Colleges begin planning for possible budget cuts

By Susan Curtis
and Richard Goldstein
Staff Writers

Many colleges at the University are making plans to cut their budgets for fiscal year 1989 by 2 percent if a tax increase effort fails.

Even if the tax increase is approved the colleges should still economize their budgets for the long-term, Michael Youngblood, Acting Dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, said.

The point should be to "reduce what we do so it's done in a quality way," Youngblood said. "We're not off the hook" even if a tax increase is passed because our budget won't expand to accommodate everything, he said.

Youngblood sent a memo to CFA chairs and directors on May 2 outlining proposals to cut two percent of the budget for the fiscal year 1989. The two-percent cut would save the college $140,767.

He proposed that $52,916 received from the spring 1988 tuition increase be applied to the 2 percent base budget reduction. This would leave $87,851 to be cut from salaries and programs.

The program reductions that Youngblood proposed are only a starting point, he said. "None of that in terms of dollar figures is etched in stone," he said.

Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs, said since the University does not yet have a budget for fiscal year 1989, all of the figures are estimates.

Some of Youngblood's proposals include narrowing the programs of the University Museum to focus only on the arts; managing the Olney branch of the broadcasting service from the University campus; and exchanging courses between the School of Journalism, the School of Art, the Department of Radio-Television and the Department of Speech Communication.

Library Affairs Dean Kenneth Peterson said the library would have to cut $73,144 out of the general operating budget and salaries. The budget cuts could include a cutback in periodical and book purchases, he said.

College of Business and Administration Dean Thomas Gutteridge said the college would restrict courses to business students and leave vacancies in faculty positions to make $74,000 in cuts.

The College of Science would have to cut $148,000, and Dean Russell Dutcher said the college can't take any more cuts in graduate assistants or equipment. The

Ex-CIA agent indicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Joseph Fernandez, who organized the secret resupply of the Nicaraguan rebels while he was the CIA's chief agent in Costa Rica, was indicted Monday on charges of conspiracy and obstruction of justice in the Iran-Contra scandal.

The federal grand jury hearing evidence in the criminal facet of the scandal accused Fernandez in a five-count indictment of organizing and directing the outfit that dropped weapons and other aid to the rebels while he was the CIA station chief in Costa Rica from July 1982 to December 1986.

Fernandez also was accused of concealing his role in the operation from the Tower Commission, the blue-ribbon panel that first investigated the worst political scandal of the Reagan presidency, and of making false statements.

The former agent, who used the alias Tomas Castillo, was the fifth person and the first CIA official to be charged in independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh's sweeping 18-month probe of the foreign policy affair. If convicted, Fernandez faces a possible 25-year prison sentence and $1.25 million in fines.

staff, said the grand jury's probe is "ongoing," suggesting more indictments could be returned.

Monday's indictment indicates other figures may be charged as co-conspirators in the investigation -- including Rafael Quintero, a former CIA operative who helped Fernandez in Costa Rica; and William Haskell, who used an offshore Panamanian company to buy land in Costa Rica for a secret air strip to support the rebels.

The indictment also named conservative activist Robert Owen, who ferried money acquired by North to the Contras, but he has been granted immunity because he has been cooperating with Walsh's investigation.

Other current or former CIA officers who could be charged for their role in the scandal include the CIA's former counterterrorism chief, Duane Clarridge, former CIA officer Thomas Clines and Alan Piers, the former head of the CIA Central American Task Force who oversaw Fernandez.

Fernandez, a U.S. citizen, claimed he kept his superiors regularly informed about his activities with North on behalf of the Contras, but

Pettit supports tax proposal

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said he likes what he heard Friday when Gov. James R. Thompson brought his tax increase message to Carbondale.

The future of Illinois will depend on the fate of his proposed tax increase for education, Thompson said at a Chamber of Commerce meeting in the Student Center.

"I was very pleased with

"Without the tax increase, Illinois will suffer for generations to come."

the way the governor presented the case so persuasively," Pettit said. "It would have been hard to be against his proposal."

Thompson proposes an increase in personal income tax from 2.5 percent to 3.5 percent.

Although the governor's plan has met opposition, Pettit said he feels Thompson had some valid data to present.

"Illinois, in regards to other states, has been lax in investing in the future," Pettit said.

USG transit proposal is on the road again

By John Walby
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Government mass transit committee has decided to prepare and submit a formal proposal for a University bus system to President John C. Guyon and the Board of Trustees.

The committee met Thursday night in the Student Center to discuss further steps in its bus system project that they hope to have completed by fall of 1989.

"That's what we're shooting for (1989)," Drayton Roose, committee chairperson, said.

The bus service has been approved by the USG and Graduate and Professional Student Council. Students voted 1,206 to 606 in favor of the system during the April 1988 elections, Roose said.

An information packet was recently submitted to Guyon and the Board, he said.

The committee plans to submit the proposal to the Board at its October meeting. The Board will then discuss the proposal, but won't vote on the issue until November.

"We wanted to plan it so we could get the voting meeting to be here in Carbondale," Roose said.

Marvin Tanner, vice-chairperson, said "There are only three (University-owned bus systems) in the entire nation and we would like to be the fourth."

The committee also plans to discuss the bus proposal with legal counsels for the University and city of Carbondale.

The West Bus Service was the only bus service company present at the meeting, but committee members said they

Japanese to lift quotas on U.S. beef, citrus imports

TOKYO (UPI) — The United States and Japan settled a long-standing trade dispute about beef and citrus Monday that will "open up excellent export opportunities" for American farmers, U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter said. Under an accord reached after two days of talks with Takashi Sato, minister of agriculture, forestry and fisheries, Japanese quotas on U.S. beef and orange imports will be lifted in three years.

Haiti's president Manigat ousted in coup

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Fired armed forces commander Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy, gripping a machine gun and beating his chest with his fist, declared himself the leader of Haiti Monday after ousting President Leslie Manigat in a military coup. Manigat, elected in fraud-marred balloting run by the army in January, was flown into exile in the Dominican Republic and taken to a hospital at the San Isidro Air Force Base.

Botha urges end to war against apartheid

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — President Pieter W. Botha urged the outlawed African National Congress Monday to abandon its underground war against apartheid and called on jailed and exiled foes to join "a peaceful search for solutions" in the racially divided nation. At the same time, Botha again rejected demands to grant the black majority equal voting rights and defended the extension nine days ago of a 2-year-old state of emergency.

Iraqi rebels to evacuate captured Iranian city

MEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Iraqi-backed rebels opposed to Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said Monday their forces would pull out of an Iranian border city they captured over the weekend to possibly prepare larger offensives. A spokesman for the National Liberation Army of Iran told a group of reporters the Iranian rebels, who captured the city and surrounding heights Saturday night, did not intend to take up a defensive position.

Male clubs forced to allow women members

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court opened the doors of some of America's most exclusive clubs to women Monday, upholding laws designed to bring an end to male-only bastions where business is conducted over brandy and cigars. The court's unanimous decision backing a New York City law setting limits on what can be considered a private club gives the green light to other municipal efforts to open the dens of the rich and powerful.

Heatwave hits drought-stricken Midwest

By United Press International
 A dangerous heat wave scorched the nation's midsection Monday, sending temperatures soaring above 100-degree levels and adding to the woes of the nation's farmers, who already face the worst drought in more than five decades. National Weather Service forecasters warned residents in a huge area of the Plains, the Midwest and the South to avoid strenuous activity and take special precautions against sunstroke, heat cramps and heat exhaustion.

Dukakis, Bush differ on policy toward drugs

By United Press International
 Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis and Vice President George Bush clashed over the war on drugs Monday, with Dukakis lamenting "there is nobody in charge" of the administration's policy and Bush saying "it burns me up" that politicians give little credit to federal anti-drug agents. In separate speeches in Boston and Washington, the candidates differed over stiffer sentences for drug users and the death penalty for drug-related murders.

EPA accused of feeble toxic waste methods

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the second blast of strong criticism in a week, environmentalists and lawmakers charged Monday the EPA is badly mismanaging the Superfund program by relying on outdated, ineffective toxic waste cleanup methods. At a House hearing, environmental groups released a report stating that officials of the Environmental Protection Agency too often choose to use "containment" technology in which toxic waste dumps are simply walled in or buried, leaving a potential for future leaks.

Illegal aliens allowed to apply for residency

By John Walbley
Staff Writer

A recent court decision has made it possible for illegal aliens, who were previously ruled exempt from the federal immigration amnesty program, to apply for legal residency.

The amnesty program, effective from May 1, 1987 to May 4, 1988 excluded a number of aliens because they did not register their addresses with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to prove they were residents of the U.S. before Jan. 1, 1982. Applicants also must provide their identification.

A U.S. District Court judge ruled in Ayuda vs. Meese that those illegal aliens previously exempt can file for an 18-month residence card before Aug. 31, 1988. Aliens also can apply for permanent residence after the 18-month period. John Ammer, coordinator for legalization with Catholic Social Services in Marion, said, "There are two or three students at SIU who were technically illegal at the time of the amnesty program. I know; I've talked to them." Ammer also said that he would appreciate some representation and support from the University so the aliens could gain residency. "If only a few benefit from this, it will mean a lot." Ammer said.

Representatives from INS will be in Cobden from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. today at St. Joseph's Catholic Church to handle information and process forms for applicants.

Those seeking a temporary residency card also can go through the St. Louis division of the INS.

Economics essay wins third

By Richard Scheffer
Staff Writer

A University economics student is the third place winner in a national essay writing contest. Mark Katzenberger, a senior, in April was awarded $2,500 in the Sixth Milton Friedman National Student Essay Contest.

The contest is sponsored by the California based Americanism Educational League, a nonprofit corporation dedicated to enhancing public education about constitutional principles.

This year's topic was

"Dumping in International Trade: An Evil or an Opportunity?" Dean Davison, contest coordinator, said.

Katzenberger said he found out about the contest from his economics instructor, Mary Norris, who gave him suggestions about how to go about it. Instructors of winning essayists were awarded $500.

"I did the essay on my own and not part of a class project," Katzenberger said. "I was surprised I won."

Katzenberger said he thought his research was good, but not his style of writing.

Katzenberger describes "dumping" as a practice of selling goods in a foreign market at a price lower than the cost of production.

In his essay, Katzenberger said he used the example of Japan's dumping of microchips into the U.S. market. To combat this, he said, the United States imposed taxes, but the money ended up going to the producers rather than the consumers.

Katzenberger said he plans to use his winnings to pay his tuition and to buy a personal computer.

"However, it probably will be just one or the other," he said.

Civic center funding sought

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council tonight will look at the possibility of creating a board to apply for state funds to build a civic center in the downtown area.

The Downtown Revitalization Committee found a source of state funding for civic center projects, Don Monty, director of community development for the city of Carbondale, said. The first step in applying for the funds is to establish a civic center authority board.

"Municipalities eligible for state funding must first have a civic authority board operating in their community," Monty said. "This requires action from the state legislature, by passing into law such a request, before such a civic board can become reality."

Revenue from state-sanctioned horse racing is used to pay for civic center projects, Monty said.

New teaching methods key to math's problem

MATH TEACHERS in the public school system don't make the grade, according to "The Mathematics Report Card—Are We Measuring Up?"

The study, done by the National Assessment of Educational Progress, of Princeton, N.J., reported students are lacking in the essential math skills. For example, almost half of the 17-year-old students tested in 1985-86 were unable to handle problems supposedly taught to them in junior high.

At the base of the problem, the study showed, is the manner in which math is being taught. "Math instruction is dominated by paper-and-pencil drills on basic computation," the report states, and teachers are too dependent on set texts.

Many students, disliking the drills, begin to fear math. This usually occurs in the middle grades and the lack of confidence continues into later years.

In the middle of the complex equation are the teachers, many of whom are lacking confidence in their own skills. Math is considered to be the least liked subject of many teachers and it shows. Teachers spend less time on math segments of class than on others. During "math time," teachers stress the "math rules" and drill them into the student's head. Neither the student nor the teacher benefit from this tactic.

IN AN EFFORT to keep the problem from multiplying, members of the University's faculty, working under a national foundation, are exploring new ways to teach math without the "I hate math" syndrome setting in. They have found that math can be projected as being fun and students will learn.

Atop their list of suggested solutions is the promotion of thinking skills by teachers. The use of physical objects, not rules, will allow students to understand math at an early age. After seeing things in the physical form it is believed the student can understand the abstract. A San Antonio school superintendent got it right when she said, "We have taught kids to be little calculators, but they do not know why they do what they do." Discovery is the key.

Students, instead of having rules forced upon them, will apply rules to the problem. Students become more content with the subject and learn more.

Teachers, by relieving themselves of the authoritative form of teaching, also will find more enthusiasm within themselves, which in turn will be projected to the students.

Teachers, led by the efforts of SIU-C, have an opportunity to solve a nationwide problem. That seems only fitting, since the University was founded in 1874 as an institution for turning out quality teachers. New teaching methods already have been introduced and great accomplishments already have been made. To let them go to waste just wouldn't add up.

Reagan ready to turn other cheek for advancement of Bush campaign

By HELEN THOMAS
 UPI White House Reporter

Commentary

"That's fine. The vice president's free to break with us at any time."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No matter how far Vice President George Bush distances himself from President Reagan's policies as the presidential campaign heats up, it's fine with the White House.

The president is prepared to turn the other cheek. And politically speaking, if Bush needs to split with Reagan's views — well, so be it.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater has made it clear that Bush can do no wrong in his presidential quest. In his attempt to prove that he is his own man, Bush apparently has been advised to take new bold stands even if they differ from positions he has endorsed, even applauded over the past seven years as vice president.

He would undoubtedly like some coattail help from Reagan and the president is willing to give him that. Bush, always the loyal team player, has paid his dues and the president is ready to give him a long leash to make his break if necessary.

In terms of wooing constituents, sometimes at the price of differing with the administration, Bush has announced his support of payment of $1 billion in reparations to Japanese-Americans who were interned during World War II; he has endorsed a moratorium on offshore oil drilling leases to woe environmentalists, and he has announced he favors "some kind of severance pay" requirements for workers displaced by plant closings.

In addition, he took a stand against bargaining with Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega to drop the federal narcotics charges against the Panamanian strongman if he would agree to leave the country.

The vice president also has indicated he would be more supportive of civil rights programs than Reagan, who recently became the first president in 122 years to veto a civil rights bill.

Reminded that Bush was easing away, Fitzwater said:

Bush and Reagan did not see eye to eye in the 1980 campaign when they both sought the presidential nomination in the primaries. Bush still bemoans labeling Reagan's policies "voodoo economics," a label that stuck and has haunted him in the ensuing years as he has moved closer to the president.

The vice president is getting a lot of advice on how to approach his campaign and establish his own identity and persona.

Still he is not expected to stray too far from the fold. Most of his key aides in the campaign are veterans of Reagan's two successful bids for the presidency and they bring with them the experience of pros.

As it is shaping up, Bush is free to do his own thing. And even when he parts company on the issues with Reagan, the president plans to be there backing him up wherever he can.

Area legislators back tax hike

By Christine Cedusky
Staff Writer

Two area legislators are prepared to vote in support of Gov. James R. Thompson's $1.6 billion tax increase proposal, but will lobby for amendments they would like added to the bill.

Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, said he would rather see a more moderate tax increase instead of the full $1.6 billion increase, although he agrees Thompson has demonstrated a need for the money.

Money from the tax hike is targeted for education, medical services, public aid and human services.

Even though many legislators are asking for a smaller tax increase, Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, said, "I am totally committed to a tax increase."

Groups of downstate legislators are planning alternatives to the tax increase, but the proposal that comes out of the governor's meeting today will be the real issue, Richmond said. Thompson met last week with House and Senate leaders on the tax proposal and will meet with the leaders again today.

Dunn said he questions such a large increase and favors an increase made in installments. This would leave more money for growth in the future.

Taxing individuals instead of corporations would lessen the pressure among the work force, Dunn said, adding that there are enough problems with high workmen's compensation, especially among coal miners.

Along with most of the senators, Dunn wants any tax increase to include property tax relief. A tax increase will lessen the need for schools to rely on local property taxes for funds, he said.

If the increase is approved, the Farm Bureau will ask for a freeze on real estate tax increases, Dunn said.

It is unlikely the increase will be approved without some Chicago school reforms, Dunn said. The reform proposal includes a plan to divide the Chicago district into 20 separate districts, but Dunn does not think there is much of a chance to get full reforms.

"The number one priority is to get more money for schools downstate," Dunn said, adding that he supports the tax increase for this reason.

Richmond said what comes out of the governor's meeting will have some impact on the final decision.

"I am convinced we need a tax increase," he said.

money would have to come from vacant positions and downgraded positions, which means hiring a professor of lower rank to fill the position of one who has left or retired, he said.

Dean Donald Beggs, College of Education, said the possible cuts have been planned since March. The college would save $147,000 by not refilling vacant faculty positions, he said.

surround Illinois have a higher personal income tax. Should the increase be approved, he said, Illinois will still be lower than its neighbors.

"I'd like the people of Southern Illinois to put in a good word for the tax increase with your state representatives and legislators," Thompson said.

"We have to strengthen education at all levels, elementary, secondary and high school and maintain current college and university standards," he said.

If the tax increase passes, SIU-C will get an additional $15 million for fiscal year 1989, which begins July 1. Southern Illinois community colleges would get another $500 thousand.

"Without the tax increase, (71 percent of which is going into education and 29 percent going into human resources, jobs, etc.) Illinois will suffer for generations to come," Thompson said.

Currently, Illinois is the ninth wealthiest state in the nation. But in money spent per pupil for education it ranks 33rd and it ranks 50th in increased educational spending, he said.

"We have been the only state in the U.S. to actually go backward in educational spending," Thompson said.

The increase will cost the average family an additional $4 per week.

Thompson's proposal also includes a 1.6 percent increase in corporate income tax.

will contact other firms for proposals for service.

If approved, a $15 fee will be billed to students when the system begins. The bus service would provide students with unlimited ridership to the campus and most areas of Carbondale.

Services may be expanded to include Murphysboro and Marion if the system is a success, committee members said.

U.S. helps ease debt burden

(UPI) - The United States, in a dramatic departure, will join other economic summit partners in a plan to ease the debt burden of the poorest African nations, Treasury Secretary James Baker said Monday.

The final communique of the 14th Economic Summit which ends Tuesday "goes farther on Third World debt than perhaps any summit communique that's ever been written," Baker told reporters.

The debt relief plan, engineered by Canada according to Baker, would provide countries with a "menu" of options allowing creditor nations to choose from concessional interest rate reductions, refinancing outstanding debt over a longer time frame or writing off some old development assistance loans.

Baker said the administration would have to seek congressional approval before deciding to offer concessional interest rates or writing off some loans.

Baker said the dramatic departure in the American position on a relief package was initiated in a recent speech to an African development council in the Ivory Coast and carried forward during the economic summit.

In that speech, the United States agreed to acquiesce to new debt-relief efforts by some members of the Paris Club, an informal group of government lenders.

Summit countries like Canada and Britain have already written off hundreds of millions of dollars in development assistance loans, officials said, adding that summit leaders are being encouraged to continue that process. Canada estimates total African debt is about $85 billion.

On the opening day of the three-day summit Sunday, British officials said they hoped to steer the leading industrialized democracies to a compromise solution that would set easier terms for the repayment of loans.

Baker said delegations still had to work out the language of the final communique on debt relief and determine which of the poorest African nations would be eligible.

Michael E. Magill, 20, junior in finance, was not convicted of charges of reckless conduct in 1987. The Daily Egyptian incorrectly reported this information in Friday's paper. The Daily Egyptian regrets the error.

Whites dispute racism

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court cleared the way Monday for a new trial on charges the state of Alabama maintains a racially segregated system of higher education.

Justices refused to hear an appeal of 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that disqualified the trial judge who initially heard the case and also threw out his decision that state universities are racially segregated.

The case stems from a 1983 lawsuit filed by the Justice Department that claimed the state of Alabama and its officials violated Title 6 of civil rights law because they maintained racially segregated universities.

Two of the state's historically black universities — Alabama State and Alabama A&M — were initially named as defendants, but got permission to intervene on the side of the Justice Department. A group of black students also entered the case after they claimed they were victims of discrimination.

After the trial, federal Judge U.W. Clemon, who is black, found that the state had maintained a dual system of higher education. The state had some schools with mostly black students and faculty and others with mostly white students and personnel.

Lendl, Cash, Becker win at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Ivan Lendl, Pat Cash and Boris Becker loosened up with effortless victories Monday on opening day at the $4.3 million Wimbledon Championships where rain paid its customary visit.

Lendl, the top seed and world's No. 1 player, and Cash, the defending champion, pounded out predictable triumphs during the first six hours of play before showers caused a 40-minute delay.

A finalist for the past two years but still seeking his first Wimbledon crown, Lendl blitzed British wild-card entry David Felgate with 19 aces in a 6-4, 6-1, 6-3 victory. Cash, the No. 4 seed from Australia, conceded only 10 points in 11 service games to rout 17-year-old Aussie qualifier Todd Woodbridge 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Strange wins the U.S. Open

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Curtis Strange, relying on an infallible putter to bail him out of one problem after another, defeated Nick Faldo by four shots Monday in an 18-hole playoff to win the U.S. Open, his first major championship.

Strange, who in a 12-year tour career has emerged as one of the best in his profession, took a giant step toward being recognized as the very best. He shot a par-71 at The Country Club to 75 for Faldo, the Englishman who last year made the British Open his first major title.

In marked contrast to the previous 72 holes, both players suffered from playoff nerves throughout the day. But Strange made the key putts, an 8-foot for birdie at the par-4 fifth, a 23-footer for birdie at the par-3 seventh and the biggest of all — a 29-footer at the par-4 13th for a birdie that gave him a three-shot lead.

Not until the 17th, however, could Strange feel he had the title in his grasp. It was at that hole, which has played a critical role in the history of golf, that Faldo made a bogey he could not afford and allowed Strange to play the final hole with a three-shot cushion.

Strange won three American tour events last year and captured the tour's title as leading money winner.

The Open victory was his third this year and backs the opinions of many of his fellow pros who feel he is the player to beat whenever he steps on the course.

Strange, however, could easily have been beaten Monday had not his short game been in excellent form. He hit just seven of the 15 fairways and only seven of the 18 greens. But he needed a mere 25 putts to tour the 7,010-yard course on which another American helped make golf an international game 75 years ago.

It was in 1913 that Francis Ouimet, a 20-year-old amateur who lived across the street from the course, defeated English titans Harry Vardon and Ted Ray. That triumph popularized golf in America and now with the United States domination of the sport in serious question, Strange fired a shot for his country Monday. Spectators waved American flags as Strange walked the 18th fairway, with cheers from the gallery echoing through the old elm trees.

Although the final margin appears one-sided, the playoff was a dramatic affair until the last few shots. Strange had only a one-shot lead at the turn and still led by just one going to the 18th.

At that hole, however,

Strange ran in a 29-foot, downhill birdie putt while Faldo was three-putting from 40 feet for a bogey. That two-shot swing put Strange in command and it was his tournament to lose.

Until now, Strange's most famous major championship moment came when he lost a lead in the 1985 Masters — chiefly because he hit shots into the water at the 13th and 15th holes of the Augusta National Golf Club.

On this occasion, however, the 33-year-old did not let the lead get away.

West promises to put in time for AD

By Ron Sone
Staff Writer

Interim Athletics Director Charlotte West says she has a record of giving athletics long hours, which she says is the kind of commitment required to be a good athletics director.

"I have no family distractions. I work in the evening. This kind of work needs that type of commitment," West said.

West is the third of four candidates for athletics director being interviewed. She will be at an open question-and-answer session at 9:30 a.m. today in the Student Center Auditorium.

West said she has been looking forward to the interview process. "I'm confident in my ability to make a good presentation," she said. "I have the advantage of knowing the University."

Experience is also one of her strong points, she said. "I have the advantage of coaching individual sports, like golf, for example. I coached basketball. I have a special feeling from my perspective as a coach."

"I had to grow up early in my career in athletics. I had to do sports information work. I have a respect for the duties of sports staff members."

She said being interim athletics director has not allowed her to show her abilities to the fullest.

"An interim is not in a position to make any significant changes. Also, when Jim Livengood left, I had to assume two positions."

"So, if I become athletics director, the duties of my old position will have to be distributed evenly amongst my staff," she said.

West said she didn't grow up wanting to be an athletics director.

"I had athletic aspirations, but I never perceived myself as director of athletics basically because there were no women in athletics then. When I came to SIU, I had the chance to do administration. It seemed natural for me."

But she said she doesn't think the stereotype against women has died away.

"There are a lot of public perceptions that this is a man's job. That's not a paranoia. It's a fact."

"Although their attitudes are changing, many people have said, 'It's a man's job.'"

"When I had applied for the job earlier, a lot of people who then expressed those points of view are now saying, 'Yes, I think you can do a good job. I'm behind you.'"

West said Saluki athletics need to "continue to have a strong unified voice."

"We've made good strides as being perceived as one unit. The harder we work on that, I think the stronger we will be as an athletics program."

Ralph Barkey, athletics director at Sonoma (California) State University will interview Wednesday and Thursday.

Former professional quarterback and Saluki football player Jim Hart interviewed June 13 and 14.

Athletics director as Central Missouri State University interviewed Wednesday and Thursday.

President John C. Guyon said a decision on who the new athletics director will be is expected in the first week of July.

Second Saluki gets Cardinals contract

By Jeff Griesser
Staff Writer

Dale Kisten became the second player from the 1988 Saluki baseball team to get a professional contract when he signed with the St. Louis Cardinals last weekend.

Kisten has been assigned to the Cardinals' Class A Rookie League franchise in Hamilton, Ontario. His teammate at SIU-C, Joe Hall, is also on the Hamilton team. Hall was selected in the 14th round of the amateur draft the weekend before last.

In the last three seasons, Kisten has been as steady as any of the Saluki players. He compiled 25 victories and 197 strikeouts at SIU-C. He also led the Missouri Valley with 95 strikeouts in 1988.

Kisten and Hall are being managed by SIU-C graduate Dan Radison in Ontario.

Chicago Cubs set first home night game

CHICAGO (UPI) — The first night baseball game in the history of Wrigley Field will be Aug. 8 against the Philadelphia Phillies, the Chicago Cubs announced Monday.

There will be six other night games this season at Wrigley Field. According to an agreement reached with city officials, the Cubs can hold 18 night games in 1989.

"We have reached the point in the lights construction where we can end the suspense," said Don Grenesko, the Cubs' vice president for business operations. "We view this as an opportunity for more fans to experience Cubs baseball and a positive step to ensure that our club remains competitive in major league baseball."

Wrigley Field, the fourth oldest ballpark in the majors, was the only major league stadium without lights until Feb. 25, when the City Council approved the Cubs' plan to hold night games.

The Cubs immediately began work to install lights and the work should be completed by the week of July 18, Grenesko said.

The team will hold a charity night game July 25.

Salukis finalize radio contract

By Beth Clavin
Staff Writer

The contract to broadcast Saluki sports has been finalized, according to O.L. Turner, owner of Turner Communications.

The contract gives Turner Communications, which owns radio station WEBQ-FM, rights to broadcast Saluki sports for the 1988-89 school year.

The station will broadcast all SIU-C football and basketball games live, including any post-season games. The station also has made a commitment to broadcast a minimum of 10 baseball and 13 women's basketball games next spring.

The financial terms of the agreement, although not precisely disclosed, will bring more than $10,000 to SIU-C's athletics budget.

Turner Communications

contacted more than 30 radio stations in the area concerning their interests in joining the network.

Eight, according to the proposal, have signed letters of intent that they will carry some of SIU-C sports. Included are WRAJ in Anna, WDRW in Eldorado, WJPF in Herrin, WQRL in Benton, WHCO in Sparta, KSCM in Chester, WQDN in Du Quoin, and WILY in Centralia.

Expert says rubbing your feet can help your head

By Brad Bushue
Staff Writer

Curing a common headache may be as simple as massaging a certain area on the foot, according to Han-Chao Hwang.

Hwang, who will be having individual consultations from 2 to 3 p.m. every Wednesday from June 22 to Aug. 3 at the Recreation Center on the 3000-year-old Chinese art of foot massage, said the foot has many reflex points, or nerve endings, that correspond with certain areas of the body, and massaging these points increases blood circulation around the corresponding body part and helps the body heal a particular area, he said.

"Everybody has forgotten that the body has its own natural potential to sustain good health," Hwang said, adding that foot massage is based on the principle that the "condition of the body's organs is reflected at certain points."

Massaging the middle finger of the left hand will produce a heat sensation in the middle toe of the left foot, Hwang said.

Hwang, 59, a local expert in the traditional Chinese arts of acupuncture and the gentle oriental exercise, Tai Chi, is conducting half-hour consultations at the Recreation Center through Intramural Recreational Sports to instruct participants on the locations of the various points, assistant coordinator Kathy Rankin said.

Rankin said Hwang has instructed the Recreation Center's Tai Chi program for the last two semesters and is dealing with better blood circulation and the stimulation of the body's healing power.

Foot massage, however, is not an alternative to medical treatment, Rankin stressed.

The consultations on basic hand massage techniques must be registered for by noon on the Friday before the Wednesday appointment. A $5 fee is charged to students and a $7 fee is charged to faculty, staff and alumni passholders, Rankin said.
