again?

Something to ponder

SIU head football coach Dick Towers has much to ponder today as he awaits tonight's game with Tulsa University. The Salukis beat Tulsa last year for one of the major upsets of the year, so the Golden Hurricanes are expected to be in a revengeful mood.

Saluki grid team to battle Hurricanes in Tulsa tonight

By Dave Palermo

"For about three hours, beginning tonight at 7:30, SIU Coach Dick Towers may be wishing his Salukis hadn't humiliated the University of Tulsa last season, 16-13.

The game was the greatest upset in SIU's rather undistinguished football history and will be a tough act to follow. However, Towers' gridders will square off tonight with the Golden Hurricanes in Tulsa at Skelly Stadium before 40,000 revenge-bent Oklahomans.

Last season it was nice beating the No. 1 team in the country in total offense, passing, scoring and defense. And the fact that Tulsa was undefeated going into the game and favored by as many as 50 points made the upset even sweeter. Plus, to top it all off, it was SIU's Homecoming Game and 15,000 fans and alumni were on hand to view the spectacle.

All the details of that fateful day are stored comfortably away in the memory-chambers of the big Tulsa linemen and every hit they make will probably sting that much more.

"Tulsa will be ready," said Towers at a recent press conference. "This is the first home game to be played in their new stadium and they will definitely want to chalk up a win."

"They have a big interior line and it will be difficult for us to run inside," Towers continued, "We'll have to minimize mistakes, throw the ball a little more and cut down on the interceptions."

While Towers' game plan was easily summarized in one short sentence, the young menter knows it will be a tall order.

Southern's backfield is primarily unproven and Roger Kuba, who pulled ligaments in his knee recently, will be sorely missed when the time comes to plow through the six-man front line of Tulsa.

Running back John Quillen, who was the leading ground gainer in the home opener against the University of Louisville with 50 yards will be the only back with plus yardage from the line

Parking decals selling faster than last year

After only four days of sales, 3,812 parking decals were sold by early Friday, Thomas Leffler, security officer, said.

Sales have been fast and steady, Leffler said, and the Parking Section Office will continue to extend its hours from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. to meet the sales demand. The office will be open from 8:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. today.

The final date for automobile registration has not been announced, but strict enforcement of parking on lots for vehicles with blue decals will begin today, Leffler said.

A total of 1,218 blue decals were sold at last count Friday. The count was 1,332 for red decals, 1,080 silver decals and 124 work decals. A total of 68 motorcycle decals were counted.

Last year a total of 9,136 decals were sold by the end of fall quarter. Leffler said this year marks the fastest sales for a four-day period.

SIU enrolls 31,000 total

SIU enrollment is estimated at about 31,000 this term, according to information issued by the reports division of the Registrar's Office. An official total has not been released.

The estimate for the Carbondale campus is 21,000 students and 10,000 at the Edwardsville campus.

This exceeds last year's 27,788 total fall enrollment by about 3,000. The Carbondale campus enrollment last fall was 19,260.

Crime report called myth

An investigator for the Illinois Liquor Control Commission said Friday that reported infiltration of the crime syndicate into the liquor business in Carbondale is a myth. The investigator also said that no concrete evidence has been found linking any local liquor dealers with the alleged bribe attempts of Mayor David Keene.

Letter

Beatty defends tests

To the Editor:

A letter from Mr. David Miles, printed in last Friday's Egyptian, is of interest to some of us in the Zoology Department who have been trying to deal with the problems Mr. Miles mentions (and several others he has omitted). During the 1967-68 academic year, a committee of five members, three of the zoology faculty, a graduate student in zoology, and a senior major in zoology, held weekly meetings to discuss methods of increasing the effectiveness of teaching in the Zoology Department. These meetings spanned almost three full quarters, during part of which time the other members of the Zoology faculty and a number of the graduate students were interviewed by the committee. As a member of this committee, the work of which is continuing this year, I feel I am in a better position than any but a few other people on the campus to comment on Mr. Miles' statements.

First, the complaints by students that a large percentage of test and course grades in "a couple of General Studies science courses" were low. One or more General Studies Biology courses are evidently included in this couple of courses. Several points must be considered in evaluating these complaints: a) In the course on which I have rather complete information, many of the grades on one test were low, the final course grades were not unusually low. b) A large percentage of the students enrolled in summer school, in this or any university, are from the lower ranks in grade average, therefore fewer high grades are to be expected than during the regular academic year. A common result of testing in summer courses is a bimodal grade curve, skewed toward the lower grade levels.

c) Each year 5-8% of the entering students who would otherwise take the GSA 201 or 210 series are permitted to by-pass these courses because they have passed proficiency examinations or scored 80 or better on ACT science tests. Probably a majority of this student group would receive A's and most of the rest B's in GSA 201 or 210. Thus we should expect to subtract from the number of A's given (usually around 10% of the class) a number equal to about 5-6% of the students eligible for the course. On the average we would then give 4-5% A's. Because of the fluctuation in quality of students (and instructors) from quarter to quarter, some classes would earn more, others fewer than 4-5%. (I should point out that we do not make any such deduction from the number of A's given.)

d) Despite many students' opinions, the purpose of a "difficult" test is not simply to yield grades, and not at all to frustrate students. An examination is a teaching device as well as an estimator of the students' knowledge, a fact which few students seem to understand. As such it should go somewhat beyond the level that most of the class can already handle fairly well. Students who look no further than the grade when an examination is returned to them are failing to make adequate use of the test. By showing that they are concerned with the grade, to the exclusion of the subject matter of the examination, these students are also producing frustration, and perhaps ultimately boredom, in the instructor. This is not likely to lead to improved teaching, or even to maintenance of the original standard. (Note that the objection made here is not a blanket condemnation of a student's natural wish to get the best grade he can.)

It is my opinion, based on the facts and ideas presented above, that the complaints directed against the General Studies Biology course in question were largely unjustified. Justified or not, the number of complaints and the severity of the grading seem to have been greatly amplified by campus rumor.

Further points in Mr. Miles' letter include "an instructor's" opinion that science courses are more difficult than others, and Mr. Miles' statement of the "common tendency to judge the significance of a course by its difficulty." These points are used as a lead-in to a series of satirical suggestions on how to make a course more difficult (hence more significant) by making it, in effect, impossible.

These four paragraphs of suggestions by Mr. Miles merit attention from instructors for they represent a considerable list of things that should not be done. All of them, and many other blunders that Mr. Miles has neglected to list (assuming they occurred to him) have been discussed by the above-mentioned committee of the Zoology Department. A report on the committee's conclusions will be distributed to all faculty members of the department within the next few weeks.

The continuing work of the committee at present includes seeking methods of obtaining valid measures of the department's past and present teaching effectiveness, and ways to increase this effectiveness wherever possible. The judgment of former undergraduate and graduate students will be sought, probably by mailing questionnaires. The members of the committee, indeed the entire departmental staff, wish also to hear suggestions from the current student body and members of the University community. The lines of communication, which students seemingly like to believe do not exist, are and have been open, but they are not often used by the parties at the other end for anything but trivia. Neither we nor any department can assay or relieve student dissatisfactions of whose existence and causes we know nothing.

An editor's viewpoint

'Confused' support Wallace campaign

By Jenkin Loyd Jones

The Wallace thing doesn't seem to be blowing over. It is getting too much help from confused "liberals" who are polling up a dry wash under the impression they are still in the "mainstream."

Normally, these third-party efforts peak about the first of September. After that, most voters tend to swing back to the two major-party candidates. But the Wallace disaffection seems to keep growing.

He won't win, of course. But we could come up with a three-way split of electoral votes and the biggest mess since Hayes-Tilden.

The trouble is that too many "liberals," without intending to in the least, keep pouring gasoline on the Wallace fire.

Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who is supposed to be the nation's chief watchdog over the letter of the law, keeps bleating that peace in the streets may have to await the achievement of a much higher degree of social justice. In the past, we've had peace in the streets and a lot worse social justice. Not many Americans are going to be willing to put up with a jungle society until a social condition satisfactory to Stokely Carmichael and Rap Brown is arrived at.

The fact that John Lindsay, the nominal Republican mayor of New York City, has failed to back his sniped-at police force has sent a large block of overwhelmingly Democratic votes straight into the Wallace camp.

The drive to destroy the neighborhood schools by busing children back and forth in order to achieve a "representative racial" mix seems to be gaining strength in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, in spite of the fact that this is no more popular in Brooklyn than in Mississippi.

The poverty program is in shambles, with agencies piled on agencies. The practice of hiring gang leaders with long criminal records at good government salaries on the theory that "they understand the ghetto" has charmed few citizens. Nor have the results been happy.

Attempts at reverse-racism, such as the order by the Federal Communications Commission that radio and TV stations must go out and recruit Negroes even though they may have qualified white youngsters waiting hopefully in their anterooms, have created a predictable backlash. The recent practice of loading post office payrolls with hitherto-unemployables has done nothing for the morale of men who have spent their lives in the postal service.

All these things have added strength to George Wallace. And this is sad. Because the former Alabama governor represents a reaction, even though his public pronouncements have been careful on this point. He represents a reaction that could carry us away from the original ideal of the civil rights battle, namely, that a man should be judged not on the color of his skin, but on what he can do or what he is willing to prepare himself to do.

The ultra-liberals, who have been attempting to remake American society by the broad exercise of executive and judicial power, should have foreseen this reaction. If they had been interviewing cab drivers, waitresses, country storekeepers and machinists, they would have had the word long ago. But they apparently interviewed each other.

Many of them drove to their offices from their suburban homes after dropping their children at the private schools, confident that they knew what was good for the common people, and that the common people would respond gratefully. They have displayed the snobbish arrogance of a cultured coterie that can successfully claim the best intentions.

The astonished and outraged "liberal" press has been denigrating George Wallace as a demagog. So he is. But what makes him an effective demagog is that, in spite of his glib oversimplifications, there is some truth in what he says.

George Wallace will run third in the popular vote. But unless hapless Hubert gets organized in a hurry Wallace could run second in the electoral vote. We are in danger of a constitutional crisis at a time when tempers at home are high and our enemies abroad are on the prowl.

Ice show called family fare

By Dean Rebuffoni

If you liked vaudeville, you'll love Holiday on Ice.

Yes, the famed ice show is a colorful, exciting, interesting and well-worth-the-price-of-admission production. And you'll agree, if you're middle-aged and prone to laugh at slapstick.

Holiday on Ice, which opened Thursday night and will continue through Sunday in the Arena, is a two and one-half hour extravaganza—but it isn't the 1960's-type college entertainment. Somehow, it seems better suited to the tastes of mom, dad and the kids.

Not to say that the opening night spectators didn't enjoy the show: they did, but—the majority of the 4,000-plus audience was comprised of Carbondale residents and their families. For a younger college audience the show might come on as a bit "aged." It isn't, by any stretch of the imagination, an acid-rock performance—and that is the sort of show better appreciated at SIU. A performance by, say, Janis Joplin and Big Brother and the Holding Company would gain a more enthusiastic reception by SIU students.

Still, all those leaping spins and colorful costumes and pretty girls make Holiday on Ice the famed show that it is. The intricate choreography, the wild, showboating performances, and that Big Band sound make the show a pleasant way to spend the evening.

The show will be performed at 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. today and at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday.

And be sure to take your mother to the show—she'll love it.

Crime syndicate infiltration only a myth, investigator says

By John Durbin

An investigator for the Illinois Liquor Control Commission said Friday that reports of any infiltration of a crime syndicate into Carbondale are only "myths." Peter Kotsos, head of the commission's enforcement division, said in a telephone conversation from Chicago, that "there is nothing to the reports that syndicate men were seen in Carbondale."

Kotsos said a report that two local business men had seen syndicate men in Carbondale was only a myth. He said they could find no concrete evidence to support such a report.

Kotsos and Harry Croon, special agent for the commission, came to Carbondale Sept. 29 to investigate possible violations of the State Liquor Control Act and any connection they might have with alleged bribe attempts to Mayor David Keene.

The two investigators left town Oct. 1 after discovering no violations of the State Liquor Control Act, Kotsos said. "We did not discover any concrete evidence that any liquor dealers had any connection with the alleged bribery attempts," Kotsos said.

Kotsos said he and Croon checked all of the city's Liquor licenses, talked with the mayor and city attorney, a number of liquor license dealers and all of the leading law enforcement agencies in the area.

"We talked with Captain Claude Kirk of the SIU Security Police and had a two-hour chat with States Attorney Richard Richman," Kotsos said.

"Richman appeared to be a very intelligent man and we will be looking for the outcome of the grand jury investigation," Kotsos said.

Kotsos made it clear that the commission's part of the investigation is not complete. "We will continue to investigate any reports as they come up," Kotsos said.

The investigators have no immediate plans to return to Carbondale, Kotsos said. "We still have not had a formal meeting with Mr. Cartwright (director of the liquor commission) where we will decide what to do next," he said.

Concerning the investigation which lasted about two days, Kotsos said, "We tried to do as much as we could in the time provided. We checked out every lead given us."

Kotsos explained that, in addition to checking possible violations in connection with the alleged bribery attempts, "We also checked out the sale of liquor to minors." He said they did not find any violations.

The former FBI man said he and Croon offered suggestions to Keene and City Attorney George Fleerlage on how to strengthen the city's present liquor license application.

"I think the application needs a little more revision and we offered some suggestions," Kotsos said. "I think they took our advice."

Mayor David Keene said he did not wish to comment on the investigation reports. Fleerlage was out of town and unavailable for comment.

Playtex invents the first-day tampon

(We took the inside out to show you how different it is.)

Outside: it's softer and silky (not cardboardy). Inside: it's so extra absorbent... it even protects on your first day. Your worst day!

In every lab test against the old cardboardy kind... the Playtex tampon was always more absorbent. Actually 45% more absorbent on the average than the leading regular tampon.

Because it's different. Actually adjusts to you. It flowers out. Fluffs out. Designed to protect every inside inch of you. So the chance of a mishap is almost zero!

Try it fast. Why live in the past?

Flu bug will bite 4,500 here; shots available for students

By Debbie Richman

"This is the year of the flu," says Mrs. Edna Bradley, assistant to the director of the SIU Health Service.

"The Illinois Medical Association predicted that the "A-2 Hong Kong 68" strain of flu will occur extensively this year. This strain is a recently-discovered variety of flu.

Mrs. Bradley said characteristic changes in the flu or virus mean changes in the variety. She also said that many Americans traveling abroad will bring back many types of viruses.

No vaccine has been released by drug companies for the new strain of flu, but shots that are being given by the Health Service will lessen the chance of a person getting sick.

Mrs. Bradley said the shot will sometimes produce a reaction of the symptoms of flu. These symptoms being

High schoolers plan to attend SIU rally day

Approximately 400 high schoolers today will attend a "rally day" sponsored by the SIU Office of Admissions.

The program is one of a series planned this fall for Illinois high school students who have scored high on the American College Test.

Chancellor Robert MacVicar will address the group at 9 a.m. in Grinnell Hall, social center for the Brush Towers residence area.

Students and parents will be welcomed by Robert A. McGrath, director of admissions, and SIU president Delyte W. Morris at 9:45 a.m. in Shryock Auditorium. Andrew Vaughan, general studies advisor, will address the group.

A student-faculty luncheon is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. in the University Center Ballrooms. William McKeefery, dean of academic affairs, will be the luncheon speaker.

"an all-over achiness, high temperature, and fatigue."

She recommends bed rest, fluids and medication for the aches and pains. If complications arise the patient should be given an antibiotic.

Mrs. Bradley said that approximately 4,500 students probably will get the flu this year, but only a few students have come in for the shots thus far.

Flu shots are free for students who have paid the full activity fee. Faculty, staff members and students who have paid none or part of the activity fee are charged $1 for each shot.

The shots are recommended to people who are "high flu risks." This includes persons over 65 (and in some cases 45), or anyone who has a chronic debilitating illness which makes him susceptible to influenza and likely to suffer from its complications.

Persons with diabetes, lung heart or kidney disorders should be immunized, said Dr. Walter Clark, SIU Health Service director. The flu would put extra strain on the already-present illnesses of these people.

Exchange prof Blacksell describes urban geography as city problems

By Mariann Berry

Mark Blacksell, exchange professor from the University of Exeter, Devon, England, defines his field of urban geography as "the study and identification of problems within the city."

"An urban geographer," says Blacksell, "is interested in the socio-economic structure of the city, its land use, facilities for transportation and dynamic distribution of goods and utilities."

Whereas the city planner tries to alleviate city problems, the urban geographer identifies these problems and their causes.

For his doctoral studies, Blacksell researched the geographic effects of the World War II bombing of West German cities. The Allied air offensives in West Germany, with possibly two exceptions, destroyed over 50 per cent of the buildings in cities with populations of over 100,000.

"Some of the problems faced by the Germans in reconstruction were shortages of capital assets, architects, designers and engineers," Blacksell said.

"The remains of roads and public utility lines hindered the building of completely new and modern cities," he explained, "so that it was often easier to simply rebuild buildings that had been destroyed than to construct a better city where the old one had once stood."

The Ruhr Regional Planning

Association of West Germany has been extremely interested in Blacksell's work. The Association is taking advantage of his thesis to help identify the urban problems facing German cities.

During his stay at SIU, Blacksell is taking over the teaching assignments of SIU geographer John F. Rooney. Rooney, meanwhile, is teaching in Blacksell's place at the University of Exeter.

So far, Blacksell admits being impressed by what he has seen of SIU. However, he, his wife and two children plan to return to England upon completion of his teaching assignment here.

Blacksell became interested in the exchange program through a friend who had participated in the program in 1962. The position was arranged with SIU following correspondence between Blacksell and the university.

Baldwin calls space design new frontier

"Space design is our new frontier just as the New World was to Columbus."

This is the philosophy of James Tennant Baldwin, visiting lecturer for the Department of Design of SIU. Baldwin said he believes America's future space efforts will open up a vast area for expansion in the design field.

Baldwin and two other men developed a light-weight portable structure now being used as a field hospital in Vietnam. However, he said it was still in an experimental stage. The three worked independently to develop the structure which was later purchased by the government.

He was also one of several men who developed the Pop Tent manufactured by the Thermos Corp. The tent opens automatically in one minute. It doesn't leak or blow away. The tent has been on the market for ten years.

As a student at the University of Michigan in 1952, Baldwin studied under R. Buckminster Fuller, now a professor of design at SIU. Fuller suggested Baldwin for the teaching appointment.

SIU physicist finds method for describing light process

An SIU physicist has developed a new mathematical method for describing the interaction of highly concentrated light (laser beams) with atoms.

The method, developed by Walter C. Henneberger, associate professor of physics, was explained in the article, "Perturbation Method for Atoms in Intense Light Beams," which appeared in the Sept. 16 issue of Physical Review Letters.

Henneberger's method was made desirable by the development of a process to produce focused laser beams with intensities greater than 100 billion watts per square centimeter.

Henneberger has worked on the interactions of light with atoms for some time and has written several articles on the subject.

Panayotovich attending Governor's conference

Student Body President Sam Panayotovich is representing SIU today in Springfield at a meeting of student leaders called by Illinois Governor Samuel H. Shapiro.

Panayotovich, who was invited to attend the meeting with representatives from other Illinois colleges and universities, said he has no idea what will be discussed but plans to "play it by ear."

The meeting begins at 11 a.m. with a luncheon to follow.

In the invitation, Shapiro described the session as a discussion of the state's future and asked the student leaders to be prepared to exchange ideas.

Panayotovich will drive to Springfield and stay for the entire session.

One representative from each major college and university in the state will attend.

State Senator Paul Simon signals reduction of legal voting age to 18

By Norris Jones

The voting age should be lowered to 18, State Sen. Paul Simon of Troy said during a "teach-in" at the University Center Thursday night.

An 18 year old today is as well equipped to vote as a person of 21 was when the State Constitution was written in 1870, the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant governor said. These people, if allowed to vote, would bring with them an idealism and vision which the two political parties need, he said.

In response to a question on student dissent, Simon said he believes in freedom of speech. The University is a place where one should find a multiple of ideas, both good and bad, he said. Then the student can make valuable judgments on a variety of subjects.

Speaking about the violence in Chicago, Simon said that having adequate security at the Democratic convention was essential. Most of the demonstrators and police conducted themselves in an orderly manner, he said, but a small minority on each side did not.

The police were at fault because they did not allow the young people to meet or walk together. This was both a practical and a theoretical mistake, Simon said. People have the right to meet and discuss, he added.

While at the convention, he supported the minority plank on Vietnam but voted for Humphrey instead of a peace candidate. Simon said, "The number one problem in America is the urban crises which I feel, Humphrey is better equipped to handle."

Speaking to an audience of 80 students and adults, Simon pledged to spend at least two days of each week traveling about the state as a complaint officer, solving area problems by helping to cut red tape.

One of his goals is to develop the smaller communities by making them more attractive to industry.

Simon referred to the 36 years of experience in state government which both he and Illinois Governor Samuel H. Shapiro have as compared with the opposition's none. "Experience alone is no qualification," Simon said. "But it must be considered, for an inadequate background is unwise."

"No matter which candidate you support," Simon concluded, "get involved in the political process. We need you there. You can contribute immensely."

Eric Kramer says he never would have finished college without Reading Dynamics.

Come to Carbondale's new Reading Dynamics Institute and see why he feels this way.

Whether you're worried about finishing college, or would just like A's instead of B's, Reading Dynamics can make you a more effective student.

How? By improving your basic ability to read.

The average person reads about 250 to 400 words a minute . . . word by word. The way he was taught in grade school.

Eric Kramer of St. Louis University is one of thousands of college students who have decided to stop reading like fourth-graders.

A pre-med student from Plainview, Texas, Eric says "I took the Reading Dynamics course when it became evident that I could not keep up in college, or even hope to achieve the educational goals I had set for myself, unless I learned to read faster and more effectively. Now I read 2,000 to 2,500 words a minute in literature courses, slowing down to around 1,200 for technical books. I wish I could have taken the course in high school."

Jerry Burns, a St. Louis University psychology major from Oaklawn, Illinois, says "Prior to taking the Reading Dynamics course, I found my reading to be tedious and time-consuming. With my reading speed increased, I am able to read more material in different areas and in a shorter time. Also helpful were the methods of teaching Dynamic Reading - i.e., the recall patterns. I remember what I read much longer and I'm able to enjoy my reading much more than ever before. I got eight friends to take the course. I'd recommend it to anyone."

Marge Rumely, a St. Louis University junior from LaPorte, Ind., says, "My greatest improvement came from the use of recall patterns learned at Evelyn Wood. All my grades have gone up. I think it should be stressed that the recall patterns become a real asset in lectures as well as reading. I find it possible to practically quote lectures heard a year ago, after looking at a short recall pattern."

Come to a Reading Dynamics demonstration. See someone just like you read two, three, four-thousand words a minute, with excellent comprehension and recall. . . someone who eight weeks ago did well to read much faster than a fourth-grader.

Come, call or mail the coupon today. You owe it to yourself to improve something as basic as your ability to read.

Hinton still unbeaten

SIU runners to face KSU

SIU's cross country team sporting a 1-1-1 record, continues to grind through its tough fall schedule and will face Kansas State today at Manhattan.

Finishing second in the Big 8 last season, K-State's runners are expected to give Coach Lew Hartzog's squad strong competition.

The meet with the Wildcats will be held over a three-mile course, a distance at which K-State's runners are expected to be most effective.

Gerry Hinton, SIU's stand-out freshman harrier from St. Catharine's, Canada, led the Salukis last Saturday as they tied the University of Indiana for first place honors in a six-team invitational meet at Owensboro, Ky.

Unbeaten as a collegian, Hinton toured the hilly, four-mile course in 20:05.4 which was described by Hartzog as "his best effort of the season."

Hinton's principal opposition is expected to be pro-Manhattan.

Cardinals get chilly greeting

DETROIT (AP) — Topcoat weather and frost warnings greeted the aroused Detroit Tigers and still confident St. Louis Cardinals Friday as they tuned up for Saturday's third World Series game, all even at one victory each.

Earl Wilson, a power threat with 33 career homers to his credit, will pitch for the Tigers against Ray Washburn, a 14-8 performer for the Cardinals.

vided by Don Swensen, a classy junior who turned in a 1:47.4 half-mile effort at the Texas Relays last spring, and freshman harriers Jerome Howe and Bob Barratti.

There will be no changes in Southern's lineup as Hinton will be joined by freshmen Bill Bakensztos and Glenn Blackstone and sophomores John Holm, Glenn Ujijye and Melvin Hohman.

Southern to face big Tulsa

of scrimmage in the SIU backfield. Quarterback Jim McKay sports a minus three yard average and wingback Ed Edelman and Kuba's replacement, Sam Finnocchio, have yet to run with the ball.

Although the chances of establishing a running attack are hurt by a lack of experience, Towers maintains he "doesn't plan to throw any more than necessary."

Tulsa, coached by aerial artist Glenn Dobbs, will field another devastating passing attack with Mike Stripling calling the signals and Harry Wood, a split end, and Vic Prather, the tailback, doing the hauling-in.

Stripling, a pro-type quarterback who can run as well as he can throw the ball. In 1967 he completed 86 passes for 1,271 yards and 14 touchdowns. He also rushed for 194 yards and seven touchdowns.

Tulsa has a relatively inexperienced defensive team which made numerous mistakes in the 56-13 season opening loss to Arkansas last week, but Towers doesn't take the defeat gleefully.

"I never saw a team look so good and get beat so bad," he said. "Arkansas took advantage of every opportunity."

The defensive line, which outweighs SIU's by 26 pounds a man, is ironically the smallest in the school's history. Al Jenkins, who was dropped from the SIU squad two years ago for an incident at a local tavern, transferred to Tulsa and is currently the team's top All-American prospect.

Flag game rules to be discussed

Managers of flag football teams will meet at 4 p.m. Monday in Muckleroy Auditorium.

Rules governing starting time of games, location of fields and other rules of the game will be discussed. Team rosters and a $2 entry fee for each team is due at this time and a team not represented at this meeting will be charged with one loss when the season begins.

Tulsa's secondary is improved somewhat over last season when the inexperienced foursome was considered the spot on the team.

Southern's secondary is composed of Al Tretter and Joe Bunge at the cornerback spots and Quillen and Chuck Glovo at the safety positions. All but Tretter saw action last season.

Carl Mauck, who played his finest collegiate game at linebacker against Tulsa, will be back in action after becoming ill in the Louisville game. His colleague, Jack Rushing, will be out of action this week with a bad shoulder and his replacement will be Ted Ewert.

Dave Krisman and Bill Grainger will be the defensive ends. Charles Canali and Bob Moritz will be the tackles and Dale Dickhut has been moved to the Middle guard position.

The offensive line for Southern will consist of Earl Collins and Doug Hollinger at the ends, Rich Smith and Bob Hudspeth at the tackle positions, Chip Marlow and Dan Shields at guards and Terry Cotham at center.

Dobbs, who held a sweat-suit practice the Monday after the Arkansas game, spent the afternoons this week viewing game films of the Salukis in action.

"The squad has been working diligently all week," said Dobbs. "The field, the stadium and the football team are ready for the Salukis."

That's just what Towers is afraid of.

'Carbondale isn't home!'

Few students believe Carbondale values views of 'Joe College'

By Linda Reiniger

If an informal survey is any indication, SIU students seem uninterested in Carbondale's city government.

Last week Carbondale Mayor David Keene appealed to students to take an active part in the city's government by making suggestions to the City Council.

The majority opinion of about 35 students, stopped at random on campus this week, revealed little interest in the idea. All agreed that this system would probably be ineffective. They said that only a small minority of interested students would actually contact the council, and the council would probably pay little or no attention to "Joe College's" proposal.

Most admitted that they really never thought about Carbondale government because they didn't feel it affected them. One coed said, "I don't consider Carbondale my home; the University is. The University keeps such a hold over students that most of us don't need Carbondale."

All agreed that the University is a dominant influence in the Carbondale community. Although little interest was shown, they said that there should be more communication and a deeper relationship between the two. The government should consider student opinion in matters such as traffic control, voting registration and "the Carbondale cost of living."

Stuart Hirsh, the president of University Park and a junior majoring in forestry, suggested several changes. He would like to see the city government back merchant-student trust, the establishment of more places for student fun and relaxation and the construction of an overpass on U.S. 51 in front of Neely Hall.

Hirsh also said that he thinks the city should investigate the practices of local landlords who rent to students.

Many students agreed that the city has recently been showing a favorable attitude towards students. W. Michael Bohdan, a Skokie, Ill., junior, majoring in zoology, cited the walk through Carbondale with Mayor Keene last spring quarter.

"I talked with him; he was real friendly and acted like one of us," he said.

Dead silence was the most common response to the question: How do you feel students can participate more in city government?

However, there were several ideas. Larry M. Mariotti, a senior from Western Springs, Ill., who is majoring in zoology, suggested that the city seek assistance from the engineering students in solving the traffic problems. Actual field work in the city government could be required for government and political science majors, he added.

"Perhaps students would get involved if local papers were more available to students, such as having free copies at the Information Desk in the University Center," he said.

David M. Bonomo, a junior majoring in government, suggested a possible solution to the problem of strengthening ties between Carbondale government and the students.

"If the voting age is lowered, students will have tremendous impact on politics locally and nationally. You can bet that the city government would make an all-out effort to reach and interest us," he said.

SIU staff to aid

'Model City' plan

SIU graduate students and faculty will help plan Carbondale's "Model City" project for the northeast section of town.

The planning staff will analyze the problems of that neighborhood and then plan a project. $81,000 has been allotted by various agencies of the federal government for us in making the plan. If the plan is approved, the city will be eligible for future federal aid.

The "Model City" project is designed to eliminate the physical as well as the sociological problems of the northeast neighborhood, according to the SIU Office of University Services to Carbondale.

Carbondale is one of 37 cities in the United States participating in the federal program.

The next step in the program is the drawing up and submitting of finance plans to the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Liquor Committee called by Keene; chairman quits

by John Durbin

Carbondale Mayor David Keene said Monday he will call together members of his Liquor Advisory Committee sometime this week to discuss details of the alleged bribery attempts in connection with city liquor licenses.

The chairman of the committee, Charles Murden, submitted his resignation to Keene last week.

Murden said Sunday his resignation had nothing to do with recent allegations by Keene that he had been offered bribes in exchange for his influence in the issuance of liquor licenses.

"I just had more things than I could do, so I had to drop something. It's as simple as that," Murden said.

Murden, real estate man and insurance agent, said he is in the process of buying an insurance agency. He was named to the advisory committee in May, 1967 and took over as chairman Sept. 18, succeeding Ward Morton.

Keene said he would inform the city council of Murden's resignation at its regular meeting Tuesday night.

The mayor said he does not immediately plan to appoint either a new chairman or a new member to the committee. Other committee members are Robert Stalls, director of Office of Economic Opportunity, Donald Darling, Carbondale physician, and David Luck, SIU professor or marketing.

Although the mayor is the liquor commissioner and has the sole authority of issuing liquor licenses, the committee advises him on each license application. Keene also asks the City Council to approve each license applicant.

Darling said he had not been told about a meeting this week with the mayor. But he said he wants to find out from Keene about the alleged bribery attempts, and also why Murden and Ward Morton resigned. Morton, SIU professor of Government, resigned from the committee during the summer.

According to Keene, Morton resigned because of an excess amount of work connected with his teaching position.

Darling said he does not plan to resign from the committee at this time. He said before taking any action he wants to learn all of the details behind Morton and Murden's resignations. Darling said he has not received any bribe offers.

"I have not discussed the situation with Keene at all and the committee has not met for several months," Darling said. "I only know what I have read in the papers."

Referring to the proposed strengthening of the present liquor application, Darling said he thinks it is "a good idea to know all of the owners of a particular license."

Luck said he has no plans to resign from the committee. He said he had received word from Keene about a meeting this week. He also said he has not been offered any bribes.

Concerning the proposed strengthening of the present liquor application, Luck said he feels it is "very desirable." Stalls was unavailable for comment.

MacVicar says parking rules now in effect

Enforcement of parking regulations on campus began Monday morning at 8 a.m., according to SIU Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar.

Earlier a spokesman from the Chancellor's office said Security Police were issuing only warning tickets Monday, but MacVicar termed the action "enforcement."

The police concentrated on clearing blue decal pots of unauthorized vehicles first, the spokesman said, with issuance of courtesy tickets. All blue decals have been sold. (See story, page 8.)

Previously it had been announced that decals were supposed to be displayed on all vehicles beginning Monday.

The issuance of warning notices was interpreted as a temporary measure to give people time to purchase their decals, the spokesman said, and lines were steady all day yesterday at the Parking Section offices.

Thomas Leffler, head of the Security Police, was in Edwardsville and unavailable for comment. Capt. Carl Kirk said he didn't know when ticketing would begin.

Late Monday Chancellor MacVicar said it was his understanding that Security Police had begun enforcing the new regulations at 8 a.m.

It is not known how long Security Police will continue to issue warning tickets.

Faculty power; no!—MacVicar

By Dan Van Atta

The SIU Faculty Council will not, in the immediate future, be granted actual powers in the establishment of University policies, Chancellor Robert MacVicar said Monday night.

In a rather intimate give-and-take session with the SIU Chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), held at the Cisne Theater in the University School, the Chancellor reacted to some of the frustrations voiced by members of the faculty.

"Can you see the Faculty Council having the final judgement on deciding issues?" one professor asked.

"Why does the University have to function within this framework — why can't it change?" asked another. "I sometimes feel the same anxieties I felt as a student."

MacVicar answered these questions by giving what he said was his "honest viewpoint" of the University governmental hierarchy.

"I do not believe you can divorce authority from responsibility," he said. "I feel it is essential that persons in the position of responsibility have the authority to act on dispositions."

Gus says now that he has contributed toward a new administrators' parking lot by purchasing a blue decal, he wonders what the next contribution will be.
