"Jane," a 22-year-old SIUC student, looks like an average college student, wearing a sweater and a pair of jeans. She could be sitting next to you in class, passing you on campus or dancing near you at a bar.

However, what is not so average about Jane is that an eight-to-10 hour period of her life is permanently erased from her memory.

A mind-erasing drug, illegal in the United States and seven to 10 times more potent than Valium, is being slipped into the drinks of unsuspecting women — and men — across the country.

Rohypnol, also known on the street as "Roofies", "roche" and "R-2," is a colorless, tasteless, orderless, quickly dissolving drug that is becoming known as the "date-rape drug of Perpetrators prey on trusting women, often acting very friendly and always offering to by them a drink.

Jane said she suspects she was slipped the drug late in June 1996 in a small out-of-state college town during a night out after work.

"I went out with a girl from work and went to a bar," Jane said, "You know, all the bad-girl things. We went to the bar, had a couple of drinks and ran into (some guys). I thought they were just people who had come into the restaurant where we worked at, but I guess (my friend) kind of knew some of them."

Jane said she and her friend hong-out with the group of men at the bar, Later, the men asked Jane and her friend to go back to their hotel

Since her friend wanted to go, Jane said she went along. At this point, she said things became

USG member accuses president of abuse

ALLEGATIONS:

Senator says Alim verbally threatened him during discussion.

> TRAVIS DENEAL DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

A member of the Undergraduate Student Government filed an SIUC Police report Thursday alleging USG President Troy Alim verbally threatened him outside USG's Feb.

26 meeting in the Student Center. Jonathan Pluskota, who joined USG as a University Park senator in November, alleged that Alim threatened him with violence during a discussion about his USG position.

Pluskota waited outside Wednesday's USG meeting with five SIUC Police officers, which he said was necessary because of Alim's alleged threat.

Alim declined to comment on whether or not he threatened Pluskota.

Theresa Mills, police office supervisor, said there has been no action taken on the report.

"(Investigations) is waiting to take a statement from Mr. Alim," Mills said.

Alim said Pluskota is disgruntled about losing his senate seat. Pluskota lost the seat after he was appointed as a USG Student Affairs

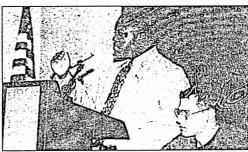

Alim said he asked Pluskota if he would accept the commission in February, Pluskota later addressed the senate and expressed his desire to accept the position.

The USG constitution states that an executive member, including a commissioner, cannot also have a senate seat. Alim said when the senate confirmed the commissioner appointment, Pluskota lost his senseal.

Pluskota said after he learned that accepting the position meant losing his senate seat, he told the senate he did not want the commission position.

Pluskota said the senate never affirmed his commission appointment, and therefore, he was not officially a commissioner, Pluskota said because he was not affirmed, and decided 10 refuse

NATURE AREA: Some fume over restrictions on horses in areas of Shawnee; 95 percent of forest remains open to all.

> DAVE ARMSTRONG DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Equine enthusiasts may find themselves hitching their horses to the trees when they go into the National Shawnee Forest, with the recommendation of the National Forest Service Jan. 31 to close 83 "natural areas" to all but foot traffic.

These 83 areas, which are defined as biologically or geographically unique and are fragmented throughout the entire forest, were discussed in a Wednesday night meeting at John A. Logan College in Carterville. The 83 areas comprise 5 percent of the entire forest.

At present, 41 of the 83 natural areas already are closed to horse riders, all-terrain vehicles, mountain bikes and motorcycles under a penalty of a $500,000 fine.

The remaining 42 areas have not yet been closed. The possible closure of these areas was the topic of the meeting.

Proxies representing U.S. Reps. Glenn Poshard, D-Marion, and Jerry Costello, DBelleville, and U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin, D-Springfield, were present at the meeting to gather information for the congressmen.

Sam Stearns, a representative of Shawnee Natural Area Guardians, said he has no problem with horse riding, but he sees the management of the forest as being too lenient in protecting the land.

"The natural areas are where the work of nature is more evident than the greed of man," Stearn said. "The forest has already been raped, so let's turn her into a prosti-

"I think that's the bumper-sticker approach (the National Forest Service takes) to managing our natural areas. "I believe these natural areas should be protected completely by routing trails around

Some residents of the area expressed their outrage about the areas being closed during the meeting.

Many said the closings would negatively affect their businesses, which included horse-ranch campgrounds and motorbike

Michelle Roads, an owner of Horses of Course in Carterville, said the closings possibly affect the economy of Southern Illinois. would hurt her horse ranch business and "The horse business is a big business," Roads said. "We haven't had a trouble with our riders destroying the forest. We've got a right to go in there and ride. It's our forest,

Some residents voiced their concerns about the ability of the government to control the forest.

Bob Smith, a Cobden resident, said the government should not have anything to do with the regulation of the forest.

"These decisions were made in Washington," Smith said. "They don't care about Southern Illinois in Washington. We pay the taxes on the forest, and we should be able to use it how we want.

'I'd rather have my son out riding horses the woods than out being knifed or gunned in the streets."

While many people were not opposed to horse riding, some could not understand why horse riders could not use the remaining 95 percent of the forest instead.

Ron Brown, a junior in plant and soil science from Carbondale and member of the Shawnee Audubon Society, said all the natural areas should be closed immediately.

"These natural areas are very rare and fragile areas," Brown said. "There is no law that says we cannot have alternate routes for horses around these areas. We shouldn't put our immediate gratification in front of our long-term goals."

Moro's attorney seeks to overturn conviction

The appeals attorney of a local man who is serving a 30-year-prison sentence in Menard Prison, in Chester, is seeking to have his client's conviction overturned on the grounds that he was not brought to trial on time, media reports say,

John Moro, 36, is serving his sentence after being convicted of an act of armed violence at Giant City School in 1995. In the offense, he threatened the teacher of his 7-year-old daughter, Demetria, and then took the girl from the school and fled 2,000 miles to Washington, where he was apprehended two weeks later.

Moro's appeals attorney, Harold Pike, of Centralia, has argued that Moro did not receive a speedy trial as guaranteed by law. In the brief be submitted to the court, Pike claimed that prosecutors did not get Moro to trial within the 120-day statutery limit.

Racism not playing visible role in Army rape charges thrill than to triumph in the troubles of others if there is any possibility of excelling themselves.

When there is an issue that the media attacks, these interest groups are more than willing to bombard that topic with charges that will only fan the flame and cause more unnecessary trouble.

A perfect example of this are the accusations being placed against the Army. What started off as one sexual misconduct case suddenly evolved into many cases with a racist twist.

In the beginning when one woman came forth claiming she was sexually harassed by Army personnel, I believed it simply because common sense tells me that the Army is not exempt from some of the many ignorant fools that dilapidate the earth.

The sudden array of women making similar accusations shortly after, though, seemed to me to get out of hand.

I began to wonder if these women were really harassed and were stirred by the strength of their peers to speak out, or if they began to see the amount of wealth attainable by possibly suing the Army and decided to run with that.

It has been my speculation that people are mischievous creatures, willing to bend the truth to benefit themselves anyway.

Now that it has developed past an issue of sexual misconduct, and on to one of racism, I can do nothing more than laugh.

I cannot even see how anyone could have the nerve to make such a ridiculous claim without any kind of evidence.

The article I read stated that not all of the women making the accusations were white, and I am pretty sure they did not all get together and decide to purposely blame only black men for these crimes, so there is no racism there.

The Army, being accused of overlooking the same acts that were committed by white men, certainly has no obvious gain by doing so and prosecuting only black men for such crimes, so that charge also seems too outra amazed that people geous to even try to justi-

It may be that these people believe that there are no black officers, or that if there are, they have no power or are in on the racism, but if that were the case, it would have brought this issue to surface a long time

In other words, there is no validation for these insipid claims.

Why is it that no one can just leave this issue

If the women were indeed assaulted, let it be proven by those measures that the Army takes, and let the Army punish those men accordingly. What is there to benefit by calling it a racist attempt?

After all, it seems to me that chances are these men will not be punished if it cannot be proven that they did anything questionable.

If they are truly innocent then there is nothing to worry about.

If these people had sound figures to support their accusations that the Army indeed has disproportionately accused black men for such pending cases around the country, I could understand the allega-

Our Word

'Forget pill'

Students should beware of 'date rape drug' during spring revelry

AS SIUC STUDENTS HEAD SOUTH FOR WARM climates and hot parties over spring break, they should be aware of a dangerous substance that has surfaced at parties and in bars across the country.

Known by many street names, including "roofies," "rope" and "the forget pill," Rohypnol, a drug similar to Valium but 10 times more potent, has appeared in many areas, including Florida and Texas - two popular spring break destinations.

SOMETIMES USED FOR RECREATIONAL purposes because of the "high" it produces, Rohypnol can produce dangerous side effects, including delirium, hallucinations, convulsions or induces a coma. The drug often is mixed with alcohol or other drugs to increase feelings of intoxication and diminish inhibitions.

Dangerous enough when taken alone, Rohypnol can lead to severe respiratory difficulties or even death when combined with other substances.

While these dangers should be enough to keep most students from using the drug willingly, the risks do not stop with a simple decision to "just say no."

PERHAPS THE MOST DISTURBING "SIDE effect" of Rohypnol occurs when an unscrupulous individual slips it into an unsuspecting woman's drink. The woman unknowingly ingests the drug, then passes out 20 to 30 minutes later.

The person who gave her the drug rapes her while she is unconscious, then escape, often protected from prose-cution by another side effect of the drug; temporary amnesia that leaves the victim unable to remember who gave her the drug or what happened next.

WHILE WOMEN DO NOT NEED TO SPEND spring break drinking Yoo-hoo by themselves in their living rooms to avoid the dangers posed by unsuspected sedatives, some caution is in order. Women (and men) can avoid the risk of drug-assisted sexual assaults by taking a few precautions.

First and foremost, students should remember the childhood advice their parents gave them: Don't take candy (or in this case, alcohol) from strangers. While it may be tempting to let a cute stranger run over to the bar and get a couple of daiquiris, this act of apparent chivalry could give him an opportunity to spike one of the drinks with Rohypnol or another "date rape drug."

For similar reasons, it is important never to leave drinks unattended.

Friends also should watch out for each other. If a companion seems too intoxicated for the amount of alcohol she has consumed, she should be monitored closely, and under no circumstances should she be left alone or with strangers.

IT WOULD BE NICE IF WE COULD ENJOY A good time out with friends without having to worry about someone giving us a potentially lethal drug and then violating our bodies while we are unconscious. But as social critic Camille Paglia once said, it also would be nice if we could drive a new BMW into the middle of Chicago, leave the keys in the ignition and return 20 minutes later to find the car sitting exactly where we left it.

UNFORTUNATELY, WE SHARE THIS WORLD with some selfish predators who will take advantage of us if we let down our guard. For our safety's sake, we must remember that and do all we can to protect ourselves from the dangers that exist in our society.

SUPPORTER: SIUC professor made impact on Southern Illinois art

> DAVE ARMSTRONG DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Gretel Chapman, a professor of art and design, died of cancer Wednesday at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale at the age of 64 while on leave of absence from SIUC.

Chapman taught at SIUC since 1983 and specialized in medieval and Renaissance art history.

Chapman, who was born in Denver, had degrees from Oberlin University, New York University of Fine Arts and Universite Libre de Bruxelles before being awarded a doctorate from the University of Chimen in 1004 Chicago in 1964.

Chapman also was the co-founder of the Old Douglass Art Place in Murphysboro, which pro-vides a place for local artists to display their works.

Jan Thomas, Chapman's companion, said Chapman was a vibrant

"She was a passionate lover of life, learning, people and ideas," Thomas said, "She helped put on a People's Art Show where anyone could come and show their works with everyone else. She never tried to judge anyone's art; she just wanted it to be seen."

Robert Paulson, director of the School of Art and Design, said Chapman was incredibly important the Southern Illinois region.

"She was a bona-fide art historian, truly in love with work. Paulson said. "She was well respected by her colleagues for that. She demanded the best of her students, and she gave the best. She definitely practiced what she preached."

the changes, DeWeese said.

DeWeese said the commission is considering a proposed decrease of $4 per semester in the Mass Transit fee for fall 1997, from $25 per semester to $21; and a $1 increase in fall 1998, from $21 to $22,

The commission also is considering a $6 per semester increase in Student Center fees for fall 1998, from $48 to $54, and a $64 per semester increase in residence hall rental rates beginning in summer 1998, from $1,805 to $1,869.

The Graduate and Professional Student Council approved those proposals last week

DeWeese said the commission represents the majority of the stu-dent body in discussing proposed fee changes presented by campus organizations.

"We have to scrutinize over why they are trying to get fee increases, in the best interest of the student body." DeWesse said.

"We are trying to decide whether the proposal is beneficial to the majority of the student body or not."

USG President Troy Alim said

DeWeese's commission was created by the 1996 USG constitution.

Alim said before that time, a Housing, Tuition and Fces Commission dealt with similar issues, and financial aid had its own commission.

appointment, he has not lost his sen-ate seat.

At Wednesday's meeting, Alim told USG members it was a custom for the senate to not take action concerning presidential appointments, and not taking action after two weeks was equivalent to a senate confirmation.

But according to USG's constitution, approval of an executive appointment requires a two-thirds affirmative vote of the senate.

Also at Wednesday's meeting,

USG Vice President David Vingren moved that the senate not recognize Pluskota as a senator. The senate approved the motion.

Chester Lunsford, an Evergreen Terrace senator, said Pluskota could fill another petition with the necessary 50 student signatures, and the senate could again vote whether or not to let Pluskota serve as a senator. [Jean Paratore, USG's faculty] adviser, said she thinks Pluskota still is a senator.

was throwing up.
"The next thing I knew, he was on top of me and having sex with me. I remem-ber thinking, 'I can't move. I can't scream. I just thought well, I'll relax and maybe it will be over."

Jane said her memory of that June night exists only in little frames of time. This is very common for victims of drug-related rape, a counselor said.

"The blanks of time are really characteristic of Rohypnol," said Sandy Kramer, Jane's Rape Action Counselor at the Women's Center, 406 W. Mill St. "Blanks of time just gone. Zapped."

Kramer said in some pe people Rohypnol has created a state of amnesia as well as a false paralysis.

"He didn't want to let me go, and of course I wanted to get out of there. So I ran out and ran back to (my friend's) place. I didn't know where she was at that point. I thought she was still in the hotel room. But apparently she wasn't, because I went home after that, and I

Jane said she later found out her friend left her in the hotel room that night and went home. She said she was confused because she only had a few as rape, can face up to 20 years in prison.

"Dropping a pill in a victim's drink is just as cruel as putting a knife to her throat," Carolyn Prinz, Rape Action Committee Program coordinator, said.

Prinz said Rohypnol is accessible in Florida and Texas because of manufacturing in Latin America, although people need to be aware of its potential presence everywhere.

"Not to make everybody extremely paranoid, but this is out there. And it's real," she said. "It's something to be very aware of."

To be aware, Prinz said people need to keep an eye on their friends. If they seem too drunk for the amount of alcohol they have consumed, Rohypnol may be responsible.

She said his scenario has been common among the four or five possible drug-related rapes she has seen at the Women's Center since last spring

If someone wakes up in a strange place and thinks a drug-related rape may have occurred, Prinz said that person should go to the hospital, the police or call a help hot-line as soon as possible.

She said it is possible to collect evidence of a rape and test for drugs up to 72 hours after the instance, but the sooner a woman gets help, the better.

Getting help
Jane said she went to a health clinic in another state seeking help after the rape, but she was discouraged by the lack of help she received.

I went to a health clinic," Jane said. "I made an appointment as soon as I could, but they won't let you come in for at least a week because if you have diseases they want those to incubate. Or at least that is what they told me.

"If I had gone to the hospital, I'm sure would've been different. But my great-aunt worked at the hospital, and my grandma used to work there. So they know everybody."

'I always thought I'd be the first one to be out there and say, 'Hey, you know, asshole, you need to pay for this.' But at the time, I really was extremely embarrassed of the whole situation. So I didn't press any charges or anything.

"I'm usually more careful about it I've tried not to let it affect me. I still want to go out, and I still want to have a good time. I'm just more aware of my surroundings now.

There was a while where I thought about it every day, but there's nothing I can do to change it."

Jane said because she did not press charges, she finds it hard to tell other

Last week, departments affected by Yopp's recommendations were able to respond to the changes and propose amendments to the document.

Yopp said SIUC cannot maintain its current level of graduate programs, and elimi-nations and mergers would provide funds for higher-priority programs.

"There are savings here," Yopp said. "It's still about long-term savings and what we can afford to offer."

However, Robert Jensen, College of Liberal Arts interim dean, said that the elimination of the degrees would not save the University money.

"It's not at all clear that there will be any cost savings overall if we don't have doctoral-level students to teach our courses. Jensen said. "I personally find it very hard to see savings either in the short term or long term with the elimination of these three programs.

Although the council retained the sociology and historical studies degree, they denied a request to elevate the doctorates to a second-priority level. The degrees will remain in the lowest priority,

Best said although his program will have enough students in it the next two years, the program's low priority could label it as weak program and make it a target for the

"The IBHE has a history of using this kind of information against us," Best said.

"I hate to give the IBHE that kind of ammunition.

The council also voted to retain Yopp's recommendation that geography, geology, with other programs including forestry and general agriculture, combine to form a single degree that will be named later.

However, they voted to retain the degrees in geography and geology until the new degree is formed.

The council also voted to deny a request that the plant biology degree be restructured and realigned. The degree will be merged with zoology.

They also voted to retain the doctoral degree in journalism until a new collegewide degree is formed.

John Preece, Graduate Council chairman, said all programs recommended for mergers will have two years to merge before the degrees are eliminated. He said students in programs that merge will be allowed to complete their studies.

Preece said the changes have to be made before SIUC receives new dollars for new graduate programs.

"If any of the public universities in the state of Illinois tell the IBHE that they simply want to maintain the status quo with their graduate programs," Preece said, "it will not be viewed very favorably." He said Yopp will revise the document to include the amendments.

It then will be given to John Jackson, vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost, and Chancellor Donald Beggs for final approval. The document will be presented to the IBHE in July.

only was able to hit 35 percent from ISU took an 11-4 lead five minutes into the game but relinquished it to go into the half tied at 23 apiece.

"I thought we were very, very scared in the first half," Scott said.

"I thought we played tentative."
- SIUC only shot 32 percent for the game, but were saved by a 77 percent performance from the line something foreign to the Salukis this season.

"Twenty-one for 27, how about that," a surprised Scott said after she seen the box score. "That might be a school record. Obviously we struggled with free throw shooting all year, but we are just thrilled with

Junior guard Theia Hudson played a major factor in the win, despite playing with four fouls most of the game. Hudson scored a teamhigh 16 points and was four-of-five from the line. Fourteen of Hudson's

16 points came in the second half. Amstutz poured in an MVC Tournament record 34 points. Senior guard Kasia McClendon, the foundation of SIUC's offense, only managed six points in the game, all of which came in the first half. Coming into the contest, McClendon was averaging 15 points per game.

McClendon thanked more than her teammates for the last second lift.

"It was not anything ISU was doing, it was all me," McClendon said. "My head was not in the game. I just thank Jesus my teammates stepped things up to win the game.

diving, I think we're going to have the ability to handle the pressure," he said.

All four divers have been to the Zone Meet before. While none have moved on to the championships, the experience of being there will be beneficial this time around, Mulvihill said.

"I think my freshman year l was seared at the meet," she said. "But now that I've been there the last couple of years it has calmed me down."

Holland said the divers have prepared for the meet differently than before using techniques that have helped the divers in the past.

"All of our practices are at the same time," she said. "With more extra work, it gives us time to clean things up."

For Holland, Wright and Mulvihill, this could be the last meet of their college careers. All three are seniors and would like nothing more than to make it to the championship, Wright said.

"It's hard when you have the whole season riding on one meet," he said. "You just have to try to focus and dive the best you

Ardrey said regardless of the outcome, the divers will compete against the best in the country, and his divers are ready for the challenge.

"We've geared and prepared for this event," he said. "All of our goals are for the NCAA championship."

Wright said depending on the way he dives, he will be pleased with the performance in College Station, Texas.

"If I dive well and don't make it, then I won't be disappointed about qualifying," he said. "If I don't dive well and don't make it then I would be disappointed."

Young softball sluggers lead team

POWER OF YOUTH:

Older Salukis batting slump made up for by younger players.

> DONNA COLTER DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The majority of the SIUC softball team is underclassmen, and much of the Salukis' early success has come from two of the team's youngest players.

In the Salukis' nine games this season, freshman Lori Greiner and sophomore Theresa Shields have given SIUC the most solid performances from the plate.
Greiner, the Salukis' shortstop.

has gone 11-24 for a .458 average and has one home run and five RBIs.

Shields has a .350 average, boosted by a grand slam Missouri State University Sunday. The first baseman has seven hits in 20 trips to the plate.

Aside from the hitting of Greiner and Shields, the Salukis' average is down this season. As a team, the Salukis are hitting .269 this season, compared to .289 last season, but coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said the hitting will come with time.

"Every outing brings more experience," she said. "We are young, with two freshmen pitchers, a freshman shortstop and many sophomores starting. And upperclassmen played as well as we would like played as wen — them to."

the first meeting between the two

The Salukis (5-4) are coming off a rough loss Sunday at the Southern Classic, where they gave up five runs in the first inning to Eastern Illinois University.

Brechtelsbauer said the team needs to see some definite improvements against Middle Tennessee Sunday.

"We need to learn and forget the first inning against EIU," she said.
"We look at one game at a time.
Sometimes you fall back. We have a lot to learn and a long way to Brechtelsbauer said the team is using the game against Middle Tennessee to prepare for the Florida State Invitational March 14-16 in Seminole, Fla., where the Salukis will battle fifth-ranked

ROUND TWO BOUND:

Saluki women advance in MVC basketball tourney at Indiana State's expense.

> DONNA COLTER DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SPRINGFIELD. MO.-Saluki freshman guard Meredith Jackson and the SIUC women's basketball team were given two choices

Thursday night: sink or swim. With the season hanging in the balance, Jackson hit both ends of a I-1 with four seconds left in regulation to lift SIUC to a 59-58 opening-round

Valley Missouri Conference

Missouri Valley Conference Tournament win over Indiana State University Thursday in Springfield. Jackson drove the lane with 10 seconds left and the Salukis trailing 58-57 when she was fouled by the Sycamores' Amy Amstutz. Jackson drew the foul before she could get the shot off.

"I didn't know if I was going to get a travel or a foul," the 6-foot-2-inch Jackson said. "I felt Beth Hasheider hug me, and I said, 'Oh, jeez.' Otherwise, I would have been in trou-

SIUC would have been in trouble if ISU's Krissy Holden's last-second shot had not rolled off the back of the rim. Nonetheless, Jackson's last-second heroics put SIUC into the semifinal round against the tournament's No. 1 seed Drake University at 6

"We feel very fortunate to win the game," Saluki coach Cindy Scott said. "It was a struggle for us offensively all night. We are just thrilled to move on to the second round."

Jackson's two free throws were just two of her 15 points on the afternoon, including three treys.

Both SIUC and ISU had a tough time finding the basket in the first half. The Salukis only could muster a 29 percent performance, while ISU

For the last three years SIUC senior Lisa Holland has made an appearance at the NCAA Diving Zone Meet, and every year she has come home empty-handed.

However, she has taken the disappointents, studied them and plans to qualify for the NCAA championships

Holland said there is definitely more pressure at the NCAA Zone Meet to hit every dive than at a regular season dual meet.

"You have to concentrate on what you need to do," she said. "Everything that you have worked for all season long has to come together."

Holland, along with junior Karla Gerzema, senior Jodi Mulvihill and senior Gerzema, senior Jodi Mulvihill and senior Alex Wright will dive against some of the nation's best teams when they battle teams from the Big 12 Conference, Missouri Valley Conference and independent schools for the opportunity to go to the NCAA Championships. No SIUC diver placed in last season's NCAA Diving Zone

A total of 64 divers from both the men's women's sides will qualify for the and women's sides will quanty for the NCAA Championships. The women's cham-pionship is scheduled for March 20-22 in Indianapolis, while the men's championship will be held Marc 27-29 in Minneapolis.

Saluki diving coach Dave Ardrey said he has tried to emphasize to his divers to stay relaxed and not to panic when competing.

"If we dive the way that we're capable of
