FRANCIS BOMBING NEAR SCHOOL INJURES 14
A car bomb exploded outside a Jewish school in a Lyon suburb on Thursday, minutes before 700 children entered the building. About 14 people were injured in the blast, the blast, the first in France since 1982, appeared to be timed to go off at the closing bell, but officials said the school clock was running two minutes slow and the students were still inside the building.

INDIAN DIES IN CLASH WITH CANADIAN POLICE
TORONTO—Long-simmering tensions between Canadian police and militant natives flared into violence when Ontario-riot squad officers fatal- lly shot an Indian who was among about 40 protesters occupying a public park on the shores of Lake Huron, authorities said Thursday. Two other protesters were critically wounded in the Wednesday night incident at Saugeen, 130 miles west of Toronto. The occupiers are from a group of about 100 who on July 29 took over a nearby Canadian military base, forcing out a small contingent of military police who had been sent to evict them.

EGYPT DEMANDS PROBE OF ALLEGED KILLING
CAIRO—Egypt—the Egyptian government has yielded to public demands and is taking an increasingly tough position in a controversy it would earlier avoid—the alleged killing of Egyptian POWs by Israeli soldiers in the wars of 1956 and 1967. In comments published Thursday in the local press, President Hosni Mubarak’s key political adviser, rejected Israel’s claim that too much time has elapsed to interview eyewitnesses and reexamine Egypt’s demand that a full Israeli investigation be conducted.

SIMPSON DEFENSE TEAM DELAYS RESTING CASE
—LOS ANGELES—On a day of mid-fit legal moves, defense attorneys in the O.J. Simpson murder trial said they were prepared to rest their case Thursday, but then backed off after the prosecution announced it would appeal a controversial instruction Judge Lance A. Ito plans to give to the jury. The defense said it would rest without calling the celebrity defendant to the stand. Simpson decided not to testify in his own defense after his lawyers told him it would prolong the murder trial and wasn’t necessary to answer a prosecution case “in shambles,” defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey told the Associated Press.

ATF OFFICIALS PLACE BLAME ON RANDY WEAVER
—WASHINGTON—The chain of events that led to the deaths of Randy Weaver’s wife and 14-year-old son during a confrontation with federal agents at Ruby Ridge was set in motion by Weaver himself, officials of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms told a Senate subcommi- ttee Thursday.

HOUSE REJECTS FUNDING FOR STEALTH BOMBERS
—WASHINGTON—Northrop Grumman’s proposal to sell the Pentagon 20 addition B-2 Stealth bombers passed one of its last key tests in Congress Thursday, when the House voted down a last-ditch effort to cut about $500 million in initial B-2 production funding. By a narrow mar- gin of 213-210, the House defeated an amendment offered by Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, that would have deleted the $3 from the funding to the 1996 Defense Appropriations Bill.

Correction/Clarifications
In the Sept. 6 issue of the Daily Egyptian, in the story “Police dog takes a bite out of crime,” it was incorrectly reported that Carlson Alexander’s hands were handcuffed in front of him. Police handcuffed Alexander’s hands behind him, then once inside the police car, Alexander slipped his cuffed hands under his feet.

Chinese Mooncake Festival celebrates coming of Fall

By Jeremy Griggs
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC students will celebrate the Mid Autumn Festival, or Chinese Mooncake Festival, this weekend with dinner, games, and good times. The Chinese Student Association is having a dinner tonight at the China Queen restaurant on the Strip to celebrate the Mooncake Festival, Adrian Yong, a senior in marketing from Malaysia, said. "We're having dinner and raffle draws from seven to nine," he said. "It's open to all the public." Yong said the celebration is one of China's five major festivals. "I believe the Mooncake Festival is the second greatest event besides Chinese New Year," Yong said. The legend behind the festival dates back to a time when the Han nationality of China were imprisoned by Mongolians, Xinyi Zhou, graduate student in business from China, said. "The prisoners planned to escape, but had no way to pass messages," Zhou said. "So they put those messages in mooncakes, and they were then able to escape." The Festival is celebrated in September in solar years, and on Aug. 15 during lunar years, Zhou said. Although the date may change, see FESTIVAL, page 6.

Boat regatta planned to protest incinerator

By Lori D. Clark
Daily Egyptian Reporter

A boat regatta to inform the public of a planned incinerator at Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge will be held Saturday, according to a spokesperson for Southern Coalition on Protecting the Environment, Regional Association of Concerned Environmentalists, Lawyer's Guild of SIUC, Student Environmental Center of SIUC and Concerned Citizens of Williamson County.

"We want to encourage people to speak out," Rowell said. "All it takes for a dioxin emitting incinerator to come into the community is for people to remain silent." Kathleen Tracy of the Student Environmental Center said the groups are holding the regatta to increase the see REGATTA, page 8.

Minority organization advances education

By Signe Skinion
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The Minority Engineering Program, a student organization that tries to advance minority education, is attempting to include the entire SIUC campus in its programs, organization members said. Jason Nanay, program member and president of the Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers, said the program provides many activities and workshops for engineering students, and other students on campus.

"We are trying to bring a lot of community awareness and career growth to the area," Nanay said. "We try to build unity with the groups and leadership in the individuals, so we have a lot of workshops for the professional field." Nanay just returned from the National Student Leadership Training Institute where he, and four student presidents in engineering, went from across the nation, took second place for a speech on the revitalization of student organizations. Nanay said he brought much of what he learned from there to the program.

"We give high school lectures on professional concerns," Nanay said. "Also, we are trying to use the University resources to show students what we can offer them." James L. Evers, dean of the College of Engineering, said he finds the program to be very worthwhile and valuable for the campus.

"The program has been very successful in attracting excellent students," Evers said. "We have seen them go on to excellent work in their field." Evers said he feels his position is that of a resource person. However, he sees a lot going on inside the program.

Dawgs’ win could spark school spirit

Dear Editor:

In reference to the picture on the front page of the Sept. 7 edition of the Daily Egyptian, I am the person pictured in that photo.

While I am flattered to be chosen as a Student of the Day, I am more flattered by the support of the students at SIU and the school spirit that has been generated.

In the future, I hope to continue to inspire others with my work and to encourage them to pursue their dreams.

Dear Editor:

While the Daily Egyptian opposed the athletic fee increases passed by the SIUC Board of Trustees, the fee increase may have at least one positive benefit. It may increase attendance at the football games to help instill some school spirit in the normally unenthusiastic SIUC student population. The increase includes free admission to every sporting event on campus. This includes volleyball, basketball, and yes, football.

SO NOW, THE STUDENTS OUT THERE WHO would have gone to a game but found the $2 admission fee a little too high have no excuse not to go to the games. After all, students thought $2 was a little too much to pay to see a football game.

But in the defense of the team, it is hard to play at top performance for a school that does not attract the games. After all, what difference does it make if you score a touchdown after a magnificent 99-yard run if you can’t hear the applause of the crowd at the game? The team needs the touchdown after a magnificent 99-yard run to generate some momentum.

While I am flattered to be chosen as a Student of the Day, I am more flattered by the support of the students at SIU and the school spirit that has been generated.

In the future, I hope to continue to inspire others with my work and to encourage them to pursue their dreams.

Value of Clinton visit based on more than accessibility

Dear Editor:

This letter is in response to the editorial in the September 5th DE. Clinton should hear diverse SIU voices.

While I share your view on the importance of President Clinton’s upcoming visit, it seems an oversimplification to evaluate his visit largely in terms of “accessibility” by “constituency groups.”

I see nothing wrong in trying to gain an audience with the President to “bend his ear” on important issues. This desire seems only natural when the leader of our nation pays a visit. But it would be foolish to make the “accessibility” issue the yardstick by which we would measure the benefits which this rare visit might bestow upon our community. I suggest judging the visit from a broader perspective.

The real benefit of such a visit

(free the objections that have concerned free federal student aid) does not come from “bending” the President but rather from the much needed positive national attention which his speech will focus upon SIUC and Carbondale, however brief.

In addition, we also benefit by being reminded of some of our community here in Southern Illinois, a community not enough to warrant a presidential visit.

Certainly, an essential element of our representative form of government is that our political leaders listen and respond to the diverse voices which make up the American public. A lack of responsiveness on the part of our elected officials is in fact the most often mentioned complaint which people have about government today. But it would be unwise and unfair to the President and Carbondale SIUC to evaluate the visit to such narrow terms as “accessibility.”

And while I would encourage everyone to attend the President’s speech, the only real political “truth” which residents of Southern Illinois have is to make an informed vote come election day.

Student loans, weak economy hurt grads’ chances at success

Dear Editor:

President Clinton will be here at SIUC on Monday, September 11 to air his intentions for financial aid to college students. Although President Clinton is coming to address the prospect of future student loans, my proposal is to immediately alleviate the insurmountable burden of past student loans.

Presently, college graduates are entering the working world to discover that they must accept an income that is not sufficient to pay off their student loan obligations.

In bygone days, college graduates often could find their own career opportunities by starting their own businesses. However, with huge student loan obligations looming over their credit ratings, college graduates are stranded by lending institutions so that the new products and services that these people bring us are killed before germination.

Therefore, the proposal is to forgo student loan debts. College graduates are already ambitious and want to be productive and add to America’s economic development, but they can’t begin to pull that load while mired in debts that can’t be paid off in one quick payment.

Certainly, if we can forgo cash debts for the sake of our economy, we can do the same with domicile debts for the same reason. One way would be to set up a loan program for just one year. To cut the space program for just one year would provide enough money to cover past student loan debts and the kicked off student loans would not be hamstringed by such a delay. I, for one, can wait another year to discover whether or not there is one on Uranus.

How to submit a letter to the editor:

I sincerely believe that many Americans are facing difficulties, not so much because there is anything wrong with them, but because there is nothing wrong with the educational system. The reasons for doing so may be very much academic, yet they share something in common: They are motivated to learn, study, and excel. To the non-traditional student, sitting in the classroom is one of the greatest privileges of life. Why? Because the educational system has had to make it so. When the non-traditional student decides to place a premium on learning, the school setting enters the college world of the non-traditional student.

The William D. Ford Direct Loan Program offered by the U.S. Department of Education extends to the non-traditional student the opportunity to combine the non-traditional student's need with the purposes of the Ford program to aid the student.

The non-traditional student generally does not have a college savings fund set aside for higher education and therefore must seek assistance from any source available. To receive financial aid, the student must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

The non-traditional student has a better chance of college education if he or she can benefit from any source available. A family member can help with the cost of college education by applying for Federal Direct Loans. For more information call Ron at 457-6024. For more information call Sumiko Seki at 453-8964.

Fox said the framework for Clinton's Carbondale visit is the same as it would be for any visit, even to cities such as New York or Chicago.

He said the same precautions, considerations and responsibilities are taken any time the president travels.

Fox said the Secret Service will be working with local authorities to ensure safety for both the general public and the president. "The overall protective responsibility is enhanced with local authorities," Fox said.

He said local authorities will assist with crowd control, presidential routes and other obvious safety precautions.

Fox said local authorities are responsible for the safety of the public and the Secret Service's responsibility is the president.

"We got confirmation (yesterday) on what we will be helping the Secret Service with," said Don Strom, Carbondale Police Chief.

"We will be in charge of the public, and assisting with security and the presidential route," he said.

"We are planning to run the motorcade route (tomorrow) to get prepared," Strom said the Carbondale Police are bringing in more staff for the event and will be working with other police agencies to ensure security.

University Police said they will also be assisting with security measures.

"We will be in charge of controlling the crowd and making sure traffic is handled," Sam Jordan, director of the S1UC Police, said.

"We are basically just there to assist the Secret Service in any way we can."

place where students can come together to discuss their views and work towards common goals," Evans said. "I think MEC shows what can be done in any area, if a need exists — in the engineering department in particular, because of the low number of students represented."

Asst. Dean Bruce C. Christman said he has seen the program move a long way and expects it to continue to grow.

"The program has grown from 40-some students in 1986, and now the number is around 150 minority students in the college," Christman said. "I expect those numbers to continue on an upward trend."

Christman said the only problem he sees is the need for a permanent director for the program.

"We have already done one search for a new director that was not successful," Christman said. "We have begun another search, but realistically it will probably take another year before a new director will be found."

Nancy said when a new director for the program is hired, it will expand even more.

"I think we need to keep enrollment up and provide services for everyone interested," Nancy said. "The appointment of a new director will certainly help the program, and it should be able to branch out and keep serving the students in a positive manner. I am looking forward to working with the college and University this semester."

Environmentalists said the incinerator would be especially hurt by the closing because they handle a large volume of statistical data and programs which are aided by the help desk staff.

Joe Roots, dean of the College of Mass Communications and Media Arts, said he knew of one incident where a computer problem forced an instructor to stop a lab session.

He said the problem may have been solved if the desk was still in place.

Barracuda said. "The help desk was not very helpful before the specialists were hired. "We had more problems before the closing," Barette said. "The specialists have been extremely helpful. They've been a godsend." Barette expressed sympathy for Williams because of the criticism he has received for closing the help desk and for only being able to provide minimal service before the closure. "He's getting burned at both ends," Barette said. "I wouldn't want to be in his job right now."

Williams said more than $500,000 has been allocated for the new IT Customer Service Center, but Williams said IT's budget does not have sufficient funds to staff the facility.

He said the Customer Service Center will open "in or about the end of the month," but would not elaborate on how much staff the center would have to provide technical assistance.

SIUC President John Guyon said more money would have to be eventually allocated to IT, but there would be no immediate addition to its budget.

CLINTON IS COMING!
South African speaker at SIUC

Seminar Address:
Broadcasting, key to democracy survival

By Jeremy Griggs
Daily Egyptian Reporter

A South African speaker discussed the role of broadcasting in shaping the new government in her native country, and her hopes for the future Wednesday afternoon.

Lyndall Shope-Mafolie, a councilor with the Independent Broadcasting Authority of South Africa, addressed a university for the first time as she spoke of her homeland to SIUC administrators and students.

"This is quite a day for me," she said. "This is the first time I've addressed a university at all."

The crowd of about 40 University administrators and students listened as Shope-Mafolie spoke candidly about the new government in her homeland and the problems which they face.

"Our government of national unity has a very important objective," she said, "We have to work together. We have too much invested in this democracy. This is why we are trying very hard and are hopeful that this national unity of government will work."

She discussed more specifically the role of broadcasting in the new South Africa.

"My personal opinion is that broadcasting has a duty to represent everyone," she said, "South Africa is divided into nine provinces, and before the elections, the only languages that could be heard over the radio and on television in all nine provinces were English and Afrikaans. I believe that broadcasting has a duty to make sure all the languages are heard in all parts of the country."

Shope-Mafolie has lived in exile from South Africa until just recently, living in the countries of Tanzania, Zimbabwe, Zambia, Egypt, Czechoslovakia, the United States and Cuba, where she completed graduate work in telecommunications engineering.

"I've been very fortunate in life," she said, "I've been in so many different places that I've almost seen it all."

Students said they enjoyed the seminar and were impressed by Shope-Mafolie's experiences.

"I was extremely impressed with Ms. Mafolie's credentials," said Eric Voss, a senior in history from Canton, Missouri.

"It was very interesting what she had to say," said Lorne House, a senior in journalism from Waukegan. "She talked about some things I was unaware of."

Shope-Mafolie stressed the importance of assistance in making the new South African democracy work.

"We need a lot of training, for we don't have all the skills necessary to make the new government successful," she said. "But we're very hopeful."
Raekwon’s visionary raps send him to head of this week’s class

Raekwon — “Only Built 4 Cuban Linx...” (Loud/RCA)

“Only Built 4 Cuban Linx...” is the long awaited hip-hop masterpiece from the Wu-Tang Clan’s Raekwon. Raekwon keeps the money and production within the Wu-Tang family by using the Wu-Tang Clan producer The RZA on the boards; lyrically and production wise, “Only Built 4 Cuban Linx...” is on point. He uses visionary lyrics to captivate the listener’s mind throughout the entire CD, such as on “Incarcerated Scarfaces”; Thug returns to his roots and addresses millions on how they understand my plan. The kid up in the green land (Chu$t/ me) gets a load of Killa’s RZA all in control blow a fuse you lose! half ass fools get demolished and loses. Raekwon’s microphone partner and fellow Wu-Tang Clan member Tony Starks, also known as Ghost Face Killah, is also featured on the disc. He complements The RZA’s beats by delivering uncut and raw lyrics.

The production is tasteful yet complicated because The RZA blends so many tracks into one song. Sounds of guitars and earie voices singing with raw drums appear on songs like “Checkers of Ice” and “Ice Water.” Raekwon definitely silenced all those non-believers who doubted his skills in making a solo CD. Bivouac — “Full Size Boy” (DGq)

Bivouac, an English band which played the Roman Room in the Student Center last year, has coughed up its major-label debut, a melange of the Violent Femmes and the vocals of Lou Reed from The Velvet Underground, creating a successful sound. Luna is a collective of pieces from broken bands. Dean Wareham (guitar/vocals), was in the band Galaxy 200 known for its psychodelic act rock, Stanley Demeski (drums/percussion), and Justin Harwood (bass), planted their seeds in Feels, a melange of the male

The Violent Femmes and the low earthy group that broke up in the late 1980’s. These three New Yorkers combine to form a soothing tone on their Elektra label. With a touch of the twangy 1970’s sound, similar to the “Pulp Fiction” soundtrack, the music wines and dines the listener into the time warp Tardis of Dr. Who, when polyester was hip. “Penthouse” has a hidden bonus track after the last cut, “Freakin” and “Peakin’”. It is a duet between the female singer of Stimulated and Dean Wareham called “Beinnie and Clyde.”

“Penthouse”, Luna’s third release, follows the first two albums, “Luna Park” and “Bewitched”. This album is a good one to have in your musical connoisseur’s collection. (Mary Rose Roberts B+)

"We expect several thousand people to arrive, but this will not be a problem," Palmer said. "We think the spectator area is big enough to accommodate the crowd and we are able to handle it."

"We would like to strongly suggest students bring no signs or banners to the speech as it might get in the way of any press coverage of the event," Palmer said.

The entrance to the roped-off spectator area will be at the circle drive on the south side of the Pullima breezeway.

Before giving his speech, Clinton will meet with about ten students from across the country, including one from SIUC and one from SIUE.

The roundtable discussion between students and the president will be at 11 a.m. in Pulliam Hall. Jennifer Peck, Department of Education spokeswoman, said students from colleges which are in close proximity to SIUC will be invited to the roundtable discussion.

Peck said she wanted a cross-section of colleges, universities and private colleges in attendance. University Relations executive director Jack Dyer said it is not yet known who will be attending from SIUC.

Peck said she is working with the White House and SIUC Financial Aid Director Pamela Britton to bring students to speak with the president about financial aid.

"The president wants to talk to students who are receiving financial aid and to see how it's affecting their ability to go to college," Peck said.

"Clinton is scheduled to leave SIUC at 1:15 p.m.

Laura Schwartz, a White House spokeswoman, said it is yet to be decided when the president will meet with city officials.

"It has not yet been decided if the president will meet with Carbondale city officials when he arrives into Carbondale or after he leaves SIUC," Schwartz said.

President Clinton will be joined by Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., and U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Ill., when he gives his speech on student aid and the Direct Student Loan Program.

Craftspeople to display goods

By James Lyon
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Craftspeople from across the country are scheduled to display and sell their goods at this weekend's 19th annual Cedarhurst Craft Fair in Mt. Vernon.

"We really wanted a way to display high-quality crafts so that people could learn to appreciate a different type of art," Cindy Mitchell, the Director of Communications at Cedarhurst, said.

She said in order to qualify for a display at the fair, a person must first apply to a committee, which will judge the quality of the work to be displayed. This year's event has more than 160 different craft displays.

Other forms of entertainment are planned for the event, as well as the craft displays. One of the main musical features is New Odyssey, which is a four-man musical group. Mitchell said, the members are proficient in more than 30 different musical instruments and will entertain the crowd with music that ranges from Beethoven to popular songs of the '80s.

"We have entertainment planned for people of every age," Mitchell said.

The fair will be held on the grounds of the Mitchell Museum at Cedarhurst, Sept. 9 and 10, and will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at a cost of $1 per person. Children under 12 are admitted free.

Attendees may park near the fair grounds or be shuttled in from the Times Square Mall for a $2 round trip ride.

For more information, call Cedarhurst at (618) 242-1236.

A local chiropractor said relief for tension headaches may not be in a bottle, but in your own hands.

Self-Massage for Headaches Workshop will be held Sept. 12 at 6:30 p.m. in the Recreation Center conference room.

William G. Connell, a licensed massage therapist, said he will be instructing workshop participants about how to relieve headaches via massage. He said participants are going to practice techniques and will have time to go along with them.

Connell said each technique is applied for about a minute, but he said 10 seconds is better than nothing.

"It is specifically for tension headaches, not migraines," Connell said.

Connell said tension headaches can be caused by a tight scalp, emotional stress, eye strain and habitual poor posture.

"Everyone practices self-massage when they shampoo their hair and smooth shampoo onto their neck and face," Connell said. He said poor posture puts pressure on nerves which causes headaches.

Some people get headaches when the tense up their jaw and neck to express emotional stress, Connell said.

"In addition to encouraging the jaw muscles, you can gently open your mouth wide and stretch your tongue way out to relax the jaw," Connell said.

He said self-massage techniques are helpful while testing and taking breaks from work.

The cost of the workshop is $5 for students, $6 for Recreation Center members, $7 for University affiliates and $8 for community members.

Yeltsin at odds with NATO raids

The Washington Post

As NATO stepped up its air strikes against Bosnian Serb positions around Sarajevo Thursday, Russian President Boris Yeltsin sharply criticized the bombing and threatened to reconsider Moscow's embryonic relationship with the NATO alliance unless the attacks are halted.

NATO has assumed the role of "judge in the conflict, as well as that of an executioner," the Russian president said in a statement. "If this policy is to be continued, we'll have to reconsider our strategy, including our approaches to the relations with the North Atlantic alliance."

Yeltsin has frequently been at odds with the West over the former Yugoslavies' rejection of the Western view that the Serbs are the main aggressors in the war. But his sharp criticism Thursday — which seemed primarily intended for domestic consumption — was the harshest criticism he has leveled so far at NATO's policy in Bosnian.

On the military front, NATO exploited the finest weather since the operation began days ago to intensify the air campaign against Serb targets.

NATO's Kosovo headquarters in Naples noted more than 2,000 sorties have now been flown.

Defensively, the Salukis will have to contain tailback Derrick Collins, who rushed for 160 yards against Western Kentucky. SIUC only allowed 157 total rushing yards against SEMO.

However, the game could be decided on the play of Racer quarterback Mike Cherry, a transfer from Arkansas.

"He really makes good decisions and can make the big play," Nutt said.

Watson said Cherry is the unknown factor and will have to be checked for the Dawgs to get two consecutive victories.

The Racers have been improving since Nut took over the program in 1993.

Before Nutt came to Murray State the Racers—won six games the last four years, but went 4-7 in 1993 and 5-6 the following year.

The Dawgs have already matched their victory total of a year ago and have a chance to open up with two straight victories for the first time since 1991.
Ripken finally gets his due

The Los Angeles Times

BALTIMORE—Call it an unprecedented response to a remarkable victory of will and ability, durability and determination.

It may never have been his goal, as he has frequently said, but Cal Ripken Jr. became baseball's all-time iron man Wednesday night, appearing in his 2,131st consecutive game to pass Lou Gehrig and break a record many considered unbreakable.

He did it technically when the game in which he hit his third home run of the three-game series and the decisive run as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the California Angels, 4-2—became official after the top of the fifth inning.

As the banners on the B&O Warehouse behind the right-field bleachers at Camden Yards were updated from 2,130 to 2,131, fireworks erupted and balloons and streamers soared into the air.

And a crowd of 46,272, including President Clinton and Vice President Al Gore, showered Ripken in a deafening and sustained salute that would interrupt the game for 22 minutes and 15 seconds.

While teammates hoisted cameras—I wasn't going to miss this Kodak moment," said Bobby Bonilla—and the relief corps sprinted from the bullpen to join the celebration, Ripken repeatedly emerged from the dugout-TV replays showed eight curtain calls—wave to the crowd and tap his heart, replying to the crowd's love in kind.

He took off his uniform shin and gave it to wife, Kelly, sitting near the dugout as a keepsake. He hoisted his 2-year-old son, Ryan, into his arms and kissed his 5-year-old daughter, Rachel (the Ripken children had shown up the ceremony's first ball). He waved to his parents in an upstairs box.

Then, when the crowd refused to stop, teammates coerced an reluctant Ripken to take that victory lap, pushing him on a triumphal tour of the dirt track circling the stadium.

Latter, after the game was over, a long field ceremony ended with Ripken calling Baltimore fans the best in baseball and thanking fans everywhere for cheering him "through an unbelievable year.

He said he was "humbled and overwhelmed" to have his name linked "with the great and courageous Lou Gehrig" and he said that he owed thanks to four people in particular: parents Cal Sr. and Vi Ripken for their inspiration and instigation; wife Kelly for her support, and former teammate Eddie Murray "for teaching me how to play the game day in and day out."

For the ceremony in which former New York Yankee great Joe DiMaggio said "all great records meant to be broken" and that Lou Gehrig "would be looking down with appreciation" on what Ripken had accomplished,

Dawgs to battle Racers in opener

By Doug Du Minnesota

DE Sport Editor

Coming into the second week of the football season, the chances of SIUC and Murray State being 1-0 were slim. However, as kickoff drew closer at McAndrew Stadium both teams enter with a victory and with a lot of confidence.

Murray State dismantled Western Kentucky 35-14, while the Dawgs beat 2nd-ranked Southeast Missouri State 30-27 last Thursday.

Saluki head coach Shawn Watson said he is impressed with the Murray St. Stix he has seen.

"Murray St. is a very good football team," he said, "I wanted to beat Western Kentucky last week and we've got skills, they've got size, they've got a good scheme offensively, a great defense and their program is definitely on an upswing."

Racer head coach Houston Evans said staying competitive this year is a lot different than in the past.

"They really scare us," he said, "the difference between this year's team and last is night and day."

The Salukis hope to open up their running game, which nearly ISO's defense for 261 yards.

Stu said SIUC's ground game is going to be a big prob­lem for his team, because that is one of its weak areas.

"I would love to see Salukis (SIUC) have so much size up front and several backs who can run," he said. "Our defen-

SIUC netters even up record as Evansville Aces' fold last 'hand'

The Aces came up one card short in the fifth 'hand' Wednesday night. The SIUC volleyball team recorded its first Missouri Valley Conference win of the season after defeating the Evansville Aces on the road. The Salukis, now 2-2 overall, knocked off the Aces, 15-12, 13-15, 15-5, 12-15 and 15-10. The Aces are now 0-10 lifetime against the Salukis.

Senior outside hitter Heather Herdes led SIUC with 26 kills and a .358 hitting percentage. Herdes also had a key ace in the fifth and final match that spelled the end to victory.

Coach Sonya Locke said Herdes' performance was strong enough to be a key in SIUC's win.

"There is no question that Heather carried us offensively," Locke said. "She had a huge key playing fifth game which really helped us out."

Locke said Herdes' performance has been strong through the entire season. "Her performance has been very strong lately," she said. "So you have to go with what you have."

Herdes needs only 19 more kills to take over the No. 9 spot in career kills in SIUC history.

Adding to the Saluki attack was senior outside hitter Beth Dietz, who claimed four aces and senior setter Kim Golebiowski, with a team high 13 digs.

As far as performance, Locke said it has not been on a consistent level since the beginning of the season.

"Our performance followed suit last night, but it was a win," Sonya Locke SIUC volleyball coach.

"Wednesday nights performance was very typical of us," she said. "So far, we have been very up and down.

"Our performance followed suit last night, but it was a win." Friday night SIUC will host conference rival Indiana State in the Saluki Invitational. Saturday afternoon the spik­ers will go against Austin Peay.

Locke said she is not concerned with a conference match up at this point as the Lady Goats are the farthest thing from her mind.

"Austin Peay does not even exist right now," she said. "Indiana State is a conference match and we have to be concerned with them first."

"Anytime you are in a tournament with a conference match you have to concentra on them first."

The Sycamores step into Davies Gymnasium posting a 4-0 record while the Lady Goats will look to record their first win of the season.

I'm gotta be the shoes! SIUC junior Stellios Maneros was selected as the Missouri Valley Conference men's cross-country Athlete of the Week.

Maneros led the Salukis to victory over Kansas and Southern Indiana this past Saturday by fin­ishing first in a field of 28 with a time of 19:30.6 over the four-mile course.

Maneros was named MVC cross-country Athlete of the Week once last season, and also placed first in the MVC meet last season.

Maneros said he was excited about being named Athlete of the Week.

"I'm very happy," he said. "Mostly because the team won Saturday."

SUC coach Bill Cornell said the Maneros is very deserves of the award and the fact that he wins makes him a good runner.

"He's a very dedicated young man," he said. "He11 dedicated to his training, eats the right food, and he prepares himself very well.

Cornell also said he wasn't surprised that Maneros was picked as the Athlete of this Week.

"It doesn't surprise me that he was picked," he said. "Most of the schools didn't compete, and the one's that did only ran five kilo­meters, so nobody really went at it hard."

Friday marks the beginning of the 1995-96 season for the SIUC men's team. The Salukis is traveling to Cape Girardeau, Mo. to play in the Capital Bank Invitational. SIUC is one of 15 teams fighting for the top of the MVC.

The Salukis then travel to Cedar Falls, Iowa Sept. 14-17 for the
