Health council to review surgical center proposal

By Karen Torry
Staff Writer

The Greater Egypt Health Council's project review committee will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the Carbondale Community Center to study a proposal to build an ambulatory surgical center east of Memorial Hospital of Carbondale.

The council will solicit public comment on the proposed surgicenter, which would perform a number of surgical procedures not requiring an overnight hospital stay.

The council acts as an advisory board for the Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission and Comprehensive Health Planning in Southern Illinois (CHPSI). The commission and CHPSI in turn advise the Illinois State Health Facilities Planning Board, which makes a final decision on whether to grant Memorial Hospital a certificate of need, allowing the surgicenter to be built.

The hospital's plans were challenged at a CHPSI-sponsored public hearing last week by a Carbondale Clinic doctor who said the clinic could provide virtually the same services as the proposed surgicenter at lower cost.

Dr. P.B. Sanjabi said last week that the clinic plans to apply for a certificate of need to build an ambulatory surgical unit that would perform the same services as the hospital's proposed surgicenter, with the exception of abortions.

The issue of abortions also generated criticism of the hospital's proposed surgicenter, both at last week's hearing and at a Carbondale City Council meeting in mid-May.

Rose Marie Nowacki of Jackson County Right-to-Life told those who attended last week's hearing that the anti-abortion group believes that "whenever human life is diminished, as it is with abortion, the moral fiber of the community is under attack."

She contended that the number of abortions will increase if abortions can be performed faster and at lower cost.

The abortion issue "has been blown terribly out of proportion," argued George Maroney, administrator of Memorial Hospital, where abortions are currently performed.

Gus says calling a hospital facility a surgicenter makes it sound like a place with a drive-up window for orders-to-go.

Student aid draft court ruling won't affect SIU-C students

By Ginny Lee
Staff Writer

SIU-C's financial aid office is already in full compliance with a federal district court's ruling Friday which struck down a law tying federal financial aid to draft registration, Joe Camille, director of financial aid, said Monday.

U.S. District Judge Donald Alsop put a permanent, nationwide injunction on a law passed by Congress a year ago that requires students to sign a statement that they have registered with the Selective Service or are not required to do so before they can receive aid. Alsop, ruling in Minnesota, declared the law unconstitutional, saying that it violated the Fifth Amendment's guarantee against self-incrimination.

Alsop ordered the U.S. Department of Education to send out a memorandum to all schools by June 30 saying that students do not have to sign the statement before they receive aid.

In March, Alsop had issued a preliminary injunction enjoining the Department of Education from enforcing the law, pending a final ruling.

Following the original injunction, Camille said, the Department of Education sent out a "carefully written letter saying that financial aid officers could not require students to give information about whether they were registered for the draft."

The Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance then initiated a voluntary policy, recommending that students sign the Statement of Educational Purpose-Registration Compliance, if they had no problem doing so, he said.

"We have asked students to fill in the blanks on the Pell form, but we have not been demanding that anybody do that," Camille said.

Voluntary compliance with the law would have saved the financial aid office time if the law had been upheld in court or if appeals to Alsop's ruling are successful, but students did not have to cooperate if they did not want to, Camille said.

Alsop's final ruling, therefore, does not require any policy change for SIU-C, he said.

"As far as our office is concerned, it appears to me that we won't have to do anything more or anything less than we have been doing," Camille said, "and what we have been doing is complying with the judge's original ruling."

Alsop's second ruling cleared up a legal question as to whether his original injunction

New lightboard at McLeod Lighten up!

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

The computer age has made an illuminating arrival at McLeod Theater.

The theater's new lightboard is in place and ready to go for Thursday night's summer season opening performance of "Harvey."

The new system is a great improvement, according to Lang Reynolds, technical director.

"It's state-of-the-art. It has a dimmer capacity which is appropriate for this size theater. It eliminates safety hazards," he said. "And at least parts of it are far better constructed and will last longer."

Reynolds explained that the new computerized lighting system provides more options for teaching technical theater students. It can be run automatically or manually, and students will learn both methods, he said.

The language used to program the computer is based on the English language and students can learn the system in two to three days. "I intensified study, Reynolds said. The lighting for an entire play can be programmed into the computer, and with the push of a button it would run the lighting without an electrician, he said.

"It took three people to do the show before, and now one person can do it," Reynolds said. "It's not necessarily faster, but it's more accurate."

The computer has 1,314 operator functions, but probably only about 25 would be used in a show, Reynolds said. For the summer season's first production, the lightboard will be run manually because there won't be enough time to train an operator before Thursday, he said.

Reynolds said he hopes to use the computer for the play "Oliver," which is scheduled to begin July 1.

The lighting system has been arriving in stages and the board itself arrived

Pope salutes workers slain in Poland

KATOWICE, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II blessed millions of faithful from the coalfields and factories of Poland's industrial belt Monday and said he wished to "kneel ... and pay homage" to workers slain in anti-government uprisings.

As they have throughout his visit, the Polish pope's bold words aroused supporters of the outlawed Solidarity union.

In Poznan, hundreds of youths marched off from a papal Mass shouting, "The pope has blessed Solidarity!" and headed for a monument to workers killed in 1956 anti-government rioting. Police blocked the route, and one young man was reported detained.

At the Mass in Poznan's Park of Culture, the pope proclaimed to the congregation, "Today on this spot there have been risen two crosses in memory of the victims of 1956. I wish to kneel in this place and pay homage."

Flying by helicopter later to this coal and steel center, John Paul addressed the greatest throng of his homecoming, an estimated 1.5 million people.

He told them their government should talk with the banned labor movement, not ban it. The only way to solve Poland's problems, he declared, is through "dialogue between authorities and society."

The huge crowd, stretching back a mile from the foot of the papal altar at Katowice airport, thundered with applause and chants of "Long live the pope!"

Katowice was a center of Solidarity resistance to the imposition of martial law by Poland's Communist leadership

Dec. 13, 1981.

On the fifth day of an eight-day visit to his troubled homeland, John Paul appealed again for public calm, but did not retreat from his open support for worker protest. In his homily in Poznan, he mentioned the Solidarity movement by name for the first time.

The government, expressing concern about the continuing pro-Solidarity displays, had called on the pontiff to stick to the "religious aspect" of the trip. It said continued protests could delay the final lifting of martial law.

The climax of the papal visit — a meeting between the pope and Solidarity leader Lech Walesa — is now expected to come Wednesday or Thursday. Walesa's wife, Danuta, said by telephone from their home in the northern seaport of Gdansk that the meeting might take place one of those days in the southern city of Krakow, "or in some remote place where there would be no people."

Thompson, leaders open talks to find tax increase compromise

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Governor Thompson and legislative leaders opened their summit meetings on income taxes Monday, and while no agreement was reached, there were signs a temporary increase may be in the works.

After meeting for 1 1/2 hours at the Executive Mansion, Thompson and the four leaders said there was progress on fashioning a compromise acceptable to enough lawmakers to win approval by June 30, the scheduled end of the spring legislative session. They agreed to meet again Tuesday in the governor's Statehouse office.

"We're a lot closer than I anticipated. And I think we'll come up with a plan," said Senate Republican leader James "Pat" Philip of Elmhurst upon emerging from the governor's mansion.

Philip said a bipartisan accord could be reached as early as Wednesday, but the others did not share that assessment.

Democratic Senate President Philip Rock of Oak Park termed the discussions "productive." He said leaders were working on a "composite plan" that would raise between $623 million and $1.6 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1.

The lower figure has been proposed by House Republicans; Thompson seeks the larger amount.

The Republican governor has asked for a permanent increase, but leaders of both parties in the House have said only a temporary measure could win approval there.

"Clearly, the weight of opinion is in favor of a temporary tax," said Democratic House Speaker Michael Madigan of Chicago, who favors a two-year surtax that would raise about $1.2 billion a year.

Philip, asked if the leadership meeting will produce a temporary measure, replied: "It would appear that way."

"We haven't abandoned it (a permanent tax increase), but I would say that the temporary tax was much more agreeable with the leadership," said Philip, the Senate sponsor of Thompson's permanent plan.

Thompson would not concede that point, but hinted he's willing to scale down his 60 percent tax increase.

Thompson said the leaders asked him for "clarifying memorandums" on aspects of the state's fiscal condition, including debts the state has postponed while waiting for the recession to end.

The leaders' request for additional information on the state's financial obligations for the fiscal year starting July 1 may be a sign of sentiment for further delaying — or not paying — those bills.

House GOP leader Lee Daniels last week proposed an 18-month, 20 percent tax boost, retroactive to Jan. 1, but affecting taxes collected over the 12 months starting July 1.

Daniels said the plan would cost the typical taxpayer family of four — earning $20,000 — about $120. Thompson's proposal would cost the same family about $240 in the first year.

LIGHTS from Page 1

Thursday from Dimtronics-Varalight of Chicago. Thirty-two of the 87 dimmer lights on the board are wired for use, and the rest of the wiring will be completed sometime in August, Reynolds said. Time did not permit wiring of all the dimmers so 32 were wired as a temporary solution. The old system had only 36 dimmers, he said.

An additional 5,000 feet of wire had to be put into place and thousands of electrical connectors had to be disconnected, labeled, and reconnected to get the new system ready for use, Reynolds said.

Earlier this month, the STU

Board of Trustees gave final approval to a $120,000 contract for replacement of the theater's light control system to Korando Electric Inc. of Ava. The board had given permission for the Physical Plant to prepare specifications and obtain bids for the system in May.

The theater's previous lighting system failed in April as Theater Department personnel were preparing for the final spring semester production, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." Lighting for that show was provided by a temporary hook-up to the Laboratory Theater light-control panel.

EPA finds more dioxin in Missouri

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A lawyer for former state Attorney General William J. Scott on Monday asked the Illinois Supreme Court to let his client practice law again, contending Scott is a well-loved public figure and the victim of a "smear campaign."

The Supreme Court's lawyer-disciplinary arm has recommended that Scott's license not be returned until next year. The final decision is up to the justices, who said they will issue a ruling at an unspecified time in the near future.

Scott, 56, once considered the state's top Republican vote-getter, was convicted of filing a false income tax return for 1972, just one day after he lost the 1980 Republican primary for the U.S. Senate.

Nuclear arms protesters arrested

ST. JAMES, Mo. (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Monday the level of dioxin detected on a road near here is the highest yet found in Missouri, and health officials urged three families living near the site to leave their homes.

The EPA said it found levels up to 1,800 parts per billion — six times higher than those found in Times Beach, Mo. — in a routine recheck of the site, about 100 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Scott asks court for law license

(AP) Protesters trying to blockade bomb factories and military bases were arrested by the hundreds Monday as they fell limp at entry gates on what they called the International Day of Nuclear Disarmament.

In all, about 1,100 foes of atomic weapons were taken into custody in the demonstrations at defense plants from the birthplace of the Trident nuclear submarine in Groton, Conn., to the lab that batched the MX missile in Livermore, Calif.

Man pleads guilty in murder charge

Jacob J. Bramlett, 38, formerly of Murphysboro, pleaded guilty Monday to the murder of 25-year-old Michael A. Throop in Ava on July 7, 1981, Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemens said.

Judge Richard Richman sentenced Bramlett to serve 25 years in prison. The sentence will run in addition to the 50 to 100-year sentence Bramlett is currently serving as a result of a conviction for murder in Randolph County. The Randolph County conviction in January 1983 was based on the murder of David B. Skurat in July 1977.

Charges are still pending against Phillip W. Bramlett, 29, of Ava, Jacob's brother, for the murder of Throop. Clemens said.

Simon, businessmen behind plan

East St. Louis site for ethnic museum?

WASHINGTON — Malcolm Martin has a recurring nightmare.

In it, the urbane senior partner in one of the largest St. Louis law firms gazes across the Mississippi from the Gateway Arch toward impoverished East St. Louis, Ill. There he sees a smoking, malodorous coal gasification plant. Or a garishly lighted amusement park. Nothing like that has been built there yet. But there has been talk.

"Aesthetically, it would be a disaster," pronounces Martin, who helped to create the giant arch that sweeps dramatically across the St. Louis skyline and helped spark downtown rejuvenation.

Martin has a plan to banish his nightmare and has won support from U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-22nd District. Simon proposes to construct "one of the great museums of the country" at the river's edge.

A $5 million museum? "What I have in mind would be much more than that," says Simon, who has had help from U.S. Rep. Sidney R. Yates, D-9th District. The Appropriations subcommittee chairman from Chicago tucked $100,000 in this year's Interior Department money bill for a study of whether to build a giant museum of immigration and ethnic heritage in East St. Louis.

The study would determine whether the museum should be built by the mainly Washington-bound Smithsonian Institution. But the Smithsonian has remained neutral toward Simon's proposal.

"The regents have not traditionally favored out-of-town locations," Deputy Director Phillip Samuel Hughes says. "They think the Smithsonian, by and large, should be here in town."

But, Simon insists. "We should not have all the cultural concentration in the Washington area. We must realize that Washington is way off at one end of the country."

Acknowledged nervously are East St. Louis' poverty and crime problems. Says Simon: "Part of reviving the area, it seems to me, is not to create more jails. This is part of a constructive answer."

Martin and 14 allies have lucked in funds to enable their nonprofit Gateway Center of Metropolitan St. Louis Inc. to buy 50 acres that contained an old Illinois Central Gulf yard.

applied nationwide. Camille said.

"I think the judge's last ruling expands his original ruling so that there isn't any question that it includes the whole nation, but it doesn't require anything further," he said.

Alsop's ruling has the same effect that a bill, sponsored by Rep. Paul Simon, D-22nd District, to delay the implementation of the law until Feb. 1, 1984 would have had if passed, according to David Carle, a Simon aide.

"It is clear in his ruling that it has a nationwide effect," Carle said. "Therefore, it addresses the concerns of the nation's colleges and students about the potential for chaos in the delivery of financial aid in the coming school year."

While the federal government has indicated that it will appeal Alsop's ruling to the Supreme Court, as well as request an injunction to keep the ruling from taking effect until a higher court has ruled, Carle said he is not sure what action, if any, Simon would take if the government prevailed with the injunction.

"I think we'll wait to see if the court goes along with the appeal," he said.

Woman, 23, escapes rapist through window

A 23-year-old Carbondale woman was raped early Sunday morning in her apartment on the southwest side of town, according to police.

The woman told police that a man with a gun entered her apartment at about 3:35 a.m.

through a window.

Police said the woman escaped through a window when the suspect, described as a black male about 20 to 30 years old, left the bedroom for another part of the apartment.

Merit pay has merits for education's future

IT'S GOOD to see Rep. Paul Simon heading a committee that's going to try to put a handle on the sensitive issue of merit pay for public school teachers.

It is a delicate mission — one that Simon's extensive background as an advocate of better education suits him for. It is to be hoped that the debate over merit pay will produce an equitable reward system more attractive to more qualified people who want to make teaching their life's work.

Let's face it — despite the fact that there are many good and qualified teachers in our schools, there's no money in teaching, compared to other professions. That sad state has to be changed if what we're told about the decline of education is to be reversed.

MERIT PAY is a process whereby teachers in public schools would be paid based on performance quality. That's where the agreement on the issue stops.

One model for merit pay which the committee will study entails a peer review process to determine performance quality. This is a model which finds its roots in higher education systems such as SIUC. But this system tends to be research- and publication-oriented at the higher education level, and less concerned with quality teaching.

A grade school teacher certainly should not be expected to devote much time to research and publication work. The over-emphasis on research and under-emphasis on teaching at the postsecondary level would have to be reversed at the public school level for the peer review plan to work.

And for any merit pay plan to be successful, every possible precaution must be taken to prevent arbitrariness in the awarding process, just as the tenure system helps eliminate arbitrariness on the part of school boards and administrators in hiring and firing processes.

THE NATIONAL Education Association, one of two major national teachers' unions, has taken this stance. The NEA warns that a merit pay plan that allows arbitrariness could leave some teachers stuck at the bottom of the salary pile, while others who are determined superior by unscientific means float to the top.

But if merit pay can be equitably administered, it could become a boon to those teachers who demonstrate high-quality performance, and an incentive for those who would become lazy in the relative security of tenure.

Naturally, a reasonable merit pay system could also improve the quality of education in the nation by rewarding quality in instructional performance — a desirable goal, undoubtedly.

Unfortunately, merit pay has yet to receive a proper test in the U.S. public school system. If Simon and the merit pay task force can come up with a viable plan, perhaps it will be time for the public school system to administer that test.

Understanding the 'why' behind DE's international news content

EDITOR'S NOTE: Don Sneed is a doctoral student in journalism and mass communications with 12 years experience as a reporter and editor for daily newspapers. In his role as DE Ombudsman, he will handle reader complaints, suggestions or compliments. Such inquiries should be addressed to: Don Sneed, c/o Daily Egyptian, Communications Building, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill. 62901; or may be delivered in person to the DE newsroom, Communications 1247.

Press Watch

truly qualified to report on the myriad of world events that might impact locally?

During the 1970s, a college journalism professor answered that question in the negative by publicizing results of a study which showed a number of journalism students identified Chow Mein as Chairman Mao's predecessor.

Student editor John Schrag — a political science major — thinks that newspapers and journalism schools should share responsibility for the depth of knowledge American students have about international issues.

SCHRAG: "Journalism programs give students too much freedom with elective credits. There should be more emphasis on getting a second degree. That way journalism students would gain expertise in areas other than journalism."

How attentive is the DE to foreign news as it relates to local matters?

Harmon: "We know that international students make up about 10 percent of our enrollment and that there are international interests among our faculty. We know we can't ignore the interests of our primary audience."

Would publishing a world roundup from the Associated Press wire service help?

Harmon: "It would contribute to world understanding, but those with a truly abiding interest in international news can get it from other sources."

Would creating an international news beat and assigning a reporter to that beat help foreign news coverage?

Editorial page editor Jay Small sees some big "ifs":

"IF WE HAD such a beat, it would probably be the most difficult beat we had. The person would have to know international news, the international students here and the issues. Covering foreign news can be a touchy problem for the DE because our reporters sometimes run into conflicts between international students here, and our reporters are accused of bias even if there's no bias intended. Even if a wire story seems to favor one group over another, we can be accused of bias just as if we had written the story."

Who generates DE story ideas?

Harmon: "The reporters, the editors and I do."

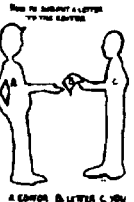

William Yong, a journalism major from Malaysia and a DE staff writer, said the DE has used foreign news stories he has written 100 percent of the time when those stories had local significance.

Still, Yong hasn't yet managed to place a story about sepak takraw. "It's Malaysia's national sport, like baseball is the American national sport," he said. Since sepak takraw is being played at SIUC, Yong persists in his efforts to produce a story on what, in this country, is both a minor and a minority sport.

FINALLY, is the DE subject to a charge which recently was lodged against the Ohio State University campus newspaper, The Lantern? A charge that the staff was WASP-ish in composition?

The answer: Not guilty.

Harmon: "This past year we've had two students from Malaysia on the staff, and in the past we've had students from China, India and Latin America. The presence of international students on the staff increases our level of awareness about world events."

Ending the Great State Livability Debate

I'M SURE you've heard it. In this mix'n'match town — filled in part with students from Chicagoland and in part with natives of Southern Illinois the debate is frequent as to which region is the better place to live.

And I'm going to try to put an objective end to it right now.

The first struggle among friends around here is the effort to determine just where Chicagoland and Southern Illinois begin and end. That's simple.

Chicagoland, for my purposes, is the area beginning about 10 miles north of Kankakee and extending north to Zion, near the Wisconsin border. To the east is Lake Michigan. The western border at Chicagoland's greatest girth is about one-third of the way to Rockford.

Southern Illinois is the region extending south from Salem to Cairo, bordered on three sides by rivers. Parts of Carbondale, I must note, resemble Chicagoland more than Southern Illinois.

I WON'T tell you which of the two regions I'm from — though you could count the stoplights in my hometown on one hand, if that's any indication.

But I've been to Chicagoland enough times. I just got married up there, to a girl who's from there. Chicagoland is full of things I like and things I don't — just as Southern Illinois is. I believe both regions will hold true to certain generalizations. For instance:

— Chicagoland is mostly concrete, spotted occasionally with parks. Southern Illinois is mostly a park, spotted occasionally with concrete.

— In Southern Illinois, you can drive into the forest on a clear day and spend hours looking at the rolling hills and scenery. In Chicagoland, finding a day clear enough to see the top of the Sears Tower from the Dan Ryan Expressway a few blocks away is enough of a problem.

Jay Small

— In Chicagoland, most folks are no more than a half hour away from two or three shopping malls, each with at least 100 stores. Most folks in Southern Illinois have to drive a half hour or more to get to K-Mart.

— THE "RESTAURANTS" section of the Chicago Yellow Pages is bigger than many Southern Illinois phone books. And the closest most Southern Illinois residents get to exotic ethnic cuisine is Kentucky Fried Chicken.

— Driving in Chicagoland is a frightful and bizarre trip into highway paranoia. Driving in Southern Illinois is far easier — the greatest traffic problem you'll ever face is handling the bumper cars at the county fair.

— In Chicagoland, there's something for everyone to do. In Southern Illinois, well, there's always the swing on the front porch.

— In Southern Illinois, you can get your name in most local papers if you go 10 miles up the road to visit your grandmother. In Chicagoland, someone has to pay to get your name in the paper when you die, unless you're an ex-alderman or former Cubs manager (and there are plenty of those).

— In Chicagoland, almost everyone you see on the street is a stranger. In Southern Illinois, you can walk down the street and say, "Hi, cousin!" to everyone you see. Half the time, you'll be right.

— BOTH SOUTHERN Illinois folks and Chicagoland folks insist that they are the ones that talk properly, and that their counterparts have glaring accents. Actually, I think both groups have accents, and neither one talks properly. Somebody in Tolono, halfway between the two, probably speaks perfect English.

But the point I'm getting at is that the silly argument over which region is better to live in is unfounded. There's a good side to living in either the quiet of the south or the hustle and bustle of the city. But both have their disadvantages, as well.

On the other hand, if we're talking about Tolono ...

Khalid M. Suleiman has been fasting 16 hours a day, from dusk until dawn. He plans to continue this for one month.

Suleiman chooses to abstain from any food or drink during those hours when he can see the sun. However, beginning at 8:25 p.m., Suleiman can eat and drink whatever he desires "until the sun's beam" appears at approximately 4 a.m. Suleiman has been practicing these habits for one month out of every year for 20 years, since he was seven.

If it sounds like the newest food disorder, it's not. And it's far from new. Suleiman's eating habits are in accordance with the celebration of the Muslim holy month, Ramadan, or the month of fast. This month begins with the new moon and extends for 30 lunar days until the moon of the next month is seen.

According to Suleiman, Ramadan is "only one pillar" of Islam. He said the other four pillars include prescribed daily prayers, alms and charity, bearing witness that there is only one God and that Muhammad was his prophet, making an annual pilgrimage to Mecca, birthplace of Muhammad and holy city of Islam.

Adopt-A-Cat project is underway

By Debbie Colburn
Staff Writer

More than eight million cats are left homeless every year and taken in by shelters nationwide. June is Adopt-a-Cat month and humane societies throughout the United States and Canada are making special efforts to find homes for their feline friends.

The peak breeding season for cats is spring, consequently, June always brings a large number of kittens in need of homes.

The response to the Adopt-a-Cat campaign has been good, according to Cindy Nelson, director of the society. Twenty-one cats have been adopted this month. And this year's adoption rate for May and June nearly doubled last year's, she said.

Suleiman, an SIU-C graduate student in journalism, said, "Islam is diametrically opposed to humanism. We believe that man by himself is weak and selfish."

He said the Islam faith "regulates every single aspect of a human life, from the cradle to the grave. Every detail is accounted for." Likewise, the premise of fasting is not limited to the purification of the body, but is a cerebral cleansing as well, he explained.

"Fasting is not only by mouth," Suleiman said. "For example, the practice reminds one not to look at a woman seductively, not to display anger, these things that we should never do. Fasting teaches one to control desires and keep from evil thoughts. It's a very broad concept."

During Ramadan, even the married Muslim abstains from sexual thoughts and practices until the proscribed hours, he said.

Abstaining from such pleasure, Suleiman said, "inductuates the Muslim in perseverance, patience, brotherhood and peace."

Suleiman, a Palestinian, said that in countries where Islam is the dominant religion, the month of Ramadan regulates city life. Restaurants are closed during the day while the city buzzes with life at sundown.

"Night becomes day," Suleiman said.

Traffic is tight and some people are out eating and drinking all night while others are content to go to sleep for a few hours. But he said almost everyone makes sure they're awake to consume their sahur, a small meal eaten at dawn.

Suleiman said Muslims carry on with work and school during Ramadan. And although the practices do create some inconvenience, he said in general the results are positive. For example, he said that during fasting the mind seems to take on a greater spiritual perceptiveness. For him, fasting is a place of calm "in a world where powers fight each other and the ever-existing ghost of nuclear holocaust hovers."

"When we fast there is a social solidarity with the poor," he said. "We are made to feel what it is like to be poor. This is important, especially in today's situation when many cannot find food."

Although Suleiman said that saving money, losing weight and giving one's system a rest are valid benefits of fasting, the paramount reason that he fasts extends beyond practical physical fruits and into spiritual realms.

Suleiman said he fasts simply "to please Almighty God."

She said that last year the shelter took in nearly 2,000 cats.

The shelter is usually without kittens from November to May, but various types of cats are now available, Nelson said.

"If you're thinking about getting a kitten, now is a good time," Nelson said.

She said that those interested in adopting an animal, especially dogs, are screened, and written permission from landlords is required. Nelson said that the staff talks to potential owners, making sure that they want a pet.

"We don't try to push it on them," she said.

The cost of adopting a cat is $20, a dog, $25. A free health exam by a veterinarian is included as well as a temporary distemper shot. Pets will need further vaccinations and worming.

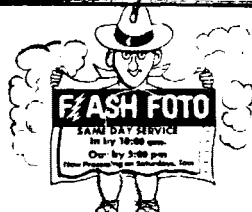

Responsible pet owners realize that having a pet is a lot of work, Nelson said. There are costs involved in health care, laws, neutering and spaying.

Neutering and spaying are part of having a pet, according to Nelson. Animals don't really need to reproduce. Last year, about 79 percent of the animals at the shelter were put to sleep, she said.

"We're not the cruel ones. The people who let their dogs breed are the cruel ones. We're just here to help out."

TREATMENT FOR STIFF NECK

If you're suffering from a stiff neck, don't wait for it to take care of itself when treatment is available to correct it.

Of all the bones in the spinal column, none are more easily injured or more vulnerable than the seven vertebrae in the neck. None are moved more often. We are constantly turning our heads to look at people and things.

Neck stiffness can have many causes, from sudden and violent accidents to such simple activities as painting a ceiling or just sitting reading a book for a long time. But there's nothing simple about the pain.

A careful examination will reveal the source of the pain and how best to treat it. Any misaligned vertebrae in the spinal column should be properly adjusted so there will be no abnormal pressure on your nervous system. Treatment may also include exercises for the cervical muscles such as gently rotating your head in all directions. This can help restore muscle strength and tone.

Health Education grad student wins national scholarship

By Debra Landis
Staff Writer

Kathryn Henningson, doctoral student in the Health Education Department is the John P. McGovern National Scholarship Award winner for 1983.

The award is given each year by Eta Sigma Gamma, a national professional health science honorary organization. Henningson will be presented the award in Louisville, Ky. in October at a meeting of the American Public Health Association.

Award winners display "gifted talents, commitment and dedication to the health education field," according to Don Boydston, chairman of the Health Education Department.

"John P. McGovern is an outstanding medical doctor who made a contribution to Eta Sigma Gamma, so it could select an outstanding person in the health education field each year," Boydston said.

"We're extremely honored to have a national organization name one of our students as the recipient of the award."

Henningson said her first reaction to being told she'd won the award was "complete shock."

"Several people applied for the award. They said they were going to announce the winner in May, and we had applied three or four months earlier. Monday I got a call from my doctoral adviser telling me I'd won the award," she said.

Henningson received bachelor's and master's degrees in student health education from Trenton State College in Trenton, N.J. Her doctoral work is in community health education.

She plans a career either in university teaching or as a political health advocate.

She is working on a computer program for high school students with a grant from the Addiction Research Foundation in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. The program is an adventure game "basically designed to facilitate decision-making in the use of marijuana and alcohol," she said.

Henningson is former president of Alpha Alpha Chapter, the local chapter of Eta Sigma Gamma. She has served on the Graduate Professional Student Council since spring 1982 and is currently serving on the executive board of the GPSC. She expects to graduate in May 1984.

Henningson is the daughter of W. Robert and Marion M. Henningson of Shelby, N.C.

Piggys concert packs Old Main Mall

By Jeanna Hunter
Staff Writer

Piggys proved last Thursday night at the first of the Sunset Concerts that country and western is not the only brand of music that hails from Nashville.

The four guys who make up the band, Ronnie Brooks and Howie Tipton on guitar, Tom DeLuxe on bass and Richard Watson on drums, spent most of the night playing original tunes and coaxing the audience out of a semi-comatose state with comments like, "did we wake anyone up yet?" and "are you people sleeping?"

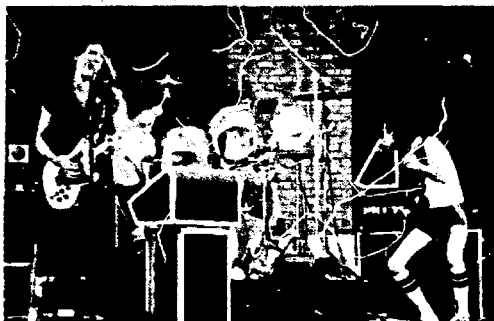

It wasn't that the music was bad. The people were just extremely mellow. The audience of about 3,000 finally came alive after the band took a break.

With a couple of six-packs to their credit, some fearless individuals began to dance, and, by the end of the show, almost everyone was swaying to the music.

The Piggys' original music was nothing to sneeze at; the members have voices that go together like baseball, hot dogs, apple pie and what's that car? Their harmony is next to perfect, and they displayed it well on several of the songs, including "Hollywood High."

The Piggys like to write their own songs, and they like for them to have meaning. "Women in Chains," for example, was written for the oppressed women in society. DeLuxe concedes though that sometimes they break down and write a silly love song.

Despite all the original music, old favorites by the Beatles, the Rolling Stones and of course the Blues Brothers, were the big hits of the evening. Toward the end of the show, the audience Piggys peak at their power-pop performance in Old Main Mall.

Concert Review

even sang along.

Piggys member Ronnie Brooks said they used to do quite a lot of '60s music, and that helped the band gain recognition.

Now, however, they do mostly original stuff, and it's no wonder. All four of the band members are staff writers for Almo Irving Music. They just have a band on the side. It's kind of like moonlighting.

Well, not really. They don't make a whole lot of money with the band, but they said they're surviving. The Piggys are trying to hit it big even though to date they have not released an album. They do claim some guy from RCA records is interested.

"We're constantly sending out tapes, but we're holding out for a major label," Brooks said, explaining that a major label would have major benefits, especially in distributing their music.

Band members said that they hope Piggys won't just be history 10 years down the road. Actually, the top of the heap would be nice. "I hope it doesn't take 10 years to get there," Brooks said. It probably won't.

The Piggys have come a long way since their beginning in 1979. They have received the music industry's seal of approval from magazines like Billboard, Cashbox, Music Row Magazine and Record World.

They have opened for a variety of artists including Quarterflash, Barbara Mandrell, The Kinks, Charley Pride and the Shirelles.

On stage, the Piggys come across as a bunch of guys just out to have a good time. They laugh and tell jokes like they are talking to each member of the audience individually.

It's tempting to say that they have a good act. But, the fact is that it is not an act. These guys are really as crazy as they seem, they really are having a good time, and it rubs off.

The only negative aspect of the evening was the loss of some sound quality as the music bounced back and forth between Shryock and Davies Gymnasium, losing some clarity and its hard edge. Nevertheless, it was easy to recognize Piggys music as old time rock 'n' roll, and not some cheap imitation.

But who really wants to complain — after all, there is something magical about listening to a good band at an outdoor concert, cooler in tow. Piggys captured the spirit of the event and kicked off the Sunset Concert Series in high fashion.

It'll be a hard act to follow, but fiddler Tommy Williams of "He Haw" fame is set to give it a try this Thursday at 8 p.m. at Turley Park.

Guitar seminar to feature recitals

Premier Latin American composer Guido Santorsola will be joining School of Music faculty member Joseph Breznikar conduct the second annual International Guitar Summer Seminar, to be held June 21-25 at SIU-C.

Santorsola, director of Escuela Normal de Musica in Uruguay and an internationally known composer and teacher, will give a lecture at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Quigley Auditorium. He will discuss his music, his style periods of composition, his approaches to writing for classical guitar and his use of the "twelve Sounds" style of composition.

Breznikar, internationally known performer, teacher and transcriber, will present a concert at 8 p.m. Friday in Quigley Auditorium. Included in the recital will be "Sonata No. 2 — Hispanica," a work for solo guitar composed by Santorsola.

Two of Santorsola's most recent works were included on Breznikar's album, "Contemporary Classical Guitar: Music from Two Continents."

There will also be a recital presented by those students attending the seminar. They will be selected by Breznikar and Santorsola during the sessions and will perform pieces worked on during the seminar. The student recital will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday, also in Quigley Auditorium.

The lecture and recitals are free and open to the public.

Duo shines in 'Trading Places'

By Rod Stone
Associate Editor

"Trading Places" is an encouraging movie for two reasons: one, it shows that Eddie Murphy's hilarious performance in "48 Hrs." was no accident, and two, that Dan Ackroyd can make a funny movie without John Belushi.

After watching Ackroyd languish onscreen in last month's dismal and unfunny release, "Doctor Detroit," I was more than a little leery of shelling out more money on another of his movies so soon.

As it turns out, I worried needlessly because both Ackroyd and "Trading Places" are terrifically funny.

In the movie Ackroyd plays Louis Winthrop III, a stuffy financial analyst for the Duke Bros. commodities brokerage firm. Louis' life is running along smoothly — he's about to be married, he's just helped the firm make a killing on pork bellies — until he meets Murphy's character, an inventive ghetto fast-talker named Billy Ray Valentine.

Valentine is pretending to be a blind, legless Vietnam War veteran and begging for money in front of Winthrop's Harvard-style men's club. Somehow Murphy manages to do this scene tastefully, well, as tastefully as it could be done, although some may not like his line to a female passer-by, "Once you've had one legless, baby, you'll never go back."

The movie's story takes off when the owners of Duke Bros., Randolph and Mortimer Duke (played wonderfully by old-timers Ralph Bellamy and Don Ameche respectively), place a bet at Winthrop's club on which has more control over a man's character, heredity or environment. To decide the bet they run a little experiment, with Winthrop and Valentine as guinea pigs.

They rig things so Winthrop loses everything, including his job, his fiancée, his house and his butler/valet/chauffeur (Denholm Elliott).

And they give all of the aforementioned, sans fiancée, to Valentine, who has come to their attention through some comic circumstances, in order to see if he can run things as well as Winthrop, thereby proving man's environment most important in shaping his character, not his breeding.

The rest of the film follows the two as they try to deal with their new situations. And the writers throw in a revenge caper for good measure.

But it is the dynamic, well-drawn characters that bring the old stand-by plot to life. Through the characters, the movie says something about human nature and the effect of power on individuals. Don't let that scare you though, because "Trading Places" mostly just tries to have fun.

The most encouraging thing about "Trading Places" is Eddie Murphy. At only 22, he is already one of the funniest men in America and one of Hollywood's brightest prospects. Whenever Murphy is onscreen, the audience is on edge because no one can predict what he'll do next. This trait makes him, and the movie's in, exciting.

"Trading Places" was directed by John Landis ("Animal House" and "An American Werewolf in London," as well as the flop "1941") and as you would expect, it has its very silly moments. In his films, Landis walks a fine line between silly-funny and silly-stupid (the parade scene at the end of "Animal House" where a marching band marches into a dead-end alley and keeps on marching, comes to mind). For the most part, "Trading Places" stays on the silly-funny side with only one awkward gag involving a gorilla.

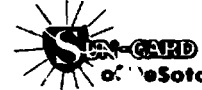

The cast of "Trading Places" has many familiar faces. Jamie Lee Curtis is given the opportunity to show off her body in the role of a hooker who takes a destitute Winthrop in.

Also, Bo Diddley, the rock and roll great, appears in a cameo role as a pawn broker. Jim Belushi, Frank Oz, and Al Franken and Tom Davis also have small parts.

Hiding out

Pollution control equipment installed, more work planned

While pollution control equipment was being installed in the University's boiler system, during break, some buildings were without air conditioning, hot water and steam.

The University cut down to one boiler for air conditioning, hot water and steam from May 16 to June 6 to allow for the construction. Last year, a similar reduction was made at about the same date.

Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, said that air conditioning and hot water have now been restored to all buildings.

Dougherty said that the reduction to one boiler was necessary as part of the steps to complete the installation.

With only a single boiler in operation, Lindegren Hall and the basement of Life Science II did not have air conditioning, hot water and steam. The C wing of Neckers received air conditioning but no hot water or steam. The Student Center operated with minimum hot water and steam, and some halls at Thompson Point had hot water only.

Dougherty said the single boiler was sufficient enough to provide air conditioning to meet the 80 to 85 degree temperatures.

The installation will cost about $5 million when it is completed next spring, Dougherty said.

Margaret Hill Bennett services set

Margaret T. Hill Bennett, longtime supervisor of the Payroll Office at SIU-C, died Saturday in St. Mary's Hospital in Clayton, Mo. She was 56.

Mrs. Bennett, a 34-year employee of the University, suffered apparent heart failure following an extended illness.

She was born Nov. 20, 1926, in Carbondale to Herbert and Lola Stafford Townes. Mrs. Bennett joined the SIU-C staff in 1949 as a payroll clerk and later was promoted to payroll supervisor.

She is survived by a son, Lee Hill of Carbondale; a daughter, Jane Hill Kemmerling of Boulder, Colo.; and three brothers, Paul Townes of Murphysboro, William Townes of Fresno, Calif., and Herbert Townes of Media, Penn.

She was preceded in death by her husband, William Bennett, in May 1977 and by her parents.

Mrs. Bennett was a member of the First Christian Church of Carbondale.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday at the Meredith Funeral Home in Carbondale. Visitation will be held after 5 p.m. Tuesday. Burial will be in Oakland Cemetery.

Doctors debate boxing resolution

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's doctors debated what should be done about boxing Monday, with critics calling for curbs on the sport one physician labeled "an abomination" without moral justification.

A proposed resolution that may be considered by the 351-member American Medical Association House of Delegates this week would encourage elimination of boxing from amateur, scholastic, intercollegiate and government athletic programs.

It also would call on the AMA to publicize the dangers of boxing and develop model legislation to "curtail utilization of boxing as a public spectacle."

"Any sport whose objective is to injure another human being is an abomination," Dr. William F. Dowda of Atlanta told the panel considering the proposal. "There's absolutely no moral justification for a sport that condones a brain concussion."

The resolution is based on a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association that said repeated blows to the head can cause brain damage. The report said damage can come early in a fighter's career, but that the severity depended on the number of blows.

Concern over boxing got new emphasis last year when South Korean Duk Koo Kim died of head injuries after a World Boxing Association lightweight championship fight with Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini.

Ring Magazine says 341 fighters died between 1945 and 1982. The United States of America Amateur Boxing Federation lists five amateur deaths in 750,000 fights in the past decade.

The committee did not immediately act on the proposal, which requires majority approval from the House of Delegates to become AMA policy.

Some physicians expressed reservations about the proposals, which would undercut such programs as the Golden Gloves and Olympic boxing.

Dr. Russell Patterson, chairman of the American Association of Neurological Surgeons, called Dowda's presentation "an emotional appeal of great strength full of loaded words like 'brutality.'"

He noted chronic brain injury in boxing is "dose-related," and said the incidence of brain damage "is not a problem" among amateur fighters who have been examined.

Shame in St. Louis: Cubs take Cards again

By Dan Devine
Sports Editor

First the Cardinals lost Joaquin Andujar to mediocrity, Lonnie Smith to a drug rehabilitation clinic and popular first baseman Keith Hernandez to the lowly New York Mets.

Now, courtesy of the streaking Chicago Cubs, they've lost their exclusive hold on first place in the National League East. The Cubs used to be lowly, but lately they've been lowering the boom on the Cardinals.

The Cubs took two out of three from St. Louis over the weekend — the second time in successive weekends the Cubbies have laid low the 1982 World Champions. This time it was at Busch Stadium, where the two teams again attracted huge crowds. Saturday night's game drew 48,898 fans, more than a few of them Chicago rooters.

That was fitting, because it was Chicago's weekend. Chicago cruised to within two games of .500, and to within three games of the league lead. St. Louis is 32-28 and owns a share of the division lead with Montreal.

In game one Friday night the Cardinals gained revenge on Chuck Rainey and dispatched the Cubs in a style reminiscent of last year, rapping 13 hits and getting a complete game from Bob Forsch.

The next day St. Louis looked like the Cubs used to look (and, to be fair, how they will probably look again when everybody wakes up and returns to reality).

But Saturday was still dreamland, and the unconscious Cubbies shamed the third best regular season Cardinal crowd with 20 hits, two home runs and a 10-1 win. Steve Trout pitched a near shutout for the Cubs (Floyd Rayford tagged him with a ninth inning homerun), while Andujar gave up roundtrippers to Bill Buckner and Mel Hall en route to his ninth loss of the season.

The Cubs got (incredibly) another complete game Sunday, as Dick Ruthven, a recent acquisition from Philadelphia, notched his fourth win in a 4-1 ball game. It was only Chicago's third complete game of the season. All have come at the expense of St. Louis.

Chicago got all its runs with two out in the second. Gary "Three" Woods singled in a pair of runs on a 1-2 pitch, and Ryne Sandberg doubled on another two. Steve Braun hit a home run for the home team, sparing them the indignity of providing the Cubs their second shutout of the year. (Fergie Jenkins has the only shutout so far. It came, naturally enough, against St. Louis.)

The Cardinals escape the Cubs for a while now, and start a series Monday against the New York Mets and former teammate Hernandez. Manager Whitey Herzog may give Neil Allen, who came over in the Hernandez deal, his first chance to justify last week's trade. The Cubs meanwhile, continue their road trip in Pittsburgh.

Jones tabbed as leader in U.S.-Korean series

By Dan Devine
Sports Editor

Robert Jones got off to a bad start with his bat, but the Saluki outfielder impressed teammates, coaches and opposing players with his personal style last week while playing for the United States national team. The United States took four of seven games from a Korean national team to start a summer of amateur baseball on the right track.

Jones went hitless in the four games he started but was a big hit off the field, winning the President's Award, an honor given to the player who shows the most sportsmanship and comradeship. According to his manager, John Winkin, Jones was a class act.

"He did a lot to bring about great relations between the teams," said Winkin. "He's been a leader in that respect. He's just a super kid."

Jones played two games at first base and two others in the outfield as the U.S. rallied from a 2-0 deficit by winning four straight games. Jones, though, had trouble handling the Korean style of pitching.

"Maybe he wasn't accustomed to their style of pitching," said Winkin. "They throw a lot of sidearm and underhand stuff."

Winkin said Jones' role would be primarily as a substitute. The regular U.S. first baseman had a minor injury, giving Jones two turns at first base.

"He's just a freshman among mostly juniors," said Winkin, predicting a bright future for Jones.

Nelson captures U.S Open

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP)—Larry Nelson, who came into the tournament in 92nd place on this year's earnings list, captured the rain-delayed United States Open Golf Championship by one stroke over defending champion Tom Watson Monday.

Nelson finished the fourth round with a 4-under-par 67 for a 72-hole total of 280, topping Watson, who was seeking to become the first man since Ben Hogan in 1950-51 to win consecutive Open crowns.

The two men began play tied at 4 under par, Nelson teeing off at the 16th hole and Watson putting on the 14th green.

Gil Morgan was the only other golfer below par. Seve Ballesteros and Calvin Peete both shot 26, six strokes behind the winner.

Future Saluki pass catcher lights up offensive showcase

By Joe Paschen
Staff Writer

The first annual Coal Bowl high school football All-Star game finally got off the ground at Mt. Vernon high school Saturday afternoon.

Expected to be a defensive struggle from coaches' pre-game viewpoints, an SIU-C recruit helped turn the event into a show for offensive lovers. A crowd of about 1,500 came out to watch this showcase of prep stars, and seven local radio stations did play by play. The East led the at end of each quarter to post a 40-34 victory.

This was the All-Star game originally slated to have been played at McAndrew Stadium on the SIU-C campus. Due to insurance complications, the site was changed just last week. Marion and DuQuoin were approached about hosting the event, but were unable to. Mt. Vernon volunteered last Monday to make this game a reality.

One of several heroes on the winning East Squad was Curt Reed of McLeansboro, who will attend SIU-C this fall on a football scholarship. Reed, a 6-4, 190-pounder was recruited as a defensive back as well as for his split end techniques. His heroics were on offense Saturday.

Showing off the speed that has also earned him high hurdle honors, Reed outraced the West defensive secondary for first quarter touchdown receptions of 49 and 85 yards. On the afternoon Reed caught eight passes for 190 yards and also nabbed two extra point tosses.

Winning coach Harry Stewart of Benton knew he had enough skill people to go to the air with.

"We didn't have enough time during practices to put in a lot of running plays. We knew that they'd use that zone defense, so we tried to isolate Reed man to man. And it worked."

That it did. Although Reed played defensive back during the game as well as split end, his speed and fine hands caused him to wonder aloud after the game about his chances of showing those talents on the Saluki offense.

"I'd like to be one of the main pass receivers at SIU," Reed said. "But I'm not sure if I'll play my freshman year or what. Coach Dempsey's plans are for me, but I'll play wherever they want me."

The Saluki head football coach was unable to attend the game due to a recent NCAA rule which doesn't allow college coaches to watch a high school game during the months of June and August, unless the coaches is on the coaches campus. Had the game been played, as first planned, at McAndrew Stadium Dempsey would have been there. He has seen and talked with Reed enough, though, so that the SIU coach can wait until fall practice sessions begin.

"We'll put him (Reed) in as a wide receiver to begin with," says Dempsey. "We recruited him both as a defensive back and split end. We'll have to see what he is better suited for. His big test is to see how tough he is against these bigger kids here."

Besides describing Reed as of better athletes in southern Illinois, Dempsey is very excited about his attitude.

"When we talked, Curt said, 'I want to come to SIU. He's not cocky, but has a lot of confidence in himself and seems proud of playing for SIU.'"

Another player Dempsey admitted to having interest in is Carterville's tight end, Phil Tregoin. While deciding between SIU-C and Southeast Missouri, the 6-3, 210-pounder pulled in seven passes for the West squad for 77 yards. Tregoin is leaning toward SEMO if a scholarship is offered, or may choose to walk-on for the Salukis.

Other All-Stars to shine for the winning East team Saturday were Herrin's Brett Esch and Mt. Vernon quarterback Steve McCoy.

Each broke through the line with 6:20 remaining in the final quarter for an 80-yard touchdown run. He closed out the day with 125 yards or 14 carries. McCoy treated his hometown fans by connecting on 12 of 19 passes for 166 yards, including the 49-yard strike and a couple of two point conversion passes to Reed. McCoy also bootlegged in from the five yard line early in the fourth quarter following a long pass to—who else—Reed.

The game stayed close throughout. The East led 14-12 at the end of first quarter, and
