to facilities where abortions are performed.

GHANA'S ILLEGAL MINERS RISK LIVES FOR GOLD

— OBUASI, Ghana — Just beyond the yellow "no trespassing" sign, a burly fellow who calls himself Jangu-man stood ankle deep in chemical-laced black muck. He scooped some into a wooden gutter with a dented old army helmet and washed it, letting promising particles gather into a porous brown cloth. Quicksand-like pits have claimed the lives of at least five young men working in the moonscape around the Obuasi gold fields this year, and security forces have killed three and arrested 17 others. But Jangu-men, whose name means "wild one," displayed the confidence of a giddy gambler with nothing left to lose, someone for whom the lure of gold was stronger than the fear of getting shot. Working on the run-off from soil already processed with cyanide and arsenic at Ghana's leading industrial mine, Jangu-man is one of thousands of illegal gold miners who often risk their health and lives for a chance to strike it rich, or more often, to keep themselves fed.

GORE HINTS AT BID FOR WHITE HOUSE IN 2000

— SAN DIEGO — When Al Gore held a town meeting with employees of a high-tech company here recently, he lavishly credited President Clinton's economic program for pulling California and the nation out of a recession. But even as the vice president was still warming up the 200 workers with praise for his boss and a string of self-deprecating jokes, the faint whiff of a more personal agenda surfaced. The next time y'all look at the great seal of the Vice President of the United States, shut your left eye, Gore said, demonstrating. Then cock your head just so and, presto, the word vice is gone. The seal now reads: President of the United States. Even as he assiduously promotes the re-election of the Clinton-Gore ticket, the nation's 45th vice president has all but begun his own bid for the White House four years from now, despite obligatory protestations to the contrary. Already, top Gore loyalists are deployed throughout the Clinton administration and the Democratic Party apparatus. Along with doing their part to win the current ticket four more years in office, they are ready to pre-empt rivals for the nomination in 2000.

BUDGET CUTS COULD STOP AMTRAK IN TRACKS

— WASHINGTON — A year after passing a budget designed to modernize Amtrak and put it on sound financial footing by 2002, Congress appears to be backing away from the plan. The result is likely a severe cutback in long-distance passenger train service in the next fiscal year, and possibly a slowdown in planned upgrades to the Washington-Boston Northeast Corridor that would allow 150-mph operation in new trains. According to Amtrak's friends and foes, continuing the trend over the next few years likely would mean an end to all or most long-distance train service, with passenger service limited to the East and West Coast corridors, plus whatever service states would finance. Sleeping and dining cars could become a thing of the past. Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., and other hardball legislators have said repeatedly they would not support continuation of Amtrak if it did not maintain a national system. The House-passed 1997 Amtrak budget slashed the planned $922 million to $542 million. Of that, $200 million was for operating subsidies, $50 million less than Amtrak's request.

Sale of bonds to finance renovations

By Julie Rendleman
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC will sell $70 million worth of bonds starting this fall and next spring to renovate areas on the Carbondale, Springfield and Edwardsville campuses, an SIUC official says.

Donald W. Wilson, SIUC vice president for finance affairs and SIUC Board of Trustees treasurer, said the trustees voted Thursday to finance the loans. Wilson said the sale of the bonds will also go towards refinancing the University's 1986 bonds.

"The 1986 bonds were sold for two things: to build an addition to the Recreation Center and some refinancing of previous bonds," he said.

Wilson said the University saved

$10 million refinancing the 1986 bonds and the University hopes to save more than $1.8 million refinancing these bonds.

Wilson said the $70 million will go towards:

- By April, $8.2 million will pay for parking lot improvements on the Edwardsville campus;
- $2.5 million will turn the gymnasium in Pulliam Hall into a computer classroom that will hold 322 computers for faculty, students and staff use;

- $1.5 million in bonds and a remaining $1.3 million to be made up in donations and fund-raisers and go towards renovating the basketball floor for $600,000 and replacing the turf at McAndrew stadium for $850,000;

- Bleachers in the SIUC Arena will be replaced at a cost of $100,000 and lighting will be upgraded for $90,000. Three hundred thousand will go towards building an addition to the arena. $350,000 is used to build a facility buy the women's softball fields; and $475,000 renovating lighting at McAndrew stadium, Abe Martin Field and two softball fields;

- $14.9 million will be used to purchase the building the University has been leasing for the School of Medicine in Springfield;

- $1.7 million will go towards renovating part of the Northwest Annex with fiber optic connections for the campuses computer networks and for office space;
- $400,000 will set up a computer classroom with 100 computers in Trueblood Hall; and

- $400,000 will purchase a new storage facility for the University's micrographics unit to store records.

Some of the renovations will start as soon as possible like Pulliam Hall, Wilson said.

"Some will have to wait," he said. "The football field that has bad turf will have to wait since football season will be starting too soon to replace the field."

William L. Sharp, assistant dean for administrative services in education, said he is in favor of the renovations at Pulliam Hall.

"I would like the renovations to be done since the College of Education is right here," he said. "The renovations will be good for our students and faculty."

Recreation Center camp teaches kids about global village

By Annette Barr
Daily Egyptian Reporter

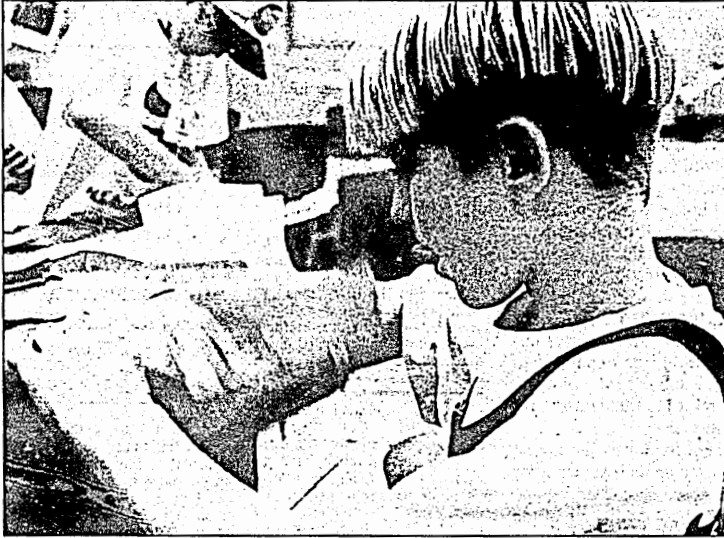

As part of an early birthday present from his grandma, Joshua Malone is learning words from different languages, cooking food from other cultures and learning an African dance.

Malone, a 10-year-old Marion resident, is attending "Bridges to Other Cultures, A Multicultural Awareness Camp" this week at the Recreation Center. The camp teaches children ages 8-13 about cultures from Scandinavia, the Caribbean, Africa and Southeast Asia.

The 25 children at the camp are divided into four different groups to represent each region of the world at a talent show this Friday, said Beth Mochnick, community programs coordinator for international student and scholars.

"I'm in the African group and I get to learn to dance," Malone said. "This is really neat and I'm excited about Friday."

The camp primarily takes place in the aerobic room of the Recreation Center. The room has been taken over by large displays featuring native clothing, art work, posters and books from each culture.

Carolyn Vyborny — The Daily Egyptian

Dilyan Marcee, 11, from Alderado, Kan., makes a kite Tuesday afternoon at the Recreation Center. He is one of the children attending "Bridges to Other Cultures, A Multicultural Awareness Camp."

The displays help make the camp very hands-on and interactive, said Mochnick.

Kathy Hollister, a member of the executive planning committee, said the goal of the camp, which is in its fourth year, is to create a global village, a community where different cultures come together.

Hollister said it is important for the children to learn to work together because the world has become a smaller place.

"They learn they have to be open minded in order to live together," Mochnick said.

So far the children have learned how to say phrases such as 'How old are you?', and 'please' and

SIUC, city to support buses during break

By Julie Bury
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The city has the support of SIUC's Mass Transit Advisory Board in running the Saluki Express during SIUC's upcoming break, mass transit officials say.

Members of the Mass Transit Advisory Board said they support Saluki Express buses running during SIUC's Aug. 3-18 intersession, but do not have a specific bus break policy to recommend to the city yet. A policy will be decided July 29 to prepare for the next city council meeting on July 30, they said.

The success of the Saluki Express bus service during the University's May 11-June 7 intersession has sparked discussions between Carbondale City Council members and mass transit officials about extending the bus service to future breaks.

Donald Monty, city representative to the board, said he thought the city would be willing to pick up some of the bus service's costs, but might like to see the bus go farther into residential areas.

"As long as an effort is made to balance student and community ridership, I think they will be willing to help out with funding," he said.

Jeff Shepard, community representative to the board, said he was concerned about whether or not buses will run during breaks, especially Thanksgiving, winter, and spring, when no special classes for students are held.

"It seems we are heavily targeting when students will be here, but I'm a community member. I live here," he said. "I rely on the bus service, and so do a lot of handicapped people."

Board members also discussed the possibility of using advertising on the outside of Saluki Express buses in the form of decals, paintings, or aluminum signs to generate more revenue for the system.

Brian Clardy, Mass Transit Board vice chairman, said advertising artwork would not only generate revenue for bus system but would also increase the buses' aesthetic quality.

"Right now the outside of the buses are boring," he said. "The bus service is great in terms of efficiency, but some tasteful advertising on the outside might do them some good."

Monty agreed exterior advertising is a good way to raise money for the bus system.

Same-sex couple says House bill is gay-bashing

By Jennifer Camden
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The SIUC couple united in a same-sex marriage on campus last spring are distressed about a House of Representatives vote to federally ban same-sex marriages.

Kris Bein, a sophomore in social work from Chicago, married Erika Kohoutek, a junior in English from Chicago, in a same-sex wedding on the steps of Shryock Auditorium in April.

Bein, director of the SIUC group Gays, Lesbians, Bisexuals and Friends, said she and Kohoutek were taxpaying citizens and did not deserve to be singled out by Congress.

"My marriage doesn't affect anyone else's relationship," she said. "I don't hurt the institution of marriage."

The House voted 342-67 Friday not to honor same-sex marriages, and to allow each state to disregard those marriages if performed in other states.

" Anybody who's different tends to get the brunt of hate and intolerance. "

None of the 50 states allow same-sex marriages, but a Hawaii court is hearing a case on them and could rule them legal. President Clinton has announced he will sign the bill if it is approved by the Senate.

Kohoutek said the bill will reinforce gays' position as targets of hate groups.

"I think this country has lost sight of the fact that church and state are separate," she said. "It's a real travesty this is going on in 1996. Anybody who's different tends to get the brunt of hate and intolerance."

Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, said he voted for the bill because, though it defines marriage as a union between a man and a woman, it preserves the states' right to choose to allow them.

"It maintains states' authority over same-sex marriages," he said.

Costello said he expected the bill will be challenged in courts if signed into law, and any questions of the bill discriminating against gays and lesbians will be answered there.

William Schroeder, SIUC School of Law professor, said the bill may be unconstitutional because Article IV of the Constitution requires states to honor the public acts and records of other states with "full faith and credit," and the bill gives states a choice.

He said the bill could also be unconstitutional because it is discriminatory. In 1994, the Colorado Supreme Court struck down a measure prohibiting the state's cities from including gays in civil rights laws.

"Like the Colorado law, it is so clearly gay-bashing," Schroeder said.

Schroeder said the House bill duplicates an Illinois law passed in May allowing the state to ignore other states' same-sex marriages if any one state decides to allow them.

Valerie Phillips, American Civil Liberties Union public information director, said the House bill, if signed, could lead to anti-gay hate crimes.

"The potential is there when there is any form of discrimination, especially when it's endorsed by

University, city should work together to ensure uninterrupted service

CARBONDALE OFFICIALS ARE STUDYING THE funding of the Saluki Express bus service to ensure that it continues to run during breaks. The city funded the service for one bus to run during the four week break between the spring and summer semesters this year. Now city officials are looking at funding the service again with the University's help. We think the service should be continued during the next break and the University should help the city with the funding from student transit fees.

UNDER THE UNIVERSITY'S CONTRACT WITH the bus service, the city was able to pay for the bus service at the same rate as the University. However, the Beck Bus Co. has told the city the service could cost $20 per hour with the city's own contract, nearly twice as much as the University's cost of $10.50 an hour. The bus company has a contract with the University based on amount of buses running and personnel working. The city ran one bus last break and would again run a limited amount of buses, but the company says the limited service costs more. The city will need the help of the University to continue the service.

During the summer intercession break there were 3,525 riders. The service generated $659.64 in fees from non-student riders who pay 50 cents a ride. Nearly half the riders were students and the second highest destination during the break was the University stop at the Student Center.

THE SERVICE SHOULD BE AMENDED TO INCLUDE additional buses. Last break the one bus route that was utilized was the business loop. This could be expanded to include outer areas. Also, during this break next month the ridership will increase as students return to find housing for the fall and new students learn of the service.

The SIUC Mass Transit Board met Monday to discuss the idea but said members will wait to decide their stance prior to the City Council meeting. The board should encourage University involvement and support the continuation of the service during University breaks with student transit fees. The board should examine the situation and encourage more buses and cost-effective schedules as per ridership.

THE CITY EFFICIENTLY PULLED ITS RESOURCES together and funded the service the last break, providing the limited service for students and residents. The idea was brought up by a citizen who asked that the service continue. By the end of the spring semester, the city approved the funding and the service ran. The city should again go forward with that commitment to students and residents. They should continue the service, but the University needs to share the cost. The high number of student riders shows the University would not be paying for resident service. Also, part of the fees generated by non-student riders can go to lessen the cost of the service during the breaks. Coupled with University and city support, non-student riders' fees and advertising revenue, the service could continue without major change.

THE CARBONDALE CITY COUNCIL WILL VOTE on the matter at the meeting scheduled for Tuesday, July 30. Students and citizens should attend the council meeting and let the council know the importance of the service during the breaks.

Pro-cyberspace librarians wrestle traditionalists over future of print

By Amy E. Schwartz
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — The Lawrenceville Academy's new library, its architect was telling an audience of librarians, has 353 "data ports" for computer plug-ins scattered throughout the building — including many located under the books in the stacks, "which we'll have access to once the books disappear."

"Which we don't expect they will any time soon," Lawrenceville's school librarian, sharing the podium with him, leaned forward to add nervously.

The exchange typified the uneasy mix of futurist fervor and residual if stubborn book love that has marked this year's American Library Association (ALA) conference, an improbably gigantic annual event that brings 23,000 librarians to town to conduct business, give book awards and, overwhelmingly this year, discuss advances in technology. In huge, well-publicized panels on topics like "Librarians on the Edge: The New World of Cyberspace," ballroom-sized crowds heard blue-sky scenarios of the new paperless, bookless, borderless ocean of accessible data.

Presenters, including the editor of Wired magazine, urged that "you've got to further this change, or it'll run you over." Elsewhere, at events such as the architecture panel, smaller crowds heard the occasional peep of distress at how fast it's all moving. Librarians, that supposedly quiet group, are starting to feel their muscle. The conference theme of "Equity on the Information Superhighway" reflects the approach the ALA has taken to Internet issues from the beginning: Like it or not, change is coming, and libraries' place in it is to be the public-minded "on-ramp," the only institution that can, and therefore must, prevent a chasm from developing between information "haves and have-nots" based on access to expensive electronic equipment.

That the Clinton administration takes this tack as well, stressing equal access issues to information and campaigning to hook up libraries, community centers and schools, is a tribute to the mostly under appreciated muscle of a group whose work — and expertise — has suddenly become visible and pivotal with the rise of the Internet. There are a lot of librarians out there, and these are people who, far more than the general public, already know how to manipulate big electronic databases.

The library association was a lead plaintiff in the lawsuit that got the Communications Decency Act on pornography in cyberspace overturned as unconstitutional. Librarians, even more than the museums, publishers, on-line service providers and software companies that joined the lawsuit, saw the cyberporn law as something that would put them at substantial legal risk for fulfilling the basic obligations of their profession in the new on-line world. (The decision is on appeal.) Under the now-overturned law, the association realized early, making library holdings available on-line could mean criminal prosecution for "indecentcy" by some socially conservative community somewhere, not just locally, that objected to "Catcher in the Rye" or Judy Blume.

In such hectic and disturbing transition times, groups cling treacherously to their rites of renewal. One such tradition, beloved by many as the highlight of the annual conference, is the awarding of the Newbery and Caldecott Medals for the year's most distinguished children's books. These sought-after awards (the Newbery is for a storybook, the Caldecott for a picture book) were ceremoniously presented Sunday night amid ringing affirmations of the work that libraries really do, the job without which the information society founders: The tempting of the next generation with materials that will smooth the next generation's ability to read by making them want to read.

This year's Caldecott went to the comical "Officer Buckle and Gloria," an illustrated tale of a dog who steals Officer Buckle's thunder at a school where he goes to give a presentation of 100 safety tips. The Newbery winner was Karen Clurman, whose second novel, "The Midwife's Apprentice," is set in a 13th-century English village, where an initially nameless waif, taken in and taught a trade, learns how to find what she dreams of, "a full belly, a contented heart and a place in this world." Author too of "Catherine, Called Birdy," which was honored last year, Clurman is teaching and storytelling in the grand tradition of historical novels for young people, the one that lets them know there really are times and places other than this one.

but is probably due to age of the water line.

"The pipe was probably installed in the 1940s, and some older pipes have more problems," Swayze said.

The concrete sidewalk near Quigley was damaged and will have to dry for a couple of days, and then be replaced, Swayze said.

He estimates damage at possibly several thousand dollars.

Swayze said the water was coming out at 2,000 gallons per minute running down the sidewalk and was isolated around noon.

His crew replaced a section of the water main with a new pipe.

"Proper bacteriological samples were taken and were all negative," Swayze said.

"No boil orders were issued, and water is safe to drink as of now," he said.

The second break occurred around 2:45 p.m. at Thompson Point on the east side of Steagal Hall and was repaired by 5:15 p.m., according to Ed Morber, SIUC academic plumbing foreman.

He said the 6-inch pipe by Steagal Hall runs from Lincoln Drive down through Thompson point and also broke due to age.

A hole in the bottom of the pipe was as big as a quarter, so a stainless steel band with a rubber gasket was used to repair the main, Morber said.

He said this is not a rare occurrence, only that it happened twice in one day. He said pipes break on campus 15-20 times a year.

"Most of the time they break with ground movement and changing temperatures, most frequently between the months of August and January for some reason," Morber said. "Every water system in every city has pressure on it, so there's always that chance of leaks and we have them."

The damage from the 30-35 year old pipe that broke near Steagal Hall caused five buildings to lose water for an hour and a half, Morber said. The buildings were all residence halls on Thompson Point: Boyer, Brown, Pierce, Steagal, and Felz.

Buildings affected by the City main break near Quigley include Washington Square, Student Recreational Center, and the blue barracks, Morber said.

hitting the two cars and hit James, police said.

According to the coroner's office, James had a blood-alcohol level of .229.

"This was an unavoidable accident and there will be no charges filed against Mr. Rohlfing," Officer Brad Flota of the Mt. Vernon police said.

Friends of James said she was visiting her boyfriend in Mt. Vernon last weekend.

Sielley Stewart, James' best friend and roommate since May 1995, said she was notified around 4 p.m. the day of the accident.

"She was my best friend and we were very close," Stewart said. "We had nothing but good times together."

James was finishing up her degree in music education this fall, Dan Mellado, assistant director for the School of Music, said.

James played a variety of musical instruments, including the saxophone, clarinet and French horn in four different bands at SIUC, Michael Hanes, a professor at the School of Music, said.

"She was the apple of her parent's eye and full of so much spunk," Hanes said. "The entire music department is sensing a great loss."

James played in SIUC's Wind

Ensemble, Marching Band, Jazz Band and Pop Band, Hanes said. "She was well liked and highly respected within the music department," he said.

James was also employed as a clerk-typist at the Clinical Center, located in the Wham Education Building, co-workers said.

Funeral services will be held by her family Saturday at noon at the Truight Baptist church in East St. Louis.

She will be buried in her hometown of Fairview Heights, Stewart said.

he said.

James Tweedy, administration vice chancellor, said he would not comment on his intentions until he has talked with Beggs.

Harvey Welch, Jr., Student Affairs vice chancellor, said he has no comment until he returns from vacation later next week.

Robert Quatroche, Institutional Advancement vice chancellor, refused to comment on the issue of resignation.

Beggs said he will be meeting with Guyon today to decide proper procedure in talking with the three vice chancellors.

"I have not talked with other vice chancellors because I have not talked with John Guyon about proper etiquette of talking about my priorities with his staff," he said.

"I talked with Ben (Shepherd) because he has made a decision."

Beggs said he will be talking with faculty representatives soon to decide on guidelines to search for Shepherd's replacement.

He said a search committee will not begin until this fall.

Clinton appealing to moderate middle-class voters in 1996

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—During the past year, President Clinton has sidled smoothly toward the political center, with a stream of proposals designed to appeal to moderate, middle-class voters.

From school uniforms to college-tuition tax breaks to a plea to reduce sex and violence on television, Clinton has been offering something for everyone in the broad middle of the American electorate. And while his Republican opponents have jeered at him for stealing their ideas, his popularity with the public, as measured by public opinion polls, has steadily risen from its low point after the 1994 congressional election.

In the past few weeks, Clinton's likely Republican rival, former Sen. Bob Dole, has been attempting the same maneuver. But in his case, the moves have been anything but smooth.

On affirmative action, abortion and, most recently, gun control, Dole has dismayed his own staff and party activists by muddling his message, angering the conservative base of his party while seeming to confuse the electorate.

Salukis, said he has not met coach Kofler, but has talked to him on the phone.

"He sounds like he will help out the program with his experience as an NFL quarterback," he said.

Sherrill's playing days took place right here at SIUC in the '70s where he also coached under Ray Dempsey, Ray Dorr and Rick Rhoades, according to SIUC men's sports information.

After he crached at SIUC, he helped out at Jonesboro High School in 1990-91.

Then he moved on to coaching at Coffeyville Community College for one year; Southwest Baptist University for the next two years and finished last season at Gateway Conference rival Western Illinois University, according to SIUC men's sports information.

Sherrill is very familiar with the Gateway conference, Watson said; but said his experience in coaching is the big reason he is on the staff.

"Coach Sherrill will add to our defensive staff and help figure out some problems," Watson said.

"He is one of the best on-the-field coaches I have ever been around my whole career."

Sherrill said he was happy to be back at SIUC because the staff and the players are so committed to the team.

"I've worked at places where the coaches just worried about their paychecks," Sherrill said.

"But here, the coaches and the players are very dedicated.

"I see the players taking some responsibility by working out at the stadium in the off-season."

At one workout session at the stadium, junior linebacker Arglista Scott said the team will perform well no matter who is the coach.

"The techniques stay the same," he said.

"What Whittier taught us stays the same no matter what coach comes in."

Sherrill's coaching skills will be very important in helping the staff figure out the defensive schemes to stop the opposition, Watson said.

Last season the Salukis gave up 25 touchdowns on the ground and 10 by air.

"The impact of Kofler and Sherrill will be invaluable in taking the next step in the program," Watson said.

"We were very fortunate to get two quality coaches with as much experience as they have."

the game's best rebounder, considering that his attitude would be as much a part of the decision as his contract. Should things move forward, though, they would prefer it being part of a larger plan.

Having budgeted $8.53 million for salary additions this summer—the not maximum available, but the most they could spend and still retain negotiating rights with Elden Campbell—the Lakers would ideally like to add two quality big men if O'Neal doesn't accept the seven-year, $95.5 million offer, then resign Campbell, Rodman, long a favorite of owner Jerry Buss, could be part of that.

The result would be no superstar center, but the potential of a good three-man rotation. If it's a power forward like Rodman or Chris Gatling, Campbell could easily move to center since the positions are largely interchangeable in the Laker system and he often defended centers last season anyway. If Brian Williams is involved, with either Rodman or Gatling, all the better for flexibility.

The fall-back plan has been a very real possibility since Saturday,

"We have decided to make a change in that area and hope to be able to do so in the near future," he said.

Shaneyfelt said he was asked to resign as coach because of the amount of hours he would be putting in as the director of golf at the new Kokopelli Golf Club in Marion.

Despite leaving the Salukis, Shaneyfelt said he is disappointed about the decision, but is not bitter about it.

"I'm not happy with what's going on, but I'm going to bow out," he said.

In 1994, Shaneyfelt led his squad to a third-place finish at the Missouri Valley Conference Championships after finishing 4th there in '93. In 1995 and 1996, the Salukis finished 6th at the MVC meet.

include a locker room for the Salukis and office area. The top floor will become the pressbox.

McAndrew Stadium: The improvement plan includes $850,000 to resurface the track and replace the turf, which has been in the stadium since 1987.

The decision upon whether or not the artificial surface will be replaced by natural grass or another is still an open debate, West said.

"Right now, we're open to the cases for (artificial) turf or grass," she said. "That's going to be up to the IBHE.

"If they approve the bonds, then we'll start bringing in the designers and planners and assess the cost of both."

An additional $475,000 will be earmarked to install lights at McAndrew Stadium, Abe Martin Field (baseball) and the IAW Fields.

West said she is looking forward to the improvements, especially to the track at McAndrew Stadium.

"The track is the most pressing need right now, because if we let it go much longer, it could become dangerous," she said.

"That's why we didn't have the MVC Championships here this year or won't have them next year.

"We want to make sure that the track is in good condition before we have them here again in 1998."

when it was learned that the Lakers were close to finalizing a deal with Indiana Pacer forward Dale Davis that would have also eliminated them from the O'Neal derby. When they decided to hang in a little longer, Davis, equally interested but not wanting to wait, agreed to terms with the Pacers.

What's different this time is the trade option.

"Things are being discussed,"

one source said.

At the same time, nothing appeared far along as of Monday night. The motivation, more than adding a center or power forward from another team, would be to clear additional space under the cap, more likely to advance the fall-back plan than for O'Neal. That would mean a player being swapped for a future draft pick—a salary going out but none coming in.

The PCB cleanup at the refuge will continue with the contractor starting the "mini-burn" on the mobile incinerator to insure that it will operate properly for the scheduled August trial burn. This mini-burn will be conducted in late July. U.S. EPA has also concluded a risk assessment on the risks associated with incinerating PCB's at the refuge. Representatives from U.S. EPA, the Fish and Wildlife Service and the contractor conducting the cleanup will be available to answer community questions in an informal manner at these sessions. There will not be any formal presentations at these sessions.

Plans to improve athletic facilities passed by Board

By Chris Clark
DE Sports Editor

If you build it they will come, and it appears the SIUC athletic department plans on building.

The SIUC Board of Trustees approved a $2.8 million plan as part of a $70 million bond package Thursday to give Saluki athletic facilities a facelift. The University will issue revenue bonds totaling $1.5 million in October and will begin a fundraising drive to make up the remaining $1.3 million.

Associate Athletic Director Charlotte West said the future improvements should help recruiting.

"They will come and see the new track and the stadium and hopefully want to attend the University," she said.

The date the project will begin is not known since the package has not been approved by the Illinois Board of Higher Education, West said.

The work that will be done will encompass many of the athletic fields and facilities, including:

SIUC Arena: The plan calls for the installation of a new floor at a cost of $600,000. The floor has been a part of the Arena since it opened in 1964. This part of the program was approved in November.

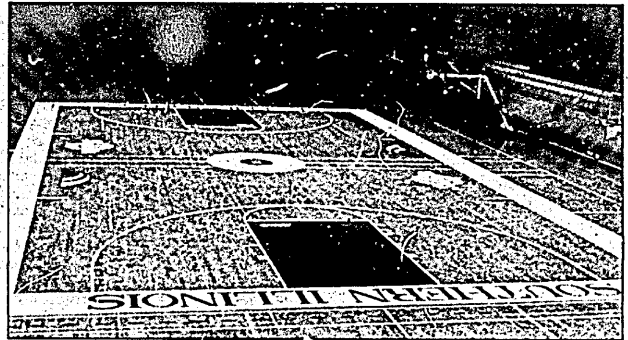

"The Arena floor is a highly-controversial issue," she said. "There are some groups of alumni who have been told by Rich Herrin that it is necessary."

West said others believe a portable floor is the way to solve the hardwood problems, but said a permanent floor is the way to go.

She also said regardless of the controversy, the plans are approved and the floor will be installed in time for the 1997-98 season.

Another $100,000 will be used to replace seats at the south end of the Arena with chair seats and an extra $90,000 will go toward improving the lighting.

In addition to the aesthetic improvements, a two-story annex to the west side of the building will be constructed. The $300,000 addition will expand the weight room, add an in-house laundry facility, and expand a study lounge for Saluki athletes.

West said although the annex will not be very large, it is a necessary addition.

"The University is no longer in the laundry business," she said. "The University gave us one year to find an alternative, and the addition is it."

LAW FIELDS: About $350,000 will be used to build a two-story facility near the softball fields on Grand Avenue. The first floor will provide public restrooms for fans, and will

Two new coaches to help Salukis improve in '96

By Kevin DeFries
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The SIUC football team has two new assistant coaches who have the experience to help the team on both sides of the ball, the head coach says.

Rod Sherrill will take over the responsibility of coaching the linebackers and Matt Kofler will help the receivers on the offensive side. They will replace the vacancies left by Scott Whittier, who is now working in the front office of the Atlanta Falcons, and T.J. Weist, who took a position at the University of Tulsa.

"The impact they can have on the team lies in the fact that they both have years of experience as coaches and as players," Head Coach Shawn Watson said.

Kofler brings experience as a player and a coach to the Saluki staff, Watson said.

As a player, Kofler was a team captain and MVP quarterback at San Diego University in 1981. He went on to play for four years in the NFL for the Buffalo Bills and Indianapolis Colts, according to SIUC men's sports information.

As a coach, Kofler started on the prep level for two seasons before moving on to coach at the college level, according to SIUC men's sports information.

Kofler coached at San Diego Mesa College in 1988-89. Then he coached at the University of Oregon in 1990-91, before helping out at the Oregon Institute of Technology in 1991. The last three seasons, Kofler coached at Thomas More College in Crestview Hills, Ky, according to SIUC men's sports information.

One of the more attractive features of Kofler is that he has coordinated offense for the past three teams he has been a part of, Watson said.

"He has seen the whole picture, not just little parts," Watson said. "He understands how the little parts fit into the big picture."

"He will be able to help out, having been a quarterback and thrown those routes. He also will be able to tell the receivers what they need to do, which is essential to the passing game."

SIUC men's golf coach resigns, search begins for replacement

By Chris Clark
DE Sports Editor

There will be a new look to the SIUC men's golf squad next season, but it is not a new recruit — it will be in the coaching department.

SIUC Athletic Director Jim Hart stated in a press release Tuesday that he is actively beginning a search for a new golf coach to replace Gene Shaneyfelt, who had been the head man for four years.

With O'Neal now lost cause, Lakers consider Rodman

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Publicly conceding for the first time that they have all but lost out on Shaquille O'Neal, the Lakers are now pursuing a variety of options that range from making a trade to create additional salary-cap room in hopes of landing multiple free agents to taking a chunk of the current bankroll and spending it on Dennis Rodman.

The Rodman twist is a new development in the hunt for a free-agent big man, one, it is believed, that emerged only within the last few days when management sensed O'Neal slipping away for good and they began to consider alternatives. By Monday night, Executive Vice President Jerry West was entertaining Rodman and his agent, Dwight Mawley, at a Los Angeles restaurant.

This indicates strong interest from the Lakers, though not a definite attempt to sign

Between the Lines

Baltimore Orioles' All-Star shortstop Cal Ripken was moved to third base Monday, by order of Baltimore Oriole's manager Davey Johnson. Ripken is replaced at short by Manny Alexander, who was 11 years old when Ripken entered the majors.

Ripken, who played third base when he first joined the Orioles in 1982, handled the position flawlessly Monday.

Dallas Cowboys receiver Michael Irvin pleaded no contest to felony cocaine possession Monday, and on Tuesday was sentenced to four years probation and ordered to pay a $10,000 fine.

Irvin is now free to join the Cowboys at the opening of their training camp, which opened Wednesday.

The NFL still could suspend Irvin for a minimum of four games up to an entire season, should they decide testimony given in his case is probable cause under the terms of the league's substance-abuse policy.

The Atlanta Hawks have signed All-Star center Dikembe Mutombo to a five-year contract estimated to be worth over $50 million.

The 7-foot-2 former Denver Nugget was named to the All-Star team during three of the five years he played in the mile-high city.

A native of Zaire, Mutombo was named the NBA's Defensive Player of the Year during the Nuggets' 1994-95 campaign.
