SIU officials mum on president list

By Bill Layne

Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

Members of the SIU Board of Trustees and of the Presidential Search Committee refused to verify the names of the alleged "four top contenders" for the SIU presidency as reported in Friday's Southern Illinoisian.

Willis E. Malone, committee chairman, would not confirm or deny the report that Warren W. Brandt, George C. Christensen, Charles A. Leone and Albert Somit are the four candidates recommended by the search committee.

Malone said he feels the responsibility for confirmation rests with the Board of Trustees.

Ivan A. Elliott, Jr., chairman of the board, said he would not verify "under any circumstances" the names that were reported.

"I believe the press has a right to know, but the press hasn't the right to embarrass individuals," Elliott said.

The Southern Illinoisian reported that the four candidates who "apparently" were recommended to the SIU Board of Trustees this week are:

—Warren W. Brandt, 51, president of Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond;

—George C. Christensen, 50, vice president for academic affairs at Iowa State University at Ames;

—Charles A. Leone, 56, vice provost for research and dean of the graduate school at Bowling Green University in Bowling Green, Ohio;

—Albert Somit, 54, executive vice president at State University of New York at Buffalo.

When contacted by phone Friday evening, three of the four named said they were, in fact, candidates seeking the position.

The three did not know, however, if they were on the list recommended by the search committee to the Board. Brandt declined to comment.

"Any comment should come from the selection committee. The selection committee should be the one to make that announcement," Brandt said.

Leone said he had visited the campus and talked to numerous people about SIU, and said he is definitely interested in the position.

"It is exciting of course. I would be

Grand Tower medical center will cut distance to doctor

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

For years, the people in the Southern Illinois towns of Grand Tower, Sand Ridge, Gorham, Howardton, Neunert, Jacob, Grimsby and Wolf Lake have been traveling long distances for their medical needs.

However, through the combined efforts of these eight communities, the people have provided for themselves the Dr. M.J. Hughes Memorial Center, located in Grand Tower, and scheduled to open Monday.

Tom Hale, member of the Old Grand Tower Lodge, said the original idea for the center came from the Grand Tower citizens.

"It was Grand Tower's idea but the people from all of these towns gave their support. Everyone donated money for the center."

Hale said the medical center is located in the Old Grand Tower Lodge Club. Hale said the club members donated their club building for the center.

"The whole place has been remodeled to the tune of $25,000," said Hale. The center is really beautiful. I can't tell you how proud we are of the work that has been done," Hale continued.

He said of the $25,000 needed, $17,000 has already been pledged. The drive to raise funds started last June.

Hale said he thinks this type of work will be an inspiration for the whole country.

"I've already received 50 calls from across the country inquiring about the center. People say they have the money and they want to start a center like ours except they don't know where to begin."

The area has been without a doctor for 10 years and Hale said it was quite an inconvenience. To get any medical service the people had to go into Carbondale or Murphysboro for the required care. Hale said just the traveling distance and expense to go that distance was terrible. He also said the ambulance service wasn't efficient.

Cedar Lake plans to get underway

By Dave Iyata
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council will soon approve hiring designers to begin drawing up plans for Cedar Lake recreation facilities, James Rayfield, city planning director, predicted Friday.

At its formal meeting 7 p.m. Monday in the University City cafeteria, the council will authorize the mayor to enter into contract with the engineering firm of Clark Dietz & Associates, Rayfield said. The Ill. Department of Conservation recently granted $9,400 to begin the design phase.

The first structure to be considered by the city will be a boat launch. Once the city approves design plans, bids for construction will be sought, Rayfield explained. Bids should be accepted by April, 1975, Rayfield added.

Construction should be completed by the end of 1975, Rayfield said. The boat launch will be located on the north-east shore of the lake at the end of Cedar Creek Road.

By awarding a design contract, the city will take the first step in a plan to develop recreational sites at Cedar Lake.

The plan drawn up by geography, geology and forestry students at SIU proposes a three-phase, 10-year development of recreation facilities in the city-owned part of the lake.

If the plan were to receive immediate go-ahead, public nature trails, picnic areas, beaches and boating facilities will dot the northern half of Cedar Lake by 1985.

"If we had time this summer, we could have done Phase I," Rayfield said. Work would then have started on a boat launch, beach, toilets, a changing house and parking.

The city has given Cedar Lake development a priority second to the implementation of $8.1 million in federal funds promised to Carbondale, according to Rayfield.

Cedar Lake is located several miles south-southwest of the city. By next year it is expected to replace Crab Orchard Lake as the major water source for Carbondale.

During the August drought, the city drew emergency supplies from the recently completed reservoir.

The SIU advisory team's recommendations for the southern half of Cedar Lake will reach the city on September 30, according to David Arey, professor in charge of the team.

Students may dodge city bike laws

By Dave Iyata
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Even if the Carbondale City Council amends the bicycle registration ordinance, SIU students may still be able to duck city law and register their machines only once, according to Mayor Neal Eckert.

All this would be if the University refused to change its own bicycle regulations, Eckert said Friday. "We would have a mess," the mayor said.

Whether persons will have to re-register yearly will depend on where they registered in the first place — at the Carbondale Police Community Relations Center at 312 S. Illinois St., or at the SIU Security Office on campus, Eckert said.

The bicyclist must go by the rules of the agency with which he is registered, Eckert said.

City police will not issue tickets to bicyclists who have registered with the SIU Security Police, Eckert said.

City ordinance requires their machines annually; as amended, the ordinance states that decals would be issued in lieu of new license plates for bikes each year, Eckert explained.

However, SIU rules have bike-riding students register only once. Plates are good indefinitely, and yearly re-registration is not necessary.

"By far, whatever we do, it would be better to be in concurrence with the University," Eckert said. Eckert agreed that the situation was like that between two neighboring states — as long as a vehicle is licensed by one government, it may be operated within the borders of the other.

Eckert said he hoped to speak to University officials before the Council meets Monday. SIU has not contacted the city to discuss bicycle rules yet, Eckert said.

The City Council will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in the University City cafeteria. The council will vote on an amendment calling for stick-on decals instead of renewed license plates.

An important aim of the city's bicycle ordinance is safety, Eckert said. When applying for plates or decals, bicyclists would be required to have their machines inspected for safety features, according to the ordinance. These features include functional brakes, a horn or bell and reflectors and a light at night.

According to a study by the state, Carbondale's bicycle accidents are double the national average, Eckert said. National statistics show that out of all accidental injuries in 1972, 3.6 per cent were bicycle-related nationally, while 7.7 per cent involved bicycles here in Carbondale, Eckert pointed out.

Bicycle injuries between 1968 and 1971 averaged 10 a year, while injuries in 1972 climbed to 21, Eckert said. He added he thought the number of accidents is still rising proportionate to the increasing number of bicycles in Carbondale.

Orescanin, Leffler ask dismissal of indictments

By Gary Delsohn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A motion to dismiss criminal indictments against Danilo Orescanin, former executive vice president of SIU, and Thomas Leffler, suspended chief of SIU Security Police, will be heard Friday in circuit court in Murphysboro.

The officials were indicted July 25 on charges of tampering with public records. Orescanin was charged with "concealing the true nature of expenditures tabbed to the SIU president's official functions account," in connection with liquor vouchers processed for the Carbondale Holiday Inn. Leffler was charged with "aiding and abetting Orescanin," according to States Attorney, Howard Hood.

The motion, filed Sept. 5, claims the indictments "fail to state an offense" and contain "an allegation of falsification which could seriously mislead a jury and prejudice the defendants."

The motion also argues that the indictments "fail to state an offense" and contain "an allegation of falsification which could seriously mislead a jury and prejudice the defendants."

The motion also argues that the indictments fail to state the nature of the offense, lack the necessary certainty required by law to state an offense, fail to inform the defendants of the offenses charged and contain separate allegations of criminal conduct which give rise to allegations of three separate offenses within each single count.

The motion further states the "indictments cannot be amended without creating substantial injustice to the defendants."

When asked about the nature of the potential injustice, David Watt Jr., attorney for the men, said "I try my cases in court."

Orescanin requested transfer from his administrative duties to a full-time teaching position after an audit revealed irregularities in restricted University accounts he handled.

He is now a professor of administrative sciences in the School of Business. Leffler was suspended with pay shortly after the indictments were handed down.

Black orientation set

By Dan Thomas
Student Writer

The Black Affairs Council will present a black student orientation at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Student Center, Ballroom D.

This will be "designed to fit specific needs of black students," said Harry J. Jane III, black affairs council treasurer-controller.

Speakers at the event will include Dean Stanley H. Smith, College of Human Resources, and Clifford Harper, director of the Black American Studies program, according to Edgar Philpot, Jr., Black Affairs Council coordinator. The guest speaker will be Silas

Purnell, director of Educational Services, who will speak on "the role of black students in the financial aid program," Philpot said.

Other topics to be covered include educational matters and other problems blacks might have, said Lane. He said the developmental skills program in the area of education will be emphasized.

Each office in the black affairs organization will have a booth set up, according to Philpot, with a representative on hand to answer students' questions.

Also featured in the program will be the Black Fire Dancers, an SIU group which perform modern and African dance.

proud to become president of SIU," he said.

When asked if he felt revealing the names at this stage of the selection process might jeopardize his candidacy or compromise his current position at Bowling Green, Leone said, "No, no, not at all. It's exciting. It is an honor to be this far along in the selection process. It is a great university and I would be proud to be president of SIU."

Somit said he is a candidate and was "very much interested in the university." He said it doesn't bother him that his name was released to the press as an apparent candidate, and that he had talked with his university's president about his seeking the job at SIU before he visited SIU during the summer.

Christensen, who said he did not apply for the position but was nominated, stated that SIU "is a very fine institution."

Malone said that five individuals visited SIU during the summer at the invitation of the search committee. One candidate, however, later withdrew his name voluntarily from consideration for the $50,000-a-year post.

Malone confirmed that all four persons named in the Southern Illinoisan story had visited SIU for a two-day tour of the campus between July 15 and Aug. 8.

Dennis Sullivan, student body president, said he has been assured by the search committee that he "will have met or interviewed or had had the opportunity to meet" all persons being recommended to the board.

Sullivan said he met with four of the five candidates who visited SIU, and had knowledge of the fifth. He verified the names of Brandt, Christensen, Leone and Somit as being among the five who came here.

"I would hope they (the board) go along with the search committee's recommendations," Sullivan said.

Hiram H. Lesar, 62, has been interim president since David R. Derge resigned under fire last March.

Board of Trustee members who refused to confirm or deny the alleged recommendations are: William W. Allen, Harold R. Fischer and Willard Moore. Trustees who could not be reached for comment are Margaret Blackshire, Harris Rowe, Richard A.

Haney, Mathew Rich and Donald L. Hastings, Jr.

Search committee members who refused to verify the alleged recommendations are: Richard Arnold, Don Booker, Alfred Lit, Sue Pace and Jack Simmons. Those who could not be reached for comment are: William O'Brien, Stanley Smith, Jeff Tilden, Brenda Stanley, William Greenspan, Rosia M. Kerrens and Larry Jacober.

Women's Center has new home

By Pam Black
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Women's Center is being relocated from 404 W. Walnut to 408 W. Freeman in a six-bedroom, three-story house. The move will begin Saturday.

"We feel we can handle more people in a larger house," explained Kay M. Allen, president of the Women's Center Board. "It's no sudden decision," said Allen. "We knew we were going to move since last spring."

After 2½ years, the lease at the old location expired Sept. 1 and was not renewed.

"We are looking forward to being in our new surroundings and continuing working with women. There's room for all women, and hopefully, we will have something to offer all women," said Allen.

The upper level bedrooms of the new house will be used for guests, and the lower level will house the residents of the center. The fulltime residents have been increased from two to three women, said Allen.

The center will be able to use more volunteers now. "As many as come in," said Allen.

The center will host an open house Sunday, Sept. 15. Activities will include a tour of the new house with information on "what we're all about," Allen said. Refreshments will be served during the open house, scheduled from 4 to 7 p.m.

The Women's Center will begin regular operation in its new quarters Sept. 16. It will be open from 9 a.m. until 11 p.m. Hopefully, by Oct. 1, the center will be open for emergency housing, said Allen.

No special programs have been planned in for the Women's Center, but all regular activities will continue, said Allen.

The Mock Turtle Crafts Gallery which was organized by the center is operated by volunteers at 816 S. Illinois St. The gallery displays and sells hand crafted items made by Southern Illinois artists.

One-third of the Mock Turtle's revenue is used to finance the non-profit organization.

The center is partially funded by private funds, and receives some funds from the United Fund and the Jackson County Mental Health Board.

The center offers special interest programs to women, provides speakers for interested organizations and classes and is a meeting place for women's groups. It is also an information and referral center for women.

Overnight shelter for women and their children is a service offered by the center. Also available is a program of problem pregnancy counseling and testing.

Workshops show poor attendance

The second series of workshops on the "Black Aging and Aged" have had very poor attendance, according to Jean Dorsett—Robinson, director of the "Training Community Persons to Provide Quality Services to the Aged" program at SIU's Rehabilitation Institute.

The lectures are being held at the Eurna C. Hayes Multi—Purpose Center, located at 441 E. Willow in Carbondale.

Saturday's lecture, "Psychological Aspects of Aging," will be given by Irene Hawley, assistant professor of the Rehabilitation Institute.

Robinson said the attendance was poor because the lectures are on Saturday mornings 9 a.m. to 12 noon. She said she had requests to go to other communities, but the program doesn't have enough funds.

"The content or the presentation of the lectures had nothing to do with the poor attendance," she said.

Robinson said about five persons have attended each lecture.

"The workshops are geared toward those providing services for the aged. Since very few blacks are in administrative positions, the attendance has been by mostly whites who run projects", Robinson said.

"The purpose in mind is to provide services to the aged and to make the provider of services aware that there is a need to understand the differences among and between ethnic groups," Robinson said.

Robinson said the aged should not be grouped into a mass category because all aging persons are not the same.

"Some elderly Blacks have come to the lectures to tell the providers about things as they see it," she said.

The last two lectures of the workshops will be given on Sept. 21 and Sept. 28.

Plan calls for shutdowns

Local railroads in jeopardy

By Gary Delsohn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A federal plan calling for abandonment of several key railroad lines in southern Illinois has been "objected to" by the Illinois Commission for Economic Development (ICED).

The U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) proposal "neglected the affects such a program would have on the community," according to ICED Executive Director, Robert Mattson.

Mattson said the proposal calls for abandonment of one-fourth of all freight tracks in Illinois. The bulk of these are in central and southern Illinois, he explained.

The ICED held public hearings last spring in Marion, Mattson, Decatur and Bloomington to "give the folks in the community a chance to express their opinion," Mattson said.

Persons representing power companies, small businesses and grain elevators were invited by Mattson to testify at the hearings.

Mattson said he was upset at the DOT's failure to consider the affects of abandonment on local economies. He said the ICED conducted the hearings and sent the findings to people in Washington working on the plan.

Mattson said the abandonment plan came after the January 2 passage of the Rail Reorganization Act. The act called for the DOT to study U.S. railways for the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC). The ICC then used the study as the basis of a reorganizational plan to be presented before Congress.

Mattson said his commission hopes to offer resistance to the proposal with the testimony gathered at the hearings.

He said the proposal offers no viable alternatives for transportation. Many roads in the southern Illinois aren't suited for truck transportation and many industries depend on the railways, he said.

Mattson said the U.S. Railway Association, a newly formed agency, is charged with the responsibility of submitting a final plan to the DOT before Oct. 29, the multiple considerations.

Watergate, if forgotten, will happen again

Some Americans seem to have an uncanny propensity toward forgetfulness. They witness the unfolding of history, weigh the pros and cons of various events brought into focus by purveyors of the news, and then take this information, neatly wrap it up and throw it away. Thus, history has served its purpose and lessons have been learned. Or have they?

Watergate, to many people, is history. President Nixon and his top aides are gone. Their shameful deeds, once protected by the facade of "executive privilege," no longer threaten the democratic process. The whole dark affair is old and tired news. After all, Nixon himself, once proclaimed: "One year of Watergate is enough." And his successor to the "throne" has declared that it is time to "bind up the wounds" and get back to business-as-usual.

But how can the American people "bind up the wounds?" On the surface it would appear that this would entail forgiving and forgetting. Well, forgiving is up to the courts. No useful purpose can be served by lynching Nixon and his gang. The Constitutional process comes into play here, and punishment must be meted out accordingly.

Forgetting, on the other hand, is a matter which confronts each and every American.

In this particular case, the underlying logic (or illogic) of American forgetfulness presumes merely that the darkest scandal in U.S. history has been washed away.

Yet the record of governmental amorality still stands. Nixon, Dean, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell and company literally scoffed at the rights of every American citizen. They shouted for law and order, while at the same time they broke nearly every law in the book. They attempted a smooth, orderly "democratic coup" by abusing the powers entrusted to them, and accused the media of doing the same thing. Their tactics reeked of hypocrisy and self-righteousness. And it is now clear that what they were striving for was a democracy unto themselves, leaving the American people with the crumbs of a dictatorship.

Although it is difficult for any American to envision life under a dictatorship, the fact remains that "it could happen here." That is the lesson to be learned from Watergate. And if it is forgotten, then it assuredly can and will happen again.

Computers don't err, humans do

To the Daily Egyptian:

Please avoid using the computer as a scapegoat when the results of a data processing system are not correct. The statement in the Daily Egyptian story of 8-29 "Computer bungles, scatters students" that the Journalism 341 students were scattered across campus "Thanks ... possibly to a computer bungle" is incorrect and creates a public prejudice against computers.

Likewise, the Southern Illinoisan 8-28 story "Computer puts Derge's class in storeroom" stating "A computer error by the registrar's office had the class scheduled in a storeroom in the Home Economics building" indicates how little the general public knows about computers.

Information processing systems are made up of both people and machines, and are normally quite complex. But just to set the record straight, any errors in the output of such systems are human errors and not the fault of the hardware. Most computers are designed with self-checking circuits, but there is no way for a computer to correct incorrect input data or human errors any more than a typewriter can correct a typist's errors.

The computer is a powerful tool for mankind to use but it is not a "brain." It is the human being who can and must think. There is a saying among data processing people, "Garbage in, Garbage out!"

This short letter can only begin to clarify this general misunderstanding about computers, but, if you or any of your readers want to know more about them, we would be happy to have you in one of our courses. But PLEASE DON'T BLAME THE COMPUTER FOR HUMAN ERRORS.

"Decent American" indecent

To the Daily Egyptian:

On occasion I chance upon an article, so written, that it violates the paper it is printed on. Such an article appeared in your September 3 issue under the title of "The Decent Americans." I cannot exclaim enough astonishment as to how such an article could possibly involve good taste and issues rather than personalities as your paper prescribes.

First of all, and most importantly, I would like to enlighten your readers to what the previous article's author called a "glorious war which brought peace and democracy to Southeast Asia." The war in Indochina was a disastrous attempt at showing off the American prowess for peace-making, and even the decent Americans have realized this by now. There was nothing glorious about the war, in fact, it was like dragging the U.S. through dirt in the eyes of the other nations.

This is peace? According to a U.S. News & World Report from October 29, 1973, since the cease-fire has been in effect, violations are rampant. Saigon claims 26,000 Communist violations of the cease fire, which include 9,700 soldiers and 1,650 civilians killed. The Communists have claimed over 240,000 violations of the cease fire by Saigon, including the deaths of over 6,000 civilians. The war remains, regardless of U.S. intervention, a power struggle between North and South Vietnam.

Further on the author seems to contend that our moral values should be dictated to every citizen by the President. In this democratic country, people are free to decide their own moral values, as long as they are within the law. How can a 19 year old accept the fact that he may lose his life, when ordered to do so by a President three times older than he. Of the over 56,000 American dead, two thirds were only 21 years or younger.

A Conscientious Objector is not a coward, but a human being who could not bring himself to kill others. The numerous and trying aspects to achieve a C.O. status are so that it is almost understandable as to why they would leave our country.

In conclusion, I again urge you to screen your future editorials for factual information, and disregard articles such as the previous one that is so seriously undermined by the ignorance and obvious incompetence of the author concerning this subject.

Murphy's assignment is effective Sept. 16, according to Howard W. Busch, state conservationist for the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). Murphy will be responsible for the supervision of SCS field operations for 15 counties in the Carbondale area.

The SCS is the USDA agency responsible for developing and carrying out a program of conservation of soil, water and related sources.

Volunteer work with physically handicapped children earned Catherine McHugh, professor in the School of Music, the annual Elizabeth Meehan award given by Archway, a center for handicapped children.

McHugh has contributed two half-days a week for the past 1 1/2 years to teach music to handicapped children.

Inflation forces schools to raise lunch prices

By The Associated Press

The American housewife is not alone in her battle against inflation in the kitchen. The nation's schools are facing higher prices, product shortages and hesitant suppliers as they feed more than 25 million schoolchildren.

The result: schoolchildren now have to leave home with some extra change in their pockets in order to pay for that chocolate milk or apple pie with whipped topping.

An Associated Press survey of school districts shows the cost of preparing a meal has increased 10 to 30 per cent. Children now are paying between 30 and 60 cents, 5 to 10 cents more than they did last year, than they did last year.

Price fluctuations also have caused the schools problems in obtaining suppliers for long-term contracts. Bids are being accepted for shorter periods and many contain an escalator clause that allows the supplier to pass along cost increases.

"We buy on the open market now because nobody wants to sell to us under contract because the price fluctuates so," said Charles Murphy, bid clerk for the San Francisco public schools cafeteria purchasing division.

Howard Briggs, director of food service for the Detroit public schools said: "We used to be able to get a bid and have a firm price for the year. That's no longer possible."

Higher costs and shortages have caused minor changes in some menus. Apple sauce has replaced peaches. Ice cream is served on a plate and not in the costly sugar cone.

None of the supervisors surveyed reported a reduction in the number of meals served or a lowering of quality because of inflation.

Meat was a big problem last year for the schools, but the Agriculture Department made large purchases of beef this year and almost all the schools in the current survey said they have encountered no problems in getting meat.

In New York City, where 91 million lunches were served in 1973, Julius Jacobs, director of the city's bureau of school lunches, said there is plenty of meat this year but there will be less ham on the menu because of its cost and low acceptance by the children.

Most of the supervisors said they served meat for or five times a week with meatless days only in order to vary the menu.

Shortages reported by the supervisors include flour, canned goods—especially fruits—cereal products, and shortening.

Police chase starlings out of Tatum Heights

Until a week ago, the southeast side of Carbondale was going to the birds—15,000 to 20,000 starlings migrating in from the countryside, to be exact.

In late July, Tatum Heights residents called in complaints about the flying nuisances, according to a member of the city's Code Enforcement Dept.

The starlings around Birch Lane gave the ground a rank-smelling blanket of feathers and droppings, John Yow said Friday.

On the evening of August 27, Yow and Officers Donald Johnson and Norman Horner of the Police Community Relations Center set out to chase off the birds. To the battleground they took three shotguns, 500 rounds of noisemaking shells and a recording of starling distress calls.

"It seems like sound is what scares them away," Yow explained. The "cracker shells" are designed to explode four seconds after leaving the barrel of a gun. Combined with the recorded screams of injured starlings, the shells chased off about 4,000 birds the first night, Yow said.

Every evening for the next few days, 4,000 starlings fled the sound effects. Friday morning Yow said Tatum Heights residents "believe the majority of starlings have left that area."

Yow called the $112 project "a pretty good success." The only problem encountered was a few cracker shells that exploded in the gun instead of 300 ft. in the air, Yow said.

No one was hurt, but the concussion "darn near knocked the gun out of your hand," Yow added.

City officials were uncertain whether the starlings would ever return.

SIU Soccer Club kicks off season with match against Vanderbilt

The first interschool sports competition of the season hits SIU Saturday at 3 p.m. when the Soccer Club tangles with the Vanderbilt Commodores.

"This weekend's competition could be a good indicator of what is in store for local fans as far as the upgraded quality of competition this season," said Habel, the club president. "If we fair well this weekend, this could be one of our most productive seasons ever."

Soccer practices are held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday at 4 p.m. for all interested students.

These forms must be turned in prior to the appropriate deadline, or the team will not be included in the schedule of games.

Jockey wins

ALBANY, Calif. (AP)—Exactly 25 years after riding his first winner, 43-year-old Willie Shoemaker rode Agitate to victory in the rich California Derby at Golden Gate Fields. Shoemaker won his first of more than 6,000 races at the same track on April 20, 1949.

Flag football and bowling rosters were due Friday.

Students may sign up individually after the deadlines and their names will be added to official teams. Anyone who does not have a team but wants to play should call 453-2631 or go to Room 205A, Women's Gym, and her name will be added to a team.

Those people who have signed up to officiate flag football and-or volleyball are reminded that they must have an A.C.T. on file at the Student Work and Financial Assistance Office. They must pick up a referral form from that office and bring it to Room 205A, Women's Gym, as soon as possible.

Officials will not be paid if they have not completed the appropriate forms.

Monday night's intramural activities include synchronized swimming at 5:45, advanced dance, 6, and volleyball, 7.

Tuesday's schedule has beginning dance at 5:30 and synchronized swimming at 5:45. Starting at 7 are bowling, intermediate dance, gymnastics, tennis and showing of dance workshop films.

Lettermen lead CCHS golfers

By David Hamburg
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two lettermen, senior Gary Goro and junior Kevin Klaine, "are going to have to carry the load" this fall when Carbondale High's golfers take to the links.

CCHS golf coach, Tim Tarr, who returns to the helm after a three-year absence, emphasized he is depending "a whole lot" on the talents of Goro and Klaine to see the Terriers through this season.

The two led the team to a season-opening 158-170 win over Harrisburg Friday afternoon at Midland Hills Golf Course.

This is a rebuilding year for CCHS, and Tarr asserted, "I don't consider it anything but!"

"We're young in our depth," Tarr assessed. "Any depth we have is in our young kids, and they have to remember to keep thinking in terms of the team. The difference between a 90 and a 91 could mean the difference in a match," he added.

In fact last year's squad, which was 11-0 in dual meets, fell one stroke short of winning the South Seven Conference tournament. It also failed to qualify for the State tournament — missing by only two strokes. But the Terriers copped the District title and won the Centralia tournament.

This year it's a whole new ballgame, though.

"Some other kids could come through," Tarr said. Among them are sophomores Sam Rinella and Tom Paine, and seniors Ken Serfass and Tad Folland.

Although Terrier chances for a conference title are improbable, Tarr isn't quite sure who will take top prize.

"The coaches lie to each other," Tarr mused. "The last time I saw the South Seven coaches they all lied about hurting so bad. So I really can't make any comment on who will win the conference."

This year marks the first time that golf will be played in the fall rather than the spring. This change, according to Tarr, was made for the benefit of Chicago area teams that have trouble gaining access to golf courses.

"The Illinois High School Association changed golf from spring to fall, but left it open to return to the old format," said Tarr.

"I like the spring time, but as far as course usage is concerned, people usually stop playing golf after Labor Day at Midland Hills," Tarr mentioned. Midland Hills Golf Club is the home base for Terrier linksters.

"The course is not long, but it's tough," explained Tarr. "It's very important to place your shots well."

This will be a tough year for CCHS golf. The team lost six seniors last year and is in the process of picking up the pieces.

Harriers set Sunday meet

The Saluki harriers will display their talents for the first time this year in an interschool and intraschool meet Sunday at 1 p.m.

Lincoln Land Junior College of Springfield, a perennial track power, will send five runners against a pair of Saluki squads—the freshmen and the veterans.

"This should be highly competitive," said Saluki Track Coach Lew Hartzog. "It's always a lot of fun. Besides, Lincoln Land is going to finish pretty high in the national finals this year."

The visiting quintet is sparked by national junior college six-mile champion Sonny Wilburn, who beat the Salukis' best, Gerry Craig, handily last year. A week after that meet, he ran a close second to Illinois' Craig Virgin.

Peter Richardson, Paul Craig, Bill Britten and Bruce Patterson will team with area resident Ken Nalder, an Australian-born distance star, to form the freshman squad.

John St. John, Tom Fulton, Jerry George, Garv Mandehr and Howie Bryant constitute the "old men's" squad.

The run will begin at 1 p.m. northwest of the Saluki baseball diamond.

Carbondale senior Gary Goro practices his woods at the Terriers' home course, Midland Hills.

Terrier defense gets first test tonight

By David Hamburg
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Carbondale's high-powered offense and "untried" defense prepared for battle on the gridiron Saturday night, as the Terriers host arch-rival Murphysboro at 8 p.m. at Bleyer Field.

Although the two teams are no longer in the same conference, the game is still featured as a grudge match. The annual affair dates back to 1921 when the Red Devils blew the Terriers off the field to the tune of 124-7. Carbondale, however, has come a ways since then, and the series record reads: Carbondale—24 wins, Murphysboro—28 wins. There have been two ties.

Carbondale is young and inexperienced this year, and new head coach, Tom O'Boyle, is less than optimistic about his team's chances.

"We don't appear to be psyched up for Murphysboro, but we damn sure better get that way soon," he warned. "We've lost to them only once in 11 years. I hope Herrin is still undefeated when they play us in our third game." "I personally don't think they know how to get high for a game," O'Boyle said of his players. "There's a lack of leadership on the part of the seniors and I don't know why. I'm their coach and preparer, but they've got to do it. Carbondale has a tradition of winning ball," he emphasized.

O'Boyle said, "I feel we have about 20 potentially good football players. We're putting all of our eggs on offense. The defense is just untried. I don't know how good they are."

O'Boyle foresees many problems in the upcoming season. The Terriers are riding the crest of a six-game winning streak, finishing last year with a record of 7-4.

"We're opening up with what I consider four tough teams for us," said O'Boyle. The first four opponents are Murphysboro, Centralia, Herrin and Urbana. Centralia and Mt. Vernon are expected to vie for the South Seven crown. The Terriers host Mt. Vernon in the season's finale.

"We will be extra fortunate to win six or seven games," O'Boyle stated. "If we break even I won't be satisfied, but it will be a little more realistic."

O'Boyle, a former grinder who served as SIU defensive coordinator the past six years, said he is pinning his hopes on a powerful backfield, including senior quarterback Kevin Accola and able back-up man Phillip Waters. Joining Accola and Waters will be sophomore fullback Bret Dougherty who, at 5'7" and 175 pounds, should provide quite a punch. Senior Mike Lacey will return at the running back slot along with split end Bruce Douglas. Lee Taylor and Scott Eriksen will see plenty of action at the end positions and Dave Hayden will handle the centering chores.

Other seniors to watch are tackles Craig Swinburne and Chuck Feirich, and guard-linebacker Randy Bernhard.

The kicking situation is "poor," said O'Boyle, who warned, "our punters better get better."

The punting will be handled by junior Doug Weaver Jr. and sophomore Mark Klasek. Accola and junior Bob Bleyer will combine on field goals and extra points.

Both prep and college football begins today, but the Salukis, under first-year coach Doug Weaver, have another week yet to prepare. Weaver is in Wichita, Kan., today to scout New Mexico State's opener against Wichita State. The Salukis play New Mexico State in the opener next Saturday.
