Unions' fate to be decided Nov. 16

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

University employees will take to the polls Nov. 18 to vote on collective bargaining, IELRB executive director, Robert Perkovich announced Thursday.

Union representatives and an Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board agent also set Dec. 7 for a run-off election if one is necessary, but the parties were still meeting late Thursday to finalize the specifics of the collective bargaining election.

"It's rare that the meeting is taking over 4 hours, but the nature of this case was unusual," Perkovich said.

The SIU case involved more than 7,000 pages of paperwork and 41 days of hearing, he added.

Employees on the Carbondale campus can vote in the Student Center from 7 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. There will be different polling areas for faculty and administrative professionals.

Other faculty will vote in East St. Louis from 11:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. Polls on the Edwardsville campus will open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Employees of the dental school will vote from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Illinois Education Association organizer Don Keck said the IEA is satisfied with the election date. "An earlier date would make it impossible for anyone on sabbatical leave to be ready for the election."

The parties are trying to decide how the 200 faculty stationed off campus or overseas will vote in the election.

Election procedure usually requires off-campus faculty to cast their votes one day before the actual election.

"The two unions are taking different positions on the off-campus faculty," Keck said.

Fee increases debated for retirement benefits

By Kathleen DeBo
Staff Writer

Administrators are trying to keep from increasing student fees to cover retirement benefits for Student Center and housing employees, Charles Hindersman, vice president for financial affairs, said.

But the state doesn't think the University should use state money for that.

Four years ago, the Legislative Audit Commission announced guidelines that called for removal of all subsidies for auxiliary operations by fiscal year 1990, which begins July 1, 1989, Hindersman said.

Housing and the Student Center are considered auxiliary operations and are supposed to pay for themselves, he said.

Employees who work in housing and the student center are paid from student fees, Hindersman said.

However, the University uses state funds to pay for those employees' retirement benefits, Hindersman said.

"We've always done this," he said.

"The state audit commission believes it's a subsidy and we have to discontinue it. We argue that we have a right to do this because they are state employees. We believe what we have done is proper," he said.

Retirement is a state-mandated benefit, he said.

Bill Jackson, deputy director of benefits services for the state universities retirement system, said University employees who meet certain requirements — are employed at least half time for at least a year — are supposed to get retirement benefits.

If the state auditor is found to be correct, the money would have to come from an increase in student fees to the Student Center and an increase in what the University charges for housing, Hindersman said.

"Students who don't live in the dorms may think it does not affect them, but it does. It would mean a Student Center fee increase, too," he said.

"Off the top of my head, the amount could be almost $1 million," he said.

The Auditor General for the state has suggested that legislation be introduced giving universities special authorization to pay the retirement benefits out of state funds, Hindersman

Engineering reaccreditation could be a problem

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

Kenneth Tempelmeyer, dean of the College of Engineering and Technology, said a potential problem affecting the college's reaccreditation may exist in the general education requirements for engineering students.

Tempelmeyer said accreditation boards as far back as 10 years began to stress the need for depth in the humanities general studies area, referring to an increase in the number of classes required in that field.

This is a contradiction of the University philosophy of encouraging and requiring students to select classes from the broad range of general studies offered, he said.

COBA students concerned about publicity

"They stressed the depth issue, but really didn't give us any problems," he said.

But in the most current accreditation review six years ago, the accreditation board viewed the depth issue in a negative way.

"At that time, students were free to take any general studies course they wanted," Tempelmeyer said. "The students could get depth if they chose the right combination of classes."

In response, the college developed class requirements restricting the general study courses engineering students could take, about two years ago, in an effort to satisfy both University and review board requirements.

It is this plan that may present a problem by not meeting review board standards.

Although Tempelmeyer points to the possibility that the up-coming accreditation board may disagree, he is confident that the college will be accredited.

"Two review boards looked at it (class requirements) last December, and they said it was fine," he said. "We're almost guaranteed accreditation. I would be very surprised if we weren't."

James Evers, associate dean of the College of Engineering and Technology, said that engineering students have always known that the program is restrictive when it comes to class choice. "It is just a continuation of the same ideology," he said.

However, if the accreditation board disagrees, it could mean the addition of more classes for engineering students to take.

"If they don't accept it, we'll have to add additional courses at the departmental level," Tempelmeyer said, referring to courses in the social sciences.

Tempelmeyer said that the board also will be looking at design content in the program, courses dealing with multiple solutions to a single engineering problem, and laboratory facilities.

"We've invested $400,000 a year, for the last three years in our laboratories," he said. "We have about $7 million in

Dorm room presentations approved

By Kimberly Clarke
Staff Writer

The right of public university students to hold commercial presentations in their dormitory rooms was affirmed by the Supreme Court.

Some universities, such as the State University of New York, have a policy banning such presentations; SIU-C, however, does not.

Students may conduct commercial presentations of a product in their dorm rooms without the University's approval. But in other areas of housing, such as the lounges, the presentations may not occur without an invitation, Steve Kirk, assistant director of Housing for residence life said.

"If the student government invites them, it's okay," Kirk said.

University Housing will not invite a commercial sales representative to make a presentation because Housing does not want to endorse a certain product, Kirk said.

Kirk said restricting these vendors from going into a student's dorm room is a rather over-protective policy for other universities to enact.

"They are coming from a good place in trying to protect the students from rip-offs," Kirk said, "but the policy is a little too much."

The State University of New York upholds its policy ban by

Chilean cabinet resigns; Pinochet rejected by votes

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — President Augusto Pinochet conceded defeat Thursday in the national plebiscite in which Chileans voted on whether to extend his rule by eight years. Pinochet's cabinet also resigned, and the formation of a new cabinet, to be composed largely of the same 16 ministers who resigned as a sign of defeat, was expected to be announced soon.

President calls state of emergency in Algeria

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — President Chadli Bendjedid declared a state of emergency in the Algerian capital Thursday after troops fired on rioters who attacked shops and offices and left streets littered with burning automobiles, witnesses said. The witnesses said many people were wounded on the second day of rioting by Algerians angered by food shortages.

MIA activists offer big reward for prisoners

KHONGCHIAM, Thailand (UPI) — American MIA activists Thursday dropped into the Mekong River dozens of packets of cash stamped with an offer of a $2.4 million reward to anyone bringing a U.S. prisoner of war safely out of Indochina. "We are trying to get the word to the people on the other side of the river that if they bring back a live American POW, we will make them rich," said Ted Sampley, a Green Beret veteran of the Vietnam War and chairman of the National Steering Committee for American War Veterans.

'Shocking' new report details Stalin's crimes

MOSCOW (UPI) — The weekly Moscow News Thursday printed a shocking description of mass executions conducted by Josef Stalin's secret police, describing how 100,000 Soviet citizens were systematically murdered in southwestern Russia before the 1941 Nazi invasion. Until now, Soviet historians have blamed the wholesale executions on German forces that occupied the area during World War II.

'Star Wars' chiefs unveil revisions, cost cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Star Wars" bosses revealed a major revision of the space missile defense system's first phase Thursday, and told skeptical lawmakers they have sharply cut costs with significant technology improvements. The plan described before a joint hearing of the House and Senate Armed Services committees knocks down the costs of Star Wars from $115 billion, estimated in June, to $69 billion in October.

Report: 37 million Americans get bad water

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Poor enforcement of safe drinking water laws exposed more than 37 million Americans to dangerous levels of bacteria or toxic chemicals in their tap water last year, an environmental group charged Thursday. In a report based on thousands of government documents, the National Wildlife Federation said water contamination has had a massive health impact on the nation, with at least 110,000 reported cases of illness from drinking polluted water.

Attorney General welcomes pollution rules

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Attorney General Don Hanaway Thursday welcomed federal construction restrictions aimed at reducing air pollution from Illinois and Indiana, but said the action came only after some concerted foot-dragging. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency this week issued a construction ban in the Chicago area and in Lake and Porter counties in northwestern Indiana under the Clean Air Act.

Burris: About $47 million diverted for Build Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Nearly $47 million from the state's general fund was diverted to support the Build Illinois program last fiscal year because the tax on used car sales established to support the program was insufficient, according to a report by Comptroller Roland Burris released Thursday. Burris said had the diversion not been necessary, the $47 million could have been used for other state programs.

Comedian alumnus performs at B.G.'s

By Beth Clavin
Entertainment Editor

Brian Noonan got into comedy as a result of a comedy contest held at the University in 1985.

Now he does stand-up comedy in Chicago area clubs and elsewhere around the Midwest.

Most recently, Noonan, who graduated from the University in 1985, is appearing this weekend at B.G.'s Old Tyme Deli and Saloon, 1620 W. Main.

After receiving his diploma in radio and television, Noonan worked for a radio station in Sparta. He then went home to Glenwood, a suburb of Chicago, and picked up his comedy act again by appearing in the Chicago clubs.

Noonan said he entertains audiences by relying on the "slice of life" type of comedy.

"I talk about things that happen to everybody," he said. "I like to see people nodding, like they have had the same experiences."

Noonan said he never aspired to be a comedian, but he has always enjoyed making people laugh.

"I used to make my friends laugh, but everybody does that," he said. "The people I was with always made me laugh, too."

Noonan said it was after winning the comedy contest that he began to take his comedy more seriously.

"It's just like any other job," he said. "The more time you devote to it, the better you get."

Noonan said jokes concerning relationships and parents are a favorite with crowds, although the success of a particular joke varies.

"One night something might go over, and the next night it might be something else."

He said he considers himself lucky that his parents have been supportive of his career change.

"Now that I'm making money, they're real supportive," he joked.

Despite his success in comedy, Noonan said he would like to do more work on radio in the future.

"I'm using comedy to get into other things," he said.

One special accomplishment was his appearance, along with several other Chicago comics, on "The Oprah Winfrey Show" April 1.

"We each just got up on stage, told a joke, and got off," he said. "It was an assembly line type of thing."

Despite his short appearance, many people he met afterwards recognized him from the show.

"People would come up to me on the street and say, 'Didn't I see you on Oprah?'" he said. "It was really a good feeling."

Also appearing at B.G.'s is Bennett Michaels, a friend of Noonan's from Chicago. The two have appeared together in Chicago, but said their appearance here was purely coincidence.

Michaels, originally from Philadelphia, said his type of comedy is very different from Noonan's.

"I do musical parodies and music one-liners," he said.

An example of this is his performance of a new "Leave it to Beaver" theme. He uses his guitar in the parodies, a talent left over from his previous involvement in bands.

Both comedians will appear at B.G.'s through Saturday night.

All-Bach concert slated

The Mitchell Museum in Mount Vernon will host the Paillard Chamber Orchestra, featuring Shigenori Kudo on flute, Oct. 10 at 7:30 p.m.

This all-Bach concert, held in the main gallery, will kick off the 10th anniversary of Cedarhurst Chamber Music.

The Paillard Chamber Orchestra is a permanent French ensemble founded in 1953. The group has put out many records, winning at least 22 "Grande Prix du Disque."

Their recording of Johann Pachelbel's "Canon in D," released by RCA in 1977, has become the best selling classical record of all time.

Shigenori Kudo has performed throughout Europe and Japan and was the first prize winner of the 1980 Rampai Competition.

The concert is sponsored by Mrs. Jerome Glassman, in memory of Jerome Glassman, the Illinois Arts Council; and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Admission for the concert is $15, with a discount for students. Season tickets, which include this concert and the remaining seven concerts in the series, are $50.

For more information concerning this concert or other Mitchell Museum programs, call (618) 242-1236 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday or 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Olympic athletes deserve applause

THE NAMES of Olympic stars Matt Biondi, Greg Louganis, Florence Griffith Joyner, Jackie Joyner Kersey and Janet Evans are on their way to becoming household words after their multiple gold medal performances. While the names of SIU-C's Olympic athletes may not be as familiar, we are equally proud of them. More than a dozen SIU-C athletes made the U.S. Olympic trials, which is quite a feat. Six former or current Saluki athletes made the trip to Seoul.

And, SIU-C's contribution to the Summer Olympics had an international flavor with some international students competing for the Olympic teams of their home countries.

WENDY LUCERO came closest to winning a medal. She placed sixth in women's springboard diving.

Lucero in 1985 became first Saluki woman to win a NCAA diving championship. She won the women's springboard national championship in 1987.

She was female athlete of the year at SIU-C in 1984-85.

CONNIE PRICE did not qualify for the women's discus finals. She was a record-setting basketball player for the Salukis between 1980 and 1984. She turned to track after her basketball eligibility was used up and soon had the second best throw in the nation in the discus and the third best throw in the shot put.

She was 12th in the discus at the World Championship in Rome last year and won the Athletic Congress Nationals.

SALLY ZACK may have finished back in the pack of the women's cycle road race, but she showed a great deal of perseverance in making the trip.

Zack, a 1986 graduate, turned to cycling after an injury forced her to give up cross country.

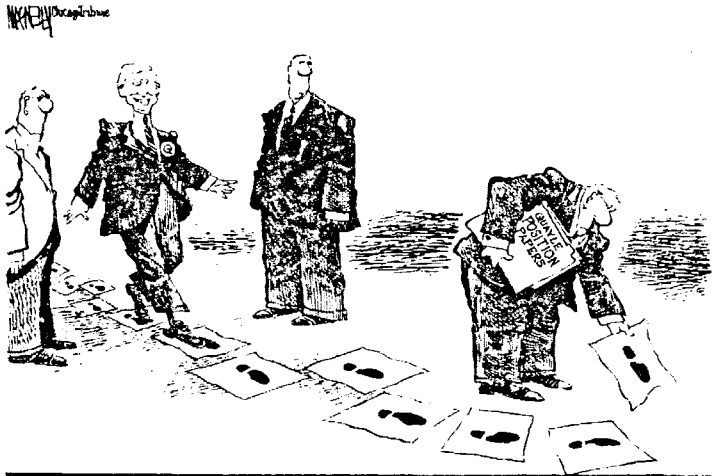

EDDIE WEDDERBURN, a 1985 All American runner for the Salukis, made it to the semi-finals of the 3,000 meter steeplechase. He was running for the United Kingdom.

Elvis Forde, also a 1985 All American, ran the 400 meters and 1X400 meter relay for Barbados.

Alex Yokochi swam for Portugal, but Saluki fans will have a chance to see the former Olympian when he swims for SIU-C this fall.

THE VETERAN Olympian has to be gymnastics coach Bill Meade. Meade has been to six Olympics in a variety of coaching roles. Meade was chairman of the gymnastics program committee in Seoul.

So, it was a diverse crowd from Southern Illinois that made the Olympic trek. There are all kinds of reasons to be proud of the U.S. performance at the summer games. The regional connection is one we can relate to.

Debate shows Quayle not only unfit for VP spot, but also as U.S. senator

AFTER THE debate Wednesday, the question of whether Dan Quayle is qualified to be president of the United States is no longer an issue. The last legitimate doubt he's left us is whether he's qualified to be a U.S. senator.

The Republicans tried their best to put a happy face on Mr. Quayle's performance in the debate — they were quick to point out that he hadn't liberated Poland or placed Mexico north of Canada — but, let's face it folks, he was awful.

From the opening bell he looked like a scared rookie playing in a league two levels above his competence. It was almost painful to watch as he struggled with each question, searching his memory bank for the index card with the answer his handlers had provided him. Sometimes he found it, very often he didn't.

QUESTIONED ABOUT his record, almost seamless, consistent of voting against programs that provide nutrition and health care for children of the poor, he said:

"What we have done for the poor is that we, in fact, the homeless bill, the McKinney Act, which is a major piece of legislation that deals with homeless. The Congress has cut the funding that the administration recommended. And the poor and poverty. The biggest thing that we have done for poverty in America is the tax-simplification act of 1986. Six million working poor families got off the payroll. Six million people are off the tax-paying payrolls because of that tax reform, and they're keeping the tax money there."

I suppose there's an answer in there somewhere, the problem is that it's the wrong answer. Trying to explain how he would use the military to help stop drug trafficking, he said:

Donald Kaul

Tribune Media Services

"AND THERE'S another thing that will be more important than the premise of this question on a hypothetical of using troops. We'll use military assets. We're not going to, we will use military assets, but we need to focus on another part of the problem."

Like syntax, perhaps. Senator Quayle speaks English as though it were his second language being sign.

He might have teetered through the evening without suffering a mortal wound, however, had it not been for the pesky persistence of Tom Brokaw. Brit Hume had already twice asked Quayle what he would do if the presidency were suddenly thrust upon him and Quayle had been unable to come up with a satisfactory answer. He'd pray, he said, he'd "traveled a number of times," he knew Margaret Thatcher.

THEY WERE strange responses, actually, because the question is in the nature of a softball. All you have to do is think "continuity" and the steps a new president must take to reassure the nation, our allies and our enemies that a firm new hand is on the tiller become fairly obvious. Apparently Mr. Quayle's "continuity" answer was stuck behind his "contra aid" card, anyway, he couldn't get it out.

Still, it was remarkable that Brokaw thought to bring up the subject yet again and give Quayle one last swing at it. This time Quayle made the mistake of playing his Jack Kennedy card, something he does freely on the stump. "I have as much experience in Congress as Jack Kennedy did when he sought the presidency," he said.

Quayle was ready for that. It was almost poetry.

"Senator," he said, "I served with Jack Kennedy. I knew Jack Kennedy. Jack Kennedy was a friend of mine."

SENATOR, YOU'RE no Jack Kennedy."

How! Right in the kisser. If the debate had been a prizefight they wouldn't have had to stop it, they could have counted Quayle out right there.

Even allowing for the possibility that the response was scripted, it didn't sound scripted. In a debate in which it was transparently obvious that both candidates were giving canned responses again and again, it came across as a moment of genuine passion, a friend rising in outrage to the defense of a martyred comrade's memory.

In the context of the evening it reinforced the image of Quayle as a pip-squeak trying to play with the big guys but not succeeding.

None of which means that Dan Quayle will not be vice president of the United States. Vice-presidential debates are not crucial to campaigns. This one was more important than most, however, and the Republicans were big losers.

What it means, actually, is that for many of us the prospect of a Bush-Quayle victory has gone from alarming to terrifying.

Bush about-faces on abortion

I would like to respond to Julie Murphy, who wrote that she intended to vote for George Bush solely on the basis of his stand against abortion.

Ms. Murphy wrote movingly about her experiences, and my intention is not to comment on the abortion issue. I would like to suggest to her, however, that before she chooses one issue on which to decide her vote, that she read up on the presidential campaign of 1980; specifically, that she read about Bush's stand on abortion before he was asked to be Ronald Reagan's running mate.

Abortion is only one of many major issues on which Bush completely reversed his stand when asked along for the ride. Has everyone forgotten that the phrase "voodoo economics" was coined by Bush, referring to Reagan? What does this about-face say about what Ms. Murphy calls "basic values?" Bush willingly, even eagerly, traded in all his basic values because he wanted what Reagan offered — the second highest office in the land.

This is exactly what teachers mean when they tell us, "If we do not study history, we are doomed to repeat it." We have had eight years of morally bankrupt officials in the highest offices in the government. If voters pick a single issue, and look only at this year's stated position on that issue, then we are indeed doomed. — Cathleen Carl, alumni, Cambria.

Cockroaches invading University

I myself haven't had to deal with cockroaches in my dorm room, but who's to say I won't have to in the near future.

Cockroaches have been found in the basement of Boomer and in parts of Thompson Point. They allegedly have been coming from the lake and woods and are passing through the drains. Talk about disgusting! Cockroaches are very unsanitary and promote health problems.

Who is to say that they won't turn up in the cafeteria! The cafeteria is supposed to be a sanitized place and if the little pests turn up there, we're going to have a major health problem.

If cockroaches spread throughout the campus, definite action will have to be taken. Buildings will have to be sprayed for the roaches and students who live in these roach infested areas will have to sanitize everything they own to destroy the roach eggs, in order to stop future infestation. — Paige Elmore.

There are good and bad tenants, and good and bad landlords

But who did clean the dirty house?

Landlords, tenants, problems make for unhappy situation

By Kimberly Clarke
Staff Writer

The dilemma at 509 S. Hays could very well be the subject of a trashy detective novel.

The house got cleaned — but who dunnit?

There are two very distinct stories about how the house was found when the new occupants moved in.

The tenants say it was full of litter and bugs and say they had to clean it with supplies that were purchased on an account their landlord has with a hardware store, with his permission.

The landlord, Henry Fisher, on the other hand says he and his workers spent hours cleaning the house before the tenants moved in.

"The windows and doors were wide open, and the house was a mess," John Soffitta, one of the tenants, said.

"I remember that house well," Henry Fisher, landlord of 509 S. Hays, said.

"We were there for a few hours hauling trash, scrubbing the floors and cleaning out the refrigerator," Fisher added.

"Well," Soffitta said, "he did clean out the refrigerator."

Soffitta and his three roommates, Brad Lee, Stason Foster and Shawn Corbin, all University students, had looked at the house in May and decided to rent it out. At that time the owner was Gary Martin.

However, when the tenants came in August to move in, they discovered they had a new landlord — Fisher.

The tenants had not been informed of the change in owners.

Although the tenants deny ever seeing it, Fisher said a card was attached to the front door saying the keys were available to him.

Fisher says he and his workers spent hours cleaning 509 S. Hays.

The current occupants say it took them a week to get the house in a "livable" condition.

Though it may be extreme, this is an example of the conflicts that occur between the tenants and their landlords.

Bad tenants give the good tenants a hard time, Bonnie Owen, owner of Bonnie Owen Realty, 816 E. Main, said.

Ten percent of the tenants cause 90 percent of the problems, Fisher said.

Unfortunately, it seems that the same equation may represent landlords too.

"I work very hard to improve my property, and I get upset when I hear, 'It's good enough for a student,'" Owen said.

There are about 7,500 to 8,000 rental dwellings available in Carbondale, Morris McDaniel, director of Code Enforcement in Carbondale, said, and about 70 to 80 citations were given last year to landlords whose units weren't up to par.

"Considering the number of rental dwelling units, the number of housing complaints turned into the office has been quite stable over the past few years," McDaniel, code enforcement director since 1985, said.

There were 148 complaints in the last fiscal year of May 1987 to April 30, 1988, McDaniel said.

A majority, 116 of the complaints, were raised because the status of the interior or the general appearance and condition of the exterior of the house was not acceptable to the tenants, McDaniel said.

Fifty percent of these were from the southeast, which is south of East Main and east of South Washington to the corporate city limits, McDaniel added.

The other 32 complaints

Stason Foster, senior in civil engineering, lives at 509 S. Hays with three other people. The tenants and the landlord disagree about who cleaned the house.

Tenants can rely on housing codes

By Kimberly Clarke
Staff Writer

Making prospective landlords prove that their housing units are in compliance with the law is one way tenants can protect themselves, Morris McDaniel, director of Code Enforcement in Carbondale, said.

Tenants should ask their landlords to see the Rental Housing Certificate of Compliance, which proves that the units conditions are in adequate shape, McDaniel said.

"For the last three and a half years, the city has conducted a structure by structure survey of generally all dwelling units in Carbondale," McDaniel said.

If the units are in compliance with the laws, then the landlord receives a Rental Housing Certificate of Compliance for that unit, McDaniel added.

This certificate states either that the unit met the minimum requirements needed concerning housing laws, or that minor violations of the law in the unit have been corrected, McDaniel said.

Tenants should ask their landlords to see the Rental Housing Certificate of Compliance.

However, if a tenant is living in a unit where the landlord may be violating the law, McDaniel has some advice for them.

"We encourage individuals to bring the problems to the attention of the owner or property manager first, if they (tenants) receive no response then we definitely encourage people to call us," McDaniel said.

The Code Enforcement Office will make inspections of dwelling units on request, and if there are violations of the law, a written notice is given to the landlord, McDaniel said.

Depending on the severity and type of violations, a time period is given to the landlord so that the violation may be corrected, he added.

"Once a time limit is set and nothing is done by the landlord, then due process of law is followed," McDaniel said.

Two things may happen, either the problems are corrected, or the owner is issued a citation, McDaniel said.

A citation is a notice to the landlord to appear in court for violation of the law.

were from citizens who complained of an apparent violation concerning the R-1 zoning districts, McDaniel said.

The R-1 zoning district is a residential district in which the maximum number of occupants of a resident in that district is one family and one unrelated person.

On the other side of rental chaos, some local landlords feel the quality of housing available to students is "good."

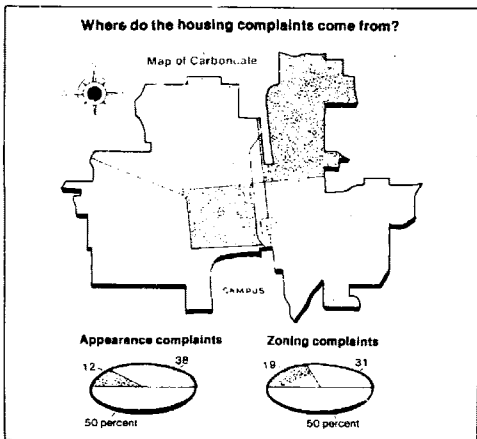

Donald Bryant Jr., whose family has been in the renting business for about 20 to 30 years, said that there is a "good supply of housing available in Carbondale."

"There are a few bad eggs, but not many," Bryant said.

"Every year since I have been in the business, since 1970, the housing has improved," Fisher said.

Shirley Meyer, property manager at Goss Property Managers, said that "good housing" and "bad housing" are relative terms and that "what some people feel is adequate, others may turn their nose up at."

"There is good property out there, and the kids are more selective," Owen said. "Students should understand their rights, and realize that they are taking on a lot of responsibility when signing a lease," Owen added. Steve Rogers, attorney at the Students' Legal Assistance Office, said that the "quality of housing has improved because more units have been built."

stating that it protects the students from overzealous salespeople, United Press International reported.

A case arose in October 1982, when a sales representative for American Future Systems, which sells cookware and china, was arrested when she refused to leave a dormitory room demonstration at the State University of New York, UPI reported.

UPI also reported that the company and several students filed lawsuit challenging the policy prohibiting commercial solicitation, but a federal district court upheld the regulation and dismissed the complaint.

Soon after, the company dropped out of the case, but the students continued their appeal, UPI said.

In March of 1988, the appeals courts ruled that the university's policy infringed the student's right to obtain information about products that interest them, and a trial judge was ordered to review the policy, UPI reported.

Art professor's arraignment rescheduled for November

Arraignment for a University art professor has been rescheduled for 2 p.m. on Nov. 22 in Jackson County Circuit Court.

Dan Wood, professor in art, will face 12 counts of aggravated criminal sexual abuse and aggravated criminal sexual assault. Wood was arrested July 1 and charged with two counts of both crimes.

The acts were allegedly committed against a Jackson County juvenile from December 1987 through June 1988. Wood plead not guilty to the charges July 20.

Ten additional charges state Wood had committed sexual acts with two other juveniles as long ago as April 1984. Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemons interviewed two juveniles in June and was told the acts took place in Wood's home in Carbondale.

Arab-American sees politics as way to reverse bigotry

Editor's note: The St. Louis Post-Dispatch recently sent its reporters around the country to gather interviews with ordinary voters who will help choose the next president. This is one story in a series.

By John M. McGuire
St. Louis Post-Dispatch

DEARBORN, Mich. — Once while a member of an Arab-American street gang, Ismael Ahmed got to see Orville Hubbard in action. The experience changed Ahmed forever.

During his 36 years as mayor, Hubbard ran Dearborn in the manner of Richard J. Daley of Chicago. Hubbard died in 1982, his principal legacy being that he kept Dearborn, a suburb south and west of Detroit, primarily a white community.

Ahmed, now 41, met Hubbard when the mayor came to the isolated Arab community of southeast Dearborn to pay a political call. "The day he was here, a man came up to him pleading about a fine he'd received for slaughtering a goat in his basement," said Ahmed, a grin creasing his face. "Hubbard listened, then turned to an aide and said, 'Fix it.' I thought, 'Boy, isn't that something to have that kind of power.'"

So Ahmed, like Mayor Hubbard, has become a political creature. He was one of 46 Arab-American delegates at this year's Democratic Convention in Atlanta. He helped get an Arab elected to the local school board.

Ahmed's neighborhood in Dearborn has been a transitional area for immigrants for more than 100 years. An estimated 200,000 Arab-Americans, perhaps the largest concentration in America, live in the Detroit area. Southeast Dearborn is their West Bank.

Syrians and Lebanese began pouring in around the turn of the century, followed by Palestinians, Chaldeans (a Christian minority from Iraq), and Yemenis.

Like blacks from the rural south, most of them were lured here by the factories. Dearborn is the headquarters for Ford Motor Co.

Ahmed's father is an Egyptian immigrant. His maternal grandmother came to South Dakota from Lebanon and later moved to Dearborn. His mother was born here.

Seventeen years ago, Ahmed helped found the Arab Community Center for Economic and Social Services in a Detroit storefront. ACCESS is the handy acronym. In newer quarters now, ACCESS is a settlement house without beds. English is taught, there is an employment service and new citizens are registered to vote.

Ahmed sees political power as the only way for Arab-Americans to reverse the cycle of bigotry and discrimination he says confronts them here.

"We really are considered the bad guys," Ahmed says. "Say our name, and the next word is terrorism."

Ahmed doesn't fit anyone's stereotype.

Reared a Moslem, he does not practice his religion; his first wife, now deceased, was an Irish-Catholic. He now lives with a woman, and between them they have five children, two girls and three boys, ages 4 to 12. Like most of his neighbors, he supported Jesse Jackson for president.

"This community provided Jackson with 8 percent of the vote total in the Michigan primary," which Jackson won, Ahmed said. "People here are liberal on foreign policy and very conservative on domestic matters. Jesse was just made for them."

The big issue for Ahmed and many of his neighbors remains the troubles in the Middle East and the "stereotyping" of American Arabs.

A platform plank at the Democratic convention on Palestine and Lebanon, which called for self-determination and integrity, failed to win approval. "But it was the first time somebody didn't stand up and choke on the word Arabic," Ahmed said.

"I think it's a different America now," Ahmed said. "My grandfather and father worked for Ford. The biggest thing for me was to work for Ford; that was stability. Now the jobs are disappearing."

Palestinian students to protest

By Diana Mivelli
Staff Writer

The General Union of Palestinian Students will silently protest against Israeli treatment of Ansar III prisoners from noon to 1 p.m. today between the Student Center and Faner Hall.

Ansar III is the desert prison where Palestinians from the uprising are kept, Darwish Mabruk, former SIU-C student associated with the union, said.

According to a handout printed by the Friends of Palestine Prisoners, poisonous scorpions, snakes and poisonous spiders populate the area under and near the tents at Ansar III.

Skin lesions and other diseases are very common due to the high temperatures and dusty climate, and many people are sent to the prison without any reasonable justification other than they are Palestinians.

"We would like for Americans and all nationalities to be aware of the uprising and what is going on," Wajdi Abdallah, senior in electrical engineering, said.

"We would like to get students to sign a protest to stop U.S. aide to Israel," he said.

The names will be sent to the U.S. government to try to do something about the situation, Hamoud Hamoud, president of the organization, said.

"Palestinians are being sent there without any kind of court trial. They are accused of causing violence and put in prison," Abdallah said.

He said the Palestinians don't want Israeli occupation and want to live free.

Union members will be protesting silently with signs and the Palestine flag, and information will be passed out.

The union's purpose, outlined on one of the handouts, is to make people aware of the situation so they will contact elected officials and humanitarian organizations to protest the conditions prevailing in Ansar III.

Former student charged with murder of baby

By Mark Barnett
Staff Writer

Veronica L. April, a former SIUC student, has been arrested and charged with three counts of first degree murder in the death of the female infant she gave birth to in April 1987, Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemons said Thursday afternoon. The Carbondale Police Department's summer-long investigation led to April's arrest Wednesday afternoon at her residence in Joliet. She was transported to Will County Jail and is scheduled to appear in Will County Circuit Court April 23 to hear the charges.

Clemons said. Jackson County authorities will then transport her to Jackson County sometime Friday. Officials allege April, a former computer science major, intentionally drowned the infant in a toilet bowl after she gave birth to the baby sometime on or after April 7.

The infant was found May 15 in a dumpster near Freeman and Hester streets, Clemons said. The murder is alleged to have been committed at 304 E. Hester St., where April was living at the time. Clemons said evidence will show that April was solely responsible for the "heinous and unusual crime." He also noted that April received no prenatal care during her pregnancy. Detectives Larry Hill, Don Barrett and Randy Corey are to be commended for conducting the investigation under difficult circumstances, Clemons said.

laboratory equipment, and that has to be replaced every 10 years to stay even with technology."

Graduating from an accredited school allows engineering students to take the engineer-in-training exam in the senior year and the professional engineering exam after four years in the field, as opposed to a non-accredited program, after which the engineer-in-training exam is taken after seven years.

The electrical engineering, mining engineering and engineering technology degrees will face reaccreditation reviews Oct. 31 through Nov. 1, by the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, Inc.

said. Health program benefits are already paid in this manner, he said.

Special legislation was enacted two or three years ago to enable universities to use state funds to pay for auxiliary employees health benefits, he said.

"We're not arguing with the Auditor General. We aren't arguing with the Legislature. It's just a difference of opinion," Hindersman said.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education is considering the legislation idea, Hindersman said.

He said legislation may be the only way to resolve the matter.

The legislation would be introduced in the spring, he said.

"It's kind of bad in a way. If we have to wait till spring, and then they don't pass it, we would have to impose a fee increase mid-year," he said.

Legislation was considered two years ago, but universities felt they had a little more time before they had to take the risk of asking for legislation, Hindersman said.

"We've been arguing with them for four or five years now. The crucial thing is the fiscal 1990 deadline. We're getting to the point where it will no longer be arguable. We have to get a determination," Hindersman said.

Monday, Hindersman attended the quarterly meeting of university financial vice presidents in Springfield. There he said he found out about the possibility for legislation.

"There was a difference of opinion among the vice presidents. Some had reservations about asking the Legislature for money. I don't know how long we will be able to argue about it. We're at an impasse," he said.

Hindersman said he did not think the LAC will be able to decide the issue.

"Maybe I believe in Santa Claus, the tooth fairy and the Easter bunny, but I think the legislature would pass it," he said.

County prosecutor accused in scheme against Dukakis

BOSTON (UPI) — A county prosecutor has been fired and charged with falsifying evidence against a cocaine dealer in an effort to discredit the presidential campaign of Democratic Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

Kevin Ross, 33, of Waltham, Mass., a former Suffolk County assistant district attorney with a reputation for single-minded pursuit of criminals, allegedly slipped a phony address book containing the names of several Dukakis advisers in with evidence collected against the dealer.

He was fired Tuesday after allegedly confessing and was released on $10,000 bail Wednesday after a hearing in U.S. District Court. If convicted, he could be fined $500,000 and imprisoned for 15 years, officials said.

Ross, who allegedly intended to discredit Dukakis because he felt the governor was soft on crime, inserted the names of Dukakis campaign chairman Paul Brountas, chief fundraiser Robert Farmer and several low-level Dukakis workers into the book, prosecutors said.

Contemporary poet T.S. Eliot will be honored by the English Department with a special reading of his work, "The Wasteland," at 8 p.m. in Morris Library Auditorium.

Aaron Aji and Roy Flannagan, both graduate students in English, are directing the tribute that commemorates the 100th anniversary of the famed poet's birth.

According to Aji, centennial celebrations are also taking place this month in England at Oxford University and in St. Louis, where Eliot was born in October, 1888.

Since SIU-C is so close to the city of Eliot's birth, the Association of English Graduate Instructors and Students decided to stage a polyphonic reading of one of the poet's most complex works.

"No one after him could overlook this one poem, either to deny it or better it," said Flannagan, referring to the significance of "The Wasteland" on 20th century poetry.

The poem and its author are difficult to classify within traditional poetry guidelines, Aji and Flannagan said, citing Eliot's variety of inspirations and literary allusions.

Most critics believe that "The Wasteland" addresses the fragmentation of the modern world, according to the co-directors.

Yet, both Aji and Flannagan said they feel this simple definition doesn't do justice to the poem's scope.

Flannagan said he believes that Eliot was commenting on the rapidly shrinking world of the 1920's, a hectic era caught between two World Wars.

"Man was beginning to realize the impossibility of a unified vision of life in the modern world," said Flannagan. "Eliot sees this vision instead as fragments of the whole of history."

Flannagan said he feels this loss of wholeness is best exemplified by the poem's eclectic structure.

Written in 1922, the 435-line poem — originally titled "He Do the Policeman in Four Voices" — encompasses six different languages, including French, German, English, and Greek.

The four voices in the piece will be presented through eight narrators, comprised of English graduate students and faculty, each with a different and distinct voice to portray.

"The Wasteland" will not be staged like a play, the directors said. Voice, not action, will be the key element of the reading.

A low-key lighting design will assist in de-emphasizing actor movement, Flannagan said.

After two rehearsals, Aji said the cast is enjoying the experimentation with vocal rhythms and dynamics.

"We're reading some sections of the poem as chants," he said. "Other smaller sections we actually sing."

Synergy Bluesfest to feature Nashville, local blues bands

By Beth Clavin
Entertainment Editor

An evening of blues is on tap at 7:30 tonight at Fred's Dance Barn in Cambria with Bluesfest, which will feature three blues bands.

The Nashville blues band, the Dusters will be featured along with Big Larry and the Carbondale Blues Revue and the Jim Skinner Band.

The event is a benefit for the Synergy crisis intervention center, 905 S. Illinois Ave., which is undergoing financial problems. The promoter of the event is Don Motz, Synergy volunteer.

Admission is $4. Fred's Dance Barn does not serve alcohol, but those attending may bring their own drinks.

Although smaller blues events have been held in the area previously, this is the first time one has been held on this large of a scale, bluesman Jim Skinner, a Synergy volunteer, said.

Motz said a similar event was held last year near Devil's Kitchen Lake, but was broken up because of parking problems. Attendance was estimated at more than 1,000, he said.

This year's event will kick off with the Jim Skinner Band, described by Skinner as not necessarily a blues-only band.

"We hope to expand into other areas," he said, "but we don't want to lose the blues image."

Skinner said the band, with the current members, has been together since June and is made up of experienced musicians from other bands.

"We're really just getting started," he said, "but I think we're making a positive impression on the music scene."

"We're serious about bringing some good, quality music," Skinner said.

Up second will be Big Larry and the Carbondale Blues Revue, which Skinner described as a "Chicago-style blues band."

He said the band has a wealth of experience, with probably 15 to 20 years per band member.

"They're very popular in this area," Skinner said. "In fact, they have quite a following wherever they go."

Skinner also praised the lead singer for the group, Big Larry, describing him as "one of the most fantastic singers I've had the pleasure of listening to."

The feature band of the evening will be the Dusters, a three-piece blues band from Nashville.

Skinner said the band is "quite hot," and has recorded an album.

Skinner emphasized that the majority of the proceeds from the event will be given to Synergy, and in order for the doors to stay open, the event will need a showing from all types of people.

"I would like students to realize that this is an event for everybody," Skinner said. "It will be like Springfest."

Council members optimistic on COBA's reaccreditation

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

Members of the College of Business and Administration Student Council expressed their concern over recent attention drawn to the college's reaccreditation, in a meeting Wednesday.

The council, made up of student business organization presidents, unanimously agreed that COBA would not lose its accreditation. But several members felt that the attention was making some business students uneasy.

"Most students don't understand what accreditation is about," Tim Arenz, president of the student American Marketing Association, said.

Ed McNamara, president of the Graduate Business Association, said that while the attention does raise the level of awareness among business students, it also creates anxiety.

"I would certainly not be coming to this school if it wasn't accredited," he said, pointing out that the school would probably lose applicants if it were to lose its accreditation.

Thomas Gutteridge, dean of the College of Business and Administration, explained that accreditation at COBA meant a stamp of approval.

"They're (accreditation review board) looking for quality students, quality faculty and a quality curriculum," he said.

Accreditation at the College of Engineering and Technology, for example, permits engineering students to take the engineering-in-training exam their senior year and the professional engineering exam after four years in the field. If the college was not accredited, the engineer-in-training exam would be taken after seven years in the field.

Lee Vandermyde, president of the Financial Management Association, said that the college's accreditation reflects its competitiveness among business schools.

Maureen Hughes, president of the COBA student council, said that in the unlikely event that the college does lose its accreditation it will not be an immediate action.

"There is a series of steps you go through (before losing accreditation)," she said. "It just doesn't happen overnight."

The bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration will face reaccreditation late this month as well as the bachelor's in accountancy.

The master's in accountancy will face initial accreditation after having been denied accreditation in 1984 because of computer laboratory and faculty problems.

GPSC requests tuition hike money provide library funds

By Brad Bushue
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Council agreed Wednesday that a tuition hike is inevitable and prepared a request that money from the proposed increase be used for specific purposes.

Council members debated the content of the request, which will be presented at the Oct. 13 Board of Trustees meeting when the tuition hike will be voted on, until they agreed on a statement that expressed ideas for the use of money from an increase.

The request asked that money raised through the increase be used to help make up for budget cuts suffered by the library and departments and academic units throughout the University.

The request also stated general opposition of the GPSC to the proposed tuition increase, and suggested that any increase take the form of a surcharge, so it would be in effect for the 1988 spring semester only.

The majority of the GPSC voted against a tuition increase, but 14 members cast their votes in favor of it.

Sonja Yuill, GPSC parliamentarian, said members supported the increase because the money is in obvious necessity to maintain the University at its current level.

A draft of a letter to the board of Trustees, President John C. Guyon and the student body expressing the GPSC's concerns was presented to the council as the originally-proposed statement. But some members criticized the letter or its emotional appeal. The letter was debated and voted down.

Peter Frederick, GPSC

member, said it was an emotional plea filled with platitudes and made the GPSC sound "stupid and undignified."

The majority of the Graduate and Professional Student Council voted against supporting tuition increase, but 14 members cast their votes in favor of it.

The letter's author, Gene Eller, College of Liberal Arts, said an emotional appeal would have more effect than a resolution because the Board of Trustees may respond to an emotional voice.

"It's a shame that GPSC has chosen to emasculate its voice by adopting a dead, bureaucratic prose," Eller said.

In other business:

The council approved the funding of the Vote For a Party - Come To Election Fest Rally to inform voters on their candidate's platforms.

The Oct. 13 voting rally will be held in front of Shryock Auditorium. The GPSC will sponsor the event with the United States Student Association, a non-partisan organization that lobbies on behalf of the student issues around the country, Trudy Hale, GPSC president, said.

Hale said, "We're finally doing something tangible to show the candidates that students are concerned and will vote."

WE ARE YOUR NEIGHBORS AND OUR EYES DON'T LIE—ABOUT NICARAGUA

We have heard the same stories as you. But we have an advantage.

We have traveled to Nicaragua to see for ourselves.

We are eyewitnesses.

We have seen:

- Brutal destruction caused by the U.S. funded contras
- Our own government's deception
- A crying need for a new U.S. policy
- An opportunity to repair some of the damage.

70,000 U.S. citizens have traveled to Nicaragua.

"I suppose everyone thinks about it because that is what we profess to be at the top of the list," Spoo said. "The stats bear out that we are doing a decent job, but our progression has been less and less during the season."

Spoo said he doesn't think the Panther defense can totally shut down the Salukis.

"You really can't do anything with a wishbone team as capable as they are. We have to recognize that they are going to get yards. We just hope they won't be the kind that deliver the big plays."

Despite being picked to finish sixth in early season polls, Spoo said the Salukis' 3-1 start this year is no fluke.

"We were picked toward the bottom of the conference last year, but finished in a third place tie and narrowly lost to (Gateway champion) Northern Iowa. I contended at the start that this year would be the most balanced the league has ever been. Rhoades wasn't exactly left with the cupboard bare either."

Something Missing?

How do you feel on Sunday? Do you look at it like the last chance to catch up on all the tasks (laundry, homework, etc.) you could have done during the week? Or, maybe, it's the time to nurse the hangover from too much partying. Perhaps if you spend Sunday with these types of activities you have the nagging feeling that something is missing. What is lacking is attention to a very large part of your being - your spiritual side.

It is no accident that Sunday appears first on our calendars. It is the day to begin our week by getting in touch with our own selves and with God - the day to prepare our "selves" for the coming week. We would like you to begin it with us. Consequently, it is only fair to inform you about what we believe and do.

We believe in the beginning the Almighty created the world and all its creatures. In addition God has created us in such a manner in which our Lord finds each of us acceptable and lovable. In short, each of us is important to and loved by God.

Therefore, God has chosen different ways, means and people to speak through the ages to communicate with human beings.

Consequently, there is room for all in our worship of God. We welcome joyful praise, we applaud the intellectual search for Yahweh and encourage service unto others in the name of Jesus the Christ, the Son of God.

Hence, our purpose is to assign Christian meaning to life in our worship, fellowship, counseling and living together as we grow and learn in a common environment.

Jesus said, "The most important commandment is this: 'Listen, Israel! The Lord our God is the only Lord. Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind, and with all your strength.' The second most important commandment is this: 'Love your neighbor as you love yourself.' There is no other commandment more important than these two." (Mark 12:29-31, TEV)

Our Sunday worship is meant to inform the participants about God and Jesus Christ, the world in which we live and how our Creator would have us live in it. Hence our worship is the deepest of praise -- obedience to God not just on Sunday morning but also during the week. Those who are looking for a social club which likes to "talk a good game" in terms of Christian rhetoric will be disappointed. People who are looking for an informal, sincere supporting community of people who are searching for God's will for their lives will be delighted. Our worshippers come from many different denominations and backgrounds. This diversity enriches our worship. Please join us. You will be most welcome!

Cross country hits the beach

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

The women's cross country team will be running on water again this Saturday as they compete in the 26-team Loyola Lakefront Invitational on the breezy, autumn shores of Lake Michigan.

Last week, the Salukis ran in the rain-plagued Saluki Invitational, and Coach Don DeNoon said this time around he is happy his team will be running on the shoreline, not in the water.

DeNoon said his team has not competed on the course before, but that really doesn't change his race-day strategy.

"I don't really do anything different to prepare for a race, we haven't run before," DeNoon said, "because most the courses are somewhat similar, except in the case of last week where the course was under water a good part of the race."

"What we do is arrive a day early (Friday afternoon) and jog through the course to familiarize ourselves with it. We then have a meeting and discuss difficult spots in the course, where to pick up speed, etc."

DeNoon said he knows temperatures should be cooler in Chicago than they are in Carbondale.

"It will probably be 40-45 degrees when we start the race at 10:15 a.m.," DeNoon said. "This is almost ideal running weather as the body temperature stays low. The only negative aspect is that your muscles sometimes have trouble warming up and they'll tie up and cramp somewhere in the race."

DeNoon said to avoid this, a long stretch period before the race is essential.

"I stress to the athletes the importance of stretching all year long," DeNoon said. "By this time of year they all have a good idea of what they need to do to prepare for the race no matter what the conditions. We'll usually warm up (stretch) for about an hour before race time."

DeNoon said the course is flat and fast and this should benefit his players, who he feels are running their best times of the year.

"Yesterday's practice went very well," DeNoon said. "I had the girls go through a 1-mile time trial. It was the fastest team effort (1 mile) I've seen since I've been coaching here."

A lot of the same teams the Salukis faced in the Midwest Collegiate tournament two weeks ago will be on tap for this race, including Illinois, Illinois State and the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

"I think we can run with them this time around."

Softball to complete season at NIU

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Shelly Gibbs, the softball team's veteran second baseman, is questionable for the fall exhibition season's finale this weekend at the Huskie Invitational in DeKalb.

Gibbs is still recovering from knee surgery.

But that hasn't kept the rest of the players from looking at the tournament optimistically.

Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said.

"They're excited to play," Brechtelsbauer said. "They're eager to get back on the field to play these schools. They're mentally ready."

The 4-1 Salukis open the tournament 8:30 a.m. Saturday against Gateway Conference rival Western Illinois. Other teams in the Salukis' pool are University of Illinois-Chicago and St. Francis.

"This is the final exam for the fall season," Brechtelsbauer said.

Eastern Illinois looking to reorganize

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

For Eastern Illinois coach Bob Spoo, it's time to go back to the drawing board. He's just hoping the Panthers get back in line before he runs out of chalk.

After the Panthers won their first three games of the season, they dropped their last two contests including a 33-13 loss to Youngstown State and a 24-12 defeat at the hands of Gateway foe Indiana State.

Lineups

"(Losing) doesn't help," Spoo said. "One thing I have found is the young people here have a lot of resilience and bounce back quickly. It would be one thing if we had been obliterated or totally out-classed."

The Panther offense is led by sophomore quarterback Eric Arnold, who has completed 89 of 168 attempts through five games for 892 yards, second in the Gateway to Western Illinois' Paul Singer.

"He is by no means where we want him to be," Spoo said. "In part, his youth is very much a factor. He has only just started about 10 games, so he is just entering his sophomore season as an athlete."

Saluki defenders Scott Barber (27), Kevin Kilgallon and Shannon Ferbrache converge on Arkansas State quarterback

Earl Easley. The Salukis, who play Eastern Illinois Saturday, will have to contain the Panthers' tailback James Marable.

Senior tailback James Marable provides offensive punch. After sitting out last season when he was beat out of his position, Marable leads the Panthers in rushing with 396 yards on 94 carries and receiving with 160 yards on 21 receipts. "Marable had shown the ability to do that two years ago, but last year with DuWayne Pitts, he just took the job away," Spoo said. "He was on the back burner all last year, but so far he has been a pleasant suprise. He has done his share to help us." Eastern's defense, often considered the pride of the program, is once again more than tough enough. The Panthers have held opponents to just 18.2 points per game, the best in the Gateway. Eastern defenders also have held the opposition to 137.6 passing yards per game and 286.4 yards of total defense, both second in the league.

Spikers set to defend 3rd Southern Classic title

By Lisa Warns
Staff Writer

SIU-C, Texas A&M, Miami of Ohio and Northeast Louisiana will converge for the Southern Classic volleyball tournament tonight and Saturday at Davies Gymnasium.

"It's time to put our best foot forward," SIU-C coach Debbie Hunter said. "We've played well in our tournament (Southern Classic) the last two years. A strong showing would give us confidence and help us turn things around."

The Salukis, 5-9, are defending champs.

Hunter wants her team to emphasize its strength — serving. "We want to give solid service. Good serving will off-balance the opponent," Hunter said.

"We intend to be aggressive and manipulative," she added. "In blocking, we have more control above the net with our arms and hands."

SIU-C's junior middle blocker Nina Brackins leads the team with 149 kills (an average of 2.87 per game) and 50 total blocks.

Lori Simpson is recovered from tendinitis of the knee. She was kill leader in six matches before being sidelined with the injury.

Hunter wants to capitalize on the home-court advantage and win the Southern Classic for the third year straight.

"The fans are an important ingredient," Hunter said. "The swim team (which comes to all matches) is priceless. They ignite a lot of excitement."

The Salukis play Northeast Louisiana at 7 p.m. Friday. This is the first meeting between the schools.

"It will be a blind experience," Hunter said.

Northeast Louisiana's senior middle blocker, Lynn Edwards, is an All-American candidate.

Edwards is ranked 15th nationally with 4486 kills per game by the American Volleyball Coaches Association and is leading in the Southland Conference with 186 kills and a .366 hitting percentage.

Northeast Louisiana, 10-3, beat Alcorn State Tuesday. "The play with Alcorn State was high school orientated so we didn't get the momentum. The match ended in 37 minutes," fifth-year Indians coach Rosemary Holloway said.

"We had some good team ball against Louisiana State a week ago. Our passing is crisp. We just can't judge our playing by the recent match with Alcorn," Holloway said. "We are trying to decrease our serving errors. We've had problems with serving, averaging about 14 service errors a match," Holloway said.

Texas A&M, which beat the Salukis in four games last season, is considered the tournament favorite.

"Texas A&M is always in a tight race with Houston in the Southwest Conference," Hunter said.

Texas A&M lost Wednesday to Houston in four games. Its record is 6-6.

The other team is Miami-Ohio.

Miami has six starters returning from a 11-21 team.

Hockey ready for home debut

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The field hockey team will hold its home opener against rival St. Louis at 4 p.m. Friday at Stehr Field.

Nothing unusual about that, except this game comes more than halfway through the Salukis' season.

After struggling to a 3-8 record on the road, the Salukis return to the comforting grass field at Stehr in hopes of breaking a two-game losing skien.

"I know I'm tired of traveling," Coach Julee Illner said. "We need to beat St. Louis."

The opponent is a familiar one. St. Louis downed SIU-C 6-

Julee Illner

Cindy Oppermann

4 earlier in the season. The Billikins also were the last team to play at Stehr, losing 1-0 back on Nov. 11, 1987.

Cindy Oppermann scored the Salukis' goal in that meeting and leads the team in scoring. Her sixth goal, gained this weekend in a loss to Miami-Ohio, puts her career total at 15 and is good for 13th on the all-time school scoring ladder.

Oppermann, a 5-7 junior, is one of three players who hail from St. Louis.

Women's tennis to play Aces in first and only home match

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

The women's tennis team, without No. 1 player Beth Boardman, will hold its home opener Friday at the University Courts against teams from four states.

Boardman will not participate at the meet because of a personal reason.

"If there's a time for her to miss, this is it," Coach Judy Auld said. "We're going into the later part of the fall season, and we don't have any conference teams left to play."

The Salukis will be pitted against depth-strong Evansville at 4 p.m. Friday, and Louisville at 9 a.m. Saturday. Southwest Missouri will play Evansville at noon on Friday, and Memphis State will play Louisville at 3 p.m. Friday.

The Salukis played Evansville last fall, defeating the Aces 9-0.

"We may have won 9-0," Auld said, "but it was a close match. I looked down the courts at one time and we were losing every match in the first set. We pulled it out OK, but it was too close."

Evansville is playing without three of last year's players, but Auld said Evansville tennis coach Chris Payne added three others that have taken up where the others left off.

Auld stressed the importance of team cooperation if success is in the cards for the Salukis this weekend.

"We have to get good matches from everybody," she said. "We can't just sit back and let one person do all the work for us."
