Committee refuses new election

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization election commission has failed to find cause to hold new student elections, and Trojan Party presidential candidate Lamont Brantley said he won't appeal the ruling.

Brantley's complaint, filed April 19, demanded a new election due to alleged improprieties by the Action Party and the election commissioner. His 13-point protest "had some substance," but not enough to warrant a new election, according to Franco Laterza, USO election commissioner.

"Election commission decisions were not prejudicial to either party, and the Trojan's complaints and allegations were unfounded and made only after initial vote counts indicated Brantley was losing," Laterza said Wednesday.

Brantley said Sunday that he was not appealing his complaints to the Campus Judicial Board for Governance because that would serve only to "drag the process out over the summer." He said that, although his complaints were valid, he was giving up his protest "for the good of the organization."

"I don't agree with the decision of the election commission on the complaints," Brantley said, but added that it would be logistically impossible to have a judicial board hearing and another USO election by the end of the semester.

The election of Action Party candidates Andy Leighton and Jack Cranley as USO president and vice president and 36 senators was confirmed by the Student Senate on Wednesday, after a walkout of 10 Trojan senators failed to deny the senate of a quorum. The resolution to approve the election passed 11 to 1 with one abstention.

Council may seek ruling on bond issue

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council will decide on Monday whether to request a ruling by the Internal Revenue Service on the legality of a proposed $14 million bond issue for construction of a downtown hotel and conference center.

Carbondale developer Stan Hoyer proposed the bond issue last week as a means of financing construction of the trouble-plagued downtown conference center and parking garage.

Federal regulations limit the amount of industrial revenue bonds that can be issued on a single project for a single developer to $10 million, according to information provided to the council.

The city currently has a bond issue outstanding for downtown redevelopment which will be automatically recalled in December. However, if the second bonds are issued, the federal limit would be exceeded until the first bonds are recalled.

Hoyer has requested that the city seek a ruling by the IRS on the legality of the bond issue. U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-

Makanda, has said that he will assist the city in obtaining a quick ruling from the IRS.

A memo to the council from Donald Monty, director of community development, said that authorization to seek the IRS ruling does not mean that the city is reacting favorably to Hoyer's offer.

Since the cost of preparing a review for the council on the bond issuance would be lengthy and costly, the city should wait for the IRS' decision before pursuing the matter. Monty's memo states:

Hoyer has proposed building a 240-room hotel with a 1,500-seat conference center with proceeds from the bonds. Hoyer has asked the city to guarantee

Large turnout for El Salvador elections

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Despite scattered fighting around the country, large numbers of Salvadorans turned out Sunday for the presidential runoff election, which appeared largely free of the chaos marring the first round of voting.

Running for election were the top vote-getters in the March balloting: Former President Jose Napoleon Duarte, a centrist Christian Democrat, and Roberto d'Aubuisson, a former army major accused of links to rightist death squads.

Duarte, 58, has vowed to seek negotiations with the leftist guerrillas battling the government. D'Aubuisson, 40, vows to defeat them on the battlefield if he is elected to the five-year term.

Near the city of San Miguel, shots were fired at two helicopters carrying U.S. Ambassador Thomas R. Pickering, two congressmen, other U.S. election observers and reporters, according to U.S. officials who asked not to be identified. The aircraft, carrying reporters was hit and slightly damaged, but no one was hurt, they said.

On board with Pickering were Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., Rep. G. V. Montgomery, D-Miss., and other observers.

At least six bombs exploded in San Salvador, and rebel sabotage briefly blacked out half the country, including the capital.

But the voting appeared to be free of the bungling that kept about 200,000 of 1.8 million eligible voters from casting ballots in the first round on March 25.

Council officials said they do not expect to have any significant results before

1 a.m. Monday.

Guerrilla snipers in San Miguel opened fire at dawn from the cathedral and National Theater on the main plaza, where the city's voting materials were stored.

An army patrol scattered the rebels, killing six and capturing two, during an hour-long battle. Lt. Col. Domingo Monterrosa, the military commander for eastern El Salvador, told The Associated Press. He said the voting materials were retrieved

Panel to consider financial aid changes

By Phillip Florini
Staff Writer

A congressional panel is expected to act on a new five-year blueprint for U.S. higher education policy that would restructure federal student aid and college development programs to boost access and quality.

The House Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education has scheduled three sessions early this week to consider the Higher Education Act Amendments of 1984, HR 5240, written by U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, chairman of the panel. The plan is to rewrite the Higher Education Act — the charter of all federal higher education policy — which expires at the end of 1985.

Under the bill, students would have a wider availability to Pell Grant financial assistance, "with a higher ceiling reflecting the several rising college costs," said Marcia Wice, a Simon press aide.

Pell Grant eligibility would also be extended to a fifth year for students pursuing advanced studies, she said Friday.

The 350-page bill would eliminate the 5 percent loan origination fee, which was established by the Reagan administration under the Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

It would also eliminate the "delays and yearly fluctuations that have plagued publication of the Family Contribution Schedule and other eligibility standards" for federal aid, she said.

Wice said more emphasis would be placed on cooperative educational programs, combining occupation-related work experience with a student's curriculum.

She said, however, that it was possible the plan could still be redrafted during this week's sessions, which were originally scheduled for last week.

Simon is pushing for an entitlement aid plan under which all students would be eligible for aid, "like Social Security," she said.

"Simon wants that," she said, "but it may not be in the new bill."

For colleges and universities, the bill would simplify the student aid delivery system "by allowing campuses to put together the package so students would only deal with one source," said Wice.

That package deal, she said, would be aided through one block grant, rather than three or four, for the different aid programs.

Research facilities and libraries would be enhanced by the bill, which would also foster endowment building to improve quality, she said.

It would also encourage faculty study and teaching abroad, and outreach through a new Urban Grant University Program, help aid colleges through a new Black College and University Act, and provide the first direct aid to Hispanic schools, Wice said.

Elementary and secondary school classrooms would also be affected by the bill, she said, by implementing recommendations from the U.S. Merit Pay Task Force, which is made up of educators, parents, administrators and lawmakers, she said.

The task force, in a 13-point report seven months ago, suggested that 10,000 scholarships — 23 in each congressional district — be made available to the top 5 percent of high school graduates, regardless of financial need.

To "repay" the scholarships, she said, students would be required to teach two years for each year of scholarship aid.

The bill would also initiate a national program of university-run summer institutes and workshops, offering training to 200,000 school teachers each year in advanced subjects, emerging technologies and teaching skills, she said.

It would also create "Talented Teacher Fellowships" to reward and nurture outstanding teachers in the classroom.

Ex-president faces economist in Panama presidential race

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — In their first direct presidential election in 16 years, Panamanians chose Sunday between an 82-year-old former president who was ousted three times, and a younger man who has the powerful military's blessing.

Candidate Arnulfo Arias Madrid, a political legend in Panama, was elected three times before, but was overthrown each time by the military — the last time in 1968. A major issue of the campaign has been concern that the military, of which he is a fierce critic, might step in again if he wins a fourth term.

Arias' major opponent is Nicolas Ardito-Barletta, a 45-year-old economist supported by a coalition that includes the official Revolutionary Democratic Party founded by the late Gen. Omar Torrijos. Torrijos ran the government directly or indirectly from the 1968 coup until his death in a 1981 plane crash.

Arias' coalition includes his own Authentic Panamanian Party and the Christian Democrats.

The military-controlled government decided last year to hold the direct elections after being pressured by opposition political parties.

The campaign was vociferous but peaceful, and Panamanians calmly formed long lines under cloudy skies and cool morning temperatures Sunday to cast their votes. Five candidates from smaller parties also were in the race for the civilian presidential post.

Officials had said they expected about 700,000 of the country's 1.9 million people to vote. Voting is not compulsory in Panama.

On the eve of the election, President Jorge Illueca called for free and peaceful elections and asked "those who govern and the governed not to give reasons to disturb" the electoral process.

Illueca, who took office in February after the surprise resignation of Ricardo de la Esparilla, is not running for another term. Panamanian law prohibits presidents from serving consecutive terms.

Ardito-Barletta has denied that he is the candidate of the military, but acknowledges his candidacy was encouraged by the 15,000-member Defense Forces.

"I do not carry the luggage of 30 years of conflict with the military," he said, referring to Arias' differences with the military establishment.

The Defense Forces are led by Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, the effective arbitrator of Panamanian politics because of the military's control over many government functions.

One reason de la Esparilla reportedly resigned is that he refused to let the government be used to further Ardito-Barletta's campaign.

Noriega said the campaign had been nonviolent. In a televised speech Saturday night, he said that citizens had "arrived at this date without hatred or rancor in the peace we all want to preserve in the face of suffering and war in other countries of the region."

During the campaign Arias criticized government corruption, maintaining that it takes place under the protection of the Defense Forces.

Arias, who has said the military establishment amounts to a dictatorship, was overthrown in 1968 after holding office only 11 days.

and distributed so polls could open on time.

Juan Argueta, listening to the thud of artillery fire as he waited in line to vote, said, "It's nothing new; we're used to it. The cannons are firing just to keep things calm."

One of the six bombs heard overnight in the capital hit the Christian Democratic Party headquarters, but police said no one was hurt and damage was minor.

Gas overcharges to be refunded

WASHINGTON (AP) — A program for refunding an estimated $1 billion in natural gas overcharges the past five years has been approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Still in doubt, however, is the manner in which those refunds from gas producers to pipeline companies and local distributors will find their way to the 45 million American families who heat their homes with the fuel.

Legislature lets amendments die

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Two proposed constitutional amendments aimed at making the state pay a greater share of the cost of education and local government won't make it to the November ballot for consideration by voters.

The amendments would have to be approved last week to appear on the ballot, but the state Senate adjourned without considering the amendment that would have required the state to pay at least half of the cost of public education.

The House failed to approve the amendment that would have restricted the state's power to force local governments to pay for state-mandated programs.

Prof predicts win for Duarte

By Chris Ogbondah
Staff Writer

An SIU-C political science faculty member who specializes in Central American politics predicted victory for Napoleon Duarte in Sunday's run-off elections in El Salvador. William Garner, associate professor in political science, said Duarte would win by about 10 percent. He said the elections would not be democratic because 20 to 30 percent of the population is excluded from Salvador's political process. "The elections are very premature because the democratic rules for elections have not been settled," Garner said. He said freedom of press, speech, petition and assembly have not yet been granted to the citizens of Salvador.

"The State Department is going to be happy because it's defining democracy in terms of holding elections," he said. "On this basis we will keep sending arms to the people (of El Salvador) and we will be responsible for the loss of thousands of lives." He said the civil war in El Salvador will continue after the run off elections. "Whoever wins the elections will be a puppet of the Salvadoran military, because the military is a major force in the political system there," Garner said. He said the Salvadoran government can't be called democratic, and it will be "a government of national security, financed by the United States." Garner said the U.S. government should assist El Salvador in bringing all parties to a political agreement. "At that time it will be possible to consider the possibility of elections," he said. "We have not committed ourselves to political settlement, but rather we take to gunboat diplomacy in the region." "If we are not going to press for a political and peaceful settlement of political differences and stress the importance of compromise on all sides, we have no reason to be there at all." What the U.S. government should do, Garner said, is to help Salvadoran government establish criteria by which all sides will consent to meet together. He said anything else is intervention and aggression. Garner said it's too late for the U.S. government to give economic aid to El Salvador. "Economic aid should be given by private groups, because if the U.S. government is involved, strings will be attached," he said. He said all that the U.S. government has achieved in El Salvador is that Carter administration stressed the importance of agrarian reform, but said "at this point it is too late to do that because of political instability." He said the U.S. government should stop military aid to El Salvador. "If we continue our present policy we will get ourselves into a situation that requires massive deployment of American soldiers," he said. "Then it becomes real intervention."

but he estimates that the hotel would generate enough revenue to make the $1.56 million annual payments. The council will also consider an ordinance that would restructure uses of the city's privilege tax to include general downtown redevelopment costs. The tax was established to finance the parking garage bond debt service, finance tourism efforts and pay for the cost of collecting the tax. The proposed ordinance would allow the tax revenue to be used to fund defeasance of parking garage bonds and continued downtown redevelopment costs. The council will also consider the selection of Fischer-Stein Associates of Carbondale as the designer of two Illinois Central Gulf Railroad buildings as part of the railroad relocation project. Former Mayor Hans Fischer is a partner in the firm. Fischer-Stein Associates was chosen from among seven architectural firms that submitted proposals for the design of the administrative and shop buildings to be located near the railroad yard north of Carbondale. The council will consider a proposal to amend an ordinance that limits the length of time political signs can be displayed to 30 days before a specified election and five days after the election. The amendment would eliminate the restrictions on the length of time that the sign can be displayed.

Mondale victory has Hart camp worried

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Walter F. Mondale got the support he wanted deep in the heart of Texas and Gary Hart's state campaign manager suggested Sunday that it might be time for the senator to consider ending his presidential quest. "It will be difficult now for him, having lost Texas, to win the nomination," Rep. Martin Frost, D-Texas, told a news conference the morning after Mondale captured the major share of delegates elected in state precinct caucuses. "He (Hart) needed to win this state in my judgment," said Frost. "He didn't do so." Mondale and Hart were campaigning in Ohio on Sunday and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, a surprise winner Saturday in the Louisiana primary, was in North Carolina. Frost said he would hold "some private discussions" with Hart later this week. When pressed on whether he would advise the candidate to withdraw from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, Frost just kept repeating that he felt the Coloradoan needed to carry Texas. He also said Hart will "need a victory in Ohio or Indiana, preferably both, to have a chance to win the nomination." Jackson complained Sunday that in Texas "there was a lot of intimidation, a lot of irregularity and a lot of suits will be filed." Frost said that while he would prefer a primary, "I do not believe the Hart campaign can blame the system for its loss in the state of Texas." State party officials on Sunday continued to tabulate the results from the more than 6,000 caucuses. Figures from 57 percent of the caucuses gave Mondale 17,805 of the precinct delegates elected Saturday for 50.4 percent.

Today's students need access to computers

ACCESS.

It is a word closely associated with SIU-C. Access for the poor, access for the handicapped, access for the academically disadvantaged — SIU-C grew from a small teachers college into one of the nation's largest universities under the idea of access to education. For many students, however, there is concern about a different type of access at SIU-C — access to computer terminals.

A survey conducted three years ago showed that the University ranks in the bottom 15 percent in the nation in providing students access to computers. If anything, the problem seems to have worsened since then. Computer science classes fill up early and competition to get in them is fierce. Those students who do get into the classes often must stay up all night to wait for an available computer terminal.

THE UNIVERSITY'S computer system is outdated and overworked. There are often delays of several hours between the time students complete their work at a terminal and the time the computer printout is ready. And as more and more areas of study use computers as classroom research tools, the problem of computer access gets worse.

The root of the problem is money — or rather, the lack of it. Efforts to obtain state funds to revamp the computer system have proved unsuccessful, although another proposal will be considered by the Illinois Board of Education this summer.

The University's Office of Computing Affairs was also hurt when two of its former top officials bought about $1 million worth of computing equipment from computer firms that they controlled and sold it to the University for twice that amount. The two men, who were found guilty of fraud in 1982, have been ordered to make restitution to the University, but the incident set back SIU-C's computing capacity by several years.

IT'S TIME TO do some catching up.

Computers are no longer oddities found only in the math and science departments of prestigious universities. Computers have become integral tools for persons in virtually all fields of study and occupations.

The IBHE and the state Legislature must realize that in a society where computer skills are becoming necessary for daily functioning, it is vital that universities have the ability to teach those skills to all students who wish to obtain them.

The idea of access to education is founded on the belief that all students who want an education should be provided one. The idea of access to computers is founded on the belief that the education provided should be one that helps students prepare for the society that awaits them.

Both ideas are worth pursuing and preserving.

George Will an obstacle to black people's progress

I have been at SIU-C for three years and will graduate in May, thank goodness. For these three years, the Daily Egyptian has been running columns by the neo-conservative avowed racist George F. Will, providing a forum for his distorted views.

In his latest commentary ("Jesse's 'Rainbow' Dividing United States"), Will states that Jesse Jackson is dividing America and isolating blacks. For one thing, America is already very divided; just look at the Chicago mayoral election. Secondly, how in the hell does Will know how blacks feel? About the only thing Will knows about being black is that he doesn't want to be black.

Yes, Jesse has increased black voter registration, and blacks will be out voting in November to increase their proportion of representation. Don't you think there is a reason why, George?

And who cares what the New Republic says? How many blacks are on its staff? All the New Republic is a magazine run by big time, so-called "liberal" Democrats who are losing power because of Jackson.

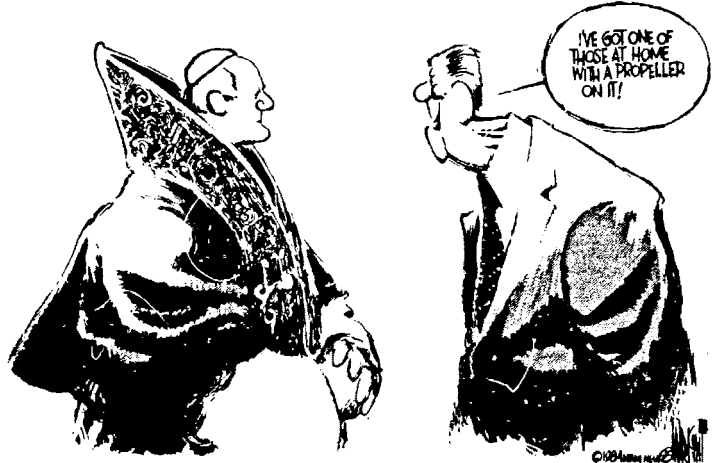

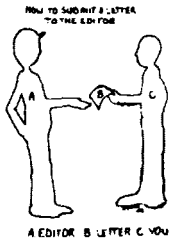

To quote Will, "Jackson has no experience building interracial coalitions." Well, neither did President Reagan, and he won. Jackson speaks of opportunities, George, something you probably would not have had if you were born poor and black.

Then you go off and do it, Will, you try to tie Jesse in with "bloodthirsty" Syrians (the same thing you would probably call native Americans in the Wild West) and with Louis Farraghan. You even try to win blacks to your argument by adding that Farraghan criticized Michael Jackson. Nope, this won't work, George. So what if Michael Jackson was criticized? You don't like him either because he is a black who has fame and fortune, and isn't in a welfare line.

And how can you say anything about who Jesse Jackson supports when you support such "great" human rights protectors as the men who run South Africa, El Salvador and Chile?

You know, every time a black man tries to do something in America, there are obstacles in his way. George Will is an obstacle to progress, but I don't think he is a big enough obstacle to stop Jesse Jackson because Jackson has many people like me helping him. And the Daily Egyptian can do better than George Will. — Phillip E. Thompson, Senior, Political Science

Students should be consulted before new programs implemented

It has come to the attention of some student government leaders that the SIU administration plans to implement doctoral programs in the following academic areas: engineering sciences, geology, computer science and physics.

The facts are that these prospective new doctoral programs are very expensive, costing up to seven times more per student in terms of the resources the institution must provide to the relatively fewer students they serve.

There are serious questions of a fundamental nature raised — issues that deserve to be debated and decided in the bright sunshine of public view.

For example, well over 50 percent of the engineering students are international students. Is the primary purpose of the engineering doctorate to serve this particular student population?

Can we afford such expensive new undertakings when programs that obviously serve our region, like community development, are being scaled down or eliminated?

Can we afford new programs when the administration fails to find adequate resources for the library (as demonstrated in last Friday's "SIUCourier"), be it either for a building or important services like the Learning Resources Center? These questions deserve answers.

In the past, the only student input on such decisions has been made through the Committee on Academic Priorities. The CAP has only two student members, out of 17, to represent almost 23,000 students. This obvious lack of meaningful student input has spurred us to take action.

Wednesday night, the Undergraduate Student Organization senate considered a resolution urging the administration to put a moratorium on the implementation of this or any other new academic programs until university-wide input of a meaningful nature can be gathered, and until public debate occurs on the following question: Will these expensive new doctoral programs be financed through the cannibalization of existing undergraduate and graduate programs?

We feel that meaningful student input in these decisions is very important, and that the administration should not be making unilateral decisions on these issues without the input of students being considered. This is our university too. — Jack Cranley, USO Vice President-elect and Andrew Leighton, USO President-elect

USO an expensive, worthless 'joke'

Now that the mud has cleared from the air (I hope), the student body of SIU-C can stand back and look at the election of Undergraduate Student Organization officers and say "what a joke." In one corner was Andrew Leighton, Action Party presidential candidate, who formed his own party after not being nominated for the Trojan party candidacy. The image comes to mind of a pouting seven-year-old, exclaiming "I didn't want to be in your dumb party anyway," before storming off to find a new group of playmates. Leighton even tried to take credit for the 2,000 plus units of blood donated in the Red Cross Blood Drive held shortly before the election.

In the other corner was Lamont Brantley, Trojan Party presidential candidate, who, apparently not satisfied with the confusion of USO, decided to pick on the little 'O' Thompson Point Executive Council and was rightly told to butt out. Also, Brantley's flagrant demonstration of poor sportsmanship and lack of willingness to accept responsibility was shown in his recent letter to the Daily Egyptian, in which he blamed everyone and everything but himself for his loss.

If all this weren't enough to wreck what little credibility the USO had, there is the post-election turmoil over the validity of the election. Brantley is complaining of rules supposedly broken — infractions that he somehow overlooked until after the results revealed him the loser. Two weeks after the election there was still no official winner.

Is it any wonder that only 10 percent of the undergraduate students turned out to vote? With a figure this ridiculously low, can it be said that the USO effectively represents the student body? The bottom line is that very few students care about the soap-opera shenanigans of the USO.

Nevertheless, the ballots have been counted and recounted and we are stuck with a new batch of self-serving, self-important pseudo-politicians who do little more than pad their resumes. It is mindboggling how much in student fees can be spent in doing so little of any consequence. I don't know about you, but I have better things to spend my money on. — Scott R. Coffey, Junior, English

Sexist advertising must stop

LeeAnn Willis' letter concerning sexism in an ad about secretaries has prompted me to write. I'm sick of it. I'm sick of the Daily Egyptian publishing ads that show women as being all leg, breast and invariably naked to some degree. The movie ads are offensive, as well as the ads for clothes and hair, not to mention the Halloween T-shirt fiasco.

With rape the problem it is, why does the D.E. continue to publish these pictures that promote women as objects for sexual gratification? Why do we women put up with it? As long as we allow this representation to continue, we are keeping all of the members of our society from becoming complete people.

As someone who works with foreign students, I am embarrassed for all of us. What are these visitors from other countries to think of us? We claim the belief and practice of sexual equality, yet we promote products by exploiting women. Let our ideals agree with our actions. — Mary Savignano, Graduate Student, Linguistics

Main computer problem: too little of it

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

People who work with the computer system at SIU-C agree that the University is having a hard time providing sufficient computing facilities for students.

But all quickly add that the University is striving to upgrade the system. And all agree that the root of the problem is money.

"A lot of the needs require money and the administration just doesn't have a money tree," said William E. Wright, professor of computer science. "When it comes to the combination of most important and under-supported, computing is easily the No. 1 problem at this university," Wright said.

Wright estimates that the University has about one-third of the access to computers required to meet students' needs.

"Looking at our current needs, we have roughly 100 terminals when we need about 300 terminals," he said.

A survey conducted about three years ago found that SIU-C is in the bottom 15 percent in the nation among four-year universities in support for interactive computing, or providing students with access to computers, Wright said.

Despite an impressive amount of computing equipment operated by the University, it is not enough. The Office of Computing Affairs maintains two IBM 4341 Model 2 mainframes and an IBM 158 attached processor in the basement of the Wham Building, and a Prime 750 mainframe computer located in Faner Hall.

Charles R. Campbell, associate director of computing affairs for systems and operations, said that the current mainframes are projected to reach their operating capacity in August.

"That means instead of getting complaints about the system in the last three or four weeks of the semester, the complaints will be coming in all semester long," Campbell said.

The Board of Trustees turned down a proposal last December to purchase a $2.49 million computer package that would have quadrupled the system's capacity. The board said that administrators should re-evaluate the University's long- and short-term needs and submit a new proposal.

Thomas Britton, executive assistant to Chancellor Kenneth Shaw, said that a proposal will be submitted to the board's finance committee in June, and should be considered by the full board in September.

Officials are still considering the content of the proposal, but it will probably include a major system upgrade, including a new mainframe processor and additional terminals, Britton said. If approved, new equipment could be installed in late 1984, he said.

An even more pressing problem is the lack of general student access to the computer system, according to Leo Min, director of computing affairs. Teaching — the University's main mission in Min's view — is the No. 1 priority in considering the University's computer needs, he said.

"We have miserable access for students," Min said. "This is the single most important problem."

Computer terminals are accessible to students 24 hours a day, but students often must wait until late in the night to secure computer access.

"We have such a shortage of facilities, students have to come in after midnight to get access," Wright said.

Vincent Lacey, director of the Computer-Assisted Instruction and Research Laboratory in Faner Hall, said the general student access issue is not a problem only at SIU-C but is common to all universities.

At the University of Nebraska, about 2,000 students staged a demonstration because of poor computer access, Lacey said. The demonstration proved successful, for the university purchased more equipment, he said.

Universities generally run about five years behind business and industry in their levels of computer technology, Lacey said.

Computing affairs at SIU-C received a setback when former Computing Affairs Director Barry Bateman and former Associate Director E. Hubert Massey were convicted in 1982 of mail fraud and interstate transit, resulting from fraudulent computer equipment purchases that cost the University $983,154.

The two men were involved in founding and controlling computer firms that purchased equipment costing about $1 million and sold the equipment to SIU-C for about $2 million.

The men were sentenced to three years each in prison and ordered to make restitution to the University. SIU-C has recovered about $630,000 of the money. However, Lacey said the fraud set the University back about five years in computing capacity.

"The money that they are paying back is being used to bring the University into the '80s, and here it is 1984," he said.

"If the $2 million had been spent as it should have been, SIU-C would have been one of the top computing universities in the country," Lacey said.

Lacey estimates that by 1990, every student at SIU-C will be using computers in some way. That will require about 500 student access terminals, about five times the number SIU-C has now.

Computer demand is increasing in all departments, with engineering departments requiring high technology application capabilities and liberal arts and humanities requiring large quantities of equipment for word processing and statistical uses.

Dave Egan, a systems programmer in computing affairs, said the computers can normally count to 2 million in about 90 seconds, and some engineering programs run for more than two hours.

Joseph Barbay, associate professor of technology, said, "We're at the bottom of the curve. We're just beginning to see an explosion of what the needs are going to be."

The College of Engineering and Technology has "tremendous needs" according to Barbay.

"Our students are able to do wonderful things," he said. "But in the future, we're going to have to upgrade the system."

"We're behind in computing, but I've seen a new push on the part of the faculty and administration to upgrade the computers," Barbay said.

The College of Engineering has a microcomputer lab, formed in 1979, with 15 machines, that has grown to 49 microcomputers networked with the University's computers, Barbay said.

Bruce Appleby, associate professor of English, said that the University is funding a program which will create two microcomputer laboratories with up to 32 IBM personal computers each.

One lab would give priority to students in GED 101, "English Composition," which is required of all students at SIU-C, Appleby said. About 15 sections of the class would be conducted in the microcomputer laboratory.

The performances of those students would then be compared to performances of students in conventional classes. Word processors can change the way people write because revising prose is easier, Appleby said.

"The history of writing is related to the development of technology," he said. "Technology has changed the entire nature of reading and writing."

Appleby said that the biggest problem in setting up the computing labs is finding classroom space to house the laboratories.

The responsibility for maintaining the computer system that serves both academic and administrative functions at SIU-C is the Office of Computing Affairs, which is divided into three areas: User Services, Information Systems and System Support and Operations.

User Services, headed by Associate Director Tom Purcell, focuses on academic computing and oversees the computer center in F. ner Hall. The Faner facility contains the Prime 750 computer with 43 terminals, which is used to teach computing and is used mostly by students in engineering, computer science and data processing classes, Purcell said.

The Prime terminals are not reserved strictly for students in those majors, but most academic departments that require students to take computer courses usually assign students to courses offered by one of those departments, he said.

The Faner facility also has 32 terminals routed to the computers in Wham which are designated primarily for student use. The Faner facility also has seven 3270-type terminals, five deck writers, seven card readers and one terminal that prints in Braile.

In a full school year — fall, spring and summer — more than 17,000 student class accounts for computer use were issued at SIU-C, Purcell said. Students could be counted more than once by taking more than one course requiring computer work.

Information Systems, headed by Associate Director Larry Hengehold, deals with the side of computing often overlooked by students, the administrative uses.

Hengehold said Information Systems assists administrative departments by developing operating systems and data base storage files and by assisting with office automation. The University computers serve the needs of General Accounting, Admissions and Records, Personnel, Payroll and the Bursar, he said.

Information Services has many of the same problems, such as limited access, that academic computing has.

"The resources are short and we share the same facilities with academics. We're short all the way around," Hengehold said.

In the future, the administrative side of university computing will probably expand student information services, making it possible to register from an adviser's office. The expanded student information service would require fast response time and up-to-date information, Hengehold said.

Many newer colleges and universities, especially large junior colleges, have such systems, he said. However, older universities such as SIU-C must overcome tradition and money problems to institute modern systems.

System Support and Operations, headed by Associate Director Charles Campbell, is responsible for maintaining the computer hardware in Wham and Faner.

Campbell's office is just outside the double doors to the heart of SIU-C's computer system in the basement of the Wham Building. The doors can be opened only by punching the right sequence of numbers on the electronic lock. Only about 25 people know the proper combination, Campbell said.

The computer room houses the heart of the SIU-C computer system, the two IBM 4341 Model 2 mainframes — the first purchased in 1982 and the second in 1983. The outdated IBM 158 stands to the side of the room, much larger and more obvious, yet incapable of doing as much as its newer counterparts.

The mainframes are connected with 32 IBM 3350 memory discs, each capable of storing 717 million bytes of information, and the four later-generation IBM 3380 memory discs, each capable of storing 625 million bytes.

The two printers in Wham, both installed in the 1960s, are the antiques of the facility. Head-high racks of magnetic tapes are everywhere, and giant tape machines stand ready to recall information stored on them.

Unapproved vitamin drug sale prompts probe of FDA action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration learned last November that a Vitamin E drug, since linked to 38 infant deaths, was being sold without approval but did not interfere because similar products already were marketed legally and there was no evidence of danger, a spokesman said last week.

Spokesman Bill Grigg said the FDA learned only on April 2 that some infants injected with E-Ferol Aqueous Solution as a nutritional supplement had suffered injuries and death. A voluntary recall by the manufacturer began shortly afterwards.

The FDA knows of 41 other cases where infants given E-Ferol suffered injuries, Grigg said.

The House Government Operations subcommittee on intergovernmental relations, headed by Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., was to look into FDA's handling of the drug at a hearing last Friday.

Hospital in the Virginia suburbs of Washington first called the sale of the drug to the FDA's attention. Hospital spokeswoman Judy Abbett said the pharmacist, Fred Figa, found the FDA had not approved the drug while he was checking whether it should be introduced at the hospital.

Once Figa alerted the FDA that the drug was being offered for sale without approval, a compliance officer for the agency, whom Grigg would not identify, looked into the matter and decided not to take further action.

A special review of drugs to make sure they are effective was being conducted and drugs in the same class with E-Ferol were coming under scrutiny, Grigg said.

Grigg said there are about 20 injectable Vitamin E products on the market as well as some multivitamins that include Vitamin E. But the new product "is the only single Vitamin E product for intravenous use," the spokesman said.

Two SIU-C faculty members named distinguished professors

Two of SIU-C's leading scholars have been named Distinguished Professors — the school's pre-eminent academic rank.

Elmer H. Johnson, an internationally recognized criminologist, and Dr. David S. Sumner, a pioneer in vascular surgery, were given the permanent title in an announcement by SIU-C President Albert Somi Thursday.

Along with the title, both men will receive a $3,000 award from the SIU Foundation, which established the professorships last year.

Johnson, 67, is professor of sociology and criminal justice in SIU-C's Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections. He is a three-degree graduate of the University of Wisconsin at Madison, has held various academic and administrative posts at North Carolina State University and headed North Carolina's statewide prison system before coming to SIU-C in 1966.

Sumner, 51, is professor of surgery and chief of the Section of Peripheral Vascular Surgery

Elmer Johnson

David Sumner

at the SIU School of Medicine in Springfield.

The Johns Hopkins graduate is an elected member of 25 professional societies, and his reputation rests primarily on his work as an investigator and clinician in vascular physiology and surgery.

Nominees for the Distinguished Professor Award must be tenured full professors at SIU-C whose scholarly or creative contributions or professional accomplishments have had such an impact that they set that person apart from other senior professors in that field.

Appointments last year went to zoologist Williard D. Klimstra, director of SIU-C's Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory, and artist Herbert L. Fink, one of America's prominent printmakers.

Two students win Phi Kappa Phi scholastic awards

Sharon Leidy of Mount Holly Springs, Pa., and Charles Stitt of Carbondale have received awards from the SIU-C chapter of Phi Kappa Phi National Scholastic Honor Society.

Leidy, a junior in recreation and business administration, was awarded the first undergraduate scholarship to be given at SIU-C. Leidy has a 4.0 grade point average and has won several scholarships.

Stitt, a graduate student in agriculture, was nominated for the 1984-85 Phi Kappa Phi Graduate Fellowship.

Each of the 240 chapters may submit a nominee for the fellowships and about 50 are awarded nationally.

Arms control talks not likely before election, officials say

By Michael Putzel
Of the Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House officials have all but given up hope the Soviets will return to nuclear arms-control talks before the November election.

"They don't seem to be capable of getting the message," said one senior Reagan administration official, who disclosed that a U.S. envoy's recent trip to Moscow evoked no signal that the new Kremlin leadership is interested in setting dates for renewed talks on strategic or intermediate-range weapons.

The pessimistic view comes from an official who, a year ago, regarded a missile accord as likely, and who, as recently as a few weeks ago, considered it quite possible that talks at least could begin again sometime this summer. His view is representative of other advisers to President Reagan who refuse to speculate publicly but offer their assessments on the condition they not be named.

Separate Geneva talks on limiting intermediate-range missiles in Europe and reducing the superpowers' intercontinental arsenals broke off when the United States and its NATO allies began their long-planned deployment of cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Western Europe last December.

Campus Briefs

JACKSON COUNTY Health Department will offer home, health and safety checks May 7 to 10. Checks will include pointing out fire hazards and home safety instructions. Call 687-4357 for an appointment.

SOUTHERN OUTDOOR Adventure Recreation will hold a pre-trip and slide show Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Rehn Hall Room 106 for the May 13 to 16 canoe trip to Current River. Call Joe Stehno at 529-4161 for more information.

STUDENT FULBRIGHT AWARD information for the 1985-86 school year is now available from International Services at 453-5774. Deadline for application is Oct. 1.

REGISTRATION CLOSING date for the Scholastic Aptitude Test is Wednesday. The test will be held June 2. More information is available at Testing Services, Woody Hall B204, 536-3303.

News Analysis

But many officials trace the collapse to the Soviet downing three months earlier of a South Korean jetliner, which they say soured U.S.-Soviet relations to the point that any chance for reaching an accord before the December deployment deadline evaporated.

And the extended and eventually fatal illness of Soviet President Yuri Andropov created what one official called "a leadership paralysis," preventing any movement in the Soviets' negotiating position or any positive response to repeated promises of U.S. flexibility.

One official familiar with U.S. arms control policy said administration strategy will remain one of stressing Reagan's willingness to be flexible, to be "cooperative on the small stuff, such as consular matters," and wait for some indication the Soviets are ready to talk.

But the official said the president has no intention of making any new arms control proposal of his own to try and woo the Soviets back to the table during the campaign season.

A year ago, the official acknowledged, he and other White House analysts were optimistic that some agreement, at least on intermediate-range nuclear weapons, was within reach.

The Americans were convinced the Soviets were absolutely determined to avoid the NATO deployments and would make some concessions to head off, or at least delay, the erection of a new generation of missiles aimed at Soviet territory.

Outstanding teachers given awards

Three SIU-C faculty members and one program director were recipients of the University's 1984 Amoco Foundation Awards at SIU-C's annual Faculty and Administrative-Professional Staff Awards Ceremony Sunday.

Theodore A. Burton, professor of mathematics, Jan Martan, professor of zoology, and Frederick L. Williams, assistant professor of foreign languages and literatures, received the University's 1984 Amoco Foundation Outstanding Teacher Awards at a reception at 2 p.m. in the Student Center Gallery Lounge.

Joseph M. Yusko, director of University Risk Management, received the Outstanding Administrative-Professional Staff Member of the Year Award.

Each of the three faculty members will receive $700 from the Amoco Foundation grant and an additional $200 travel account award from his respective dean, and Yusko will receive a $500 cash gift.

Amoco awards recognize excellence in teaching performance in the senior staff, and at least one faculty member is nominated from each of SIU-C's schools and colleges.

Burton, a native of Longton, Kan., has been a member of the Department of Mathematics since 1962, and taught mathematics at the University of Alberta in Edmonton, Canada before that. He is a three-degree graduate of Washington State University, and traveled to China last year to deliver a series of lectures from his book on Volterra integral and differential equations.

Martan, a native of Czechoslovakia, came to SIU-C in 1964 as an assistant professor in the Department of Zoology, and won SIU-C's Obelisk Yearbook Outstanding Faculty Member Award in 1973.

A widely-published specialist in the reproductive biology of vertebrates, Martan earned both bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Chicago, and a Ph.D. from the University of Oregon.

Williams, a native of Denver, Colo., joined the classics section of the foreign languages faculty in 1977. He is a graduate of the University of Texas, and holds a master's degree from the University of Colorado and a Ph.D. from Cornell University.

A former assistant professor at Cornell University, Williams is an expert in classical literature, Greek and Roman drama and lyric poetry. He won the College of Liberal Arts' Outstanding Teacher Award in 1979.

Yusko, a West Frankfort native, has worked in the personnel office for 18 years and is responsible for University operations dealing with employee benefits.

Also honored Sunday were 30 faculty and staff members who have served at SIU-C for 25 or more years.

Thirty-five-year service awards were given to Harold M. Kaplan, emeritus professor, School of Medicine; W.D. Klimstra, distinguished professor; William M. Lewis, emeritus professor of zoology; Betty Lou Mitchell, assistant professor of English; and Raymond S. Rainbow, associate professor of English.

For 30 years of service, awards went to George Elston, assistant professor of mathematics; Rex D. Karnes, director, Regional Research and Service; Duncan L. Lampman, associate professor of construction technology; Howard H. Olson, professor of animal industries; Herbert L. Portz, professor of plant and soil science; Janet Rafferty, professor of psychology; Edward J. Shea, professor of physical education; and Russell F. Trimble, professor of chemistry.

Awards for 25 years of service were given to William R. Abernathy, assistant professor of recreation; Ronald I. Beazley, professor of geography; Roger E. Bevier, professor of chemistry; Billy Gene Dixon, chairperson, Department of Curriculum, Instruction and Media; C. Richard Gruny, legal counsel, Office of the Chancellor; Lewis J. Hilliard, assistant professor of English; Betty Jean Hutton, instructor, Library Services; Daniel R. Irwin, associate professor of geography; George A. Iubelt, instructor of physical education; Egon K. Kamarasy, assistant professor of political science; Roland R.E. Keim, associate director, Office of Admissions and Records; Marion L. Kleinau, professor of speech communication; Manfred Liedeker, associate professor of political science; Hamut Liedloff, chairperson, Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures; Joan Foley Martin, assistant professor of English; Myrtle Jane Merchant, academic advisor, College of Human Resources; and W. Manion Rice, associate professor of journalism.

Study says Americans ignore patterns, migrate everywhere

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the flow of Americans from the Frost Belt to the Sun Belt in recent years has been widely noted, government figures also disclose that hundreds of thousands of people swam against the stream.

The 1980 census documented the rapid growth of the South and West, much of it at the expense of the older industrial areas in the North Central and Northeastern states. But a detailed study of state-by-state migration patterns shows there was also a smaller, but still significant, movement in the opposite direction.

"People in the United States move everywhere," observed Carl Haub of the Population Reference Bureau, an independent Washington research group. "Most move for work reasons," he said.

The migration figures were based on a question on the 1980 census form that asked people to give their home address at the time of the census and what it had been in 1975.

Thus, while 2,594,098 people reported moving from the Northeast to the South and West between 1975 and 1980, the study also found that 915,165 relocated in the other direction.

The biggest single state-to-state movement during the five years was the largely retirement-oriented shift from New York to Florida, accounting for a movement of 364,450 people. But at the same time, 49,452 people moved from the Sunshine State to the Empire State.

Charles F. Longino Jr., of the Center for Social Research in Aging at the University of Miami, said that overall, persons moving from New York to Florida tended to be relatively younger than those moving back. In addition, men, married couples and those living independently predominated among those heading south. The northbound stream included more widows and tended to be older, he said.

In general, he concluded, incoming residents revitalize Florida's elderly population, while the counterstream carries away, unnoticed, "a heavier load of the very old, the poor, the widowed, the residentially dependent, the very people who would demand the most of Florida's health and service system."

California in recent years has declined in attractiveness to the elderly, Longino added, while Arizona and Texas have increased their share of incoming retirees.

Whenever there is a large migration, such as from New York to Florida, there can be expected to be a certain number of people who are unhappy in the new place and decide to go back home, suggested Cheryl Russell, research director at American Demographics magazine, a publication specializing in population topics.

A similar movement back home may begin occurring among Detroit residents who flocked to Houston looking for jobs in recent years, she said.

Other movements that at least seem to be against the national trend are also present in the figures, and Haub suggested that military service may account for a good share of them. For example, a sailor may complete his service in Hawaii and then decide to move back to his native Maine, or other home state.

Hurst, Easter lead Boston past Chicago

BOSTON (AP) — Southpaw Bruce Hurst pitched no-hit ball for seven innings before settling for a two-hitter Sunday as the Boston Red Sox downed the Chicago White Sox 3-1 on a pair of homers by Mike Easler.

Vance Law broke up Hurst's bid to throw the first no-hitter in Fenway Park since 1965 by lining a 1-0 pitch into the left-field screen for a homer as the leadoff batter in the eighth.

Scott Fletcher singled for the only other hit off Hurst, who struck out four, walked three and hit a batter to up his record to 4-1.

GIANTS 3, CARDINALS 2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Dusty Baker's triple broke up a pitching duel in the seventh to score Jack Clark from first and give the San Francisco Giants a 3-2 triumph Sunday over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Baker's hit came off Joaquin Andujar, 4-3. Bill Laskey, 1-3, was the winner.

Clark opened the seventh with a single. His leadoff homer had given the Giants a 1-0 lead in the second. And Murray Trillo made it 2-0 in the fourth with a triple followed by Clark's sacrifice fly.

In the sixth, the Cards rallied when Laskey hit Lonnie Smith with a pitch. Smith stopped at third on Darrell Porter's double, and George Hendrick rapped an RBI grounder. San Francisco third baseman Joel Youngblood then potted Willie McGee's grounder, scoring Porter.

REDS 5, PHILLIES 3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dave Parker's single in the eighth drove home Gary Redus with the tie-breaking run as the Cincinnati Reds edged the Philadelphia Phillies 3-3 Sunday.

In the eighth, Redus singled to center, stole his 14th base in 14 attempts, moved to third on a passed ball and scored on Parker's hit.

Parker scored an insurance run as he reached second on a wild pitch and scored on Cesar Cedenos's double.

know if it'll be playable. We won't want to risk an injury." If the Salukis lose Monday, they'll finish in a tie for first place with Illinois State. The Redbirds would host the four-team, double-elimination tournament on account of their 2-0 record against SIU-C.

Indiana State, meanwhile, has little riding on Monday's outcome — it's lock-d in third place no matter what happens. Wichita State took three of four from Creighton to nab the last berth in the tourney.

The Salukis came from behind to win Saturday's opener 5-2, in eight innings, on Mike Blumhorst's three-run home run.

ISU starter Blaise Isley entered the seventh inning leading 2-3, but Terry Jones, ledoff double and Blumhorst's bunt single put Isley in trouble. Third baseman Tom Smith then threw past first base on pinch-hitter Frank Narvaez's sacrifice bunt, allowing Blumhorst to score the first run.

ORIOLES 6, RANGERS 1

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Cal Ripken, Jr., hit for the cycle and Mike Boddicker pitched a five-hitter as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Texas Rangers 6-1 Sunday.

Boddicker, 2-3, pitched his second complete game. Rangers starter Frank Tanana, 2-4, took the loss.

Ripken tripled in the third, singled in the fifth, doubled in the seventh and homered in the ninth. The Orioles' shortstop knocked in two runs with his 4-for-5 performance.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Terry Whitfield's double in the 10th drove in the winning run as Los Angeles rallied for a 6-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the first game of a double-header Sunday.

The Dodgers, surviving a base running blunder by pitcher Alejandro Pena that cost them a run, touched loser Kent Hrbek, 1-2, for two runs in the 10th.

TORONTO 2, ROYALS 1

TORONTO (AP) — Designated hitter Cliff Johnson singled in the ninth inning to score Jesse Barfield from second and give the Toronto Blue Jays a 2-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals Sunday.

Barfield doubled in the ninth off starter Larry Gura, 4-1.

Reliever Roy Lee Jackson pitched the final three innings for Toronto and evened his record at 1-1.

BRAVES 2, EXPOS 0

MONTREAL (AP) — Gerald Perry tripled home a fourth-inning run and scored on Dale Murphy's grounder as the Atlanta Braves blanked the Montreal Expos 2-0 behind the combined eight-hit pitching of Craig McMurry, 3-3, and Steve Bedrosian in the first game of a double-header Sunday. Charlie Lea, 4-2, was the loser.

Blumhorst, whose re-emergence as a run-producer has boosted SIU-C, immediately started his home run trot after connecting with Horn's serve.

"I was just looking for a fast ball in my zone," the left-handed hitter said. "I knew it was out."

"That's the Mike Blumhorst who's played at Southern the last few years," said Jones, who wondered if the senior first baseman ever come out of a five-week slump.

The Salukis banged out 11 hits in the nightcap but lost 6-5. They climbed back from 1-0 and 4-1 deficits, and threatened to tie the game in the seventh. Greg Severin led off with a walk and was bunted to second, but Koch grounded to third and Mike Gellingner lined hard to right field to end the game.

The Salukis are now 26-20 overall.

Softballers finish fifth in GCAC tourney

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

Led by its hitters, the SIU-C softball team claimed fifth place at the Gateway Conference tournament this last weekend.

The Salukis won twice before they were eliminated from the double-elimination tournament. They finished the season 12-21 overall and 5-12 against conference opponents.

SIU-C beat Indiana State 3-1 in 10 innings Friday morning, and then lost 7-5 to Bradley in the afternoon. SIU-C had started the tournament Thursday by losing 4-3 to Eastern Illinois and beating Wichita State 8-1.

The ninth-seeded Salukis bowed in the end when Sunny Clark had a rare bad outing in the Bradley game. Bradley took a 7-1 lead after three innings and Eileen Maione relieved Clark in the fourth inning, the first time all year Clark has not completed a game.

"They just got to her and we didn't play well behind her," said Brechtelsbauer.

SIU-C came back and made it close, as Kathy Richert and Tonya Lindsey both hit solo home runs to make it 7-3, and then Nancy McAuley singled home two runs in the fifth inning. "Without question we hit well above .300 for the tourney," said Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer. "We finally put our hitting together but our pitchers fell short."

Brechtelsbauer had been waiting most of the year for his hitters to score runs. They had 19 in four tournament games. "It's been coming," she said. "We've been out-hitting teams and we started scoring some runs."

Western Illinois won the tournament, primarily because it had more pitching depth than anyone else.

"There really was only one team (WIU) that had two pitchers," said Brechtelsbauer. Clark pitched well in Friday's opening win, a 3-1 triumph over Indiana State. The game was scoreless for eight innings.

In the top of the ninth SIU-C used a bunt single by Susan Jones, a sacrifice by McAuley, and a suicide squeeze by Lindsey to take the lead. The Sycamores tied it in the bottom of the inning with two hits, but the Salukis scored two runs in their half of the 10th inning.

Toni Grounds led off with a single and went to second on Kathy Freske's sacrifice bunt. Later in the inning, Kelly Neils and Richert both had RBI singles. Lindsey and Neils each were three for five, and Richert had a pair of hits.

Brechtelsbauer said the Sycamores took away extra base hits by playing very deep in the outfield. The Salukis had hit five triples against Wichita State Thursday.

"I have mixed feelings," said Brechtelsbauer about the tournament. "We had hopes of finishing higher."

Clutch plays lead to IM crowns

The Urban Frogs and Big Twist claimed the Ultimate Frisbee men's A and B titles, respectively, last Thursday.

The Urban Frogs held a 7-6 halftime lead against the Dragons before exploding for five second-half goals to win, 12-6. They were led offensively by Chris Trivell (four goals) and Steve Bortz (five assists).

"We played a very good, consistent game," said Urban Frogs Coach John Shutter. "Everything we did during the regular season really came together in the championship game. "We're a second-half club. We got warmed up in the first half, but in the second half we played real consistent."

Shutter said Bortz and Dave Layman played well defensively for the Urban Frogs, who finished with a 7-0 record. The Dragons finished the season at 5-2.

In the men's B final, Big Twist's Jay Grace and Alex Dee came through in the clutch to spark the team to a 12-10 overtime victory over Disc-Grace.

Grace forced the overtime when he caught a pass from Steve Kempner in front of two Disc-Grace defenders in the end zone for a goal with no time left. Dee scored both goals in overtime for Big Twist.

Big Twist was led by Grace, Dee and Keith Wilcoxson, who each scored three goals.

"It was muddy and hard to make cuts, but it was fun," said Dee, who coached Big Twist to a 6-1 record. "In the overtime we really pulled together and Grace and Pat Curry played a heck of a game."

Dee also is the coach of The Big Twist, who won the Intramural co-rec A title. Disc-Grace concluded the season with a 5-2 record.

Trackmen rout Illini as Duncan sparkles

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's track team continued its outdoor season dominance over its opponents as the Salukis crushed Illinois 1-0 Friday in Champaign.

The win was the 13th in 17 outdoor meetings with the Illini. The Salukis were keyed by Parry Duncan, but Coach Lew Hartzog said "everybody looked good."

Duncan won the 110-meter high hurdles over Illinois' Derrick Gentry with a 14.20. In the intermediate hurdles, Duncan narrowly missed reaching the NCAA standard of 51.00 with his winning time of 51.30.

Duncan's win in the 110 high hurdles kept his unbeaten string intact over Gentry in outdoor events. More impressive, however, was the fact that Duncan was competing in the high hurdles for the first time in the outdoor season because of an injury earlier in the year.

"It was unreal for him to run a 14.20," Hartzog said. "That was a great performance."

Duncan also ran in the Saluki relay team's wins. Duncan, Tony Adams, Elvis Forde and Mike Franks led SIU-C to its winning times in the 400 relay (4.58) and the 1,600 relay (3:10.02).

Franks and Forde took first and third in the 200-meter dash with a 20.89 and 20.98. Forde won the 400 with a 46.68.

Hartzog said he was concerned that the Salukis may have been injured in the cool weather in Champaign.

Temperatures were in the lower 50s for the meet.

"I was worried about our guys pulling muscles," Hartzog said.

Decathlete John Sayre returned to action after a month out of the lineup with an injury. Although he didn't place in any of the four events he was in, Hartzog said he was encouraged by Sayre's performance and that he still believes Sayre will have a shot at qualifying for the NCAA championships in the decathlon in this week's MVC championship at McAndrew Stadium.

"I've got a feeling he may be all right," Hartzog said. "He did pretty well. I've got hopes for him."

However, Hartzog said he will keep Sayre out of this week's competition if the weather is bad.

John Smith defeated the Illini's Jeff Lehmann in the shot. Smith tossed a 60-3. Tom Smith qualified for the NCAA meet in the hammer with an SIU-C record of 196-5 and Stephen Wray, for the fourth consecutive year against Illinois outdoors, won the high jump with a 7-0.

Other Saluki winning performances were by Gavin Harshbarger in the triple jump (48-10.50), Edison Wedderburn in the 3,000-meter steeplechase (8:43.4) and David Greathouse in the long jump (23-2.75). Adams, running the 100 and 200 for the first time in the outdoor season, took fourth in both events.

Mike Blumberg received a warm welcome from his teammates after his eighth-inning home run gave SIU-C a 5-2 win in the first game of Saturday's double-header split with Indiana State.

Salukis move into lead in chase for MVC title

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

In three drama-filled weekend games with Indiana State at Abs Martin Field, the SIU-C baseball team came away with two wins and possibly a Missouri Valley Conference championship.

The Salukis won 5-4 Sunday after splitting a double-header Saturday, lifting them into first place with a 9-4 record. Illinois State, which swept Bradley Sunday after splitting with the Braves Saturday, is 9-5. Indiana State is in third at 7-6.

In Sunday's single game, Indiana State — still clinging to hopes of its own for the Valley crown — exploded for three runs in the seventh inning for a 4-3 lead. But the Salukis, who lately are making a habit of winning in the late innings, pushed across two runs in their half of the seventh frame for the 5-4 win.

"I don't know what happened to our team," said Saluki Coach Itchy Jones. "A month ago we were finding ways to lose and now we're finding ways to win. The players taught me that when they get behind, they don't get down."

"I'll tell you what," said

Terry Jones, "we are now a team. We've come from behind. We get our leadoff man on base. We know we're going to score."

Jones' bases-loaded single down the right field line pushed Scott Bridges home with Sunday's winning run. Bridges had tied it by driving in Steve Finley with a triple over the head of center fielder Jim Sullivan. Finley led off the seventh with a double down the right field line. ISU intentionally walked the next two hitters to set up a force at home, but Jones came through with his sixth hit of the series.

The rally gave Mark Wooden, who would have preferred a save, the win. Wooden relieved starter Rich Koch in the fifth, with a 3-1 lead, and breezed through the sixth. But in the seventh, catcher Rod Zersky lined a two-out, two-run double over the head of right-fielder Jay Burch, a last-inning defensive replacement for sore-armed Robert Jones.

Zersky's shot, which Burch misplayed, tied the score. Mike Cain then rapped a line drive in front of and past Burch, who tried to make a diving catch. The ball rolled to the fence and Zersky scored to put ISU ahead.

"I think Jay tried to make a play on the second ball to make up for the first one, and he used poor judgement," Itchy Jones said. "But our guys said, 'We made a mistake, so what. We'll come back.'"

Rain suspended the second game in the second inning with SIU-C trailing 1-0. It will be continued from that point Monday and will determine if SIU-C will host the MVC tournament next week. The tourney is more significant than the regular season since the winner gets a berth in the NCAA Regional.

The Salukis have two chances of winning the conference outright: win Monday or get rained out. If SIU-C wins, a 10-4 record will close out its regular season a game ahead of Illinois State. If the game is not completed Monday because of rain or wet grounds, the Salukis will be crowned champs with a 9-4 mark. MVC rules state that Monday is the only make-up day. Jones and Wain will decide if the field is suitable for play, but once the game starts, it's in the hands of the umpires.

"The outfield will be saturated," Jones said. "I don't

Knicks tie Celtics behind King's 43-point outburst

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernard King scored 43 points as the New York Knicks defeated the Boston Celtics 118-113 Sunday to even their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series at 2-2.

The Knicks and Celtics return to Boston Garden for Game 5 Wednesday.

The Celtics held King to 26, 13 and 24 points in the first three games, but he broke out Sunday to hit 17 of 26 shots from the field.

The Knicks led 77-63 with 7:41 left in the third quarter on a basket by King, but Robert Parish led a 20-10 run by the Celtics that made it 87-83 going into the final 12 minutes.

Boston tied the score twice, at 87-87 and 89-89, but Darrell Walker triggered a 9-2 Knicks' spurt with a three-point play and the Celtics never caught up. Larry Bird, who scored 29 points, rallied the Celtics to within two at 115-113 with 52 seconds left, but a dunk by Bill Cartwright and a free throw by Marvin Webster made it 118-113.

Ray Williams had 18 points and Walker 11 for New York. Kevin McHale had 21 points and Dennis Johnson 20 for the Celtics.

Trackwomen win Illinois meet

Sydney Edwards and Connie Price are first-year members of the SIU-C women's track team, but they performed like veterans when it counted Saturday in the 13-team Illinois Intercollegiate Championships at Northwestern University.

Heading into the triple jump, the final event of the meet, Illinois State had a 122-116 lead over the Salukis. But Edwards (37 feet, 2.5 inches) and Price (39 feet, 1.75 inches) took second and third places to help the Redbirds 14-5 in the triple jump and win the state meet, 130-127.

Illinois State could manage only fifth-, sixth-, and eighth-place finishes in the triple jump. Illinois finished third with 92 points.

"After Illinois State finished second in the mile relay to our three-place finish, their kids got excited because they thought they won the meet," Saluki Coach Don DeNoon said.

"They didn't realize the triple jump was still going on. They didn't think anybody was going to challenge them in the meet. They were confident they were going to win."

Illinois State captured five of 19 events while the Salukis had only three first-place finishes, but they won the meet because of their overall team depth.

The Salukis' three first-place finishes were by Karen Cooper in the 400-meter hurdles (school record 61.3), Cynthia Joy in the javelin (personal best 140-4) and Rhonda McCausland in the shot put (48-8.3).

Joy led the Salukis to a sweep in the top three spots in the javelin. McCausland took second (126-7) and Laurie Dvorsky third (135-8). McCausland also took second in the discus (156-1).

Other solid performances included Sharon Leidy's third-place finish in the heptathlon (4,372 points) and Price's fourth-place finish in the shot put (43-1.57).

The 4x400 relay team of Debra Davis, Tammy Talbert, Denise Blackman and Cooper shattered the school record of 3:49.12 with a 3:47.5 time to take third. Eastern Illinois easily won (3:43) and Illinois State was second (3:45.9). The 4x100 relay team of Barley, Debra Davis, Cathy Davis and Blackman took second with a time of 47.9.

In other running events, Blackman was second in the 100 (12.0) and third in the 200 (24.9), Parley fourth in the 100 (12.2), Debra Davis third in the 400 (55.3), and Sally Zack (38:00.5) and Odette James (38:30.8) third and fourth in the 10,000.

In the long jump, Barley finished fifth (18-9.75), but Leidy and Edwards scratched on all three attempts.

"Not getting three girls in the finals hurt us," DeNoon said. "In practice drills they were all in the high 17s but in the meet they couldn't jump off the board right."

Even though no Salukis qualified for the NCAA tournament, DeNoon said he was happy with his team's performance.

"Beating the likes of Illinois

State and Illinois when it counted, that is what it is all about," he said. "It climaxes a good outdoor season, and hopefully we can rise to the level next week at the conference championships."

SALUKI NOTES: Carlon Blackman, Drake's two-time sophomore All-American, and Denise Blackman's twin sister, will transfer to SIU-C next season. DeNoon coached Carlon Blackman her freshman year at Drake before he came to SIU-C last fall. Carlon Blackman will have to sit out next year and won't be eligible to run until the 1985-86 season although she will still have two years of eligibility. Carlon Blackman has finished third in the NCAA indoor meet the past two years in the 400, her speciality.
