SNOW?!

Old Man Winter just won’t give up

By Don Marquis
Staff Writer
and The Associated Press

It appears that Old Man Winter just doesn't want to let his icy grip move away.

According to the St! Weather Service at Southern Illinois Airport, 1 to 3 inches of snow was expected to fall on Southern Illinois Wednesday night and Thursday, with high temperatures only reaching 40 degrees Thursday.

Meanwhile, apple growers are trying to assess damage from two nights of freezing temperatures in Southern Illinois.

Terry Boyd of Anna, who has apple orchards in Union, Johnson and Jersey counties, said 50 to 60 percent of the buds on some varieties of his apple trees have died and there may be more damage.

Monday night's temperatures dropped to 20 degrees at some locations in the area. With the temperature in the low 20s Tuesday night, he used helicopters to fan warm air through the trees in some orchards and managed to keep the temperature near 30 degrees.

"I definitely think we’re going to have a reduced apple crop," said Boyd. "This year, apples are going to be big in the stores — there’s no question.

Boyd said it’s unlikely that a full crop of apples will be harvested this year. Southern Illinois fruit growers lost the entire peach crop because of cold weather in January.

A new snow storm is expected to blast the northern half of the state on the heels of record cold weather.

The National Weather Service issued a winter storm watch, predicting the snow will start Wednesday night and continue throughout Thursday. In some areas it is expected to be heavy, but no accumulations were estimated.

The snow is not expected to be as heavy as that of Monday when up to one foot was dumped, but the weather service said it will be accompanied by gusty winds causing blowing and drifting.

Temperatures on Thursday will range from the 30s north to the 40s south, with 60 possible in the extreme south.

Temperatures will drop to above zero in Chicago and Moline early Wednesday, and sink to 10 above in Peoria — the coldest April weather ever recorded in those cities.

USO presidential candidates, trustee hopefuls debate issues

The book co-op should be made profitable.

The Undergraduate Student Organization's 10 percent fee for handling co-op books should be eliminated.

The present book co-op can be made to work, but it may not survive long enough to get the chance.

These views were expressed by three candidates for USO president in a debate at 8 p.m.

Tuesday in Ballroom D. About 75 people attended.

Erl Boyle, student senator seeking the presidency on the Big O Party ticket, said the co-op could be made profitable — but he did not say how.

Glen Shear, Sing Party candidate who is running a write-in campaign after being removed from the official ballot, suggested the USO's fee should be dropped to initiate the exchange of books as inexpensive as possible. He suggested giving a "book board" similar to the ride board in the Student Center.

Jerry Cook, USO chief of staff and Maverick Party candidate, said the book co-op works in its present form but lamented the Student Center's recently announced intention to charge the USO $1,000 for ballroom space for the co-op.

In an earlier debate Tuesday night, both candidates for student trustee agreed that government has a responsibility to do a better job of deciding who goes to jail.

Many woes face U.S. jails, officials say

By Randy Rendfield
Staff Writer

Prisons and jails are overcrowded.

Like other institutions, correctional facilities are facing tough competition for scarce tax dollars.

The rates of crime, particularly violent crime, is steadily and sharply increasing.

There is overlap and duplication of functions of local, state and federal prisons and jails.

To top it off, there is no coherent public policy that might help stem the rising tide of violent crime.

According to Norman Carlson, these are the most significant problems facing the criminal justice system today. Carlson, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, addressed more than 100 people Wednesday morning in Student Center Ballroom D.

Carlson, who presented a prepared speech, was the featured member of a panel of prominent figures in the criminal justice system.

Other panel members included the audience after Carlson's speech.

Carlson addressed the problem of communities-based rehabilitation programs and in question. Carlson said.

"There are $75,000 American citizens confined in federal and state prisons," Carlson said. "The problem is one of deciding who should get a book into the warden of the U.S. Penitentiary in Marion.

Whether criminals should be locked up longer, or put into community-based rehabilitation programs is in question. Carlson said.

"There are 35,000 American citizens confined in federal and state prisons," Carlson said.

"There are 35,000 American citizens confined in federal and state prisons," Carlson said.

Two solutions to the problems are to build more jails and prison space immediately and to do a better job of deciding who goes to jail. Carlson said.

Understandably, Carlson said, taxpayers look at things other than prisons and jails as priorities, such as building and maintaining schools, hospitals and roads. Society has to look at the problems of the criminal justice system in economic terms and has to use resources as efficiently as possible, he said.

There is great variation in the philosophies of judges who may disagree as to what sentence fits what crime. Carlson warned. "Each judge has his own notions and biases," said Carlson.

The most important decision, Carlson said, is whether to sentence a criminal to prison or allow them to stay in the community. "The vast majority of offenders should never go in the correctional facilities," he said, suggesting that a halfway house...
Explosion rips tunnel in Oakland, 7 dead

OAKLAND, Calif. AP — A gasoline tanker truck was caught in a "raging inferno" when a bus hit it inside a tunnel early Wednesday, setting off a fire that killed seven people and destroyed much of the tunnel. Officials said some of the 8,800 gallons of gasoline in the tanker leaked into a nearby reservoir and could cause an "environmental tragedy."

The firestorm left foot-deep piles of debris in the charred gut of the tunnel, said fire Capt. John Speckman. Sprinklers that are triggered by 100-degree heat went off throughout the tunnel.

Carlson said that normally a 5 mph breeze blows west-to-east against traffic in the tunnel. He said the force of the explosion turned the tube into a kind of horizontal chimney that "carried flames and smoke at an estimated 100 mph."

The collision began when the double-trailer truck trucked to the right of a stalled passenger car, tractor-trailer driver Larry Lee Mathers, 44, of Sacramento, said he saw the Tunnel-Costa County Transit District bus right behind.

He said the bus — empty except for its driver — hit the tunnel wall, possibly in attempt to avoid the car, then bamped into the truck's rear trailer, causing the rig to overturn.

Jails from Page 1 or similar program would be sufficient.

The most plan would be a sentencing commission, Carlson said, to determine who goes into a certain jail, prison or program. The commission would "recognize the differences in crimes and crimes in 15 percent, increase greater uniformity. People being sentenced as much as needed," he said.

The type of sentencing commission, that Carlson said, he advocates would "save the society from overcrowding space" for those who really deserve incarceration.

Carlson said he disagrees with those who advocate handling the worst criminals by jail to "community alternatives." rather than prison and jail.

"They don't respond," Carlson said. If they do respond at all, he said, it is only because in community programs they can avoid the Berkeley Tunnel case — prison, where the offender is denied speech, compassion.

However, the criminal justice system, as it stands today, noted a good solution to crime, Carlson said. The social institutions of schools, churches and families are more appropriate for reducing crimes than are government agencies, he said.

Carlson said there is no way anyone can coerce an individual to change. "We can provide opportunities for them, stimulate and motivate them, but change must happen internally. It doesn't happen externally," he said.

"There is a lot of concern about the one institution for the entire federal system," Carlson said, "It is a very controversial and much-needed institution."

At one point, a questioner in the audience referred to Martin as the "garbage can of our criminal justice system."

Argentina warned of naval action

LONDON (AP) — Defense Secretary John Nott said Wednesday night that Britain has declared a 200-mile "maritime exclusion zone" around the Falkland Islands, effective next Monday.

He told the House of Commons that as of 10 p.m. Sunday CST, "any Argentine warships and Argentine auxiliaries found within this zone will be treated as hostile and are liable to be attacked by British forces."

Argentina invaded the Falklands on Friday.

Five found slain in Michigan town

YALE, Mich. (AP) — A mother and her four children were found shot to death in their rural home Wednesday, and authorities are investigating the case as a murder-suicide.

It was Michigan's third mass slaying in less than two months.

The St. Clair County Sheriff's Department identified the victims as Betty Gianelli and her children — Rick, Kathy, Cynthia and Dean, according to Albert Kimmel, the Yale school superintendent.

"The five people were shot to death with a .22-caliber rifle," said Detective Bruce Lindke of the St. Clair County Sheriff's Department.

Doctors warn powerlosses to disarm

LONDON (AP) — Prominent doctors from 31 nations Wednesday urged President Reagan and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev to cease production, testing and deployment of nuclear weapons, saying there is no "effective medical response" to a nuclear catastrophe.

"Ultimately nuclear weapons must be destroyed before they destroy humanity," the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear Weapons said in a letter to the two leaders.

Panel may be formed to set changes to hire handicapped

By Rod Forew
Staff Writer

The Civil Service Employees Council received a plea Monday to support the establishment of a task force to examine reasonable accommodation adaptations must be made in working conditions to allow the severely handicapped to qualify for campus jobs.

According to a 1973 federal law, efforts must be made by government-supported institutions for "reasonable accommodation" of the severely handicapped in work programs.

Jereene Lorenz, director of the rehabilitation institute, and Mary Helen Gasser, campus affirmative action officer, said the council they don't intend to assist unqualified handicapped people in their search for jobs.

"Our purpose is to get in on the way to bring in people who are less than competent," Lorenz said. "We want to get more jobs for severely handicapped people who, besides their handicaps, are otherwise fully qualified."

Lorenz said that because of the University's bureaucracy, a task force is needed to define what constitutes "reasonable accommodation."

Lorenz gave an example of "job restructuring" as a method of accommodation. He said equipment could be modified to allow a handicapped person to perform a job he couldn't perform with standard equipment.

Lorenz said that in private business, there's a clear-cut line of authority to determine a concept of accommodation, but there's no such line at SIU-C, making a task force necessary.

He said President Albert Somit agreed to the idea of a task force on two conditions — that the CSEC support the idea, and that it show a willingness to participate in the force.

Lorenz said that he had received a letter from the council supporting the move for a task force, and that he would forward it to Somit, but asked the council to alter its wording to "clarify that we want only the fully qualified to get job positions."

Lorenz and Gasser said they would prefer a task force made up of representatives from the CSEC, the Personnel Services office, the SIU-C Affirmative Action Office and the Rehabilitation Institute.

Judge Schwartz resigns

By Jay Small
Staff Writer

Associate Circuit Judge Robert W. Schwartz of Jackson County has submitted his resignation effective April 2, according to Judge Robert Chase, chief judge of the 1st Judicial District.

Schwartz, one of four associate judges in the 1st District, submitted his letter of resignation to Chase on Friday. The letter was to expire on June 30, 1983, according to a press release. No reason was given for the resignation.

It was announced Monday that the election will be held to

Beg your pardon

It was incorrectly reported in the Daily Egyptian on Tuesday that only those secretaries who are members of the Civil Service Bargaining Organization would be able to vote in the April 14 election to decide if they wish to continue being represented by CSGO.

According to the Personnel Services Office, employees in the following classifications who were on the payroll Feb. 17, and will still be on April 14, can vote: stenographic secretaries I-IV and staff, transcriptionists I-IV and staff, aircraft maintenance mechanics' helpers and senior aircraft mechanics.
Opinion & Commentary

Student Center ignores commitment to service

WHAT ARE SIUC students paying a Student Center fee for? According to Student Center, supposedly. But Student Center official's recent decision to charge rent for space for the next student book co-op is nothing but a gross disservice to students.

With the Student Center being raised to it's 12th Floor in February, much was made of the supposed service which the Student Center provides to students. By threatening to eliminate the student book co-op, however, Student Center officials have repudiated their commitment to service to students. Those involved in the student book co-op profit.

The situation, in short, is this: The Undergraduate Student Organization established a book-co-op in the fall, in an effort to bypass middlemen and allow students to buy and sell directly from each other and to save money. The Student Center agreed to provide free space for the co-op.

THE CO-OP TURNED out to be mildly successful. Almost 600 students took part, and $10,000 worth of books changed hands. The co-op turned a profit of $33. Not bad for a first try.

The Student Center officials have stepped in, saying it is unwise to allow the book-co-op to continue. Why is the Student Center trying to eliminate the student book co-op? Apparently, the Student Center belief is that the student book co-op is only making a net profit of $33. Not bad for a first try.

Students are concerned about their ability to save money on books, a considerable educational expense. This action by the Student Center officials is an act of grossly inappropriate activity. In short, the SGCO opposes the decision of the Student Center to close the student book co-op, which students believe to be, in fact, a mildly successful operation.

SO STUDENT CENTER officials have taken action to eliminate this threat to their profits and to keep students from saving money. Saying they must meet requirements for bond holders, the Student Center officials have decided to close the student book co-op. This action is unfair to students.

One of those obligations is to provide a wide range of service as inexpensively as possible. The co-op did just that, helping students work to save money on books, a considerable educational expense.

THIS ACTION ALSO raises the question of who the Student Center officials are working for. The Student Center is supposed to serve the students, and that would be, charging rent for the book co-op is a grossly inappropriate action.

If it is run for the profit and gain of the University, however, attempting to strangle the book co-op makes harder-boned business sense.

Student Center officials need to realize that they are only custodians of the Student Center, operating it for the students, who could be the ones to decide if it serves the best interests of the students whose money supports it. If policy does not allow them to do that, that policy should be reexamined.

Letters

Research funds may be cut, too

I am writing in response to Elbert Hadley's letter that appeared in the Daily Egyptian on March 30. I agree that inflation is caused by increased government spending, but that is about all I can agree with.

Hadley says he can give you plenty of money at zero percent interest. Granted, we are given plenty of money, but borrowers must begin to repay their loans with a 7 percent interest rate. Problems and months after graduation. This rate is expected to rise in the near future.

Hadley is living in the past if he is unaware of inflation. Inflation is a parental responsibility. My child is paying rent, and at 17%, I know I have to fairly support all three of us. As Hadley did, I do all I can. I work two campus jobs to help support myself. 1 would like to give our 10,000 students on financial aid also to supplement their financial aid. Maybe aid should be distributed more conservatively to students with only average or above-average marks. This one statement alone may save more than spending billions of dollars on welfare and never improve the system.

In addition to financial aid cuts, President Ronald Reagan also wants to cut the amount of money spent on higher education. Watch out, Hadley, a reduction in federal funds may be gone soon. - Adam Gilmore, Junior, Theater.

Complain about cuts, not radio

AS I READ the Daily Egyptian letter section, I can't help but notice the amount of useless rambling and endeavor we, the students of SIUC, are subjected to on a daily basis. What is Student Center trying to do when it is run for the University, and any attempt to do that, make a profit of $33. Not bad for a first try.

When the USO would turn the Student Center into a store, it is run for the profit and gain of the University, however. Thinking to close the student book co-op. This action is unfair to students.

One of those obligations is to provide a wide range of service as inexpensively as possible. The co-op did just that, helping students work to save money on books, a considerable educational expense.

This action also raises the question of who the Student Center officials are working for. The Student Center is supposed to serve the students, and that would be, charging rent for the book co-op is a grossly inappropriate action.

If it is run for the profit and gain of the University, however, attempting to strangle the book co-op makes harder-boned business sense.

Student Center officials need to realize that they are only custodians of the Student Center, operating it for the students, who could be the ones to decide if it serves the best interests of the students whose money supports it. If policy does not allow them to do that, that policy should be reexamined.

IT'S 90 IRONIC that we can switch on a NCAA-sanctioned sports event and hear them tell us at halftime: "America's economy is mind-blowing." How can it be when we are dealing with a ramshackle, warmerogue president, and his self-proclaimed cheerleader as governor? They're going to take that money away from us, unless we snap out of our American dream.

What would it be like to not finish our college education? What would we look for a job when almost 600,000 people are unemployed in the state of Illinois? Or, as "the men on the hill" would want, we could help them and fight in the next war - Central America. It seems only too obvious that they want us to fight their wars, and on top of it all, they are using our money to make their death threats. I can't stress the need for each of us to become politically involved and rise against this senseless and reckless menace that is our present administration.

In the past, it was the black and Latinos who always had to take the brunt of the present administration's budget cuts. Today, the coveted white-middle-class America is also getting a chance to feel the reality of a cutthroat and careless Reagan administration.

If it's truly a question of numbers, which would we rather hear, 6,000 SIUC students forced to drop out or WTAQ? - Michelle Barnes, Graduate Student, French.

Mavericks make election ridiculous

I am writing this letter to inform the students of the University of this past election that took place in the past two weeks concerning the Undergraduate Student Organization election process. It was all run for the Sting Party. Running for a government office is relatively new to me. But in the past two weeks I have seen more "politics" than I have in many years of living near the Daily machine in Chicago. By "politics" I mean the calling in of favors, the throwing of a party, and the creation of meaningless political parties such as "maverick Economics."

Since the time I decided to run with the Sting Party, our first presidential candidate was disqualified. Our second presidential candidate has not been able to get on the ballot because he did not submit a $25.00 candidacy petition. If he did not receive the money to get his name on the ballot, he would not have run for president. When we tried to appeal to the Maverick-controlled Senate, they called a special session to vote on our case. Most of the 21 senators who voted "no" were Mavericks.

The whole situation is rather ridiculous. After all, this is not a national government. I want to give the students a voice in government and help them through the most important time in their lives. I don't want to create or get sucked up into the political machine.

After all the hurdles, the Sting Party is still confident, still hopeful and still strong. Glenn Stolar and Don Burke will run as write-in candidates should our Senate candidates already on the ballot. The struggle we have endured has made me want to be elected more so that I can help eliminate the type of political games that turn so many people away from government.

If you want politics, vote for the opposition. If you want a good, effective student government, vote Sting, Brian Blak, Sophomore, Computer Science.
Leaving CSBO amounts to digging your grave.

In reference to secretaries who want to get out of the Civil Service Bargaining Organization-Illinois Education Association, the CSBO is trying to negotiate future raises. Go ahead and get out, but don't come crying to the CSBO when your vice president, try as he may, can only get you a 5 cent-per-month merit increase because your hands are tied. If the tables were suddenly reversed and you get the big raise in your office, you still have the option of finding a dime, who is going to provide the prescription for a new office at CSBO with the word "merit" being the only term that you can mention over the office when they say good-bye.

The CSBO worked out an extremely fair and square payoff, the fairest that I have seen in the six years I have been at SIUC.

The above 3-cent merit raise story is about me. I was also the beneficiary of the 5 percent raise in which the entire secretarial staff can only get you a per-month merit increase which the entire staff will receive. This CSBO negotiations on yearly increases, plus another 2 percent in January. There is still a ladder to climb here at SIUC and I am working on the next rung.

Go ahead, get out of the CSBO, but please realize that you are digging your own grave.

-Karen McClure

CSBO has been good to SIUC secretaries

I WOULD LIKE to bring a few points to the attention of all SIUC-C secretaries. It is well to remember the word "niggardly" has been blown out of proportion. Why is everybody so niggardly. Are they not taking the oath of the Civilian?

The word niggardly is nothing but scatty or scanty. Consuelo Parrish should be written "stingy" or "scanty", because "niggardly" is not a common term and must be defined in every discussion. In every discussion it must be explained what "niggardly" means, which may be easily explained by reference to the negative connotation of our own race.

Is it all right for her to use this word in the Daily Egyptian?

If Parrish wanted to fight the Department for not practicing for her producing the "stingy" and poverty speech and privacy, she should have taken matter approach instead of trying a rude word play that backfired.

I think the Daily Egyptian is a word that depends on your perspective.

To me, "niggardly" means stingy. To the Daily Egyptian, Washington, Nevada, College of Human Resources.

Education comments weren't racist

I am writing to respond to the comments made by Ms. Emily Anilsen, "The Daily Egyptian" March 9 regarding the civil cuts back in education and the tuition hikes were personal statement its damaging portrayal of an individual.

Success did not attend the public hearing as a representative as a particular race for raising the issue of my personal experience and all our comments were ill-informed and sensationalist experiences - a culmination of my concerns, which, I believe, is a matter of a black sub-group and of the larger white society.

Additionally, I think that education is for all, this dissemination of membership dictates that certain groups have the ability to receive education and equal opportunity for education. At this point in time, this is a matter of record that need no longer be debated.

In good conscience, people need to understand the fact that we are not damaging the sequences of the educational cuts unless we are willing to admit the severe impact that it has on all the certain segments of the population. If we fail to address the severe impact of these cuts as they relate to specific ethnic groups, then we cannot seek to solve the problems for all.

Additionally, I challenge my statements by attempting to reduce this burden. The race is missing the point of the entire discussion. Yet her admission on the part of Braxeley is solely political and without concern for the seriousness of the situation of the educational cuts.

This is not a matter of race, color or creed, but rather an issue of all concerned - minority and majority people coming together to protect the educational opportunities for the good of the total society.

I was appalled at the negative consequences of the academic cuts made by a person who has been trustworthy within the representation of all students. This is, unfortunately, a widespread discontent among ethnic groups, when it should be his job to seek harmony for all.

I feel that the sake of the entire university, we must all attack the spread of this word. It is a strong united front in hope of ending all this hate-filled education for all. - Stephanie Jermaine, Sophomore, Political Science

Ban handguns, rifles can't be hidden

In response to John Davis speaking on behalf of all National Rifle Association members, I accept your challenge. Would Reagan's needle existing now have been prevented?

If someone wants badly enough to kill a person, they can find a way to do it. But the Secret Service agents have thought it a mistake to give the CSBO a step plan. I do not beleive that the University secretaries would have ever been offered a step plan if the CSBO had not acted first.

The CSBO offered University secretaries a pay scale step plan before cutting our salaries up to the level of other Illinois university salary ranges.

These ARE just a few of the changes that have been brought about by the CSBO. I believe that SIUC-C secretaries would not be as well off without the union. An organization that secretes all the bargaining power of the University system needs time to bring about change, for the good or bad. I believe that our secretaries who have acted only full year before judgement can be passed on the worthiness of the CSBO. I am all for it. I hope that you will judge that too. - Debbie Moore, Secretary III Transcribing, Research Development Administration.

Pornography harms women

This LETTER is in response to the recent protests regarding the banning of the movie "Last Tango in Paris" on campus screening. I agree that the banning may seem unfair in light of earlier screenings of other pornography. However, in my opinion, the chief arguments made against such materials should be banned because of their harmful effects on men and women.

The Commission on Obscenity and Pornography has defined pornography as "verbal or pictorial explicit presentations of sexual behavior that have as a distinguishing characteristic the objectification and distortion of the portrayal of the role and status of the human female...as a mere sexual object to be exploited and enjoyed." Thus, pornography endorses and promotes violence and the degradation of women. In so doing, it is harmful to women. What is wrong with pornography is not its sexual content, but its demeaning portrayal of women.

The ways in which pornography is injurious to women can be summarized in at least three distinct manners. First, pornography, especially violent pornography, is implicated in the committing of crimes of violence against women. Second, pornography is the vehicle for the development of a deep and wicked hatred of women that the sexual life of women is or ought to be subordinate to the service of men and that women are not only sex objects and must not be thought of in terms of human rights, but are defaimatory and libelous.

FINALLY, THE diffusion of such a distorted view of women is at work in our society as a whole, it exists today supports sexist attitudes, and thus reinforces the oppression and exploitation of women. (Lederer, 1980)

The First Amendment states that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

The usual response to attempts at controlling this threat is the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech, but I believe that pornography is a form of entertainment and harms no one but its consumers.

As far as the first argument, pornography is a form of entertainment and is protected by the government public using public facilities. Thus, it does not fall under the protection of private acts. Further, the right of freedom of speech is not unqualified: several kinds of speech - including incitement to violence, solicitation of crimes, perjury and misrepresentation, libel, slander and false advertisements - are not protected under the First Amendment.

Thus, the freedom of speech is limited to those areas in which such speech does not impinge on the rights of others. Material which recommends the violence and degradation of a group of people - women - such speech is improper.

Finally, that the argument that harm comes only to women is not valid. Male pornography fails to acknowledge the implications and effects pornography has upon women. There would probably not be so much women's lobby if a University official prohibited the showing of one movie. It is not enough to stop the distribution of the publication.

It is my opinion that the students of SIU-C work to be involved in the political science of everything we do in campus life. I say good-bye.

-K. C. Parrish

The Rev. Den Jennings of Warren, Ill., will deliver the Easter message at the service.
Ronnie Millsap to perform; tickets to go on sale Monday

Country music star Ronnie Millsap, with special guest Leon Everette, will perform at the SIU Arena on April 30 at 8 p.m. Tickets go on sale Monday at 8 a.m. April 12, at the Arena South Lobby Office for $7 and $9. Line reservations will not be used.

Since becoming professional in 1966, the blind singer-musician has racked up an impressive array of hits and honors, including several Grammy and Country Music Association awards for top male vocalist, best album and entertainer of the year.

Born with congenital glaucoma in Robbinsville, N.C., Millsap paints a life story of determination and energy. At Morehead School for the Blind in Raleigh, he mastered violin, keyboards, woodwinds and guitar by the age of 12. He spent several years playing rhythm and blues in soul clubs of the South before his album, "Where My Heart Is," became a top country seller in 1973.

Flying coach to command U.S. team

By Kent Shelton
Staff Writer

The coach of the Flying Salukis will coach the U.S. precision flying team in the international competition August 1, 1983, in Skien, Norway.

Tom Young was chosen to coach the flying team by the board of directors of the Ninety-Nines, the 6,000-member international organization of women pilots sponsoring the U.S. team in Norway.

Young said, "The sponsors think I have been reasonably successful in coaching the Flying Salukis. The U.S. flying team hasn't been successful in the international competition. They chose me coach."

A series of regional tryouts for the national competition will be held next year, but no dates have been set because an airport similar to the one to be used in Skien in terms of altitude, humidity and temperature has yet to be chosen.

The top five winners of each regional tryout will then meet in the national competition in Carbondale in June 1983. The top four winners in the Carbondale national will compose the U.S. team.

Campus blood drive is back; even lightweights are welcome

By Kathy Kamienki
Staff Writer

Even you half-pints out there can give a unit of blood. Unlike before, recruiters for the campus blood drive Monday through Friday are also appealing to lightweight donors who might weigh less than 100 pounds.

The Red Cross used to turn people away—some 20 to 25 lightweights a day—but not any more, said Terry O’Boyle of the Mobilization and Volunteering Effort, one of the drive organizers.

“They’ve found that there’s no problem for some light people to give blood where they used to just not take them,” O’Boyle explained.

Donors, latter thin, will have a chance to give blood from 11 a.m. on Friday in Center Ballroom D. Daily Egyptian.

And now East SIU-C blood donors have taken away Eastern Illinois University’s record for collections in a few weeks, and the pressure is on to stay on top.

“Last year we were the top place for collections in the state and in the country for November,” said O’Boyle. “We’ve gone out on a limb and telling the Red Cross we can do it again.”

Donors here gave 1,850 units last time. Each in took revenge, a few weeks ago, O’Boyle said, and collected 350 units a day for four days.

“We’ll, we’ve told the Red Cross we can do better than that. We’re trying to raise 500 units a day, but for five days.” To accomplish that, the drive needs more than 2,000 persons to offer to donate, because not all donors are able to give blood. Some are turned away for health reasons or because they’re using a certain medication.

The competition became more intense between SIU-C and EIU when the Inter-Greek Council challenged Eastern’s fraternities to see which group could donate more blood.

The Red Cross will also be taking components from the donated blood and matching it immediately; for use by specific patients within 24 hours.

MOVE and the Arnold Air Society are coordinating the drive. According to O’Boyle, they’ve sought out more people to sign up and help.

“We’re getting more registered and we set up so the process will move quicker this time,” O’Boyle said.

Beg your pardon

It was incorrectly reported in an article on Page 3 of the April 7 Daily Egyptian that Paul Schilpp, professor emeritus of philosophy, donated archives of the Library of Living Philosophers to Morris Library.

In actuality, Schilpp sold the archives to the library for $100,000, the funds coming from a Department of Education Title II-C grant.
Activist to speak on nuclear energy

Nuclear activist Harvey Wasserman will talk on "Killing Ourselves: Nuclear Power in America" at 7:30 p.m. April 20 in Student Center Ballroom D.

His speech will center on both military and civilian use of nuclear energy focusing on the economic aspects.

Center offering cold, hard cash for aluminum cans

Jackson County Resource Reclamation Inc. will be sponsoring an aluminum can collecting contest May 8. The center, located 1321 Rover St., Murphysboro, between 11th and 12th streets behind the old brewery.

Group tops 375 chapters

The SIUC chapter of the American Marketing Association was awarded at its national convention for outstanding performance in communications.

The competition was held April 11 at Chicago's Hyatt Regency.

The chapter competed with 374 U.S. and Canadian chapters for the award. It was commended for its newsletter "Marketing Voice," creative distribution of book markers, the use of Daily Egyptian Campus Briefs, innovative and creative posters and pamphlets and community relations.

Sharon Lerman, president of the SIUC chapter, accepted the award. The award is being displayed in the main office of the Marketing Department.
FLYING from Page 8

The U.S. team will practice for about two weeks before the competition in Norway.

"It's good to know everything I've learned about coaching to make a real team out of four people who have probably never seen each other before," Young said.

The last two international competitions were held in Sweden in 1979 and in England in 1981, according to Young.

The biennial international competition, organized by the Federation of International Aviation, features five events: three spot accuracy landings, one to one-and-a-half hour cross country flight, and a written preflight planning test.

In the one-to-one-and-a-half hour flight, competitors will be judged on their time and their fuel consumption.

Young said competitors at Skien will be mostly aviators, students, but men and women with at least 100 hours of flying experience are also eligible to fly in the competition.

Young, a flight instructor and pilot at Southern Illinois Airport from 1963 to 1979, has coached the SIUC Flying Saucis to national championships at Oklahoma State University in 1977, at Tennessee State University in 1978, at Northeast Louisiana University in 1979 and 1981, and at the University of North Dakota in 1980.

"I've been fortunate to have the right kind of people try out," he said.

Lois Frenzenbaum, chairman of the U.S. precision flying team, said Young is the finest coach in the United States and his record with the Flying Saucis speaks for his qualifications as coach.

"He's a very demanding but fair coach. Everyone who works under him admires him greatly," she said.

Talk will rip state, praise people

The Rev. Daniel Berriigan, mass reformer and civil rights and anti-war activist, will talk on "The War-Making State and the Peace-Making People" at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Student Center Ballroom D.

Berriigan has mobilized and educated Catholic masses and peace makers against racism, Southeast Asian conflict and nuclear arms proliferation.

His group, the Plowshares 8, is awaiting appeal on a conviction of burglary and criminal conspiracy for breaking into a General Electric plant and damaging two nuclear warhead nose cones.

The lecture is free, but donations are welcome to help finance the group's defense. The lecture is co-sponsored by Coalition for Change, SPC Expressive Arts and International Friendship.

Play is tribute to Joyce's creativity

By Doug Hettinger
Staff Writer

The artist's creative process and its consequences are at the heart of "Joyce the Artist: A Dramatic Work in Progress," Calv MacLean, theater faculty member, said.

Interest in the misunderstood writer James Joyce prompted MacLean to write the poetic play, to be performed at 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in Student Center Ballroom D. Tickets are $1 and are available at the Student Ticket Office.

Presley Tours offering bus trips in Ozark foothills

Bus trips through the Ozark foothills at the northern tip of Illinois are scheduled for April 17 and 18, according to Weyman Presley of Makanda. Presley will be escort for the tours, which cost $6. Complimentary coffee and rolls will be provided. Participants should bring picnic lunches.

Pickup points for either day will be Coleman's Bus Station in Chester at 5 a.m., Murphy'sboro Motel in Murphyboro at 8:45 a.m. and Murdale Shopping Center in Carbondale at 9 a.m. Buses will return to the same places later in the afternoon.

Reservations may be made by writing Weyman Presley at Makanda, Ill. 62958 or by calling 549-0704.

Reagan visits Jamaica, seeks friendship ties

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) - President Reagan, on the first stop of a trip designed to amplify U.S. friendship with the island nations of the Caribbean, said Wednesday he is determined to expand "the special relationship of people with people" that exists between the U.S. and its Caribbean neighbors.

Reagan, greeted by Prime Minister Edward Seaga and school children who danced the calypso beneath a blazing sun, told his hosts that "there is no substitute for personal contacts" between the people of the two nations. Reagan said that "the special relationship of people with people" is a basis for "a permanent friendship" between the nations.

The people of Jamaica and the people of the Caribbean are the hope of economic recovery of this region so vital to us," Reagan said.

Several hundred Jamaicans lined an airport fence for the president's arrival aboard Air Force One. He said he and his wife were "delighted to visit Jamaica as so many Americans do each year." The president then headed for a formal meeting with Seaga, followed by a state dinner.

Seaga told Reagan, he wished he could remain longer than the scheduled 90 hours, so he could gain "a personal impression" of the degree of American friendship toward Jamaica.

Reagan's primary topic on his schedule here was to open the president's Caribbean Basin initiative proposed to Congress last month to provide $300 million in social and economic aid, and Jamaica's own efforts to improve its relations with its white-dominated neighbors. Seaga said the president's hosts were also likely to bring up the crisis between Jamaica and its white-dominated neighbor over the Falkland islands.

Seaga said Reagan and Seaga, in their economic talks, would "emphasize contributions made in the private sector" particularly by David Rockefeller's U.S. Jamaica Business Committee.

Jamaica was the first stop on the President and Mrs. Reagan's 10-day trip to the Caribbean. On Thursday, he flies to Barbados for meetings with Eastern Caribbean leaders and then two days of vacation at the home of actress Claudette Colbert.

In the Caribbean, Reagan said the Barbados visit was already planned, given rise to speculation that a work schedule was drawn in which the vacation was not critical for traveling to the Caribbean primarily for a vacation.

An administration official, who asked that he not be identified by name, said the vacationing in Jamaica was "to underscore the commitment to the democratic government of the Commonwealth Islands." The President was elected at the same time Reagan and Seaga became the presidents of their respective countries.

'Pellicer has recently filed a writ of habeas corpus, petitioning for a new trial in Fargo, N.D., according to a press release. The new evidence "uncovered information concerning an FBI coverup of suppressed evidence in his favor. At present, the local support group is concerned for Pellicer’s safety in the state-riden maximum security facility at Marion," the release says.

"We want reassurance that there is true justice in the American judicial system, and Carlson is in a position to help tip the scale of balance," said Jancee Egan, member of the support group.

"Our group is speaking out for basic justice now," said Egan. "We have faith in the public and believe that if the case is brought to their attention, the truth will win out. People know instinctively when their freedoms are being abridged."

During my trial in Fargo, N.D.," wrote Leonard Pellicer in a letter published by the group, "the government prosecution was unable to get anyone to falsely testify that they had seen me shooting at anyone, let alone murder someone. They relied solely on circumstantial evidence to win the conviction."

to provide access to higher education for everyone, but each recommended different methods.

Incumbent Stan Irvin said he is the first trustee in seven years in hundred consistently against proposals that would hurt access to higher education. Irvin, a student in the University of Illinois administration, said that "we can't afford these increases — access will be hurt."

The other candidate, Jeff Neigel, graduate student in economics, said "students don't need a trustee telling the Board of Trustees what they already know, casting token negative votes. He seems comfortable in that role," Neigel said of Irvin.

Neigel said he agreed with Irvin on many issues but said the student trustee should take a more active role and be more outspoken. Irvin said, "We're not facing a matter of personalities. We're facing a matter of people being able to go to school." He said if he were not re-elected, he would help the new trustee in any way possible to continue the fight for support of higher education.

In the presidential debate, after a question was asked about the USDA's role in promoting athletics, Orlin said that the Maverick Supports athletics and equal funding for men's and women's sports. Boyle called intercollegiate sports at SIUC "a dinosaur." "Most students here to get an education; Frills are going to have to go," he said. Solar, however, said that sports have the potential to raise funds and that "a lot of people enjoy the games."

Saluki nine to open long stand with twinball against Augustana

By Steve Metcalf

Sports Editor

The Saluki baseball team will open a 15-game season — its longest of the season — with a doubleheader at Augustana College at 3 p.m. Saturday. The twinball begins at 1:30 p.m.

The two teams were originally set to meet for a single game. But according to Saluki Coach Jerry Hoven, Augustana's coach called and asked if it could be switched to a twinball, saying the Vikings needed to get in a few more games because of the poor weather at home in Rock Island. So the Salukis will play the game and give its OK.

In a twinball the Salukis will play three straight double-headers. Indiana State follows Augustana into the Salukis den for a four-game series over the weekend. The bycames and Salukis square off in twinballs at 1:30 p.m. Friday and 1 p.m. Saturday.

"It won't be that tough to play three games in three days," Jones said. If any starters should get tired, the Saluki coach said, he'd just use players on the bench.

Thursday marks SIU-C's first meeting with Augustana.

"I'm not too familiar with them," Jones said. "I do know that they're 4-4 this season."

Augustana's team, coach and sports information director were all traveling to Carbondale Wednesday and could not be reached for comment. Jones plans to start freshman Rich Koch and junior Tom Gauld on the mound against the Vikings.

The Salukis have been hit of late, winning eight straight games before dropping a 3-1 decision at Louisville Sunday. They are 12-4 this season and boast a 6-4 record at Abe Martin Field.

Racquetballers tie for 3rd at NIC

The Racquetball Club managed enough points between the men's and women's teams to be Air Force for third place at the 10th annual National Intercollegiate Championship in Memphis, Tennessee.

SIU-C took third among nine teams in the women's division, won by Florida. Michigan State's women placed second. In the men's division, SIU-C finished seventh among 20 teams, with Memphis State taking first.

Brian Bomest, SIU-C racquetball coach, said "The team played well. We showed some of the other schools we can compete with the major competition." He added, we Penn State, Michigan and Illinois, "teams with good racquetball programs, failed to make the top five.

In the women's division, Kim Drader and Martha Nance played doubles for SIU-C. They advanced to the finals before losing to MSU's Renee Tremell and Lisa Faquin, 21-18, 21-15. Drader was the intercollegiate doubles champion and 1980 singles champ. The Salukin Carla Neils and Mary Credle, at the No. 1 and 2 singles spots, both advanced to the quarterfinals before losing.

In the men's division, John Bauer and Bob Clar played No. 1 and 2 spots for SIU-C, while Greg Smolens and Chris Warlick played doubles.

The tournament drew 240 players, who were competing for $3,000 in scholarship money and the right to play for the U.S. racquetball championship. Drader and Nance both won $400 scholarships for advancing to the doubles finals. The competition was sponsored by the American Amateur Racquetball Association.

for this weekend includes three freshmen, two sophomores and a junior.

Young led the Salukis with a 21st-place finish and a two-round average of 77 last weekend at Eastern Kentucky. The freshman from Petersburg has averaged 80.2 in six rounds this spring.

Hammond, a junior, leads the Salukis this spring with a six-round average of 79.3. Sophomore Dutton, one of three Salukis to play in both tournaments this spring, has averaged 80.3.

Return hopes the Salukis can finish "in the upper half of the field," this weekend, but added that the Salukis will need five good scores per round to do so.

Hogie, who works in the Illinois Department of Transportation's land acquisition office, himself an "old friend of Birchy's."

Men's golf coach Jim Reburn has accepted a position as an accounting instructor at Centenary College in Shreveport, La., the men's athletics department announced Wednesday. His appointment takes effect late next month.

A native of Mount Carmel, Reburn became the Salukis' men's golf coach in the summer of 1985, replacing former head coach Walt Semiglans. Reburn has been working on his master's in accounting for the past two years since receiving his bachelor's from SIUC in May 1980. He passed a CPA exam in accounting last November and will complete his graduate work this May.

Reburn, 25, said he made the decision to accept the position at Centenary Wednesday morning, after having discussed the possibility "for a long time" with his wife, Vicki. He said he's excited about the new position, since he's "always wanted to move to a warmer climate." He added, "But I'm also very sad about leaving SIU. They've always treated me well here." Reburn said.

Before becoming golf coach, Reburn was a four-year letter-winner in the Saluki golf team. He became the only Saluki golfer to record a hole-in-one during competition, to do so at the Murray State Invitational in 1977. It means a lot to have put so much time and effort into a program, and then not be able to stay and help build the program, said Reburn. "I'll have the chance to teach a greater variety of students," he added. Reburn said his plans were to coach a smaller school at Centenary. But he added, "I'll get to teach some good golf." He said.

Reburn felt it was an advantage to go to a smaller school. "I'll have the chance to do advanced courses. At a big school, he said, he'd probably start teaching introductory courses.

Relations with other coaches will be much the same. "We're always able to see what's going on at the Big Ten schools," Reburn said. "They're all going to be a challenge to see the way to see the high school."

He added that he will be able to get back to coaching golf in the future. Reburn said he has no plans to coach at Centenary. But he added that "I'll have the chance to continue to teach at a smaller school."

Golfers to weather it out at snowy Illini tourney

By Paul Lorenz

With a little help from the weather, the men's golf team will play at the 14th annual Illini Invitational Friday and Saturday at Illinois' golf course, said Judy Auld, the Lady Tigers golf coach.

All of the Big Ten teams have been invited to the Illini Invitational, as well as Bradley, Illinois State, DePaul, Eastern Illinois, Louisiana State, Mississippi State, New Mexico, Southern Illinois, Texas, Western Illinois, Western Michigan, and St. Louis University.

Jim Reburn, said Illinois' golf coach, Ed Beard, "We're looking pretty good. She'll probably have problems with endurance." Auld said. Eastman will have some problems. Reburn added, but Auld credits the freshman as being a talented, natural athlete who can "pick it up quick. She's been anxious to play, and that should be a big boost." Reburn added.

Auld said that Eastman, after being away from competition, will have to adjust to the mental and physical game to recover. "We didn't have any plans to have him ready for the season, Eastman will play it back up more practice. "We'll be able to play him in the role of a regular player, said Auld. "We have good players to back him up."

"He's had 3-4 matches with them, and this could be a 5-4 or 6-3 match. We'll have to have smart tennis," Reburn said.

The lineup will be cut to 36 holes. The teams are scheduled to play 36 holes Friday and Saturday, but the tournament will be cut to 18 on Friday could be cut to 12. "It's hard to play golf in cold weather," Reburn said. "If we had to make up that 3-4 matches, we'd be able to have a 5-4 or 6-3 match."

The tournament will be played according to Big Ten rules, which allow each school six golfers, with the low five counting for each team total for each round. Most of the public schools in the Salukis' schedule allow five golfers per team.

Rob Harmon, Mark Young, Craig Dein, Jim Altenburger, and Randy Harris will golf for the Salukis at Illinois. Schafer and Harris do not golf at Eastern Kentucky last weekend. "This is the season," Reburn said. "And with our schedules, we need to get it right now. I'm trying to give everyone their chance."
