Jury finds Hinckley insane

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W Hinckley Jr., who tried and failed to assassinate President Reagan, was judged Monday to be insane by reason of insanity and therefore not criminally responsible for an act that appalled the nation.

A federal jury that deliberated nearly 23 hours over four days found Hinckley, 27, innocent of assault with intent to kill Reagan and three other men he shot outside the Washington Hilton Hotel on March 30, 1981.

Hinckley, pale and tense, covered his eyes with his hands when the verdict was read, count by count for 13 counts, by U.S. District Judge Barrington D Parker. Hinckley's mother and father, at the second row seat they've occupied for most of the eight weeks of trial, hugged one another and teared streamed from their eyes.

By its verdict, the jury spared Hinckley from possible life sentences on each of five major counts. Instead, he will be committed immediately for a mental examination.

Even though Hinckley was found innocent on all 13 counts, the judge said he would be "sentenced" on July 12. There was no explanation except perhaps the judge was referring to a formal commitment order.

The reading of the verdict took scarcely three minutes and Hinckley was lead out of the courtroom. He had not said a word. But he appeared to be wiping a tear from his eyes.

One of Hinckley's victims, press secretary James S Brady, was shot in the brain and is permanently impaired. Another, policeman Thomas Delahanty, was forced to take early retirement because of a bullet in the neck. Reagan was shot in the chest and the bullet lodged an inch from his heart but he recovered fully. So did Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy, who is back on the presidential protective detail after recovering from painful injuries.

Defense attorney Vincent J Fuller, who had convinced the seven-woman, five-man jury that Hinckley was not in touch with reality on the day he shot Reagan, had only a single comment when he left the courtroom. "Another day, another dollar."

There was no immediate comment from the prosecutors, who had contended that Hinckley, while suffering from schizophrenia, was in control when he shot the four men.

The jurors got the case Friday afternoon. The verdict came on the last day of the trial. Hinckley will be held in custody until the judge began the process of choosing the jurors.

After the mental examination, Hinckley will receive a choice of treatment, a satisfaction "that he is not likely to injure himself or others or persons due to mental illness."

Congress put that decision in the hands of the doctors in 1979 because of a feeling that it would not be left to psychiatrists.

If the jury reached its verdict at 6:30 p.m., it would be only a half hour to assemble the cast.

City seeking 'ray of hope' for center plan

By Andrew Zinner

The federally mandated completion deadline for Carbondale's city hall center is "not exacted in stone," Mayor Hans Fischer said Tuesday, "that is, the federal agency directly involved can extend it — an indication that the project is not in danger of collapse."

But Mayor Hans Fischer said a deadline extension is not the only factor determining the fate of the $15 million project.

Gerald Tompkins, chief of community and business programs for the Farmer's Home Administration, said deadlines similar to Carbondale's have been extended before.

"In terms of our regulations, an extension is possible," he said. "It's common to ask for an extension." Tompkins noted the five outstanding construction projects like Carbondale's.

Fischer Monday called the FHA deadline "one more little factor, which has a con­ tinuation of the project. Other factors, he explained, must also be considered before a decision is to be reached. He said con­ struction delayed by the sale of bonds and agreements with the local Department of Housing and Urban Development are also hurdles that must be cleared.

The City Council was to meet Wednesday in the City Hall for its regular meeting to discuss the fate of the project.

The Council's final determination for completion of the center is expected at a work session in the next three weeks.

In other action last week, the appropriations committee approved a $7.6 million for the Illinois Capital Development Board for state university agriculture projects.

Baker said SIU-C would receive 5 percent, most of which would go to replacing the University Farms barn which burned down last year. The rest of SIU-C's share would be used for animal care and research, he said.

SIU might seek smaller salary hike

By Steve Metkeh

Staff Writer

SIU will seek a smaller salary hike for fiscal 1984 if the 1983 budget, complete with a 4 percent salary increase, is approved by the Legislature and governor, Chancellor Kenneth Shaw said Monday.

The fiscal 1983 budget passed a second reading in the House Monday and was approved by the House Appropriations Committee, 12-5, last week. It is expected to be read in the Senate this week for final approval sometime this week.

Shaw said Monday that the request for a 12.5 percent salary increase for fiscal 1984 would be reduced to 8.5 percent if the fiscal 1983 budget is approved.

Shaw said the 12.5 percent hike was proposed with the assumption that the fiscal 1983 budget wouldn't include a salary increase. The State Senate took on the 4 percent increase in their version of the budget.

John Baker, President Albert Somit's special assistant for budgeting and planning, doubts there will be any serious opposition in the House to passing the final budget since it did not receive any negative votes from the appropriations committee.

"The five that voted present were the five that had found the funding insufficient," Baker said.

Shaw agreed with Baker that he expects little opposition to the budget in the House, and added that the only question mark appears to be the governor.

"It appears that the House will go along," Shaw said. "The governor is the big variable. It's too early to tell what he will do. He hasn't commented about it publicly or privately, as far as I can tell."

Thompson's version of the budget didn't include a salary hike.

"We were really projecting two years of inflation," Shaw said. "We projected a 6.5 percent inflation rate for 1983 and 6 percent for the next year."

Shaw said "people wouldn't get excited" if they remem­bered what that 12.5 percent means.

In other action last week, the appropriations committee approved a bill that appropriates $25 million to the Illinois Capital Development Board for state university agriculture projects.

Baker said SIU-C would receive 12.5 percent, most of which would go to replacing the University Farms barn which burned down last year. The rest of SIU-C's share would be used for animal care and research, he said.

Shaw said the 12.5 percent salary increase isn't as large as it seems when one considers the reasons behind it. He said SIU is really talking about 8.5 percent if that's the increase.

Israel bombards Palestinian positions from land and sea

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - From land and sea, Israeli gunners unleashed a non-stop bombardment of Palestinian positions in scattered areas of encircled west Beirut Monday, ending a week of all-out fighting with one of the heaviest barrages of the two-week-old war.

Tens of thousands of Beirut residents sought shelter in the bomb-laden city or fled to the city's eastern sector to escape the artillery, armor and shellfire. At one point the shells witnessed overhead every three or four minutes, crashing into Palestinian camps and tenements or into Lebanese-inhabited buildings.

Lebanese police reported at least 36 people killed and 82 others wounded, including both civilians and guerrillas. The Palestinians said the Israelis scored a direct hit on a Palestinian-run hospital, killing two patients. The guerrillas claimed Israeli ground forces used their shelling to launch a long-awaited assault against the Palestinians' west Beirut redoubt, but were beaten off. The Israeli command in Tel Aviv said the shelling began after guerrillas fired several rockets. Swedish news reports suggested the Israelis outdid the Palestinians in shellfire against the west Beirut area.

The Israelis had promised to hold off its threatened onslaught against the PLO's west Beirut nerve center to facilitate U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib's cease-fire negotiations. But Arab armies, though vastly inferior, were able to hold their own.

The Israeli defense minister said Tuesday that Israel expected the Lebanon war to end this week, but did not announce a cease-fire or any decision other than to meet again Tuesday.

Three Arab and Christian delegations led by Palestinians were shelled in the presidential palace in West Beirut. Wounded, including an unnamed Palestinian envoy, were reported doing well.

Beirut's chief demographer said Monday that the city's five-week-old war had claimed 2,900 lives, including 1,800 Palestinians, 600 Israelis and 500 Lebanese.

Several thousand Palestinians had tried to reach the safety of their thousands of encircled relatives in west Beirut for three days, but were blocked off by a shell barrage.

The Israeli command, under pressure from U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig to avoid a total collapse of the cease-fire, ordered the shelling of a so-called "redoubt" within the city's residential areas. The last attack was Monday. The Israelis had vowed to wait a few days before shelling Beirut proper.

The Israeli defense minister, who had been criticized for his handling of the war, said the shelling was aimed at foreign residents who had refused to leave the city.

Gloster granted unpaid leave; may appeal Oregon conviction

The FmHA has agreed to guarantee 96 percent of the $18.5 million in bonds sold by the city, even if the facility is never actually built. HUD has granted the city $2.07 million to buy property for the site.

According to Townsend, the federal government bases its deadlines on feasibility studies, taking into consideration budgets, realistic target dates and construction details. The purpose of the deadline, he said "is to keep things going," particularly on such long-term projects as the convention center.

Florida rejects ERA; 9 days left on deadline

"Vote them out!" while other advocates streamed into the Capitol rotunda, some in tears, chanting "We'll remember in November."

As lawmakers assembled for their special session, hundreds of women jammed into the Capitol to demonstrate for and against the ERA, while more than 5,000 gathered outside.

No state has ratified the ERA since Indiana in 1977, and Florida was one of the few remaining states where the amendment was seen as having a chance of passage.

Florida Board of Education grants retirement leave to Gloster

The Board of Education has granted unpaid leave; his job will be extended until Aug. 14, at which time the University will "review the situation," Baker said.

Whether Gloster keeps his job after his mail and wire fraud conviction depends on the result of his possible appeal or motion for retrial.

"We have to wait for the outcome of the judicial process," Baker said. "We have to wait for the final disposition of the case before any final action is taken here.

Gloster was convicted on June 14 by a U.S. District Court jury in Eugene, Ore., on four counts of mail and one count of wire fraud related to a scheme to cheat an Oregon insurance company.

Gloster said Thursday that he was "totally surprised by the recommendation of my attorneys for my next step, whether I should file a motion for a retrial or an appeal."

Gloster was unavailable for comment Monday.

Glover will go before Judge Robert Bellono on Aug. 11 for sentencing. He could face up to 25 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Baker and Glover met several times last week to discuss Glover's future at SIU-C. Baker's superior, said he didn't tell Glover to request a leave.

"We talked about it," Baker said. "It's a mutually agreed upon course of action. Mr. Glover submitted an application and I simply approved it."

Gloster was accused of incurring $29,000 worth of silverware with American States Insurance Co. of Seattle in June 1981, then falsely reporting it stolen last September and trying to collect from the firm.

Gloster was director of the University of Oregon computing center and associate provost when the actions took place. He was hired by SIU-C last August.

Baker said that SIU-C's associate directors in computing affairs -- Charles Campbell, Larry Hengehold and Tom Purcell -- will report directly to him during Gloster's absence.

Whether Glover can appeal or move for a retrial depends on his attorneys and their possible appeal or motion for retrial.

The judge told the jurors that he was "leery" about the recommendation of his attorneys for his next step, whether he should file a motion for a retrial or an appeal.

Gloster will wait for the next three hours during the Reagan administration's confirmation of his appointment to the Federal Reserve in a mutual agreement. Mr. Gloster was appointed to the Federal Reserve in 1981.
Hysterical supporters damaged ERA image

The deadline for the Equal Rights Amendment is fast approaching. If the ERA is not ratified by June 30, the ratification process will have to be started over again. And the way things are going for ERA supporters, it doesn't look as though it will make it in time.

One of the main reasons that the ERA has not been passed to this point is the ignorance of the people who did not understand it became frightened of it. The amendment simply states that no person will be discriminated against on the basis of sex. Nothing about lesbian marriages, nothing about busing, asexual toilets, or women. Not a word about drafting women for combat.

These ideas have been placed in the public consciousness by ultra-conservatives like Phyllis Schlafly and Phyllis Bixby of the Illinois Drafting Supervisor and the Women's National Political League. Their comments about equal treatment for women by filling the media with anti-ERA headlines have been countered by ERA in Illinois, but many Americans have begun to believe that ERA will cause the downfall of society and will set the nations on a skateboard to hell.

The situation has not been helped by some fanatical females who have done some dumb things in a last-ditch effort to force ratification. In chaining themselves together on the steps of the Capitol and the City Hall, in attempting to disrupt a session of the House, they scored no points for ERA.

These people have, as the saying goes, "cooked their own goose." They have come off as rubble-rouser. No matter how desperate things have become for the ERA movement, the worst possible thing that ERA supporters could have done was become hysterical, and that's just what they did. Their actions in Springfield identified them with the "free burners" of the Sixties and early Seventies. Instead of adding to ERA's base of support, they no doubt destroyed some of it.

If the ERA is ever to be passed in the United States, its supporters must elect representatives in the Congress and the legislatures who will support it and they must find a way to make the amendment relevant to the majority of the people.

They must appeal to everyone. Not just the women in the working force who are being paid only 85 cents for every dollar men are being paid, and not just the liberal males and politicians who openly support the amendment. They must find a way to create a meeting of the minds, a middle ground where conservative and liberal can meet and find agreement.

If ERA is to succeed, it must gain mass support. Poll statistics are not enough; many who say they support ERA in a poll would probably vote against it in an open election. The supporters must find a way to make the ERA relevant to a large number of Americans who have to relate to an issue that many of them do not understand.

The shot must be long and long ahead of them. It won't be won by hysterical behavior.

Short Shots

The ERA is dying a painful death. Supporters of the amendment from Springfield and other parts of Illinois have been to meetings, but the "gross injustice" they have been subjected to by their conservative opponents. Both sides will be having meetings, and there are for another 10-year period of ratification.

And yet life goes on. Women continue to be paid less than men for doing the same job. They are at least partly "male" in principle, and many women are not equal in practice. Perhaps it is discrimination, perhaps it is laziness, but whatever it is it is.

One way or the other, women will continue to be put on a pedestal by their admirers, and possibly sexualize male counterparts. We will not be able to do this, and continue as if it was never true at all.

Real equal rights for women is a battle that will take a long time for them to win. In the meantime, I'll keep taking out the trash and helping the kids do their dishes at least as much as my husband can consider herself an equal. — Thomas P. Travin, Editorial Page Editor.

Despite the 'God's law' rhetoric, He did create all people equal

"I do not want a law passed that tells me I am equal with my husband. He has told me I am not!" That's how a letter by Edna Sanders in the June 21, 1982 Springfield, Ill., Republican reads recently. The next day, a front page article in the Springfield Journal Star followed by quoting an opinion of the opposition to ERA, "it's my religious belief."

It's funny how God invariably gets dragged into any argument about human affairs, but perhaps it serves Him right. That's the way He pays for having made man. If God did make humans, I believe He was not in opposition to ERA, "it's my religious belief."

Equality and human nature, it must gain mass support and be backed of it. The worst possible thing that ERA supporters could have done was become hysterical, and that's just what they did. Thoughts on the death (rebirth?) of ERA

ERA presented incorrectly; male benefits not emphasized

By David Murphy

Now that the Equal Rights Amendment is breathing its last for this round, all the hoopla harkies who support the Amendment have come in force to revive the dying patient.

Going on hunger strikes, claiming other up on the steps of the state capital disrupting sessions of the General Assembly—these are extremist tactics that will only alienate potential supporters of the ERA. Such behavior also destabilizes the cause. Women still have not caught on that the ERA is a basic, just measure, but has not been approved. It is because our legislators think women are in doubt, that they should find more than a handful opposed to the idea of equal pay for women. It is not because the average person does not want the ERA; polls show that as much as 62 percent of the populace largesse favors it.

It is because the ERA has been predominantly a female issue, that probably alone makes legislators as a measure that the ERA is the only one thing that has ever been approved. Women have ratified enough female support to convince these legislators that many women don't want the ERA passed. Many women don't. They, too, are supported by the ERA and its ferocious supporters. What must be made clear for the ERA to have a chance is that men, as well as women, stand to benefit from its passage.

Moreover, divorce proceedings, for example, would receive substantially better treatment than they do now. "If the routine seeking most divorced husbands receive in court for alimony and child support would not be such a bottleneck as it is now, the ERA was passed."

The Amendment would also serve to eliminate the sex of power equal to a man's--not need, or be entitled to, an allowance from one with limited income potential. The Amendment would also serve to eliminate the sex of responsibility to America society. It is possible, at some point in the future, that women could be drafted, perhaps not for combat duty but certainly to fill教士-empty positions and the safe combat-support positions.

And women in the army can very effective in support of combat troops. The army is a good example of this, and the ERA is one of the key women's rights battles being fought. Some legislators have either been trying to send the word that "ERA's are a commitment to women's guarantees rights. Women made strides in securing civil rights, but before working for the preservation of women's equal opportunity for advancement."

It is in the interest of maintaining our American ideals and in our own best practical interests to pass the ERA. But, it must be presented to the public and the legislators that way. Responsible feminists must see the ERA as a blueprint for commanding the public spotlight, and for representing the ERA, we have the responsibility.

Then, even though the ERA is dead for now, it will have a chance at resurrection.

Civil rights battle will continue to rage

By Bob Delaney

The Equal Rights Amendment tricked its way out of death three years ago. On June 15, it was killed again, and this time the outcome may be final.

The ERA claims countless supporters, but the only foes that have counted have been state legislators hasten to pass the proposed amendment. There is a view of neutrality, especially now as the deadline for passage is near.

As that deadline draws nearer, the possibility to promote a pass that will give the political process are at least understand. Blacks in the 1960s effectively used non-conventional methods to advance their civil rights. If it could be a mistake, then for years to come to look at June 30 as a date of justice because to do so might leave both sides suffering. It is now clear that the women's movement will die along with the ERA. ERA supporters have put on a vibrant campaign in recent years. It would not be difficult for them to call it quits now, so long as they are willing to believe that a cause has been lost. It is not many services and rear-line positions in our armed forces and one would suggest that their combat are not recognized.

The ERA does go on June 30, women should be fighting on July 1 for their rights in any other way any way those rights seem to come only inch by inch.

Hunger striking for passage of an amendment may seem an extreme play. Yet, for some women, the possibility of passage of the ERA Amendments represents a struggle.

For Rep. C.L. McCormick, R-Va., ERA stands as much for broad and basic behind the scene policy and principle of peace. ERA is an economic issue, especially in light of parental and rising inflation. Equally expensive in light of the single working mother must bring home less to her male next-door neighbor can also be true.

This is where the true pains of increased sex discrimination will come to bear.

Phyllis Schlafly, the leader in leading the ERA, has consistently made the emphasis that women have the same rights as men, but not the same responsibilities.

It is in the interest of maintaining our American ideals and in our own best practical interests to pass the ERA. But, it must be presented to the public and the legislators that way. Responsible feminists must see the ERA as a blueprint for commanding the public spotlight, and for representing the ERA, we have the responsibility.

Then, even though the ERA is dead for now, it will have a chance at resurrection.

At the close of her book "The Mind Is Something Else," Gloria Steinem said of the Vietnam conflict, "Vietnam, Vietnam, Vietnam. We have all been there before." Her message was that Vietnam had become far more than a single event in history. The name itself had become a metaphor for a period of as tural sufferings and cross-generational conflicts. So it seems apt to say as an eclipse, the Equal Rights Amendment: ERA, ERA, ERA.

We have all been there before.

This time around, we have become a metaphor for economic and political conflicts, which we may need to keep in mind.

A lesson could be learned from the black movement. The idea of the Constitution are empty rhetoric unless bias among the people are systematically removed. Years after blacks were given rights as citizens, they were fighting in the streets for because they do not pay the same society. Every inch was paid for with suffering and blood. And it is a harsh ERA to think over.

If the ERA does die on June 30, women should be fighting on July 1 for their rights in any other way those rights seem to come only inch by inch.

We've been there before, and we'll be there again

For Steinem and company, they have been long-convinced that if there is one thing the American public instinctively distracts it is the public's attention to what purports to be a very serious issue.

Where are the moderate spokesmen for this eminently worthy cause we call Equal Rights? I can name two who have been fighting on every front at all times, but the issue of an ERA is crying out for, it's a spokesman we can feel comfortable with that men have. Phyllis Schlafly has her devoted minions, but to most of us, and I mean to ask what comical spokesperson for the "treated woman." She is an eminently fighting to preserve the "American family," an endeavor shehas accomplished (if we are to believe the statistics on divorce) to fighting for the preservation of the family and baby.

For Steinem and company, they have been long-convinced that if there is one thing the American public instinctively distracts it is the public's attention to what purports to be a very serious issue.

Where are the moderate spokesmen for this eminently worthy cause we call Equal Rights? I can name two who have been fighting on every front at all times, but the issue of an ERA is crying out for, it's a spokesman we can feel comfortable with that men have.

And there will be next round. The issue, despite my occasionally flippancy tone is a deadly serious one. It is shameful that an amendment has been defeated by public in the basis of sex or sexual preference -- an amendment which is fair to both men and women -- has never been debated in our Constitution. Change is often a hard commodity to come by, but the women's movement is a little like Schlafly blocking the way, fighting for what she believed. She has provided a few real questions in depth and breadth. For this is the reason the battle cannot be won on the first of July, ERA, ERA, ERA. ERA is a reality for many. We've been there before, we will be there again.

Kool Ray has survived; new 45 has tunes of love

By Cynthia Reuter
Staff Writer

If you haven’t seen Kool Ray and the Polaroids around lately and are wondering if they have survived, good news: Kool Ray is alive and well. Their new 45 rpm recording is in stores; and Records and it’s quite impressive.

Kool Ray was voted the Midwest’s best pop artists for 1968-69 by readers of the “Prairie Sun.” The Peoria-based rockers have played at clubs throughout the Corn Belt, from Ames, Iowa, to Madison, Wis., to the Windy City.

The band played regularly at Carbondale’s Studs, and the demands of school were beginning to take a toll on the band last fall. According to “Jerry” Kirk, who books the bar’s entertainment, “management problems are why Kool Ray hasn’t played recently at T.J.’s.” Attempts are being made, however, by local radio personnel to bring Kool Ray back to Carbondale.

Live, Kool Ray plays mostly songs by rock’s pioneers: Chuck Berry, the Rolling Stones and the Who, to name a few. But generally sneak in a couple of original tunes to which the dancing crowds dance on, unaware that somewhere, out of sight, he who has gotten by. In between touring, the Polaroids maintain a recording studio on their original material. Lead singer Doug Johnson and guitarist Dee-Pearson do the composing—7-2444. First LP, “Invisible Waves,” released two years ago, attempted to capture their live sound.

Educational materials exhibit set for teachers, librarians

By Anita Edue

The Divisions of Continuing Education will hold its 46th Annual Educational Materials Exhibit June 21 and 24 in the Student Center Ballrooms.

The exhibit will give teachers, librarians and others interested in education an opportunity to review the latest textbooks and other educational materials, according to Marie Malinauskas, conference coordinator for the Division of Continuing Education. She said this is one of the last summer exhibits of this type in the state.

Materials from kindergartens to college level will be displayed by representatives from a variety of textbook publishers and authors of educational materials. Malinauskas said teachers have also been encouraged to bring computers.

The number of the college community scheduled to participate in the exhibit include: Charles E. Merrill Publishing Company, Palmer Method Handwriting, SI Instructional Television Association, SRA, Becton-Cardy Company and The Three Rs Learning Materials.

The exhibit is free and will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on June 21 and from 9 a.m. to noon on June 24. Door prizes made by the exhibitors will also be given away.

Anyone interested in obtaining further information about the exhibit should contact Marie Malinauskas at 536-7231.

Kool Ray and the Polaroids

Therefore, it offered only two songs of the composition: "Invisible Waves" and "Over You." Both songs on the new 45, however, are originals.

"Day In and Day Out" is a catchy pop tune, yet, since the roughness of their live sound is maintained on the disc, it doesn’t become clichéd. Although this song is a bit more commercial than the others, they both share a believable emotional appeal.

Whereas "Day In and Day Out" seems more contrived in structure, switching back and forth from one rhythm to the next, "This Time" offers a gradual building of tension, and, finally, resolution. It embraces the entire emotional spectrum of a frustrated love. The song ends via both music and vocals. At the pinnacle of frustration, Johnson offers a primal scream and a guitar whines long and woefully.

The new songs are similar in theme, both telling the tale of a frustrated lover who isn’t about to leave his beloved alone. The difference is that in "Day in and Day Out" the hurting party questions why he’s not loved, speculating that it might be due to his perseverance. Yet, he also hears that he might not be saying enough. In "This Time," the writer knows all, including his lover’s illusions about love and her games. Because the latter speaker is more aware, the song seems more confident.

Kool Ray’s 45 is worth buying, especially if you’re already a fan. But remember, this won’t be "Pretty Woman." Their new LP should be released soon, and should contain these singles.

3,000 alumni pledge $40,000 to SIU-C

In its first nationwide telefund, which enlisted alumni support, SIU-C raised more than $35,000 in an effort to offset federal and state cutbacks.

Student volunteers placed 22,000 calls to alumni and contacted 11,740. Approximately 3,000 pledged money to SIU-C, ranging from $42 to $1,000, said John Chaudoin, assistant director of the Development Office and Alumni Association.

Volunteers were also able to update alumni files and out-of-state alumni, many of whom were interested in reports of SIU-C's progress and said they had never been telephoned by campus sources prior to the telefund, Chaudoin said.

Alumni volunteers were also used in a five-county telefund that covered Jackson, Franklin, Saline, Union and Williamson counties. Telefunds in Randolph County and Washington, D.C., are not completed yet.

Teacher programs approved

The Illinois State Teacher Certification Board has again approved 41 educational programs offered by SIU-C's College of Education.

The approval, valid for 10 years, followed an intensive review of 41 areas in which SIU-C offers certification, said Donald L. Beggs, dean of the College of Education.

"Students graduating from the University must complete state-approved programs to receive certification as teachers in the state of Illinois," Beggs said.

The approval will allow students to complete the required coursework and receive their certification. Students must then complete their internship and pass the Illinois Certification Test before they can receive their certification.

Buy socks, stocks...at Sears?

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

Customers of Sears' Carbondale store shouldn't expect to buy stocks and bonds at a house near their house—at least not right away.

Last October, Sears, Roebuck and Co., announced it was buying Dean Witter Reynolds, Wall Street's fifth largest brokerage firm, and Coldwell Banker, one of the nation's largest independent residential and commercial real estate broker.

With the acquisitions, Edward R. Telling, Sears chairman, president, and chief executive officer, said that Sears hoped to become the nation's leading residential and commercial real estate services-oriented financial services enterprise.

Analysts speculated that one day Sears customers would be able to real estate and securities in the same stores where they now buy dishwashers and vacuum cleaners.

However, Gary Keithley, manager of Sears in Carbondale, said there are no current plans to incorporate financial services into the Carbondale store.

"At this point in time, not a great deal of changes will occur locally because we won't have the facilities in this store," he said. Keithley added that over a period of 18 to 24 months, a newly-created business group facility will probably be placed in the Carbondale store or nearby.

With the purchase of Coldwell Banker, Sears now has within its corporate control a fast, convenient in-store facility.

According to Keithley, Sears customers will one day be able to buy and sell real estate at a convenient in-store facility.

"You are going to be able to go to Sears to purchase and sell real estate as well as insurance to cover those purchases," he said. "And you will be able to invest any monies gained from the sale of stocks and securities through the Dean Witter end of our company." Keithley said the image of Sears as a store where its customers can buy almost anything they need has been reinforced by the merger with Dean Witter and Coldwell Banker.

Job hunting workshops set

The Career Planning and Placement Center has four workshops scheduled for summer semester which focus on developing skills specific to job search and employment.

"Resume Writing" will take place on June 31 in Quigley 122 and 2 p.m. July 22 in Quigley 292 and 6 p.m. June 24 in Quigley 292 and 11 a.m. July 21 in Quigley 122.

The workshops are open to students, who may sign up at the Placement Center, Woody Hall B-204.

Individual skill development assistance is also available for persons who cannot attend the scheduled sessions. Interested persons should contact the center for an appointment.

Craft Shop

The Craft Shop has new inventory for the semester which features a variety of unique items.

The Craft Shop is located on the first floor of the Student Center, Building

For information, call 536-3030.

Summer Workshops

Workshops are available for trade and continuing education.

The Craft Shop is located at the north end of the Big Mackey Room, near the entrance to the Student Center, Building 500.

"The use of the Craft Shop is essential to a continuing education environment," said M. D. Snow, assistant director of the Craft Shop.

"I didn't know much about the Craft Shop until I started here," said Snow. "Now I see how important the Craft Shop is to students."

Snow said that the Craft Shop is popular because it provides a place for students to relax.

Troopers allege ticket quota; "House will investigate charges"

By Bob Delaney
Staff Writer

Hearings will be held in Southern Illinois within the next four to six weeks to investigate charges that state police officers must issue a specific number of speeding tickets each month.

A ten-member committee will be set up from state troopers and state police administrators to determine whether there is validity to the charges made by state troopers from around the state, said sponsors of House Resolution 754, which calls for an investigation.

If validity is found, the General Assembly will recommend policy changes to the administration or enact special legislation dealing with the situation.

Since the legislative session ended June 30, an extension will be given to the committee to complete the investigation, said Rep. C.L. McCormick, R-96th District.

Rep. Jim Rea, D-88th, said selection of the committee should come this week and the findings of the committee will determine which direction the House will take.

Troopers met with legislators and urged an investigation. Troopers charge that they must issue a specified number of tickets each month and that the number of tickets is used to determine vacations, promotions and weekend hours. Troopers also charge that they must patrol interstate or busy highways where more speeding tickets may be issued leaving rural roads largely ignored.

McCormick said more deaths occur on two-lane highways and that the number could be reduced if more attention were paid to the roads. A quota system is the worst system in all the world," he said.

State police administrators have denied that a quota system exists and welcomed an investigation, said McCormick.

Sponsors said the hearings will "clear the air" once and for all about whether a quota system exists in Illinois and what should be done if one does exist.

Re-search to be started for arts grantperson

By Michele LImula
Staff Writer

Another national search will be conducted to fill a research specialist for the arts position in the Office of Research Development and Administration.

According to Dingerson, director, said a decision to renew the search was reached Friday in a meeting of the development staff, which served as a search committee in a previous search.

The position was left vacant when Nora Somit Post, wife of President Somit, declined appointment after accepting it in May. Miss Post was chosen through a national search process.

According to Dingerson, the search process will involve advertising in the Chronicle of Higher Education. Dingerson said the position is one that all legislators "subscribe very wisely to." He said, "It is the place to advertise jobs nationally in higher education."

Alumni fair trips scheduled

Limited space is available on four sponsored trips to the World's Fair at Knoxville, Tennessee. Dates for the four trips are July 7-10; July 21-24, Aug. 8-11, and Aug. 18-21.

The cost of the trip is $125 per person, double occupancy. Accommodations will be provided at University of Tennessee at Knoxville residence hall. Buses will leave from the STU Arena parking lot and lunch will be provided en route to Knoxville and on the return trip to Carbondale.

In addition, a side trip to the American Museum of Science and Energy in Oak Ridge, and a visit to nearby Gattisburg is planned. For information or reservations call the alumni office at 652-3040.

Lie detector given to SIU-C

A $6,000 multi-channel polygraph machine, commonly known as a lie detector, has been donated to SIU-C’s Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections by the Stoelting Co. of Chicago.

The polygraph, one of the few currently being used in Illinois, will be used for classroom demonstrations and research experiments, said Howard Timm, assistant professor in the crime study center.

Timm wrote to the polygraph manufacturers in February to ask about acquiring a used machine and was surprised when the company sent him one of its top models as a donation, he said.

Carbondale Women's Center seeking crisis volunteers

The Women's Center is in need of volunteers to perform crisis counseling, according to Marilyn Septon-Thomas, coordinator of volunteer services.

The main function of the center is to handle crisis situations. It provides many services, including a shelter program for abused women and their children, a Rape Action Committee program, counseling, and a 24-hour hotline. The center is located in the backbone of the center.

"We need volunteers and can utilize them in a variety of ways," Septon-Thomas said. Volunteers are needed for the children's program, transportation, and other special programs.

"Roster volunteers are needed especially. The duties of a center volunteer include admitting women and their children to the center, handing out brochures, crisis and information cards, and greeting visitors. These volunteers must have good communication skills, be loyal-minded and be good at handling crisis," Septon-Thomas said.

Roster volunteers must undergo a two-hour training prior to starting at the center. These volunteers work a 2.5 hour shift each week.

Foundation gets medical loan funds

A SIU-C alumnus has established an endowed fund in the SIU Foundation at Carbondale which will provide loans to medical and nursing students and encourage them to practice in Western Illinois and the Southern Illinois area.

Marilyn Septon-Thomas, attended SIU-C, established the E. Martin and Florence Orr Blackledge Scholarship as a memorial to her husband.

"Blackledge was a St. Louis native who received his undergraduate degree and his medical degree there," Septon-Thomas said.

The endowment will provide an annual scholarship of $3,500 and $3,000 for the first two years of medical studies, with $2,500 to be given in the third year. Additional funds will be given annually to the Medical School at SIU-C to support medical education in the future.

"In 98% of the cases allergy seems to be inherited," Dr. Roy S. White, Doctor of Chiropractic, said.

In addition, if a person feels himself becoming "allergic," instead of worrying about finding "allergens," he should work to relieve the pressure to accomplish too much, he said.

Knowing the factors that can be helpful in avoiding migraine. But, once a migraine has started, there is little to do but rest quietly and try to relax.

The only truly effective course is to try to prevent these headaches instead of trying to find a remedy after they have started. Chiropractic care is the choice of an ever-increasing number of migraine sufferers.

And you know, of the most thrilling and truly rewarding professional experiences I've had in Chiropractic care is that migraine sufferers tell me that he or she has kicked the migraine habit.
Smith nets an upset victory; top seeds win at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A well-mannered John McEnroe made a sound start to his quest of this Wimbledon men's tennis title Monday and veteran Stan Smith, the champion of 10 years ago, staged the first upset of the $1.06 million All-England tennis tournament.

McEnroe trimmed fellow American Van Winfield 6-2, 6-1 without a sign of the arguments and tantrums that characterized his Wimbledon triumph last year.

Smith, playing only his third tournament of the year following surgery on his elbow, ousted ninth-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador 6-4, 6-3, 5-7.

Gomez was seeded on the strength of his computer ranking and captured the Italian Open earlier this year. But he has had little success on grass courts.

Jimmy Connors, seeded to meet McEnroe in the finals on July 4, made fast work of beating Mike Mytyshyn of South Africa 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

 Mats Wilander, the 17-year-old Swedish sensation who won the French Open and is seeded seventh, lobbed brilliantly to beat Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland 6-4, 9-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Brian Gottfried, the No.13 seed, downed Gilles Moretton of France 7-6, 7-6, 6-2.

One other seed dropped out of contention. Yanick Noah of France, No.10, pulled out of the tournament with a strained thigh ligament without hitting a shot.

Other seeded players winning through to the second round were Vitali Gerulaitis, No.3; Sandy Mayer, 4th; John Kriek, 5th; Ronnie Tanner, 18th; and Steve Denton, 26th.

Gerulaitis demobilized South Africa's Brett Pirow 6-2, 6-3. Kriek came back from losing a tiebreaker to beat American Craig Wittus 6-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-0.

LeFevre signs Georgia recruit, seeks 3 more

by Gene Stahlman

Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's tennis team has recruited one new man and is in the process of looking at several more, according to coach Dick LeFevre.

"We have gotten a commitment from Paul Dash of Athens, Ga., to attend SIU-C next fall," said LeFevre. "He is a solid player with excellent potential who could really help the balalut remodel down the line, according to LeFevre.

LeFevre said he is looking at a number of other players to fill vacancies left by the graduation of seniors Brian Stanley and Lito Anpion, and the transfer of David Deslites to a junior college.

LeFevre is hoping to net three more recruits, in addition to Nash, so he can have a seven-man team next year. He was forced to go with the bare minimum of six players last year, which didn't leave room for injuries.

The team will be built around returning lettermen Gabriel Chico, returning lettermen Gabriel Coh, and pro junior Pedro Buitrago.

"One of the recruits I have looking are at good players," said LeFevre. "One comes very highly recommended by Bill Smith, the club pro at the Marquette Hotel in Lake Worth, Ill.

George Allen signs to coach new Chicago grid franchise

CHICAGO (AP) — George Allen, a fixture in National Football League coaching ranks for two decades, signed on Monday as coach and part owner of the Chicago franchise in the new U.S. Football League, which owners hope would be competitive with the NFL within three years.

Appearing at a press conference with league founder David Dixon of New Orleans, Allen said he will have a "substantial" financial interest in the team along with co-owners Bill Harris, a real estate developer from Irvine, Calif., and Dr. Ted Districh, a Phoenix, Ariz., surgeon.

Harris said the three had formed a partnership, but the amount of their investment was not disclosed. The franchise has yet to be named.

Allen said the fledgling league would not repeat the mistakes that scuttled the World Football League. He said his team and the new league would forgo bidding wars for high-priced players and focus instead on phasing strong marketing, experienced coaches and front-office personnel and lucrative deals for television coverage.

Pace is fast, steady in spikers' camp

When one thinks back to those fun days of summer camp, the image that comes to mind is usually one of filled beds, ghost stories around the campfire, and food fights. Though only one hole has been created for each bunk, the atmosphere is very similar to that of the Girls' Volleyball Camp sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education at SIU-C. And making the bed is about the easiest thing the campers do all day.

The camp, in its seventh year, is run by SIU-C Volleyball Coach Debbie Hunter. Each session of approximately 80 girls runs for three days, which, according to Hunter and the campers, is just about the right amount of time. There are six sessions in all, and about 300 girls will have weathered out the tough schedule by the time the camps are over.

Hunter said the camp draws girls primarily from Illinois, although they do come from Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky, and Ohio.

The morning session stresses the fundamentals of volleyball, while the afternoon focuses on team strategy. The evening is recreation time. Hunter said the "crush course" not only keeps the campers minds on just volleyball, but also helps them get out of the bunk and outside to have a successful camp," said Hunter.

"We feel we have a very successful camp," said Hunter. "We try to emphasize to the kids that if they want to be good volleyball players, they will have to be disciples of the sport."

The camp has one coach for every 10 campers, which Hunter said is an unusually good percentage. The campers are writing notes to coaches during the session, and Hunter will use some of their requests as needed.

"I love it," Johnson smiled. "The coaches are so nice, and I'm learning so many new things. I really like everything we do, except getting up in the morning."

"There is a lot hard work, but I don't mind it," Williams said. "Some people really don't like it because they hurt from all the exercises, but I think the exercises are good. The camp is just long enough because when you get out, you're real hyped to go play volleyball. If it was longer, you might get set on it."

Hunter said few campers have lived the camp, although they do complain about aches and pains, along with getting up in the morning. She pointed out that these are the kids who want to go camp, not the ones who are shipped off by their parents.

Hunter and her staff will also be conducting a series of travelling camps at various high schools in July. She expects the number of girls who will have received instruction to be close to 600 by the conclusion of the Travelling sessions.

"The kids have said to me that they have a very positive image of SIU-C when they leave," Hunter said. "I think these campers not only an excellent advertisement for SIU-C volleyball, but for the University as a whole."

For the first time in history, SIU-C sportswomen will be eligible for induction into the Hall of Fame in the 1984-85 school year.

Women who have contributed to the Women's Intercollegiate Athletics program are eligible for nomination. This includes former athletes, coaches, administrators, staff, and alumni. Sixty male athletes have been honored in the Hall of Fame since the club's existence. As many as 10 women may be inducted each year for the next three years. "We don't want to have any more than that," said Hunter. "There are so many women that have contributed, we don't want to have more than 10 to 12 people."

Staff Writer

Plans for a new intramural sports club, disc golf, are being finalized by certified officials of the club. Gene Nrhall, president of Southern Illinois University-Carbondale Thrusters Club, said the club will consist of 12 holes and will be located at the Recreation Center.

Lewis also said there will be a new disc golf course at the Recreation Center. Work has already begun on the course and should be completed in time for intramural registration, July 21.

The course, which will be located east of the Recreation Center, will consist of nine holes. They are not really holes, according to Lewis, but rather a pole with a net-like basket attached to it.

"A make-shift course is all ready in operation at the school. One of the pole hole baskets has been installed, and disc golfers are using a series of stakes stuck in the ground for the other eight holes, he said.

The holes range from two to three hundred yards long, and are all par four holes. The baskets are four feet high and have a two-foot diameter.

In the course, the baskets, which cost around $20 each, were provided by the Recreation Center under the advisement of the Intramural Recreational Sports Advisory Board.

The game itself is very similar to golf. The idea is to get the Frisbee or disc in the hole basket with as few tosses as possible.

"You always try to deuce," he said, "it's like getting an eagle in golf."

"There will be a $2,000 total purse in the tournaments," said Lewis. He has played in one other tournament this year, but didn't place.

Lewis said he was unable to attend the state tournament in Shorewood, Ill., this past weekend, but he plans to attend the upcoming Midwest Regional in Joliet Aug. 7-8. In addition to his other duties, Lewis is also the official Professional Disc Golf Association's course pro for the new course here. The P.D.G.A. is a worldwide organization which is getting larger every day, according to Lewis.

There are 16 members, all from the Midwest, and Lewis is one of the newest members.

He is also a member of the West Park Flyers disc golf club of Joliet, a member of the Illinois Frisbee Association, and the sales representative for the Midnight Flyer disc in this area.

Lewis has been playing disc golf for three years, though he has been throwing a Frisbee most of his life. He first became interested in the sport in his hometown of Joliet, which has three courses.

Anyone interested in the club, which already has about 30 members, or any of the tournaments can leave a message on the information board in the lower level of the Recreation Center, or call Lewis there.
