North Central Assn. Gives Preliminary OK

CHICAGO (AP)—Southern Illinois University's doctoral degree programs in 13 fields received preliminary accreditation Tuesday from the North Central Association's Commission on Colleges and Universities.

A spokesman for SIU, in making the announcement, said preliminary accreditation means the programs will be subject to continuing review before they are considered for full accreditation. He said the programs already are functioning.

Those approved Tuesday are in the fields of anthropology, botany, economics, education, English, government, microbiology, philosophy, psychology, sociology, speech, speech correction and zoology.

"We are determined that our doctoral program shall be of high quality and we will continue to commit our resources and our constant effort to that end," commented SIU president Delyte W. Morris.

Approval of the programs followed what President Morris described as a "massive self-study period in which every effort was made to meet the rigid North Central requirements." Dozens of faculty members participated.

The association is the accrediting agency for colleges and high schools in 19 states.

The report has been awaited since the visit of the North Central Association's accreditation team to SIU on Jan. 20. At that time, seven college administrators arrived to participate in the accreditation visit, which was the second phase of the doctoral accreditation program.

The visit was the culmination of two years of self-study and preparation by the University, in which more than 1,000 pages of expert opinion were compiled.

At the time of the visit, the preliminary accreditation was expected to be followed, in two to five years, by another examination for full accreditation.

English Chairman Quits to Accept Post at U. of I.

Bruce Harkness, chairman of the English Department, has announced his resignation from the faculty to accept a newly created position of associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Illinois.

Harkness, who came to Southern last year from Urbana, said he has received a formal invitation to accept the post there, subject to review and approval by the U of I Board of Trustees.

He set the effective date of his resignation as June 15.

Dean Henry D. Piper of the SIU College of Liberal Arts and Sciences said a search committee has been formed to recommend a successor for Harkness.

Committee members are Professor George K. Plochmann of the Philosophy Department and professors Robert Faner, James Benziger and Earle Stibitz of the English Department.

"We are sorry to see Mr. Harkness leave Carbondale," Dean Piper said. "During his service at SIU, he has impressed everyone with his energy and administrative talents. He is unusually well qualified for the important new job he is going to assume."

Friday Last Day For Paying Fees

Effective today, students desiring to register late or add a course must acquire special permission from their academic deans, said Marion Treece, supervisor of the sectioning center.

The deadline for deferred payment of tuition and fees is Friday.

Off-Campus Voters To Pick 4 Officers

Four top officers of the Off-Campus Presidents' Council will be elected April 28 in a special election.

A new president, vice president, secretary and treasurer are being selected as part of the reorganization of the Council, according to John Johnson, president of Mecca dorm and a council member.

Applications for the posts will be available April 9 at the University Center information desk. They must be returned by April 20.

Any student living off campus is eligible to run for the offices providing he meets the scholastic requirements.

Ron Centanni Elected at TP

Ron Centanni was elected president of Thompson Point Residence Halls, in an election Monday.

Other officers elected were Howard Bode, vice president; Bobbie Sturm, secretary; and Dave Brown, treasurer.

Centanni polled 375 votes to defeat his opponents, Joe Beer (162 votes) and Larry McDonald (150 votes).

Bode won the vice presidential position with a 65-vote margin over his opponent, Thomas Gaby.

Miss Sturm and Brown were unopposed in their race for secretary and treasurer. However, 54 of 71 write-in votes were recorded in the two uncontested positions.

A constitutional referendum, which included minor changes in wording and election procedures, passed with 526 affirmative votes, 185 more than the needed majority.

Fifty-three per cent of 1,304 residents voted in the election; two per cent less than last year.

Brown, Felts and Warren halls led in number of voting residents with 85, 76 and 74 voters respectively. Third floor Brown led the floor totals with 34 of 39 voting.

Lament Long Waiting

Students Speak Out on Recreation; Say SIU Should Add More Facilities

Last of a Series
"I just got my appointment for advisement. I can't believe it was so fast and easy," beamed a freshman girl who had just received her fall appointment without going through the usual "line ritual."

With such added efficiency in the advisement and sectioning centers as has been exhibited in recent quarters, what are students going to do with all this added leisure time?

"I think we need more intramural sports in the spring," commented one freshman. "It's easy to get out of shape down here with nothing to do." The student, Frank Weaver of Nokomis, Ill., also cited the need for a soccer league, especially for foreign students.

"They've got a terrific amount of facilities here, but there is such a waiting list," Weaver said of the indoor recreation, including bowling, ping pong, and pool. "Sixteen bowling lanes are quite a few, but still for a university of this size 16 doesn't go very far."

Another student, Murl Teske, agreed that waiting lists are a problem—if you want to play pool an hour between classes, you have to arrive two hours early,—but said he thought the University had a pretty fair program. "I don't see what more they could add," the Beecher, Ill., freshman commented.

"I think it would be better to organize off-campus housing more, Teske said. "It's hard to get to know people."

Bob Pemberton, a sophomore from McLeansboro, Ill., complained that the university doesn't have enough facilities since various play fields have been torn up.

"It's impossible to find a place to play football, baseball or anything," said the Thompson Point resident.

"We can't have a softball intramural league this spring because the Thompson Point field was torn up for construction of the Technology Building, and there isn't going to be any place to play flag-football next fall. I can't see riding a bike to city park."

Dave Fruend, an Evansville, Ind., junior, seemed to agree: "I feel that it's a dirty, rotten shame we're not having intramural softball this year. I'm all for the buildings, but I'd sure like to have a softball field."

"Of course, the Lake-on-the-Campus provides many warm-weather activities. I like everything about it—except its name," Fruend continued.

"It's pretty bad," said Bobbie Sturm about the recreation problem. "There isn't anything other than the University. If there is, it costs a fortune."

"And after being in classes all day," she continued, "you get sick of University buildings."

Bob Smith of St. Elmo, Ill., felt that the facilities at the University Center could be expanded. "A definite attempt should be made to complete the Center," he said.

One female student had different ideas about improved facilities: "I think they need a place for couples to go alone,"

Southern Players to Feature 2 'Absurd' Plays April 10-18

Turning the spotlight on a current style of drama called the "theater of the absurd," the Southern Players will present a bill of two plays April 10-12 and 14-18.

This theatrical trend centers around the absurdity of human existence and the apparent irrationality of life, according to Jim Bob Stephenson, associate professor of theater and director of the plays.

"The Bald Soprano" by Eugene Ionesco concentrates on the difficulty of human communication, the mystery of identity, and social facades of politeness and etiquette.

Edward Albee's "The American Dream" is a serious consideration of some of the more unattractive aspects of the American way of life—the emphasis upon success, money and a glossy exterior.

Mail orders for the plays are being accepted, and holders of season coupon books may exchange their coupons for seat reservations.

Cast for "The Bald Soprano" includes: Gerry Baughn, Joanna Hogan, Victor Corder, Ramona Nail, Eileen

Fishman and Randy Blunk. The cast for "The American Dream," Burton Dikelsky, Lynn Leonard, Barbara Burgdorf, Helen Seitz, and Christopher Jones.

William Lindstrom is assistant to the director for "The Bald Soprano," while Charles Fischer is assisting Stephenson on "The American Dream."

Education Talks To Start Friday

A series of education lectures sponsored by the department of Educational Administration and Supervision, and the Division of University Extension, will begin at 4:30 p.m. April 17 in Davis Auditorium of the Wham Education Building.

The first of the series will be entitled "The Role of the National Association for the Accreditation of Teacher Education," by P. Roy Brammell, professor of education.

Other lectures include, "What Should We Do With the Lower Division" by Alonzo Meyer and "Junior High School in Transition" by Nelson Bossing of the Education Department.

Bryant Is Appointed To State Committee

President Delyte W. Morris has appointed Roye Bryant, director of placements, to the Teacher Recruitment Advisory Committee.

The committee meets once a year to exchange information and ideas on teacher supply and demand and teacher's salaries.

State Superintendent of Public Education Ray Page asked Morris to appoint a SIU representative to the committee which meets May 8 in Springfield.

BALD SOPRANO — Leading actor, Gerry Baughn seems to enjoy his part in the rehearsal of "The Bald Soprano," Eugene Ionesco's work which will begin a showing on campus, April 10. "Soprano" and Albee's "The American Dream" will be produced by the Southern Players as examples of the absurd theater.

Southern's Unique Teaching Machine Can Save Two Months Wasted Time

Did you know that Southern has the only random access digital tape recorder teaching machine in existence?

This little green machine with the imposing name resides in the new Educational Media Research Center on the fourth floor of the library, its job being to select one of 300 possible audio responses to give to a person using a teaching machine.

The machine was developed by Grosvenor Rust and his associates in the Educational Media Research Center from a machine which delivers commercials on radio.

This is just one of the machines to be found in the center's new but not-so-glamorous location. Presently, Rust and his associates are working on a project which teaches freshmen students how to use the library. The course is taught entirely by teaching machines and it takes from 15 to 45 minutes depending on how much the student knows.

"I will give an educated guess and say that this machine taught course could save a student as much as two months in time wasted in the library in four years of college," said Rust. "It should help to speed up term paper writing," he added.

Rust assured that taking the library instruction was a pleasant experience, that most students liked to be taught by machines, and that the student wasn't observed while he was taking the test.

This reporter took the course in a small, narrow room, sitting before a panel which had three rows of quarter-sized, numbered buttons. The machine was turned on and a picture and printed instructions were projected on the wall. The instructions said to push a combination on the numbered buttons in front of me and then a button lettered "show." There was a whirr and a clock behind me and another image was projected on the wall. I was given some printed information and another combination of numbers.

This continued until I completed the series. I was alternately instructed and quizzed, taking all the time I wanted. I had the opportunity to skip the material that I already knew, and if I made a mistake, nobody but I knew about it.

Rust pointed out that much of their testing is done with printed material and that teaching machines are used primarily for basic research.

The Educational Media Research Center is now preparing for research in pictorial material and programmed instruction and in the near future will be instructing groups through the use of teaching machines.

8 Firms Indicted In Steel Pricing

WASHINGTON--Eight giants of the steel industry were indicted Tuesday on charges of conspiring in secret hotel room meetings to fix prices in the multibillion-dollar steel sheet business.

A federal grand jury in New York City charged that the firms conspired to eliminate competition in the $3.6-billion industry, which accounts for a third of all finished steel mill production in the United States.

In doing so, the indictment charged, the corporations and two of their officials violated the Sherman Anti-trust Act ban against restraint of trade.

The indictment grew out of an earlier grand jury's investigation of the April 1962 attempt by leading steel companies to put into effect a $6-a-ton price increase on all steel products. Sharply rebuked by the Kennedy administration, the firms rescinded the price increase.

Today's indictment named these defendants:

United States Steel Corp. of Pittsburgh and James P. Barton, its present assistant general manager for administrative service; Bethlehem Steel Co. of Bethlehem, Pa., and W.J. Stephens, former assistant vice president for sales.

National Steel Corp. of Pittsburgh; Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. of Pittsburgh; Great Lakes Steel Corp. of Detroit; Armco Steel Corp. of Middletown, Ohio; Republic Steel Corp. of Cleveland, and Wheeling Steel Corp. of Wheeling, W. Va.

Named as co-conspirators, but not defendants, were Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., Youngstown, Ohio; Pittsburgh Steel Co. of Pittsburgh, and Granite City Steel Co., Granite City, Ill.

The government charged the conspiracy began between 1955 and 1961 and was furthered at secret hotel meetings, at which no minutes were kept.

If found guilty, each corporation could be fined $50,000 and each individual defendant could be fined $50,000 and be sentenced up to a year in prison.

CATANIA, Sicily--A violent eruption Tuesday shook Mt. Etna, Europe's highest volcano, sending molten rock and burning ash into the air and spraying several communities with a rain of hot sand. No damages were foreseen.

Dignitaries, N.Y. Citizens, Bid Farewell to MacArthur

NEW YORK--Diplomats and generals, soldiers who served him and the common people who admired him paid solemn and dignified last respects Tuesday to General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

Two hours before the doors of the 7th Regiment Army opened to the public, lines formed behind police barriers. Under a gray sky, limousines arrived bringing dignitaries.

A religious service preceded the public opening of the armory.

MacArthur's widow, Jean, and son, Arthur, 26, were escorted to the private service by Lt. Gen. Garrison H. Davidson, commander of the 1st Army, who represented the President. They stood with bowed heads beside MacArthur's five-star personal flag, close to the bier, as Catholic, Protestant and Jewish clergymen prayed.

Among the dignitaries who entered the armory were U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.; Gen. Lucius D. Clay; New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller; and New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

MacArthur's body was to be on view until 10 p.m.

It will be taken by train to Washington today and it will lie in state in the Capitol rotunda.

President Johnson, representatives of Congress and of many nations will pay their respects to MacArthur's memory there. The funeral has been scheduled for Saturday morning in Norfolk, Va.

President Drove Recklessly, Sipped Beer, Newsmen Report

WASHINGTON -- President Johnson and his wife sipped beer while driving reporters around their LBJ Ranch in Texas over the Easter weekend, newsmen who accompanied them report.

The President also did some fast driving, say the reporters who went along.

On one occasion, they said, he gunned his cream-colored Lincoln Continental up a long Texas hill and the driver of an oncoming car veered off the road.

Mrs. Johnson, driving another Lincoln Continental on a leisurely pace, took cooling sips of beer from a paper cup as she gave a running commentary on the LBJ Ranch, its cattle and points of interest for a car full of reporters. Occasionally, she drove along the ranch roads with one hand on the wheel as she held the cup.

Presidential press secretary George Reedy, when asked about the President's beer - drinking and fast-driving, told reporters Tuesday he had no personal knowledge of the incidents referred to and therefore could not comment.

In its account, Time magazine said that when Johnson's car raced up the hill, one passenger groaned, "That's the closest John McCormack has come to the White House yet." House Speaker McCormack, D-Mass., is next in line of succession to the presidency.

"The whole caravan jounced at high speeds across a pasture, zig-zagging around dung mounds and clusters of fat white-faced cattle," Time said.

Johnson blew the cow-like horn on his car at the cattle, and Time said one newswoman recalled he once gave "a very graphic description of the sex life of a bull."

Spotting a sow with a half dozen pigs, Time said, the President offered to pose for a photo with a pig if reporters could catch one--and "guffawed exuberantly" as the sow charged the frightened photographers, as he knew it would.

Senator Alarmed by Gun Clubs

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, said Tuesday he hopes the Justice Department will look into the reported formation of rifle clubs in Cleveland, Ohio, and elsewhere to support the civil rights drive. Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, in a speech

Civil Rights Picket Killed By Bulldozer

CLEVELAND, Ohio--A civil rights demonstrator threw himself under a bulldozer at a school construction site Tuesday and was crushed to death, police said.

The tread of the tractor ran over the man's chest and he was dead on arrival at Lakeside Hospital, police reported.

The driver of the tractor, identified by police as John White, 33, said his attention was distracted by demonstrators and he did not see the man jump in front of his bulldozer.

Police identified the demonstrator as the Rev. Bruce W. Klunder, of Baker, Ore., who joined the staff of the Student Christian Union in the fall of 1961. He is white.

After the accident, picketing stopped and so did movement of trucks and heavy equipment, but some shoveling continued.

A crowd of about 200 had gathered at the site of a new elementary school at Lakeview Road and Saywell Avenue on the east side about 12:30 p.m. to protest start of construction.

The protesting groups claim building a new school on this site will perpetuate what they describe as "de facto" school segregation in that area.

Ribicoff Says Distortions Used by Rights Bill Foes

WASHINGTON--Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff accused civil rights bill opponents Tuesday of using a smokescreen of "glaring distortions" in an effort to defeat it.

The Connecticut Democrat called the "grossest distortion of all" a contention by some that the late President John F. Kennedy opposed Title VI, under which federal aid ultimately could be cut off from programs which discriminate against Negroes.

"President Kennedy made it perfectly clear what he opposed and what he favored in this area," Ribicoff said in a speech prepared for Senate delivery.

"What Title VI does provide is precisely what President Kennedy favored: 'I don't think we should extend federal program in a way which encourages or really permits discrimination,'" Ribicoff said.

The leadership, fighting to maintain a quorum on hand, kept the Senate in session until 9:54 p.m. Monday. It took 24 minutes to assemble 51 senators before Sen. George A. Smathers D-Fla., began a speech at 8:36 p.m. assailing a provision setting up an Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Smathers charged that to enforce that section the government would need "a corps of psychiatrists" to search the hearts and minds of employers to determine whether an employer was guilty of bias and racial prejudice if he failed to hire, or fired, a Negro or failed "to grant a pay increase to him."

Fraternities to Collect Cancer Drive Funds

Members of sororities and fraternities at SIU plan to devote three days next week to collecting cancer drive funds.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday have been designated for philanthropic activities of Greek Week, April 13 through 18. During the three days, every Greek resident at SIU will take part in the annual drive to cover the Jackson County area.

Greek Week is an annual event sponsored by the sororities and fraternities on campus to stress charity work and cooperative efforts within the group.

Judith Pope and Byron Taylor are cochairmen. John Nelson, supervisor of Small Group Housing, advises committees.

Traditional track and field events April 16 will be a highlight of the week. The chariot race among fraternities will add a touch of "real Greek" atmosphere.

April 17 a banquet in the Roman Room will be followed by a semi-formal dance in the Ballroom. During the dance the 1964 Greek Goddess will be crowned by last year's winner, Laurie Brown.

This year the annual Greek sing will be non-competitive and informal. It will be held April 18 at Shryock Auditorium. The program will consist of only fraternity and sorority songs and is open to the public. Money saved on buying trophies will go for a scholarship to a Greek student.

The scholarship will be presented to President Delyte W. Morris and will become effective in September. It will consist of free tuition and fees for one year. Any Greek resident may apply if in good standing with the University and in financial need.

During the week the fraternities and sororities will invite foreign students to dinner. The purpose is to make them feel at home although away from home.

The committees and their chairmen are as follows: Barbara Wirth, secretary; track meet committee, Trudy Gidcomb and Ron Knaack; projects on campus, Laurie Brown and John Heakin; projects in the Carbondale area, Mary Larson and Marjorie Malone; dance and coronation committee, Marion Morgan and Bill Banister; publicity, Danny Craumbauch and Sue Conglin; design, Fred Barrera and Linda Atwater; banquet, Judy Lloyd and Julie Bucari; finance, Gary Liberton and Carolyn Mahack; Greek sing, Kathy Wolak and Bill Carel.

The predicted changes and impacts that the new developments will make on society will be discussed at the conference by SIU faculty members.

Presentations by speakers of anticipated developments in their respective industries will be made by research personnel from the laboratories and development divisions of IBM, Eli Lilly and Company, United Airlines, RCA, American Telegraph and Telephone and Chrysler Corporation.

The presentations will begin at 7 p.m. in the Ballroom of the University Center. They will be followed by a short question and answer period and coffee and informal discussion.

Libel-Proof Guise of Humor Let Dooley Expose Phonies

Mr. Dooley Remembers--the Informal Memoirs of Finley Peter Dunne. Edited with an Introduction and Commentary by Philip Dunne. Little, Brown and Company. 307 pp. $5.95.

Finley Peter Dunne (1867-1936) was one of the few genuine humorists in our history to acquire fame, fleeting though it was, and make his mark as a national celebrity. Born and reared among his kith and kin, the Chicago Irish, along "Archey Road," Dunne acquired a skill in the use of Irish dialect ("the mild and aisy Elizabethan English of the southern Irishman") which gave him a libel-proof technique as a journalist.

Dunne hated sham and, in particular, he had a low regard for certain types of politicians. Editors would not invite libel. Dunne wrote as a Mr. Dooley, with Hennessy as straight man.

This style, at least for Dooley's part, was perhaps reminiscent of the jester of the King's court. Mr. Dooley did not write in humorous vein to entertain, though readers found many of his pieces to be hilarious. Mr. Dooley merely clothed diatribes with the veneer of humor.

In this manner the high and mighty could be ridiculed in the guise of humor. As Franklin P. Adams observed: "Few popular writers ever wrote more maliciously than Lardner and Dunne. They resented injustice, they loathed sham, and they hated the selfish stupidity that went with them."

Dunne said regarding some of the Mr. Dooley pieces published in the Chicago Post: "It occurred to me that while it might be dangerous to call an alderman a thief in English no one could sue if a comic Irishman denounced the statesman as a thief....If I had written the same thing in English I would have inevitably been pistolled or slugged, as other critics were. But my victims did not dare to complain. They felt bound to smile and treat these highly humorous articles as mere humorous skits."

This reviewer believes that Mr. Dooley, by making the high and mighty squirm, doubtless aided his Muckraker contemporaries (Ida Tarbell, Mark Sullivan, Upton Sinclair and others) in finding an audience receptive for the "literature of exposure."

Generally, this volume is good history. On page 43, however, the reference to Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis and the heavy fine levied on a great corporation is misleading; this fine could never have been "written off" by the corporation, as the fine was never paid; higher court dismissed the case for lack of evidence.

This volume has been ably edited by Philip Dunne, Mr. Dooley's son. This is not a biography and, as the editor has indicated, a new one is not needed, as Mr. Dooley's America, by Elmer Ellis, is "accurate, comprehensive, and graceful."

The arrangement is unique. The introduction by Philip Dunne sets the stage. There follow a series of typical pieces by Mr. Dooley interspersed with commentaries by Philip Dunne.

Of these the most interesting are: On Theodore Roosevelt ("Alone in Cuba"); On Mark Twain; On the Irish. The best of a series of shorter pieces is The Crusade Against Vice.

One sage observation from Mr. Dooley: "Trust everybody--but cut the cards."

Single Idea Dominates Outstanding Examples Of Advertising and Editorial Art, Design

The 42nd Annual of Advertising & Editorial Art & Design. Edited by Edward R. Wade. New York: The Advisory Committee of the Art Directors Club.

This book contains the 564 finalists in two categories each of advertising and editorial art exhibited by the Art Directors Club in New York. These were judged the best of 18,000 entries.

Advertising art, as might be expected, accounted for most of the entries, 353 to 211 of editorial art. Clearly, most of the exhibits utilized photographic rather than other art forms. An indication is that of the 17 medal winners, only three were not photographs, with one part photograph and part drawing.

The 42nd Annual National Exhibition of Advertising and Editorial Art Design presents which serves his single purpose. That purpose might well be to sell an idea or product. Any student of photography, design and advertising should benefit from exposure to these outstanding examples of design, packaging, posters and television commercials. The latter category actually offered less of value than did the others.

Mr. Parker calls the exhibit "better balanced than in previous years and overall as good a show as the Art Directors Club has ever produced." There is nothing in the book to dispute this laudatory view.

Way-of-Life Series Explains Key Phases of Baptist History

The Baptist Way of Life, by Brooks Hays and John E. Steely. Englewood Cliffs, N.J. Prentice-Hall, Inc., 1963, ix, 205 pp. $3.95.

A fellow-haunter of old book shops once pinpointed his preferences for ancient volumes: "Old books seldom have jackets. Therefore, I don't have to read the ridiculous blurbs." He'd enjoy my copy of this book now that the jacket has been removed. "For the Baptist here is (not) a complete explanation of his faith--its past and its future."

The authors of the seventh volume in "The Way of Life Series" have avoided such "allness" statements. Carefully, skillfully, the former Under-Secretary of State and his academic colleague have sketched meaningful phases of early Baptist history in the old world, the frontier basis of much of American Baptist development, the great diversity of beliefs and practices within "the Baptist Way of Life," and particular characteristics of the people who are called Baptists.

George W. Norris: The Making of a Progressive, 1861-1912, by Richard Lowitt. Syracuse University Press, 1963.

mortgage matters, to leadership of the Progressive movement via a judgeship and membership of the lower house of Congress.

The outstanding contribution of this volume is the story of the part Senator Norris played in the fight against Speaker Joe Cannon's control of the House of Representatives. The winning of this battle brought Norris national acclaim. During these years the reader watches Norris mature as a progressive in politics and follows him from his early support of Theodore Roosevelt and his legislative program through the dramatic 1912 presidential election.

The scholarship of the author in the preparation of this biography is above reproach. The writing, however, is not of the quality to which the reading public has become accustomed in biographies. Although the reader is given the greatest of detail, he learns little of Norris as a personality. The location of all illustrations and footnotes together at the end of the volume detracted from the reader's enjoyment of the work. The presence of a number of typographical errors, occurring in manufacture, hardly appears worthy of the Syracuse University Press.

Report on What Makes Sandburg Tick

Carl Sandburg: Poet and Patriot, by Gladys Zehnpenfing. Minneapolis, Minn.: T.S. Denison & Co., Inc. 265 pp. $3.50.

To all those who remember Carl Sandburg only as the poet who wrote short poems, such as "Fog," which they read in a high school literature class or as the biographer who compiled a thick series about Lincoln, this book may come as a shock.

Miss Zehnpenfing's portrait of Sandburg isn't a chronological step by step narrative of the poet's life. It is a commentary on his background, his motivations and his imprint on America. It's a what-makes-Carl-Sandburg-tick report, enriched with an ample supply of quotes from his writings.

It describes Sandburg the boy and Sandburg growing up. A great deal of emphasis is placed on the often neglected role of Sandburg as an agitator for labor and social reforms. And always it is Sandburg, a poet of and for the masses, and Sandburg the man who gave Lincoln to Americans.

Carl Sandburg: Poet and Patriot is at its best when the author forgets herself and lives in her subject and her subject lives in Abraham Lincoln. This is especially true in the chapters which describe Sandburg's novel Memorance Rock and his biography Lincoln: The War Years. That the book reaches such a high level of interest in these chapters makes it all the more sad that it loses its impact in the last chapters.

Yet it is the type of book which those who already are familiar with the poet will enjoy for its honest and obvious hero worship and one which may convert readers who are not of the Sandburg fold.

Story of Orphan Is Tear-Jerker

I, Keturah, by Ruth Wolff. New York: The John Day Co., 1963. 285pp. $4.95.

Ruth Wolff, who is a native of the neighboring state of Kentucky, has appeared frequently in women's magazines, but this is her first novel in book form.

It is the warm, appealing, and sometimes tear-jerking story of an orphan girl who overcame her handicaps and found happiness and a rich husband by being true to her ideals. If this plot sounds like a soap opera, it is. But in spite of the synthetic happy ending, it holds the reader's interest to the last page.

The author manages to breathe real life into the simple people of her story, she has a deft knack of description and she writes with impressive sincerity. This is definitely women's fare and most women will enjoy it thoroughly.

LARRY KRISTOFF

Kristoff, Finn Work to Improve Chance for Olympic Team

By Richard La Susa

Although Southern's 1964 wrestling season is officially over, Saluki matmen Larry Kristoff and Terry Finn are working hard to improve their chances for a berth on this year's United States Olympic Wrestling team.

Kristoff and Finn, who formed the nucleus of the fourth best collegiate wrestling squad in the nation this year, hope to be on the American team which will compete in the Olympic wrestling meet in Japan this October.

Kristoff, defending AAU heavyweight champion and a surprise loser in the recent NCAA wrestling championships, has the best chance of gaining a spot on the Olympic squad, according to his coach, Jim Wilkinson. "Kristoff," said Wilkinson, "is as good a heavyweight as anyone in the country and he is more determined than ever to make the Olympic team."

The big heavyweight, a product of Carbondale and kingpin of Southern's mat team for the past two years, made a 13-2 record during the regular season, but was ousted in the first round of the NCAA tournament by Purdue's Bob Hopp.

"Kristoff made one mistake when he dropped his 7-5 decision to Hopp," Wilkinson pointed out. "Larry had a fairly comfortable 3-1 lead with only about a minute to go in the match, and his opponent looked as if he was so tired he was ready to be pinned."

"I guess Larry thought so also," said the Saluki coach, "because he made a bad move for a takedown and a pin which cost him the match."

With one minute remaining in the match, Hopp took advantage of Kristoff's mistake and quickly wiped out the Salukis' 3-1 lead.

Wilkinson said that Kristoff accepted his tough defeat and came home more eager and more determined than ever to make the Olympic team this summer.

Finn, a rugged little 115-pounder from Oak Lawn, surprised many in the collegiate wrestling world last month when he won the NCAA title in his division.

"Finn is a tremendous and talented wrestler," said Wilkinson, "but he will have to go all-out if he wants to make the Olympic squad."

"At Terry's weight of 115-pounds he would face one of the greatest wrestlers in the United States, Gray Simons, who has been on the last two Olympic teams and is a favorite again," said Wilkinson. "Because of the stiff competition facing Finn in the lightweight division and because of the fact that the little Saluki standout is scheduled to graduate this year and may need to get a job.

Kristoff and Finn will get a taste of the competition that they will be facing in June when they compete next week in the Olympic tryouts at Waukegan.

Although both men already have qualified for this summer's Olympic tryouts--Finn on the basis of his championship in the NCAA University division meet and Kristoff on the basis of his heavyweight victory in last month's NCAA college division tournament--they will compete in the Waukegan tryouts and a number of other Olympic tryouts in the Midwest to familiarize themselves with Olympic-style wrestling and to maintain their rigid training schedules.

"Both men, said Wilkinson, feel that the caliber of competition in the coming series of tryouts will help condition them for the final tryouts to be held at the New York World's Fair Aug. 24-29.

22 Lettermen Return

SIU Gridders Start Practice For Tough Football Schedule

With spring drills already underway, the opening whistle for new grid coach Don Shroyer and the 1964 edition of his Saluki football team is a little more than five months away.

Shroyer opened practice yesterday and used most of the first session for fundamentals and just plain hard hitting. Ninety prospective candidates, including 22 lettermen, answered the opening-round bell.

A feeling of anticipation and new born excitement filled the air over the practice football field behind McAndrew Stadium. Many feel that SIU could field a strong squad in September because of the return of most of last year's young team.

The Salukis will be faced with the toughest schedule in its history next fall with half the schedule with major colleges.

The Salukis will open the season next year against rival Bowling Green at the Falcons' home grounds on Sept. 19. Next year's football schedule is virtually the same with the exception of Drake replacing North Dakota State.

Southern fans will be afforded the opportunity of seeing six home games which includes Louisville, North Texas State, Toledo, Fort Campbell, Evansville and Lincoln.

The homecoming game will be against North Texas State on Oct. 31 with the annual Shrine game on Oct. 10 against Fort Campbell.

The Salukis finished with a 4-5 record last year and are scheduled to play a ten game schedule this year. North Texas State was the tenth team on the Saluki roster last year but the game was cancelled due to the assassination of President Kennedy.

The entire schedule includes:
Sept. 19--at Bowling Green (Bowling Green, Ohio)
Sept. 26--Louisville (8 p.m.)
Oct. 3--at Tulsa (Tulsa, Okla.)
Oct. 10--Fort Campbell (8 p.m.) Shrine Game

There will be male cheerleaders again next year with

SIU to Tee-Off Against Purdue

Southern's undefeated golf team will have to wait until Friday's road match with Purdue University to extend its current victory streak.

The match, scheduled last Friday, between Coach Lynn Holder's Salukis and Southeast Missouri at Cape Girardeau was cancelled because of rain and strong winds.

The meet has been tentatively re-scheduled for April 26.

The hot Saluki golfers who own a sparkling 3-0 record for the young dual match season, will face a tough Boiler-maker squad at Lafayette, Ind. on Friday.

Student's Computer Innovation Attracts International Attention

An electronic computer program by William E. Wright, a part-time student worker in the SIU Data Processing and Computing Center, has attracted international attention. Center Director John W. Hamblen said requests for information on the program have been received from 15 computer installations in the United States, Canada, and Japan.

The work by Wright, a sophomore, makes it possible to "translate" problems written in symbolic computer language for the IBM 7040 computer so its work may be simulated by a smaller machine. The system is being used at Southern to test programs designed for use when the University receives the larger computer later this year.

By simulating the programs on the smaller computer, Wright explained, logical and arithmetic errors can be found and eliminated using present equipment. Also, it makes possible advance training of personnel who will be using the larger computer.

Hamblen said Wright's work is "the kind of thing which might be expected from $10,000-a-year or more personnel" and has established the student as a superior computer programmer.

Wright is a mathematics and physics major from Carbondale. As a freshman, he was co-winner of the annual Freshman Achievement Award in mathematics and was top-ranking student academically in physics.

Science vs. Religion

Baptist Discussions Feature Schweitzer

"We must affirm that both science and religion are necessary for a full and total view of the whole of our experiences in the universe," said George K. Schweitzer in an interview yesterday at the Baptist Student Foundation.

Schweitzer, a professor of chemistry at the University of Tennessee, is lecturing at 7:30 p.m., through Friday, on "The Hebrew-Christian Tradition and Modern Science" at the BSF.

"To say that science and religion have no conflicts is a gross oversimplification," said Schweitzer, "but Science and religion do not disagree; they look at the universe from different points of view.

"It is when one attempts to find scientific information from the Bible, or when we try to come to knowledge of God in science that the conflict arises," according to Schweitzer.

He believes that science cannot adequately deal with dedication, loyalty, purpose, meaning, value, beauty and good.

Religion is required to provide individuals with an ultimate loyalty, dedication to cause, feeling of purpose, and meaning in the universe and in themselves.

In a talk before the BSF Monday, Schweitzer discussed the historical origins of the scientific method. He paid particular attention to the transformation of the Greek view of nature with certain Hebrew Christian presuppositions.

On Tuesday he talked about the scientific method, its application, its logical validity, and its implications.

Schweitzer has Ph. D.'s in the philosophy of religion and in inorganic chemistry.

He has appeared on more than 80 college and university campuses, lecturing on science, philosophy and religion.

His topic tonight will be, "The perversion of Science;" --Thursday, "The Implications of Science;" and Friday, "Christianity and World Religions."
