Two Iranian student groups fight at Student Center meeting

By Douglas Hamm
Staff Writer

A meeting between opposing Iranian student groups, which erupted Friday evening in the Kaskaskia Room of the Student Center, resulted in injuries to seven persons but no arrests were made, according to the SIUC police.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said he learned of the fight Friday and that he will be checking security reports of the incident to determine if there were any violations of the SIUC student code.

"We certainly don't want World War III starting in the Student Center," Swinburne said. "I don't know what charges will be made against the parties involved but I anticipate that there were violations of the student code."

According to SIUC police, the fight occurred at a Muslim meeting that was open to the public. The meeting was attended by about 30-40 Ayatollah Khomeni and anti-Khomeini students.

SIUC police said the fight began after pro-Khomeini students refused to allow anti-Khomeini students to speak at the meeting. Anti-Khomeini students then attacked and injured the pro-Khomeini students and they tore up several Khomeni posters and overturned chairs. The pro-Khomeini supporters refused to press charges against the anti-Khomeini students.

Heydar Vatanbashah was the only Iranian whose injuries were severe enough to require hospitalization and he was taken by ambulance to Memorial Hospital. The other injured Iranians were treated at the scene by ambulance attendants.

Nasrollah Gharbazarjad told police the anti-Khomeini attending the meeting to protest the Khomeni regime. He said there have been problems between the two groups because pro-Khomeini supporters have torn down notices put up by anti-Khomeini students.

Gharbazarjad also claims that the pro-Khomeini supporters received $300 a year from the Iranian government to support anti-Khomeini students and make a list of them. He said that when anti-Khomeini students return to Iran they are executed. Pro-Khomeini supporters could not be reached for comment.

Beverly Walker, foreign student affairs advisor, said the incident was in line with the situation occurring in Iran.

NATO accuses Soviets of violations

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - The North Atlantic Treaty Organization said Monday the Soviet Union violated the spirit of East-West peace agreements by not telling the Western alliance how many troops are on maneuvers near Poland.

A NATO spokesman said there was also concern because Western observers had not been invited to the current nine-day war games.

Permanent representatives of the alliance's 15 member nations discussed the maneuvers Monday, the spokesmen said, and concluded that "the failure of the Soviet Union to provide the number of participating forces raises serious reservations.

The official Soviet news agency Tass has said more than 100,000 troops are being taken part in sea, air and land exercises in the Baltic Sea, the Soviet Baltic states and the western Soviet republic of Byelorussia bordering Poland. Tass reported Monday that naval and air forces stationed small mock battles in preparation for larger engagements before the war games end Saturday. The Soviet reports indicate that the pace of the maneuvers has been gradually increasing.

In a rare official comment, the NATO spokesman said the Soviet Union notified Western countries of the maneuvers Aug 14 but did not say how many troops would be involved.

The spokesman said the Soviets have been asked to explain why the figure was omitted but have not done so.

NATO members Belgium, West Germany and the United States have made similar separate protests recently.

WASIIINGTON - Congress returns this week from an eight-week recess facing pressured for another round of politically expensive spending cuts. President Reagan hopes the new cuts will shore up the sagging support for a new wave of Wall Street and help keep his promise of a balanced budget in 1984.

Administration analysts, as well as congressional and private economists, have warned that the cutback in the month that high interest rates and lower government revenues resulting cuts early tax cuts will push budget deficits for 1982 and beyond well above administration targets.

While not looking forward to cutting programs they know will soon enact a record $35.2 billion package of budget reductions July 31, some of Reagan's congressional supporters say privately they are pleased the administration is beginning to realize that its current estimates were too optimistic.

Terry Murphy of the Carter Administration said Kilgust has been "helpful in the Schumaker administration."

Chairman Kilgus as used as a "continuing supporter of SIUC without in a manner that the assembled faculties and students could say he was doing so without making a manifestation of support for SIUC."

Kilgust, along with many of the others at SIUC, were against the current SIUC president doing a "favoritism of a kind that is expected of a former president of a former president of a former president of a former president of a former president."

Kilgust was the only one of a new list of budget cuts, including the previously exempt defense budget, that the administration was striking where there was a possibility of a new list of budget cuts, including the previously exempt defense budget.

The administration is striking where there was a possibility of a new list of budget cuts, including the previously exempt defense budget. The administration is striking where there is a possibility of a new list of budget cuts, including the previously exempt defense budget.

Among other items on the agenda this week:

Confirmation hearings for hypothetical Barbara Brown O'Connor, nominated by Reagan to be the first female member of the Supreme Court

Reagan is to send a formal notice to Congress asking it to use $5 billion in supplemental AWACS surveillance planes and equipment for F-15 fighter planes to Saudi Arabia.

Fired air controllers march in New York Labor Day parade

NEW YORK (AP) — Hundreds of striking air traffic controllers joined Monday in the city's first Labor Day parade in 13 years, but the man who fired them—President Reagan—was not invited to participate.

Reagan was coming to town anyway, to present a symbolic $25 million check to Labor Day Today to aid Edward I. Koch for the start of the the One-way Westway highway project.

An estimated 200,000 people had been expected to march up Fifth Avenue from 29th to 42nd streets in the Labor Day parade "celebrating a century of labor progress."

Koch was to walk with the Uniformed Fire Officers' contingent and Terence Cardinal Cooke planned to watch the festivities from the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral between 50th and 51st streets.

Solidarity members debate future

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Solidarity unionists meeting in this Baltic port Monday debated the nature of their union and considered proposing a national referendum on withdrawal from the union. At the same time, more than 300 students and Solidarity workers were reported manuevering beyond Poland's borders and in the Baltic Sea on exercises which may be intended to challenge the union movement. NATO on Monday accused the Gorbachev government of violating the spirit of the West-East peace accords by failing to respect officially the number of troops involved.

In the northwest city of Bydgoszcz, meanwhile, 160 prisoners who had barricaded themselves in a jail ended their protest peacefully, the official news agency PAP said. About 50 prisoners were released Saturday night and rioted about 90 were arrested, the agency said.

One Solidarity delegate, holding their first national congress since the independent union was formed during shipyard strikes here a year ago, began debates over the union's power structure after two days of procedural exercises.

The hardline army daily Solidarity worker, who is the union's decision to ban Polish state television from the congress "confirmed the general opinion that the road to genuine agreement is still far away."

One Solidarity delegate, holding the congress of Gdansk, suggested the union eliminate from the congress a clause referring to the leading role of the Communist Party in Poland. Hesitancy to accept the clause was a factor in delaying registration of Solidarity as a union here last October.

Two U.S. fighter jets collide

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two fighter jets collided on the flight deck of the USS Kitty Hawk during maneuvers in the Indian Ocean, killing a crewman on deck and knocking a $17 million F-4E overboard, the Navy said Monday.

The crash Sunday was the second fatal accident involving a U.S. aircraft in less than four months.

Two other crewmen on deck were injured, but the two fliers in the last F-4E ejected and were plucked safely out of the sea.

At the time of the collision, an A-7E Corsair was landing on the aircraft carrier and the F-4E was taxiing on deck.

Chavez warns against dissenion

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — United Farm Workers President Cesar Chavez has warned that growers will try to exploit internal dissenion which arose at the union's convention here.

About 30 delegates, one-seventh of them, walked out after Saturday's being thwarted in efforts to nominate three candidates to oppose Chavez backed slate for the executive board.

The dissidents, most from Salinas, said the UFW board is stacked the college-educated employees who are unafraid with "workers' problems."

Khoeini declares Iran stable

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khoeini on Monday declared that no country in the world is more stable than Iran despite a campaign of bombings and assassinations against his staged regime.

"Where else in the world would an assassinated prime minister be quickly replaced?" asked Khoeini, the 64-year-old Iranian leader in an address to the newly formed government of Prime Minister Ayatollah Mohammad-Reza Kham.

"Where else would the transition be so smooth?"

College enrollments increasing despite predictions to contrary

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois' college and university enrollment reached a record-high level last year, according to projections that attendance would drop off because of the shrinking number of high school graduates, state officials said.

State officials said 1.6 million persons attended Illinois' 157 colleges and universities last year compared with 665,247 in 1979 and 464,533 a decade ago. Four state universities — the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana, Illinois State at Normal, Northern Illinois University at DeKalb and Eastern Illinois University at Charleston — reported freshmen enrollment early this year because of overcrowding. These high attendance figures come as a surprise, said Richard Wagner, executive director of the Illinois Board of Higher Education. "We were expecting enrollment to decline, but it hasn't," he said.

He said the record enrollment may be linked to the weak economy. "People can't find jobs, so they go back to school," he said.

Wagner also said Illinois' college enrollment may be even higher in the 1981-82 school year.

However, another official, Richard Boskey dell, said the Federation of Independent Illinois Colleges and Universities, in Evanston, Illinois, predicted that trend and predicts the state's college-enrollment will fall 1 percent in the coming year.

Still, the current record-high enrollments are in contrast to predictions from educators and population analysts, who anticipated declines across the nation because of decreasing high school populations.

Tom Snyder, a researcher for the National Center for Educational Statistics in the U.S. Department of Education, said the number of students graduating nationally from high schools has been declining since the peak year of 1976, when 3.2 million students left high school.

Last year's total high school enrollment was slightly more than 3 million, Snyder said, with attendance expected to fall to more than 2.6 million in 1988.

Police investigating hit-and-run mishap

Jackson County sheriff's deputies are investigating a head-on, hit-and-run accident that occurred early Saturday morning on U.S. 61 and Boskydell Road and hospitalized an S.U.C. student.

Robert Busse, 316 Lynda Drive, was listed in satisfactory condition Monday at Carbondale Memorial Hospital. A passenger in his car, Vicky Boskeydell, no address given, was treated and released from the hospital.

Jackson County police said the driver of the vehicle which caused the accident fled the scene on foot but the car is in custody. They would release no further information involving the accident.

All Night Long!
Catch-22-type frustration available at Woody Hall

By Melody Cook
News Editor

I THOUGHT WOODY HALL was bad last year, with all its red tape and lines stretching off into the sunset.

But it’s been something yet, never has such a small building dealt out so much frustration as Woody Hall has with its new Biller and Receivables System, adopted last year to “simply” billing and making it easier for students to interpret bills from the bursar.

When all my worldly belongings were bundled up on the trip down to Carmelita Hall, I looked forward to receiving $3,575— the sum total of a guaranteed student loan and an SIU scholarship.

Little did I know that the new “simpler” process would prove more difficult than the old one had ever been.

When I went to Woody for my loan check, I was informed that I couldn’t get it. My tuition had not been paid, they told me. Well, I knew that already. Since $325 is a rather large amount of money, not easily accumulated in one big check, I planned to make the payment right after the loan check was deposited.

THE BURSAR, however, had other plans. With an ominous, pitying smile, the girl at the window told me the amount could either be deducted from my loan or I could write a personal check for the delinquent tuition. The latter was a no-brainer— I couldn’t get the money until I wrote a check, but I couldn’t write the check until I had the money. My bank is 263 miles away, and as everyone knows, checks made out to the bursar travel a lot faster than the ordinary mail service.

So I opted for the deduction route. But it worried me to carry that much money around with me, since the bursar might decide to cash it to be cashed to take the tuition out of it. I needn’t have worried. The Bursar’s last words to me were, “Good.” Well, okay, I seemed I could have a couple hundred, but the rest would be in the form of a refund check mailed out in two weeks.

Even though I had stood in three different lines for an hour each with little visible result, I shrugged it off as just a case of bad karma. After all, I had been a bad girl and hadn’t paid my full tuition, even though the administration had promoted installment payments as one of the wondrous advantages of the new system.

THE LAST STRAW, however, was when I went to collect a scholarship check on Wednesday.

The lady at the financial aid office assured me that the check was being processed and would be “applied to my account” this weekend. “Applied to my account?” I thought. “That phrase should never walk out of the door.”

“You mean,” I said, “I won’t just get a check?”

Sorry not. The computer will credit it to your account, just like at a Macy’s. Since I am not a “good girl” (had paid my tuition and don’t have any other bills), a refund check would be sent to my home address in another two weeks.

I was incensed. Applying scholarship money to an account before they even check to see if the student has any outstanding bills is like a court applying the punishment before the jury decides if the defendant is guilty.

If all this sounds as confusing in print as it did to me during those frustrating trips to Woody Hall, then I have conveyed my point adequately.

BURSAR’S HOBES WERE a bother, but at least the student could get their money if their bills were paid. It’s wonderful that the University has such an efficient way of seeing that students make their payments. I only hope all my other creditors will understand, as well. Two weeks without alfeidaa sprouts on my table and dial tone in my telephone can seem like years.

What was the matter with the old system? As early as last spring students were complaining that the new procedure— lumping bills together and keeping them as a running total— was confusing, inconvenient and even disastrous. Some students said that they were evicted because the payments they made for University Housing was canceled due to tuition and fees.

Administrators said that when the system went into effect that they were still seeking student input. Well, here’s mine. I just hope my landlord will read this and understand.

College Republicans return

By Lib Griffin
Staff Writer

Richard Henning has seen the light. Until two years ago he was politically inactive, but now he is a Republican.

"Henning said he sees joining the GOP as a logical choice. Democrats are flaccidly irresponsible, he says—they tend to whatever their constituents wish while Republicans interfere less in their constituents' lives. College students are generally liberal but will consider both viewpoints, according to Henning.

A junior in geology, he attended a meeting last week along with 15 other SIU-C students of the recently reforming SIU-C College Republicans.

The audience was composed mainly of business and accounting majors, according to Tom Wood, an Undergraduate Student Organization senator who is gearing the group up again after it disbanded in the spring of 1980.

"I don't want to alienate anyone," Wood said. "Independents should be expected to both sides."

An election for the club's officers will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center's Kasakant Room.

Wood said Republicans are tomorrow's majority.

"Southern Illinois is largely Democratic but Southern Illinois is very important," Wood said. "We have a depressed area and if they want help they have to start getting together."

"The party is going to grow down here. I'm going to make it grow," he said, jabbing his finger at the table to punctuate the point.

his point. "I'm not," he said.

Announcing the College Republicans disbanded, a similar group canvassed for Reagan. Reagan, on campus the following school year.

What happened was uncertain why the last group of College Republicans was unable to canvass. There was little to the group, he said. People stopped al-

"The general thing is that the method and canvassing for the 1982 elections was the group's downfall," Wood said.

But Stephen Katina, president of SIU Democrats' Club, predicted a lack of success for the Republican group growing on campus. Treasurer Matthew Connell, a member of the Republican group growing on campus, predicted that the Republicans will not be too smart to buy an album entitled "Chipmunk Punk." C'est la vie.

Rich sound of Twist led the way

Energy pervaded Cruise act

By Joe Walter
Entertainment Editor

Carbondale’s own Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows and Pablo Cruise both gave performances that were enjoyed, though not equally, by the audience composed of SIUC students and local Southern Illinoisans at the Du Quoin State Fair Sunday night.

Big Twist seemed to feel limited by the amount of time he had to perform, since the band was opening for the headlining and hot-playing omni-present charm grab a gave the numbers though, not the band was opening for Big Twist.

The instrumental section, with Tony Brown on bass and Wayne Stewart on drums, played a Chicago rock show. He was probably right since his band has collected numerous favorable notices from the Chicago newspapers.

Terry Ogolin on tenor sax performed a great soulful solo that was very evocative, and Pete Special’s guitar playing was at times very funny and at times very bluey with slow, lingering notes. Twist, though he seemed not to have the time to let his omnipresent charm grab a hammer hold on the audience, still wowed the crowd with his pleasurable voice when he sang “That’s the Sound of a Happy Man” and “Nobody Wants the Blues.”

When Pablo Cruise hit the stage, the band literally took the crowd by storm with the stirring keyboard playing by Cory Lerios, the sharp bass of John Pierce, and the guitars of Don Caldwell and Angelo Rossii.

This band, which had been at times detrimentally underrated in the past, played a mixed selection of some of their latest numbers like “Cool Love” and their earlier hits like “A Place in the Sun.” Their performance was not only polished but tinged with a magical, spontaneous dash of raw power that drove the audience to almost voluntarily stand up and dance and clap their hands.

This injection of a powerful, driving rhythm into their earlier hits like the melodic “Love Will Find A Way” and “Don’t Want to Live Without It” gave the numbers new life.

The band’s instrumental “Vera 65,” was excellently performed with Lerios playing a horn instrument that was attached to a guitar stem. Lerios displayed real performing prowess, sending mellow chords and notes into the crowd.

If Cruise has taken a new direction in their music, as bass player John Pierce had indicated recently, then the direction they look at the Du Quoin Fair hit a bulls-eye.

Squaring off with this puzzle means battling a formidable foe

By Jennifer Park
Staff Writer

For most of us the frustrations and problems of everyday life are enough to keep us busy. But there's always those among us who deem it necessary to add to the agony. That's why there are crossword puzzles, jigsaw puzzles, and pinball machines.

The latest worldwide craze is Rubik Cubes. Rubik Cubes aren't exactly new. The concept was designed by Erno Rubik, a teacher of architecture and design in Budapest, Hungary. Rubik wanted his students to learn how to deal with the three-dimensional objects in a realistic manner.

Rubik patented the cube in 1974. A year later, a similar design was patented in Japan, where Terutoshi Mikawa invented the cube.

The cube is three-dimensional with six faces, each of them colored red, white, green, yellow, blue, or orange. Each of the faces is made up of nine small squares that move independently so that the whole face or segments of it can be turned to different positions.

It looks disarmingly simple in the package.

But according to an article in Scientific American, there are more than 50 trillion different solutions to solve the puzzle.

Floyd huffs on; Emily fades away

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Floyd weakened to a Category 3 storm with 95-mph winds Monday, while a new system named Emily was downgraded to a tropical storm in the cool waters off Nova Scotia. And a new tropical depression which formed Sunday became a severe tropical storm as it moves toward the northern Windward and southern Leeward islands of the National Hurricane Center said.

Floyd, shifting to a northeasterly course and moving at 15 mph, was expected to pass over or near Bermuda early Tuesday, the Hurricane Center said.

Further strengthening of the hurricane was possible by Tuesday morning, and forecasters warned residents of Bermuda that it is "time to take appropriate action to protect life and property."

Small craft were warned to remain in port.

Hurricane Center Director Neil Frank said gales could begin lashing Bermuda by Monday night.

At noon EDT Monday, Floyd was centered near latitude 25.2 north, longitude 68.3 west, about 550 miles southwest of Bermuda. Gales extended 100 miles to the east and 50 miles to the west of the center of the storm.

The colorful Rubik Cube can baffie the most persistent opponent.

"I have to schedule my time a bit differently if I want to be continued," Floyd said. "I have study time, time for work and I allow myself at least one hour a day to work on the cube."

Despite the frustration involved, the cube is selling well. Its popularity has sparked assorted varieties of cube toys, including key chains, hexagonal shapes and, for sports enthusiasts, there are puzzles with pictures of baseballs and footballs instead of colors.

The puzzles range in price from $1 to $10.

Solution books for the cube now sit alongside diet books and astrology books in the supermarket, and the Ideal Toy Corp., the only company licensed to use Rubik's name, has launched a series of regional, national and international contests to be held in Chicago and in conjunction with the Six Flags amusement parks.

Those who have labored long hours over their cubes only to solve one side of the puzzle will find little solace in the fact that the cube is undergoing competition, a 13-year-old from Latvia who mastered the cube in 39 seconds.

That's more frustrating than the puzzle.

The colorful Rubik Cube can baffle the most persistent opponent.
LANSING, Kan. (AP) — Law officers Monday were tracking four heavily armed convicts still at large after seven inmates stole a guard’s weapons and faked their way into a prison tower before escaping. The inmates shot and wounded a suburban policeman as they fled and split into two groups after the Sunday evening escape were quickly apprehended.

A farmer in Basehor, about five miles south of Lansing, told police at least three inmates entered his home Sunday night, bound him and his wife, and stole a shotgun, $300 in cash and a .38-caliber revolver. Police dispatcher Mike Vestal. The couple was not injured.

About 150 law officers from seven state, county and city agencies were on the trail of the other four, who included three convicted murderers. Rainy weather prevented the use of bloodhounds and grounded an aerial search.

The seven escaped from the Kansas State Prison in Lansing at 8:45 a.m. Sunday by stealing a guard’s uniform and duping another guard into giving them a key to a prison tower, said Linda Mohar, assistant director of the facility. Once in the tower, they took two shotguns, a .38-caliber revolver and 30-30 rifle and a supply of ammunition, she said.

They tied up the guard in the tower, then stole a 10-foot sliding gate and fled to a residential area before splitting up, police said. One group accepted a pregnant woman at a mobile home park and stole her car, while the second group took a car, credit cards and money from a sleeping man.

Both groups apparently took turns toward Kansas City, Kan., and Bonner Springs Police Chief Gary Tyler said they were seen in his town.

Bonner Springs Police Sgt. Doug Candider Jr. said one of the stolen cars driving erratically and gave chase. The driver ran the stolen car into a ditch, and authorities believe four escapees ran into an empty house. Candider ran to the rear of the house and was shot four times, although he managed to return fire and struggle to his car to radio for help, police said.

He was listed in critical condition Sunday night at a Kansas City, Kan., hospital with a broken arm and gunshot wounds in the chest, both arms and the right knee.

After shooting Candider, the inmates ran into a wooded area.

One of them, convicted murderer Terry McClain, 31, was arrested on foot in the woods Sunday afternoon about a mile west of the Bonner Springs outhouse on the Kansas Turnpike.

Big Twist awaits Europe tour, harbors Carbondale memories

By Joe Walter
Entertainment Editor

Big Twist may have played blues, rock and country and western for different groups throughout the fifties, but when he has performed with his group the Mellow Fellows, the variety of music he and his band have played has been done his way. Twist said Sunday, when he was backstage of the Du Quoin State Fair Sunday night. Big Twist and his band, the Mellow Fellows, started in Carbondale in 1957 playing the Southern Illinois bar circuit for years.

O'Fallon teachers ratify pact

By the Associated Press

Teachers in one Southern Illinois school district ended a two-week strike Monday while their colleagues in another district tried to negotiate a settlement to end their walkout. Teachers in O'Fallon ratified a contract Monday with School District 90. Classes for some 1,700 elementary and junior high school students have been cancelled since the 78 teachers walked off their jobs on Aug. 28. Meanwhile, negotiations for the school board and teachers in the Chicago suburb of Villa Park met Monday to try to hammer out a settlement and end the walkout that began Aug. 31.

Ireland's hunger strikers joined by convicted murderer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A 25-year-old convicted killer joined the hunger strike in the Maze prison Monday amid signs of a growing split among guerrilla groups and prisoners' families over continuing the death fast.

At the same time, the outlawed Irish Republican Army vowed to "pay the British government in kind," for the deaths of 10 guerrillas on the fast and a dozen Roman Catholic supporters in street clashes sparked by the hunger strike.

The warning in this week's issue of the Republican News, the IRA's publication, underlined growing pressure from the rank and file for a new offensive.

The hunger strike campaign took another setback Sunday when the Irish National Liberation Army declared it will scale down the number of its men in the Maze who join the strike.

British's Northern Ireland Office reported that John Pickering refused breakfast Monday and declared he was joining five other fasting guerrillas.

He was jailed for life in January 1978 on charges of killing a 77-year-old Belfast garage owner during a 1976 hold-up. He also was sentenced to 26 years for allegedly possessing explosives and participating in other terrorist crimes.

Pickering is the 21st guerrilla, in the top-security prison near Belfast to join the hunger strike, launched March 1 in a bid to force the British government to treat jailed guerrillas as prisoners of war. The British refuse.

Ten men have starved themselves to death so far in the battle of wills between the imprisoned guerrillas and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government.

But the families of four of the protesters have authorized medical intervention to save the men's lives, the last two within 48 hours of each other over the weekend. A fifth hunger striker suffering from a perforated ulcer was ordered off the fast in May.

Well-informed sources close to the hunger strikers' families said more relatives are now expected to intervene to authorize medical treatment shunned by the fasters themselves.

Health program gets invitation to attend national symposium

By Jennifer Polk Staff Writer

The Student Health Program at SIU-C has been chosen to participate in the 1981 National Health Symposium for Business and Industry to be held Sept. 30 at the Marriott Hotel in Chicago.

The symposium is co-sponsored by the Harvard Medical School, the School of Allied Health Sciences at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston and the United States Jaycees.

"Health promotion is the issue here," said Sam McVay, director of the Student Health Program. "Each year, employers spend millions of dollars for employee insurance. We hope to help them design comprehensive programs that concentrate on keeping people from needing expensive medical attention. That's the essence of our Student Wellness Resource Center.

"Seven people from SIU-C will attend the symposium, including McVay, Marc Oberholtz, director of the Student Wellness Resource Center, Robert "Doc" Spackman, coordinator of the University Fitness Program, Patrice Eckert, coordinator of the Alcohol and Substance Abuse Program and Dr. Lawrence Frisch, chief of the medical staff of the Student Health Program."
Strikes loom in Boston, Philadelphia

By the Associated Press

Boston teachers angered by layoffs and salary freezes met Monday to decide whether to strike, while Philadelphia officials said teachers there were virtually certain to walk out Tuesday over the same issues. Despite a warning that they would be fired if they stayed off the job, Boston's 5,000 teachers were voting on a strike motion. The teachers are supposed to report Tuesday and were voting on a strike for the first time in 24 years, sounded virtually scheduled to begin for 254,000 pupils Thursday.

"The best we can hope for would be a strike of only several days," Thomas said Sunday. Elsewhere, teachers were striking in two small Michigan districts, Sanilac and Decatur, and in the Chicago suburb of Villa Park. A tentative pact was reached Sunday in O'Fallon, where teachers walked out Aug. 31.

Nationally, the number of teachers' strikes dropped last year to 1 from 242 in 1979. Experts say one reason is the recognition of a widespread money crunch.

"The major thing is that labor unions are realizing there's not that much money to go around," said Dr. Louis Spivak, deputy executive director of the American Association of School Administrators.

In Boston, no negotiations were held during the Labor Day weekend. Spivak noted state law prohibits a strike.

"There's nothing left to bargain," he said before the vote. "The law is clear... There's nothing left but the job, now up to the teachers."

At issue is the School Department's budget-cutting decision to lay off nearly 1,000 teachers, including 710 who have tenure, and not to pay a scheduled 7.5 percent wage boost.

Proposition 2, a state law limiting property taxes, forced an $8 million cut in the schools' budget to $210 million. An additional 500 non-teaching school employees were laid off, and 27 schools were closed.

Rickie Lee more versatile, also vulnerable, in 'Pirates'

By Julie Guadagnoli
Staff Writer

Rickie Lee Jones has lost a bit of her swagger. She steps a little lower through her new album, "Pirates," than she did through her first album, "Rickie Lee Jones." But because her vulnerability comes through, the emotional range on her swagger. album, Because she is so intent on expressing her feelings they.

"Pirates" is a lovely album. Sometimes she sings playfully, suddenly changing pitch in the middle of a line, but other times she is sad and soulful. The mood, "Pirates" clearly shows the versatility of a woman who can sing along with the listener's head long after they.

The most part, though, the songs are very memorable. "Woody and Dutch..." brings to mind the Rickie Lee Jones who hugged her way through "Danny's All-Star Joint" on the first album. And "Pirates (So Long Lonely Avenue)" starts with a slow, swinging saxophone like the one on "Chuck E.'s in Love."

"A Lucky Guy," with its steady, catchy beat, is a lovely song that will probably appeal to many, from loyal Jones fans to FM-radio disc jockeys. The just-happened, which marked much of the first album, are still present on "Pirates." Some songs feature Tom Scott's tenor and baritone sax, and Chuck Rainey'sEinsing bass underscores many of them.

Jones must have had fun making this album. Sometimes she sings playfully, suddenly changing pitch in the middle of a line, but other times she is sad and soulful. Whatever the mood, "Pirates" clearly shows the versatility of a woman who can sing along with the listener's head long after they are played.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A woman whose ovaries ceased to function almost three years ago has given birth to a healthy 8-pound baby, baffling doctors at three hospitals.

"It is impossible, impossible," said 35-year-old women said one of the doctors who delivered her baby who had ever been detected a fetal heartbeat.

In effect, the birth took place after the woman, who asked not to be identified, had gone through menopause, her doctors said. "I never tried to get pregnant before. I always didn't this time," the woman, who is unmarried, said during a telephone interview. "Just happened."

The woman's menstrual periods stopped three years ago and a physician diagnosed premature menopause, a rare menopause in which the ovaries stop producing eggs. The doctor said she: "Didn't have anything to worry about as far as getting pregnant is concerned," she recalled.

A year later, Dr. Jeffrey S. Rakoff, director of the Scripps Clinic Medical Group's Fertility Center, confirmed the diagnosis of premature ovarian failure. Then, during a regular checkup, Rakoff said he found the woman's ovaries were still producing eggs. But by May, 1980, his doctor had 6 months women after menopause.

"I was going in for my regular exam, and I thought they were going to think I was crazy because... my back hurt and my stomach was sticking out almost like I was pregnant, she said.

"I told the doctors I felt kind of sick and my breasts were sore, but they had me on hormones and the hormones did that, too, so I just figured it was the hormones."

Rakoff said he and J. Willems, the University Hospital doctor who delivered the baby Aug. 18, had ever heard of a birth following a well-documented case of premature ovarian failure.

The birth is further confirmed, said Willems, because the woman was taking Premarin, a mixture of estradiol, and Provera, a derivative of progesterone.

The medications are commonly given women after menopause to ease uncomfortable symptoms and to help keep bones strong, but they also act as contraceptives, said Rakoff.

Rakoff said he and Willems believe an egg may have been left after the ovaries shut down.

Women's Caucus will address promotional opportunities

The Women's Caucus will meet Wednesday from noon to 1:30 p.m. in the Student Center to discuss promotional opportunities for women on campus. Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, and John Guyan, vice president for academic affairs, will speak at the meeting.

Specific issues that will be addressed are the direction and plans for intercollegiate athletics and the search process for a dean for the School of Technical Careers and a dean for the College of Education.

The ways that student affairs and academic affairs can help women to prepare for promotion will be discussed. The group will also discuss the disproportionate number of undergraduate women at SIU-C.

Excursion to focus on mine land reclamation

By University News Service

When two tour buses pull out of a motel parking lot in Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 15 and head out toward the Midwest the next day, the tour group won't be carrying the usual complement of excursionists. The tourists will be scientists, engineers and government officials on their way to look at coal mines and what has been done to reclaim land.

The tour—known formally as the Midwest Reclamation Tour and sponsored by the Illinois Mining Institute (IMMRI) and SIU-C's Coal Extraction and Utilization Research Center—will be the fifth tour.

"The idea is to bring together university, industry and government people to look at the technical aspects of reclaiming mined land," said James Guilford, associate director of IMMRI. "We think of reclamation of mined land in the Midwest is a particularly unique situation, because the region has so much intensive agriculture."

Guilford said that although the 90 or so people who take the trip are interested in successful examples of coal mine reclamation, that's not the primary reason the tour is held.

"We'll be looking at the most severe situations of problems with these mines have come across," he said. "We're looking at their successes, of course, but we're equally interested in the unsolved problems."

Guilford said the tour coordinator by William Clark, chairman of the Department of Botany, will visit mines operated by AMAX and the Brazil Coal and Clay Mining Co. Sept. 15. Reclamation operations featured will include the use of herbicides in a tree-planting experiment and use of smaller reclamation equipment to reduce soil compaction during reclamation.

The tourists will spend the night in Mount Vernon, where they'll hear a talk by James R. Stroza, an ex-Congressman nominated to head the federal Department of Interior's Office of Surface Mining. Freeman United Coal Co. officials will tell them how they expect to use "planned subsidence" in underground coal mining operations.

The morning of Sept. 16, the caravan will visit mining operations near Waltonville where Freeman United is trying out its planned subsidence technique. The group will also view experiments conducted by SIU-C reclamation scientists at that mine and at Arch Minerals Corp.'s Captain Mine near Pocahontas. They will also be shown the operation at Reclamation equipment at Captain Mine and an examination of a coal pre-waste mine site at a Conoco Coal. Co. mine near Pinckneyville.

A lunch on stop at Pyramid State Park south of Pinckneyville will feature a discussion of reclamation research conducted by SIU-C's Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory. The research unit began early reclamation experiments at that site 25 years ago.

The tour will wind up the afternoon after a look at reclamation-related work at Peabody Coal Co.'s River King mine near Sparta.

The tour is sponsored by the Illinois Public Interest Research Group, the Illinois Therapeutic Recreation Section of the Illinois Park and Recreation Association, Educational Week, the SIE-U's Special Projects Committee, the Illinois Department of Natural Resources, the Southern Region workshp sponsored by the Illinois Therapeutic Recreation Association and the Illinois Section of the Therapeutic Recreation Association.

The SIU-C Democrats are sponsoring a voter registration drive during the week. Persons will be able to register from 4 to 7 p.m. Tuesday at the I.S.U-C Recreation Center; from 4 to 7 p.m. Tuesday in Grinnell Hall; and from 4 to 7 p.m. Thursday in Trueblood Hall.

The SIE Southern Region workshop will be held on Thursday and Friday at the Vocht of Nature Environmental Center. The workshop is sponsored by the Illinois Therapeutic Recreation Section of the Illinois Park and Recreation Association. Educational sessions will feature speakers from SIU-C departments of Recreation, Physical Education, Design, and Counseling Psychology; the division of Recreation for Special Populations in the Office of Intrastructural Recreational Sports; the Institute of Rehabilitation and Touch of Nature.

"Special sessions will be tailored to the therapeutic recreation professionals from Illinois and Missouri," said Larry Schirman. "We're looking into making the reclamation process an experience of learning, research and development as related to special populations. Information concerning sessions and registration is available from the Recreation Department at 451-5311.

The Illinois Public Interest Research Group will hold its first meeting of the fall semester at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Ohio Room. Tim Early, director of the group, will speak on the student's role in environmental protection. The group has also sponsored a student organization working for environmental protection, human rights and constructive social change.

Campus Crusade for Christ will have "Prime Time," a time of fellowship, at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Mackinaw Room. Everyone is invited to attend.

Blacks Interested in Business will have its first meeting of the fall semester at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Missouri Room. All interested persons are invited to attend.

A whitewater skills and safety workshop will be held from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Monday in the Recreation Center pool. Registration, limited to 30 persons, will be at the center's desk beginning Thursday. Information is available by calling 536-5531.

A special lecture in zoology, "Multiple Queens: A Problem for Kinship Theory," will be given at 3 p.m. Wednesday in Lawson 161. The lecture will be given by L. Bartels from the Division of Natural Science of the University of California at Santa Cruz. The public is invited to attend.

The Student Emergency Dental Service will conduct a dental health workshop at 2 p.m. in the School of Technical Careers, Room 172. SEDS invites all students to participate.

- Mobilization of Volunteer Effort (MOVE) will be having an "agency fair" from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the south lobby of the Student Center. Representatives from various agencies will be recruiting volunteers. Persons interested are invited to attend.

A series of "Discourse" workshops for students, faculty, staff and alumnus will be offered by the Office of Intramural-Recreational Sports. From Sept. 14 through Oct. 5. Registration begins Tuesday at the Recreation Center information desk. Participants must be 18 years old and carry a $2 gift fee plus $1 in deposit. Information is available by calling the center at 457-5311.

Flemish or French? Belgians do battle over their language

By Robert Wiepold
Associated Press Writer

COMINES, Belgium — To 51-year-old Paul Sergier, the past year has been "like taking a little bit of arsenic every day." His hands clutch the latest damage: an envelope on which is written, in French, "To Mr. P. Sergier, Great-Grandson of Hitler, Descendant of the SS."

Inside the envelope is a small booklet, describing, in French, the history of the Dutch language in Belgium and the Netherlands. It has been scratched and scarred with a great profanity.

"It arrived this morning," Sergier said. He is used to mail adorned with swastikas and scratched and scarred with a great profanity. Despite the nasty letters and anonymous phone calls, Sergier and his wife, Ida, say they will not move out of their home or the rolling wheat fields of Comines. Nor will they send their son, Mathieu, 15, to school in nearby Ieper or Kortrijk in Flanders.

"I would feel like a coward for the rest of my life. I wouldn't be able to deal with that," said Sergier.

Sergier and Decramer take note of positive reaction to their school. Belgium's French-language television network recently covered an anti-Flemish demonstration in Comines. The program showed dozens of people dancing around burning effigies of politicians as they chanted anti-Flemish slogans.

"I would feel like a coward for the rest of my life. I wouldn't be able to deal with that," said Sergier. Sergier and Decramer take note of positive reaction to their school. Belgium's French-language television network recently covered an anti-Flemish demonstration in Comines. The program showed dozens of people dancing around burning effigies of politicians as they chanted anti-Flemish slogans.

The reference to Hitler stems from the feeling among French-speakers that many Flemings helped the German occupiers to try to get a better deal for Flanders.

The linguistic strife permeates even politics. There are two socialist parties—one Flemish, the other French speaking. Christian Democrats and Conservatives are similarly divided.

But out of the politics of Brussels, Belgium's linguistic strife can be painfully obvious when it touches personal lives, as in Sergier's case. Last year he helped found a small Flemish school—enrollment 30.

The trouble is that Comines is a French-speaking enclave of 10 square miles within Flemish Belgium along the French border.

Many of the 18,000 people living in the five villages of Comines resent the school. They consider it a first step toward a Flemish takeover of Comines. But Sergier and others of Flemish descent feel threatened."

Sergier said. "To them Flemish has always been the language of the little man, the working class. "And French, that has always been the language of nobility, of the middle class. Now they think the Flemings want to take over Comines. All we want is a Flemish school.

Americans in Libya fear dogfight retribution

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Americans living in the radical Arab nation say they feel safe but fear increased tensions touched off by last month's U.S.-Libyan aerial dogfight could lead to their ouster.

"We feel we're temporary here, what we never did before," said an American teacher who has lived in Libya for six years.

State Department officials have expressed concern Libya might take the American hostage like Iranian militants did in the 1979 takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. The warning, repeated this week, comes as a 2,000 or so Americans after U.S. warplanes downed two Libyan jets Aug. 19 in disputed airspace over the Gulf of Sidra.

"There certainly has not been any panic," Belgian Ambassador Jean Deschamps, who represents U.S. interests in Libya, said. The U.S. Embassy has been closed since December 1979, when it was invaded and set afire by a Libyan mob.

Most of the Americans live in the capital of Tripoli, a Mediterranean port on the edge of the Sahara desert. They don't go out much at night because Libya's volatile leader, Col. Muammar Khadafy, preaches strict adherence to Islam and has closed the city's lively nightclubs and banned alcohol.

Gerulaitis upsets Lendl at Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Vitas Gerulaitis, upset third-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia Monday in the U.S. Open tennis championship 6-4, 6-1, 6-4.

Gerulaitis, who was seeded 19th, struggled against his 15th, saying he hadn't been serving for anyone, but the ball had passed in the general direction of the lineswoman who had called the foot fault.

Lendl won the next four points either with service-return winners or when Gerulaitis failed to handle his service return.

They both played erratically, but Lendl was able to win the second and third sets chiefly with passing shots that beat Gerulaitis' ill-timed approaches.

In the fifth set, Gerulaitis broke in the seventh game at 39 when Lendl hit a backhand wide.

In the final game, Lendl had double break point. Gerulaitis got down with a cross-court winner and a wide service return by Lendl. And on match point, Lendl hit his backhand wide again.

Tryout scheduled

Tryouts for the Saluki baseball team will be held at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at Abe Martin Field, located southwest of the Arena.

She has a strong serve, powerful backhand and a good outside standing reach. She often gets to shots I had thought impossible to reach," Auld said. "The only disadvantage is she isn't as mobile as a smaller player," she said. "She has to adjust her game if her opponent hits a lot of drop shots.

"Alexandra's game is off, since she is used to play at courts, not the asphalt we play on. With each practice, though, her game is improving and she is gaining more confidence," Auld said.

Round out the fall roster are seniors Mona Eichhorn and Tammy Kurtz, junior Paula Etchison, and freshmen Suzanne Garolian, Maureen Smith, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5, 6-0, 6-1.

As the Salukis prepare for the fall season, they will have to rely on their depth to compete against the other teams in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The team will have their first match on October 3 against Eastern Illinois University at 1:30 p.m.

The SIU-C field hockey team could manage only two victories in five matches at the Penn State Invitational last weekend. But for Coach Julie Illner, the weekend competition is taken into consideration, two wins is a darn good day.

Coach Julie Illner and her Saluki field hockey team, finishing with a 2-2 mark, Illner was extremely pleased with her team's performance.

"The weekend went very well overall," Illner said. "When you consider that most of the teams are Division I and Division II powerhouse, I'd say we were more than pleased a team.

The Salukis played the tournament at full strength, a situation that has doubtful late Thursday. The two players not expected to make the trip, shot putters Don Dehove, both players in the tournament, although Dehove pulled a muscle and sat out most of the weekend.

The Salukis opened the tourney against Ursinus SIU-4 took an early lead as Linda Brown scored on a hand stop-play at 1:45 of the first half with Cindy Dans and Karen Tomks getting the assists. The Salukis held off 1:08 and 2:42 goals in the tournament and won the match 2-0.

Cindy Davs and Karen Illner have the assists.

"It was a real disappointment when we had to leave that match," Illner said. "It was just a had defensive play. We played the sweeper and the goalie both back in the net, and nobody went out and got the shot.

The game ended in a 1-1 tie, with the Salukis beating out 1-1. Freshman goalie Lisa Cozzi made seven saves.

The field hockey tourney was open over the next match, as William and Mary jumped out to 3:4 lead in the first half. The Salukis came back in the second half, but it was to no avail as the Tribe won the match 4-2.

Cindy Davs and Karen Illner have the assists.

"A really pleased with the way we played them," Illner said. "Two of their goals just shouldn't have been. We made a couple of young mistakes on defense and it got us.

The Salukis started freshmen at both the sweeper and goalie positions.

The Lions eventually competed the best record in the tournament, 4-1. They outshone SIU-2 21-15. Cozzi made nine saves in goal.

Penn State standout Brenda Sattler scored in the Lions' goals against SIU-4 and scored live in the first three games of the tournament.

The Salukis opened the second day of competition with a 2-1 win over the Penn State junior varsity. SIU-4 lost the match 3-0, the score was not indicative of the way the Salukis played.

I was really pleased with the way we played them," Illner said. "I love when the team works together and gets it done."

Coach Judy Auld will be looking for physical and mental toughness in the women's tennis team this season. The team plays SIU Edwardsville at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the Centennial Tennis Complex.

"I think the team is in good physical shape," Auld said. "I've had them work on shots which have been troubling them," Auld said. "We'll get the second half goals for the Salukis, were one again out for this time 3-16. Sophomore goalie Peg O'Laughlin made 12 saves.

In the next match, the Salukis ran head-long into last year's national champions, the Penn State Lady Lions. Although SIU-4 lost the match 3-0, the score was not indicative of the way the Salukis played.
