Legislature targets funds for education

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — House Democrats began cutting Gov. James R. Thompson's proposed $22.2 billion fiscal 1989 budget Thursday in an effort to target $200 million in cuts so that the money could be spent on education instead.

Among the cuts are elimination of non-cost of living pay hikes for non-union workers, slowing agency hiring, and reducing the budgets of constitutional officers and the judiciary.

In Thompson's budget, education would receive no new money in the coming fiscal year.

"They can nickel and dime the agencies by freezing travel and freezing typewriters and doing all that stuff," Thompson said.

"They are not going to come anywhere near $200 million."

The governor said even if $200 million in cuts could be made, the extra money for education would not be enough to open Chicago schools in the fall, reform them or to revamp the school aid formula.

Schools Chief Ted Sanders said he was pleased the Legislature was rearranging the state's funding priorities to provide more dollars to schools, but he said it was "like trying to stop a house fire with a bucket of water."

Sanders called the move a symbolic gesture and maintains a hike in the state income

Enrollment increases among black students

By Antonette Hayes
Staff Writer
and UPI

While black student enrollment in colleges and universities nationwide decreased in the past decade, black enrollment at SIUC increased 13 percent between 1981 and 1987.

However, the number of black students entering SIUC has failed to keep pace with the University's general enrollment increase. In 1981, blacks constituted 11 percent of the total enrollment. Last year, that figure fell to 9.6 percent.

Total enrollment at SIUC has increased by 5.6 percent since 1984.

According to Admission and Records reports, 24,160 students enrolled in Fall 1987. In 1984, the figure was 22,274.

The figures include students who are enrolled in off-campus programs.

Department of Education figures show that total black enrollment in the nation's colleges and universities declined from 9.6 percent to 8.8 percent between 1976 and 1986. However, the enrollment of other minority groups and women increased during the same period.

Overall college and university enrollment reached an all-time high of about 12.5 million students in 1986. That represents a 2 percent increase over 1984 figures.

Nationally, whites accounted for more than half of the growth, followed by Asians and Pacific Islanders, Hispanics, foreign students, blacks and American Indians and Alaskan natives.

University 'shirking its promise for services to blind students'

Editors note: This is the last of three articles on services for blind and visually impaired students at SIUC.

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

The University isn't keeping a commitment it made to offer orientation and mobility services to visually impaired students, James Skinner, a student blind rights activist, said.

During the late 1970s, an orientation assistance system for blind students was in operation on campus. Over the years the University allowed the system to deteriorate until it stopped working, Skinner, a former radio-television student, said.

"The University is living off of its past achievements," Skinner said. A pamphlet issued by DSS titled "A History of Participation for Students With Disabilities" outlines commitments to visually impaired students that the University has broken, he said.

However, a study conducted by the Disabled Student Services office found that the system wasn't effective in helping the blind find their way around campus, so no efforts were made to revamp the system when it stopped working, Carla Hayes, DSS coordinator, said.

Voters to decide convention issue

By Lisa Warns
Staff Writer

The most obscure issue on the Illinois ballot in November will be a referendum to determine whether there will be a constitutional convention, a campus political science expert said.

John Jackson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said few people know the convention question will be on the ballot.

Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, Glen Bower, assistant director of the Department of Group begins campaign for fairness amendment

Revenue, and Jerry Costello of the St. Clair County Board, members of the Committee to Re-examine the Illinois Constitution listened to citizens' concerns at a public hearing on the convention issue Thursday night in the Student Center.

"We have a good constitution but there is some need for change," David Kenney, professor of political science and a 1970 constitution convention delegate, said.

"The world changes, Kenney said. "It's a very different world (from 1970)."

Jackson said the only reason the question will be on the ballot is because the framers of the 1970 constitution included a provision that requires a vote on the convention issue every 20 years.

If voters believe that no change is needed or that changes can be accomplished through other means — passed by the General Assembly or through the amendment process — they can vote against a constitutional convention, according to the pamphlet.

Opponents argue that the convention costs could reach more than $81 million. The committee was established by the General Assembly to obtain assessments of the Illinois Constitution.

Polish authorities attempt to quell striking workers

KRAKOW, Poland (UPI) — Authorities moved Thursday to crush labor unrest sweeping Poland, sending more than 4,000 riot police into a strike-bound steel plant where workers were stunned with concussion grenades, beaten and arrested, witnesses said. The communist authorities also ordered operations suspended at the Lenin Shipyard in the Baltic port of Gdansk where Solidarity founder Lech Walesa promised about 3,000 holdout strikers, "I will be the last to leave!"

Philippine cargo vessel breaks up, 15 drown

CEBU, Philippines (UPI) — A cargo vessel illegally carrying passengers struck floating logs and split open in shark-infested waters Thursday, drowning at least 15 people, the Coast Guard said. Coast Guard spokesman Larry Lagman said 48 survivors were plucked from the sea after the 20-ton motorboat He Man sank off the coast of the eastern province of Samar, 370 miles southeast of Manila.

Freud hostages add twist to French election

PARIS (UPI) — The liberation of the last three French hostages held in Lebanon has thrown a wild card into the final round of the French presidential election Sunday — one expected to help underdog Prime Minister Jacques Chirac, commentators said Thursday. Polls taken before the hostages were freed said Mitterrand was likely to win re-election with up to 57 percent of the vote.

French commandos kill 17 separatists in raid

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (UPI) — French commandos backed by helicopter gunships Thursday stormed an oceanside cave where Melanesian separatists held 23 French hostages, freeing all the captives in a nearly eight-hour battle that left 17 dead. The 22 French gendarmes and a state prosecutor seized last month by separatists who call themselves Kanaks all managed to escape unharmed during blitz at the coral grotto on the island of Ouvvea, part of the troubled French Pacific territory of New Caledonia.

INS: Amnesty program draws 2.2 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A total of 2.2 million illegal aliens applied for amnesty, 125,000 in the final 24 hours, the immigration service said Thursday, indicating a "very, very high percentage" overcame fears the program was a trick. "We think the bottom line answers the question as to how successful (the amnesty program) has been," Alan Nelson, Immigration and Naturalization Service commissioner, told reporters.

Urban League demands new domestic policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charging the Reagan era has been a "disastrous eight-year experiment" that deepened the problems of the poor, the National Urban League called Thursday for a new domestic policy debate over the proper role of the federal government. Urban League President John Jacob accused the Reagan administration at a news conference of attitudes ranging from "outright hostility to indifference."

Democrats: Plant closing issue remains hot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The sweeping trade reform bill may die as a result of President Reagan's veto, but the object of his malice — advance notice of plant closings — will live as a political issue, a top Democrat said Thursday. The House and Senate have already approved a massive bill aimed at opening foreign markets to U.S. exports and cracking down on foreign trade abuses. But in recent weeks, the debate has shifted away from the trade provisions and focused on an amendment requiring companies to give employees 60 days' notice before shutting a business or ordering massive layoffs.

FBI Director: Ethical leadership necessary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director William Sessions said Thursday the conduct of public officials should be beyond reproach. "like Caesar's wife," but he declined judgment on the legal and ethical questions surrounding Attorney General Edwin Meese. Sessions, in contrast to the tough stand taken by Meese up to now, said the "route of resignation" would be open to him if there were widespread perceptions in the public that the FBI director was not "legally and ethically" carrying out his duties. A Senate subcommittee released a report Wednesday charging Meese violated a White House policy barring officials from intervening on behalf of friends.

When will the SIU Administration Ring the Bell?
 On November 26, 1986, St. Louis Channel 5 television news reported that SIU is prepared to spend as much as half a million dollars on the services of Seyfarth & Shaw — a law firm that is widely recognized for its unobscuring activities. This figure was confirmed by Vice-Chancellor Tom Britton in the Daily Egyptian on December 11, 1986.
 A Freedom of information request filed by the IEA last month revealed that as of February 29, 1988, the SIU administration had spent over $300,000 in legal fees and services on Seyfarth & Shaw. The administration is well on its way towards "ringing the bell" by spending $500,000 on this law firm.

Women runners to gear up, rest for conference meet

By Stephanie Wood
SIU-W Writer

The women's track team will run only seven athletes at the National Invitational Saturday to gear up for the Gateway Conference meet May 12-14.

Women's track coach Don DeNoon gave his athletes the option of competing this weekend.

"We want to let the kids get early finals out of the way without much difficulty," DeNoon said. "And some of the other girls just feel they need a rest."

Athletes competing this weekend include Christiana Philippou, Dora Kyriacou, Michelle Sciano, Rosanne Vincent, Angie Nunn, Felecia Veal and Beverly Klett.

DeNoon doesn't feel this weekend's rest will affect his athletes in the conference meet. "We're ready," he said. "If we're going to do it (win the conference), we're going to do

Gateway honors Philippou

SIU-C's Christiana Philippou was named Gateway track and field athlete of the week for her record-breaking performance in the triple jump at the Saluki Invitational April 30.

Philippou tied her school record and set a new McAndrew Stadium record with a jump of 40 feet, 1 inch. Philippou won the event and placed fourth in the long jump at 19-4 1/2.

Philippou currently is ranked first in the Gateway Conference in the triple jump and is fourth in the long jump with a season-best jump of 19-5 on March 26.

it." In point projections for the GCAC meet, SIU-C tops the list with 135 points. The Salukis' closest contender is Wichita State with 87.

"I can't see how anybody else could win," DeNoon said. "We could lose it ourselves but I don't see how the teams could stretch themselves to keep up."

DeNoon said Dora Kyriacou,

the team's top point scorer in the indoor season, has the potential to qualify for the NCAA championships in the 400-meter dash.

"If she can run in competition as well as she ran (Tuesday) night, she'll make the NCAA qualifying standard this weekend," DeNoon said. "Dora is looking phenomenal right now."

Women's golf team leads after 2 rounds at Gateway

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

SIU-C's Vicki Higginson shot a career 74 on her first 18 holes and the Salukis built a 19-stroke lead over defending champion Wichita State after two rounds of the Gateway Conference women's golf tournament Thursday in Nixa, Mo.

Higginson, a senior, leads the field with a 36-hole score of 154. Her 3-over-par first round was only one stroke shy of the 18-hole conference record 73 shared by SIU-C's Jill Bertram (1986), Northern Iowa's Margo Gillespi (1985) and Illinois State's Jackie Ryan (1985).

However, Higginson's second round 80 put her 17 strokes off the 54 hole record of 224 set by Gillespie and Ryan in 1985.

The Salukis also occupy the second and third spots in the tournament. Sophomore Julie Shumaker had two 79s for a 158 while senior Tina Kozlowski had an 81 and 78 for a 159, five strokes behind the leader.

"I don't believe we'll roll over dead," said Coach Diane Daugherty, whose team is aiming for its third conference title. "Gaining 17 strokes on Wichita State this afternoon tells me we are in better shape mentally and physically."

The Salukis shot a team 323 and led Wichita State by two strokes after the first round. An outstanding 317 in the second round gave the Salukis a 640 and the large margin.

"We are playing with a lot of confidence," Daugherty said. "We should be able to build on the 19-stroke lead."

The tournament, held at the 6,000-yard, par 71 Freemont Hills Country Club near Springfield, concludes today.

This season, the Sycamores have been plagued by an inconsistent pitching staff, which has a 5.81 team ERA. When they have received good pitching, the hitting has faltered. Last weekend, Indiana State pitchers tossed four complete games against Bradley. However, the Braves still came away with two victories when the Sycamore offense was held in check.

Indiana State's problems are a lot like the Salukis', Jones said.

"You have got to have three or four hitters hitting all the time," Jones said. "We've had that in a lot of ballgames, but come conference time, we have to get six or seven guys (hitting). Our problem seems to be we haven't gotten that clutch hit."

Jones has flip-flopped his pitching rotation. Rich "Soup" Campbell (5-3, 4.63 ERA) will go up against ISU right-hander Chris Schaefer (5-4, 5.07 ERA) in Saturday's first game.

Cliff McCluskey (5-0, 4.94 ERA) is slated to pitch against Sycamore lefty Kurt Olson (5-3, 4.28 ERA) in game two. On Sunday, the Salukis will send Dale Kisten (6-7, 4.29 ERA) and Lee Meyer (4-1, 2.84 ERA) to the mound. The Sycamores' starters have not yet been named.

Indiana State right-fielder Chad McDonald leads the team in hits (63), doubles (13), home runs (11) and RBIs (53), in addition to hitting .344.

Jeff Buell (.372, 5 HRs, 36 RBIs), an outstanding defensive first baseman, has the team's top batting average. Last summer, he was drafted by the Chicago White Sox.

Second baseman Mitch Hannahs (.358, 0 HRs, 27 RBIs), outfielder Larry Russell (.336, 4 HRs, 42 RBIs) and center fielder Bob Zeihen (.342, 2 HRs, 19 RBIs) are all hitting above the team's .318 average.

Zeihen has stolen 18 steals in 24 attempts.

Despite Jones' belief that it will tough for the Salukis to gain an at-large bid into the 48-team NCAA tournament, Kisten is still holding out hope.

"Right now, we have to go out and win just about every game," Kisten said.

Rugby's last game is Saturday

The rugby football club, 7-5 on the season, will play its last match of the season at 1 p.m. Saturday at the rugby pitch behind Abe Martin Field.

The Old Loads, the ex-rugby team members, will provide the competition.

Club president Tom Eumson said it should be a pretty even match.

"We haven't had a lot of people at practice this week because of finals, and they (the Old Loads) are old and out of shape."

Hare-raising kidnappers apprehended

KENILWORTH, N.J. (UPI) — The kidnappers are under arrest, the ransom recovered and the victim is safely back home.

It all started earlier this week when Michelle Rizzo, 6, discovered that the 2-month-old bunny she'd received as an Easter gift had been filched from its hutch.

In its place was an ominous ransom demand pieced together from newspaper clippings: "If you ever want to see your stupid rabbit alive again, leave $50 in an envelope under the railroad crossing sign behind your house."

Michelle's parents, Joseph and Vera Rizzo, called their neighbor, police Chief Charles David, who called in detectives on their day off.

Detective William Dowd photocopied $50 in currency, placed it in an envelope and sent Michelle, Joseph Jr., and their 10-year-old sister Antoinette to place the "ransom" under the rock designated in the note.

A short time later, a teenager from the neighborhood walked up, collected the envelope and was grabbed by members of a police stakeout team.

He led police to an accomplice and, by Sunday night, the two boys, 14 and 15, had implicated a third teen.

Smokey was found in a shed behind the first boy's home, alive and well and awaiting his release in a cardboard box marked, "Handle with care. Rabbit inside. Thank you for the money."

EARTHQUAKE

May 1 - May 7, 1988

ILLINOIS EARTHQUAKE AWARENESS WEEK

Awareness and preparedness are our greatest asset if an earthquake does occur. Have on hand...

FLASHLIGHT with spare batteries. Do not use matches or candles unless you are certain there are no gas leaks.

PORTABLE RADIO with spare batteries. Telephones should be used for emergencies so radios will be your best source of information.

FIRST AID KIT: First aid knowledge - have a first aid book close by and have members of your household take basic first aid.

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS... for small fires. Class C extinguishers are designed to use safely on any type of fire (electrical, grease or gas).

FOOD. Keep a supply of non-perishable food on hand, such as canned or dehydrated food, powdered milk, canned juices, dried cereal and fruit, and nuts.

WATER - Should be stored in air-tight containers and replaced every 6 months. Store 3 gallons per person and have purification tablets on hand.

SPECIAL ITEMS. Have at least a week's supply of medications and special foods needed for infants or those on limited diets.

TOOLS. Pipe wrench and crescent wrench for turning off gas and water mains. Teach household members how to turn off gas, water and electricity.

OTHER THINGS YOU CAN DO TO PREPARE: Place large or heavy objects on lower shelves. Fasten shelves to walls. Move glass bottles from above or around bathtub and sinks.

REMOVE FLAMMABLE LIQUIDS (painting & cleaning products) to garage or outside cupboard.

MAKE SURE you have ample exits that will not be blocked by fallen debris. Have an EARTHQUAKE DRILL to familiarize yourself with these exits.

FASTEN TOP-HEAVY FURNITURE to walls. BOLT DOWN gas appliances or secure them to walls.

INSTALL FASTENERS OR LATCHES on cupboard doors. Strong child-proof latches work well.

Bennett proposes bill to cut GSL defaults

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Education Secretary William Bennett sent Congress legislative proposals Thursday to cut student loan defaults, which at $1.6 billion this year is about half of the Guaranteed Student Loan budget.

Bennett said the legislative package, "Student Aid Integrity and Accountability Amendments of 1988, is part of a three-prong effort to bring under control excessive levels of defaults on government student loans."

The bill, department officials conceded, focuses mainly on students by tightening eligibility requirements for the loans.

Officials stressed government regulations also are being tightened regarding accreditation of higher education institutions, particularly trade and business schools, and their handling of the loan programs.

"These reforms are urgently needed in order to address a number of serious problems that threaten the integrity and viability of our student aid programs," said Bennett in letters to House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, and Vice President George Bush, the Senate's president.

"Such problems include an alarming rate of student loan defaults, the exploitation of unqualified students by some schools, and a lack of institutional accountability for educational results in the student aid programs.

Last year, Bennett complained that default payment have become the department's third largest expenditure, projected to increase from $531 million in fiscal year 1983 to $1.6 billion in fiscal year 1988. The cumulative default rate for this year is around 13.7 percent, officials said, and projected to climb to 14.4 percent.

Among the statutory changes, the bill would stipulate that students who receive federal loans for higher education have a high school diploma or its equivalent. Currently, students may receive loans to enter trade or vocational schools as long as they earn a high school degree in the process.

That rule, said Bennett, "has become an open invitation for some unscrupulous schools to exploit ill-prepared, disadvantaged students."

Also, the bill, which would change provisions of the Higher Education Act of 1963, would reduce the federal insurance and reinsurance rates for student loans.

Sound off against tuition increases

"HELP STOP TUITION increases; write your legislators," reads the sign behind a table in the Student Center.

It would be nice if that was all that had to be done, but we all know it's not that simple. It is, however, an important step in letting the legislators know students are getting fed up with paying for governmental mismanagement.

With this in mind, we advise students to take a few minutes to sign the form letters that the Undergraduate Student Government and the Alumni Association have available at their Student Center table today — and add your own post scripts to let the folks in Springfield know you mean business.

IT ALSO WOULD be encouraging to see fraternities, student organizations and other clubs get involved with letter-writing campaigns. They've got the numbers to wake up the legislators to students' plights. Add that to approximately 175 letters the table had accumulated as of Thursday morning and the numbers become more significant.

For students who realize that tuition increases are nothing more than legislators biting the hands that feed them, but who don't have a clear handle on specifics, here are a few noteworthy points:

- Illinois is tied for last with West Virginia in terms of percentage increase in state tax appropriations for higher education over the last 10 years.

- Gov. Jim Thompson's budget proposal for higher education for FY 1989 provides the buying power equivalent to the higher education budget of 18 years ago.

- Illinois is one of only four states that had a reduction in state tax fund appropriations for higher education between FY 1986 and 1988.

IT DOESN'T TAKE a microscope to see Illinois has been letting higher education slide in recent years. If students respond with even a fraction of the enthusiasm exhibited for such extracurricular activities as Springfest, it won't take a microscope to let legislators see that their days of dumping on those pursuing an education are over.

"The future is unwritten," says an old proverb with roots in the spirit of revolution. By taking a few minutes to stand up for your right to affordable education, however, you can play a part in a revolution that works within the framework of the system.

Grab your pens, comrades, and let the future begin.

Opinions from elsewhere

The New York Times

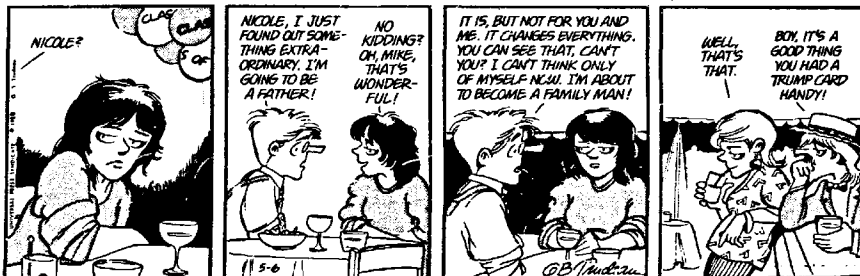

Massachusetts recently ventured where no state had gone before: It guaranteed health insurance for every resident. This ambitious initiative was the brainchild of Gov. Michael Dukakis, who hopes it will commend him to voters in his quest for the presidency.

Some 37 million Americans now lack health insurance. Sen. Edward Kennedy and Rep. Henry Waxman are pressing legislation that could insure 24 million of them by requiring employers to provide coverage. The new Massachusetts legislation creates an invaluable pilot program.

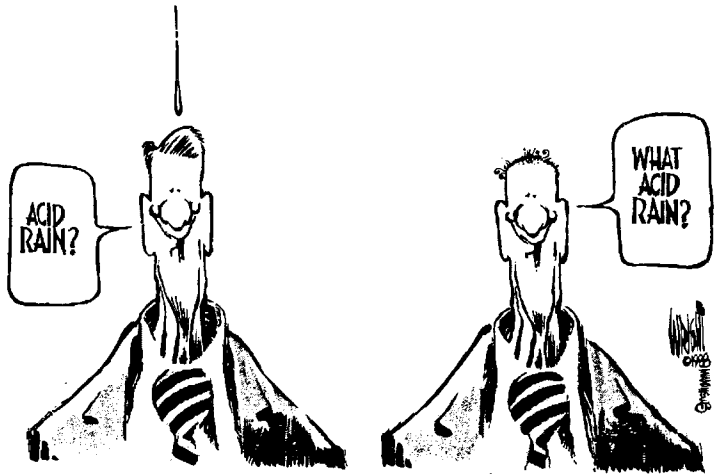

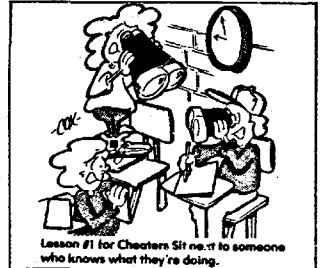

Critics of the plan fear it may, as one put it, "bankrupt the commonwealth." By one estimate, the state will spend $600 million on the program just in the shakedown period through 1992, before it is fully in force.

The Massachusetts experiment holds great promise for one state's uninsured families. The critical question is whether it can be exported.

IT'S A ROUGH LIFE by Stephen Cox

Letters

Ex-pledge should be embarrassed

As a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, I would like to show some support for the brothers of Delta Chi who recently were accused of "taking a pledge for a ride."

The headline and letter in the Daily Egyptian May 3 touched the realm of intentional slander and was demeaning to a fraternity that, for good reason, has been named SIU-C's most distinguished men's Greek chapter for the past two years.

In a situation similar to that of any Greek organization on campus and in the nation, one could ask any pledge of Alpha Gamma Delta if the fee she pays before she is pledged is refundable. She'll say it is not.

Our pledges are told — before they receive their pledge pins — that they will not get their $35 fee back, whether they become initiated members or not.

We inform our prospective pledges that 80 percent of this fee goes to the international headquarters of Alpha Gamma Delta for paperwork expenses for each pledge. The remainder of the fee is used to pay for pledge manuals. We cannot give this money back and we do not use this money for any other purpose.

Contrary to what seems to be the belief of David Newby, the Greeks do not make money from pledging unsuspecting students and then telling them that they don't fit in.

If the brothers of Delta Chi made any mistake in connection with Newby, it was that they pledged him in the first place. I'm almost positive that, when he disrespectfully had a portion of the fraternity's constitution printed, he must have copied it from some source. He certainly did not say it from the heart. Perhaps this is why he did not pass his oral examination.

If I were Newby, I would be embarrassed to publicize the fact that I was not worthy of becoming a member of such an honorable organization on campus as the Delta Chi fraternity. Frankly, Mr. Newby, I feel sorry for you... Jennifer Modest, vice president of fraternity education, Alpha Gamma Delta.

Jilted pledge: Delta Chi worth lost money

I, too, was a pledge for Delta Chi and was pinned the same evening as David H. Newby. I received my pin, pledgebook, and a magazine that tells about Delta Chi events, which we would receive if we went active. I also had to pay $40 to Delta Chi.

Later, I had to pay $23 to the pledge class for skip-out activities.

After the fourth week, when we were required to have an oral examination, we all were nervous, and didn't know what to expect.

The exam basically was getting to understand how things operate. What we had to know for the oral exam was held to a minimum, basically limited to who the actives were and what they were about.

When we all were upstairs (the pledges) we talked and discussed what had happened.

Then we heard about David Newby. We were upset. We had lost a pledge brother. Though I must say, if he truly wanted it, why didn't he know anything, not even his own pledge brothers?

Delta Chi stands for what brotherhood truly is about.

My name is Chas R. Russell. I was told to leave the fraternity also. I put three times as much as $63 into the fraternity. I feel I got something that surpasses $63 by an incredible length that never could be reached. Delta Chi — and all people involved in Delta Chi — is something I never will forget. — Chas R. Russell, freshman, science.

DE coverage of boat regatta was garbage

Last Saturday, one of SIU-C's biggest events of the year took place — the Great Cardboard Boat Regatta. Since its inception 15 years ago, the regatta has grown in popularity and even receives national media attention. But our campus newspaper all but neglected the event. The Daily Egyptian ran a few pictures and a story about how much garbage was left to clean up.

Who won? How many boats were entered? Other questions were not answered, such as: Which boats stood out? Were any records broken?

I, along with many others, would have liked to know which of our comrades at SIU-C won awards and broke old records.

Basically, I think the DE's coverage of this "GREAT" spectacle and continuing tradition was exactly what you told us about... a bunch of garbage. — Jim Murphy, senior, business management.

Carbondale firefighters persevere to save lives

By Laura Milbrath
Staff Writer

The living room is filled with comfortable chairs and surrounded by wood paneling. A large color TV flashes images of a basketball game. Fishing magazines are stacked in a pile. The phone is silent.

One of the room's inhabitants casually glances up from his newspaper at the moment of a big play in the game and nods. Another strolls into the kitchen for a sandwich. Dishes dry in the sink. Jars of spices form a neatly lined row and clean pans rest on top of the cupboards.

A slight tension fills the air, but the phone remains silent.

In the next room, beds are lined in two rows, perfectly made, as in the military.

The sudden scream of the alarm buzzer sends six hearts racing as bodies leap into motion. This time it's not an emergency. The hearts slow down momentarily.

These are the men of the Carbondale Fire Department, who devote their lives to saving the lives of others.

Some have been firefighting for more than 20 years.

"This is a job where if a person stays here for two years, they'll retire from the fire department," Robert Biggs, one of three assistant Carbondale Fire Department chiefs said. "It's in your blood and you won't get out of it."

Biggs exudes a quiet confidence. He smiles warmly and often as he strolls into the living room. He jokes with the men, notices what is playing on the television and laughs with them.

Biggs is not a supervisor who blindly gives orders while standing sternly above the men on his shift, making sure the orders are completed. Each man knows what Biggs expects of the shift and respectfully tries to please him.

But Biggs is more than willing to do his share of the work.

Wayne Brooks, a veteran firefighter of 26 years, said of Biggs: "He cares about the men. You are not just work machines. You're a human being, and he recognizes that. A lot of times he'll do his dishes and some of ours too. He jumps right in and helps. It makes the shift stronger when you have someone like that at the head of it."

Biggs explained his philosophy. "I've always said that I will not ask any man that works under me to do anything that I can't do personally. I don't think it takes anything away from the chain of command."

His men, he added, "will walk the extra mile to take care of me and see that I don't have any problems because they know I'll walk the extra mile for them."

Biggs described himself as "easygoing. I like to make things enjoyable even if it's scrubbing floors. Why not have fun doing it."

Sitting in the communications room where the electric alarm panels signal the firefighters of an emergency in town, Biggs talked about the misconceptions associated with firefighters.

"Everyone tries to think of us as the macho-hero type, but it's not that," he said. "It's the satisfaction of doing the job and trying to help other people. We have one of the few jobs in the world where if we have nothing to do, that's fine because no one is in trouble."

Firefighter Kerry Matthews prepares a meal in the station's kitchen.

The men at the two Carbondale stations are divided into three, 24-hour shifts. Each firefighter works 24 hours and then has 48 hours off the job.

"That sounds great until you figure that a person who works 40 hours a week works 2,060 hours a year and a person who works every third day works 2,924 hours a year," Biggs said.

Joe Crawshaw, a Carbondale firefighter for 21 years, said that the two days off the job are often badly needed.

"You're here 24 hours. You deserve 48 hours off," he said. "It takes two days sometimes to rest up and get ready for another day."

Firefighters deal with exhaustion and frustration often, even when there are no emergencies, because of the stress of false alarms, Gary Heern said. Heern, who has been a firefighter for 10 years said: "Every time the adrenalin starts pumping, it just takes a lot out of you."

While working a shift, firefighters know that at any given second they may be called to duty. Most often, duty seems to call in the dead of night.

"People don't realize that 90 percent of our big fires are between midnight and 6 a.m.," Crawshaw said. "A lot of people don't realize anything happened until the next morning when it's over."

Each firefighting team becomes a second family to the men, as they share each third day together. They check equipment. They scrub floors. They make beds. And they wait for the phone to ring.

"When that alarm goes off, everybody moves," Biggs said.

Heern added, "Whenever anyone picks up that phone, everybody moves, no matter what they are doing and congregates to see what's going on. Every second counts."

Biggs has learned to evaluate the type of emergency taking place from the tone in the caller's voice.

"When that phone rings and someone says, 'My house is on fire and I can't get to my kids,' all hell breaks loose. You tell me that your kids are trapped in the house and people had better get out of my way," he said.

Student charged with map theft

By John Mohler
Staff Writer

A University student charged with tearing rare maps from books in Morris Library is scheduled for a May 24 preliminary hearing at Jackson County Courthouse, assistant state's attorney Michael Nieskes said Thursday.

The maps are worth between $5,000 and $10,000.

The student, Michael J. Valtos, freshman in pre-business, was scheduled for a preliminary hearing on Wednesday. The hearing was postponed because Valtos' attorney could not attend, Nieskes said.

Valtos is charged with criminal damage to state property and the theft of more than $300 in property, Nieskes said.

Valtos' alleged actions were discovered when a collector of rare books from Tennessee contacted a documents librarian at Morris Library, SIU-C Security Police Sgt. Robert Drake said.

Valtos allegedly saw an advertisement in a magazine in which the collector offered money for rare materials, Drake said.

Drake said Valtos contacted the collector and sent five maps, which the collector said were worth $500. However, he offered Valtos only $200, Drake said.

in the first contact, Valtos enclosed his telephone number and a note which stated "make me an offer."

The collector sent a check the first week of April, Drake said. Police said Valtos allegedly mailed about 150 maps in all.

Drake said the collector became suspicious of Valtos when Valtos asked that the first payment of $200 be made in four checks of $50 each.

The man knew the maps were sent from Carbondale and contacted the documents librarian, Drake said. The librarian confirmed that the maps were torn from government publications at the library, Drake said.

Hispanics and Asians and Pacific Islanders showed large increases in enrollment, and together accounted for about 9.4 percent of total enrollment in public institutions.

Enrollment of blacks at four-year institutions during 1982 and 1986 has been fairly stable, ranging from 612,000 students to 615,000 students.

An education department report said two-year institutions also experienced enrollment increases, an average of 2 percent between 1976 and 1986. The report also said minority students are enrolling mainly at two-year institutions.

Black enrollment at two-year institutions increased by 9 percent; Hispanic enrollment by 64 percent, Asian and Pacific Islander enrollment by 135 percent, and American Indian enrollment by 24 percent.

As for enrollment by sex, the national report said a complete reversal occurred in the distribution of men and women. In 1976, men and women accounted for 53 percent and 47 percent, respectively. By 1986, the distribution was exactly the opposite.

According to SIU-C enrollment records for fall of 1981 and 1987, male enrollment decreased slightly while female enrollment increased by 2 percent.

Police Blotter

A University police officer was involved in a head-on car collision while he attempted to pass a vehicle on Route 51 at Unity Point school Wednesday morning, University police said.

Officer Mikey C. Thomas, 56, was driving southbound to the scene of an accident when he entered the northbound lane and was struck by a car driven north by Sharon A. Duty, 41, of Cobden, police said.

Duty was treated for foot and ankle injuries at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale and released, police said.

Police reports said Thomas had activated his headlights, overhead lights and flashers. Thomas allegedly stopped his car when he saw the on-coming car, but Duty's car skidded on oil spilled on the pavement from the previous car accident, police said.

The Illinois State Police are investigating the incident.

A burglar smashed the window of a University student's car to steal stereo equipment and a citizen's band radio as it was parked at a lot west of University Park Thursday morning, University police said.

Damage to the window and the dashboard of the car that belongs to James M. Odum, 21, totaled $220, police said.

The value of the stolen items was not known by police.

tax still is needed.

A proposal to give college tuition waivers to the children of state university employees was defeated by the House Revenue Committee Thursday. The bill calls for tuition waivers for students under the age of 25 if one of their parents worked at the school for seven or more years. The tuition waivers could be redeemed at any school under the jurisdiction of the same board of trustees as the parent's employer.

House lawmakers also gave final approval to a comprehensive supplemental spending measure that would allow the state to begin processing back bills from health care providers which serve the poor.

The 110-0 House vote came without debate. Senate lawmakers approved the plan a day earlier on a 52-3 tally after successfully fighting off an effort to change the Medicaid portion of the spending plan by setting up an emergency fund to pay health care providers who are in danger of going out of business.

Administration officials continue to decry the proposal as "phony" and Gov. James R. Thompson said he would not sign it.

"I'm considering my options, but I'm not going to promise ... money that isn't there," Thompson said.

He noted that the $159 spending authorization for Medicaid payments is not necessary to speed up payments to providers when the new fiscal year begins July 1.

"A number of experimental things were tried on the campus," Hayes said. But none of the experiments proved effective, she said.

One of the experiments was the beeper orientation system, which was designed and installed by the Physical Plant Engineering Service in the summer of 1976.

The system consists of green concrete posts, about four-feet high, with a copper plaque embedded in the top that gives braille directions to campus buildings. The posts had a small speaker that emitted sound, which blind students used to locate the post.

Braille is the system of printing and writing for the blind, in which characters are formed by patterns of raised dots and are "read" by feeling the dots.

Braille is the system of printing and writing for the blind, in which characters are formed by patterns of raised dots and are "read" by feeling the dots.

Six posts originally were installed by Physical Plant personnel at a cost of about $600, Edwin L. Bryant, Physical Plant chief draftsman and post designer, said. He added that plans called for the installation 16 posts. Five of the posts still exist. Bryant designed the braille plaque.

THE EXISTING posts are located at the southwest corner of Mill Street and South University Avenue; northeast of Altgeld Hall at the entrance to the Old Main Mall; on the southwest corner of Lincoln and Douglas Drives; south of the Wham Building breezeway; and at the north entrance to Morris Library, near the bicycle racks.

The braille plaque gives directions to campus buildings corresponding to the hour position on a clock dial in relation to the post. The directions also are written in standard words for the non-visually impaired to read.

The beeper system was powered during the day by a battery system that was recharged at night by street light circuits, Bryant said. Over the years the charging circuits wore out and the batteries corroded, he said.

THE POSTS emitted a barely audible popping sound that was similar "to the snapping of a person's fingers," Bryant said.

"The posts were a quite a unique innovation at the time, but they were met with mixed feelings," Bryant said.

"Once the posts were in place, everyone just forgot about them," Bryant added. Maintenance plans "just fell through the cracks," he said.

Skinner and Earl Czajkowski, a former business student, said the system was helpful to them when it was working.

"The beepers helped me out a lot, especially when I was new to the campus," Czajkowski said.

CAROL MCCANN, a counselor in the campus office of the state Department of Rehabilitation Services, said that although the beeper system was never relied on as the only method of orientating the blind to campus, it was useful in assisting braille-reading blind students when they became disoriented.

Another beeper system that was met with mixed feelings was installed around 1976 by the City of Carbondale at the intersection of East Grand and South Illinois avenues. Blind pedestrians could listen to the beeper's tone change pitch to safely cross the street, in much the same way sighted pedestrians watch lighted signals.

"THE BLIND didn't trust that beeper," McCann said.

Normally, visually impaired people listen to the sounds of traffic when they want to cross streets, McCann said. However, this is difficult in Carbondale because "many irregular traffic patterns exist in the city," she said.

The traffic sight beeper wasn't effective because of the legal right turn on a red signal at Grand and South Illinois, McCann said. The beeper allowed blind people to walk into the path of moving traffic, she said.

Another problem with the traffic light beepers was competing noise, former Disabled Student Services Coordinator Ronald Blosser said.

"THE BEEPER had to be so loud (to be heard over traffic noise) that you could hear it across campus," Blosser said. The noisy traffic beeper drew the ire of instructors teaching classes in nearby Quigley Hall, he said.

Blosser was DSS coordinator when the experiments were taking place. In July 1987 he left SIU-C to become director of the Disabled Student Services office at the University of California at Irvine.

Blosser said the campus orientation beepers were impractical. "The idea was nice, but the practicality just wasn't functional," he said.

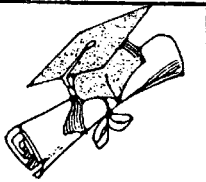

THE SYSTEM was designed within the University and when the system broke down spare parts were "practically nonexistent," Blosser said. "There were too many problems with the whole beeper system to justify maintenance."

Hayes said reinstating the beepers would be impractical because most of the currently enrolled blind students don't read braille, as Skinner and Czajkowski do.

Group: Constitutional reforms are needed to support education

By Edward Rahe
Staff Writer

Citizens for Constitutional Reform initiated their statewide campaign to add the "fairness amendment" to the Illinois Constitution.

The proposed "fairness amendment" would require the state government to fully fund programs that it proposes but now forces local governments to fund. Also it would require the state to pay at least half the cost of public education.

The fairness doctrine would be considered only if Illinois voters decide in November that a state constitutional convention is needed in 1990.

The current Illinois Constitution makes the state principally responsible for the funding of education. The state now provides 38 percent of the funding to public education. Other money comes from local property taxes.

The proposed amendment calls for the state to provide 50 percent of the funding for public education.

University seeks funds for campaign

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Personal checks totaling $1,100 were signed Thursday by 12 University administrators and placed into a graduation cap to begin a public information campaign to explain the importance of education in Illinois.

The campaign, Citizens for an Educated Illinois, will be funded through private contributions. Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said at a press conference on the south patio of the Student Center.

"We will be asking for contributions from all kinds of citizens," he said, "not just those associated with the University."

Administrators who donated at the news conference included President John C. Guyon, Vice President for Student Affairs Harvey Welch and Pettit. Graduate and Professional Student Council President Darrell Johnson also contributed money to the campaign.

"There is not a planned amount that needs to be raised for the campaign," Catherine Walsh, assistant to the chancellor, said. "The amount raised will dictate what they are able to do."

The campaign will consist of television and radio advertising, Pettit said. The commercials are scheduled to begin airing around May 18.

"But I don't know if we will have the money to start airing them then," he added.

The commercials will target certain legislative districts, many of them in the suburbs of Chicago, Pettit said.

"Illinois is backsliding in the funding of education," Pettit said. "Why is Illinois, with a tradition of wealth, not being competitive with other states in meeting its obligation to education?"

Pettit questioned both the state's and the public's understanding of the financial "predicament" of education.

"What has happened is that property taxes have had to make up the difference. School districts have had to cut back as state government has abdicated its role to primarily finance education."

—Patrick Quinn

Patrick Quinn, spokesman for Citizens for Constitutional

Reform, said there are 313 state mandated programs to provide school districts with funds, but the state is not providing funds to the school districts for the programs.

Quinn spoke at a news conference at the Carbondale Holiday Inn.

"In the last 12 years the state government has declined in its support for education from 48 percent to 38 percent of the total burden," Quinn said. "What has happened is that local property taxes have had to make up the difference. School districts have had to cut back as state government has abdicated its role to primarily finance education."

Illinois has to invest in education and it should use state funds to do so, he added.

"We're using a 19th century tax system — the property tax system — which is highly unpopular with businesses, families and individuals to finance the most important part of 20th and 21st century growth in the state," Quinn said.

The state should rely less on property taxes and more on state funds to pay for things like asbestos removal in schools, he said.

The state could get additional funding for education and local government from state revenue growth, closing loopholes and instituting priority spending in state government, Quinn said.

Carbondale police receive help in quest for bullet proof jackets

By John Mohler
Staff Writer

Lambda Alpha Epsilon, an academic fraternity, presented Carbondale police chief Ed Hogan with a $200 contribution Thursday to the department's drive to equip each officer with a bullet-proof jacket, group spokesman Mike Mitchell said.

Hogan said the fund-raiser has collected about $6,500, more than half of the $12,000 goal.

Police spokesman Donald Strom said the campaign will allow the department to issue the protective jackets to all its 52 officers.

Strom said although no Carbondale police officers have been shot in recent years, the department is taking a "better-safe-than-sorry" approach.

"You can see the number of incidents nationwide where officers are in danger," Strom said. "We've been lucky."

In the past, officers had to buy their own jackets, Strom said.

A private citizen, retired Air Force Col. James Grehan, is organizing the fund-raising efforts by contacting local businessmen and other potential contributors, Strom said.

"He's taken a real interest (in the program)," Strom said. "He's assumed the responsibility...and really spearheaded the whole thing."

Grehan is a former commanding officer for the University's Air Force ROTC program.

Hogan said many donations have come from individual contributors.

Mitchell said Lambda Alpha Epsilon is open to all majors, but a majority of members is administration of justice majors.

Group offers videotapes of ceremonies

By Edward Rabe
Staff Writer

Members of the SIU-C chapter of the International Television Association with assistance of the Department of Radio and Television, SIU-C Broadcasting service and the SIU Alumni Association will produce video tapes of each of the nine graduation ceremonies.

This year is the first time that the ITA will produce and make available tapes of all nine graduation ceremonies.

The ceremonies will be taped on high-quality, three-quarter-inch video tape and duplicated onto half-inch video tape. VHS and BETA formats will be available for $20.

Order forms for the tapes will be available at the radio and television department office in the Communications Building, at the University Bookstore and the graduation ceremonies.

H. Arnold Barton, professor of history, has been named Swedish American of the Year for 1988.

The honor is bestowed by the Vasa Order of America, a leading Swedish-American friendship organization, and the Swedish Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Barton is a specialist in 18th and 19th century history and is an authority on Swedish American history.

A historian was selected for the award in observance of the 50th anniversary of Sweden's North American colony, New Sweden, in 1638.

A native of Los Angeles,

Barton received his bachelor's degree from Pomona (Calif.) College in 1953 and a Ph.D. in history from Princeton University in 1962.

Before coming to the University in 1970, he taught at the University of Alberta, Canada, and the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Barton has served as editor of the Swedish-American Historical Quarterly, and published several books.

He is presently working on a study of the relationship between Swedes in the "old country" and their emigrated countrymen.

Local communities get incentive from Carbondale's tax stance

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Some Southern Illinois chambers of commerce are expected to follow Carbondale's lead and issue resolutions supporting a tax increase, James Prowell, Carbondale Chamber of Commerce executive director said.

The Carbondale Chamber of Commerce issued a resolution in April supporting a tax increase.

Several local chambers of commerce are considering whether to support the State Chamber of Commerce's campaign to thwart a tax increase. Prowell said he still is waiting to hear from about 19 chambers that he contacted about supporting the increase.

"I'm pleased that the (Carbondale) chamber has taken the lead" and would like to see Southern Illinois in the forefront of the push for a tax increase, Prowell said.

Lester Bethel, Marion Chamber of Commerce executive director, said the Marion chapter's by-laws don't allow a political stand and members will have to make their own decisions about a tax increase.

If the chamber issues a resolution "one way or the other you lose," Bethel said. An issue like this can bitterly divide the chamber and community if a stand is taken, he said.

Prowell said Carbondale chamber members and the community have been about 98 percent in favor of the resolution supporting a tax increase. It has brought the Carbondale chamber together, he said.

Bethel said he has talked to the chambers of a few other communities and they also are afraid of divisiveness in their chapters. Carbondale can issue a resolution in support of a tax increase because it is a university community and most people will support the chamber, he said.

"You want quality education, yet if you get a tax increase out there everyone (not just education) gets funds," Bethel said. Educators have a lot of credibility and Gov. James R. Thompson is clouding the issue, he said.

Malcolm Hiron, Mount Vernon Chamber of Commerce executive director, said he is very personally opposed to a tax increase, but would like to see more money spent on education.

Hiron said attracting industry to generate revenue is the answer to the state's budget woes. "We're hitting ourselves over the head and hoping it will feel good when we quit," he said.

"We (Illinois) do so many things for so many people and it's all nice, but somebody has to pay," Hiron said.

"The state will get us in such a position that we won't be able to attract industry to Illinois."

Hiron said he will ask the chamber if it wants to issue a resolution in support of a tax increase. One issue like this probably wouldn't divide the chamber, he said.

Lester Brann, Illinois Chamber of Commerce president, said it's not unexpected for university communities to support a tax increase. Unfortunately, while the communities think they're in store for a small tax increase — such as the much-touted 0.5 percent — the actual increase probably will be closer to 40 percent, he said.

Doctors' orders modified

Study: Changes by technicians often appropriate

CHICAGO (UPI) — More than half of all doctors' orders for diagnostic tests are altered by hospital clerks or lab technicians, but the tests actually performed are usually more appropriate than the ones the doctor ordered, a study indicated Thursday.

On average, the study of two New York hospitals found, clerical alterations or laboratory "interpretations" of doctors' orders decreased the amount of inappropriate testing from 37 percent to 25 percent.

Dr. Albert Finn, a resident pathologist at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, said the finding posed an unusual dilemma for the medical establishment.

"On the one hand, we absolutely can't tolerate having non-physicians going around changing a doctor's orders," Finn said. "But when these changes are resulting in improvements, we have to look at how to make these changes appropriate."

Finn emphasized the alterations were not purely random. They often occurred when a clerk used a computerized ordering system that restricted choices to appropriate tests or when a experienced lab technicians decided "the doctor meant something other than what he wrote."

"These are both types of input that doctors could benefit from," Finn said. "But they still should be the ones to change the orders. Systems have to be put in place to make sure that happens."

Finn and his colleagues, reporting in the Journal of the American Medical Association, evaluated how accurately doctors' testing orders were carried out at the SUNY University Hospital and the Northport Veterans Administration Medical Center during a one-week period in the spring of 1986.

The researchers looked specifically at the ordering of thyroid function tests, primarily because there is general agreement among physicians about which tests to order for which conditions.

Of thyroid function testing ordered for 181 patients at the two hospitals, at least one test was added to or deleted from the original orders in 54 percent of the cases.

However, the researchers were surprised to find that the appropriateness of the tests improved, from 63 percent to 75 percent. "But it turned there was a logical explanation for it," Finn said.

At SUNY, all alterations were made by clerks working with a computerized ordering system, which made it difficult to order groups of tests that are either redundant or inappropriately matched. Sixty percent of the changes made at SUNY improved the appropriateness of the tests, 28 percent had no effect, and only 13 percent of the changes were inappropriate.

Clerical alterations at the Veteran's hospital, which transcribes orders by hand, only improved appropriateness in 5 percent of the cases. But on the other hand, technician changes improved test appropriateness 65 percent of time.

The researchers recommended a system under which changes prompted by the computer or made by technicians be brought to the attention of physicians, who could then approve or reject them.

Judge: No gag order in manslaughter case

BOSTON (UPI) — A judge Thursday refused to issue a gag order in the case of a Christian Science couple charged with manslaughter for treating their ill son with prayer rather than seeking medical help before he died.

Suffolk County Superior Court Judge Sandra Lamin refused to issue the order in the case of David and Ginger Twitchell, who chose spiritual guidance rather than medical treatment for their 2-year-old son, who died two years ago from a bowel disorder.

The Twitchells pleaded innocent Monday to manslaughter charges.

Their lawyer argued no crime was committed and said the case pits freedom of religion against the right of the state to care for children.

Prosecutors had requested the gag order to prevent either side from talking to reporters about the highly publicized case.

"We want this case tried in court, not in the (media)," county District Attorney Newman Flanagan said outside the courtroom earlier this week after a brief hearing on the gag order.

The Twitchells, formerly of Boston's Hyde Park section and now living at an undisclosed address, sought spiritual healing for their son, Robyn, when he suffered from diarrhea, vomiting and fever in April 1986.

The child died of bowel obstruction April 8, five days after becoming ill.

The parents were indicted on the manslaughter charges last week following a yearlong investigation by the district attorney's office.

The Church of Christ, Scientist, based in Boston, is dedicated to spiritual healing. The church insists the parents did everything religiously possible to save their son.

The case is believed to be the first of its kind in Massachusetts since a 1971 state law was passed prohibiting a child from being deemed neglected or lacking proper care solely because he or she is provided treatment "by spiritual means alone" through the practice of a recognized religious denomination.

AIDS affected by saliva

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Human saliva may prevent the HIV virus from infecting immune system cells, offering a possible explanation why AIDS is not transmitted from kissing, researchers said Thursday.

Scientists from the National Institute of Dental Research mixed saliva collected from three healthy men with the HIV virus and lymphocytes, which are the white blood cells that orchestrate the bodies' immune response. In such a mixture, the saliva protected the lymphocytes — the main targets of the HIV virus — from infection.

"The discovery of a protective factor in saliva is reassuring because it provides a biological explanation for why the mouth is not a route of transmission," Dr. Philip Fox said. Another researcher two years ago reported finding that whole saliva from a chimpanzee and a human inactivated the HIV virus. The latest research is important because it involved more humans and also tested the protective strength of secretions from different salivary glands, Fox said.

In addition to whole saliva, secretions from the salivary glands under the tongue and below the jaw in front of the neck were found to block viral infection. The study found that saliva from the largest gland — located at the rear of the upper jaw — generally provided little protection against the virus.

The study did not isolate the protective factor in saliva or how it works.

Rare, severe form of diabetes linked to tiny genetic mutations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two rare, severe forms of diabetes are linked to tiny genetic mutations, researchers said Thursday in reporting how genetic makeup plays a larger role in the most common type of diabetes than previously suspected.

Two research teams working independently both published their results in the journal Science, tying as the first studies to specify precise genetic mutations that caused rare forms of non-insulin dependent diabetes.

Between 90 and 95 percent of the 5.8 million people diagnosed with diabetes have non-insulin dependent diabetes, but the National Institute of Diabetes Digestive and Kidney Diseases says that half of the people who have this form of diabetes are unaware of it.

THE CELLS of patients with this form of diabetes do not respond properly to insulin, the hormone that regulates fuel uptake for cells. Most patients control their disease through careful diet, exercise and sometimes medications. But the three patients in the two studies had unusual, very severe forms of the disease.

One team, headed by Dr. Simeon Taylor, the diabetes section chief of the institute, part of the National Institutes of Health, studied a patient who had leprechaunism, an inherited disease marked by severe diabetes, other hormonal irregularities, growth retardation, heavy hair growth, large, wide-set eyes and large, low-set ears.

THE OTHER team, headed by Dr. Donald Steiner of the Howard Hughes Medical Institute at the University of Chicago, studied two Japanese sisters whose parents had been blood relatives. The women had severe diabetes, and several other symptoms of an inherited disease, including skin and dental problems, short stature, mental retardation and excessive hair growth.

In both studies, the researchers believe the patients inherited two copies of defective genes, one from each parent, that caused tiny flaws in the shape of an intricate receptor protein on the outside of cells. The misshapen proteins could not bind insulin, the chemical messenger that tells the cells to take up sugar.

THE DIABETES institute study found that the mother of the patient with leprechaunism had no diabetes, while the father had a mild form of the disease. But researchers found both parents had one faulty and one correct copy of the receptor protein gene.

"The result of inheriting these two different mutations is a potentially lethal degree of insulin resistance in the child," the institute said.

Non-insulin-dependent diabetes probably has many causes, the institute said, but the scientists wrote that their findings raise the possibility that "a significant subpopulation of patients with non-insulin-dependent diabetes" may, like the father, have one faulty and one good copy of the gene coding for insulin receptor protein.

Blind lawyer plans to sue airline

GRINNELL, Iowa (UPI) — Blind lawyer Peggy Pinder, who was forcibly removed from an airliner last month, said Thursday a decision not to prosecute her is only partial vindication and now plans to sue Midway Airlines for bouncing her from her seat.

Pinder was carried off a Midway jet at Baltimore-

Washington International Airport in Maryland and charged with criminal trespassing last month when she refused to obey a flight attendant's order for her to relinquish her seat in the smoking section of the rear of the plane and sit in one designated for handicapped passengers in a non-smoking section of the aircraft. Pinder, of Grinnell, said she was notified late Wednesday that the airline, based in Chicago and prosecutors in Maryland, where the alleged offense occurred, had decided not to prosecute her.

She said she is "very seriously contemplating" a civil suit against Midway.

Reducing salt intake saves lives

CHICAGO (UPI) — By moderately reducing their salt intake, many people with high blood pressure may be able to reduce the amount of medication they need and thereby lessen the risk of unpleasant and possibly dangerous side effects, researchers reported Thursday.

The study by scientists from the University of Indiana School of Medicine provides further evidence for the oft-cited axiom that lifestyle and dietary changes are the best first line of defense against heart disease, the number one killer in the United States.

In a related study, Swedish researchers reported the encouraging finding that treating high blood pressure patients for long periods may actually repair the structural damage the condition has inflicted on the heart and circulatory system.

Both studies were published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

High blood pressure, or hypertension, puts more than 57 million Americans at risk for heart attack, stroke, kidney disease and other ailments, the American Heart Association estimates. More than 4 million Americans take some sort of medication for the hypertension, defined as pressure readings at or higher than 140 systolic or 90 diastolic.

However, these medications in higher doses can produce a number of unpleasant side effects, including dizziness, nausea, lethargy and impotence in men.

Man, 97, to receive high honors

WILMINGTON, Ohio (UPI) — A 97-year-old former teacher-janitor and World War I hospital orderly responded modestly to a college's honor, saying one "may require an artificial halo" for living a long time.

Luther Warren, who was born in 1891 on a farm in what he calls "the sticks of southern Ohio," will receive an honorary doctor of education degree from Wilmington College. He is one of the oldest persons to be so honored, the school said.

Warren once worked as a combination teacher-janitor. Ultimately he became a college professor and helped prepare hundreds of students to become teachers.

"If one lives long enough," Warren said, "he may acquire an artificial halo — and maybe even an honorary degree."

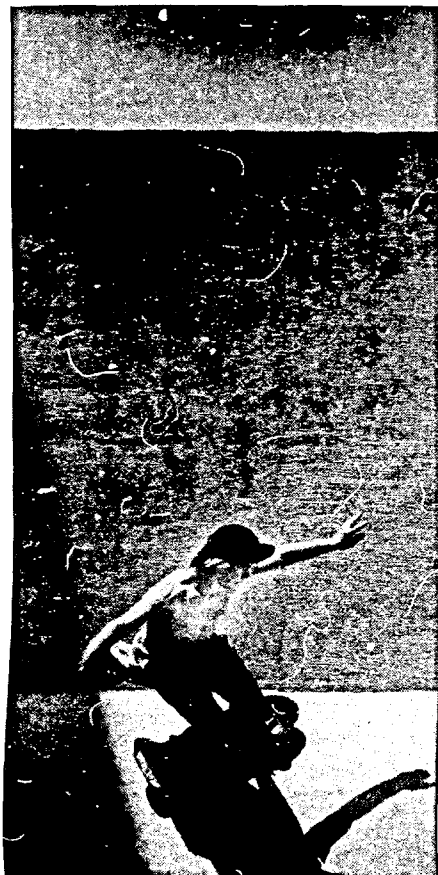

Warren recalls that after graduation from high school, he taught school for $50 a month — $48 for teaching and $2 for janitorial services.

"I became so rich that I decided to go to college."

Warren went to Wilmington and received his undergraduate degree in 1917. He later added an M.A. degree from Haverford College and a Ph.D. from Western Reserve University.

Warren says he would like most to be remembered for supervising more than 700 student teachers at Mount Union College between 1923 and 1944.

Before Warren began teaching, he spent 22 months during World War I working as a hospital orderly in France, where he also helped Quaker relief organizations rehabilitate devastated farms and villages.

Explosives stolen from U of I shed

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — A cache of explosives used in scientific tests was stolen from a concrete bunker on the University of Illinois campus, authorities said Thursday.

University Police Capt. Charles Moore said the Illinois State Police and federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms had joined the investigation.

"I don't know how powerful it is," Moore said. "Enough was taken for it to be very dangerous."

He refused to say exactly what type of explosives was stolen, but pointed out that they were relatively stable and needed blasting caps to be detonated.

disappear with time. But there are always fears, even for veteran firefighters.

"When you take off on that truck, you still have that feeling of uncertainty about what is going to happen," Brooks explained. "Everyone else is going out of that building and you have to go in there!"

Heern recalled his first fire in Makanda.

"The first call I made was in the middle of the morning. I was caught by a freight train," he said. "I had my feet on the brake and clutch pedal and my legs started to shake so bad I had to put my truck in neutral."

Firefighters in Carbondale must pass a written and oral exam along with a physical agility exam. There is also an oral interview conducted by a board of fire and police commissioners.

After concluding a 240-hour course, the firefighters reach what is called "Firefighter 2 level." In-service training continues as firefighters begin working their shifts.

"We pretty much watch over that young firefighter for awhile and keep him with someone who's been here for several years," Biggs said. "We take them out when the weather is decent and lay lines and hook up to fire hydrants. If you don't stay current with it, it's something you can forget."

A firefighter must not only be dedicated himself, but he also must have a dedicated family to cope with the job's odd hours.

"We spend a third of our life here," Biggs said. "This job makes it hard on wives because there are crises that come up at home. An 8 to 5 man will be there to take care of it and we won't. A wife has got to be able to handle the situation and it takes a special woman to do it."

The risk of injury or death is something the men take with them on every call.

"There are times you know you have to push yourself," Brooks said. "I mean your clothing is just about to ignite, but if you leave and the fire builds up again, you have to start over again."

Many firefighters fear they have been exposing themselves to dangerous substances throughout the years. They worry this may someday surface as lung cancer or heart disease.

"You just don't know when it's going to show up. It may never show up," Biggs said.

Biggs recalled fires in the past when firefighters did not have as much protective equipment as they wear now. Without masks, the men would often leave fires coughing and vomiting black material.

One of the most difficult aspects of the job is witnessing death.

"I've seen 2-year-old babies drown. Those things hurt," Biggs said. "You just wish there were more things you could do. I think a lot of times we go past the human capability and go on instinct."

The rewards of firefighting include saving lives, or even bringing new lives into the world, as Biggs has done.

"I've delivered seven babies," he said. "One of them was named after me. It was a little girl. They named her Robin."

The men have learned to deal with the risk of danger each day.

Brooks added, "It's a good life being a fireman. You're never really certain what you're going to find on the other end. But we're here and we'll go at any hour of the day or night and stay as long as it takes to complete the job."

CAMPUS MINISTRIES APPEAR FOOLISH: BEG QUESTION

In a campus community as devoted to higher learning as a means of social, political and economical advancement as SIU-C, the Christian ministries often seem quite foolish.

What they offer the community is an ancient, simplistic and often rigid structure, in which they believe lies the remedy for all of humankind's ills. Considering the university environment and its endeavors and ambitions, such a contribution can be perceived as less than substantive, perhaps laughable.

As a phenomenon, this observation isn't unique to the present technologically advanced and learned society; but, it has existed as long as the Good News of Christ.

The Book of the Acts of Apostles (chap. 17) records this perception of Christians by some as early as A.D. 63.

In this history, Paul the Apostle to the Gentiles, without regards for appearance, stood before the most esteemed thinkers and philosophers of the time proclaiming the message of salvation through faith in Christ Jesus.

In Athens, then the center of all higher learning and cultural advancement, Paul was not naive as to the outcome of the confrontation: he fully understood and anticipated its potential.

He explains to the church at Corinth, "As for us, we proclaim the crucified Christ, a message that is offensive to the Jews and nonsense to the Gentiles."

(1 Cor. 1:23)

At the risk of seeming foolish, Paul invited their questions, welcoming the opportunity to expound the simple truth to a complex people.

It seems he was likewise dedicated to the advancement of humankind; but, Paul also had the knowledge that God has given us all things that pertain to life and godliness through the knowledge of Himself and of Jesus the Lord.

"But for those whom God has called both Jews and Gentiles, this message is Christ, who is the power of God and the wisdom of God." (1 Cor. 1:24)

And what was the outcome at Athens that day Paul stood before the philosophers and intellectuals proclaiming a resurrected Saviour? Some laughed. Some wished to question him further. Some believed.

The American Baptist Campus Ministry has dedicated this ongoing column, as it has its entire ministry, to serve the people at SIU-C.

Through this endeavor, we invite questions and comments, hoping for an opportunity to relay the pertinence of Biblical principle to the issues and problems of our times.

If you have a comment, question or issue of particular interest: call, write or stop by. Your name isn't necessary.

We will, at the risk of appearing foolish, respond.

3 dead, 274 injured in three disasters over 14-hour period

By United Press International

Earth-shattering explosions at an oil refinery in Louisiana and a rocket fuel plant in Nevada and the worst highrise fire in Los Angeles history killed three people, left at least six missing and injured 274 others in a terrifying 14-hour stretch Wednesday and early Thursday.

There was one confirmed death in each of the three disasters and officials in Louisiana said six people still were missing Thursday in the refinery explosion and fire. In Nevada, a man stricken by polio as a child was reported missing Thursday by his son, but it was not immediately known if he was an additional casualty.

The causes of the three incidents were under investigation.

The powerful blasts at a Shell Oil Co. refinery in Norco, La., early Thursday and the Pacific Engineering Co. rocket fuel plant in Henderson, Nev., each splintered windows in major cities 20 miles away.

The fire Wednesday night at the 62-story First Interstate office building — Los Angeles' tallest building — forced nine people caught on the upper floors to flee to the roof, where they were rescued by helicopter. But a building engineer was trapped in a flame-engulfed elevator on the 12th floor and died while screaming for help over a walkie-talkie.

In all, the three incidents injured at least 274 people, forced the evacuation of about 20,000 people, idled almost 8,000 employees and caused untold millions of dollars in damage.

Only at the rocket fuel plant — where a fire broke out and an alarm was triggered — did employees have a few precious seconds to scramble to safety before three huge explosions gnawed a crater 400 feet wide and several feet deep.

The explosions were so powerful they triggered earthquake measuring equipment at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, where scientists said the first blast at 1:53 a.m. Wednesday measured 3.0 on the Richter Scale and the second registered 3.5.

Windows were shattered as far away as Las Vegas, 20 miles to the north. About 200 employees were put out of work and 15,000 residents of Henderson, a city of 54,000 people, were evacuated from their homes or businesses for several hours.

In Louisiana, one person was killed, six others were missing and at least 34 were injured when an explosion and fire rocked the Shell refinery at Norco at 3:34 a.m. Thursday. The fire was still burning Thursday afternoon. The explosion damaged nearby homes and blew out windows in businesses and homes in uptown New Orleans, 20 miles away.

The Los Angeles fire broke out at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday on the 12th floor of the 62-story skyscraper where 5,500 work. At one point, flames shot from windows on the 12th through the 16th floors.

Firemen said temperatures in the stricken area reached 2,000 degrees during the worst of the blaze as flames created a firestorm inside the building.

At least 40 people suffered smoke inhalation in the fire, including 17 who were hospitalized. Authorities said a 49-year-old man was in critical condition and the others were listed as fair or serious.

A sprinkler system was being installed in the building, but was not yet operational, maintenance worker Jim Copp said. Fire Chief Donald Manning said the structure was built before enactment of a 1974 state law requiring office buildings to have sprinklers.

U of I fraternity members charged with racist activity

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Six University of Illinois students and one from the University of Wisconsin were charged Thursday with 20 criminal counts for setting off stink bombs and disrupting classes on the UW campus April 8 in a racially motivated incident.

The Dane County District Attorney's office filed charges Thursday against the seven, who are all members of the Acacia fraternity.

Earlier Thursday UW-Madison Chancellor Donna Shalala suspended the fraternity from campus for one year for obstructing the investigation into the incidents. Shalala also said the chapter was suspended because the disruption of three classes, including harassment of minorities, violated the fundamental principle of the university.

The UW student is Randy Liljegren, 20, of Madison. The six others, all from Champaign, Ill., are Thomas Hein, 20; David Fidler, 18; Christopher Rockey, 18; Jason Dorfkenel, 19; Daniel Kackert, 21; and Kenneth Weingard, 19. Dane County District Attorney Hal Harlowe said the seven will be arraigned in a few weeks.

The six Illinois Acacia members all face charges of unauthorized presence on university lands and disorderly conduct. The disorderly conduct charges each carry 90 days imprisonment and a $1,000 fine.

Criminal complaints allege Fidler set off a stink bomb in the African Literature classroom after asking the professor to read aloud from the Gullah. When the professor complied Acacia members rattled papers, coughed, grunted and otherwise disrupted the class until a legitimate class member told them to leave. They set off a stink bomb and left.

Police say Fidler then took a fire extinguisher from the Social Science building and sprayed it at fraternity members and bicyclists.

Boy with AIDS virus returns to classroom

GRANITE CITY (UPI) — The mother of Jason Robertson, a 7-year-old boy with the AIDS-related complex who entered a normal first-grade classroom Thursday, said the other children in his class accepted him.

Jason entered school

Thursday accompanied by his mother amid the protests of about a dozen parents.

U.S. District Judge James L. Foreman on Wednesday granted a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction against Granite City Community Unit School District 9 at the request of Jason and his mother.

Following the order, the Granite City school board met Thursday night with Tammie Robertson in a closed-door meeting and unanimously voted to allow Jason to return to school.

"Everything went very well this morning," Robertson said. "There are a few people carrying signs and picketing. They were rather noisy, but some shouting, but everything went very well." There were only three students out in the classroom and the children were very accepting.

"We discussed the fact that some people are afraid, but I told him that all the doctors and all the medical profession said this is OK," Robertson said.

About a dozen protesting parents picketed outside Prather Elementary School today.

Illinoisans arrested in New Mexico

BENTON (UPI) — A Pittsburg, Ill., man was arrested with his wife by federal authorities in New Mexico Sunday and charged with the murders of two Southern Illinois men, a state's attorney said.

Circuit Judge Terrence Hopkins signed the no-bond murder warrant against Stephen Paul Tripp, 32, in the Oct. 25, 1986, slaying of George Brunton, 76, and Richard Stroud, 32, said Terry Green, Franklin County state's attorney.

Tripp and his wife, Melody, 26, have been held in an Albuquerque jail since their arrest without incident Sunday near Bueyeros, N.M.

The couple had been sought by Franklin County authorities for questioning in the deaths of Brunton and Stroud, whose bodies were found shot and beaten in a barn owned by Brunton southeast of West Frankfort.

They had been sought by the FBI on federal fugitive warrants in the theft of a pickup truck owned by Brunton. The truck later was found abandoned in DeKalb, Texas.

Tripp's wife has not been charged in the slaying, Green said, although both had been sought on state charges in connection with the theft of Brunton's pickup truck. Other state charges are pending against the couple as the investigation continues, Green said.

Chemists test rivers

MONTREAL (UPI) — Seven Greenpeace environmentalists begin a six-month journey Friday aboard a floating chemistry laboratory which will ply the polluted waters of the St. Lawrence River, Great Lakes and Mississippi River.

The contamination level of the waters will be monitored by two chemists aboard the "Beluga," an 85-ton, 78-foot-long vessel, which cost $1 million, including $400,000 worth of chemistry equipment.

"We're looking at 70 toxic hot spots on the St. Lawrence, Great Lakes and Mississippi," Greenpeace official Neville Williams said.

Bennett proposes bill to cut GSL defaults

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Education Secretary William Bennett sent Congress legislative proposals Thursday to cut student loan defaults, which at $1.6 billion this year is about half of the Guaranteed Student Loan budget.

Bennett said the legislative package, "Student Aid Integrity and Accountability Amendments of 1988, is part of a three-prong effort to bring under control excessive levels of defaults on government student loans."

The bill, department officials conceded, focuses mainly on students by tightening eligibility requirements for the loans.

Officials stressed government regulations also are being tightened regarding accreditation of higher education institutions, particularly trade and business schools, and their handling of the loan programs.

"These reforms are urgently needed in order to address a number of serious problems that threaten the integrity and viability of our student aid programs," said Bennett in letters to House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, and Vice President George Bush, the Senate's president.

"Such problems include an alarming rate of student loan defaults, the exploitation of unqualified students by some schools, and a lack of institutional accountability for educational results in the student aid programs.

Last year, Bennett complained that default payment have become the department's third largest expenditure, projected to increase from $531 million in fiscal year 1983 to $1.6 billion in fiscal year 1988. The cumulative default rate for this year is around 13.7 percent, officials said, and projected to climb to 14.4 percent.

Among the statutory changes, the bill would stipulate that students who receive federal loans for higher education have a high school diploma or its equivalent. Currently, students may receive loans to enter trade or vocational schools as long as they earn a high school degree in the process.

That rule, said Bennett, "has become an open invitation for some unscrupulous schools to exploit ill-prepared, disadvantaged students."

Also, the bill, which would change provisions of the Higher Education Act of 1965, would reduce the federal insurance and reinsurance rates for student loans.

EARTHQUAKE

May 1 - May 7, 1988

ILLINOIS EARTHQUAKE AWARENESS WEEK

Awareness and preparedness are our greatest asset if an earthquake does occur. Have on hand...

FLASHLIGHT with spare batteries. Do not use matches or candles unless you are certain there are no gas leaks.

PORTABLE RADIO with spare batteries. Telephones should be used for emergencies so radios will be your best source of information.

FIRST AID KIT: First aid knowledge - have a first aid book close by and have members of your household take basic first aid.

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS... for small fires. Class C extinguishers are designed to use safely on any type of fire (electrical, grease or gas).

FOOD. Keep a supply of non-perishable food on hand, such as canned or dehydrated food, powdered milk, canned juices, dried cereal and fruit, and nuts.

WATER - Should be stored in air-tight containers and replaced every 6 months. Store 3 gallons per person and have purification tablets on hand.

SPECIAL ITEMS. Have at least a week's supply of medications and special foods needed for infants or those on limited diets.

TOOLS. Pipe wrench and crescent wrench for turning off gas and water mains. Teach household members how to turn off gas, water and electricity.

OTHER THINGS YOU CAN DO TO PREPARE: Place large or heavy objects on lower shelves. Fasten shelves to walls. Move glass bottles from above or around bathtub and sinks.

REMOVE FLAMMABLE LIQUIDS (painting & cleaning products) to garage or outside cupboard.

MAKE SURE you have ample exits that will not be blocked by fallen debris. Have an EARTHQUAKE DRILL to familiarize yourself with these exits.

FASTEN TOP-HEAVY FURNITURE to walls. BOLT DOWN gas appliances or secure them to walls.

INSTALL FASTENERS OR LATCHES on cupboard doors. Strong child-proof latches work well.

Hare-raising kidnappers apprehended

KENILWORTH, N.J. (UPI) — The kidnappers are under arrest, the ransom recovered and the victim is safely back home.

It all started earlier this week when Michelle Rizzo, 6, discovered that the 2-month-old bunny she'd received as an Easter gift had been filched from its hutch.

In its place was an ominous ransom demand pieced together from newspaper clippings: "If you ever want to see your stupid rabbit alive again, leave $50 in an envelope under the railroad crossing sign behind your house."

Michelle's parents, Joseph and Vera Rizzo, called their neighbor, police Chief Charles David, who called in detectives on their day off.

Detective William Dowd photocopied $50 in currency, placed it in an envelope and sent Michelle, Joseph Jr., and their 10-year-old sister Antoinette to place the "ransom" under the rock designated in the note.

A short time later, a teenager from the neighborhood walked up, collected the envelope and was grabbed by members of a police stakeout team.

He led police to an accomplice and, by Sunday night, the two boys, 14 and 15, had implicated a third teen, Smokey was found in a shed behind the first boy's home, alive and well and awaiting his release in a cardboard box marked, "Handle with care. Rabbit inside. Thank you for the money."

Women runners to gear up, rest for conference meet

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

The women's track team will run only seven athletes at the National Invitational Saturday to gear up for the Gateway Conference meet May 12-14.

Women's track coach Don DeNoon gave his athletes the option of competing this weekend.

"We want to let the kids get early finals out of the way without much difficulty," DeNoon said. "And some of the other girls just feel they need a rest."

Athletes competing this weekend include Christiana Philippou, Dora Kyriacou, Michelle Sciano, Rosanne Vincent, Angie Nunn, Felicia Veal and Beverly Klett.

DeNoon doesn't feel this weekend's rest will affect his athletes in the conference meet. "We're ready," he said. "If we're going to do it (win the conference), we're going to do

Gateway honors Philippou

SIU-C's Christiana Philippou was named Gateway track and field athlete of the week for her record-breaking performance in the triple jump at the Saluki Invitational April 30.

Philippou tied her school record and set a new McAndrew Stadium record with a jump of 40 feet, 1 inch. Philippou won the event and placed fourth in the long jump at 19-4½.

Philippou currently is ranked first in the Gateway Conference in the triple jump and is fourth in the long jump with a season-best jump of 19-5 on March 26.

it." In point projections for the GCAC meet, SIU-C tops the list with 135 points. The Salukis' closest contender is Wichita State with 87.

"I can't see how anybody else could win," DeNoon said. "We could lose it ourselves but I don't see how the teams could stretch themselves to keep up."

DeNoon said Dora Kyriacou,

the team's top point scorer in the indoor season, has the potential to qualify for the NCAA championships in the 400-meter dash.

"If she can run in competition as well as she ran (Tuesday) night, she'll make the NCAA qualifying standard this weekend," DeNoon said. "Dora is looking phenomenal right now."

Women's golf team leads after 2 rounds at Gateway

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

SIU-C's Vicki Higginson shot a career 74 on her first 18 holes and the Salukis built a 19-stroke lead over defending champion Wichita State after two rounds of the Gateway Conference women's golf tournament Thursday in Nixa, Mo.

Higginson, a senior, leads the field with a 36-hole score of 154. Her 3-over-par first round was only one stroke shy of the 18-hole conference record 73 shared by SIU-C's Jill Bertram (1986), Northern Iowa's Margo Gillespi (1985) and Illinois State's Jackie Ryan (1985). However, Higginson's second round 80 put her 7 strokes off the 54-hole record of 224 set by Gillespie and Ryan in 1985.

The Salukis also occupy the second and third spots in the tournament. Sophomore Julie Shumaker had two 79s for a 158 while senior Tina Kozlowski had an 81 and 78 for a 159, five strokes behind the leader.

"I don't believe we'll roll over dead," said Coach Diane Daugherty, whose team is aiming for its third conference title. "Gaining 17 strokes on Wichita State this afternoon tells me we are in better shape mentally and physically."

The Salukis shot a team 323 and led Wichita State by two strokes after the first round. An outstanding 317 in the second round gave the Salukis a 640 and the large margin.

"We are playing with a lot of confidence," Daugherty said. "We should be able to build on the 19-stroke lead."

The tournament, held at the 6,000-yard, par 71 Freemont Hills Country Club near Springfield, concludes today.

This season, the Sycamores have been plagued by an inconsistent pitching staff, which has a 5.81 team ERA. When they have received good pitching, the hitting has faltered. Last weekend, Indiana State pitchers tossed four complete games against Bradley. However, the Braves still came away with two victories when the Sycamore offense was held in check.

Indiana State's problems are a lot like the Salukis', Jones said.

"You have got to have three or four hitters hitting all the time," Jones said. "We've had that in a lot of ballgames, but come conference time, we have to get six or seven guys (hitting). Our problem seems to be we haven't gotten that clutch hit."

Jones has flip-flopped his pitching rotation. Rich "Soup" Campbell (5-3, 4.63 ERA) will go up against ISU right-hander Chris Schaefer (5-4, 5.07 ERA) in Saturday's first game.

Cliff McIntosh (5-0, 4.94 ERA) is slated to pitch against Sycamore lefty Kurt Olson (5-3, 4.28 ERA) in game two.

On Sunday, the Salukis will send Dale Kisten (6-7, 4.29 ERA) and Lee Meyer (4-1, 2.84 ERA) to the mound. The Sycamores' starters have not yet been named.

Indiana State right-fielder Chad McDonald leads the team in hits (63), doubles (13), home runs (11) and RBIs (53), in addition to hitting .344.

Jeff Buell (.372, 5 HRs, 36 RBIs), an outstanding defensive first baseman, has the team's top batting average. Last summer, he was drafted by the Chicago White Sox.

Second baseman Mitch Hannahs (.358, 0 HRs, 27 RBIs), outfielder Larry Russell (.336, 4 HRs, 42 RBIs) and center fielder Bob Zeihen (.342, 2 HRs, 19 RBIs) are all hitting above the team's .318 average.

Zeihen has stolen 18 steals in 24 attempts.

Despite Jones' belief that it will tough for the Salukis to gain an at-large bid into the 48-team NCAA tournament, Kisten is still holding out hope.

"Right now, we have to go out and win just about every game," Kisten said.

Rugby's last game is Saturday

The rugby football club, 7-5 on the season, will play its last match of the season at 1 p.m. Saturday at the rugby pitch behind Abe Martin Field.

The Old Loads, the ex-rugby team members, will provide the competition.

Club president Tom Eunson said it should be a pretty even match.

"We haven't had a lot of people at practice this week because of finals, and they (the Old Loads) are old and out of shape."

Makin' it great!

1988 NBA All-Rookie Team named

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mark Jackson, who set an NBA record for first-year players with 868 assists and helped lead the New York Knicks to their first playoff appearance in four years, was voted unanimously Thursday to the 1988 NBA All-Rookie Team.

Jackson averaged 10.6 assists per game, also a record for rookies. He is joined on the team by Armon Gilliam of Phoenix, Kenny Smith of Sacramento, Greg Anderson of San Antonio and Derrick McKey of Seattle. The All-Rookie team is selected by the 23 head coaches.

A total of 14 rookies received at least one vote from the head coaches, who voted for the top five rookies regardless of position and were not permitted to vote for players from their own teams. Jackson received 22 votes, Gilliam and Smith drew 16 apiece, Anderson 15 and McKey 11. Next was Reggie Miller of Indiana, who had nine.

Jackson ranked third in the NBA in assists while breaking Oscar Robertson's rookie records of 690 assists and 9.7 per game set in 1961. He also ranked sixth in the NBA in steals at 2.50 per game. Jackson's 205 steals fell six short of the NBA rookie record of 211 set by Dudley Bradley of Indiana in 1980.

Gilliam, who missed the early part of the season because of a broken left foot suffered on opening night, came on a strong midseason and finished as the top scoring and rebounding rookie with averages of 14.8 points and 7.9 rebounds per game.

Smith stepped in as the Kings' starting point guard and averaged 13.8 points and 7.1 assists per game despite suffering two hand injuries that forced him to miss 21 games during the season.

Anderson led San Antonio in shots blocked with 122. He also averaged 11.7 points and 6.3 rebounds per game. Anderson started at all three frontcourt positions during the season. McKey, a forward, played in all 82 games off the bench and averaged 8.5 points per game.

Kurtz said the team has been fortunate because blisters have been the only injuries. "That's minor, it makes them tough," she said with a laugh.

One common occurrence is that the players fall out of their chairs a lot, she said. When they do, they just right themselves and continue playing.

Dennis Layton, a freshman in zoology, said he is not afraid of being injured when playing. "You can only fall about two feet, so you can't hurt yourself too bad," he said.

Layton, who does not use a wheelchair everyday, said he had trouble maneuvering it at first. "My hands looked like hamburger after two hours," as you can for after going."

"Hopefully with a lot of practice, better equipment and a little luck, we might win more tournaments and after that, we might go collegiate."

so great. Now I can finally say they are going to make it, and the players can say it too."

The team expects to play in six tournaments next year.

"Hopefully with a lot of practice, better equipment and a little luck, we might win more tournaments and after that, we might go collegiate," Dexter Rheume, sophomore in engineering and captain of the team, said.

Freshman member Craig Spilman said, "My father always said the cream of the crop always rises to the top. I see that as a team, all we can do is get better."

Wheelchair basketball follows NCAA rules with a few modifications, Kurtz said. "The idea behind all wheelchair sports is to make as few modifications as possible," she added. "That way, they wouldn't need special facilities. They could go to any court and play."

One of the modifications is that the players are allowed five seconds in the lane, compared to three in regulation basketball. The players are allowed to make two rotations to their wheel before they have to dribble or else it's traveling, Kurtz said.

In addition, players can be called on charging, when one wheelchair comes in contact with another.

"Basketball is not a contact sport, chairs are not supposed to hit," Kurtz said. "One of the things the team needs to work on is to have more control of their chairs," she added.

Glenn McLernon, coach of the team, said the wheelchair is considered an extension of the body. "They can't use the chair to stop someone, and they can't back up to avoid someone."

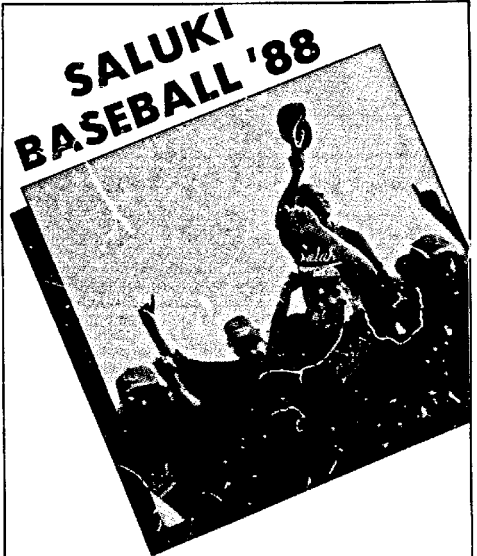

Some adjustments have to be made when playing, McLernon said. "The players really can't move laterally."

Kurtz said the players can play defense man-to-man or zone with man-to-man principles.

"One time I was approached by someone who told me that some of the players were being too competitive on the court," Kurtz said. "My response to that was that if you are not here for the competition, then why are you here?"

Players also have to adjust the way they shoot, because they can't arch their back to shoot, McLernon said. "Everyone has to know each others' limitations and adjust to that."

Three classifications are used to place the players on the team. Class I players have upper back injuries that allow little balance. Class II players have lower back injuries.

Four in running for AD position

Interviews to be in June

The search for a new athletics director has been narrowed to four finalists, President John C. Guyon announced Thursday.

The candidates include interim Athletics Director Charlotte West and former Saluki and NFL football star Jim Hart. The two other candidates are Ralph Barkey, athletics director at Sonoma (California) State University, and Jerry M. Hughes, an athletics director at Central Missouri State University.

Guyon said interviews for the four finalists will not take place until the summer semester begins in mid-June.

"With only two days left until the end of spring semester classes, I prefer to wait," Guyon said. "I dislike the idea of making a decision like this at a time when many students and people in the University community are out of town."

Guyon also had praise for the search committee that has been screening candidates since March.

"The committee and its chairperson, Roger E. Robinson, have carefully followed the search guidelines and conducted an excellent review procedure," Guyon said. "They endorsed five superior candidates and I talked to all of them. One asked to be taken out of consideration after accepting a position elsewhere."

Barkey, a former head basketball coach at the University of California-Santa Barbara (1966-78), has been AD at Sonoma State since 1981. He also has been assistant AD at California State University-Fullerton and the University of California-Irvine.

Hart played quarterback at SIU-C from 1962 to 1965, and quarterbacked for the St. Louis Cardinals from 1966 to 1983. He is a director of the SIU Foundation, is an owner of Dierdorff and Hart Restaurants in St. Louis and does color commentary on Chicago Bears football games for WGN radio in Chicago.

Hughes has headed Central Missouri State's athletics programs since 1983. He served as assistant athletic director for two years before that and has also held administrative posts in student recruitment and placement at CMSU.

West, a longtime athletics administrator at SIU-C, has been acting director of intercollegiate athletics since last August, when James Livengood left the post to take a similar position at Washington State University. West had been associate athletics director since 1985.

Indiana State next foe for baseball team

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

Once again, the Indiana State baseball team is coming to Carbondale for the conference series finale in a situation similar to the Salukis.

However, the teams will not be battling for the Missouri Valley championship as they did two years ago. Instead, the teams will be trying to build momentum before the conference's postseason tournament with a pair of noon doubleheaders this weekend at Abe Martin Field.

"We're looking for momentum to carry us into the MVC championships," Saluki coach Itchy Jones said. "If you can't win the conference in regular season play then to get a bid to the NCAA tournament you have to win the (MVC) tournament."

Third place is the best the Salukis and the Sycamores can finish in the regular season. SIU-C (31-20 overall and 7-0 in the Valley) is one game ahead of Indiana State (28-20, 6-10) and Illinois State.

Sycamore coach Bob Warn, a 1968 SIU-C baseball alumnus, realizes it will be difficult to beat the Salukis on their home field. In 1986, SIU-C swept Indiana State to steal the conference championship from the Sycamores.

"The Southern Illinois series is always a tough one for us," Warn said. "We remember the last time we were in Carbondale. All four games were won by the Salukis in their last at-bat. Those four games were some of the best games you'll see except for the results."

See BASEBALL, Page 26

Two pitchers join Salukis

The baseball team has added two more pitchers for next season.

Brian Oestreich, a 6-foot-2 lefty from Greenville High School, and Sear Berman, a 6-foot-4 right-hander from Jesuit Catholic High School, signed national letters of intent to play for the Salukis.

Oestreich, who has an 85-mph fastball to go along with a curveball and a slider, is 4-0 this year. In 30 2-3 innings, he has allowed only 13 hits and has a 1.37 ERA. In three years, he has pitched more than 200 strikeouts.

Berman is 4-2 this season with a 2.56 ERA. In 38 innings, he has 45 strikeouts.

"Sean throws an 80-mph fastball, has a good breaking ball and knows how to pitch," Joliet Catholic coach Jack Szymanski said.

Like all athletes they came off the court joking with each other, hot and sweaty after a hard practice.

But they are athletes with special needs. They must have the aid of a wheelchair to play ball.

The eight players on the Rolling

Salukis wheelchair basketball team have come a long way. A few had never played in organized sports.

"It's definitely the best team we've had in the last eight years," Kathie Kurtz, graduate student who helps coordinate the team, said.

The team split two games with Memphis Express, in Memphis, Tenn., April 23. During the first game, which they won 55-44, the Rolling Salukis scored the most points they ever had.

"To get the team this fall has required a lot of hard work and patience on the part of several individuals," Kurtz said. "It was worth it, because they are doing

Men runners using last meet to prepare for MVC

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

Men's track coach Bill Cornell will name key athletes in unfamiliar races Sunday to help his team prepare for the Missouri Valley Conference championships next weekend.

The Salukis will be host to Missouri and Purdue in a triangular meet. The field events begin at 12:30 p.m. and the running will start at 1:30.

"We can't run people to death with the MVC coming up," Cornell said.

Women gear up for Gateway

"We have to make sacrifices to have them ready for the MVC."

SIU-C is the defending outdoor conference champion and has won the outdoor competition 11 of 13 years.

Bret Garrett, a hopeful to qualify for the NCAA national competition in the 800-meter run, will probably run the 1,500-meter, Cornell said.

Garrett will have the MVC meet and a last-chance meet to qualify for nationals. In the indoor season, Garrett qualified one week before the NCAAs.

Cornell hopes the 4 X 400 relay team will qualify for nationals. The team of John Stinson, Kevin Steele, Garrett and Erick Pegues ran their fastest time of the season at the Saluki Invitational April 30.
