Police Blotter

- Annette J. Brooks, 35, of Carbondale was arrested on three cocaine charges Wednesday night. Carbondale police stopped Brooks in the 300 block of West Pecan Street for failure to appear in court for cocaine possession and found her in possession of cocaine and a pipe. Around 9:30 p.m., she was taken to Jackson County Jail to await bond.

- Southern Illinois attracted world attention when a day trader in Eldorado broke the world record for the longest continuous broadcast. "Dr. Walton," known as "Dr. Spooky" at WKSI-FM, set the world record for 373 hours, 35 minutes held in Cottonwood, Ariz., since 1981. Walton's marathon broadcast began at 8:30 a.m., June 20 and ended at 3:34 a.m. July 6. His total on-air time was 378 hours, 59 minutes — about 16 days.

Corrections

Thursday's sports headline should have read, "Howkins to cooch at Borton County." The Daily Egyptian regrets the error.
A MONTH AND A MAP OF TERTIUS LABOR AND SUCCESSFUL PLANNING, SIDETRACK'S, 101 W. COLLEGE ST., IS CELEBRATING THE GRAND OPENING OF ITS NEW AND IMPROVED BEER GARDEN TONIGHT AND SATURDAY.

Sidetrack's owner John Alexander said workers have been working diligently to finish the beer garden this week.

"They are putting the finishing touches on it this week," Alexander said. "It should be complete by Thursday!"

The new bi-level beer garden will feature about six rows of wrough iron features, creations of Carbondale's own Mike Page.

Page, the owner of Page Ironworks, 10519 Brayfield Road, has been in the iron business nearly 15 years. He has done a variety of ironwork for Sidetracks and the Carbondale area. Two years ago, Page built the circle and ring design iron fence that surrounds the main selling court at Sidetrack. Page also has done much of the iron work for the Copper Dragon and Pinch Penny Pub.

Bringing life and sound to the newly formed creation, local ska band the "Boro City Rollers" will bring their eclectic mixture of horns and guitars to the garden at 10 tonight. For an extension of the celebration and opening, local rockers Half the Casters will play at 10 Saturday night.

Adding to the celebratory Carbondale bar scene, the new beer garden showcases a wrough iron arch and two fixed water-jet fountains. In addition, Alexander and Page are proud to say the art is identical in style to the famous Gateway Arch of St. Louis.

The fountains, which have been imported from Germany, are illuminated by halogen lights, accenting the 10-foot area of water spouting from the fountain.

Page said the fountain gives an incredible visual effect for the artwork involved.

"It's quite a sight," Page said.

NATHAELLE PARK

After completing "How to Make Love Like the Stars and Sailors," Spike Lee's most intimate film to date, Garage magazine's West Coast bureau chief reflects on the career of a director who eschews the easy answers.

Twenty-two years have passed since serial killer David Berkowitz imposed his reign of terror on New York City; and now Spike Lee's latest film "Summer of Sam" attempts to offer strength and support to a loved one.

The movie's main conflict presents itself through the relationship of childhood friends Vinnie (John Leguizamo) and Ritchie (Adrien Brody). Vinnie is a disco-dancing hairdresser with a mysterious past, and Ritchie, a man swept up in an "outside" punk core complete with English accent, walks the lines of friendship and decal.

Conley said: "He graduated before I was done, and moved to L.A. "He called me and told me I should come out there. I've been out in L.A. for five or six years now." Conley also said this opportunity helped to put a few SIUC students interested in filmmaking. He made clear to students and staff in the University's cinema and photography department that there were some internship and a few paid positions available for those interested.

Russell Miller, a December SIUC graduate from Nappanee, said he was one of several SIUC students who responded to Conley's memo. Miller said this was his first time working on a production of this scale, but the learning experiences he has received is worth the effort. "There are a lot of long days, but it has been fun," Miller said. "I am learning a lot that I didn't know before."

Miller, a swing grip and electrician on the film, said he assisted the lighting crew with setting up the lights, power, and filters. "Some days were literally 18 hours," Jenkins said. "About two weeks ago, my mom told me about the casting." "The casting had already taken place, but I thought I would just go to Benton to talk to Justin and ask him if I could hang around the set and get a feel for it," Conley said. "I asked Mr. Jenkins and gave him an internship. Jenkins' position has had him working with second unit of the cast and crew. He has made several trips to St. Louis to pick up cast and crew members and has assisted with various tasks on the set."

"It is exciting for a Herrin kid," Jenkins said Wednesday. "This is only the second day of filming." Although "Goodbye Sunshine" is the first project of its kind for Miller and Jenkins, Conley is no stranger to the film industry. He has worked as a production assistant on such films as "Waterworld" and "Showgirls." "Miller's presence is huge," Jenkins said. "I'm not exactly sure what he's doing with all his energy on independent films, such as "Goodbye Sunshine.""

"I don't know what he's doing," Conley said. "It's all exciting for rose, a lot of people and chances around the house. Sunday's the best day for your big date."

Find your free screen savers

THE INTERNET CONNECTION:
By surfing the right web sites, you can expand the life of your monitor.

Stated by

CHRIS KRAMER & KELLY E. HERTLEIN

Many of us choose to view a screen saver that complements our personal style while warming up a lap top or waiting for a program to download. The Internet is host to thousands of web sites that can satisfy a taste for individual expression on the screen.

Originally designed to save energy and maintain the life of a monitor, screen savers have become a high-tech fashion statement, increasingly exotic and more appealing to the eyes. In the habit of re-dressing my monitor in several lavish photos and themes, I have found several web sites that provide lists upon lists of free screen savers from which to choose.

To make a longer journey into the realm of computer image shorted, simply type Downloads.com into the address site and hit return. A world of images, messages, dimensions and colors are easily obtained as the stroke of a key.

Once connected to the C-Net server (reached through Downloads.com), you can surf through the utilities and find a multitude of screen savers for a plethora of visual possibilites.

Other sites worthy of a visit within the downloading area include:
http://www.ScreenSavers.com
http://www.3Dfiles.com
http://computingcentral.com

This site contains nearly any image you wish to see, ranging from Robin Hood to a baby dancing to music (the simple lovable character from Ally McBeal). A screen saver can be downloaded off the site free of charge. No long wait here, between 30 seconds and 5 minutes is the amount of time it will take for the image to appear.

During the day, the store has a sale on selected items. Not all items are included in the sale, as indicated by a red flag in the store. The sale is only valid today, and while supplies last.

bands, including Blink-182, L7, Subsidial Tendencis, Frenemy, Severdust, Enterbrain and Less than Jake.

Dubbed a "summer camp on wheels," by promoters, Warped Tour has fostered a communal spirit between the bands, athletes, crew and fans on the tour.

Kleiner agrees to the atmosphere is unique.

"It's not like a Big Love-fest or anything, but there is a mutual respect," Kleiner said. "A lot of the bands are on a similar level." Running in tandem, Back-O-Nine does well. They have been at the cross-country style almost non-stop for the past few months to support their new album "Li'do," which Kleiner classified "to hold barrel." This is the band's fourth album and second release with TVT Records. After signing with the TVT label, Back-O-Nine released "Oi Troz!) in 1997. Prior to "Li'do" and "Li'do Troz!, Back-O-Nine had two indie releases on Target Records (1994's "Sings in the Key of Bree" and 1995's "Flugy").

"Li'do Troz!" spawned the radio hit "My Town," and cemented Buck-O-Nine's presence in the ska/punk sound for another test drive, but with a more melodic edge.

"I was up a lot," Kleiner said. "He tried not to cater to the trends and just stick to what they like best — making their own music. "Being a ska band nowadays is kind of risky," Kleiner said. "That kind of music, but not the musical trends. "We just want to write music that makes us happy.

The new album proves Buck-O-Nine is doing their own thing, and stays away from the traditional ska/punk sound, drawing influence from The Clash, Elvis Costello and reggae cultures for a sampling.

Kleiner said he drives some of his guitar influences from "The Stooges" for the song "Robby Do Doit.

On the track "Here We Go Again," Buck-O-Nine opened up the studio sound for another test drive, but with a more melodic edge.

"The hard work is in the mind," Kleiner said. "The songs are deep in my mind. That comes out in my songs. As divergent as their sound, Back-O-Nine's has seen some changes in the line-up of the band over the past year. Drummer Tony Benson left in March, and last month, bassist Scott Kennedy left. Kleiner said the changes have affected the band in a positive way and the new drummer and bassist have meshed well with other band members.

"It affects us in a good way," Kleiner said. "Steve was into the band in a different way than we were. It was a much more laid-back.

"Jeff (the new drummer) is the kind of guy that is laid-back but is still very into the music. "Li'do" is the best Buck-O-Nine album yet," Kleiner said. "We are going to try and capture and explore some new options.

"We had good intentions, but he kind of — ed up a lot," Kleiner said. "He is a good engineer but not a good producer. He did not have the same kind of drive as Howard. Still, the band is very pleased with the results of "Li'do."
