USO supports $5 increase in center fee

The Student Center Director told the Senate that $47,000 he thought was in one budget unexpectedly turned up in another budget.

The vice president for student affairs, John John, his committee's recommendation for a $5 Student Center fee increase was expected and was based on fact in information the University had provided.

Those revelations came Wednesday as the senate agreed to support a $5 fee increase instead of the $6 increase that John John, Student Center Director, has proposed.

The USO Vice President Bruce Swinburne said he thought $5 was a "good" increase. However, Swinburne added that he said he would make his recommendation for an $8 fee increase if the Albert Somit by Monday, December 26, or he would have an increase he would request.

The Student Center Board has recommended raising the fee by $8, and an Undergraduate Student Senate/Sidewalk Organization ad hoc committee on the fee increase had recommended raising the fee by $7.

Gerger laid out. "No linen; we'll be closed,' Gerger had predicted, "The National Organization fee was $47,000 this way. The Student Center budget for this year was $47,000 short of its needs, repairing the center's roof after a $5,000 deficit, was not last year's budget, as he had thought.

The Student Center had thought the bill was paid when this year's budget was prepared, he said, so the $47,000 was earmarked for other expenses.

Since the extra $47,000 has already been spent, Gerger said, the Student Center has to pay the bill for the roof repairs.

Based on a projected decline in enrollment of 1.6 percent this year and 1.5 percent next year, the Student Center Board had recommended the $6 fee increase to offset an expected deficit of $206,627 in fiscal year 1990, which would occur if the fee remains at its present level.

With the $6 increase, the Student Center would have a $113,172 surplus in fiscal year 1988 and a $5,466 deficit in fiscal year 1994.

The committee said the increase could be reduced to $5 by eliminating the surplus in fiscal 1993 and in addition, since enrollment actually increased, not decreased as the Student Center Board had predicted, the Student Center would need only a $3 fee increase to break even in fiscal year 1994.

John Mitchell, a member of the committee, Swinburne said the increase in enrollment would result in only a $25,000 increase in revenue. "This fee increase could cover the Student Center, c+s a $50,000 increase, which is what the USO committee predicted would happen.

Students were said the USO committee's recommendation would provide the information they received from the Student Senate, which information they received was inaccurate.

The USO committee based their projects for the increased revenue from the extra students on information provided by SIUC Institutional Research and Studies according to Mark Murphy, a committee member.

Swinburne said that based on his experience, the actual increase in Student Center revenues would be only $25,000, not the $50,000 projected by the committee.

"Five dollars would be rock bottom," Gerger said.

Gus says next thing you know some major sports will be in danger if the Student Center fee isn't raised this year. Remember, big names, big names, big names, running on the pita.

Soviet sub probably carrying nuclear torpedoes, officials say

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Nuclear-tipped torpedoes probably are aboard the Soviet submarine Scorpion, which went aground while prowling in a restricted zone near a major Swedish naval base 30 days ago, outraged Swedish officials said Thursday.

They said the Soviets can have their sub back but that storm-tossed seas likely will delay departure of the vessel until Friday.

Foreign Minister Ola Utsten told the Kremlin Sweden regarded the incident with the "utmost gravity" and would tolerate no repetition of it, especially since the Soviets ignored his demand for more information on the sub's armaments, refused an inspection of the torpedo hold and claimed the sub was armed only with "the necessary weapons and ammunition."

Prime Minister Thorbjorn Falandin said at a news conference that the incident was "the most blatant violation in Sweden in the postwar era," and that the sub would be escorted to a Soviet fleet base outside Sweden's waters "as soon as the weather permits."

But heavy weather with 45 mph wind gusts prevented the departure and Swedish officers said it would be delayed at least until daytime Friday. Eleven Soviet ships including two destroyers, two frigates and two missile-armed corvettes, hovered in the area.

Falandin, who opposes even peaceful use of nuclear energy, scoffed at Soviet references to the Baltic as a "sea of peace" and said Swedish experts recorded radiation from the outside of the sub's hull for three nights and concluded that the sub carried Uranium-235.

The Soviet Union as well as the Nordic countries have urged that the Baltic Sea be free of nuclear arms.

Sweden's commander in chief, Gen. Leinart Ljung, told reporters there was as much as 22 pounds of U-235 aboard and that it could have been used as a protective sheath around U-235, a main ingredient in nuclear arms. But he said the presence of U-235 could not be proved because the Soviets would not allow an inspection of the hold.

Nils Gylden, a nuclear arms expert on the Swedish defense staff, said it appeared the Soviet sub was carrying nuclear-tipped torpedoes, a secret weapon.

Solidarity: Government ready to talk

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — The Solidarity union said Thursday that the Polish government is "ready to make concessions" to the independent union after an unprecedented change of heart aimed at solving Poland's economic crisis.

A statement issued in Gdansk said the government is set to undertake talks about all the problems in Poland and is "ready to make concessions." It did not elaborate.

Solidarity national chairman Lech Walesa, Roman Catholic Archbishop Josef Glemp and Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski — Poland's premier, Communist Party first secretary and defense minister — met for more than two hours Wednesday at a government guest house in Warsaw.

Meanwhile, there were these other developments:

—Solidarity began a sit-in Thursday at the Communist Youth headquarters at Siedlce, east of Warsaw, to protest shortages.

—Slowing coal miners in southern Poland demanded a televised news conference to air their grievances.

—And 150,000 unionists remained on strike in Zielona Gora province.

Gregors Palka, who heads the labor federation's economic section, told reporters the union will be prepared to sit down with government negotiators by the end of next week.

"We treat these talks extremely seriously," Palka said, adding that format of the negotiations will be considered by Solidarity's presidium, convening here Friday.

The Solidarity statement stressed that the union's demands must be marked by mutual commitment to avoid ultimatums "to find the compromise which would be satisfactory for everybody," and to proceed from "clear and precise starting positions."

Legionnaires' disease cause found

CHICAGO (AP) — Seven kinds of bacteria have been found to cause Legionnaires' disease and evidence is growing that drinking water is a private carrier, researchers said Thursday.

At a meeting of the American Society for Microbiology, doctors from Pennsylvania and the Netherlands reported finding bacteria in the drinking water of hospitals where outbreaks of Legionnaires' disease occurred.

Dr. Arthur Renfrold of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said it has not yet been proven that the bacteria in the water caused the disease, a type of pneumonia, but he thinks such proof eventually will be found.

The Student Senate Wednesday voted to re-examine its earlier support of a proposed $15 Health Service fee increase. However, Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said he had already promised to go ahead with a recommendation to increase the fee by $15 to SIUC President Albert Sommers within a week. That would not give the senate time to change its stance on the proposed increase, Swinburne said, because its next meeting isn't until Nov. 18.

The senate last spring voted to support the $15 increase, which would bring the fee to $60. John Mitchell, a member of the Undergraduate Student Organization's ad hoc committee on a proposed Student Center fee increase, said the Man in wheelchair robbed; suspect held

A Carbondale man has been charged with robbery in connection with an incident in which a man confined to a wheelchair was robbed of about $80.

David Rich Shaffer, 31, of 80 W. Mill, allegedly robbed Ronald Pate outside a journalism lab at SIUC, about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday. Carbondale police said. Police said that Shaffer, who lives in McKendree Tower, entered Pate's room, allegedly knocked Pate's wheelchair over and asked if he could enter Pate's apartment. After entering the room, Shaffer allegedly stole the money from a backpack on Pate's wheelchair. Shaffer then allegedly knocked Pate down after Pate grabbed Shaffer's arm. Pate was not injured in the incident.

Pate, who has cerebral palsy, identified Shaffer as his assailant from five different mug shots. Shaffer was being held Thursday in Jackson County Jail in lieu of $7,500 bond.

Shaffer is scheduled for a preliminary hearing in Jackson County Circuit Court on Dec. 5, before providing any service.

Christ Cordogan, business manager for the yearbook, said the money was needed to pay off a $10,000 debt incurred when a photographer hired by the yearbook two years ago went bankrupt after being paid, but Cordogan, who left the meeting after the request was originally approved, was unavailable for comment when The Daily Egyptian called.

 Beg your pardon

In an article in Thursday's Daily Egyptian, USO President Todd Rogers was misquoted in saying that the book committee, empowered by the College of Business and Administration, would not hurt the co-op being planned by the USO. Rogers, in fact, had said that the OBA co-op wouldn't hurt the USO's project.
Kudos for computing crew

This letter is a "pat on the back" for the crew in the Academic Computing Center. When the computer science lab assignment is due the next day, they have to deal with problems such as dreads of short-tempered, rude, impatient and often panicky students. I salute the tremendous effort the staff shows in being patient and I also feel that they have a tendency to explode when their programs crash.

In the face of such adversity, I am amazed that anyone in their right mind would work the time when the computer goes to the fleetest of feet and quite occasionally to a "cold" mind. Just doesn't apply when speaking of ticket sales. It is totally normal that over a hundred people are going to their way to any location in a safe or orderly manner when a prize seat for a concert is involved. The new live reservation card distribution is a smash hit. Let's change this policy before someone is killed. Use a lottery card system or a card system to the old system. Anything but this insanity. If St. Francis were alive now

In last month’s celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Francis of Assisi, the current president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, observed forcefully that the work of this heroic follower of St. Peter is needed. He said that "victs of the world at the time of Francis are similar to those of today, including the proliferation of weapons, and greedy affluence in the face of widespread poverty."

But what if St. Francis had been born in our time of European imperialism? How would he ever have lived in the late 20th century being received by his values? At the same time some of us think of Thomas Carlyle’s remark: "If Jesus Christ were to come today, people would not even crucify him. They would ask him to dinner, and hear what he had to say, and make fun of it."

St. Francis in modern times would also get us laughing. We would immediately place him in our own conversation. After all we belong to the same family. Merv or Johnny would ask Francis how he came to be on the charming ways alive with animals. Tell us, Francis, what was the horizon you tamed, that startling world. And how do you do it?" We really stop chucking when you preach to us! We have five minutes before a commercial break: Let’s hear your newest birds."

After the show an agent comes forward with a book. "We are a publishing house, Francis, you only get paid if you are still alive to write memoirs. "What memoirs?" asks the agent. "You’re a thic guy, Francis. Let’s go for the big money. We can see it now, the Sunday morning Best Seller list: ‘The St. Francis Det Book: Lover, Lover, and Eat What You Will’"

When the agent goes off to put the book together, the publishing house, Francis, volunteered at the soup kitchens that Francisian priests and brothers ran in many cities. How many prisoners have you visited. How many illiterate have you taught to read? How many open doors of homes have you knocked on? When silence follows these questions, the editor explains that he isn’t out to embarrass anyone. He has to live his own life and how little the life he has done. He was a rich man’s son who liked silk clothing and the ways of the dandy. But after a year as a soldier, he chose a life of pacifism and service to the poor. Of his conversion, he says, "That which seemed to be the bitter was changed in sweetness of body and soul."

The panel moderator tells the kid and calls for a 10-minute break. Francis bears from his robe his "Hello I’m Francis" label sticker and runs out the door, on his way back to the streets and alleys of the poor.

It is truly a sign of the times. Things are changing. Gus Bode’s life is a shadow of his former self. His drum rolls, and Reagan’s distant drums have been replaced with a gentle, new beat. The new bells are ringing.

I think that enough, we have a "to the right of Genghis Khan" editorial in the Daily Egyptian.

Game of weaponry may hit 'sudden death'

By John Schrag

For those who can't decide whether the arms race is escalating or de-escalating, the middle of the football season or the beginning of the basketball season, there is another game in town. Our national government is engaged in its own contest of zero-sum games. Another round is currently underway.

The Nguyen-Damascus-Akron-Tanglewood strategy was set to begin on Nov. 12, 1979, with a computer terminal command from the Pentagon's military officials to believe we were under attack.

Within minutes of removing our nuclear missiles in the defense buildup, a similar nuclear alert occurred last May in June 6 at a Colorado missile site. Both cases nearly caused the unnecessary destruction of a nuclear weapon. The Pentagon wants a weapon that can be turned on and off. The Soviets still have them.

The strategy was not simple. Both sides try to stockpile a nuclear arsenal able to wipe out the other at a cost of a million or more.

This is not a game we can afford to lose. If this goes on, we allow the clock to run out to a potential nuclear war.

Macy's, including universities. solar chae-ed flUD

The strategy is a fundamental mismatch between the proposed weaponry and defense goals.

As far as Reagan's plan for the Navy, he wants to build 100 new ships, mostly bigger, costlier and no more cost-effective than the ships they will replace. The Pentagon wants 7,000 new M-1 tanks to be deployed in Europe and, if necessary, in the Middle East.

However, in order to get those tanks to the Middle East, C-5A transport planes are needed. Another challenge is that one M-1 tank at a time.

The Air Force has only 77 of the massive planes.

As can be seen in the proposal, the Senate has decided to place a block on defense and which are essentially boondoggles.

America needs strong, but it also needs a Social cuts for defense buildup may be wrong rejuvenation path

By Chris Feller

NOT MANY PEOPLE would argue with the objectives of Ronald Reagan's plan for the "economic revitalization of America." Who doesn't want lower taxes, less inflation, less debt?

The missing variable is whether we can afford to translate this economic strategy into defense buildup.

Vault promises security to all, from Disney to Rolling Stones

By David Einstein
Associated Press Writer

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — The Western States Underground Storage Vaults company advertises "absolute protection" for vital documents. "They aren't kidding. Their vault, in an old railroad tunnel in the Santa Cruz mountains 70 miles south of San Francisco, originally was wired as able to withstand an atomic holocaust.

Today, depositors ranging from IBM to Walt Disney, from the Rolling Stones to the Defense Department, keep records there to insure their survival in an increasingly perilous world.

"With malcontents and revolutionaries blowing up banks and casinos, people need a place to protect their records," said Western States president Dan Tinney.

Opened in 1964 under the name Western States Atomic Storage Vaults, the vault was an answer to the fears of the cold war. As those fears subsided, the name was changed — the word 'atomic' scared everyone to death," Tinney said — but Western States directors still point to the "impenetrability of Western cities.

"Although the United States has spared the menace of enemy aggression thus far, the threat grows with each passing year," says a brochure. "Nothing can replace an inescapably primary target areas for atomic bomb-had nuclear explosive power supported by a submarine fleet having guided missiles. Top echelons of Civil Defense do not regard isolated mountain areas as targets."

Whether thanks go to the Soviets, terrorists or just fear of an earthquake, business at the vault has grown steadily — up between 8 percent and 10 percent each year, Tinney said.

Today, two-thirds of the 300,000 cubic feet in the vault is filled, mostly with microfilm.

In addition to the papers of leading corporations, records of universities, cities and 46 of California's 58 counties are stored in the 246-foot-long tunnel, kept at a constant 63 degrees and 46 percent humidity.

"We have 16mm and 25mm microfilm records dating back to the 19th century down there," said Warren Sherman, assistant recorder for San Mateo County.

"In the event of a natural disaster, a bank really wouldn't be the most secure place to store these."

"The vault has an 18-inch thick concrete walls and is very secure. If there was a disaster, we could recreate the records of our office."

The most secure areas of the vault are those used to store classified Pentagon documents. The Defense Department has their own strong safes here.

Tinney said, "Nobody gets in there."

"There are at least half a dozen other vaults in the country, Tinney said. "They don't have the same security, the same protection, the same economic advantages."

"Companies don't have to pay insurance on their property, which would be high," he explained. "They don't have to hire extra security guards to protect it. And we also perform a great deal of clerical work that saves them many hours."

Tinney, an 84-year-old retired railroad man, says the tunnel was not the first choice for the vault when he and several others began looking in 1959.

"Our first thought was to start the vault near Carson City, Nev., in some old gold mines. We found the cost of excavation alone would be $8 million to $10 million."

Another idea involved using abandoned Yosemite Valley Railroad tunnels in a scheme combining vault storage with mushroom growing.

Finally, Tinney and his associates found a tunnel that until 1940 had been used by the "Santan Special," a train that ran between Los Gatos and Santa Cruz. They got it for a fraction of the original $500,000 cost of building the tunnel.

Nestled in the mountains three miles east of the town of Felton, the tunnel is a perfect repository, with almost 100 feet of earth on top of it.

After 27 years of faithful service, the tunnel had become a facelift, including new paint on the walls and carpets in the main area.

"We're sprucing it up," said Norris Lanier, the chief custodian at the vault.

"If you're going to the Rolling Stones and you're going to be in the Rolling Stones, you want your stuff safe," he said.

"And you can't find a bigger risk than that," Tinney said.
Runaway testifies about "hustling"

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 17-year-old runaway, sexually abused at age 7 and a male prostitute at 15, told a Senate subcommittee Thursday he has "hustled" girls for cash to grow up quick and don't try.

"Stay home and stay a boy as long as you can," advised a friend with whom he had run. "You don't have to hustle."

Carlos, 17, who was identified only as "Carlos," and Terri Davids, 17, of Middletown, Ky., were identified as "runaways" by the government. Photographs were provided.

Testifying before a Senate Juvenile Subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency, Carlos, who had been in foster care, described his troubled childhood as one marked by drug dependence and uncertainty over his sexual identity.

He said he was born at age 12, and became a "hustler" who would "sell his body nine out of 10 times to older men" for as much as $40 a trick.

Sen. Harris Wofford, R-Pa., the subcommittee chairman, said there are one million "juveniles" in problem situations.

David said he was subjected to fondling and oral sex at age 7 by a member of his family, said John B. Bacon, who runs a center for abused children in Jefferson County, Ky. David said the experience did not lead directly to his flight from home. But he said it had left him feeling worthless and uncertain over his sex role.

"I'm straight, I'm not gay," David said. "But with the hustling it (the childhood experience) is in my mind. But not sure I'm straight. A lot of girls wouldn't be there if you were totally straight."

David said that since he spent three months at a treatment center in Minnesota he is on the right track, doing about drugs, alcohol and hustling.

"I don't care if you are rich or poor. Everyone is going to get the same treatment — jail," he said at the time. "Legendary corruption and favoritism among Mexican officials is another of Cardenas' targets."

Cardenas ran three times for mayor, losing his three-year term. He cannot succeed himself, so he has little to lose politically in his reform projects. Top priorities for the city of 210,000 are street and drainage improvements, he said. Some areas remain untouched after a heavy rain.

"We are going to close the redlight district or move it out of town," he said. "The club owners came to see me and I firmly told them that this year we have to make a move or we close it. It is causing a very serious problem where it is now.

"Shootouts and knifings within the "zone roja" have alarmed the residential areas.

"We're going to run a socially moral city, that is my aim," he said.

Local leaders learned Cardenas was in town when police arrested several sons of influential families during an incident over a popular drinking and marijuana-smoking hangout.

"...more degraded than pornographic batteries."

Distribution of phone books begins

No more calling Student Center Information for phone numbers and making workers wait while you try to spell your friend's last name. No more searching for that scrap of paper with those important phone numbers scribbled on it. The SLC student phone directories have arrived from the printer and will be distributed to University Housing residents Saturday or Monday.

The phone books, a project of the Student Organization, will be delivered Saturday to three residence hall cafeterias by members of Alpha Kappa Psi, a professional business fraternity handling the phone book distribution. Students who live off-campus can pick up a phone book bet­

phone numbers scribbled on it. We'll do all that for you, too—$5

You can grab all you can eat at 6 p.m. Friday at Touch of Nature. And it'll all be good for you, too.

For $5, you can chow down on a tossed salad with yogurt dressing, whole wheat garlic bread, broccoli with almonds, spinach lasagna and pumpkin pie. Herb tea and hot apple cider will also be served. And while dishing you can join in or just listen to the music around the campfire.

All you can eat, good for you, too — $5

The books, which are free to students, were paid for by selling advertising for the front and back of the directory. The directories will list the local address and phone number and the home address of each student except for students who requested not to be listed.

Comedy, drama portrayed in new plays

By Michael D. Rettager
Student Writer

Featuring powerful drama, side-splitting slapstick, and a few surprising twists and turns, "A Night of New Plays," being presented by the Laboratory Theater of the College throughout Sunday, runs the gamut of stage entertainment.

"Rumpling," by Pam Billingsley, an SUU-C graduate, is about a newly-married 17-year-old girl who must deal with an absentee husband, an unwanted pregnancy, an intervening mother-in-law, and a $250 entry fee. The show is being presented by the All-Division Gridiron and is directed by Dr. William Haner.

"A Night of New Plays," which started at 7:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center, featured a variety of performances, including a comedy skit, a dramatic monologue, and a reading of a short play.

In one of the performances, a newlywed couple, played by Sadie and Frank, tries to make ends meet in a small town. The husband, played by Frank, is a farmer with a small patch of land, while the wife, played by Sadie, is a housewife with a large family. The couple is struggling to make ends meet and are forced to sell their land to pay the bills. The skit ends with the couple deciding to leave the town and start anew.

In the dramatic monologue, a young woman, played by Linda, is struggling to come to terms with the loss of her father. The monologue is about her journey to find inner peace and strength in the face of adversity. The performance ends with the woman finding solace in her faith and her determination to move forward.

The reading of a short play is about a family who is struggling to make ends meet during the Great Depression. The play ends with the family finding hope in each other and a glimmer of light in their otherwise dark world.

The performances were well-received by the audience, who praised the actors' performances and the overall production of the show. The audience gave a standing ovation at the end of the performance, expressing their appreciation for the talent and hard work showcased by the performers.

Wording on grade changes approved
By Alan Scalley
Staff Writer

The Graduate Council passed a resolution Thursday changing the wording in the Graduate School's policy on grade changes.

Donald Brandon, chairman of the educational policies committee, said the previous policy's wording had led people to believe that grades could be changed an unlimited number of times and that the student agreed to accept additional work.

The new wording, however, will only allow changes when there are mistakes in error or in recording grades.

Brandon said the wording changes were also made because there were "some minor variations in wording and substance" between the grading policies of the graduate and undergraduate programs.

In other business, the council discussed rankings of majors at SUU-C recently released by the National Student Survey. Many respondents believe that the University is not recommending a salary policy.

President Albert Somit responded that deans should be included in the rankings because they have a major role in the University.

The University of Southern Utah, also known as USU, is a public research university located in the heart of Utah. Writers, poets and artists can achieve what most of us cannot: immortality. Their works go on living.

Such has happened for Harry T. Moore, former emeritus research professor in English who passed away in April. Author he spent so much of his life researching and chronicling, T. H. Lawrence, Moore was considered by many to be one of the world's foremost experts on Lawrence.

The book has also been made into a movie of the same name by British producer-director Christopher Miles. The movie will be screened in a private showing beginning at 4 p.m. Friday at the Fox E Tagee Theater.

Communication seminar scheduled

By Vicki Olpey
Staff Writer

Faculty members can learn how to communicate better with students through a seminar planned for Friday and Saturday in the Student Center building.

The purpose of the Interdepartmental Communication Seminar is to help professors communicate more effectively, with international studies.

Seven enter business society

Seven business education students have been initiated into SIU-C's chapter of Phi Gamma Delta, a national business education honorary society.

Fall semester initiates into the Beta chapter of the Delta Chi, a national fraternity of Benet, a senior; Ruth Ann Scott of Cambria, a junior; Delores Griffith of Carbondale, a freshman; Anita Mason of Du Quoin, a sophomore; Carla Mobly of Eldorado, a junior; and Shirley Barber of Sparta, a junior.

All initiatives have attained at least a 2.75 grade point average for all their university work and a 3.0 average in their business and education courses. All are majoring in business education in the Department of Vocational Education Studies.

Ex-professor's book made into movie

Harry T. Moore, former emeritus professor in English who died in 1980. His works were considered to be obscene by British authorities.

In 1908, Lawrence died in Europe, considered to be the greatest prose writer in the English language. Lawrence's novels, such as "Lady Chatterly's Lover," are still forbidden in some countries.

A law in the Illinois General Assembly prohibits the sale of "obscene material," which is defined as literature that clearly describes sexual acts in a way that is designed to appeal to sexual desire.

The Illinois Room, Sitaram will discuss variables affecting communication between American professors and international students.

The seminar will also examine international students' perceptions of SIU-C faculty. A student panel will discuss cultural problems they have encountered.

A lecture by Sitaram will open the seminar at 8 a.m. Saturday. Sitaram will present a speech entitled, "Values, Perceptions and Centers: "Four Families," a movie examining how children are raised in four different cultures will be shown. Margaret Mead will also be discussed.

Following lunch, Sitaram will continue his discussion of which faculty members will meet in small groups.

Group representatives will then report to seminar participants, giving each group's ideas for solutions to intercultural communication problems.

The film promises to be that all-some commodity, a major British film of real quality.
Alcoholics Anonymous will hold a “Here’s How” meeting at 11 p.m. Friday in the basement of the Eaz-N coffee house next to Quality Hall.

Women in Communications Inc. will have a car wash at the Campus Mall, the corner of Grand and Wall from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority will host a neophyte dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday in the Student Center Room 31.

The editorial board of “Grasroots,” the literary magazine of the New Student Organization, is accepting manuscripts of poetry, short fiction, essays and drama for publication consideration. Submission of typed, double-spaced manuscripts is open to all SUID undergraduates. Manuscripts and a stamped, self-addressed envelope may be turned in to the editors in Fairner 2770.

The Office of Intramural-Recreational Sports will sponsor informal basketball half-court play for students, faculty, staff and alumni with SAT: C Identification from 3 to 9 p.m. beginning Friday and Saturday in Pimilun Gym. The sessions will also be Nov. 14 and 15 and Dec. 5, 6, 12, and 13.

The SIU Free Chinese Student Association will sponsor a stage presentation of traditional Chinese festivals at 2 p.m. Sunday in Ballroom D. There will be a reception and exhibition after the performance.

The Sierra Club and Mathematics Department will hike a five-mile, moderately difficult course to Martha’s Woods Saturday. Riders will leave at 9 a.m. from the first National Bank of Carbondale and will return late in the afternoon.

The Southern Illinois Audubon Society will have a truckload bird feed sale from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Eastgate Shopping Center on the corner of Walnut and Wall Streets. Bird feeders and bird houses will also be on sale.

The Office of Intramural-Recreational Sports will offer an introductory workshop on women’s weight training from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday in Room 158 of the Student Recreation Center. Registration is not required. Participants must be eligible SRC users and pay a $10 fee plus a $50 cash deposit.

The Center for Basic Skills will offer a free speed reading workshop for SCC students from 11 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday in Woody C12. Interested persons can call Vivian Snyder at 534-6164 to register.

Jay Medlin, faculty member in the Sociology Department, will present a workshop on women’s weight training at 4 p.m. Friday in Fairner 2408. The presentation will be headed by the Sociology Club.

The Masters of Business Administration Association will host a happy hour discussion with five accounting faculty members from 4 to 6 p.m. Friday at The Gardens restaurant. The faculty members will give brief presentations of their personal disciplines and will answer questions. Interested persons can call 433-808 or 433-3099 for rides.

John R. Lutzker, coordinator of the Behavior Modification Program, will give a Rehabilitation Institute seminar on “The Paradoxical Effects of ‘Morale’ Stories on Children’s Behavior” from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Friday in General Classrooms 328.

Lobbyist to discuss river plans

A master plan for the upper Mississippi River system will be the subject of a slide show and speech Sunday by professional lobbyist John Proffitt.

Marlin is affiliated with the Central States Resource Center, a group concerned with environmental and conservation issues. The presentation, sponsored by the SIU-C Student Environmental Center, will be in Ballroom B of the Student Center at 2 p.m. Admission is free.

The Mississippi and Illinois rivers will be ruined if a plan by the Upper Mississippi River Basin Commissions goes into effect, according to Joe Proffitt of the SEC.

“Effect, they're going to turn the Illinois and Clearwater rivers into super canals,” Proffitt said.

The UMRCB was requested by Congress to prepare a master plan for the upper Mississippi River system that would consider the effects of expansion of commercial navigation on wildlife, recreation, wilderness and railway systems.

Proffitt said that many of the UMRCB's recommendations are questionable, particularly those concerned with economics. "It's going to hurt small businessmen and farmers," he said.

SIU-C Ag chapter to help host meet

The SIU-C chapter of the Illinois Association of Vocational Agriculture Teachers will co-host a national conference of teachers in agricultural education, Nov. 12 and 13 in Kansas City.

The conference will be held at the same time as the National Future Farmers of America Convention. The conference's primary host is Alcorn State University, Lorman, Miss.

About 226 students from all 50 states are expected to attend. Twenty-three agriculture education students from SIU-C will attend.

Lynn Lewis, president of the SIU-C Collegiate FFA chapter, will preside over the last session of the conference.

in pool play last year but came out of round robin play to win the tournament.

Hunter thinks Tennessee, Pittsburgh, Northwestern and SIU all have a chance to win the tournament.

Pitt is having depth problems and had only seven players on the trip in their last meeting with SIU-C. Hunter said, "Northwestern should be back to full strength because its No. 1 center has returned to action following a hand injury. SIU-C lost to Northwestern 15-11, 15-5 in the semifinals of the DePaul Invitational."

Although the Salukis have beaten ISU twice, the Redbirds have been robbed and beat SIU-C in their last meeting at the filming Invitational. The Salukis enter the tournament with a 21-11-1 record and finished second to Oral Roberts University at the Saluki Invitational last weekend. SIU-C had a chance to win the second game of the Oral Roberts match but let the game slip away. That has been a problem for the Salukis lately. "We have had trouble getting that fifteenth point," Hunter said. "When we get to the fourteenth point we have to be extra aggressive to put the fifteenth point on the board. No one's felt the twisting of the knife more than me or the players."

"When we get to fourteenth and don't get the next one right away, you figure it may take a couple of rotations to get it," Hunter said. "But when the other team catches you and wins, that's a real agony."

SIU-C may alter its game a little this weekend which may help it gain that crucial fifteenth point. The Salukis plays tend to be rather spectacular and overpowering, but Hunter is trying to convince the team that power and pizazz isn't always the answer. "When that open spot is there, we want the fire power to be there," Hunter said. "This team really likes spectacular, over-the-crow plays. For some reason we really turn these guys on."

"We've worked this week on court movement and just getting the ball over the net," Hunter said. "They have to learn when to use the power and when to hold back. We also stressed hitting to the deep corners. You very rarely see that but it can be extremely effective."

Three of Yagel's receivers are in the top 10 in the conference. Junior flanker Mike Williams has 27 receptions and five touchdowns. Ware has 26 receptions, and junior split end Bob Graff has 22 catches for three touchdowns. "Drake isn't as much of a big-play team as Indiana State," Dempsey said. "Drake is more sound. To win, we'll need our offensive line to come through and we'll need a 2 or 10 percent improvement in our defense."

One thing Dempsey doesn't think his team needs to improve is its attitude. "In practices before last week's game and in practices this week we've been more loose and more relaxed," he said. "We're just more comfortable. I think the kids know they're on the verge of something big—something big in the school's history."

An MVC championship would be a first for SIU-C. The Salukis are listed in MVC records as being a part of the conference since 1974, but aren't included as title competitors until 1977, when they began playing enough conference games to be eligible for the championship. "This is our fifth year in the conference," Dempsey said. "We weren't part of the conference in '76. Andre Herrera's great season isn't even listed as an MVC career."

Herrera rushed for 1,580 yards this season, breaking the MVC record by 11 yards, but the Salukis played only two MVC teams. They won those two, and beat Illinois State and Indiana State, too, but those teams weren't Valley teams yet, either.

"I think if the Valley meeting and I really blew up down there," Dempsey said.
'Hopped-up' harriers prepare for District V regional meet

For the past month, it has been one big hurdle after another for the men's cross country team and Coach Lew Hartzog's crew is preparing to take a longer running jump at the next hurdle, the NCAA District V Regional meet.

Coming off a dazzling performance at the Missouri Valley Conference meet last weekend, the Salukis Monday began a week of their most intense workouts of the season in preparation for the regional meet scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 14 at Wichita, Kan.

"This is the most important time of the season for us," said Hartzog, whose team ran to its second straight conference championship last Saturday. "Our plan is for extremely hard work all week, whether it be on the road, on the track at McAndrew Stadium or at Midland Hills.

The Salukis defeated favored Wichita State 40-56 to defend their Valley title. That is, combined with a winning effort at the state championship three weeks ago, has given the team the confidence they need, said Hartzog.

We had a surgery on Monday, although we hadn't really planned on doing that," he said. "Then, we had the greatest workout on Tuesday that I've ever seen, and I'm talking in 30 years of coaching. I couldn't sleep. I was so excited about it. The kids are just hopped up." On Tuesday the team worked out at McAndrew Stadium, running a series of quarter-mile sprints on the track. Each sprint is separated by a short jog, so that the runners keep moving throughout the workout. The team goes through the sprinting workout once a week.

What "excited" Hartzog about Tuesday's workout was how well his top six runners did perform.

"The fastest time we've ever had is about 63.8 or 64.0," said Hartzog about the quarter-mile sprint workouts. "That would be Karsten or someone like that, with the others strung out behind. But Tuesday, the six of them ran 63.15 and they never had a break.

"When they finished Mike Kozak said 'well, gosh, we could've run another five or six.' The team feels that way," Hartzog said about Tuesday's workout.

Hartzog said that the team is ready both mentally and physically to compete—two attributes that were missing when the team lost its first three meets of the season. Probably for the first time this season, Hartzog is fully confident that his team is mentally and physically prepared to win.

"I'm not going to sing the blues this time," Hartzog stated. "I'm sure that if it can be done by us, we're going to do it. We're ready. We'll run well, I know that. We know who we have to go against.

Competition at the District V regional meet is comprised primarily of Big Eight Conference and MVC teams.

"I think we'll have to be concerned about Iowa State," Hartzog said, "and we have to worry very much about Wichita State.

Along with Iowa State, the Big Eight's second place team, Kansas, will also present a threat. The Salukis defeated the Jayhawks 33-33 Oct. 9 at Midland Hills.

Saluki grid game to be videotaped

Tuesday's football game between SIU-C and Drake at 1:30 p.m. will be videotaped by WSUI-TV, which will broadcast it at 7 p.m. Saturday.

WSUI-TV is Channel 8, located in Carbondale.

The Salukis carry a six-game winning streak and a 4-1 conference mark into the game. Drake is 3-1 in the conference.
Graduation of five gymnasts
doesn’t worry men’s coach

Most coaches would tremble at the thought of entering a new season without their top gymnast and four other members, but not Saluki Coach Bill Meade.

Brian Babcock, one of the nation’s top men’s gymnasts, will return for his fifth season without a national title. Babcock was a member of the 1981 U.S. national team and was runner-up to the national horizontal bar at the NCAA championships last season. Babcock is working out with the Salukis and will compete in meets that will not affect his college eligibility.

Meade lost four gymnasts from last year’s 8-4 team to graduation, four exercises and vaulting specialists Bob Barut and Randy Bettis; all-around Warren Bresler; and separation horse specialist Darrell Wagner.

“Losing his star doesn’t bother Meade because Babcock’s presence at practices has aided the younger gymnasts.”

Brian started working out doing routines in preparation for the World Games and the other gymnasts starting doing routines also,” Meade said. “Fortunately, the other kids are doing much better than they were last year.”

“Last year’s routine included many familiar faces and a few new ones.”

This season will be Grid spirit rally to be held

A rally will be held at the rec field behind Mae Smith remembrance hall prior to the SIU-C-Oakland football game. The rally is scheduled to begin at 11:45 a.m.

The Saluki band, cheerleaders, pom pom and Saluki mascot dogs will attend the rally. The rally will be held in the stadium at 1 p.m.

The Student Programming Committee Spirit Committee plans to secure seats between the 45-yard lines as a Maroon Spirit area for those students wearing maroon clothing in celebration of Maroon Spirit Day.

“Game tickets will be available at the rally site. In case of rain, the rally will be held in the basement of the Smith Field house from 1 p.m. to 1 p.m.”

The Salukis started out around 254 but Meade expects SUU-C to score from 260 to 256 to start the season.

The Salukis open their season Friday and Saturday at the Big Eight Invitational in Lincoln, Neb. The Cornhuskers won the NCAA title last season. Perennial powers Iowa State, Oklahoma, and Northern Illinois will compete in the Big Eight meet.

The SIU-C Power Lifting Club will host a meet Saturday at the Student Recreation Center. The meet will start at 10:30 a.m. and will feature top weightlifters from colleges, gyms and SIU-C will host.

Eastern Illinois, Illinois, Pitt Gulf Oil, Evansville and Scott Air Force Base will be among the top competitors.

Men and women lifters will compete in 11 weight classes in squat, bench and dead lift events. The top three winners in each weight class will receive the trophies. Lifters from the light and heavy platform, who lift the most weight according to their body weight, will receive a trophy and a special team trophy will be awarded.
