Athletics fund drive falling short of goal

By Jacqui Koszczuk
Staff Writer

With two months left in the fiscal year, the fund-raising campaign for intercollegiate athletics has a way to go to meet the $250,000 goal set by officials in the University Relations Office and in the intercollegiate athletics program.

Development Office Director J.C. Garavalia, who has helped organize the campaign, said Tuesday alumni have contributed about $8,000 thus far.

"I don't have an accurate figure off hand," Garavalia said. "But that's what it was the last time I checked."

University Relations Vice President George Mace said in March that more than half of the $250,000 goal was needed to cover a gap between projected expenditures and projected income in this year's athletics budget. He said any contributions realized beyond the deficit coverage would be divided equally between the men's and women's programs.

The fund drive is a joint effort by the Alumni Association, University Relations, intercollegiate athletics, and the Development Office.

Last week, letters were sent to alumni requesting a $100-or-better donation to the athletics program, Garavalia said. In March, about 65,000 letters were sent to alumni asking them to contribute as much as they could.

The suggested donation in the two groups of letters differs "because some alumni are in a better position to give than others and some are more interested in SIU athletics than others," Garavalia said.

Sponsors of the fund drive are developing a third mailing that may ask recipients to donate as much as $500, although the exact amount has not yet been decided, he said. Garavalia, Mace, Men's Athletics Director Gale Sayers, and Jerry Lacey, associate vice president for University Relations, are drafting the letters, according to Garavalia.

Garavalia said he could not predict how much money the fund drive would eventually realize for the financially-troubled athletics program.

"It's really hard to say because in the past we've never conducted a campaign of this type... where the goals and donations are definite rather than stated in more general terms," he said, adding that he was not sure how many letters were sent in the second group or will be sent in the third group.

Lacey said recently that about 200 alumni would be sent a letter signed by Sayers and asking them to contribute or to help raise $500 or more each. He said Sayers signed the letters on behalf of a blue-ribbon committee of alumni.

Members of the committee are state Comptroller Roland

Burris; Jim Hart, quarterback for the St. Louis Cardinals football team; Carl Mauch, center for the Houston Oilers football team; Ray Burroughs, president of the City National Bank of Murphysboro; and Harry Crisp, president of the Marion Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co.

Lacey said he could not predict if the full $100,000 would be realized, but added: "We are positive that people will recognize the need and help us."

In November, Mace estimated that the athletics program this year would be operating with a projected $361,303 deficit if no programs were cut and new sources of income were not found.

City begins clearing the way for convention center building

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

The city took the first step this week toward obtaining 26 businesses and organizations that stand in the way of the planned convention center, by sending out land option papers to the owners.

Don Monty, assistant city manager in charge of community development, said the city sent out the options, which ask the owners if they will give the city the option to buy the property, on Monday. The option papers list the price the city is offering for each parcel of land.

Monty said the offered price was set after two separate appraisers and a review appraiser looked at the property in the one-and-a-half blocks located in downtown Carbondale. The city contracted the appraisers in January.

The city received a $2.071 million Urban Development Action Grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in 1978 to help finance an $11.9 million hotel, convention center and parking garage complex. Stan Hoye and Associates, which owns the Carbondale and Marion Holiday Inns, is responsible for developing the complex and raising about $9 million to finance it. The City Council agreed to sell $5.5 million in revenue bonds.

HUD extended the city's deadline for completing the financing package for the project in November. Because of the extension, the city began the optioning process before it actually had the $2 million in grant money. City officials recommended going ahead with plans in order to stay on schedule. Construction of the hotel, convention center and parking garage is supposed to begin in January.

The hotel-convention center is scheduled to be constructed between Illinois and University Avenues, bounded by Monroe and Walnut Streets, while the parking garage is scheduled to be constructed on the eastern half of the block bounded by Illinois and University Avenues and Walnut and Elm Streets.

"If all goes well, the bonds will be sold in June. HUD will release the grant money in August" and the city will begin acquisitions immediately, Monty said Tuesday.

The proposed project calls for a 10-story, 230-room hotel and adjoining convention center with a capacity of 1,500 to 2,000. A city-financed parking garage that will hold 350 cars is also planned.

The city asked the 26 owners to respond to the offer by May 15.

Businesses and organizations that received options from the city include: P.K.'s, Walnut Street Baptist Church, Atwood Drugs, Southern Barbeque, Phoenix Cycles, McNeill's Jewelry, Covone's Pizza, Stearns Standard, Nutrition Headquarters plant, Park District Community Center, International Fashions, Carbondale Trophy Shop and Cost Plus Audio, among others.

Reagan, Carter capture primaries in three states

By The Associated Press

President Carter and Ronald Reagan, the delegate-rich candidates for the White House, got richer Tuesday night with landslide victories in the Indiana, North Carolina and Tennessee presidential primary elections.

Sen. Edward Kennedy and GOP challenger George Bush countered by winning in the District of Columbia. Kennedy beat Carter while Bush was unopposed by Reagan.

Among them, the four primaries awarded 223 Democratic nominating votes, 140 Republican delegates.

Anderson of Illinois was on the Republican ballot in all four primaries, even though he has dropped from the GOP race to seek the White House as an independent.

Anderson was gaining 11 percent of the GOP vote in Indiana, 6 percent in North Carolina and 6 percent in Tennessee.

There also were assorted minor and dropout candidates in the four primaries, but names that counted were Carter and Kennedy, Reagan and Bush.

In North Carolina's Democratic race, 10 percent of the vote was uncommitted, accounting for no delegate.

Kennedy campaigned in the District of Columbia on primary day, urging the voters to send a message of economic protest to their neighbor in the White House.

Group says petitions to cut House should be exempt from new rules

By Karen Gullo
Staff Writer

The Coalition for Political Honesty is gearing up for an "extended battle" with the Illinois Board of Elections to prove that new regulations on initiative petitions do not apply to the signatures in a citizens' drive to cut the size of the Illinois House of Representatives.

Pat Quinn, coalition spokesman, said Tuesday the board's rejection of 76 percent — 364,483 signatures — of the 14-month petition drive is a "last desperate effort" to keep a referendum that would eliminate the jobs of 59 legislators off general election ballots this fall.

In a preliminary hearing

Monday, the board voted 6-2 to reject the signatures because they failed to meet the strictures of a new law, enacted six months after the petition drive began, that require the person passing a petition to live in the same election district as the registered voters signing the petition.

Quinn said the law was designed to stop the petition to cut the General Assembly, and he said the coalition is prepared to prove in court that the new law should not apply to its drive. 76 percent of the signatures were collected and notarized before the law was passed, Quinn said.

The coalition gathered 476,000 names and 252,000 valid signatures are needed to put the proposition on the ballot.

"The law is a ferocious attack on the First Amendment rights of the citizens of Illinois," Quinn said. "The legislators are afraid that the people they represent are starting to take the law into their own hands."

A group of legislators have organized the Committee for Representative Government to challenge the validity of the petitions. The committee has hired Chicago attorney Andrew Raucci to examine the petitions. Raucci defended Gov. Thompson's tax lid petitioners last year, who were found innocent of signature buying.

Quinn said the American Civil Liberties Union has provided a lawyer free of charge to defend the petitions.

Prison beatings called justified

By Dean Athans
Staff Writer

Initial results of a Bureau of Prisons investigation into beatings at the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion have convinced bureau Director Norman Carlson that the April 28 beatings were "justified and necessary."

The investigation was prompted by U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale. According to Simon's press secretary, Steven Tackett-Hull, Simon has known Carlson "for many years and trusts his judgment."

But the congressman, Tackett-Hull said, is still "not totally satisfied" with the bureau's findings because the inmates' side of the story is in sharp contrast with the investigation's initial results.

The beating charges surfaced last week when Marion Prisoners Rights Project attorneys received a telephone call from inside the prison. An inmate described the beatings which, according to six beaten inmates that MPRP later photographed and talked with, involved taking the inmates to soundproof "boxcar" cells in the prison's control unit where they were handcuffed and beaten by as many as nine guards at a time, all of whom were armed with clubs.

At the time, prison officials denied that the beatings occurred. The bureau investigation found otherwise.

Bureau of Prisons officials found that inmates housed in the segregation unit, considered by the bureau as the most dangerous in the prison system, had been throwing food and excrement at guards for almost two weeks. When a squad of 15 guards from other areas of the prison tried to move the inmates to the closed-front cells in the control unit, the inmates resisted and the guards were forced to use nightsticks to subdue them.

The full bureau report and an independent FBI investigation will be completed soon, at which point Simon will make a final determination about what actually occurred at Marion and the possible actions that could be taken. Simon has also requested that the House Judiciary Subcommittee "monitor the situation" and reserve the right to later investigate the incident.

City agrees to rescind Attucks board contract

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

After negotiating a $46,485 janitorial and social services contract for the Attucks Community Service Board just last month, Carbondale City Council members agreed to rescind the contract, as the Attucks board requested.

Council members replaced the agreement with a $20,000 contract, out of the council's contingency fund, to cover grant writing and building scheduling, as well as salaries for a director, secretary and bookkeeper. The city will take over the janitorial part of the contract.

Milton Maxwell, chairman of the ACSB—the governing board of the Eurma C. Hayes Center—asked the city on May 1 to take over the janitorial contract that the board held.

"The problem involves a $3,700 shortage in funds that are necessary for the payment of fringe benefits for our employees. The board feels that it would not be wise to proceed with the contract under these circumstances," Maxwell said in a letter to City Manager Carroll Fry.

Attucks board members had earlier charged Fry and the city administration with trying to destroy the board by taking away the janitorial contract for the Hayes Center.

At the March 3 City Council meeting, council members agreed to allow the board to maintain the building, as well as schedule all activities with a $46,485 contract. The board had requested a $53,485 contract.

At the time, Fry recommended that the city take over the maintenance contract for the center and give the board a $15,000 administrative support contract. After Attucks Community Service Board members rejected this idea, the council increased the offer to $20,000. Again, ACSB members refused the offer, saying, "We don't want you to offer us a clean building, we want to clean the building."

Fry told the board members in February, "What you need is a clean, well-maintained facility with which to deliver social services to the community."

Maxwell said the $20,000 the board received Monday would be used for some line items, such as salaries and consultant's fees.

"Hopefully, in this fiscal year we will be able to use the money to turn out a number of grants. Then we can really bring back a social services program," Maxwell said.

Jackie Armstrong, director of the Hayes Center, said she will be writing grants to get various social service programs going in the community. She said her priorities will be to get funds to start a youth activity center and a friendly visitors program for senior citizens.

Councilman Charles Watkins said he was pleased with the action by the Attucks Community Service Board. "It indicates to me a homing in on the community service area, an area that is very important."

The three janitors who currently work at the Hayes Center will be given "priority" on the city's hiring list, according to Bill Moss, assistant city manager.

Public access TV support urged

By Mary Harmon
Staff Writer

A representative from the local cable television station urged the City Council this week to support development of a grassroots, local center for citizen-produced video programming.

Glen Monday, of the Carbondale Cablevision office, said Channel 7 is available to citizens interested in producing their own programs. But in the past three years, he said, it has been used primarily for local broadcasts by Cablevision employees, while only two or three citizens requested access to the channel.

Carbondale Cablevision is backed in its drive to recruit local producers by the national organization of cable TV

programmers

Sue Buske of the National Federation of Local Cable Programmers said public access television is a seldom used outlet for the community and its citizens.

But she hopes it will soon be a service widely recognized and exercised in Carbondale.

Speaking to the City Council Monday night, Buske asked the city's support and encouragement for the citizens' video center.

She said a local video center needs three levels of support.

A non-profit, tax-exempt corporation should be developed to organize citizen use, and cooperation between the local cable TV franchise and the city government needs to be encouraged for the right mesh of financial and technical expertise.

Buske said the city could collect some of the fee assessed the local cable franchise to aid the citizen organization.

Buske, who has helped organize groups in Ohio, Michigan and Washington, said local video centers are "multi-service" businesses and depend heavily on volunteers for their operation.

"One has to be a jack-of-all-trades to build a local studio," she said. "Everytime I get involved in a project like this, I am asked to do something I have never done before."

Buske, who is a former teacher herself, also supported the use of video programming in schools.

Trustees to hear rent hike bid

By Paula Donner Walter
Staff Writer

The presentation of a proposed $30 rent increase for residents of the Evergreen Terrace Housing Complex is one of the top SIU-C items on the agenda for the May Board of Trustees meeting, 10 a.m. Thursday in East St. Louis.

The board is also expected to receive notice of changes in its bylaws and statutes, and the trustees will take action on six SIU-E student fee increases which were proposed at the April meeting.

The proposed rent increase comes just four months after an $18 rent increase for the complex was approved by the board. Any student fee increase must be presented at two board meetings.

According to Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, the $18 rent hike was originally intended to begin last August, but approval was delayed because of a complex ownership arrangement. Evergreen Terrace is owned by the SIU Foundation, funded by the Federal Housing Authority and operated by SIU-C.

Residents of Evergreen Terrace are opposing to this second increase, to be effective this fall, and are circulating petitions and writing letters to congressmen and HUD officials.

The board is also expected to OK increases in six SIU-C student fees.

At the April board meeting, SIU-E acting Student President John Rendleman said the Student Senate supported the increases.

The board has also announced that an executive session will be held following the meeting to discuss the matter of appointment, employment, or dismissal of an employee or officer. That meeting will be closed to the public.

Matalonis still wins after recount

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

A recount of the top two student presidential candidates' votes Tuesday confirmed Paul Matalonis' election to the post.

Matalonis was declared the winner over Tom O'Malley by a margin of 69 votes in last Wednesday's student election. Tuesday's recount reduced Matalonis' total by 14 votes and O'Malley's by 18. The final tally stood at 1,114 for Matalonis and 1,039 for O'Malley.

Student President Pete Alexander and a west side senator had asked for the recount.

Alexander said the slim margin of victory prompted him to ask for a recount. He said he has received complaints from students about the way the ballots were counted.

"People have said that the election commission let campaign workers count ballots and that some people were invalidating ballots differently than others."

Also asking for a recount was Stuart Burchard, a west side senator and O'Malley's campaign manager.

Burchard said he would like to see a recount of every position including senators.

"They (the election commission) were wrong in the way they invalidated ballots," Burchard claimed.

According to the instructions handed out with ballots, students were supposed to vote only for senators in their district. If more than one district was marked on the ballot, only the presidential and vice presidential votes were counted, leaving the senate votes disqualified.

Burchard maintains that if a ballot was marked illegally, then the whole ballot should have been scratched.

Remains of 8 servicemen flown home

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — The bodies of the U.S. commandos killed in an Iranian desert 12 days ago in the aborted attempt to free U.S. hostages returned to home soil at last Tuesday aboard a U.S. Air Force C-141.

Preparations to receive and identify the charred remains had been made at Dover Air Force Base, which 18 months ago identified and embalmed more than 900 bodies of another tragedy — the Peoples Temple mass murder-suicide in the Guyanese jungle.

The servicemen's bodies arrived at 6:37 p.m. EDT. A 20-man color guard was on hand to salute the arrival of the bodies, and chaplains were present for a brief ceremony, said Lt. Basil Gray, base spokesman.

President Carter proclaimed three days of mourning, with flags lowered to half-staff for the eight U.S. servicemen.

Anti-ERA rally draws about 2,500

By The Associated Press

Bus loads of protestors arrived on the lawn of the Capitol Tuesday to have an "I love America" protest and at the same time lobby against passage of the Equal Rights amendment.

While the people emptied onto the Capitol lawn, hundreds of badges reading "stop-ERA" were passed out. Signs saying "You can't fool Mother Nature, stop ERA" and "Protect the family, stop ERA," dotted the landscape.

Many of the ralliers were seen with legislators sympathetic to their opposition to the ERA. But many more wound up in the center of the ornate Capitol rotunda, around a statue dedicated to women, arguing with pro-ERA forces.

An Illinois House committee last week narrowly approved a resolution to ratify ERA, and supporters say they expect a full House vote on the issue this month.

Release of nuclear study requested

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — An Illinois environmental group said Tuesday it filed suit in federal court in Danville to gain release of a study on the safety of nuclear reactors built by General Electric Co.

Prairie Alliance said it sought access to the report, which it said was written in 1975 by a General Electric vice president, under the federal Freedom of Information Act.

The suit asked that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission be prevented from returning the report to GE and required to make its contents public.

Randall Plant, a Prairie Alliance spokesman, said a proposed nuclear plant under construction by Illinois Power Co. at Clinton will include a GE reactor.

'Stunned' by termination

I was stunned when I read that the contract of design instructor Richard Archer was being terminated because "he lacked sufficient research and creative activity and publication."

This seems about as logical as CBS firing Walter Cronkite because he isn't respected and has gray hair.

It is apparent that the hierarchy of this school has warped values of what a teacher should be. Not only is Richard Archer a very creative man, but in this "Age of Energy" he has earned himself a name in the fields of solar power and gasoline. He has brought a tint of notoriety to a school desperately in need of recognition.

We taxpayers can thank Archer for the Associated Press story which exposed the gross wastefulness and incompetence of the Institute of Natural Resources. The Sparta School District can thank him for rescuing it from financial disaster by designing for one of its buildings a low-cost solar collector made of beer cans.

Archer has helped to improve electric wheelchairs. He is a board member of Science and Technology for the Handicapped. He helped originate the cardboard boat races we enjoy each year. It seems sad that publishing is placed above all this.

Last but not least, Richard Archer is a superb teacher. Speaking as a senior who has been through the mill of SIU teachers, I can wholeheartedly say that Archer is one of those few teachers who stand out as knowledgeable, able to communicate and simply enjoyable to be taught by.

It seems even sadder that his notifying letter of termination is signed by our absent-prone vice president, Frank Horton, the Johnny Carson of the classroom. It certainly is a sad day when "publish or perish" is paramount to teaching and practical contributions. In this case, more people than just the students will suffer the loss.—Chris Forte, Senior, Pre-Dentistry and University Studies

A blow to the University

Not being a member of the Design Department, nor a design major, I have not had the opportunity to work with Richard Archer or get to know him well. However, as a journalism student, I conducted an interview with him for a class assignment. The resulting story was published in the DE and an updated version of the interview was carried by the St. Louis Globe Democrat.

During the time I talked with Archer, I couldn't help but be impressed with his intelligence, energy and forthrightness. His mind was quick and perceptive and he seemed to have a great concern for people. I greatly admired these qualities and I tried to convey a sense of them in the articles I wrote.

Thus it was with considerable consternation that I read in the newspaper that Archer, an acknowledged expert in alternative energy sources, was going to lose his position.

It does not seem to me that SIU has such an excess of good instructors that it can afford to furlough a winner of the Outstanding Teacher Award. I have not met anyone who could cast any doubt on Archer's reputation as a fine teacher, with a real concern for his students.

While I recognize that the University must have guidelines for the hiring and firing of professors, I must question its application in this case.

But even if one were to concede that his lack of publication gave the University some basis for its action, I must still maintain that it has done us all a great disservice. For, in an era when the United States and the rest of the industrialized world is caught between the rock of scarce fossil fuels and the hard place of nuclear wastes without adequate storage procedures, how can we afford to stifle one whose contribution to free us from this mess is so widely known? Ralph Nader has said that SIU is a leader in solar energy utilization. Can we afford to injure that claim?

I can only ask the administration what it thinks Buckminster Fuller would have to say about this matter. How can we, with one hand, give accolades to one man for his contribution to design and innovative thinking, while punishing another man who does the same thing?

The loss of Richard Archer will be a blow to the University. I am sure Archer will be able to find employment elsewhere, but it will surely inhibit his work. Can we afford to waste anymore time?—Gary K. Shepherd, Civil Service Employee

Recognizing the Pabst fan club

Children dressed in Halloween costumes? No, those wonderful incognito rowdies were fondly known as the Pabst's fan club. What would women's intercollegiate basketball games be without you fantastic people?

For those of you who have attended a game, or games, and listened to the never dying "We want Pabst!" you know what an energetic bunch they are.

The purpose of this letter is to give the fan club the recognition they deserve, and that which was denied them from our very own school paper (they were mentioned in a University of Missouri paper).

Listen here fan club, you'll never know just how much your dancing in the isles, artistic signs and letters, unprofessional and never-ending cheers meant to me. It certainly added color to the crowd as well as women's intercollegiate basketball. Yes, behind those dark incogs and under those interesting hats are very special people—a little off the wall maybe, but special. I wish I could take you all to DePaul with me.

For those of you who missed basketball season, you really missed the boat.—Kathy Pabst, Sophomore, Advertising

Housing must open ears to student complaints

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

The off-campus housing situation at SIU-C and in the Carbondale area is a mess.

That is the general impression many prospective sophomores, juniors and seniors get during every spring semester. Wanting to escape the noisy, crowded dorms, many students hope to find paradise (or a reasonable facsimile) off campus.

What do they find, however? Hell might be a better description than paradise. Greedy landlords, deteriorating physical conditions, faulty maintenance and skyrocketing rents seem to be the rule rather than the exception.

And, unless University Housing does something soon, things are going to get worse before they get better.

One might think that the situation is similar at many large state universities in Illinois and the Midwest. But a glance at the classified sections of university newspapers shows that off-campus housing in Carbondale is more costly than it is at most other regional universities.

At Indiana University in Bloomington, for example, a sampling shows that efficiency apartments can be rented for an average of $135 a month, one-bedroom apartments for $170 a month and two-bedroom apartments for $280 a month.

The costs are similar at Northern Illinois University, Eastern Illinois University, Western Illinois University and Illinois State University. Only the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana, which has long been famous for its tight housing, has off-campus costs that rival SIU's.

In Carbondale, most efficiency apartments seem to cost in the $140 to $170 a month range. One-bedroom apartments cost between $180 and $220 per month. Two-bedroom apartments run for between $360 and $420 per month.

This high rent would be tolerable if students, to quote a famous cliché, "get what they pay for." However, this often is not the case.

Thanks to a combination of poor insulation and Central Illinois Public Service utilities are at a premium. Many of the apartments are in need of paint, plumbing, wiring and other repairs.

With inflation spiraling at an annual rate of 18 percent, the already high rents can be expected to increase again in the future.

To Carbondale's credit, many houses and trailers in the area can be obtained at reasonable prices, such as $70 a J $80 a monthly per person. But many houses are located in poor neighborhoods and are old and deteriorating, while trailers are considered fire hazards and sometimes blow over in windy weather.

What to do? Obviously, University Housing must open its ears to student complaints. Perhaps organized student efforts would force University Housing to take action. Unfortunately, SIU students seem content to suffer through the sub-par conditions in silence.

With or without an organized student effort, however, Housing should crack down on off-campus housing centers. Threatening to remove approval of a particular building as an authorized off-campus housing center might help. Obviously, inspections must become tougher, as few off-campus sites recently have lost approval.

Whatever the methods, off-campus housing in Carbondale must be upgraded. With the pressure of classes, students deserve to be able to come home to a worry-free situation.

'Big one that got away' story can apply to concert booking

By Craig De'leze
Staff Writer

With a little luck, SIU-C concert-goers might have seen, among others, the Who, Todd Rundgren, Cheap Trick, Earth, Wind and Fire, Jefferson Starship, Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers, the Pretenders, the Outlaws, Kansas, Jimmy Buffett and Dan Fogelberg in Carbondale this year.

These are acts that Gary Drake and John Scott, SIU-C's two main concert promoters, either had scheduled or would have had scheduled this year if circumstances had permitted. Some were signed and lost. Others were very real possibilities.

The factors that kept these acts away, timing, routing conflicts, bigger halls and money elsewhere and groups scratching entire tours at the last minute, are all part of the concert-promoting game, Arena Director Drake admits. "It happens all the time," he said. "You can get frustrated and scream, but that wouldn't do any good."

At the Arena, Cheap Trick, Kansas, Fogelberg and Earth, Wind and Fire all looked like pretty sure things at one time, Drake said.

Kansas and Cheap Trick were lost to bigger halls. Fogelberg scrapped his entire tour and Earth, Wind and Fire, which was seemingly signed, sealed and delivered, cancelled due to a routing conflict.

Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge were a possibility for a booking at the Homecoming show, but they decided not to tour. Charley Pride was booked for November but cancelled also.

Another possibility, Drake said, was Foreigner, who cancelled in November of 1978 and promised to make the date up in April of this year.

However, the band cancelled its tour this year.

"So I guess that means they still owe us a show," he said. He said he had received the same promise from Kansas and Cheap Trick. But how much do those promises really mean? "Nothing at all," he answers. "That's the problem."

As for the Who, Drake said its management called looking to fill an open date in the Midwest. Though he promised to hold a date (May 2) open, he said he wasn't surprised when they went to Lexington, Ky. instead.

"It was one in a hundred, but we went to work and tried to get it," he said, adding that the relatively small size of the Arena has a lot to do with losing many big-name acts.

Drake said he turned down shots at the Outlaws and John Denver due to conflicts with other shows. And he was offered Jimmy Buffett for any of five dates, but they all fell within the week of spring break.

At the Student Programming Council Consorts Committee, Scott said a limited budget was a factor in missing several good acts. He said he worked on getting Rundgren for three months and that the show fell through three times, twice because he couldn't offer enough money and once because of routing.

Jefferson Starship and David Crosby both were lost because they wanted more money than Scott was willing to offer. And he turned down a chance at a Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers—Fabulous Poodles show because he didn't feel Petty was hot enough at the time.

"I'll take the blame for that one," he said. "Financially, it didn't seem like the smartest thing at the time, but I wouldn't have taken a bath, either."

Timing was another problem for Scott this year. With only 20 dates open at Shryock Auditorium, he said he missed a lot of good acts because he couldn't squeeze them in. Among these were Count Basie and Dizzy Gillespie.

Other acts that fell through for the Consorts Committee were the Crusaders, the Gap Band, the Pretenders (who chose to tour with the Who instead) and Arlo Guthrie.

Drake felt he had a very good year at the Arena even though there were many near-misses.

"It was a very good year for us, really. I think we had a fairly diversified line-up of talent," he said.

Scott wasn't as satisfied with the SPC line-up.

"The complaint I had with last year's shows was that there wasn't enough variety," he said. "I could have the same gripe for me this year."

Attendance-wise, both Drake and Scott were successful this year. Styx was the Arena's best-seller with 9,538 seats sold. It was followed by Marshall Tucker and Linda Ronstadt, with 7,916 and 7,800 sales respectively.

Three shows filled the 1,200-seat Shryock Auditorium this year. John Prine—Tom Bishop sold out the fastest, with the Talking Heads show close behind. Tom Waits also sold out and Southside Johnny—David Johansen missed by only 45 seats.

Marvin's ex-lover 'survives' one year after palimony case

By Linda Deutsch
Associated Press Writer

One year after her landmark court battle with her ex-lover Lee Marvin, Michelle Triola Marvin says she has found a new life as author, lecturer on women's rights and—most importantly—"survivor."

"I'm not over it by any means," she said of last year's "palimony" trial which involved her in often lurid testimony.

"But one of the things Lee loved about me is I'm a very positive person. I have a reasonably calm center."

"It didn't take me long to recover because I'm a survivor," she said and whispered again, "I'm a survivor."

But scars remain, she said. "About a month after the trial, I was brushing my hair and realized my hair had turned gray around the hairline. That really told me something. I turned gray from that trial."

Marvin now lives in a small, cozy apartment with a pet poodle. There is a new man in her life, but she declined to discuss the relationship.

She pays her bills with fees from lectures and a large advance she received on her autobiography to be published in 1981 by New American Library.

She insisted she has come to care more about the principle of the Marvin vs. Marvin case than about the money involved. She had sought $1.8 million and was awarded $104,000, which is being appealed by the actor.

"I don't think I ever noticed the thing about dollars and cents," she said. "That wasn't the point with me... I wanted everyone to understand why I was in court, and I don't think they do, even now."

The precedent of Marvin vs. Marvin has since led to similar suits across the country.

Thompson Point government faces problem of student involvement

By Greg Walsh
Student Writer

Student government at Thompson Point faces a problem common to many student governments—student unwillingness to get involved in activities which could benefit them, said Mark Hameister, president of the Thompson Point Executive Council (TPEC).

TPEC is comprised of presidents from all residence halls at Thompson Point and a representative from the Cultural Educational Activities Council (CEAC) and the Social Recreational Educational Council (SRAC).

Hameister, a sophomore in law enforcement, has lived at Thompson Point for two years.

"We have to go on what these 15 people on TPEC believe we need. But there are another 1,500 TPEC never hears from," he said.

"No one is interested," Hameister said. "Students don't think they have an effect on the university."

Hameister said that is because students do not see immediate results of what TPEC does. He said it takes at least a week after a problem begins to inform the university. And even then, there are no immediate results.

"This university is just a big maze of red tape. If you can find the right maze to get through, you're all set," he said.

For example, Hameister said, the biggest complaint this year concerned the installation of heating and air conditioning units in all Thompson Point halls.

Most of the complaints were about units blocking the hallways and old parts lying in the hall, said Hameister. This made it dangerous for residents walking in the halls and hard for disabled residents in wheelchairs to move freely, he said.

Hameister said he spoke with Sam Rinella, director of university housing, and Bruce Swinburne, vice president of student affairs, about the complaints. Both said their hands were tied because the workers are not employed by the university, Hameister said.

TPEC is now drafting an official letter of its "discontent" with the workers and the company installing the units, Hameister said. A copy of the letter will be sent to the chancellor, the SIU president, Swinburne and Rinella.

TPEC has been fighting internal problems as well as university "red tape," Hameister said.

TPEC, Hameister said, was originally allocated $3,000 from student housing fees. A few weeks after TPEC finished its fall budget, however, it received a $1,500 bill for new signs placed in front of Thompson Point halls the year before.

This was followed by another $1,500 bill for renovations done to the Lentz Hall sound room, also done the year before.

The previous council should have allocated funds for the bills, but failed to do so, Hameister said.

In addition, the TPEC secretary quit, and three student senators representing Thompson Point on the Undergraduate Student Organization resigned during the fall semester, leaving TPEC with virtually no input to the USO.

Despite these setbacks, Hameister said TPEC has attempted to provide activities for residents of Thompson Point. A trip to Six Flags in St. Louis, sponsored by East Campus Programming Board, a cartoon festival and a bridal fair have been sponsored by TPEC, CEAC or SRAC during spring.

"Is it too late to apply for 80-81 financial aid?"

SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA SWFA

The answer is: No, its not too late! May 1 was the priority date for the mailing of financial aid applications to assure full consideration and funding of aid requests from all available aid categories. Applications mailed after May 1 will be processed on a time-available and a fund-available basis. However, the financial aid package combinations offered to applicants who mailed the FFS after May 1 may be different, and in some cases less attractive, than those offered to before May 1 applicants. The difference is due to the limited aid funds in the National Direct Student Loan (NDSL), Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (SEOG), and Student to Student Grant (STS) aid categories. Adequate funds should continue to be available for Basic Grant, College Work Study, Illinois State Scholarship, and Guaranteed Loans.

Board urges financial aid reform, equal opportunity agency creation

By Chuck Hempstead
Staff Writer

Following two years of study, the 22-member Sloan Commission has announced recommendations for cooperation between the government and the nation's colleges and universities.

Two of the most important suggestions, according to Commission Chairman Louis Cabot, are the creation of a single federal agency to monitor equal opportunity laws currently enforced by eight separate agencies and the reform of federal financial aid programs "to ensure that grants are reserved for poor students, while loans are used to widen choices of institutions by students and families of all incomes."

SJU Chancellor Kenneth Shaw said that what bothered him about the Sloan Commission report was the recommendation to establish task forces to review programs at public institutions to insure accountability and recommend termination of non-productive programs.

"I found an anomaly between reviewing public schools and not reviewing private schools when they recommend giving public dollars to private schools," Shaw said. "It's not logical."

Another finding of the report reads "Academics have been pioneers in calling for change in other social institutions, but have not always been ahead of society in changing their own."

Shaw said, "The first part is true. We're supposed to analyze society. The second part is a generalization that is not necessarily true. This campus has seen great change in the last ten years, especially during the Brandt-Horton administration."

The commission, financed by the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation of New York, endorses "funding for academic research (to) incorporate a modest degree of long-term real growth, and that procedures protect the research enterprise from fluctuations in funding levels from year to year."

To facilitate research, the report recommends, $100 million should be allocated for 1,000 National Post-Doctoral Research Fellowships. An additional $50 million would be divided annually between the National Science Foundation and the National Institutes of Health to update university research laboratories and equipment.

Regarding the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program, the report recommends that appropriations be large enough that every eligible student can receive the full amount of the award, and that Congress adjust the maximum award to reflect changes in the consumer price index. Students should contribute at least $500 a year toward their education, the commission reported.

Stolen articles found in dorm room; Wilson Hall roommates arrested

By Leanne Waxman
Staff Writer

Two Wilson Hall roommates were arrested recently after stolen property from four of seven burglaries at that off-campus residence hall was recovered in their dormitory room, police said.

Gaylor F. Gray, 19, a freshman in general studies, and Angelo J. Pierce, 19, a freshman in liberal arts, were arrested last Friday after a student resident assistant, who was conducting a routine room check, noticed a color television set that had been reported stolen by another Wilson Hall resident.

Wilson Hall is a University freshman-approved residence hall located at 1101 S. Wall St. The SRA reported the incident to police. According to Carbondale Police Lt. Jerry Reno, when police were given permission by Pierce to enter the room they found stereo equipment, calculators, mens' jewelry, bicycle parts, and a TV antenna that had been reported stolen by Wilson Hall residents over the last month.

Both men were charged with possession of stolen property Monday in Jackson County Circuit Court. Bond was set at $1,500 but both were housed in the Jackson County Jail Tuesday afternoon pending $100 bail. Gray and Pierce will be represented by public defenders and a preliminary hearing is scheduled for May 22 at 11 a.m.

Although several of the recovered items have already been identified by Wilson Hall residents, police are holding most of the recovered property pending identification by owners, Reno said.

The men have been charged with a class III felony, a charge that carries a sentence of two to five years or probation, according to a spokeswoman for the Jackson County State's Attorneys office.

Stevenson wants out of Senate; says it fails to address issues

Editor's note: Michael Monson, the author of this article, interviewed U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson in Washington. Monson, a journalism-political science student, is on an internship there. The first part of his interview with Stevenson appeared in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian.

By Michael Monson
Student Writer

Sometime in 1978, Adlai Stevenson III grew tired of the "politics as usual" attitude that he felt was leading the nation to ruin.

Stevenson, who is not seeking another term as a Democratic U.S. Senator from Illinois, seems an unlikely candidate for retirement. His main reason for retiring, it seems, is disillusionment. Simply put, he feels that he can be more effective elsewhere than in the Senate. Stevenson has come to believe that the Senate as an institution lacks significance, and that it has failed to address the major issues of the day. He wants out.

In person, however, Stevenson does not come across as a bitter man. His comments are punctuated with a wry sense of humor.

Q. Howard Baker speaks of a need for a "return to civility" in politics. Two years ago, the other senator from Illinois, Charles Percy, faced a brutal reelection campaign against Alex Seith. Do you feel that politics is increasingly becoming a jungle that no one wants to enter?

A. No. If you look back, that's not the problem, and in fact, I thought the campaign against Sen. Percy was pretty soft. Our standards change or perhaps we have different standards for different politicians. Looked at historically, even in the context of my own campaign in 1970 (against Ralph Smith, who received help from, among others, Spiro Agnew) that campaign was milk-toast.

I don't know what civility means. It think it might be wiser to suggest that we begin talking sense again and restore some excellence to our government, even if we don't do so in ways that are civil. I don't know what that means exactly. I think of politics as combat, a place for the combat of ideas. Now it's reduced to a game where nothing counts except winning. You turn the television on at night and all you hear is the latest score in this game, the score of Puerto Rico or Iowa!

Q. I call the Washington Star (a paper noted for its emphasis on the primaries) the track sheet.

A. Well, it's appalling. Some healthy combat, even in uncivil terms, but involving ideas and some notions about where you want to take the country, and therefore the world, seems to me what we need most.

For evidence, all we have to do is look at other countries that are trying them.

Q. I was going to ask you about that. Do you have a particular Western industrial democracy in mind? You sound like you're describing Japan.

A. Well, I think all of our problems are common problems. We're still advantaged to a degree that the Japanese and Europeans are not, but there are common problems and can only be common solutions to them. Most of the answers would involve cooperation.

The Japanese offer the best example of what a country can do by itself to maintain high levels of growth with low levels of inflation and it's not with our conventional economic wisdom, but with the antithesis of our economic wisdom.

The Japanese government ran a budget deficit of $62 billion last year. That's more than the combined deficits of the United States, France, Britain, and West Germany combined. The Germans spend about 42 percent of their total gross national product through the government. By our wisdom, those policies are prescriptions for raging inflation, but what happened? They have rates of inflation that are a fraction of ours. The Japanese inflation rate was 4.9 percent last year.

What it suggests to me is that what matters is not just how much you spend but how you spend it. The Japanese don't bail out corporate basket-cases like Chrysler, they invest in semi-conductors or bio-engineering. They'll slough off excess capacity in the steel industry and invest in ocean sea-bed mining, outer space, and new materials. They're moving into the future. They have an export strategy, as well as an industrial strategy. They assure capital and at low-interest rates for the production facilities, the development of the products, and the marketing for vital, wealth-generating, job-generating industries of the future. We may be going the other way, the British way.

So, look, I don't suggest to you that you emulate, you try to replicate, Japan. But I do suggest that we can learn something from the experience of other countries and begin to develop our own industrial strategies, our own food policy for the world, our own export strategy, and ultimately and most important of all, a cooperative effort to develop the institutions for trade, for payments and development of financing and for money that all nations, including our own, will require if they are to prosper in the future. It helps you very little to be competitive in this competitive world if the world itself is without money, without credit, and rocked from El Salvador to East Timor by violence.

Woman raped in 500 block of Lewis Lane

A 22-year-old Carbondale woman was raped late Monday night as she jogged in the 500 block of Lewis Lane, according to police.

The woman and her husband were jogging north along Lewis Lane at about 11 p.m. Her husband ran ahead, and when she did not return home he went back to the area and found her lying in a field alongside the street, police said.

The woman reported to police that she had been grabbed from behind, dragged into the field and raped. Police said the man was armed with a workmen's tool, but declined to identify the weapon. The man fled east on foot.

The woman had been struck in the face by her assailant and was taken to the Carbondale Memorial Hospital for treatment. Police have one suspect.

'Moonies' meeting on campus, plan summer recruiting trips

By Erick Howenstine
Staff Writer

When walking from the SIU Arena to the Technical Building one day, you might just drop in on a meeting of "Moonies."

Beneath a manhole cover located between the two buildings is a small, well-lit room. The ceiling light fixtures are spray-painted red and a sign on the wall proclaims the office to be SIU's CARP headquarters.

The Collegiate Association for the Research of Principles is a front group for Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church cult, often referred to as "Moonies."

Steven Hassan, the president of Ex-Members Against Moon, said CARP recruiters are active in "literally scores" of schools and may be at SIU soon.

Hassan has an insider's knowledge of the Moon organization. He is a former member and was the founder and director of a CARP branch at a New York university for about eight months.

CARP is planning to promote a vacation to either Boulder or Denver, Colorado, or upstate New York for the end of June or early July, Hassan said.

During the vacation, which is priced "irresistibly low," Hassan maintains the Unification Church's legendary mind control procedures go into full swing.

Cut off from the world, you are bombarded with attention, excitement, marathon lectures, singing, athletics—all nonstop—with no time to slow down and collect your thoughts, ex-members say.

At night in most Moon centers, they say, while recruits sleep, the leaders review what they've learned about each potential member, including his doubts and weak points.

The vacation-seminars, Hassan said, are usually held at remote, isolated locations from which it is difficult to escape.

One such seminar, held in Florida last Christmas, was advertised as "fun, sun and surf" for only $20 to $30.

Two hundred and fifty East Coast and Midwest college students soon found themselves at a YMCA camp in the swampy forest in central Florida. The camp had accommodations for only 175.

A CARP spokesman said the site was chosen because "we couldn't find a place on the beach."

As the Florida retreat progressed, local police carried away squad car loads of students who wanted to leave. Some told reporters, "It was like a prison," and, "Whenever we stood around talking (they) would be around like spies to hear what subjects we were talking about, what our feelings were. We were pressured to talk about the lectures."

CARP has a number of different styles of approach, Hassan said. Sometimes it appears to be a social club, sometimes as a right-wing extremist group. Recently, CARP has been disrupting anti-draft registration rallies and has been distributing a right wing paper called the "World Student Times," Hassan said.

Moon once said, "I think we will get on campuses and be successful there first. Once we can control two or three universities, then we will be on the way to controlling the reins of certification for the major professions in the United States."

"Before long ... we will influence the whole of the United States by influencing the intellectuals first. We are going to use them as the basis for the political world."

"For some unknown reason, they didn't accept the offer. They just said it was not a satisfactory contract," Ehlers said.

Ehlers said he does not know when negotiations will resume. The wage increase proposed by the Ozark would raise the hourly pay of the mechanics to $15.31 over a 36-month period, or to more than $31,000 per year.

Ehlers said other Ozark employees have been laid off until an agreement can be reached with the mechanics.

Allen Douglas, manager of the Williamson County airport, said his five co-workers at the office have been laid off. Douglas is the only one who is still working at the office.

Staff council gets six new members

Six new members of the Administrative and Professional Staff Council have been announced by Inge Rader, chairwoman of the elections committee.

Representing academic affairs, the largest of the six sectors comprising the council, will be Mary Goss, an adviser to general studies. Ron Blosser, coordinator for Specialized Student Services, will represent administrators and professional staff in University Relations, and Pamela Speer, assistant to the associate dean of academic affairs at the School of Medicine in Springfield, will represent that school.

Deborah Perry, field representative for Admissions and Records, was elected to represent the Judicial Review Board.

The Administrative and Professional Staff Council represents about 350 employees of the University who are not included in other constituencies, according to Sam McVay, council chairman.

Ozark flights grounded by striking union

By Diana Penner Staff Writer

Ozark Airlines has suspended all operations through May 12 due to a walkout of our maintenance personnel. We regret any inconvenience this may cause, and ask for your patience during this time.

Prospective travelers calling Ozark Airlines for reservations this week are being greeted with this recording (Ozark was forced to close ticket counters and suspend flights in about 20 states after negotiations between the airline and the Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association broke down early Tuesday morning.

Charles R. Ehlers, spokesman for Ozark, said the talks with the union broke off at about 3 a.m. The airline has been negotiating with the union for about 14 months, Ehlers said.

According to Ehlers, a wage dispute is the main point of controversy for the mechanics. Representatives of the mechanics union have stated they want a 38 percent wage increase and charged that the airline refused to meet the demand, Ehlers said.

Representatives of the St. Louis-based union could not be reached for comment.

Ehlers said Ozark offered the mechanics a 38.6 percent wage increase plus medical insurance, sick leave and vacation benefits during the talk early Tuesday.

"For some unknown reason, they didn't accept the offer. They just said it was not a satisfactory contract," Ehlers said.

Ehlers said he does not know when negotiations will resume. The wage increase proposed by the Ozark would raise the hourly pay of the mechanics to $15.31 over a 36-month period, or to more than $31,000 per year.

Ehlers said other Ozark employees have been laid off until an agreement can be reached with the mechanics.

Veek's imagination is back; Sox using lefthanded catcher

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO (AP)—When Mike Squires, a left-handed first baseman, took over as catcher in the ninth inning Sunday there was more than a slight suspicion that White Sox President Bill Veeck's imaginative mind was at work. "You might say I had something to do with it," Veeck admits. "Why not a left-handed catcher? Why not a left-handed shortstop, or third baseman? The only position I'd rule out is second base for the obvious throwing disadvantage. "I'd say a lefthander at short breaks even and while a left-handed third baseman might be at a disadvantage on a slow roller, he has the advantage in the ninth inning when he has to protect the line," said Veeck. "He doesn't have to play as close to the bag because his glove already is there."

When Squires went behind the plate against Milwaukee in an 11-1 loss, he became the first lefthanded catcher in the major leagues since 1958, when Dale Long, another first baseman, took the position briefly for the Chicago Cubs. The Milwaukee Brewers did have runners on base, first Paul Molitor, a base-stealing expert, and then Mark Brouhard, but no attempt was made to steal on Squires. "What for?" said Milwaukee Manager Buck Rodgers. "We were leading 11-1. Why should I risk an injury just to test him? If they put him there in a one-run game, which I don't expect they'd do, yes, we would test him." Veeck insists there aren't that many disadvantages to having a left-handed catcher, although most baseball people insist he would be at a disadvantage on the throw to second base with a right-handed batter at the plate. And there are more righthanders hitting than lefthanders. "But the left-handed catcher has the advantage when the lefthander is batting," said Veeck. "The reason you don't see lefthanders catching or playing short or third is that kids are taught lefthanders can play only certain positions and that's the way it remains," said Veeck. "But you do see some right-handed first baseman and there have been some pretty good ones, too." The experiment of Squires catching began in spring training after the Sox were unable to trade for a catcher during the winter, and before Bruce Kimm nailed down the job.

Salukis had just one home meet, against Lincoln College, this year. In last season's home meet against Big Ten power Indiana, a Hoosier relay team was disqualified when one of its members stepped over a faded lane line. The miscue cost Indiana the meet, and afterward, IU Coach Sam Bell said his team never would run at SIU again. "The reason his guy cut across was that he couldn't see the line," Hartzog said. The coach added that the Salukis, who ran at IU this year, will travel to Bloomington again next year because, "I don't want Sam running here next year." SIU also is scheduled to host the Missouri Valley Conference meet in 1981. "We can't run it here unless something is done," Hartzog said.

Much of the problem, according to Hartzog, is that cars, trucks and vans are allowed to drive on the track during football practices and games. The track has been built to accommodate 150-pound athletes, not two-ton motorized vehicles, and the resulting pounding contributes to the cracks and faded lines. "I probably should not say this," Hartzog said, "but I do not want to use our budget to repaint the lines. The lines have been worn off the west straightaway by the traffic going to the football locker room." Hartzog has attempted to stop the flow of traffic, but to no avail. "I have to be a jerk and get unpleasant with them daily," he said. What to do about the facility's poor condition? The ideal solution would be a new, eight-lane track, but one of those would cost a considerable amount of money—money the SIU athletics program just doesn't have. Hartzog will settle for a resurfaced version of the current six-lane layout. "The big hope is that we can have it resurfaced," he said. "I know I'm not going to get an eight-lane track." "To come back over and smooth out the track, fill the holes and repaint it—I think that can be done very economically," he added. Hartzog added that the track's uneven surface is hurting the legs and feet of the Salukis, and has contributed to cases of shin splints. If for no other reason, the facility should be resurfaced. A track should enhance an athlete's physical condition, not detract from it. Still think you can find something nice to say about the McAndrew Stadium track? If so, your positive comments may be the only ones.

place, but a couple of guys were bunched in third and fourth, so I was No. 5. Nevertheless, fifth place and a spot on the All-MVC team is nothing to scoff at. Poshard is happy to be a part of that select group. But for all the individual benefits, Poshard likes a more team-oriented approach to a very individualized sport.

"It's true that golf is pretty individualized," Poshard admitted. "But especially in high school or college, you want the entire team to do well, then you can share the feeling."

Southern Synchers play Monopoly

By Randy Schoeck
Student Writer

The Southern Synchers took the game of "Monopoly" underwater at the Student Recreation Center pool during their annual swim show, entitled "Play Monopoly."

The Synchers, a group of 25 women and one man, performed water ballet skits based on various parts of a Monopoly board before crowds of about 200 both Friday and Saturday nights.

The skits were introduced by four women sitting at pool side playing Monopoly. The skits differed in style, size and country of origin.

"Some of the skits were floating compositions. They were done more on the surface, while others had more underwater movements," said club president Dottie Hanck, a researcher for the SIU Medical School.

Some of the skits featured large numbers of people, such as the finale, which had the entire club participating. Some of the skits were small, such as two solos, one by Carbondale Community High School student Lori Pederson and one by Mary Heitman, graduate student in higher education. The two also participated in a duet.

Another skit featured a Japanese flavor, as the three girls swam with hand fans, which are common in Japanese culture.

"We have people with a variety of abilities," Hanck said. "We tried to show off the best qualities of all the swimmers."

She said the women who swam in the smallest compositions were the ones who ranked highest when the club rated itself at the beginning of the semester.

Two of the skits were performed when the Synchers traveled to a workshop in Colorado in February. One was the duet by Heitman and Pederson, called "From A Common Seed," and the other, "Three on Two," was choreographed by Heitman.

Cubs blanked by Padres, 4-0

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Fahey drove in two runs with a single and a bases-loaded walk, one of 11 base on balls delivered by Chicago Cub pitchers, and Randy Jones allowed five hits Tuesday to lead the San Diego Padres to a 4-0 victory.

The victory was the sixth in last seven games for the Padres, who evened their record at 12-12.

Jones, 2-2, picked up his first shutout and complete game of the season. Loser Willie Hernandez, 1-2, yielded only two hits but issued eight walks.

Hernandez walked Aurelio Rodriguez and Barry Evans with two out in the second before Fahey singled for the Padres' first run. Hernandez walked Gene Richards and Paul Dade to open the fifth and was relieved by Bill Caudill.

Dave Winfield greeted Caudill with a run-scoring double, and two outs later pinch-batter

The only problem Illner sees in using McAndrew Stadium is a possible conflict with a scheduled football game against West Texas State Nov. 22. But she feels adjustments could be made.

"Even though there is a football game that Saturday, I think we could work something out," Illner said. "We could have some kind of dual promotion where the field hockey championship game could be played at 10 in the morning with the football game coming right after that."

Deterding tabbed as WIA's top athlete

Robin Deterding capped a brilliant four-year SIU career Monday evening by winning three awards at the Women's Intercollegiate Athletics Awards banquet in Ballrooms A and B of the Student Center.

Deterding was voted the Woman Athlete of the Year and the Outstanding Leader, and shared the Virginia Gordon Memorial Award with fellow senior Lynne Williams.

The Outstanding Scholar

Award, given to the senior female athlete with the best grade-point average, went to Theresa Burgard, a member of the track team.

Deterding, a native of Granite City, has competed for the Salukis in basketball, softball and volleyball, concentrating on the latter two this year. She was named to the all-state team in volleyball, and made the all-state tournament team in softball. She batted .339 while playing shortstop.

Williams, from Costa Mesa, Cal., was a guard from the basketball team and played catcher on the softball team. Burgard, a native of Ypsilanti, Mich., is a middle-distance runner for the track squad.

Along with Deterding, the three finalists for the Woman Athlete of the Year award were Lindy Nelson, track and cross country; Julia Warner, diving; and Pam Harrington, gymnastics. All three will return next year.

SIU becomes likely candidate to host field hockey tournament

By Dave Kane

The 1980 Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Division I field hockey championship has a good chance of being hosted by SIU, according to women's field hockey Coach Julie Illner.

Illner said SIU has submitted its bid to host the meet to the AIAW, which will hold its meeting this week to determine the home school.

"We submitted a bid earlier this week," Illner said, "but we won't know anything until at least Friday."

The national championships, to be held Nov. 19-22, would involve 16 division I teams, with each region in the country sending at least one team. Since SIU would be hosting the championship, it would automatically be admitted to the 16-team field.

"SIU would be in it no matter what," Illner said, "but we want to qualify. We've qualified for the national championships two of the last three years, so I think we'll have a good chance."

It would be another in a series of national collegiate championships that have come to Carbondale in recent years. The most recent, of course, was the AIAW volleyball championships held at the Arena last December. National women's gymnastics have come to Carbondale often, with the United States Gymnastics Federation Championships in 1974 and last month's Collegiate Classic.

Men's national championships, however, have taken a leave of absence from the SIU campus, with the last coming in 1967 when both NCAA tennis and gymnastics championships were hosted by SIU.

The fact that SIU has two field hockey facilities makes Illner optimistic that the single elimination tournament will come to Carbondale.

"One reason we considered hosting this tournament is because we have a fairly large stadium with an astro turf field," Illner said. "And since there will be a winners' and losers' bracket determined after the first round, the winners' bracket games could be played at McAndrew Stadium while the losers' bracket games could be played at the field near the Wham Building."

All-MVC golfer has ups and downs

By Dave Kane
Staff Writer

Although he was named to the All-Missouri Valley Conference golf team via his fifth-place finish in last weekend's conference tournament in Terre Haute, Ind., SIU's Butch Poshard is thinking about what could have been.

Going into the tournament, and even after the first two rounds, "Great Expectations" was a fitting title for Poshard's tournament outlook. After shooting a five-over-par 77 at Hulman Links Thursday morning, the Carmi junior turned around and tied the course record with a two-under par 70 Thursday afternoon.

"That round Thursday afternoon was a fantastic effort on Butch's part," SIU Coach Walt Siemsglusz said. "And it's that much more impressive when you consider it was the second of two 18-hole rounds he had to play in one day."

With the super round Thursday afternoon, Poshard found himself in the unexpected and unfamiliar role of being in the lead in his team's most important tournament of the year. Then came Friday and the third round. Poshard was paired with All-American Rod Nuckolls of Wichita State.

"For some reason, I got awfully nervous," Poshard admitted. "I was missing the short putts and began hitting some of my drives into the woods. I was still in the lead until the 13th hole on the back nine, but those butterflies finally caught up with me."

Siemsglusz felt the leader position Poshard found himself in was difficult to handle when one considered the magnitude of it all.

"It was our biggest journey of the year, and when you realize what's at stake when you've never been in that position before, it's understandable that you might get a little shaky," the coach said.

"Butch also got paired up with a super player in Nuckolls, one guy is really a tremendous golfer. You can't help but be a little bit in awe of him."

Poshard agreed that it was a new experience.

"I've won tourneys before, but mostly in high school," Poshard explained. "But ever since I've been in college, I've put a lot more pressure on myself and I've never done that well in a college tournament."

"I said to myself, 'Here I am, leading going into the third round.' I wasn't sure how to approach it."

The approach Poshard used in the third round Friday wasn't exactly what he had in mind. He struggled home with an 82. He was down, but was determined not to be completely out.

"Even after the way I played Friday, I thought I still would get second place if I would shot around 74 or so Saturday. (He shot another 77 for a 306 total.) As it turned out, I was only two strokes away from second

It's impossible to praise SIU's crumbling track

If you can think of something good to say about the McAndrew Stadium track, you've proven just how much of an optimist you are.

The 10-year-old facility, built in 1970, has cracks throughout its rubber and asphalt surface. Grass and weeds grow in some of the cracks. The track also has holes of varying sizes. It seems ridiculous to use the term "pothole" in connection with a running surface but it is applicable here.

The lines used to mark the lanes on the track are faded, especially in the area adjacent to McAndrew Stadium's west bleachers.

Like another facility recently dealt with in this column, Davies Gym, the McAndrew Stadium track is crumbling rapidly. Athletes from other universities look at the track and laugh.

If opposing athletes are laughing, SIU men's track Coach Lew Hartzog is crying. Hartzog, a 20-year veteran who consistently turns out teams that finish in the top 20 nationally, agreed with a reporter's assessment that the Salukis running on the track is like UCLA's basketball team playing in, well, Davies Gym. "It is a disgrace to this University," Hartzog said. "We have the worst university track in America."

Hartzog has been able to overcome SIU's lack of an indoor track in his recruiting efforts, but he said the worn McAndrew track is an almost impossible obstacle to clear. "Recruiting is impossible," he said. "I can't get by without a track. When you have a program that is first-class, you have to have some semblance of a facility to go on."

The University of Illinois long has out-recruited SIU in Illinois. Hartzog said, and with the Salukis' deteriorating track, Illinois State, Eastern Illinois and Western Illinois also are getting better athletes from the state.

"We still have the top program," he said. "It's despite the track."

SIU was able to attract track powers such as Oklahoma State, Kansas and Kansas State to Carbondale in the late 1960s, Hartzog said, but the number of teams willing to run on SIU's facility now is dwindling. The

Ruggers complete best season

The SIU Men's Rugby Club extended its winning streak to eight as it shut out the Western Illinois club last weekend, 28-0. The ruggers ended their spring season with a 10-1 record—the club's best ever.

The Salukis' season officially closes Saturday with the annual Old Loads Game at 11 a. m. The game pits the present club against the club's alumni.

"This could be our toughest game of the year," Coach Bobby Morgan said.

"Many of the graduated players have stayed in the sport, playing on teams like the Chicago Lions, Evansville All-Whites and the St. Louis teams," Morgan added. "They should be able to put together a very good all-star team."

In the game against WIU, the Salukis struck early when Morgan scored before two minutes had elapsed on the clock. Jimmy Wilson, Dave Hanetho and Jim Misch also scored tries and John Glotzbach added three conversions and a penalty kick to give SIU a 25-0 halftime lead.

In the second half, Glotzbach added a penalty kick to close out the Salukis' scoring.

Morgan said hard work and dedication are the reasons for the club's success.

"We've been practicing four times a week since Feb. 4," Morgan said. "The guys on the team wanted to do well and they have."

Morgan said the ruggers may have to use next fall season for rebuilding because several starters will graduate, but he added that the club has good depth and should be respectable next spring.

SIU's "B" team also played and recorded a shutout. Greg Larson led the Salukis' scoring with a try and two conversions. Bill Economos and Matt Hildegard added tries and Mike Izerski added a conversion to give the Salukis their 22-0 win.
