Reagan sweeps country with landslide victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan swept to runaway re-election over Walter F. Mondale Tuesday night, but Republicans struggled to translate his landslide into significant gains in Congress.

Mondale conceded defeat, telephoned his congratulations to Reagan and told cheering supporters in St. Paul, Minn., "He has won. We are all Americans; he is our president and we honor him tonight."

The GOP was headed for renewed control of the Senate, even if by a reduced margin. Republicans were gaining in the House, but Democrats successfully battled against the Reagan tide in district after district to protect their large majority.

The president's victory was convincing; he and Vice President George Bush came close to the 50-state sweep he sought. Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro won easily in the District of Columbia, and led in three states.

Reagan won 32 states with 309 electoral votes led in 9 more with 114. In The Associated Press count, the electoral votes of South Dakota pushed his total past the 270 majority mark.

Simon leads, but Percy still close

By Daily Egyptian Staff and the Associated Press

Rep. Paul Simon, running ahead in Chicago by a 2-1 margin, maintained a solid lead early Wednesday morning over Sen. Charles H. Percy, threatening to derail Percy's bid to become only the second Illinois senator in modern times to win a fourth term.

With 78 percent of 11,632 precincts reporting, Simon had 1,820,495 votes, or 51 percent, and Percy had 1,694,503 votes, or 48 percent.

In Jackson County, Simon led Percy 5,966 votes to 3,924, with 29 of 64 precincts reporting.

Simon had held a substantially larger lead earlier, but Percy closed the gap when votes starting coming in from typically Republican DuPage County.

Bryan Estes, Simon's Southern Illinois campaign coordinator, said he was not willing to make a prediction until all votes were in from DuPage County. He said that Simon needed a significant victory in Southern Illinois to offset potential losses in Chicago suburbs.

Election '84

—Democrats gain, but GOP holds in Senate. Page 8.

Simon led Percy in Cook County by 56 percent to 43 percent. In Chicago, a traditional Democratic stronghold, Simon led by 66 percent to 33 percent.

Percy failed to run as strongly in the heavily Republican Cook County suburbs as President Reagan, who held a 65 percent to 35 percent lead there over Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale.

"Ronald Reagan was our biggest worry tonight," said David Axelrod, Simon's campaign manager. "He's run strongly here as he has run strongly everywhere else. He is a life preserver that has kept Charles Percy afloat all evening, but I think he (Percy) is going under."

Jim Edgar, chairman of Percy's campaign, said Percy was drawing more support outside Chicago than in 1978.

"Anc' think by how much will determine this election," he said.

The president's party, which gained command of the Senate in 1980 after being out of power for 25 years, appeared headed for a net loss of one or two seats when the new Congress convenes in January. Republicans currently hold a 55-45 majority in the Senate.

Sen. Jesse Helms, champion of "New Right" Republicans, led the GOP charge with a nine-point lead over Gov. Jim Hunt with about a third of North Carolina's ballots counted in the most expensive Senate race in the nation's history and one of the most divisive.

But in another hotly fought contest, Iowa Republican Sen. Roger Jepsen, beset with controversies over his personal life, was defeated in his bid for a second term by Democratic Rep. Tom Harkin.

Gray, Patchett neck-and-neck in 22nd District

By Daily Egyptian Staff

The race for the 22nd District congressional seat between Republican Randy Patchett and Democrat Ken Gray was too close to call by early Wednesday.

Although Gray seemed to hold the edge in the polls prior to Election Day, Patchett remained close and even held the lead at times. He said he was hoping for a surprise victory.

Of 250,000 votes expected to be cast in the district, Patchett was hoping to get about 150,000, Patchett campaign manager Mark Maddox said.

At 12:20 a.m., Gray was leading Patchett by 3,200 votes, according to The Associated Press.

However, Jackson County, one of the four key counties in the race, was slow in reporting its vote totals.

It was unlikely that Jackson County, in which both candidates campaigned heavily, would have final election results in before 3 a.m. according to the Jackson County Clerk's Office.

Franklin, Jackson and Williamson counties account for more than 90 percent of the total vote in the 22nd District, according to Maddox.

The mood at the Patchett headquarters was optimistic, yet no one was taking anything for granted. Patchett said he had some pleasant surprises so far. "We're running a good race, and it's probably going to be a long night," he said.

In Williamson County, it was a dead heat, with Patchett leading by only 300 votes with about 50 percent of the precincts reporting.

"It's all going to come down to Jackson County," Maddox said.

The 22nd District race has been closely contested. The seat was vacated when U.S. Rep. Paul Simon decided to forego a re-election bid to challenge

Dunn holds slim lead in 58th District race

By Daily Egyptian Staff

With 53 of 202 precincts still unreported early Wednesday morning, including 42 in Jackson County, Republican Ralph Dunn held a 2,000 vote margin over Gary McClure, his opponent in the 58th District state Senate race.

Dunn had 32,327 votes to McClure's 30,304 as of midnight Tuesday.

Despite the 2,000 vote lead,

Dunn said he considered the race very tight because the Jackson County vote totals were not reported.

Most of the Jackson County precincts were late in reporting vote totals because ballot shortages delayed vote counting.

McClure was counting on a heavy student turnout in the county voting in his favor to close the gap.

Some precincts in the county reportedly remained open after 7 p.m., when the polls were scheduled to close, because of ballot shortages.

There were reports that voters who are no longer residents of Precinct 23 in Carbondale were voting in that precinct, but these reports were unconfirmed by Robert Harrell, Jackson County clerk.

Dunn and McClure declined to make a statement, preferring to wait until the final tally was in.

Dunn watched the election returns from the Capri Lounge in Pinckneyville. McClure was at his campaign headquarters in Chester.

The race for the 58th District state Senate seat began when Sen. Ken Buzbee, D-Makanda, announced his candidacy for the 22nd District congressional seat. Buzbee lost his bid for congress in the primary elec-

India situation 'still serious' say religious, political leaders

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A week after Indira Gandhi's assassination, opposition political and religious leaders told the new government the situation was "still serious" throughout much of India and urged firm action to protect Sikhs from marauding Hindus. A Sikh leader said thousands of Sikhs had been killed. Indian army troops kept peace in New Delhi and other major cities, where Hindu mobs had ransacked Sikh shops and homes in a four-day frenzy of killing and destruction. The violence broke out after Mrs. Gandhi's assassination Wednesday by two men identified as Sikh members of her security staff. The United News of India said two of the senior police officers responsible for Mrs. Gandhi's security — G.R. Gupta, deputy commissioner of police, and D.C. Gulia, the assistant commissioner — had been suspended pending completion of an investigation into her killing.

1st official account of priest murder announced

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A pro-Solidarity priest "showed no sign of life" when he was bound and thrown into an icy reservoir by three secret police officers who abducted him, Poland's Interior Minister said Tuesday. The announcement, carried by the official Polish news agency, conflicted with information from a well-informed source who said the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko apparently was bound, gagged and battered but apparently alive when he was thrown into the reservoir in northern Poland. Quoting statements by three Interior Ministry officials under arrest in the case, Interior Minister Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak provided the first government account of the fate of Popieluszko in a report to the parliamentary Commission on Internal Affairs and Justice.

Discovery ready for satellite retrieval mission

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — As its five astronauts received last-minute flight updates, crews prepared space shuttle Discovery for a Wednesday morning liftoff on a mission to chase and capture two satellites that are whirling around Earth in worthless orbits. Discovery was set to roar away from the Kennedy Space Center at 8:22 a.m. EST and predictions were for scattered clouds, "no chance of fog," and gentle winds. During their eight days aloft, the astronauts will deliver two commercial satellites to space, then make daring space walks to snag the two errant satellites and lock them into the shuttle cargo bay for return to Earth.

Court grants stays, halts double execution

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Two convicted murderers were granted stays of execution Tuesday, less than a day before they were scheduled to be put to death in the first double execution by a state in 19 years. The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta denied an appeal by attorneys for Timothy Palmes, 37, who was condemned for stabbing a Jacksonville store owner 18 times. But the court granted him a stay of execution until 10 a.m. Thursday to allow his attorneys time to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. If the appeal to the nation's highest court is denied, the state would still have time to electrocute Palmes before his death warrant expires. Florida's Supreme Court on Tuesday granted an indefinite stay of execution to Chester Maxwell, 29, who was condemned for killing a would-be robbery victim over a ring.

Death toll increases in Johannesburg rioting

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — At least six blacks were killed Tuesday in clashes with police, raising to 16 the death toll in two days of protests that stemmed from a general strike in black townships near the capital. Rioters set fires and threw stones, and police responded with tear gas, rubber bullets and blasts of bird-shot, and sent hundreds of officers on armored car patrols in Tembisa, east of Johannesburg. Seven people have perished in Tembisa during the two-day strike.

Village approves incentives for racially integrated housing

OAK PARK (AP) — Calling it an attempt to "assure equality and diversity in housing," the village board of this western Chicago suburb has approved a first-of-its-kind measure to financially reward landlords who agree to racially integrate their apartment buildings. By a 5-1 vote Monday night, the board approved a plan to offer about $400,000 in grants and subsidies next year to apartment building owners who integrate their dwellings and to tenants who move into the units. Under the proposal, landlords could receive up to $1,000 per unit to be used for improvements on the apartment building. In order to get the full grant, landlords would have to come up with another $2,000 through private financing or low-interest loans from the village. Tenants are eligible to receive up to $300 in rent subsidies for cooperating in the program, which village officials hope will foster "racial diversity."

Poshard leads in 59th District

By Daily Egyptian Staff

The third party candidacy of Eve Johns did not appear to split the Democrat vote for the 59th District Senate race as Democrat Glenn Poshard was pulling ahead of Republican Bob Winchester as of 11:50 a.m. Wednesday.

With 84 percent of the precincts in, Poshard had 37,076 vote for 50 percent, Winchester had 32,273 for 44 percent and Mrs. Johns 4,600 for 6 percent, according to radio reports.

With 54 of 62 Williamson County precincts reported, Poshard had 11,034 votes for 50.05 percent, Winchester had 8,761 for 39.53 percent and Mrs. Johns had 2,298 for 10.42 percent.

Williamson is the home county of both Mrs. Johns and Poshard.

The winner in the 59th District race will finish the last two years of Sen. Gene Johns term. Johns died of cancer Aug. 11.

Poshard was named by Democratic leaders to fill Johns' term until the election. Johns widow, Eve Johns, who had sought the appointment as interim senator, announced her candidacy soon afterward.

Winchester, who was running for re-election to the state house in the 118th District, decided to switch to the senate race. He said he wouldn't have run if Democratic leaders had chosen Johns to succeed her husband.

Poshard, 38, of Cartersville, has a doctorate in administration of higher education from SIU-C. He said education is one of his prime responsibilities and received the endorsement of the Illinois Education Association.

However, Poshard said bringing jobs to Southern Illinois was his highest priority. He called for a balance of promoting tourism and private industry. Poshard said that the state Department of Commerce and Community Affairs should work harder to market Southern Illinois.

Johns, 53, of Marion, with her independent candidacy, added a emotional aspect to the race. Some speculated before the election that Johns' candidacy might take votes away from Poshard.

Throughout the campaign, Johns said that her primary project if elected would be to carry out the unfinished work of her husband. These projects included the Piercon-Peck coal process project. Piercon-Peck would turn coal into fertilizer for local farmers.

Winchester, 39, Rosiclare, has been the representative to the state House for 10 years. During the campaign, Poshard accused Winchester of chronic absenteeism when it came to votes in the House. Winchester in return ran commercials saying Poshard was just mud slinging and that Winchester had a record that proved his effectiveness.

Winchester said he favored delaying federal acid rain legislation until more studies are done on the subject.

Voters decide variety of proposals

By The Associated Press
District of Columbia voters agreed Tuesday to guarantee shelter for the homeless. West Virginians appeared to be backing a state lottery, but a measure legalizing casino gambling in Hot Springs, Ark. was trailing as voters in 44 states considered a wide variety of ballot measures Tuesday. Tax-cutting propositions limiting property taxes and giving voters a direct say in future increases were on ballots in Michigan, Oregon and Nevada. Missourians voted whether to allow farmland to be taxed at lower rates than other property.

Gambling issues were featured in six states. A Washington, D.C. initiative guaranteeing overnight shelter for the homeless won overwhelming approval, but city officials, claiming the measure would cost taxpayers $65 million, said they would go to court to invalidate the measure.

Housing code proposals meet little resistance

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

Little objection was raised at a public hearing held by the Carbondale City Council dealing with proposed changes with the Carbondale Housing Code.

A major change in the code would require all housing dwellings in Carbondale to be equipped with a smoke detector. Another amendment to the code would allow occupancy in cellars.

Most council members had no major reservations about the smoke detector requirement, but Councilman Patrick Kelley said he is undecided.

Kelley said he recognizes the value of smoke detectors, but he said he is not sure whether it is the appropriate role of the housing code to require smoke detectors.

Kelley said a smoke detector requirement might change the focus of the code from "abating dangerous possibilities to requiring people to take safety steps."

John Foster, chairman of the Citizens Advisory Commission, said, however, said that requiring smoke detectors is the same as requiring safe electrical wiring in all housing.

The CAC recommended the changes in the housing code in a report last month. The code already requires new housing in Carbondale to be equipped with smoke detectors.

Fire Chief Charles McCaughan urged the council to adopt the smoke detector requirement to the housing code.

McCaughan said of 14 fatalities caused by fire in Carbondale, most could have been saved if they were alerted of fire by smoke detectors.

The council requested that the city staff come up with an adequate time period for residents to buy and install the smoke detectors before the proposal is acted upon.

James Prowell, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, suggested that residents be given until June 1986 to install the smoke detectors.

Another proposal to amend the housing code to allow occupancy in cellars drew concern from Mayor Helen Westberg. She said that older homes were not built for occupancy in cellars and allowing occupancy the may lead to unsafe conditions.

The housing code defines cellars as any story of a building that is 50 percent below ground level. Occupancy in cellars is prohibited by the current housing code.

Foster said that relaxing the cellar occupancy ban would not lead to more dwellings because most existing cellars could not meet the housing code specifications for such requirements as heating, ventilation and light.

Morality in medicine

AT FIRST IT MAY sound like a sensationalized and far-fetched story out of the National Enquirer, but not so. The heart transplant from a baboon to a human less than two weeks ago has turned out to be a remarkable success. "Baby Fae" is now eating full strength baby formula, and is kicking and screaming like any healthy baby might.

Having survived the critical seven- to 10- day period following the operation with flying colors, doctors now are growing hopeful that Baby Fae will be able to lead a full and productive life. Dr. Leonard Bailey, chief surgeon for the operation and past experimenter in baboon to human transplants, said that barring some unforeseen complication in Baby Fae's condition, there would be no reason to conduct any search for another donor, not even a human one. Bailey has said that the plum-sized heart should grow with Baby Fae just as would any other normal heart.

STILL, THE OPERATION has met with its share of protest by a number of groups and individuals who question the ethics, and the need, of such medical procedures. Is it safe and ethical to transplant organs from one species to another? Is it right to sacrifice animals for human research?

The idea of a baboon's heart inside a little girl's body strikes a decidedly Darwinian chord. The success of this most recent baboon to human transplant — previous attempts had proved unsuccessful — should make a strong case for Darwin's theory of evolution.

The argument has been made that such cruel experimentation using innocent animals is unnecessary, given the advancements in medical technology. It is argued that the same medical advances now being made could still be achieved through less exacting means.

THE OVERWHELMING RESPONSE by the medical community has been unmistakable. Researchers made it clear that if the availability of laboratory animals is interrupted or prohibited, they would be working with their hands tied. Research as a whole would suffer greatly.

As for the morality of placing a higher priority on human life than that of other species, it seems quite obvious which of the two is the more important. To say that it is morally or ethically wrong to sacrifice the life of an animal for that of a human is tantamount to rejecting the enormous progress modern medicine has made — with the invaluable aid of laboratory animals — in improving the condition of man. How far would medicine be now if not for the availability of laboratory animals for experimentation?

Wanton killing of innocent animals for the sake of killing obviously is wrong, but that is clearly not at issue. The wealth of knowledge such experimentation affords science on man's behalf must take priority over any other concerns.

Helping the hard-core politicians adjust to life after the elections

WE ARE ENTERING that brief period in public life characterized by the absence of any political campaign. Once again our television commercials will focus on the essentials of human existence: beer, well-conditioned hair, and dental adhesives. Once again, the newspapers will be full of corruption, murder and ten ways to insultate your attic.

For most Americans, this post-election hiatus offers a welcome respite from pros and cons, Democrats and Republicans, images and issues. But we here at the National Mental Health Center know the dark side to this story. According to our research, an estimated ten percent of the population has been tragically hooked on politics over the last decade. These people are about to be plunged into a difficult period of withdrawal.

The political junkies, we have learned in our well-funded studies, are not like the rest of Americans. They are citizens who have known all the Democratic candidates featured in the New Hampshire primary. They can list the names of six pollsters along with their margin of error, match at least three advertisers to candidates and four campaign managers with their hometowns. They have spent, to these many months strung out on daily doses of poll statistics, and increasing their tolerance for rhetoric and hyperbole.

IF WE ARE to reintegrate the political junkie into the normal pattern, the next few weeks are critical. So for those of you who have a husband, wife, boss, friend or significant other who shows the telltale signs, we here at the center are sharing our helpful hints for recovery.

First of all, we must state as a matter of principle that we abhor the inhuman tactic known as cold turkey. The most hard-core politicians, campaign operatives and journalists have spent the last six to nine months on planes, buses and cars. By now it is absolutely normal for them to wake up sweating and mumbling that they have missed "baggage call." Disorientation is a common symptom as the cry, "What state is this?" One must treat them gently. It isn't entirely their fault.

Ellen Goodman
Washington Post
Writers Group

We recommend that during the first post-election week, family members hand these sufferers a mimeographed sheet telling them exactly what city they are in and what the daily activities are. It may also be useful to brief some of them on the names of their children — especially if there have been any new ones — and these children's ages. If they continue to regard their home as another hotel, and keep calling for room service, you may accept the tip, but lead them gently toward the buffet area known as the kitchen.

THE CANDIDATES will have unique problems. They will have to relearn communication skills, since they have only exercised the ability to debate or to address a crowd. A sensitive family might set a microphone before the candidate's place mat until he or she feels comfortable with such a small audience. Do not take it personally if the former candidate comes to your dinner party and tries to raise funds. Be tolerant if he attacks your remarks on the need for antifreeze in the car by labeling them "ill-informed, and dangerous in the nuclear age." Try agreeing with whatever he says. This may shock him back into reality.

As for the civilian addicts, or citizen addicts, we have experimented with some behavior-modification ideas that have been remarkably successful. Since most of these political junkies get their fix from the media, our treatment is centered around television. Allow the victims to watch post-campaign analyses, but reward them if they refrain from switching channels to catch all the commentary. We find M&Ms and old bumper stickers work best.

ENCOURAGE THEM also to expand their interests. Researchers now believe that the best bridge to a politics-free existence is, curiously, through reading public-opinion polls. This familiar activity can be a bridge, to transfer their attention from political statistics to such equally fascinating questions as how many Yuppies in major Sunbelt cities prefer kiwi fruit to fresh figs.

There are, of course, aversion techniques. We recommend re-running tapes of the presidential debates as often as necessary. Not even the most strung-out political junkie can watch all three debates consecutively without breaking.

Finally, we here at the health center remind you of the urgency of this cause. There is very little time left to help these cases. If you listen carefully, you can hear some lost soul, around the corner and around the television set, pushing the longest lasting, most enticing high of them all: the Campaign of 1988.

USO president shouldn't endorse

Andy Leighton, Undergraduate Student Organization president, has added another victory in his continuing quest to misrepresent us. This time he has endorsed several political candidates through radio and television ads. As USO president, he has no business endorsing any candidate, even if the ad has a disclaimer in regard to his title.

If Leighton and Vice President Jack Cranley want to endorse political candidates, they should resign their positions first. If they don't resign and continue to misuse their positions, I call upon the USO Senate to impeach them.

Finally, just for the record, I am a Democrat. I have nothing against the candidates Leighton endorsed and I did vote. —

Michael Phillips, Junior, Geology.

Halloween behavior appalling

I am thoroughly appalled at the behavior of visiting and resident students during Halloween weekend. It is one thing to get together and have a good time, but another to use a good time as an excuse for malicious activity. Working the first aid booth showed me the result of immaturity and drunkenness. Ninety-five percent of the victims suffered from blunt trauma sustained by bottles and cans of beer. For three years I have been on the other side of the fence with everyone walking the streets. I never found it necessary to inflict personal injury on anyone else. To those who took part in the barrage of objects, next year, sit back and watch without drinking. You will see how pathetic it really is. Beer cans look great flying through the air. The bloody results afterward don't compare.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Nuclear weapons industry besieged by civil disobedience

ONE OF THE Sperry Corporation's efforts to be both good servant of the Pentagon and of its shareholders is the production of computer equipment for nuclear weapons.

Sperry, a major military contractor which recently pleaded guilty to three counts of fraudulently overcharging the government, currently gets $1.3 billion from the Pentagon to develop, among other things, computer components for the Trident II missile. This is a multi-kiloton weapon able to explode a holocaust many times more violent than the bombs dropped by America on Japan in 1945. In its current annual report, Sperry boasts of being "well-established in the electronic-warfare business."

In August, John LaForge, 28, and Barb Katt, 26, entered a Sperry plant in Eagan, Minn., and began hammering at the computers. LaForge is a former Eagle Scout and a graduate of Bimidi State University who served 18 months as a VISTA volunteer. Katt, who graduated from Bimidi State with a degree in philosophy, has worked with mentally impaired adults. Both have made deep commitments to peace, whether in the form of comforting a poor person or of trying to stop the military's idolatrous faith in the bomb.

LAForge AND KATT have been involved in civil disobedience for four years. They are also students of the history of arms escalation. "There have been 6,000 disarmament conferences since World War II," LaForge says, and "none of them has succeeded."

The disarmament conference convened by the pair in the Sperry weapons plant went at first unnoticed by the employees. LaForge and Katt had entered the place peacefully, were unarmed and wore the clothes of corporate respectability: blue suits and shined shoes.

During the disabling of the computer, workers were at first confused. Finally, LaForge recalled, "Someone said, 'Shouldn't someone call security?' They thought we were employees gone bonkers."

Security was called. LaForge and Katt were arrested. Two months later, in mid-October, both were found guilty by a jury of a felony. They are awaiting sentencing.

The case of the Sperry Software Pair, as it is called, deserves attention. A number of facts converge to make it larger than only a Minneapolis case and a number of ideas were presented by LaForge and Katt that make them more than two well-meaning rebels.

THE DESTRUCTION of a weapons system at Sperry — causing about $35,000 damage — is one of at least a dozen recent actions against the government's war preparations. In Syracuse, seven members of the Griffiss Plowshares who had damaged a B-52 fitted with cruise missiles were hit with two- and three-year prison terms. In Orlando, eight peace activists were each sentenced to three years for damaging a missile launcher at the Martin-Marietta plant. Jail terms were given to four members of Friends for a Nonviolent World for trespassing at an Air Force base in Grand Forks, N.D. In Bangor, Wash., three citizens are serving 90-day sentences for blocking a train carrying nuclear missiles to a military base.

In all, more than 30 peace activists are in prison or jail for civil disobedience against the arms race.

In cities like Minneapolis and Orlando, the trials of these cases receive media attention. But nationally, there is little. Trees in the forest are falling as never before but because the media choose to put their ears elsewhere, the noise never happened.

AMERICANS ARE told more about the protests occurring in places like England where the women of Greenham Common are saying no to nuclear weapons. Petra Kelley of West Germany is better known to Americans than Elizabeth McAlister, now locked away for three years in the federal women's prison in Alderson, W.Va.

McAlister and the 30-odd others in jail, as well as John LaForge and Barb Katt, are not off-the-wall crazies. All of them are well-educated, mature, prayerful and caring citizens who came to civil disobedience in the spirit that Gandhi, King and Thoreau defied the might of the state. Many are parents, some are teachers, a few are priests or nuns. Todd Kaplan, 26, in a Florida prison, describes himself as "a faithful Jew struggling to follow God's call to bring Shalom (Peace) and Tzedekah (Justice) to this world."

By stiff sentences to resistors like Kaplan, the courts give credibility to the Pentagon's argument that The Bomb is Sacred. Destroying the property of death that could destroy the ultimate property — the world — is somehow, twistedly, seen as criminal.

Church role wrongly depicted by pro-abortion propaganda

The argument that the pro-life movement has been a concerted effort to subjugate women and re-impose "a theocratic regime on the nation" on the part of the "Catholic hierarchy and fundamentalist Christians" frequently comes to the lips of pro-abortionists, but never has this argument been substantiated by facts.

I would like to draw the readers' attention to a particular work by one of the founders of the National Abortion Rights Actions League, formerly the National Association for Repeal of Abortion Laws, an atheist doctor of gynecology and obstetrics, Bernard Nathanson, who ran the largest abortion clinic in the nation, the Center for Reproductive and Sexual Health in New York. The clinic netted, by Nathanson's own admission, $5 million a year. The work, called "Aborting America," reveals the birth of the pro-abortion movement and the various underhanded strategies to be used in persuading America to accept the idea of abortion. I will present just two of the strategies at present. If the reader is interested, there are two copies of this book in Morris Library.

The first strategy was to develop a need for legalized abortion and to acquaint the nation with this fictitious need. NARAL exaggerated the number of illegal abortion deaths almost beyond the stretches of the imagination, setting it at 5,000 to 10,000 per year. In sharp contrast, in 1967, the federal government listed 160 deaths a year, and it was estimated that 1,000 per year was the maximum even remotely possible before legalized abortions. In 1972, the year before Roe v. Wade was decided, the total was 39.

The second strategy was to create the villain of this revolution, and that villain was the Roman Catholic hierarchy. The following are excerpts from a conversation put forth in Nathanson's book:

"Historically ... every revolution has to have its villain ... someone, a person to rebel against. It's easier for the people we want to persuade to perceive it in this way. A single person isn't what we want, since that might excite sympathy for him. Rather, a small group of shadowy, powerful people ... You know who I mean, Bernie ... Not just all Catholics ... we have to convince liberal Catholics to join us ... and if we tar them all with the same brush, we'll just antagonize a few who might otherwise have joined us and be valuable showpieces for us. No, it's got to be the Catholic hierarchy."

The reason for Dr. Nathanson's act of whistle-blowing is best stated in his own words: "I am deeply troubled by my own increasing certainty that I had, in fact, presided over 60,000 deaths." And this in an 18-month stint as director of the Center for Reproductive and Sexual Health.

Faced with this testimony of a self-proclaimed atheist and one-time director of the largest abortion clinic in the world, I find it difficult to believe that it is the Catholic hierarchy who is launching a planned attack on human rights. — Anne Earle, Senior, Political Science.

Reagan takes Illinois' 24 electoral votes

CHICAGO (AP) — Native son Ronald Reagan appeared headed for victory Tuesday in the race for Illinois' 24 electoral votes, his suburban support countering Walter Mondale's advantage in Chicago's Democratic strongholds.

With 5,677 of 11,632 precincts reporting, Reagan had 1,122,659 votes, or 52 percent, and Mondale had 1,015,338 votes, or 48 percent.

Reagan led by an overwhelming 65 percent to 35 percent in suburban Cook County. In Chicago, Mondale was ahead 62 percent to 38 percent.

In the 101 counties outside Cook, the margin was 60 percent to 40 percent for the president in balloting for the nation's fifth-largest cache of electoral votes.

Governor Thompson, chairman of Reagan's campaign in Illinois, said the president's apparent victory signaled a shift in the state toward the GOP.

"I don't care what the

'We are in the beginning of a realignment of Illinois politics.'

—Gov. James Thompson

Democrats are saying, we are in the beginning of a realignment of Illinois politics," Thompson told supporters at Reagan-Bush headquarters in suburban Oak Brook.

Pessimism set in early at Mondale-Ferraro headquarters in Chicago.

Don North, state spokesman for the former vice president's campaign, said he was surprised at Mondale's showing in Illinois.

"My reading of the state polls showed a horse race and I thought the plurality in Chicago would carry the day for the Democrats," said North.

Chicago Mayor Harold Washington and archrival Edward Vrdolyak, Cook County's Democratic chairman, competed to produce votes for Mondale, hoping to offset a GOP voter drive orchestrated by Thompson.

Illinois — with its nagging high unemployment, depressed farm economy and the thousands of newly registered black voters in Chicago — had seemed fertile ground for Mondale.

October jobless figures released last Friday showed the state with a 9.4 percent unemployment rate, third-highest among the 10 big industrial states and up sharply from the previous month.

But Reagan, born in Tampico and raised in Dixon, led the former vice president by as many as 18 percentage points in polls taken within days of the election. In 1980, Reagan won by nearly 377,000 votes in Illinois, a state that had not been captured by a Democratic presidential candidate since 1964.

Democrats hammered at the unemployment issue, but Reagan's supporters declined to blame him.

"It's not his fault I'm unemployed," Danny Mescher, an unemployed bowling alley attendant in Decatur, said during the president's Aug. 20 visit there. "It's all the presidents before him."

However, the legendary Chicago Democratic organization was giving the GOP the jitters.

"Now that the pollsters have had their say, it's time for the Democratic organization to go to work," Vrdolyak proclaimed last weekend. Washington also labored to produce votes, especially in predominantly black wards.

Reagan's hometown celebrates victory

DIXON (AP) — Jubilation and the light of a full moon washed over President Reagan's boyhood hometown Tuesday as revelers filled the downtown quarter to celebrate what they never doubted would be Reagan's re-election.

Bundled up against the autumn chill, several thousand party-goers — many too young to vote — cheered when they heard a television network had declared Reagan the victor when polls closed in 16 states, including Illinois.

Minutes later, Reagan telephoned from Los Angeles and, in a brief message amplified to celebrants in the streets, thanked Dixon residents for their support.

"We always have to remind people around here that it's a two-party system," lamented Maryann Lawson at the all-but-deserted local Democratic headquarters a block from the outdoor party.

At the packed Republican headquarters, residents coming in out of the chill were treated to smiles and a free scoop of Dutch chocolate ice cream — in honor of Reagan's nickname, "Dutch."

Earlier Tuesday, at 1:15 p.m. CST, the daily newspaper here declared Reagan the winner in a landslide.

"While such practice may appear somewhat unsound, we confess to being President Reagan's biggest cheerleader," the Dixon Evening Telegraph said in an editorial explaining its early headline: "Reagan Wins!"

Managing Editor Ron Mix said the paper wanted to be the first in the nation to declare Reagan re-elected, even if it meant "sticking our necks out."

Republican leads in state high court race

CHICAGO (AP) — Republican Ben Miller took an early lead Tuesday over Democrat James Craven in their fiercely contested race for Central Illinois' seat on the Illinois Supreme Court.

With 221 of 1,417 precincts reporting, Miller had 29,284 votes, or 57 percent, and Craven had 21,706 votes, or 43 percent.

Voters in 30 Illinois counties, from Quincy to Danville, chose between the two Springfield residents to replace retiring Republican Justice Robert Underwood of Bloomington.

In Cook County, incumbent Supreme Court Justice Daniel Ward sought retention along with two appellate and 35 circuit judges, and early returns showed most running well ahead of the 60 percent "yes" vote they needed to remain in office.

In state appellate court races, Republican William Wombacher of Peoria took an early lead over Democrat Edward Keefe of Rock Island for a Third District seat.

Parties vie for gain in Congress seats

By the Associated Press

Democrats sought to narrow a 55-45 Republican majority in the U.S. Senate Tuesday, but Republicans were hoping a Reagan landslide would be strong enough to prevent any inroads.

The Democrats capitalized on their best hope — in Tennessee, where Rep. Albert Gore Jr. claimed a seat being vacated by Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker. Gore defeated former Republican state legislator Victor Ashe and conservative businessman Ed McAteer, who ran as an independent.

Republican incumbents in contests considered close before the election had mixed success. Network projections indicated Sen. Roger Jepsen in Iowa lost his re-election bid, but Jesse Helms in North Carolina won his. Sen. Charles Percy in Illinois trailed Rep. Paul Simon, a Democrat, with more than 50 percent of the vote counted.

But Democratic Sen. Dee Huddleston of Kentucky was upset in his bid for a third term Tuesday, as Republican county administrator Mitch McConnell was swept into office on President Reagan's coattails.

Republicans also bid to upset Max Baucus of Montana and James Exon of Nebraska. Gov. Jay Rockefeller kept a West Virginia Senate seat safe for the Democrats, but Republicans eyed a surprise by millionaire John Raese.

Democratic Lt. Gov. John Kerry defeated conservative Republican businessman Ray Shamie to win the seat of retiring Democrat Paul Tsongas.

In the House, where Democrats hold a 266-167 edge, with two vacancies, it was the Republicans who were looking to gain ground. Party leaders conceded the GOP would not gain numerical control, but looked for gains of 25 seats or so.

Combined with the support of conservative Democrats, that kind of GOP advance could give the president a "working majority" for his second-term legislation.

Fifty-four House Democrats and 14 Republicans had no opposition.

Illinois voters may have set voter turnout record

By Daily Egyptian Staff and The Associated Press

Good weather, the presidential election and a heated U.S. Senate race made for what appeared to be a record turnout of 5.2 million voters Tuesday in Illinois, officials said.

In Jackson County, election judges said the voter turnout was unexpectedly high. Janet Brown, who received the ballot boxes from Jackson County precincts, said that Carbondale had the highest percentage of voters and that Murphysboro was also quite high.

Ballots at local precincts ran low due to the number of voters, but judges said they were able to get enough and did not completely run out. At 7 p.m., poll closing time, there were long lines of people who still had not voted.

Thirty minutes after the polls closed, the State Board of Elections stood by its prediction, saying that 80 percent of a record 6.5 million Illinoisans eligible to vote actually turned out.

"I just talked with the board's executive director and its chairman, and both are still sticking with 80 percent," said Kei Husdon, the board's associate director. "We will not have a final canvass of statewide results until Nov. 26," he added.

In Springfield, board spokesman Ron Michaelson said Tuesday afternoon that he expected 78 percent to 80 percent of registered voters would have voted by the end of the day. Statewide, the previous record was in 1972, when almost 4.9 million Illinoisans voted on the Richard Nixon-George McGovern presidential race.

"We have had a great push in voter registration this year," Michaelson said by telephone. "Certainly the weather is excellent. That always helps. Certainly the Senate race, which is so close and has been so hotly contested has attracted a lot of attention."

In Chicago — a traditionally Democratic stronghold — officials Tuesday afternoon were projecting an 84 percent voter turnout.

And in the traditionally Republican-dominated Chicago suburbs, Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper said turnout should reach 85 percent to 90 percent.

"We are sitting on top of a substantial turnout in suburban Cook County," Kusper said.

Meanwhile, there were scattered complaints of voting irregularities, including the use of a wrong ballot book page in one township, South Moline, that affected 200 ballots.

Liquor board denies food mart license request

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

Traffic problems, a 40-year-old ordinance and the possibility of setting a precedent all doomed a request to sell liquor at the Convenient Food Mart on Highway 51 South. The request was denied Monday when the Carbondale Liquor Control Commission voted 5-0 against it.

Commissioners and several people who live near the store said that allowing liquor to be sold at the store could create serious traffic problems since it is located on a state highway near a busy intersection.

They also said that, although the store and a few other nearby businesses have been annexed into the city of Carbondale, most of the surrounding property is in Carbondale Township, which voted itself "dry" over 40 years ago. Concern was expressed that if the store is allowed to sell liquor, other businesses that have been annexed by the city might want to do the same.

"The community down there is very much against granting the liquor license," Les Pappas, former pastor of the Boskvdell Baptist Church, said. "This has not changed. If anything it has increased."

Pappas also told the commission that the traffic situation on the highway near the store is already dangerous and would be worse if the liquor license is granted.

The possibility that a liquor store at the food mart could create traffic problems was also brought up by Chairwoman Helen Westberg. "That is a heavily traveled, congested area," Westberg said, adding that "a great many people have expressed concern about this."

But Chris Kempf, vice president of CMF Mid-America Inc., the company that owns the food mart, disagreed with both charges. Kempf said that petitions with "well over 1,000 signatures" had been collected to rebut claims that the community opposed the license. "Most of our customers request beer in this store on a regular basis," he said.

Kempf said there are no grounds on which to claim that only students are backing the license request because more than 75 percent of the signatures were from people over 24.

In regard to possible traffic problems, Kempf said that adding a liquor store to the food mart would decrease traffic because people would no longer have to drive into town to buy liquor as they do now.

Kempf said that even if a liquor license is not granted for his company to operate a liquor store near the food mart it has such a large piece of land that it will probably open some sort of retail store on it, so traffic is not going to be denied just by denying the request.

Westberg and Commissioner Patrick Kelley said that since the residents of Carbondale Township already voted against the sale of liquor the commission should defer to their preference.

The commission would be operating in "bad faith," Westberg said, if it did not take into account the feelings of the people who own property and live in the immediate area of the store.

Kempf disputed the commissioners' reasoning because the vote to prohibit alcohol was taken decades ago. He offered to poll "each and every household" in an area of any size around the store to prove that the majority of the residents support his request.

Frank Brimmer, who lives near the food mart, said he was worried about whether allowing the store to sell liquor would set an example that other businesses could follow. He said that he was representing a group of residents who would consider the granting of the liquor license to be a violation of their rights.

"Once a liquor license is issued I think the trend would be irreversible," Brimmer said. He also said the liquor license "extends the Strip right down Highway 51" into a densely populated residential area.

CSBO, University sign contract

By Karen Wiltberger
Staff Writer

More than 600 civil service employees represented by the Civil Service Bargaining Organization can expect overdue pay increases on their Dec. 7 paycheck, said Jim Hamilton, director of payroll disbursements.

The University and CSBO signed a final contract Tuesday, said CSBO President Sharon Grissom. The move will end a more than four-month delay in the distribution of a 6 percent pay increase approved by the union's rank and file in July.

Hamilton said the retroactive pay to July 1 for employees earning $6 per hour would be $256.50 if they worked full time without absences. An employee earning $10 per hour would receive $427.50 in back pay under the same conditions, he said.

Fair share, the requirement that non-union members pay for union benefits they automatically receive, was the last of the major negotiations which ended in late October when CSBO dropped its fair share demand.

A law effective at the first of this year requires that contract negotiations be settled 15 days before the expiration of the old contract.

The delay was permitted this year because the law wasn't enforced because of difficulties in state commission staffing, among other reasons, according to Lee Hester, CSBO chief negotiator and employee of the Illinois Education Association.

S-Senate to eye housing rate boost

By David Liss
Staff Writer

The Student Senate will discuss a resolution dealing with the proposed 7 percent housing rate increase at its meeting Wednesday.

The resolution differs from one introduced at the Oct. 25 senate meeting by excluding Evergreen Terrace and Southern Hills housing areas. Evergreen Terrace and Southern Hills rates would go up $20 and $18 per month consecutively with the proposed increase.

Thompson Point, Brush

Towers, University Park and Greek Row housing rates would increase $84 per semester with the proposed increase.

The resolution "recognizes the necessity" of the housing rate increase. Undergraduate Student Organization President Andy Leighton said, but the USO executive cabinet "will not support fee and tuition increases that single out students as the source."

In other business, a Recreation Center fee increase resolution may be submitted as last-minute floor legislation, Leighton said. The resolution would call for a $6 per semester increase instead of the proposed $8, said Steven Rosengarden, USO housing, tuition and fees commissioner.

The senate will consider a resolution to recognize and support the Red Cross Blood Drive, taking place in Student Center Ballroom D from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. through Friday.

The Senate will also consider a resolution that calls for the interest from the student legal fee to be accumulated to "defray costs of future equipment costs or salary hikes" in Student Legal Assistance, Leighton said.

Agriculture professor wins top teacher award

By Cynthia Weiss
Staff Writer

A lot of emphasis has been placed on education and quality teaching recently. If good teachers are highly valued, Walter J. Wills should be treasured.

Wills, professor emeritus of agribusiness economics, is the 1984 winner of the Great Teacher Award.

The SIU-C Alumni Association presents the award annually to honor teaching excellence. Wills is the 25th winner of the award for which he received $1,000 and an engraved plaque.

Although he retired in August 1983, 69-year-old Wills keeps his office in the Agriculture Building and has not lost his enthusiasm for working with students.

Walter Wills

OVER A DOZEN pipes lay about on the desk in Wills' office, peeping out here and there from behind mounds of paper, including copies of the agricultural periodicals Wills reads religiously. The sweet smell of mixture number 79 tobacco has greeted students in Wills' office for years.

Although his desk may be cluttered, his mind surely isn't. Wills has some definite ideas about how and why he has been such a successful teacher.

"A good teacher works with students both inside and outside the classroom," said Wills.

Inside the classroom, Wills sought to get the attention of students in the first five minutes of the first class meeting. "If you don't," he said, "they're never really all there."

IN ORDER FOR his students to get the most out of his message, Wills would "psych himself up" before class.

"I had to get ready for it. I chose to be by myself and go over my notes. You've got to get in the mood if you're going to get through" to students, Wills said.

Outside the classroom, Wills said he believed in making himself easily accessible to students. Developing relationships with students is an important aspect of teaching, Wills said, because it fosters understanding. Understanding students is a key to effective teaching, he said.

In order to learn something about his students' thinking process, Wills always used essay questions for examinations. Students need to learn to write, Wills said. They're not going to learn that by circling T or F or A, B, C or D, he said.

MANY TEACHERS are more concerned with form than content, Wills said. Teaching aids like overhead projectors and slide projectors can be useful teaching tools, but they are no substitution for content, he said.

Wills has never been one to lecture from a textbook. "Students allegedly can read," Wills said. "A teacher needs to supplement."

Receiving teaching awards is not unusual for Wills. He won the SIU School of Agriculture's Faculty Service Award twice and the American Institute of Cooperatives presented him with its National Cooperative Education Award in 1978.

Wills was a Fulbright scholar in Turkey, an evaluator for the Agency for International Development in Botswana and member of a design team to establish an agriculture university in Pakistan. He was also a longtime secretary of the Illinois Cooperative Coordination Committee.

WILLS GRADUATED from college in 1936 after attending Blackburn college for two years and the University of Illinois for a year and a half. With a smile he recalled making only two Bs at U of I. The rest of his grades were As. In his last semester at U of I, Wills took 26 credit hours.

Unable to find a job in the Depression year of 1936, Wills got an assistantship and completed requirements for his master's degree in 1937. For the next 10 years Wills worked as a credit examiner for Product Credit Corp. Part of that time, however, was spent in the military.

Wills spent four years and eight months in the Army and won five battle stars for his part in the European theater during World War II.

WILLS THEN returned to U of I for his Ph.D. He worked as an assistant professor teaching one course per year and spent the rest of his time doing research.

After receiving his doctorate, Wills went to Washington D.C. where he became director of firm relations for American Trucking. This was mostly public relations work and some lobbying, Wills said.

From Washington, D.C., Wills moved to Washington state where he worked as an extension marketing specialist helping agriculture-related groups with marketing problems.

The dean of SIU-C's School of Agriculture wrote Wills in Washington and offered him a teaching position. Wills came to SIU-C in 1956.

IN HIS 27 years at SIU-C, Wills has written three agriculture textbooks, more than 400 scholarly and popular articles and has served on dozens of master's thesis and doctoral degree dissertation committees. He has been acting dean and assistant dean of the School of Agriculture and department chairman of agricultural industries.

Wills especially enjoyed serving as faculty adviser to various student agriculture clubs. He advised the Agriculture Economics club, the Agri-Marketing club and Alpha Zeta, an agriculture honorary society. Wills said he saw this work as a valuable opportunity to get to know students.

Wills really cares about his students, even after they've graduated. When Wills travels it's not uncommon for him to drop in on a former student who happens to live on route.

Wills said he thinks it's important to "let them know they're not forgotten."

ASIDE FROM being a student enthusiast, Wills is also a rose enthusiast. The professor emeritus attends the Rose Festival in Tyler, Texas each year to study the new varieties.

Wills has been growing roses since 1950 and has about 25 plants in his own rose garden where he cultivates his favorite variety, a large yellow-pink rose called the Peace rose.

Wills' first wife, whom he affectionately referred to as "Billie," died in 1981. Wills met Billie on a bus which was taking him from Hot Springs to Camp Robinson in Little Rock, Ark. where he was stationed at the time. The only vacant seat on the bus was the one next to Billie. They were married 39 years.

Wills married his second wife, Martha, in June 1982. Martha had been a long-time friend of both Wills and Billie. Martha was a co-worker of Wills at Credit Production Corp.

Local opinions differ on Baby Fae's transplant

By Jeff Curl
Staff Writer

Two SIU-C faculty members and the president of The Humane Society for Southern Illinois have different views on whether the operation that took the heart of a baboon and placed it into a 14-day old child in California was within the boundaries of ethical standards.

Baby Fae's doctors said she was hours from death when they decided to replace her heart with the walnut-sized heart of a baboon. Barbara Hansen, associate vice president for academic affairs and research, does obesity research on Rhesus monkeys and said she has "no qualms" about killing a baboon for a human's sake.

"There's no doubt in my mind" that the doctors did the right thing by killing the baboon to place its heart Baby Fae's body, Hansen said. "The doctors had given it consideration and decided that the method chosen was the one most likely to benefit the baby."

Hansen said thousands of animals are killed every day for human consumption and for use in diagnosis of diseases. She said something overlooked by some animal protectionists is that when studies use animals, the results often help animals as well as humans.

"Dogs have diabetes also, so when researchers do diabetes studies on them, the results will not only help humans, but veterinary science as well," said Hansen, who added that she is against treating animals in non-human ways.

Eugenia Hunter, president of the Humane Society of Southern Illinois, said she is not against killing a baboon for a human's sake, but added that the ethics of Baby Fae's operation must be considered on the quality of the baby's life in the future. Some questions need to be raised, Hunter said. For example, what if the baby suffers, or has to spend her life dependent on machines? Also, if the baby lives into adulthood, will she have a stigma placed on her because she has a baboon's heart?

Hunter said she will be interested in hearing religious leaders' opinions on Baby Fae, and added that she will also be watching for future legislation concerning experiments on humans and animals.

"I don't think the areas of ethics, religion and law have developed at the speed that the medical world has," she said.

John Howie, professor of philosophy, said he thinks it is all right to kill a baboon for a human's sake and agreed that if Baby Fae's life is filled with numerous problems, serious ethical questions should be considered.

"I think suffering and suffering by animals have been taken too lightly by the medical profession," Howie said.

"Researchers need to look more at what is going to happen in an experiment and what they're going to get out of it. They need to spell out the perimeters of their research."

Howie said research is hinting that, because cellular differentiation is not as developed in babies, the earlier an organ is transplanted, the better. He said current research may make it possible in the future to do organ transplants in human embryos.

Security charges student with illegal entry, burglary

An SIU-C student was charged with burglary, illegal entry and underage consumption after he was observed acting suspiciously in a campus parking lot early Sunday morning, an SIU-C police spokesman said.

Ronald Mullins, 18, of 211 Allen Hall, had been seen by an SIU-C police officer while Mullins stood with another individual by an open vehicle at a lot west of Neckers Hall at 12:47 a.m. The two fled when the officer approached them but Mullins was apprehended and taken into custody, the spokesman said.

Mullins was unable to post bond.

The owner of the vehicle said that the car had been ransacked, although nothing appeared to have been stolen.

1 charged after 3 apprehended for car tampering

Carbondale police apprehended three juveniles Sunday evening after they were seen tampering with an auto parked at the 500 block of West Main Street, a police spokesman said.

The victims, Patti Feltz, 21, of 507 W. Main, and Aric Ault, 20, 512 W. Beveridge St., reported seeing the three suspects by their car at about 8:25 p.m. The three were apprehended by police and one was charged with tampering with a motor vehicle.

SIU symphony to play at Shryock

An SIU Symphony Orchestra Concert, directed by Dallas Tjaden, will be presented at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium.

The concert features music faculty member and clarinetist Eric Mandat in Mozart's "Concerto for Clarinet."

The orchestra will also perform Wagner's "Prelude to Die Meistersinger" and Franck's "Symphony in D minor." Admission is $1 for students and $2 for the public.

22ND: Gray, Patchett very close

Charles Percy for his U.S. Senate seat.

The 59-year-old Gray is a native of West Frankfort. He retired from Congress in 1975 for health reasons and spent several years in Florida before returning to Southern Illinois.

Patchett, 34, is from Marion. He has been Williamson County state's attorney for the last four years and is a fighter pilot in the Illinois Air National Guard.

Gray was a somewhat surprising winner in the Democratic primaries in March over state Sen. Ken Buzbee. Patchett was unopposed in the primary.

The Republican party, sending a chance to send a Republican congressman from the 22nd District for the first time in 30 years, supported Patchett heavily, sending both money and well-known politicians to campaign for him.

Among the national figures who appeared in Southern Illinois were Guy Vander Jagt, Republican Congressional Committee chairman; former President Gerald Ford and Vice President George Bush. Also stumping for Patchett were Gov. Jim Thompson and Percy.

Patchett worked to minimize Gray's long term in office, saying that either man would enter Congress as a freshman representative. Gray countered this by saying he already knew the procedures, but Patchett would spend most of his term learning the system.

The campaign often became not a debate of issues, but a personality clash. The candidates traded accusations of dirty campaigning.

Patchett attacked Gray's reputation as "The Prince of Pork," a nickname acquired during the Democrat's 20-year tenure in Congress from 1955 to 1975.

Gray accused his opponent of attacking his plans but not giving any alternative solutions.

"Any mule can kick down a barn, but it takes a carpenter to rebuild it," Gray often said.

58TH: Dunn lead, slim for Senate

tion. As in most political campaigns, Dunn and McClure have traded their share of barbs. The Senate race developed into a one of experience vs. effectiveness.

Dunn, 70, a 12-year-veteran of the 115th District state House, said his experience would reap the 58th District more educational funds and beneficial coal legislation.

McClure, a 38-year-old Chester native, said that he could be a more effective legislator than Dunn, and the 12 years of experience he gained as Randolph County coroner was sufficient to move up to the state level.

Dunn was a member of the House Higher Education Committee, the Illinois Energy Resource Commission and the Appropriations Committee during his tenure as state representative. He said during his campaign that his primary concerns would continue to be coal and education if he were elected to the Senate.

McClure stressed some of the same concerns as Dunn in his campaign. Jobs and education would take top priority if he were elected, he said. McClure, an SIU-C graduate, said he would fight for more education funding. He said he planned on making SIU-C a "major" university, second to none in the state if he was elected.

As one source of educational funding, McClure proposed shifting $60 million from the Illinois general revenue fund into education, money originally slated for big business refunds.

Dunn also stressed the need for a higher quality educational system in Illinois. Teacher pay raises were the key to this upgrading, he said. Dunn proposed raising income taxes by 0.5 percent if necessary to fund pay raises and to upgrade the overall educational system.

Plans delayed for change in residence halls telephones

By Denise Moore
Student Writer

Plans to change SIU-C's telephone system from four residence hall rooms per line to private lines were halted when the Infonete Company went bankrupt earlier this year. University Housing, which is responsible for management of the campus telephone system, was considering an Infonete proposal to install private lines by fall 1985, said Donald Ballestro, assistant director of housing.

Infonete's proposal was being considered among other bids being accepted at the time. Ballestro said University Housing is now working toward the "essential goal" of private lines in all rooms by 1986.

Ballestro said the responsibility for the installation and maintenance of private phone lines could be placed with an established company, the University or a combination of the two.

In order to be considered by the University, established companies must submit packaged bids that include costs of equipment, telephone installation, service and repair of the system for a specified number of years.

A company submitting such a bid is selling phone line service that it buys from primary phone companies such as Illinois Bell. The company supplies phone service and meets its proposal standards while making a profit.

The University can establish its own company — buy its own phone line service — providing it is approved by the Illinois Telephone Commission. Ballestro said he prefers that University Housing choose an established phone company to be responsible for installation, equipment, money management and complaints without directly involving the University.

The present phone system, General Telephone, is financed through the University Housing fee. Students pay about $6 of the $14 monthly telephone use cost.

If private lines are installed, the student cost per month will increase and be added to University Housing costs paid by on-campus residents each semester.

Police investigate robbery in alleyway

Carbondale police are investigating a robbery which took place Monday evening in an alleyway of the 500 block of S. Lincoln St., a police spokesman said.

Gary Gee, 29, of 606 S. Logan Ave., was approached by an unknown subject at about 6:26 p.m. who took about $60 in cash from Gee, the spokesman said. The suspect was unarmed.

Du Quoin man injured in auto accident

The Jackson County Sheriff's Office is investigating an auto accident Tuesday which may have been caused by an unknown driver, a spokeswoman of the Sheriff's Office said.

Oscar Bennett, 44, of 42 S.

Maple, Du Quoin, claimed that as he was driving north on U.S. Route 51 north of Elkville a pickup truck heading south forced him off the right side of the road, the spokeswoman said. Bennett said the pickup drove away and its driver could not be identified.

Swim program set for youth

The Saluki Swim Club is sponsoring a pre-competitive swim program for children ages 6-10 interested in competitive swimming.

Practices will be held from 5 to 5:45 p.m. for five consecutive Mondays and Wednesdays at the Pulliam Pool, with a novice swim meet at the end of the season. Registration is due Nov. 8 for the Nov. 12-Dec. 15 session. To register, contact John Gadbois, 536-5566, between 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m., or send the name and age of the swimmer and a $25 check to the Saluki Swim Club, John Gadbois, Women's Athletics, Davies Gym, SIU-C.

REAGAN: Wins by landslide

Sen. Paul Laxalt, Reagan's campaign chairman, said, "We've got at least a reasonable chance to have the most historic landslide in all American history."

The president got news of his victory in Los Angeles, where he and his wife watched the returns in a Century Plaza Hotel suite equipped with four television sets.

He told reporters he hoped to participate in a summit with the Soviet Union during a second term in office.

The largest popular vote in history belonged to Lyndon Johnson, elected with 61.05 percent of the vote in 1964.

Reagan's strength was signaled in advance in the public opinion polls, and the returns validated those forecasts from the time the first ballots were tallied in the East.

In the popular vote, with 34 percent of the precincts counted, Reagan was polling 59 percent, to 41 for Mondale.

In his concession, Mondale counseled his supporters against despair and declared "this fight didn't end tonight, it begins tonight."

"Although I would rather have won, tonight we rejoice in our democracy," Mondale said. "We rejoice in the freedom of a wonderful people and we accept their verdict."

Mondale entertained his campaign staff earlier at a dinner in Minnesota, delivering what one aide called a "dignified but emotional" farewell speech. This aide, who declined to be identified by name, said Mondale made no direct reference to the likelihood of defeat, but told his guests, "I know that most of you did this because you believe in a better America."

Democrats counted one Senate gain, in Tennessee, where Rep. Albert Gore captured the seat vacated by retiring Republican leader Howard Baker.

But Reagan's coattails were evident in Kentucky, where Republican Mitch McConnell upset two-term incumbent Democratic Sen. Walter Huddleston.

GOP Sen. Jesse Helms led in a bitter race in North Carolina, another state where Reagan held a lopsided margin. ABC said Helms had won.

Reagan and Vice President George Bush campaigned all fall as solid favorites.

ABC interviews showed Reagan was the favorite among Protestant and Catholic voters, while Mondale was favored by Jews. The Democrat also was ahead among unemployed voters and those earning less than $10,000 a year. The president was running ahead among voters of all other income brackets.

Mondale's running mate, Geraldine Ferraro, ended her historic candidacy, calling it "a credible campaign showing that women can run for national office."

SIMON: Senate race still close

The race for the U.S. Senate seat was hard fought and pitted two formerly compatible Illinois legislators against each other in a bitter contest. Both the five-term Democratic representative and the three-term Republican senator agreed that the election would probably come down to a photo-finish.

Percy said throughout the campaign that he never had an opponent more divergent from him on the issues than Simon. This race also provided Percy with a tougher challenge than he has had in his 18 years as a senator.

Simon, 55, and Percy, 65, come from markedly different backgrounds and are similarly polar in their political views.

Simon, a Democrat from Makanda, is known for his liberal stance on social issues and his opposition to the administration's economic policies. In contrast, Percy, the chairman of the prestigious Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is known as a political moderate who supports President Reagan's economic policies.

The Senate race had been targeted for mass support from both political parties. Several party leaders made campaign swings through Southern Illinois on behalf of Simon and Percy. Joan Mondale and vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro stumped for Simon, while former president Gerald Ford and Vice President George Bush campaigned for Percy.

Percy and Simon spent record amounts of money in this hotly contested race and both camps complained about negative and misleading advertising. Percy claimed that Simon distorted his support of Israel and aired commercials depicting Percy as wishy-washy and "flip-flopping" his position on the issues.

Simon complained about misleading television advertisements from the Percy camp that compared the Simon federal deficit reduction plan of a $200 billion tax increase to Mondale's $85 billion plan. The ad didn't say that Simon's proposed tax increase would be over a four-year period, not one year.

The candidates agreed on two top social issues throughout the campaign — abortion and school prayer. Both said they support the Equal Rights Amendment and oppose passage of a U.S. constitutional amendment banning abortion.

In sharp contrast, they expressed different solutions to reducing the federal deficit. Simon said he proposed a deficit reduction plan combining cuts in defense spending, temporary domestic cuts and closing tax loopholes, which he said would raise $200 billion in four years.

Percy said he favored continuing Reagan's economic recovery plan as the most effective method of reducing the federal budget deficit.

Gwen Hunt, owner of PK's, cleans up some dishes after a customer finishes a meal.

Owner of 'neighborhood bar' lends customers a helping hand

By Debra Colburn
Staff Writer

Mention the name PK's and immediately images of a rough "biker's bar" come to mind. Owner Gwen Hunt describes her restaurant and bar as "just a friendly place — unless you're a real jerk and can't get along with people."

From outward appearances, PK's, located at 308 S. Illinois Ave. in Carbondale, is just an ordinary bar, but several years ago Hunt began a practice that makes her business quite a bit different.

She began feeding the hungry who couldn't afford meal and asked that a few "chores" be done in return. Hunt also loans money to regular customers who are down on their luck or waiting for a pay check.

"Most of it comes back," Hunt said. "There is always some kind of repair work that can be done and people are really very honest. Sometimes it doesn't come back in cash, but it does in other ways."

Hunt said her bar is basically the "friendly neighborhood bar." It gained a bad reputation a few years ago when a motorcycle gang hung out there. The gang was barred from PK's after they beat Hunt and her bartender in the alley.

Hunt said after her three daughters left home she began to think about how they would make it if they ran out of money and needed a hot meal or money to get to work.

"I wanted to help people," Hunt said. "You may be able to get money in a few days, but what about now? That is why I let people eat and pay later or work it out. I think about my daughters. Maybe someone will be there when they need it."

Hunt has owned the bar for 30 years, but she has been operating it by herself for 12 years. She came to Carbondale as a student and got into the restaurant business with a small pizza place called Pizza King that had "good homecooked food and beer."

The business is now known as PK's and doesn't serve pizza but Hunt said she still serves "the best food in town."

"I love this business," Hunt said. "I love the people. I enjoy meeting people and being with them. I can't think of anything more boring than being in an office all day long."

Hunt said she doesn't know of anyone else who provides meals for people as she does. She said a soup kitchen is needed in the area.

"When you do this kind of thing, you have to learn the difference between people who are just sponging and the people who are really in need," Hunt said. "There are people who think they can get through life for free, and I don't like that."

About three years ago, the city made an offer to buy her property to make way for the convention center. Hunt said the price they offered was very low and she didn't think it was fair.

She said the only way she'd let go of her property is if the city would reconstruct a similar building in a good location as well as pay the salaries of her employees and herself while they were out of work. She said she doubts that the city will try to make a deal with her again until after the first of the year.

Pizza stolen; employee accosted, struck

SIUC police are investigating acts of violence against Domino's Pizza delivery employees on the SIUC campus Sunday morning, an SIUC police spokesman said.

A window of a 1984 Ford Escort driven by Diane Johnson, 19, was broken while she delivered pizzas to Mae Smith Tower at 1:10 a.m. Witnesses said that three white males had been seen near the car, and that one was inside it, apparently looking for pizzas, the spokesman said.

About an hour later, Michael Wilson, 23, another Domino's employee, was accosted near Boomer III by several white males and struck in the face at least twice by one of them, the spokesman said. Another subject ran away with one of Wilson's pizzas. Wilson refused medical treatment.

CCHS spikers fail in state tourney bid

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

The season ended one game too soon and one match shy of the state tournament for the Carbondale Community High School volleyball team.

Having defeated Mount Carmel at the Salem sectionals, the Terriers matched up against the Belleville West Mighty Maroons at the Centralia supersectional Saturday bidding for a berth at the Illinois High School Association State Finals. Both teams entered the gymnasium prepared for volleyball. Although the Mighty Maroons were defeated in the pre-season by the Terriers, they felt they could win against Carbondale.

Carbondale was close to winning the first game, Terrier Coach Jennifer Stanley said, but Belleville West took that time to capitalize on some poor play selection by the Terriers and won the game 15-13.

"In the first game, we thought we were really going to win," Stanley said. "We just made bad choices on play selection."

Carbondale struck back to win the second game 15-6 and tie the match at one game apiece.

"We really played well in the second game," Stanley said. "We got our act together and played forcefully. Our serving and attacking were excellent."

Stanley credited senior Dorothy Buchanan with powerful hitting in the game.

The Terriers played inconsistently in the third game and were defeated 15-3 by Belleville West. Stanley said two of the Terriers' major weaknesses in the game was their serving and passing.

"We did nothing well," she said. "We missed seven serves and couldn't get our momentum going."

"The defense was good most of the night," Stanley said, but said that alone was not enough.

Down 2-1 in games, Carbondale fought back. The Terriers gained a 9-0 lead before Belleville West slowly regained control and turned the game around.

"They kept crawling back three and four points at a time. Our passing game was okay, up until the last few points," Stanley said. "Our consistency escaped us. We couldn't keep everything going in the right direction. At moments, we played as well as we could, and at other moments we played awful."

The Terriers played a more conservative game and were not as aggressive at the end of the match. The scoring attack was flat, Stanley said, and Belleville West's top-spin serves were too tough to handle.

Belleville won the fourth game 15-11, winning the match three games to one and will advance to the IHSA quarterfinals Thursday.

"They (the Terriers) really believed they could be there.

Right now, they're very disappointed and frustrated, and it'll be with them for a few days," Stanley said.

Stanley said the 1984 team "had a lot of firsts through the season." For the first time in the school's history, the Terriers won the Preview Tournament, the Collinsville Tournament and placed at the Belleville West Tournament.

The 1978 team finished third in state with a 27-2 record, and the 1984 team bowed out as one of the final 16 with a 31-3 record, but Stanley said she couldn't rate one above the other.

Dorothy Buchanan, Rachel Carlton, Jennifer Daesch, Leslie Kieler, Jennifer McHose and Karen Rushing have completed their high school volleyball careers and may play at collegiate level, Stanley said.

"It'll be a long time before I forget this team," she said.

Offensive clout doesn't assure grid wins, prep statistics show

By the Associated Press

A football team usually needs a good quarterback to win, but a great quarterback is no guarantee of victory.

The state's three top high school passers, in statistics released Tuesday by The Associated Press, all played for teams that did not make the playoffs.

The state's top rusher and scorer also will sit out the playoffs.

Passing leader Tom Grove of Riverside-Brookfield, who produced 2,024 yards and 23 touchdowns, will miss the playoffs, as will No. 2 Tom Dickman of Glenbard South and No. 3 Jeff Prusator of Tiskilwa.

Dickman threw for 2,004 yards and 19 touchdowns, while Prusator produced 1,909 yards and 14 scores.

The top quarterback going into Wednesday's first round is West Aurora's Tom Voris, who threw for 1,833 yards and 23 touchdowns.

Julian disqualified from state playoffs

CHICAGO (AP) — For the second year in a row, Julian High School has been barred from the state high school football playoffs.

The Jaguars, who won the Public League-South championship, were disqualified this year on allegations that they had used an ineligible player.

He'll be matched against East St. Louis' Ron Cameron, who threw for 900 yards and seven touchdowns.

Although his numbers don't place him among the state leaders, the 6-foot-1, 180-pound Cameron is being courted by Arkansas, Michigan, Iowa and Nebraska.

Jeff Corwell of Sterling Newman, who led the state in scoring with 172 points, also will miss the playoffs, as will state rushing leader Jamie Craven of Oakland, who piled up 1,338 yards.

Corwell registered 25 touchdowns and 22 conversions for 172 points to win the scoring title by 16 points over Craven, who scored 26 touchdowns.

Doug Sharp of playoff-bound Morris was third in scoring with 134 points, on 22 touchdowns and two extra points.

Craven piled up 1,338 yards on 186 carries for the rushing lead. Adam Tiemann of Prophetstown was second with 1,316 yards on 204 carries. Brent Tedford of Mount Carmel was third with 1,300 yards on 182 carries. Prophetstown and Mount Carmel are both going to the playoffs.

Other top rushers participating in the playoffs are Sharp, with 1,168 yards and Matt Gillen of Monmouth-Yorkwood, who had 1,124 yards and 21 touchdowns.

They were replaced by runnerup Simeon, which has moved into the Class 5A tournament against Joliet Catholic.

Last year, the Illinois High School Athletic Association ruled against Julian and three other Public League schools for conducting spring practices.

Price makes progress in quest to develop into top all-rounder

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

Three years ago, Brendan Price led MacArthur High School in San Antonio to the Texas state gymnastics title, winning three events and finishing second in the all-around. Now Price is competing in the all-around at the collegiate level for the first time, and the SIU-C junior is determined to become a strong all-rounder for the Salukis.

Last weekend, in his first all-around competition as a Saluki, Price scored high in his first five events at the Big Eight Invitational Tournament in Lincoln, Neb., but struggled on his final event, the rings. Despite a low score on the rings, Price finished with a strong score of 53.75, tops for SIU-C and placed fourth in the all-around in the seven-team tournament.

"Brendan has made tremendous progress. He's really into the all-around, and he wants to do well," Bill Meade, SIU-C men's gymnastics coach, said.

Price's strongest events are the vault, the floor exercise and the parallel bars. Price was the top-rated vaulter in the Midwest last year when he averaged better than 9.70 points per meet. He was ranked fourth in the region on the parallel bars with an average of 9.54 points, and ranked 11th in the floor exercise with a 9.57 average a year ago.

He placed third in the vault with a score of 9.55, and third on the parallel bars with a 9.45 score last weekend at the Big Eight Invite, helping the Salukis to a second place finish. He also registered a score of 9.35 on the floor exercise, and an 8.65 score on the pommel horse, one of the events he hadn't competed in regularly during his first two years at SIU-C.

"I'm really pleased with his pommel horse at Lincoln," Meade said. "He can be a 55.00 all-rounder at the end of the year. That's a realistic level for him."

Price credits his success in gymnastics to high school gymnastics coach Greg Goodhuh. Goodhuh was a national champion in vaulting, which is also Price's strong event, for the University of Oklahoma, and coached both Price and fellow Saluki gymnast Mark Ulmer at MacArthur.

"He was my only coach before I came here, and he had a big influence on me," Price said.

The highlight of Price's career at SIU-C came in his freshman year at a dual meet against Penn State University. Price scored a Saluki-record 9.90 on the vault, a record that still stands today.

"It was a great accomplishment," Price said. "It's not easy to break records at this school."

Price said he considered attending several schools after he finished his All-American career at MacArthur. He was offered scholarships from top schools like Oklahoma, Ohio State, Brigham Young, Louisiana State and Houston Baptist. Price said he chose SIU-C because of Meade and the Saluki gymnasts he met while visiting the campus.

Price said his favorite event is the parallel bars. He won the state title in that event at MacArthur, but didn't compete regularly in the event for the Salukis his freshman year. Last year, he worked hard at the parallel bars and developed into one of the finest in the Midwest.

"Coach Meade made me a p-bar man, and it started clicking my sophomore year," Price said.

As far as individual goals go, Price wants to improve on the rings and the pommel horse and wants to help the team more by becoming a stronger all-rounder. Price said a team goal is to finish in the top five at the NCAA Championships this year.

"Brendan can be one of the best in the country in a few events, and we can look forward to him being one of our best all-arounders soon," Bob Lombardo, an assistant coach, said.

Three teams win intramural tennis titles

Three divisions of the tennis mixed doubles tournament sponsored by the intramural sports program at SIU-C have been crowned winners.

In the open division, the team of Mark Morton and Ruth Jorgenson defeated the team of Lori Hutchinson and Rick Stone to claim the title, while Lori Swanson and Marty Bahamonde defeated off Stuart Bentley and Ellen Glynn in the finals of the novice division.

The intermediate championship went to the team of Cliff York and Lynn Borgerson after they defeated the team of Scott Carroll and Michelle Riggs in the title match.

Middle attacker Pat Nicholson, center, has improved her play over the last two seasons.

Nicholson's hard work pays dividends on volleyball court

By Duane Crays
Sports Editor

She's there every afternoon in Davies Gymnasium, practicing with her teammates. Suddenly, she takes a set from Lisa Cummins and sends the ball crashing down on the other side of the net — a play she has aimed at her opponents all season.

It has taken sophomore Pat Nicholson some time to get used to Coach Debbie Hunter's style of volleyball, but she's comfortable now and the opposition is finding out about it the hard way.

"She has really made the commitment to making volleyball an endeavor in her life," Hunter said. "Of all the players we have had here, she is one of the most physically strong. She has everything going for her right now."

NICHOLSON WAS voted Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference Player of the Week Monday for her performance last week, when she led the Salukis to wins over Missouri and GCAC foes Bradley and Western Illinois. In those three matches, she had a .393 attack percentage, 10 solo blocks and 16 block assists — all team highs during the week. She also had four service aces and 27 digs and she set a GCAC record when she had eight solo blocks against Bradley, breaking the old mark of seven set by Maureen Quinnett of Western Illinois.

While Nicholson is happy she was honored, she said she hasn't been doing anything different since she became a starter last season.

"Earlier, I felt like I wasn't getting any recognition because I was a sophomore," she said. "I feel I have worked hard all along. We wouldn't have gotten where we are if I wasn't making a contribution. I'm happy to win Conference Player of the Week. I've worked hard since I have been here, but now it's not such a big deal."

Hunter said Nicholson has put a lot of effort into becoming a strong volleyball player.

"With Pat, there is not a wasted moment in practice," Hunter said. "She is intense throughout, whether it is in practice or at a match."

Hunter said Nicholson has the physical tools to become the dominating player in the GCAC.

"Pat has a gifted explosiveness in her legs that reduces the effect of the first line of defense," she said. "She has such an outstanding jump, that it makes the front row of blockers ineffective. She just hits over them. It makes it harder on the backcourt, then, because they have to guess where she is going to hit the ball."

Hunter said Nicholson has improved in other areas of play as well.

"She had increased her court awareness," Hunter said. "and she plays her area of the court well."

"Pat is getting close to becoming a dominating player," Hunter said. "She is working to become a more effective hitter and is by far the most devoted player. In a little more time Pat will be the best."

NICHOLSON CAME to SIU-C in 1983 after being a two-sport star at Waukegan East High School. She said she originally was going to play basketball, but decided to play volleyball during her senior year.

"During my senior year, volleyball became more interesting and fun to me," Nicholson said. "It was a problem for me to decide at first, but my volleyball coach said I would gain more recognition playing volleyball at SIU."

After arriving at Carbondale, however, Nicholson found volleyball at the collegiate level was more involved than at the high school level.

"When I was in high school, I was considered to be a good blocker," she said. "But one of the first things I had to learn when I got here was how to penetrate on defense. I never even heard of that!"

Nicholson's hard work over the last two years has paid dividends for her, she said.

"I want to make all-conference," she said, "and before the season started, I wanted to make a block ace a game. I have accomplished that."

"For the team, I like us to win the conference championship this year. I want that. I know we can do it. I want to see us be right this year."

Nicholson said she hasn't decided what she will major in, but she said she is interested in social work.

"When my four years of volleyball are up, I would like to stay in school and get my degree," she said. "I really don't think I will keep playing volleyball. I think I should experience different things in life. If I could, I would do both."

Illini hope to gain first road victory

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Illinois has just one chance left to snap its 1984 road jinx, and Coach Mike White wants to use it to help set the tone for "good things next year."

"It's very important that we win this game on the road," said White, whose Illini have lost all their games outside Memorial Stadium this season. "We want to finish strong; we didn't finish strong a year ago."

Illinois, 6-4, goes to the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis on Saturday to wrap up the season against Indiana, 0-9.

White and Indiana Coach Bill

Mallory discussed the game during a news conference Tuesday.

"We're trying to win; trying to develop this ball club," said Mallory, the third Hoosier coach in three years.

He said he would not "blow smoke" and brag about any aspect of his team because, "when you're 0-9, it's hard to determine anything that is very strong."

But, Mallory did credit his players, who he said "hung in there well with a good attitude" despite the coaching changes and losses.

White said he is glad Illinois played so well, both offensively and defensively, in Saturday's 48-3 rout of Minnesota.

"We're looking forward to our Indiana game to continue that trend," White said.

It will be the first time each team has played in the new indoor stadium in Indianapolis. Mallory said a lot of people in Bloomington, Ind., would "rather be right here at home."

Indiana will not practice in the Hoosier Dome, but White said he will take the Illini into the stadium for a Saturday practice session.

Wilson says Bears' sack attack to continue

LAKE FOREST (AP) — Linebacker Otis Wilson shrugged when it was suggested the Chicago Bears' charge of the sack brigade could fall off now that quarterback Jim McMahon is out of action for at least a month.

"We'll get the sacks as long as they let us go," Wilson said. He has had five of the Bears' 47 sacks, a figure that is tops in the National Football League.

The Bears have been able to tee off on opposing quarterbacks partly because the offense has staked the defense to two touchdown leads in each of the last two games in which they have totaled 20 sacks.

McMahon has been a main reason for the leads in the triumphs over Minnesota 16-7 and the Los Angeles Raiders 17-6.

But McMahon suffered a lacerated kidney near the end of the first half Sunday against the Raiders and will be out of action for at least four weeks.

"We'll just have to tighten up and go a little harder," Wilson said about the Bears' No. 1 defense. "We want to stay No. 1 as long as we can."

The Bears will go against the Los Angeles Rams this Sunday with Steve Fuller starting at quarterback in place of McMahon.

"Steve is a professional, he'll do the job," promised Wilson, the Bears' No. 1 draft choice in 1980 who didn't get the hang of defensive coach Buddy Ryan's system until last season when he became a fulltime starter.

How will the Bears handle Ram running star Eric Dickerson, who took the National Football League rushing lead from Bear Walter Payton when he gained 207 yards against St. Louis?

"Eric is an excellent back," Wilson said, "but we'll use the same approach we did against Marcus Allen. We'll throw a lot of things at him, we'll force the issue."

The Bears held Allen to 42 rushing yards Sunday.

"Anytime the offense gives you the lead, it allows the defense to do a lot of things," Wilson said.

Although recent rules changes in the NFL have been put in to prevent defenses from dominating, Wilson said "We're trying to start a new trend. Buddy Ryan has a heckuva system and I don't think anybody has figured it out yet."

Wilson openly admits his personal goal and ambition is to make the NFL All-Pro team.

"If you look at my playing stats and the level I'm playing, I'd be the one to pick," Wilson said. "But there are six games to play and I have to keep getting better and better."

Wilson, a 6-2, 230-pound New Yorker who played his college ball at Louisville, has had 35 tackles and five sacks this season.

"He's one of the better linebackers in the league," Ryan said. "He was a rookie for a long time, he didn't know what he was supposed to do."

Wilson went through a divorce last season and although he played well on the field, the Bears still drafted linebackers Wilber Marshall and Ron Rivera in the first two rounds.

Wilson was expected to be traded but nothing materialized.

"The thing about Otis is last year he had personal problems," middle linebacker Mike Singletary said. "Anytime you have personal problems and try to play football, you're going to be a long year."

But now Wilson's time has come.

"I've enjoyed this year," he said. "I want to be part of what's going on."

Chiefs latest victim of Seattle defense

SEATTLE (AP) — Chuck Knox of the Seattle Seahawks may be one of the top coaches in the National Football League but he has a poor memory.

A day after his Seahawks blasted the Kansas City Chiefs 45-0 for their second straight shutout, Knox was asked if he'd ever had consecutive shutouts as a coach before.

"That's a defensive feat that would be hard to forget, right? But Knox said he couldn't answer the question with certainty.

"I would guess no," he said. His guess was correct. His Los Angeles Rams, from 1973-1977, and his Buffalo Bills, from 1978-1982, had much defensive success but never were able to put together consecutive shutouts.

Seattle showcased its defense at San Diego Oct. 29, stopping the Chargers 24-0 in a game in which it had six sacks. Then Sunday, against Kansas City, the Seahawks put together an NFL-record smashing defensive performance, running back four interceptions for touchdowns and intercepting a club-record six passes.

Cornerback Dave Brown scored touchdowns on returns of 95 and 58 yards, cornerback Keith Simpson ran an interception back 76 yards for a score, and strong safety Ken Easley scored on a 58-yard interception return.

The sparkling performance gave the Seahawks an 8-2 record and left them one game behind the first-place Denver Broncos in the American Conference West.

The Seahawks weren't faring well until Knox arrived with his trusty band of assistants, including defensive coordinator Tom Catlin, from Buffalo last season.

With running back Curt Warner, Seattle's first-round draft choice in 1983, leading the way, the Seahawks made the playoffs for the first time.

Miller said he began to master soccer-style kicking in high school by working with teammate Terry Dobbs, another soccer-style kicker who now plays for Missouri Southern State College.

I've had the distance every time, but I've missed four; that have gone either wide left or right. It would be up to the scouts, but I think it's something I can do."

Detroit's Hernandez receives AL MVP honor

NEW YORK (AP) — Relief ace Willie Hernandez of the world champion Detroit Tigers was named the Most Valuable Player in the American League Tuesday, his second major postseason award.

Hernandez, who saved 32 games in 33 opportunities and posted a 9-3 record with a 1.92 earned run average, won the AL Cy Young Award last week.

He became the fourth American League pitcher to win both awards. Rollie Fingers of Milwaukee did it in 1981, Oakland's Vida Blue won both in 1971, and Denny McLain of Detroit, the last Tiger MVP, swept the awards in 1968.

Three National League pitchers — Bob Gibson of St. Louis in 1968, Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles in 1963 and Don Newcombe of the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956 — have won both the Cy Young and MVP awards.

Hernandez received 16 of the 28 first-place votes and totaled 306 points in outdistancing Minnesota first baseman Kent Hrbek, who had five first-place votes and 247 points. Hrbek batted .311 with 27 home runs and 107 runs batted in, leading the Twins into surprising pennant contention last season.

Dan Quisenberry, bullpen star for the Kansas City Royals, finished third with five first-place votes and 235 points. Quisenberry had a 6-3 record and 44 saves, one short of his major league record.

Baltimore first baseman Eddie Murray finished fourth in the balloting, receiving the other two first-place votes and 197 points.

Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees, the AL batting champion, finished fifth with 113 points, followed by Detroit's Kirk Gibson with 96, Tony Armas of Boston with 87.5 and the Yankees' Dave Winfield with 83.

Detroit's Alan Trammell, the World Series MVP, was ninth with 76.5 and Willie Wilson of Kansas City had 61, completing the top 10.

Baltimore's Cal Ripken Jr., last year's AL MVP with 322 points, received just one 10th-place vote for a single point in this year's election.

Hernandez, a veteran left-hander who had managed just 27 saves in seven previous major league seasons, was acquired by Detroit in a four-player spring trade and quickly became the ace of the Tiger bullpen.

Perfect streak continues for 'Mr. Automatic'

By Mike Frey
Staff Writer

Mr. Automatic may be a rather audacious nickname for any person, but there is really no other way to describe Saluki kicker Ron Miller.

Miller, a sophomore, has developed into one of the top kickers in collegiate football since coming to SIU-C from Belleville West High School in 1983. Miller has never missed an extra point attempt as a Saluki, kicking 71 consecutive extra points over two seasons, a Missouri Valley Conference record. Including playoff games, he has clicked on 80 straight point after touchdown attempts.

Miller also has been highly successful on field goal attempts. He has made 29 of 37 field goal tries at SIU-C, including a career-long kick of 46 yards.

A more accurate indication of Miller's leg strength came last Saturday, when he connected on a 45-yard field goal while kicking into a 22-mile an hour wind.

Miller credited concentration, confidence and help from his teammates as factors that have contributed to his uncanny success.

"IT'S SOMETHING I've done many times, but you have to concentrate. It's something you can't take lightly," Miller said of his extra point string. "I have been helped by Darren (Dixon) who's always given me a good hold off the snap. Tom Baugh has always given me a good snap, and he and the rest of the line have done a great job of blocking.

"You gain confidence after doing it time after time. It's like brushing teeth. You get used to doing it after awhile."

Miller said he has made field goal attempts from 60 yards out on occasions during practice, when he has had the wind at his back. Under normal conditions, he said he considered his maximum range to be 52 to 55 yards.

"On a real windy day, you have an advantage of about plus 20 yards kicking with the wind, and you lose almost 20 yards kicking against the wind," he said. "Before the Drake game, I was warming up with the wind at my back and hit a field goal from 60 yards."

Miller came to SIU-C primarily to pursue a degree in architectural technology, although he had decided to try out for the football team as a walk-on. The Salukis kicking game was considered to be a question mark heading into the 1983 campaign, but Miller quickly dispelled any doubts by producing immediately.

Miller gives credit to former Saluki coach Rey Dempsey for improving his mental approach toward kicking.

"KICKING IS such a solo position, because people are always looking at you," he said. "Coach Dempsey helped me mentally by giving me a good attitude toward kicking. You definitely have to have a good attitude, because it's a demanding position."

Miller is a soccer-style kicker, a form he developed while playing Little League football in Belleville. He said he had

Huskies keep No. 1 spot in AP poll

By The Associated Press

Jeff Ward's two late field goals last Saturday kept the University of Texas unbeaten — but didn't keep the Longhorns from being kicked out of second place in The Associated Press college football poll.

Texas, which slipped past Texas Tech 13-10, improving its record to 6-0-1, slipped to third in this week's rankings, receiving one first-place vote and 1,032 points, 30 fewer than runner-up Nebraska, in the balloting announced Tuesday. The Cornhuskers, 8-1 following a 44-0 rout of Iowa State, received four first-place votes.

Washington, which meets the University of Southern California

Saturday with a berth in the Rose Bowl at stake, remained No. 1 — the first team this season to do so for four weeks in a row. The Huskies, 9-0 after a 44-14 battering of California, received 50 of 58 first-place votes and 1,147 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Brigham Young, receiving the remaining three first-place votes and 1,008 points, retained its fourth-place position. South Carolina, Miami (Fla.), Oklahoma State and Georgia likewise were unchanged, in the fourth-through-eighth berths. South Carolina received 921 points, Miami 832, Oklahoma State 781 and Georgia 719.

Oklahoma, bouncing back from its first loss of the year with a 49-7 pounding of Missouri, moved up one notch to ninth with 686 points. Boston College, ninth a week ago, tumbled to 16th after a 37-30 loss to Penn State. Florida, 13th last week, rounded out the Top Ten this week with 665 points.

The Second Ten consisted of Florida State, LSU, Ohio State, Southern Cal, Texas Christian, Boston College, Southern Methodist, Iowa, West Virginia and Auburn, which was No. 1 in the preseason poll.

Last week, it was Auburn, West Virginia, Florida, Florida State, LSU, Ohio State, Iowa, Southern Cal, SMU and TCU. There are no new teams in this week's Top Twenty.
