Church rejects city offer

By Bob Bondurant
Staff Writer

About 250 people in a meeting of the Walnut Street Baptist Church congregation voted unanimously to reject an offer by the city of Carbondale to purchase their land for the proposed downtown convention center.

At its meeting Wednesday, the congregation also instructed church attorneys to do everything possible to keep the city from condemning the church building.

According to the Rev. Arthur Farmer, pastor, the congregation clearly does not want to be forced to relocate the church from the downtown area.

Farmer said he felt the church doesn't detract from the appearance of the downtown area. The block on which the church is located has been classified as a redevelopment district by the city.

Church attorneys delivered a letter to city officials Thursday explaining the decision. City Manager Carroll Fry was unavailable for comment on the church's decision.

The property is being purchased and cleared with funds received through an Urban Development Action Grant from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"We did not feel the offer was valid, and so we rejected it," Farmer said. "We were all agreed that we didn't want to accept."

Farmer said that the city's offer to purchase was "far short of the value of the building," but he would not disclose either the amount of the offer or the value of the building.

The church has been located at the corner of University and Walnut streets for the past 59 years.

Relocating the congregation by building a new church would cost Walnut Street Church between $400,000 and $500,000 more than the city's offer, Farmer said.

The city plans to begin eminent domain proceedings on March 12 against property owners who have not sold their land to the city by that time.

Final purchase offers have been sent to property owners who have not agreed to sell to the city.

The convention center is planned for the block bounded by Walnut and Monroe streets and University and Illinois avenues, with a city parking garage to be constructed between Walnut and Elm streets, facing Illinois Avenue.

Less than a third of the 25 offers the city sent out three weeks ago have been accepted.

A city "quick take" ordinance passed in December permits the city to condemn the property and clear the site while questions about the amount of compensation are resolved in court.

Appeal routes for academic changes asked

By Doug Hettlinger
Staff Writer

The Graduate Council Thursday recommended that an appeal procedure be added to the Academic Priorities Task Force report.

The council also passed a resolution supporting graduate and professional students in their opposition to being dropped from the Guaranteed Student Loan program.

The academic priorities report would establish a standing committee of faculty members from all colleges and schools to advise the president and the vice president for academic affairs on the ranking of academic programs in times of financial duress for the University. The ranking would be a basis for deciding which programs might be cut back or eliminated.

The purpose of the committee is to give faculty a voice in the decision-making process when the administration reduces or eliminates academic programs, according to Joan O'Brien, a task force member.

Alternatives to the committee would be to either allow the administration to decide without faculty opinion which academic programs would be affected by any change in the University's financial situation, or across-the-board cuts in all academic programs regardless of their relative importance to one another and the University, O'Brien said.

The council voted to have the executive committee write a letter to the University president recommending additions to the report's guidelines.

The council recommended that the committee guidelines include an appeal procedure by which the committee could question administration decisions. The council also recommended that the role of the committee be more clearly defined, either as a permanent body giving advice on University policy or as a committee activated only in times of financial emergency.

A third recommendation was that the administration's role in the ranking process and the guidelines for determining which academic programs are central to the University's mission be defined.

Members of the council also suggested that the possibility of consolidating departments at times of financial trouble be included in the report's guidelines.

In presenting the resolution of support for graduate students in the loan program, acting Dean John Jackson told the council that 622,000 graduate and professional students will be eliminated from the GSL program nationally if President Reagan's proposed cutbacks are approved by Congress. This is over 50 percent of the 1.2 million such students in the United States. At SIU-C, 741 graduate and professional students are currently receiving GSL's, Jackson reported.

In other action, the executive committee announced the schedule for the 1982 Graduate Council elections. Nomination ballots will go out to faculty March 22. The election will begin April 5.

The council also passed a resolution supporting the concept of the Morris Fellowship Program which President Albert Somit announced last week. The Graduate School can now begin raising money for the program.

In other action, the executive committee adopted a proposal to add a statement to the Graduate Catalog saying that graduate students taking 400-level courses open to both undergraduates and graduates can be required to do extra work for graduate credit, subject to individual instructors' discretion.

Iranian arrested for cafeteria fight

An Iranian student apparently involved in a fracas in the Student Center cafeteria Feb. 10 has been arrested and charged with battery.

Nosrato Ghanbarnajad, 26, 417 S. Graham, was arrested by SIU-C security police at his residence on a warrant issued by State's Attorney John Clemons Thursday morning, police said.

Ghanbarnajad was charged in relation to the Feb. 10 incident, police said. They declined to name the victim of the battery.

The police report, which contains the names of 19 other persons, is still being examined by Clemons, who will decide if any more charges will be pressed, police said.

Ghanbarnajad was freed from Jackson County Jail after paying 10 percent of the $1,000 bond.

A student who saw the fracas on Feb. 10 had said that the fight erupted between a pro- and an anti-Khomeini group, who were seated at adjacent tables in the cafeteria.

Four SIU-C security police were called to quell that disturbance.

ICC approves Conrail sale

By Kent Shelton
Staff Writer

The Interstate Commerce Commission Thursday notified U.S. Rep. Paul Simon that it has approved the purchase of the Southern Illinois Cairo Branch rail line by Southern Railways from Consolidated Rail Corp.

The approval followed an amendment submitted by Conrail and Southern last week to eliminate 4.6 miles of track between Kingsburg and Mount Carmel.

The mileage between Kingsburg and Mount Carmel wasn't up for abandonment in the proposed agreement between the rail systems.

According to David Carle, Simon's aide, Southern had proposed to buy the mileage regardless of the fact that it was not in the original abandonment proposal.

The ICC had no further difficulties with Southern's bid of $4.6 million for the 12-mile line between Mount Carmel and just outside of Cairo, Carle said.

Simon said that Southern should be able to begin service on the line in a matter of weeks and has been making preparations since February. Eleven Conrail jobs will be preserved in the area between Kingsburg and Mount Carmel. However, many Conrail workers will lose their jobs because of the sale, according to Carle.

Carle said that Simon remains "deeply concerned" about the loss of Conrail jobs and will continue to press Southern to pick up laid-off workers on its new system as conditions allow.

Carle said that Southern has maintained in its discussions with Simon that its first obligations for employment remain with its laid-off employees.

Is string of Atlanta murders over?

ATLANTA (AP) — Wayne Williams' defense lawyer made a big point of claiming, in his summation, that the murders of young blacks had not stopped with his client's arrest.

"Black men of Mr. (Nathaniel) Cater's and Mr. (Jimmy Ray) Payne's ages are still being murdered in this community," attorney Alvin Binder told the jurors, who a few days later were to convict Williams of killing Cater, 27, and Payne, 21.

Binder's statement was correct, Georgia Crime Information Center statistics show that from June 1 through Dec. 31, 1961, 29 black men age 30 and younger were slain in Fulton County, which includes Atlanta.

But Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said none of those killings fits the pattern of the 28 slayings that were assigned to a special police task force.

The task force cases were

"young people, black, from low-income families, were reported missing, and we found their bodies away from where they were killed," Brown said in an interview Thursday.

"We see absolutely nothing that connects these (later) cases," he said.

Williams, a 23-year-old black free-lance photographer, was sentenced to two consecutive life prison terms following his conviction Saturday night.

On Monday, police announced that the task force was being disbanded and that they had linked Williams to 21 other slayings — including 20 on the task force list and the stabbing death of a 30-year-old black man whose case never was assigned to the task force.

The 23 victims linked to Williams all were black males, ages 9-30. Sixteen were strangled or asphyxiated, two were stabbed, one was bludgeoned and the cause of death was undetermined for four others.

Williams' attorneys don't contend that all the 29 more recent killings are related, but Binder said on national television Monday night that at least five unsolved killings of young black men since Williams' arrest could fit the task force pattern.

Gilman withdraws from county race

Nelson Gilman, a Carbondale Township maintenance worker, has decided not to run for a Jackson County Board position in the March 16 primary election.

Gilman said he is dropping out of the race for personal reasons and that his withdrawal "has nothing to do with politics."

Gilman was running on the Republican ticket with Harold Engkeling for District 5 of the county board.

News Roundup

Convicted senator says he's innocent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., took the Senate floor Thursday to proclaim his innocence of any crimes or impropriety and vowed to fight "this preposterous recommendation I be expelled."

"I could have made it easier for you by resigning," the 23-year Senate veteran told his colleagues, but that "would have been a betrayal of the trust placed in me by the citizens of New Jersey in four elections."

Williams vehemently declared his innocence despite his conviction on conspiracy and bribery charges stemming from the FBI's Abscam undercover investigation.

Highway bid-rigging probe expands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has quietly expanded into five new states its hunt for highway builders who rig their bids on public contracts. Federal grand juries are now operating in 18 states in the largest criminal antitrust investigation in U.S. history.

Department spokesman Mark T. Sheehan acknowledged Thursday that since December, grand juries have begun work in Iowa, Maryland, New Hampshire and Oklahoma. He declined to identify the fifth state, but government sources, who asked not to be named, said it was Pennsylvania.

Recognize Israel, Mitterrand says

JERUSALEM (AP) — President Francois Mitterrand of France, splitting with the standard European position on the Middle East, said Thursday the Palestine Liberation Organization must recognize Israel if it hopes to join peace negotiations.

In a speech to the Israeli Parliament, or Knesset, Mitterrand said the Palestinians should "determine their fate" but on the condition that they "respect the right of others, in their respect of international law, and in a dialogue that takes the place of violence."

Is there life after graduation? Find out at business seminars

By Randy Rendfeld
Staff Writer

The second annual "Life After Graduation Seminar," a series of lectures on contemporary business and economic issues, will be presented Monday through Wednesday in the Student Center ballrooms.

Topics on the agenda include Reaganomics, government-business relationships, energy and the economy, job outlooks for college graduates, and turning losing businesses into winners.

SIU-C's chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, arranged the seminar, and funding is being provided by the Undergraduate Student Organization.

A lecture by featured speaker Dr. Donald Bibeault will start off the seminar at 7 p.m. Monday in Ballroom D. Bibeault will discuss how financially strapped companies can be saved during hard times.

Bibeault's company, Bibeault & Associates based in San Francisco, is a consulting firm specializing in "turnaround management for troubled corporations."

Bibeault's book, "Corporate Turnaround: How Managers Turn Losers Into Winners," — published this year — has become a main selection of the Executive Book Club and the Fortune Book Club.

At 8:30 p.m. Monday in Ballroom B, "Occupational Outlooks For College Graduates in the '80s," will be discussed by Elliot Brower, regional commissioner for the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Kansas City.

Also at 8:30 p.m. Monday in Ballroom A, Tim Seeger, sales training specialist for Anheuser Busch Inc. of St. Louis, will discuss "Insights into the World's Largest Brewer: A Look at Anheuser Busch's Sales and Marketing Strategies."

At 7 p.m. Tuesday in Ballroom B, "Reaganomics and the '80's" will be discussed by Frank Spinner, president and chairman of the board of Tower Grove Bank & Trust Co. St. Louis.

At 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in Ballroom A, "Government-Business Relationships" will be the topic of Larry Umlauf, vice-president for corporate affairs and president of the Grocery Products Division of Pet Inc., St. Louis.

A discussion of "Business Trends in the '80s" will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Ballroom A. The lecture will be given by George Sloan, director of science and engineering at the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association. Sloan is also vice-president of the St. Louis chapter of National Business Economics as well as chairman of the board of the St. Louis Council on World Affairs.

The final event of the seminar will be a panel discussion on "Energy and the Economy" at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Ballroom B. The discussion will deal with the relationship of the energy industry and the economy. Four representatives of the Phillips Petroleum Company in Bartlesville, Okla. will be the featured panelists: Charles Sommer, manager of corporate planning and development; T.W. Hall, planning manager of Phillips Chemical Co.; Larry Ballard, marketing representative; and Donald Crain, research and development.

Complacent students don't deserve funding help

Monday was a national day of protest against the cuts in aid to higher education. But I noticed almost no one was wearing the white armbands that symbolized this protest. Almost no one came to the teach-in. Where were the law students who feel that they are paying an inequitable share of the tuition increases? Where were the graduate students who stand to lose assistantships and loans? Where were the undergraduates who will lose Illinois State Scholarship Commission, Pell Grants, College Work Study funds and many other sources of funding?

If we don't stand up and let ourselves be heard, then the people in Springfield and Washington, D.C. are rightly going to come to the conclusion that students don't care. How many students can actually afford to lose their financial aid and still remain in school? How many of those who cannot afford to continue school will be able to find a job as an uneducated laborer in a depressed job market. How many of those will be able to return to school at a future date?

Educational cuts are happening now. If we as students don't fight them now, no one will fight our battles for us. Our futures are at stake, and the people in Washington and Springfield are trying to take those futures away from us. We should not let them get away with this, at least not without a fight. We should write our lawmakers, we should vote and we should be heard.

Our voices, in unison with those across the country, could make a difference. When activities, such as teach-ins, protests and marches are planned, we should participate. If we do this, we might be saved. If we don't, education is in deep trouble. Those of you who receive financial aid and are not willing to stand up for it should not accept that financial aid, for there are those of us who need it and are willing to fight for it.

In complacency, you are, in essence, making the statement that you don't need it, and therefore don't deserve it. I, for one, am making a stand, and I beg those of you that receive help — even if it is only in the form of reduced tuition and fees that a state university charges as opposed to a private institution — to join me. — Valdis Edward Ozels, Sophomore, Psychology

Reaganomics is a bitter pill; it conflicts with Christianity

For a while, Reaganomics was a distasteful, but a relatively easy pill to swallow. I'm surviving and I think I have a future. With those realities around me, budget cuts in social services seem distant. What isn't so distant are some glaring conflicts between Reaganomics and my Christian faith.

As I struggle to become a more helpful, loving, caring person, I am faced with seeing a "by the people, for the people government" turning its back on the poor and needy in our own country.

I understand that the private sector is supposed to fill the void left by federal programs shutting down or limiting the services offered. What troubles me is the fear and outright panic that is being caused by the feeling that government agencies are closing their doors and not telling the needy exactly who they can turn to next.

Politics and faith are strange companions for me, but when tax dollars I labor for are taken from the hungry and poor I pray for, I feel a need to raise my voice in protest.

I must again protest when more of those same tax dollars are used to build weapons that create walls of fear, suspicion and gloom among all the people of the world. — Mike Nadolski, Junior, Speech Communication

Please return stolen notes

This letter is addressed to a person I may never consciously meet in my entire life!

Last Tuesday night you went into my car parked on South Poplar Street by Stevenson Arms and removed all of my racquetball equipment, which will cost me over $150 to replace, and one $3 orange notebook.

My racquetball equipment can be replaced but not the research notes that are contained in my notebook. The research took me many hours of work in the library and even more hours at home. This material is of no use to you at all, and will cost me many more hours of work to replace it.

Please help me out by returning my notebook. My phone number is in the phone book and you can call me anytime in the evening. Tell me where you left it for me and I will go and pick it up — no questions.

Your help will be forever appreciated. — Andrew R. Wilson, Senior, Radio-Television

Time for action, not symbols

I AM WRITING this letter out of concern for the future of this University, and the future of many of our undergraduate and graduate students who will be unable to attend next fall should the present situation worsen.

SIU became a full-fledged comprehensive university following World War II. It's mission, unique among universities throughout America was to provide access of opportunity for students from all walks of life and all kinds of backgrounds to achieve as much and go as far educationally as they possibly could go.

Today, however, this dream is threatened by a misguided federal administration that chooses to chop off the hand that through taxes will eventually feed it, and an unknowing, uncaring governor in Springfield.

We know the federal situation only too well. On the day of his installation as Secretary of Education, Terrell Bell said, "The first goal of my administration will be to eliminate Guaranteed Loans and Basic Education Opportunity Grants."

STATEWIDE we see the indifference and ignorance of a governor who requires, as he did last year, thousands of students to pay back $100 a piece to the Illinois State Scholarship Commission because the program wasn't administered properly.

With the help of an Ouija board, the Illinois Board of Higher Education picked 33 percent of instructional costs to be the figure charged for tuition at public institutions of higher education. The following quote from Gov. Thompson, made on Feb. 2, best frames his administration's educational philosophy.

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank the staff of the IBHE and our university administrators for following my suggestion for placing the increased costs upon the backs of the consumers of higher education, the students. I am quite sure that the students of this state are smart enough that if faced with the choice of increased tuition or lesser quality education, they will choose higher tuition."

I SAW WHITE ribbons March 1 worn around the campus. It is only fitting that they be worn because slowly — excruciatingly slowly — we are being bled white. I urge faculty, staff, administrators and students to continue wearing those armbands as a message of solidarity.

The time has come, however, for more than symbolic acts of citizenship. Instead, we need real participating citizenship.

We who care about access simply must act now. SIU-C President Somit is half-correct when he says that tuition increases are "inevitable." They are inevitable only if we permit them to be.

So write to the Board of Trustees, and let them know how this unfair, unjust increase affects you personally. Don't sit back for the worst government is that which we ignore.

Vote and get your friends to vote. It angers me to hear that only 19 percent of all the eligible voters gave Ronald Reagan his "mandate," and that participation among college students was even lower.

The real lesson is this: students, faculty, blacks, the handicapped and other segments of our society will be pushed — by Reagan in Washington, D.C. and his self-appointed, to use his own words, "cheerleader" in Springfield (Thompson) — as long as we permit ourselves to be.

It doesn't have to be that way, and with your help it won't be. — Stephen Katsinas, Doctoral Student, Higher Education

Know your history, but get it right

The column by Ken Perkins in the Daily Egyptian, Feb. 26, was interesting and had a valid theme: Everyone needs to know and appreciate his history in order to know and feel good about himself. But, before one starts building those good feelings, he should have accurate history.

I refer specifically to Perkins' statement: "And Benjamin Bannaker (sic), who was the inventor of the clock." While the possibility of Bannaker's having the ability to have invented a mechanical clock was quite possibly present, Bannaker was running a good 450 years late. The first mechanical clocks were built in Europe in the early 1300s, and Bannaker did not begin making clocks until about 1781.

Bannaker, partly black, learned clockmaking from Andrew and Joseph Ellicott during the 1770s. Joseph Ellicott immigrated into Maryland and founded the village of Ellicott's Mills about 1770. Bannaker evidently apprenticed himself to one or both Ellicotts shortly after that time.

Benjamin Bannaker was a brilliant individual. He became a highly regarded person in this field. He started the publication of an almanac in 1791.

Bannaker was a respected businessman, agriculturist, and clockmaker. But he did not invent the clock. — Marion W. Mitchell, Carbondale

DOONESBURY

Striking it rich in Southern Illinois

IF IT'S TRUE THAT it's easier to get a camel through the eye of a needle than it is to get a rich man into heaven, then most residents of Jackson, Williamson, Perry and Franklin counties should have nothing to worry about.

But there are a few who may sweat it out. While the number of wealthy persons living in four of Illinois' poorer counties may be low when compared to other counties in the state, the amount of their wealth is, in most cases, comparable to that of the Wizards of Wall Street or the financial giants in any city.

Some Carbondale and Marion bankers estimate that the number of millionaires living within a 50-mile radius of Carbondale may range anywhere from a dozen into the hundreds. And the number of people earning six-figure salaries cannot be estimated, financial experts say.

A CARBONDALE BANK VICE PRESIDENT, who wished to remain anonymous, said his bank and area investors consider anyone in the four-county area making $50,000 or more annually to be a prospective investor and fairly wealthy, although not traditionally "rich."

According to this definition of wealth, at the University alone there are more than a dozen "prospective investors" among administrators, including Chancellor Kenneth Shaw, who makes $83,000 a year, and President Albert Somit, who earns more than $60,000 annually and lives rent-free in the University house worth more than $1 million.

Those who might be considered wealthy or very well paid are not exclusive to the University. According to bankers, a large number of people in Southern Illinois have become rich through real estate, leasing, lumberyards, retail businesses (mainly in Carbondale), banking, law, politics and just about any other business — much like wealthy people from any other place.

AND, LIKE MOST WEALTHY BUSINESSMEN, Southern Illinois' rich are secretive about their worth and earnings. Just ask, or try to ask, local restaurateur-developer Stan Hoye or Marion Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. president Harry Crisp II — two men cited by Carbondale bank administrators as being among the area's wealthiest — or any other well-to-do entrepreneurs. Protection of privacy seems directly proportionate to increases in income.

In fact, the only thing Southern Illinois' rich don't have in common with the wealthy from other areas is their location and where they invest their money.

The bank official said that while most wealthy people who live in places like Cook or Champaign counties are likely to look outside their immediate area for investment opportunities, Southern Illinois money has a tendency to stay here.

"WHEN PEOPLE MAKE THEIR MONEY down here, they keep it here," the banker said. "Someone in Chicago might always be looking to the stock market or land development outside the city. But in Carbondale and surrounding areas, people are willing and ready to invest large sums of money within their area. Aside from any sentimental reasons, Southern Illinois is an attractive place to conduct business."

David Emerson, president of Sabr Inc., of Carbondale, agrees. The group is owned by Saad Jabr, a Du Quoin millionaire who owns the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds, the State Bank of Du Quoin and several out-of-state enterprises. Emerson is Jabr's spokesman in Southern Illinois.

"We have fairly low-priced real estate in Southern Illinois when compared to other areas of the state and the United States," Emerson said. "We have a ready labor market. We have sufficient supplies of energy sources — electricity, coal and ample supplies of natural gas.

"OUR TAX SCALE IS RELATIVELY LOW. And we have a moderate climate. I was talking to a friend of mine in Chicago one day when it was near 70 degrees here, and he told me it was snowing up there. You know how everyone is supposed to be moving out of the North and into the Sunbelt? Well we've been called Illinois' own Sunbelt down here."

But Emerson, who has lived all his life in Southern Illinois and worked in banking jobs before heading Sabr Inc., said that just because Southern Illinois has so many advantages to offer it isn't necessarily an easy place to earn a bundle of money.

"While we have a lot to offer potential businessmen or investors, we have a low population density, making it difficult to make a lot of money through a lot of people," he said. "Creativity is the key down here. In Chicago you could open a large entertainment center and make money. But down here we can't support something like that."

"SO YOU HAVE TO BE CREATIVE in your business. If you invented a new mining implement that works well, you could do a good job of selling it down here. That's the kind of thing that can be supported here."

The Carbondale bank official agreed, saying that people who don't have money should consider the hard work that goes into earning it.

"With a very rare exception, these people all earn their money, they didn't just fall into it," he said.

"Down here the few wealthy stand above the rest of the population like a sore thumb. But keep in mind they work for their money. That's how you get rich. That's the basic 'secret.'"

Wayman Presley's bread returned to him as dough

If Wayman Presley were to cast a few crumbs of breads upon the water, they would most likely come back to him as loaves.

Presley, a Makanda resident who has made a small fortune from his globe-circling Presley Tours business, says he owes everything he has to a "bread upon the water" philosophy.

"Everything that I've done for others in my life has come back to me," he said. "The good Lord or somebody has given me back what I've cast upon the water."

While Presley's white hair and aging features come close to reflecting his 85 years on earth, his energetic optimism seems like that of a man of 25. It is this optimistic attitude that Presley says is responsible for his success.

Started in 1960 as a family operation with borrowed money, Presley Tours now has 26 full-time employees and 72 tourguides. It pulls in an average of more than $50,000 daily. About 15,000 people per year tour places like China, Europe and the Canadian Rockies through Presley Tours.

Presley declines to disclose his total worth, but did say that he draws an annual salary "larger than the governor of Illinois or the president of the University."

"That's not bad for a place stuck six miles away from the nearest place you can buy a cup of coffee," he said.

Presley said his business and home are located in such a remote place because he grew up just a few miles away, in the hills of Southern Illinois. His home, while large and luxurious as compared to others in the area, is relatively modest. His living and dining room areas are filled with expensive items — including relics and artwork from nations around the world — but he says he still doesn't

Minnesota Fats is his name and he's gained from his game

A cat peeks out from beneath a 1977 white Cadillac limousine and comes face to face with one of the country's best-known sports celebrities. The cat, unimpressed, quickly sticks its head into a box of bonemeal and starts eating. The man turns and heads back to his house.

The cat is a black and white Siamese. The man is Minnesota Fats, the most recognizable pool player in the world and self-proclaimed pool champion of the universe.

"I got 90 million dogs and cats around here," Fats says. "If I didn't take care of them I don't know where they'd go. Strays. All of them. My wife and me are all they got."

The 90 million is a slight exaggeration (you have to watch that with Fats), but he and his wife do care for more than 50 animals — most of them strays, as he says. He's built an air-conditioned and heated doghouse next to his driveway. Fats, 82 and weighing more than 200 pounds, heads back into his modest two-story frame house in Dowell and waddles over to a refrigerator filled with raw meat and scraps.

"I've got a whole kitchen just for the animals," he says. "I like looking after them. I haven't moved that limo out of the driveway since 1977. That's where they all know to come and eat."

Even though Fats hasn't moved that particular car for five years, he's got two more, a red one and black one, which he uses when he goes on the road. Which is all the time. Which, he says, explains in part why a millionaire celebrity lives in Dowell.

"I'm never here," Fats said. "How I got down here in the first place is interesting. In the old days, this spot used to be the gangsters' hotspot. There was gambling everywhere. DuQuoin, Herrin, all places down here. So I came down here for part of the action. I married a girl from here."

He not only married the girl, Eva-line Grass, but the couple's home was built on the lot where Eva-line was born, and they settled down in Dowell in the early 1950s. Large windows on all sides of the house look out onto miles of corn fields and dirt roads, with an occasional house in view. The front room of the house is filled with a large Minnesota Fats pool table, manufactured by one of the companies of Minnesota Fats Enterprises, a multi-million dollar company owned by Fats. The firm controls Fats' earnings at pool, and operates a national chain of more than 100 game rooms and pool stores.

"I like it here in Southern Illinois," Fats said. "I like my house. And I take care of the animals and people down here. I believe in charity. I'm a real charitable guy. Sixteen Bob Hopes couldn't do the charity work I do."

Fats says he doesn't play in tournaments as much as he used to, but that the amount of charity work he does increases each year. He says he can't estimate how many places he plays in a year but that "it's a hell of a lot."

He's raised money for the American Cancer Society, Lung Association and various other national charities and often performs benefit shows at Southern Illinois hospitals, fairs and parades.

"When I play to raise money people pay $100, $200 just to walk into the door," Fats said. "You can see 15, 16 Sinatras for that money, the greatest singer in the world. I'm the greatest entertainer in the world. I've entertained kings, governors, presidents, corporate executives, you name it. When I was two I picked up a cue stick and that was that."

to school or worked a day in my life. By the time I was 13 I'd been in every country in the world."

As a young man Fats traveled around the country, shooting pool in Chicago at a time when there were dozens of pool halls in the city, each hall holding 80 to 100 tables. He said his reputation as a pool player and hustler grew from his travels in the 1920s and '30s, and that in 1931 he shot a match for $500,000.

"That was during the Depression and that's a lot of money, but I don't care about money, never did," Fats said. "I can't tell you how much I'm worth. I've got so much. Just don't worry about me. I'm loaded."

He says his unusual nickname came to him in part because of friends and in part because of his own choice. He said when he was a young man "I was the smartest man in the world. I hung around with the smartest people. So they called me doublesmart and then triplesmart. Then when I got fat they called me Triplesmart Fats. When I started travelling they called me whatever place I was in. Illinois Fats, New York Fats, Istanbul Fats, Minnesota Fats. I chose Minnesota Fats as the name to promote myself with. I liked it."

In 1961, when the film "The Hustler" was released, Fats reached what was probably the height of his popularity. Paul Newman played Fast Eddie, a young pool hustler, and Jackie Gleason played Minnesota Fats.

"You know that movies are only one-tenth of one percent of what's true," Fats said. "That movie wasn't what true pool hustling was about. But it was the greatest movie made at that time because it had the cast of the then-greatest actors and it was about me."

Since that time Fats has played in hundreds of tournaments and has had his own television program, "Celebrity Billiards." He says he doesn't think his popularity has diminished in all the years.

"I'm the greatest pool player since the turn of the century. Nobody's in my class. I let those other guys beat me or else they'd never get on TV. Nobody in pool's as great as I am."

"I got where I'm at because I am the greatest. I'm the greatest pool player, the greatest gambler, the greatest showman, the greatest talker. Everything I do is the best. There's nobody can be better than me."

And that may not be an exaggeration.

Fats' rise to fame and fortune isn't quite as simple as that, although he says the real story isn't much more complex. He was born Rudolf Walter Wanderone in New York City in 1900 shortly after his parents arrived from Switzerland. He says his family was poor, and by the age of five he was hanging around pool halls, trying to hustle bets and learning his craft. He says he left New York when he was 10.

"I was a grown man by the time I was five," he said. "Nobody ever gave me nothing. Not even a match. Never went know why he has them all. "I bought this," he said, pointing to a silver tea set, "while I was on one of my trips. I asked the woman in the store how much it cost, and I just pulled out the money. I haven't used it a day. In fact, I'm not even sure what it's for."

But for every piece of fine silver or handcrafted china Presley owns, there is a story of his generosity and charity. Presley, however, disagrees with assessments of his charity.

"I don't think I'm one of the more generous people," he said. "It's just that I grew up poor, right here, and I haven't forgotten what that was like. I try to help people who aren't well off because I'm sympathetic to that feeling. But don't call me one of the more charitable people."

Despite Presley's denial of any right-doing, there are seemingly endless newspaper and magazine accounts about his life and his charity. There's even a book, "You Will Never Know What You Can Do Until You Try," written about Presley by Willadene Brown, an teacher from Jonesboro.

The book details Presley's life story, and it is almost a Southern Illinois version of Horatio Alger. Presley says he pulled himself up from a poor childhood and became a country mail carrier, from which he pulled himself up again, after reaching the retirement age for mailmen, and founded Presley Tours.

"When I was young I spent a lot of time out in nature," he said. "I got to see how beautiful and planned out everything is. So when I started taking people to see things, I took people into nature to show them what I knew about things."

"Well, pretty soon people started saying, 'Wayman, let's go see the ocean.' So I took them to Miami Beach, Florida. Then people said, 'Wayman, take us someplace else.' So we expanded into the rest of the world. I was the first one to schedule a bus trip to Alaska from the Midwest."

One of the charitable efforts Presley was involved in before he made his fortune was the construction of the Bald Knob Cross, which he says is the world's largest. Implanted on a hill that Presley says is the highest point in the Midwest, the cross stands 110 feet tall and cost more than $250,000.

Presley, still a mail carrier at the time, did not put up the money for the building the cross, but he raised the funds and organized the construction. It was built with money donated by people all over the world.

"I decided people of the Christian faith needed a place to go where each individual religion wouldn't be fighting for control. So I decided to build this cross," he said. "There are 70,000 to 80,000 people from five nations responsible for that cross. It's something a lot of folks can feel is theirs."

Another "piece of bread" Presley said he cast was his aid in 1949 to a young girl on his mail route who suffered from elephantiasis. Presley was already older than 50, and he wasn't making much money from his mail route, but he took her to a St. Louis hospital and raised money for her stay by arranging gospel singing shows featuring young children.

More than four years after everybody had given up any hope of a cure for the girl, a young intern at the hospital discovered a cure and the girl was able to lead a normal life. This led to Presley's being featured on Ralph Edward's "This is Your Life" television show.

"I just try to do good things for people," Presley said. "And all the good I've done has come back to me."

It was once written about Presley that "Here, among God's creations, Wayman Presley has dared to dream dreams of almost preposterous fantasy. To dream a dream is an everyday habit of man. To catch a dream and tame it totally — domesticate it and command it to do your will — is anything but commonplace. He performs the most enviable of all human endeavors. He catches, harnesses and works his dreams."

Presley explained why he is able to "tame" his dreams.

"We used to have mule races right around here at the fairgrounds," he said. "There was one farmer who used to bring a carrot on a stick for his mule, and he put it in front of the mule. And sure enough, he'd win every time."

"That's what you've got to do. Always have something to chase. That's the key."

Warning: The drastic cuts proposed in several federal student loan and grant programs combined with substantial tuition and fee increases will have a real and negative impact on access to higher education.

Deadline set for film entries

Entries are being accepted until midnight April 1 for the ninth annual Student Film Awards competition sponsored by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

The Academy awards trophies and cash grants for outstanding achievement in four categories: animated, documentary, dramatic and experimental films.

Students can enter work by contacting Dan Ladely, the Midwest region coordinator of the event and director of the Sheldon Film Theater at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

Brass ensemble offers concert and workshop free

The Chicago Chamber Brass will present a free concert and workshop Monday at John A. Logan College.

The concert will be at 10 a.m. in the college gymnasium, and the workshop will be from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in Room 101 of the college's Phase I facility and the Batteau Room.

The Chicago Chamber Brass, established in 1977, has performed across the country in "In Concert" formal recitals, "CCB Informally" pops performances and "Student Series" educational programs.

The ensemble recreates traditional brass literature as well as performing its own versions of classical overtures, waltzes, patriotic pieces, fanfares, rags and favorite show tunes.

Orchestra, cast make Mikado fun

By Jill Lawrence
News Editor

The Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater and the Department of Theater blended with the Opera Orchestra to deliver a dazzling presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "The Mikado," Wednesday at McLeod Theater.

The opening overture by the orchestra, directed by Michael Hanes, featured a moving passage of double-reed solos which set the mood for a journey to Titipu, Japan.

The action centered around the ploys of the inhabitants of a Japanese village to keep their heads should they indulge in the illegal act of flirting. The Mikado, or emperor, has decreed that all who flirt must die. Various love triangles occur as a result of the order, and the characters' attempts to solve these problems make "The Mikado" the classic operetta it's become.

The scenic design by Donny Hooper featured realistic bonsai trees in a Japanese garden, which captured the feeling of mid-19th century Japan. The audience, mostly children for the afternoon show, oohed and ahhed at the beauty of the costumes. Even the wigs on the male characters, similar to samurai warrior hairstyles, looked genuine.

During a well-choreographed dance number, Ko-Ko (David Fleischer), a tailor who was the first to break the Mikado's law, slipped on stage, nearly losing GREAT WRITING STARTS WITH A LITTLE LISTENING, A LITTLE BEER, AND A LOT OF LEGWORK.

When the guys at Miller asked me to write an ad on writing, I said, "Forget it. Not even if you held a gun to my head." So they held a bottle of Life Beer to my mouth. They're a pretty persuasive group.

THINGS TO MUGS

If you're going to write anything, know what you're talking about. And that means three things: Research, research, and more research. The more you know, the more you can tell your reader.

Take my characters. A lot of them I base on actual people. There's this buddy of mine who pops up in every book I write. In one story he's a cop. In another, a private eye. Once, I made him a millionaire. Using him not only helped make character development a heck of a lot easier, he was so carried away by the rich image, he bought me a lot of free dinners (and a lot of Life Beer from Miller). So use the people you know as models.

Even locations should be based on real things. If you're writing about a bar, know that bar. Hang out there. Watch the bartender. The customers. Whatever they drink, you drink. Life Beer. Life Beer. Remember—research is most fun when you soak up as much subject matter as you can. It can only help you paint a better picture.

M. DOLL

No caper is complete without James (or ladies in proper English). Experience has shown me that in mystery writing, the sexier the dames, the better. Experience has also shown me that sexy scenes make great punctuation marks. This is where research has the greatest potential. Use your own discretion in this matter. But when you write about it, don't be too explicit. That way, your reader gets to paint a more vivid picture.

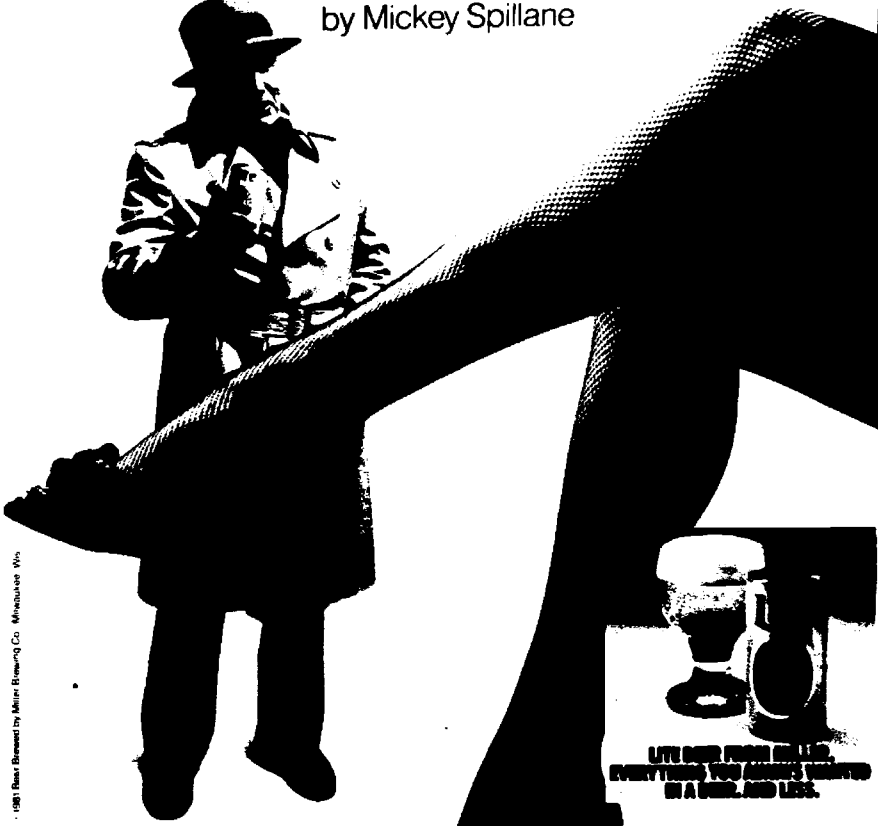

CAPER TO PAPER

OK, you've got your characters, locations, and dames lined up. Now comes the good part: Putting your caper to paper. There's no mystery to it. As long as you write the ending first, the rest will follow. Write short, terse, to-the-point sentences. Be as clear as possible. And make sure you've got the right stuff around for when you get thirsty. After all, writing is pretty thirsty work.

I suggest a couple of mugs of Life Beer— who ever heard of a caper that didn't involve a couple of mugs? Why Life Beer? It's a lot like me and my books—great taste, less filling (some people can't get their fill of my books), and always good to spend time with.

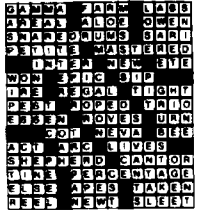

At any rate, follow my advice and, who knows—you might turn out a heck of a story. Or you might turn out to be a heck of a Life Beer drinker.

his wig. Fleischer caught himself and incorporated it into the show, making it appear as if it were part of the dance. The audience loved it, particularly the children. Fleischer played to the crowd and used his incredible charisma to bring life to his role.

"If You Want to Know Who We Are" introduced Nanki-Poo, a wandering minstrel (John Kazee), and the "gentlemen of Japan." The chorus sang a sequence of staccatos perfectly together and in tune, which is not an easy task.

Kazee drew the audience into the performance during "A Wandering Minstrel, I," as the chorus accompanied him with a full and enchanting sound. The chorus wavered a couple of times, but it did not detract from the splendid music.

Ko-Ko was appointed the Lord High Executioner by the town dignitaries, Pooh-Bah (R.L. Pete Housman) and Pish-Tush (Jeff Malone). His wards, Yum-Yum (Carla Coppi), Pitti-Sing (Anita Hutton) and Peep-Bo (Dana Runstead) returned to Titipu from school.

The three sang "Three Little Maids from School Are We" in fine style, but Coppi's voice flowed out and above the others. The other women were good, but Coppi gave a professional performance, far above the average fare.

Greene gave a brilliant performance as the hag. She and Williams had such clear and vibrant voices that you almost thought you were at the Met.

The operetta ended with a superior performance of "For He's Gone and Married Yum-Yum."

"The Mikado" is another accomplished effort under the the Mikado's troops.

Reagan picks new joint chiefs head

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan announced Thursday he is nominating Army Gen. John W. Vessey Jr. to succeed Air Force Gen. David Jones as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff when Jones' term expires June 30.

Nanki-Poo had fled to Titipu to escape a marriage to Katisha (Julie Greene). Katisha, an elderly woman, was terribly ugly, but with a left elbow "people come miles to see." She and the Mikado (David Williams) appeared at Titipu in search of Nanki-Poo during "Mi-Ya Sa-Ma," the march of direction of Michael Blum and Michael Hanes. The fine orchestra enhanced the performance and at times nearly upstaged the singers. The show is double cast and will be shown Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Arraignment date for Gloster set

By Mike Anthony
Staff Writer

Arthur Gloster, executive director of computing affairs at SIU-C, is to be arraigned March 29 in Eugene, Ore., on charges of attempting to defraud an insurance company of about $26,000.

According to U.S. Attorney Tom Coffin, Gloster was to be arraigned March 2, but Gloster's lawyer, Robert McC... asked for and received a three-week continuance.

Gloster was named director of the Office of Computing Affairs in August 1981.

In late January a federal grand jury in Portland handed down an indictment charging Gloster with four counts of mail fraud and one count of wire fraud.

The indictment alleges that in June 1981, Gloster took out a four-month rider for about $26,000 on his homeowner's insurance policy to insure some sterling silver flatware.

According to the indictment,

Gloster shipped the flatware to an acquaintance in Rome, Ga., reported to Eugene police that it was stolen, and attempted to recover its value from the Seattle-based American States Insurance Co.

After Gloster reported the flatware missing, the Eugene Police Department asked the assistance of the FBI, and the flatware that was shipped to Rome was recovered.

Coffin said that Gloster will enter a plea at his arraignment, and "generally, in cases of this type, the plea will be not guilty."

If Gloster pleads not guilty, Coffin said, "trial motions will be made and a trial date will be set within a month to 60 days in the U.S. District Court of the District of Oregon." Coffin said.

Neither Gloster nor McCrea could be reached for comment.

If convicted, Gloster would face a maximum penalty of 25 years imprisonment and a possible $5,000 fine.

WSIU bringing top talent to screen during Festival '82

For 16 nights in March, Festival '82 comes to Channel 8, WSIU-TV.

The festival, a celebration for the fifth annual WSIU-TV telethon, begins Saturday and continues through March 21.

Some of America's most prominent entertainers will be featured on festival nights, including Orson Welles, Melvyn Douglas, Beverly Sills, Carol Burnett, Albert Finney, Dinah Shore, Tony Bennett, Count Basie, Raquel Welch, Imogene Coca, Tammy Wynette, Larry Gatlin, Rosalind Russell and Willie Nelson.

Channel 8 will also offer special presentations with a focus on American talent and institutions.

Viewers tuning in on festival nights will find 30 classic films, hosted by Erv Coppi, and stage and musical performances ranging from country and western to classical.

Profiles of beloved American talents will also be part of festival nights, with "James Cagney, The Yankee Doodle Dandy," "The Marx Brothers in a Nutshell" and a behind-the-scenes look at the making of the popular movie, "The Raiders of the Lost Ark."

Classic movies will include "Pride of the Yankees" with Gary Cooper, "The Best Years of our Lives" with Frederic March, "Guys and Dolls" with Marlon Brando and Frank Sinatra, "Dead End" with Humphrey Bogart, "Auntie Mame" with Rosalind Russell,

"Becket" with Richard Burton and Peter O'Toole, and some two dozen others.

Career day, workshops set for Tuesday

The College of Human Resources is sponsoring a career day with workshops from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Quigley Hall Lounge.

Career day activities include learning career options, discussions with business, government and industry representatives and question-and-answer periods.

The workshops will be held in Quigley Room 122A. The first, on resume and letter writing, will be held at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., and the second, on interviewing skills, will be held at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Tracksters to try for NCAAs

by Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

Three members of the men's track and field team will travel to Eastern Illinois for the Last Chance Indoor Invitational Friday in Charleston.

Field event men John Smith, Andy Geiger and Stephen Wray will try "one more time" to qualify for the NCAA Indoor Championships, March 11-13 at the Silverdome in Detroit.

"I'm hoping that they all can do it," said Coach Lew Hartzog. "They all have come mighty close, and it would be a shame if they couldn't compete at the national meet. There are others, like Tony Adams, who is capable of qualifying in the 440, but he is going to run the relay only."

Geiger, who is enjoying a fine season, is hoping to qualify and join teammate John Sayre in the pole vault. Geiger needs to leap 16-8 to do it, which isn't far from the 16-4 he jumped last week at the MVC meet.

"I think I've got a good chance to do it," said Geiger, who had cleared 16-8 last week, but nipped the pole on his way down. "I'm nervous, sure, but I think EIU has a faster track and that may be an edge."

Hartzog said that shot putter Smith, who has already scored 50 team points this season, is "closer than he thinks," and should be able to throw the 59-7 needed to qualify.

All three have confidence going into the meet, despite the pressures of it being the "last chance" for the 1982 indoor season. Especially high jumper Stephen Wray.

The sophomore from the Bahamas said that he will have to go "all out" in order to qualify, but feels it is just a matter of time, despite his unfamiliarity with the EIU facility.

"I feel I can do it because I've been over 7-1 and had to work outdoors," Wray said. "Once I get over the psychological barrier of clearing at seven feet on my first try, I'm sure I'll make it."

The USA-TFA All-American has spent this week constantly working on technique and most of all, his approach.

"I've been working on my weaknesses all this week," Wray said. "I've had trouble with my approach, but it's been working out pretty good."

Last year, Wray qualified by leaping 7-2 and did so again numerous times indoors and outdoors. He placed 11th in the national meet in 1981.

"The only disadvantage I see is that I haven't jumped on the EIU track before," Wray said. "I'll start in at about 7-0."

Wray's personal best is 7-4. If the Salukis have a successful weekend, they will join three individual and two relay events at the nationals. Sprinter Ranny Geary will compete in the 440-yard dash, Karsten Schulz in the mile, and Tom Ross in the 1,000-yard run. In the mile and distance medley relays, the Salukis will pit Geary, Duncan, Franks and Adams in the mile relay and Ross, Schulz, Munson and Geary in the distance medley.

Ruggers training for opener with 'inexperienced' Paducah

By Bob Morand
Staff Writer

The men's rugby club has been running around Campus Lake since early February trying to get in shape for its season opener against the Paducah City Club at 1 p.m. Saturday on the soccer field southwest of Abe Martin Field.

According to Dave Hanetho, player-coach of the SIU-C ruggers, the team is in "pretty good shape" and should have little trouble with the Paducah club, which has been competing for only a year.

"Of course we could be in better shape, but as a coach you always think your team could be in better shape," Hanetho said. "We should be favored over Paducah because they looked pretty inexperienced when I saw them last fall. But you never know; their team may have picked up since then."

The ruggers didn't lose any members from last semester's squad, but Hanetho said they will most likely be without Dave Gallagher, a wing forward who is nursing a knee injury.

Two former members have returned to the squad after an absence of one and two years. Dean Tisch, working on a master's degree in agriculture, rejoins the team after a one-year absence. Jim Canfield, who played on the team two years ago, has returned to SIU-C to finish his engineering degree.

Glenn Frank, an outside center for the squad, is battling a back injury. His status for Saturday's match is doubtful, Hanetho said.

The key to winning against

Paducah will depend on two things: the play of the pack and the cooperation of the weather, Hanetho said. The pack is like the offensive and defensive lines of football. They dig in and do the dirty work to get the ball to the wings and backs.

Hanetho said that Paducah's pack has the edge in size over SIU-C's. But when it comes down to experience, SIU-C should have the dominant edge, he said.

The weather conditions, however, might play just as big a part in the game, Hanetho added.

"If it's muddy and wet, size has a tendency to equal itself out if one team is bigger than another," he said. "If the field is in good shape, we'll try to run all over them. If it's not, then we'll play a controlled game."

The one who does most of the running for the SIU-C ruggers, not to mention scoring and kicking, is fullback John Glotzbach. According to Hanetho, Glotzbach was responsible for three-fourths of the team's points last fall. The team posted an 8-3 record in the fall and finished third in the All Ghoul's Tourney, hosted by the SIU-C ruggers. Things shouldn't be any different this season for the fullback, Hanetho added.

Collegiate amateur leads golf classic

SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Lauri Merten-Peterson, an unknown collegiate amateur, shot a 5-under-par 67 Thursday for the first-round lead in the $100,000 LPGA American Express-Sun City Classic.

The 21-year-old Phoenix native, a senior at Arizona State University, was 1-under-par through nine holes and went to 2-under with a birdie on the par-4 10th hole. She moved to 4-under with back-to-back birdies on 16 and 17, then holed a 35-foot putt to close out her round on the 6,232-yard Hillcrest Golf Course.

A stroke behind at 68 was veteran Carole Jo Callison.

At 69 were Janet Coles, rookie Terri Moody, Pat Bradley, Penny Puiz, Julie Stanger-Pyne and Ayako Okamoto of Japan, winner of last week's Arizona Copper Classic in Tucson.

"I was looking for the pars, the birdies just came," said Merten-Peterson, a two-time Western Collegiate Athletic Association champion. She said she planned to attempt to qualify as a pro tour member this summer after graduating.

The 72-hole tourney ends Sunday with the winner netting $15,000.

Vogel wants to win, improve

By Steve Meisch
Sports Editor

Women's gymnastics Coach Herb Vogel has two goals for this weekend. First, he would like SIU-C to beat at least three of its four opponents. Second, he hopes several Salukis can improve their routines.

The Salukis face Indiana State and Northern Michigan in a double dual Friday at Terre Haute, Ind. They meet Illinois and possibly Western Illinois Sunday at Champaign.

"Basically, I think it would be nice to win a couple of duals," Vogel said. The Saluki coach, in his 19th year at the SIU-C helm, has yet to coach a Saluki team to a losing record. His squad is 9-9 in dual competition this season. Vogel has compiled a dual meet record of 201-38.

Western Illinois is a questionable opponent, according to Vogel, because it would be almost "futile" for them to try to increase their average, which is low, since their score at the AIAW state meet last week was doubled. The Westwinds finished fourth at the state meet with 130.25 points, while SIU-C won the crown with 137.30.

WIU will probably send just one gymnast, Jill Frazier, to Champaign. Frazier was fifth in all-around at the state meet, while Salukis Pam Turner, Val Panton and Lori Erickson took first, second and third, respectively.

The Saluki coach said all-arounder Turner, who currently performs a full twist on-full twist off vault, will probably add a twist on her second vault at each meet this weekend. The twist would increase the difficulty level of her vault from a 9.6 to a 10.

"Mary Runck has increased the difficulty of her beam," Vogel said. "She is coming along well." Runck returned to action for the first time last week after sitting out the season with a back injury.

Patty Reeves, who has been "disappointed" with her performances in the last three or four meets, according to Vogel, also has improved her routine.

"We went into practice Monday and added some easy difficulty to her floor exercise. I think she has improved her performance over the last few meets," he said.

Vogel said that if it looks like the Salukis may get a good score at either meet, it "may hold back a bit" on its improved routines.

"We won't make any real additions until next week. Then we'll add a few and get some confidence for the regional meet," he said.

The Salukis may be in for a grudge match at Illinois, in view of their slim .86 victory over the Illini in the state meet. Vogel said the dual will be "interesting, if the scoring gets tight."

"What the Illini want to do is get a high score and improve their average for seeding at the regional meet. I don't think they'll be out for blood," he said. "If hometown judging helps their scores, it won't hurt us at all if we have a good meet. If the judges try to help Illinois, they will help us, too."

The Midwest AIAW regional meet will be at Columbus, Ohio, later this month.

Vogel said that if the Salukis are able to score above 136.30 in either meet, they would improve their seeding at the regional. A team is seeded by the average of its four best scores, and one away meet must be included in the average. SIU-C's best away score is 136.30 against Oklahoma State last month.

to qualify for the nationals. Teams qualify by having the average of their two best home scores and three best away scores among the top 10 in the nation. LSU's average of 271.61 currently ranks the Tigers seventh, according to Coach Armando Vega.

"Vaulting is one of our best events," Vega said. Matt Baker and Mark Marian have reached 9.7 and Mike Bartley 9.8 to lead the Tigers in the vault.

Other strong performers for LSU are Johnny Moyal in the all-around, Ray Goat and Baker on the rings, Marian and Bartley in the floor exercise, Greg Randall on the parallel bars, and Jim Burke and Clorrie Keifner on the pommel horse, said Vega.

The Salukis will be looking to top their current high of 268.35. Coach Meade believes they have a good opportunity to beat LSU.

Salukis knocked out of tourney by ISU

Guard Beth Stevenson buries her face in a towel rather than watch Illinois State bring the Salukis' season to an end.

The clock stuck twelve for the women's basketball team's Cinderella-like dream of winning the Missouri Valley Conference tournament. Illinois State beat SIU-C 73-56 in a semifinal game at the Arena Thursday.

The Salukis trailed from the opening tip to the final buzzer, and were down by as many as 21 points in the second half. ISU used several defenses which baffled and frustrated the Saluki offense.

The Redbirds' defense virtually sealed off the Salukis inside game. Center Connie Price was held to three points and forward Sus Faber had just 11. SIU-C guard Char Warring led all scorers with 22.

ISU Co-Coach Melinda Fischer credited their defensive shutdown to the big players, especially Melodie Adams. The 6-4 freshman scored 16 points and grabbed five rebounds, but more importantly clogged up the lane and kept the Salukis at bay.

Fischer said she expected the game to be closer and feels her team is playing with more consistency and intensity than it had been in the latter part of the season.

Saluki Coach Cindy Scott agreed with Fischer regarding the fine ISU defense.

"They did a good job on defense," Scott said. "Their defense kept us out of our offense, that was the difference. We wanted to take the ball inside but we couldn't. They did a good job pressuring our ballhandlers. You have to give them all of the credit."

SIU-C cut the Redbird lead from 21 to 11 with 11 minutes left in the second half when point guard D.D. Plab stole the ball, deked a couple of Redbirds and went the length of the court for a layup. ISU called time out and regrouped and Scott said that was the turning point for SIU-C.

"We cut the lead to 11, the kids did a good job and didn't give up," Scott said. "We forced some shots and missed. ISU took the ball back and converted them and that was the ballgame."

SIU-C finished the season at 17-12. Scott said she has to feel good about next season due to the fact that most of the team is returning. The Salukis will lose only guard Sandy Martin to graduation.

Drake nips Shockers

By Bob Merand
Staff Writer

With just three seconds left to play Drake center Lorri Bauman sank a turnaround jumpshot to lift the Bulldogs to a 72-71 win over Wichita State in a semifinal game of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament at the Arena Thursday.

Drake will face Illinois State in the championship match at 8 p.m. Friday night.

After being down 46-35 at halftime, the Bulldogs began chipping away at the Shocker lead and came as close as 58-53 midway through the final half. Wichita State, however, hung on in the face of a Drake fullcourt press. The Shockers, though, started to slip in the last few minutes as turnovers began going Drake's way.

Theresa Dreiling, the Shockers' 6-6 center who scored 16 points against West Texas State Wednesday night, committed her fifth and final foul with :35 left in the game, and Bauman stepped to the line for two shots.

The 6-3 center split her two free throws and Drake took the lead by one point, 71-70. The Shockers were able to get the ball quickly down court despite the Bulldog press and pulled ahead of Drake 72-71 when 6-1 forward Pam Mattingly made an easy layup.

Bauman scored her win-clinching hoop on Drake's next possession and the final seconds ticked off the clock. Bauman led all scorers with 22 points.

ISU, Tulsa earn men's finals

Illinois State and Tulsa will square off at 2 p.m. Saturday in Tulsa to decide the winner of the Missouri Valley Conference's men's basketball tournament.

Illinois State advanced to the final game by beating Bradley 55-50 in two overtimes in Peoria Thursday night. The game was tied at 44 after regulation, and at 46 after the first overtime.

Tulsa defeated New Mexico State 85-61 at Tulsa Thursday night. New Mexico State advanced to the semifinal game after beating SIU-C 68-43 in Las Cruces, N.M., Tuesday.

Gymnasts to meet quality foes

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Staff Writer

High-quality competition between nationally ranked athletes has been a regular feature of the men gymnasts' season. The meet on Sunday will be no exception, as Penn State and Louisiana State take on Coach Bill Meade's team at 2 p.m. at the Arena.

All three teams have scored highly this year, and several of their gymnasts are capable of qualifying for and scoring well at the NCAAs, scheduled for April 1-3 in Lincoln, Neb.

"It will be a tremendous tri-meet, probably one of the best of the season," said Penn State Coach Karl Schwenzfeier.

Penn State, a team that "perennially goes to the NCAAs," has reached a high score of 275.55, and has a good chance to go higher, according to Schwenzfeier.

"It's a tradition for Penn State to train for the end of the season," he said. "We have a potentially excellent team. We haven't had a meet where we've reached our peak."

Even without "peaking," the Nittany Lions rank near the top of both regional and national charts.

Penn State team captain Randy Jepson "has been the number one ringman almost every week," Schwenzfeier said. Jepson has scored 9.9 three times this season, and averages 9.83.

The Nittany Lions have three strong all-arounders in Steve Morino, Terry Bartlett and Gregg Simon, said Schwenzfeier. Morino was a member of the U.S. National Team and is currently ranked in the nation's top 10.

Bartlett, a British citizen, was a junior champion in both his native country and the United States. The freshman will be competing after a month-and-a-half absence because of an injury.

Also competing for Penn State will be Bob Panton, brother of Saluki gymnast Val, who placed second in all-around at the women's AIAW state championships last week. Schwenzfeier said Bob, who competes on parallel bars, floor exercise, high bar and vault, has "done an excellent job for us this year."

Louisiana State is another strong team, and one that hopes
