Solutions are ‘unlikely’

Title IX: The men may be forced to punt

EDITOR’S NOTE: This is the first of a three-part series on the financial crisis facing intercollegiate athletics as a result of Title IX guidelines. The first part presents an overview of the situation at SIU-C.

By Michael Moseen

As the SIU-C intercollegiate athletics program enters the 1986, the program faces a dilemma: How can the University comply with the requirements of Title IX, a federal law prohibiting sex discrimination in athletics funding, without destroying the men’s athletic programs? Gale Sayers, men’s athletics director, says a solution to the dilemma is unlikely.

"Unless we get funding from the University or the state to help us create equal opportunities," Sayers said, "Title IX will cause the death of a broad-based sports program at SIU-C." We’re working towards a solution to meet compliance and to save our program, but I don’t think it will happen. Some real decisions will have to be made.

Such decisions are in the offing, and the most affecting the future of SIU-C athletics will take place this academic year.

---On Oct. 15, the long-delayed release of an audit of the Office of University Relations, which includes SIU-C athletics, is scheduled to be made public at the Board of Trustees meeting. The board commissioned the audit last December when a $91,000 increase in the student athletics fee was approved. The reason: to see if expenditures were being made properly and if increase was necessary.

---On Feb. 1, the Ad Hoc Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics will issue a report recommending the philanthorical redesign of women’s athletics. The SIU-C women’s sports should take in the 1986. The commission was formed in February at the request of then acting President Hiram Lessa.

Some time after the report is issued, perhaps in March, the board will vote on whether to sustain last year’s $10 fee increase. If the board approves the fee increase, the fee will be raised for 1986-87 for a one-year trial basis. President Albert Solim said that he will wait until the commission makes its recommendations on athletics before deciding whether to place the increase on the board’s agenda.

Several factors are at work in the athletics crisis but the main factor, without question, is the realization of money brought about by Title IX.

A comparison of the men’s and women’s athletics budgets over the past decade reveals Title IX’s impact.

During the 1973-74 school year the fee statement replaced; new ID proposed

By Randy Rogalski

The statement will be no more.

"The piece of paper that students have used to verify that they are enrolled and their tuition and fees are paid will be replaced by a certificate of registration," said the new Intercollegiate Athletics and Records, says the new certificate of registration results from a new billing system the University began switching to this semester. Under the new system, to be in operation next semester, students will be able to pay tuition and fees in installments and will get monthly statements of what they owe the University.

Certificates of registration will be issued beginning Friday for students registering for the spring term.

The certificate can be trimmed to wallet size and will show name, identification number, the semester and year and the date it was issued.

"There is no longer a need for the fee statement," Keim said. "With the new billing system, there is no longer an opportunity for the University to say whether or not a student is paid up.

Keim said the certificate of registration can be used like the fee statement to verify enrollment for such things as check cashing and checking out library books.

The admissions official said a $2 charge will be assessed for a duplicate certificate of registration. Duplicate fee statements have been issued free. The fee for a duplicate certificate is necessary, Keim said, because the certificate will be printed on erased paper.

Carter plans stop at Southern Illinois coal mine

President Jimmy Carter will visit a Southern Illinois coal mine Monday in a campaign swing through Southern Illinois and Missouri.

Supreme Court upholds boycott of ERA holdouts by feminists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday allowed a feminist-inspired boycott to continue against those states that have not yet ratified the Equal Rights Amendment.

The court, without comment, rejected arguments by Missouri officials that the National Organization for Women violated the constitution by encouraging other groups to withhold business from nonratifying states.

"We feel vindicated," NOW President Patricia Ireland said after the organization's national convention in San Antonio, Texas. "The courts now to the highest level have said ... the ERA boycott is a form of political expression and that we are totally justified."

Beginning their 1980-81 term by issuing orders in over 900 cases — possibly the busiest day in recent years — the justices also took these actions:

—Left intact a ruling that allows a county-run health care center in Mich., to distribute contraceptives to teen-agers without notifying parents.

—Agreed to decide if a new federal standard for worker exposure to cotton dust should be made as economically reasonable.

The case presents an important question dodged by the high court earlier: Do federal regulators have to satisfy a cost-benefit test before imposing such standards?

—Said they will study the Carter administration's attempt to revoke former CIA agent Philip Agee's passport. Agee, who lives in West Germany, has written two books critical of the spy agency.

Sino-Soviet clash reported

PEKING (AP) — Four armed Soviet intruders crossed into Chinese Mongolia, killed a herdman and then began a firefight with Chinese border guards in which one of the Soviets was killed, the Chinese Foreign Ministry said Monday. It was the first border clash in China-Soviet relations reported in more than a year.

China lodged a strong protest with the Soviet Union over Sunday's incident, which Peking said began when the intruders crossed the Argun River into Inner Mongolia and tried to abduct a Chinese herdsman. The herdsman, identified as Li Zhong, resisted and was killed and the Soviets opened fire on Chinese frontier guards who had rushed to the scene, the protest note said. It said the Chinese fired back in self-defense, killing one Soviet intruder inside China, and the three others escaped in their motorboat back to Soviet territory.

The Chinese protest, delivered 13 months after the Soviet-Chinese border incident in 1979, was quickly followed by a high-level meeting in Moscow between former Communist leaders as well as the Chinese government's top officials.

The last reported border incident between the two countries was in January when Peking alleged that Sovietintruders killed one Chinese and wounded another in a cross-border ambush along the Sinkiang Province frontier. That came as the two sides were engaged in talks on improving relations strained during the last two decades amid Chinese charges of Soviet "imperialism."

Reagan: Carter 'jimmying' figures

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Ronald Reagan accused the Carter administration Monday of trying to boost the president's political standing a month before the election by "jimmying" last week's wholesale price report to show that inflation is easing.

"They have taken to making highly questionable uses of official governmental statistics to sugarcoat the bitter pill that has regularly come from Washington in the line of economic news," the Republican presidential candidate said.

The wholesale price index released Friday showed a decline of 0.2 percent, attributed solely to the government's inclusion for the first time of end-of-the-year price discounts for automobiles in its calculation.

"In the past, the president has been quoted as saying that the auto companies 'get a kick out of this.'" Reagan said.

"It's good news. But we've got to be careful. We don't want to be fooled again by the same trick that Jimmy Carter used four years ago."

County won't pay White's attorney fees

by Mike Anton
Staff Writer-Jackson County Sheriff Don White's motion to have the county pay his legal fees was denied Monday, as White pleaded not guilty to four counts of official misconduct and two counts of theft.

White appealed the motion for reimbursement at his own expense, and the indictment handed down last month by a Jackson County grand jury.

Circuit Judge Loren P. Lewis, who denied the motion, promised to bring the case to trial as soon as possible, setting Nov. 17 as the tentative date for proceedings to begin.

White's attorneys, David Watt and Charlotte Grace of Murphysboro, argued that his legal fees should be paid by the county because State's Attorney William Schwartz will prosecute the case.

Watt said that in "both civil and criminal court" he has fought against the Sheriff's Office, the state's attorney, in required by law to provide counsel unless a conflict of interest is involved.

Since Watt was working as a prosecutor, there is an obvious conflict of interest and the court should appoint a "special state's attorney" to handle White's defense, Watt said.

Lewis apparently agreed with the counterargument by Schwartz that in White's case the alleged misconduct and theft have nothing to do with the official capacity of the Sheriff's Office.

"If the act itself is not clearly within the official actions of the office, then representation will be provided," Schwartz said. "Each of these acts were of a personal nature." He added, "They dealt with his official capacity in preparing and being able to come in and perform them."

Lewis noted that state officials are not represented by the attorney general in court when facing criminal charges brought by the state, and said he would use that as a "historical perspective" in denying White county payment of legal fees.

"The same rule should apply whether the residents are the plaintiff and a local county official is the defendant," Lewis said.

The indictment was the culmination of a grand jury investigation, which began in June, into practices in the Sheriff's Office.

No easy solution seen to Title IX dilemma

year, the women's budget was $38,950. The men's budget was $113,390.

By the 1976-77 school year, the women's basketball budget was substantially $324,578 for the women and $1,772,595 for the men.

This year the figures are $782,000 for women and $1,812,403 for the men. Next year, if the fee increase wins approval, the women's budget would rise to $925,000 while the men's budget would rise to $1,812,403. With the increase, University officials expect to move into compliance with all of the provisions of Title IX.

As Charlotte West, women's athletic director, testifies, "Title IX has been a great catalyst to the growth of women's sports in high school and college.

By and large, the remarkable growth in the women's athletics program at SIU-C can be attributed to a redistribution of student fee money. Currently, fees are divided on a 62-38 percent basis in favor of the men, a $733,944 to $452,944 split. Next year, to move into compliance with Title IX, fee money will be split on a 50-50 basis—providing about $620,000 for both programs.

Fee money has not always been distributed so evenly at SIU-C. The first fee assessment, a $1.13 charge in 1975, was used to fund athletic facilities. For the next five years, determination was poured into the men's program.

"Unless we get funding from the University or the State...Title IX will cause the death of a broad-based sports program...."—Gale Sayers

However, during the 1972-73 school year, the year of Title IX's passage, student fees began supporting both women and men's programs. The women's budget was $38,950 and the men's budget was $591,000.

Fee distribution continued along these lines until 1975, when the athletic fee was hiked to $20 and fees were distributed on a 75-25 percent basis. Each year since then, the men's percentage has gradually declined in favor of the women's share.

This is where the dilemma enters the picture.

Unlike football powerhouses which can use gate receipts to fuel their programs, SIU-C must rely heavily on student fees to finance intramural and athletic programs. Student fees alone will account for 46 percent of the total athletics budget this year.

With the planned 50-50 split of fee money only with the being the men's program will lose sales or contributions from alumni, but it won't happen.

George Mace, vice president for University relations and head of the athletics program, is somewhat more optimistic than Sayers.

Mace agrees that increasing self-generation of revenue is necessary.

Another possibility Mace raised was the creation of cross appointments for coaches under which coaches are paid from two separate sources, such as from teaching and coaches. Under present University policy, the men's coaches do not teach and their salaries are paid entirely by the athletic department.

A third possibility, Mace suggested, is the adjustment of some internal student fees. Mace cited the health service fee as an example of a fee that is probably too high and one from which excess funds could be diverted to athletics.

For now, however, Mace and West are awaiting the commissioner's report and the board's action on the fee increase before making any decision as to the athletes dilemma.

School board to sell land for library

by Melody Cook
Staff Writer—Another site for a new Carbondale Public Library was approved by the Board of Education as the site for the new Carbondale Elementary School.

The board will sell for $100,000 over one acre of the Brush School property across from the Carbondale Memorial Hospital, George Edwards, Carbondale school building committee member, said. The property to be sold is about half of the lot, or 40,000 square feet, he said.

The school board also approved giving the library board a five-year option to purchase another portion of the lot, which would cost $50,000 plus 8 percent annual interest, Edwards said. The school board decided to retain about a half acre of the property for its own administrative and office uses.

If the $100,000 purchase, about $50,000 will be paid when the purchase agreement is signed and the rest will due within a year from that date. Edwards said. No date has been established for the signing of the agreement because the purchase deal, and other legal documents have yet to be drawn up.

Library Board President Betty Mitchell said that while the board was not allowed to purchase the land, a meeting will be held this week to work out the terms official.

The fund for the construction of the new library property is not yet available, but the board is looking for a referendum or another way to have it approved by voters. Mitchell said.

Bikers should obey traffic laws

In answer to the replies on my 9-22 letter, I would like to restate my position on bikes and make a few more points. Students who are unaware of the road rules and who drive dangerously on campus sidewalks seem to be very proud of their ignorance in walking, and "violators" should not be fined $30. That's the punishment for any traffic law violation. To Mr. Burchard and Heskhel don't worry about them. In the case of a campus sidewalk, and she fell onto the pavement. One of the reasons is... you better get a bell. It is this attitude that I protest. Bikes have an equal right to campus sidewalks. Rules exist because they had no bike accident with a car in 20 years. Many threats and horn blasters? Believe it or not, I was threated by a woman in a car as I rode mine. I was in the Park Avenue hill. She honked, said "Hey!" She stopped, pulled a knife, and held it up inside her car. Consider yourself lucky, Bud.

As to Mr. Burchard, I wonder if you have taken the trouble to act intelligently on some of your fine points. Are all the sacred beings who are void of all laws and can wander in the dark bliss down campus sidewalks in packs. Bikes are not a minority. I also walk alone in a crowd, and try to stay out of the way. Bikes it requires little effort.

And please, Mr. Burchard, don't stick a branch in my spokes, or you'll get a pump in the chops. -Ray Betsela, senior, English.

Students need facts before signing leases

By Clint Woll

When a student leaves home to go to college, a major problem he faces is finding a place to live. Most students find that several of their classmates are looking for places to live in Carbondale, like most college towns, where land and rental property is plentiful. Many times rental property is filled months before the fall semester begins.

This forces many students to sacrifice convenience, low rent, quality and furnishings just for a place to live. Many times they are glad to find available living space that they sign a contract without reading it carefully or looking over the living quarters for defects.

Most student tenants don't examine contracts and property for defects mainly because they don't know what to look for. For example, a student may sign a contract that says the tenant accepts the property as it is and is responsible for repairs.

There are many organizations that can help students who tenants have landlord-tenant disputes. The SIU Students' Attorney, the Carbondale Housing Inspector, the Jackson County Health Department, and the Department of Housing and Urban Development can all help students with housing problems in some way, but if the contract states that the tenant is responsible for repairs, the contract has some other loophole in it. These organizations can't do a thing.

So what happens to the poor student who signed the contract? He's stuck with the conditions of his housing for the duration of his lease, and he learns the hard way—by his mistakes—more careful next time.

The tenant could move out and forfeit the damage deposit, or he could sue the landlord for improper living conditions or city code violations, but these methods of action take time and are costly. And the student usually ends up the loser, for he must prove that the building is unsafe. Many tenants simply suffer just because they are not well versed in legal matters! Why are students uninformed about contract loopholes? Because they have no one to inform them about these dangers. Because your SIU Students' Attorney, the Carbondale Housing Inspector and all those other organizations that are supposed to help student tenants are designed to help the tenant. The landlord has signed the landlord's contract, which, in the case of the student victim of a bad contract, is too late.

The SIU Students' Attorney's Office does offer special programs for tenants once in awhile. The office schedules speeches on tenant rights and is now in the process of forming a student tenant union, but these programs are a prime example in the contract victim's case of too little help too late.

Instead of giving these speeches and forming these groups in the middle of the fall semester when most students have already signed their leases in the lodging centers, the office should offer these programs during the summer when most students are still looking for a place to live. Counseling by the students' attorney should include loopholes to look for in a contract and how to negotiate a lease—such a tenant-landlord contract.

Something must be done to get rid of unfair contracts. Ignorant people don't sign these contracts—uninformed people do.

Vote for women's athletics

Cindy Clausen's viewpoint about putting 3 people in a room has rekindled my faith in your publication. As a former dorm resident on East Campus, I can assure you that not only are the students against it, but various administrative officials thought of it.

I agree wholeheartedly with Ms. Clausen that in sodomy, being the administration is seen as well.

In conclusion, let me express the view of a former East Campus head resident who suggested "putting Bruce, Sam and Joe in the same room together for a week." I don't think that they could last seven minutes let alone seven days.

Chugging contests dangerous

Once again, a definition of the term "chugging contest" is necessary. A chugging contest is defined as the consumption of the most alcohol in the least amount of time. T.J. McFly's seems to think that it is consistent with student participation in blatant drug abuse.

Alcohol is used in many positive ways. You can celebrate, relax, and have fun. Intoxication is dangerous because it simply overload's one's body with a drug and offers the "prizes" of vomitting, mood swings, accidents, muro blantly hasta, coma, and even death. Responsibility exists to turn our stoves down. I'm a responsible adult, Dr. Stewart, and not just a "dumb drunkard" like the administration sees us as.

In conclusion, let me express the view of a former East Campus head resident who suspected "putting Bruce, Sam and Joe in the same room together for a week." I don't think that they could last seven minutes let alone seven days.

Why so big deal about Gus Bode?

We are glad to see that our students deal with very crucial issues in this paper. We don't understand the importance of moving "our" Gus Bode from the position of Senator. We really bother you to see Gus get an equal vote. Gus kind of reminds us of Paul Harvey—a day or night is never a dull moment with Paul. Sorry, but we're just not interested in that right they're at the Daily Egyptian for a while. Gus is a little more intelligent than that.

Come on now, students, you can think of something more relevant to your everyday life than good of Gus. John Blaisdell, Communications and Fine Arts and Fred Immondo, STC

Arena, sound system not right for British soprano’s talents

By Bill Crowe
Entertainment Editor

A beautiful voice was drowned out in the Arena Friday night by a tinny sound system and the often-cavernous acoustic dimensions of a large hall.

Judie Tzuke, a popular recording talent in England and Australia, opened the Elton John concert with a brief set of her best songs which unfortunately showcased her band rather than her high-pitched soprano.

Tzuke’s two albums—“Stay With Me Till Dawn” and “Sports Car”—feature her talented voice and also her prowess (with co-writer and guitarist Mike Paxman) as an intimate songwriter. On her LPs she often sounds like Joni Mitchell with a bit of funk and rock added. However, neither of these qualities came out in her Arena performance.

The reason for this is simple—the sound system for Tzuke was mixed too loud, often making her high-pitched voice sound like a shrill whine. The Arena’s large seating arrangements didn’t help her either. This talented woman belongs in smaller, more intimate halls or clubs, not basketball stadiums.

Surprisingly, Tzuke said she feels comfortable playing her intimate personal compositions in large arena settings.

“I feel quite comfortable doing them here in large places. They (audience) don’t seem to notice an awful lot of noise when I’m doing the quiet numbers,” Tzuke said. “Tonight, in fact, was noisier than usual but it was still quiet.

Looking very stoic with a powerful aura of blond-haired British beauty about her, Tzuke put in fine renditions of “Sports Car,” “Choices You’ve Made” and the unrecorded “Black Bell,” but the sound system betrayed her. Tzuke’s talent was never truly recognizable on the Arena stage.

And her talent is the thing Tzuke wants audiences to remember—not just a pretty face.

“I don’t think I’m that pretty that it’s going to make an awful lot of difference,” Tzuke said. “I hope my singing is better than my face and anybody, people get bored with faces."

Tzuke added that she noticed billboards with pictures of pretty recording stars all over Los Angeles, but she was quick to add that such publicity probably won’t sell many albums.

“It makes you have a look and you (fans) might buy a magazine that’s got pictures of them in it, but I wouldn’t think they’d rush out and go buy all their albums. That’s pretty presumptuous to get a picture, isn’t it?”

However, Tzuke is looking for her talent to be recognized this United States tour. Backstage, while admitting to having her voice crack on stage in aArena, she was enthusiastic about her reception as opener for the John tour so far.

“We had our first news today of it’s been happening in the places we’ve been playing at and apparently there’s lots of orders from the record shops. Hopefully it’s picking up now,” Tzuke said. “Anyway the audience is reacting well considering we’re supporting (John) and it’s the first time they’ve heard us.”

Tzuke may be getting a good reception on this first tour, but her sound system will have to shape up to her high vocal qualities if she expects to become very successful in North America.

She's a small woman with big ambitions: a hard working, dedicated musician who has insight into people which is nurtured in her song lyrics. Her life, she said, revolves around her music, which is original and bursting with character.

Dana Clark, quiet and soft-spoken—when she's not on stage—is working her way up, but in no big hurry.

A former SIU student who got her bachelor's degree in psychology and her master's degree in behavioral modification, Clark returned to Carbondale last week to perform before a small crowd of older adults at Hunger 8. She may have been disappointed with the small turnout, but her enthusiasm at being back on the "strip" and playing with her new back-up band "Jack of Hearts" was undeniable.

On stage, she's alive and energetic. Dressed out in a cowboy hat and tight-fitting jeans, she won the audience with a "down home" country and folk-rock sound. She shows a considerable amount of musical dexterity during a performance, switching from piano to guitar to flute with each new song.

Signing hot tea in the back stage dressing room after her first set, Clark voiced surprise that her band was "making it." "I thought it wasn't possible to support a band who plays my own material," she said. "I'm scared we're going to be able to survive. The country craze has brought us luck so far." Clark's band is composed of Bruce Dorrfield on bass, Sarah Allen on drums and Joe Goodrich on electric guitar and vocals.

The encore has seen a few changes since last April when it first began. The band is in "its infancy," Clark said. "This is its third night with us," she said, "and we're on our third drummer since April. I hope that the tour of us can go for a while." All the members of Clark's band have come to college, she said, which is probably one reason the band has been making headway in attracting college audiences.

At 30, Clark feels most comfortable touring the college circuit. She calls college audiences the "last stronghold for original material," adding that college students really know how to listen.

Her first album, "New Shoes," is getting radio airplay and her popularity in Carbondale could be attributed to a song off that album about "Mary Lou's Cafe," a local eatery. "Mary Lou has sold a lot of albums for me," she said. "She's real supportive, really behind me."

Clark became acquainted with the lively lady when Mary Lou had that "little old place over by the railroad tracks" before moving the cafe to its present location. The original version of the song was three times as long, she said. Clark said she wrote the song after attending a' Carlise Daniels concert. If he could get away with long ballads, so could she, she said.

Clark said she has been influenced by Maria Muldaur. "Her selections influenced my writing," she said. "She selects cute, sexy songs." But more importantly, her training in behavioral psychology has helped her in her songwriting personality in her lyrics. "I really like to transfer my observations of character into a song," she said. She draws a "composite portrait" from her observations and then incorporates and defines those characteristics and actions into her music.

A country girl who grew up in Modesto, population 200, Clark said she "really hates Chicago," where she has been performing for about a year. (Continued on Page 11)

That's right, I made another movie.
You know me, I can't stop creating.

Dana Clark, who earned two degrees at SIUC, returned to Carbondale last week as a country- and folk-rock musician.

KANSAS TO PLAY AT ARENA: Kansas, the popular six-man band which recorded such hits as "Carry On My Wayward Son" and "Dust in the Wind," will perform at the Arena Oct. 27. Tickets, priced at $8.50 and $7.50, will go on sale at 8 a.m. Wednesday at the Arena. The band has just released its latest album, "Audio Vision," in the past month.

Gospel music group reviving

Attempts are being made to reactivate the "Voices of Inspiration," a student organization interested in performing religious music—particularly gospel-style music.

Organizational meetings will be held Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. at Alheid Hall, Room 115, and Wednesday from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

The group has been inactive for about two years, according to Kenneth Ledford, freshman in business, who is leading the reorganization efforts. Robert Kingsbery, associate professor of music, will serve as adviser for the group, Ledford said. Kingsbery serves as conductor for several SIU-C singing groups including Southern Singers and the Male Glee Club. Although the organization is aimed at students, local residents are encouraged to join, Ledford said. He said he has contacted musicians at local churches to involve the Carbondale community in the organization.

Ledford said his immediate goal is to get people together who want to "praise the Lord in song."

Environmental group plans action

By Melody Cook
Staff Writer

Recycling, hazardous waste dumping and fish habitat destruction are the issues which will be addressed by the SIU-C Student Environmental Concerns group this year.

The group, with about 20 members, is not only planning informational campaigns to increase student awareness, but will also take action toward solving the problems.

SEC member Joe Proffitt said the group will discuss with University officials and soda distributors the possibility of replacing the bottles in soft drink vending machines with recyclable aluminum cans. He said the group may even try to organize petitions or a type of boycott action, but prefers "to see if we can get results through regular channels first."

The group is also planning a mid-October meeting with Carbondale City Manager Carl Fry to try to organize petitions or a type of boycott action, but prefers "to see if we can get results through regular channels first."

The group will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday at the Wesley Foundation, 816 S. Illinois Ave.

Carbondale-area residents may discuss their feelings and attitudes about sex education, masturbation, homosexuality and exhibitionism at a Sexual Awareness Workshop, Oct. 10 to 12.

Students interested in becoming new Student Leaders during the 1981 Summer Orientation Programs must attend one of the three mandatory interest meetings on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center. Panel members will share personal experiences and answer questions. Information and registration forms can be obtained at the Office of Student Development, 452-5174.

A program entitled "Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Lifestyles" will offer an open exploration of facts, attitudes and feelings regarding same-sex relationships on Tuesday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center. Panel members will share personal experiences and answer questions. Information and registration forms can be obtained at the Office of Student Development, 452-5174.

The Public Relations Student Society of America will sponsor a discussion of government relations, led by Fred Pratt of Marathon Oil, on Tuesday, 7 p.m. in the Ohio Room of the Student Center.

The SIU Folk Music Union will hold its monthly meeting from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday at the Wesley Foundation, 816 S. Illinois Ave. All interested people are invited to attend. A pickup session will follow the business meeting, so bring your instruments.

John King, chairperson of the Commission of Intercollegiate Athletics, will speak on "The Role of Athletics at SIU-C" at the Phi Kappa Phi house luncheon noon Tuesday in the Corinth Room of the Student Center.

Rising inflation will continue, says economist

URBANA (AP) - Double-digit inflation and high interest rates will continue in 1981, along with a sluggish economy, a University of Illinois economist predicts.

Carl Artt said economic activity would not increase next year because high inflation and interest rates would discourage spending.

"I don't feel happy about the overall outlook," said Artt. "I just look forward to a continued process of worrying about inflation, then having a mild downturn and then going up to a still higher level of inflation."

However, Artt said he expected no real recession in 1981.
Counseling center aids men on military involvement decisions

By Erich Hornwansl Staff Writer
A draft counseling center in Carbondale, which will aid men on Selective Service registration from July 1 to mid-August, will again become active in mid-October.

The Rev. Leonard Goering, who started the counseling service when he was a priest at the Student Life Center on Grand and Illinois Avenue, said that the program is designed to provide information for people wanting to make informed decisions about military involvement.

Counselors, prepared by a training session to be held Oct. 16, will compile lists of documents with which to determine whether or not a young person qualifies for an exemption or deferment, including those for medical disorders, sole surviving sons and conscientious objectors. The files could include statements of the individual's beliefs, how they were acquired and how they affect his life.

Registration cards for organizations such as the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors, a national non-profit organization, could also be collected to prove later that the decision was not merely a last-ditch attempt to avoid the draft.

The counseling center, which operated regularly from July 1 to mid-August, aided "three to four" people a night, Goering said.

But since the first registration project last July and August, that of men born in 1960 and 1961, community interest in the counseling center has dropped. "Some people now have the feeling that registration is over," Goering said. But early in January men born in 1962, and those subsequently turning 18 will be required to register.

Goering expects a new wave of interest among 18-year-olds later this year.

About 30 people attended the counseling session held in July, he said, adding that such a large turnout was probably due to the urgency of the issue.

Goering hopes to get "about a dozen" qualified counselors for the center in October.

"We're looking mainly for people who have already expressed an interest in the counseling center," Goering said. "We're looking for counselors, not just people who act as counselors." He added, that "most of us do oppose war as a conflict-resolving institution."

Government legislation regarding registration and the draft has been at a standstill, and Goering expects it to remain so until after the November elections.

The official reports on the Selective Service's recent registration campaign are not even out yet, he said. "There are reports that the program received 95 percent compliance, but some anti-draft groups claim that there was only 60 percent compliance in some areas."

Student Center will be new alumni office home

The Alumni office will soon be moved to the Student Center because of space needs and greater accessibility and visibility, according to Robert Odaniell, executive director of the SIU Alumni Association.

The move from the office's present location, adjacent to the former alumni and former SIUC students, has been located in the old SIU Student Center's film auditorium. Space has been made for the offices of director, two assistants, and a reception room with two secretaries. The conference room and a room for Student Alumni have also been built, Odaniell said.

The office has been "scattered all over campus" throughout the years, but Odaniell sees the move to the Student Center as permanent. "We have been hoping for this for a long time," he added.

Museum to recruit volunteers as guides

Because of budgetary and staff limitations, the University Museum in Faner Hall North is recruiting volunteers to guide one tour each month and learn about the museum's permanent collections and traveling exhibitions. The Museum and Art Galleries Association, in affiliation with the museum, is planning a series of three workshops for prospective guides. Students who wish to work with children or young adults or who have a special interest in the arts and the museum can gain professional experience by being guides. In 1979, more than 50,000 people visited the museum, and 1,000 people, many of them children, were given tours. Persons interested in volunteering should call the museum office at 453-5388.

Any favorite in AL playoffs? Yankees' Howser thinks so

By The Associated Press

"Does anyone have a psychological edge in the American League playoff series between the Kansas City Royals and New York Yankees?"

"I'd like to think we do, but I'm not sure we do," Manager Don Zimmer of the Yankees said yesterday after the Yankees clinched their fourth division championship in five years. "What are the championship-winning teams doing in a row in a row percentage wise?"

The Yankees think they have such an edge because they beat the Royals in 1979, 1977 and 1976 playoffs. And the Royals think they have the advantage because they took the 1975 series 2-1.

Reggie Jackson, whose hitting breaking three-run homer Saturday in a 5-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers was the division-clincher, said the Yankees "have a better chance of beating them."

The folks in Kansas City might not agree with him, but Howser called it a "nice rivalry." "

The best-of-five Championship Series, as the league likes to call it, begins Wednesday afternoon in Kansas City and continues there Thursday night. It moves to New York on Friday night, with games Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, if necessary. "That's exactly the way I like it," Howser said.

"The playoffs are an entirely different season," he said. "Everything starts over." The week before last, I used Jim Hamilton and attributing the victory in 4-3 over the Philadelphia Phillies. "But not believing in each other. Another time said our players said to each other, 'Hey, the guy next to me is pretty good. I'll do my job, we can win.'"

St. Louis which was shackled two weeks ago with a 0-5 record, has received around an awesome strength. The tie game of which on Sunday ripped New Orleans for 330 yards, a club record.

Penalties. Back running back Otto Anderson galloped for 128 yards on 25 carries in the 33-0 win over Los Angeles."

Water polo team starts fast, but loses two at Illinois meet

By Michelle Schwent

Staff Writer

The SIU-C water polo squad seems to be suffering from the same malady as the football team—fourth quarter losses.

The SIU-C water polo team played in two invitational tournaments over the weekend but lost both of their matches despite "starting out well," according to coach Bob Schreiber.

Tour de Ports hosted six teams to no avail as the Salukis lost 17-12 to Illinois. Steele said his team played well until last quarter when they fell apart.

After final quarter lapse in the game against Principia saw the Salukis reverse attempt of a previous 17-4 drubbing when going down the drain. The match was tied 4-4 in the final quarter and the Salukis' goal ahead as the final bell ended. However, the bottom fell out for the Salukis with four minutes left on the game and Principia won 12-10.

Although the team lost both matches, Steele was implementing a new game plan that may be the key to turning the team around.

"We have reorganized our offense around and got a little better defense out of it," Steele said. "Our better scores are in a better position to score. Both teams got a jump on us through cherry picking and got several fast breaks in the water.

Steele added that the team had decreased the number of penalties that had been kicked out in previous games and that the defense played better when the team was a man short by penalty.

"Principia was a man up on us four times and they didn't score and Illinois didn't score on us the three times they had a man up," Steele said. "We are going to have to work on taking more shots and better shots. We need to get stronger when we are a man up."

The bottom of the game which need work are covering the back court and cutting down on the number of fouls.

"Learning not to foul comes from practice," Steele said. "Things like not taking the ball under water so that fouls will not come with the referees, though, because a lot of the calls are judgment calls."

Although the weekend trip did not put another mark in the win column, Steele is encouraged by what he saw and heard.

Win boosts Cardinals

By The Associated Press

"I think we're a better football team than we've been given credit for," linebacker Pat Studstill said of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Studstill, who scored a fourth-quarter touchdown Thursday in the 17-8 win over the National Football League's leading team, the Rams, said the Cardinals "have the advantage for the first time this year."

We're coming to win. We run until the whistle. We prove to us we can win," Hart said. "I say to guys, 'I hope I never have to throw a pass.'"

The Cards, while rolling to their biggest victory since beating the Dallas Cowboys 23-4 in 1979, are in the ball for 44 minutes compared the Saints' 14."

Back, Leg Pains Will Get Worse Before Better

BY DR. ROY S. WHITE

Director of Chiropractic

An estimated 60 million people will be disabled this year by spinal defects which cause low back and leg pain. What is being done to correct this grave problem? Dr. White indicates that most low back and associated leg pains are caused by truly mechanical defects in the development of one or more segments of the lower spine. These segment segments may be displaced by a fall, accident or back strain. Another frequent cause is chronic posture decay.

It's reasonably simple. When a spinal column is displaced, the supporting muscles and ligaments may be stretched or torn causing acute and disabling back pain. When a segment is displaced beyond a critical point it partly closes the nerve openings between adjacent segments. The result is excruciating pain, which need not, to say, is anything but reasonable.

The spinal nerves which supply the legs pass through the openings between adjacent segments of the spine. You see, when one of the segments is displaced, the nerves to the legs might be pinched or irritated. This brings about the nerve pain that extends down the leg. What can be done for the person with low back and associated leg pain? Chiropractic experience on the individuals with acute and chronic problems of this nature respond extremely well. And, I might add, early detection of the problem adds to the effectiveness of care and prevention of progressive spinal defects.

Low back and leg pains often amount to needless suffering, in my view. If you suffer from these problems contact your Doctor of Chiropractic.

The Salukis have to back. Diner, the good pupil to be year, Hockey' the force seems to have some credence. six. The endzone! A case in she's always appreciated the fact that she's been as the losses suffered by to his team being in better shape than the Salukis. "Julee game." SEMO-SIU-C she!! since probable play a one game: "Any coach will tell you that their team has a chance at winning, and I feel that it'll be anything close," Wanger said. "Sure, we'll all go out to beat them." Although the Otahkians basically play a Division II schedule, they share a few common opponents with the Otahkians this season. They lost to a tough Central Michigan team, 14-7, while the Salukis played CMU, 14-0. SEMO also gave a strong St. Louis University team a battle before losing, 1-0. SIU-Eduardo, after losing to the Salukis 3-2 Friday, defeated SEMO 2-1 Saturday. SIU-C hasn't taken on St. Louis yet, but Wanger expects a tough game. "We have six kids who are first-year starters," Wanger said. "Of those, four are fresh- men and the other two are junior varsity players that I've brought up." One of those freshmen, Debbie Kennedy, scored three goals in the Otahkians' 7-0 triumph over SEMO SIU-C Monday. Defensive back Cheryl Reitisskamp has also played a big part in SEMO's success. Bama rolls to top spot

By The Associated Press

With last week's two closest challengers both losing, the Crimson Tide of Alabama was a near-unanimous choice as the No. 1 team in the nation in The Associated Press college football poll.

Alabama, a 45-0 winner over Kentucky in a game that gave coach Bear Bryant his 300th coaching triumph, received 60 of 63 first-place votes and 1,292 of a possible 1,360 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Ohio State and Nebraska, the Nos. 2-3 teams a week ago, skidded to ninth and 10th, respectively, after suffering four losses setbacks of the season.

Southern California, which defeated Arizona State 25-21, jumped from fourth place to second.

They were followed by Texas, up from fifth to third following a 41-28 triumph over 18-

Pittsburgh, a 38-6 victor over Maryland, climbed from sixth to fourth. The biggest gainer was UCLA, up from 11th to fifth after upsetting Ohio State 17-4 in Columbus.

Georgia, idle last weekend, rose from eighth to sixth while Notre Dame, a 36-2 winner over Michigan, held onto seventh place.

North Carolina shot from 10th to eighth.

Puzzling Salukis must study reasons for 4th-period blues

The Saluki football team has been a puzzlement not only to the fans, but to the players and coaches themselves. Presently, SIU-C is 2-3, the worst record it has had in history. The Salukis’ squad came back to win the rest of its games, finishing 8-3. The best record this school has seen on the gridiron in 19 years.

For this year’s football schedule contains a variety of games to duplicate that feat would be truly amazing.

After a sluggish start at Wichita State where a lifeless SIU-C team was soundly outplayed by the surprisingly tough Shockers, 31-14, the Salukis began to look like a competent football team.

The home opener against Eastern Illinois saw the Salukis score the first three times they had the ball. With the excitement and emotion generated by "Mark H. Campbell" and a dominating 31-14 halftime lead, it seemed that SIU-C would rideculie this instanteous rival that was once the premier Division II team in the nation.

Gasping for breath, the Salukis had to dive on an on-side kick in the final minute of the game for 45 points. The Panthers passed at will and also ran a kickoff back for a touchdown to make SIU-C fans wonder about the team’s staying power. With a win under their belt, the Salukis traveled to New Mexico State in an attempt to even their Missouri Valley record. Running the options to perfection and gaining out five yards per carry, the SIU-C running attack was like an awesome machine.

However, the 17-0 advantage they held after three quarters was transformed into a three point deficit when two fired up NMSU teams rallied for the victory.

SIU-C took its show to Des Moines. The Drake Bulldogs watched quarterbacking for the third straight year, but a 22-22 draw after the stage in building a 20-point lead midway through the fourth quarter.

With a minute remaining, an SIU-C defensive back who was seemingly burned and out of position, luckily was hit in the chest with a deflected Bulldog pass into the endzone. The interception saved the game and face for the Salukis, who held on to win, 24-22.

Saturday against Northern Illinois, it was deja vu from the New Mexico State game. The ball had 117 points, another blowout, another loss, 20-17. The once awesome SIU-C option was shut down completely.

The question is why do the Salukis play like world beaters for 45 minutes, then watch all their work go down the drain in only 15 minutes?

The Salukis' passing offense is nonexistent. A completed pass to a wide receiver is cause for celebration. True. However, is gone, the leading receiver in SIU annals, a snaggling passes for Tampa Bay, but the current receiving corps is nearly as fast and has shown the ability to hold onto the ball—that is, when it comes their way.

And it hasn’t come their way often—62 times to be precise, and the Salukis have only thrown for 45 points.

Reason Two—the lack of pass defense and a consistent pass rush. Sometimes the SIU-C pass rush is furious and all over the place. At other times, it’s been slow and ineffective.

The Salukis are young and inexperienced and is the point of attack for many opponents. Although the defensive backs have come up with some big plays and seven interceptions, foes have seemed to get more passes off to wide receivers and the tight end, especially over the middle. After the NIU game Saturday, SIU-C Coach Roy Dempsey declared: "The Salukis’ secondary was 'shocked' out of their starting position this season—it has been slow and ineffective.

In fact, the opponents have been so open that they have collected career passing with the Chicago Bears, 79 of 134, 115 percent, and are averaging 236 yards per game through the air.
