Salary-reduction plan draws fire

By Phillip Florio, Staff Writer

The Graduate Council 'adamantly' rejected a proposal Thursday that would authorize the president of the University to enter into negotiations with the Board of Trustees, to reduce the salaries of the faculty and the administrative and professional staff.

The council, at its meeting in the Student Center, passed a resolution opposing President Albert Somit, the Faculty Senate and the board of the council's opposition to the proposal.

John Ignatius, professor in geology, said that if salary reductions were enforced, "it would bring the same sort of firing staff members. We would lose many faculty and staff within a year."

The proposal, titled "Authorization for suspension of employment of contractual employees and involuntary pay reductions for all employees," would have to be approved by the board before it could be expected to address the proposal at its next meeting in May.

Somit, who was present to address questions and concerns of the council, said the proposal is intended to "provide an unambiguous legal alternative for a course of action less unpalatable than a declaration of financial exigency."

If approved, the proposal would allow for the insertion into employment contracts of a clause stating that all employee contracts would be subject to a temporary suspension if such a declaration of "financial exigency" was made by the board. All contracts for faculty, professional staff and student appointees would contain this provision.

Somit said the proposal would not be in the best interests of the body that would be affected by the proposal.

"I will not advocate," president of the council, said "if at all possible, for handling possible budget shortfalls have been discussed for the past month.

"If we have to bear the full burden of $12 million—some actions are going to be unavoidable," Hardenbergh said.

William Kliment, a professor in zoology, said the proposal could be viewed as similar to "signing a blank check, or signing a death warrant before it's seen.

Westberg, Crim divided on issues

By Karen Terry
Staff Writer

It was business as usual Wednesday night when mayoral candidates Helen Westberg and Robert Crim fielded questions from members of Carbondale's business community. Westberg, said her experience in city, government, Crim’s lack of experience and the two continued to find little common ground.

At the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored meeting, Westberg, and Carbondale City Council member since 1973, reiterated her support for the proposed downtown conference center. Carbondale's present downtown area doesn't generate enough tax revenue or add to the attractiveness of the community, she contended, would serve as a linchpin for the city to draw new business and stimulate economic growth.

Westberg suggested that Monday's public hearing on the center may bring about some amendment to the plan, such as switching proposed locations of the center and parking garage.

This would solve the problem of violating a city ordinance by using the center, a license holder, within 100 feet of the Walmart Street Baptist Church. Westberg said.

However, all conference center plans are contingent upon the Illinois Supreme Court's ruling, which is still pending, on the city's use of eminent domain powers to acquire land for the project.

While Crim said the conference center would be a "valuable asset" to Carbondale, the 46-year-old retiree, Air Force major, said he wants to examine the options before forming an opinion.

"I don't know where we are at this point," said Crim, who had previously suggested that the See DIVIDED, Page 3

Venturi re-elected to GPSC post

By Phillip Florio
Staff Writer

As newly re-elected vice president of the Graduated and Professional Student Council, Dan Venturi said he is happy to get all the politicking out of the way and get down to business.

Venturi, a law student, defeated Nick Rion, a graduate student in environmental design, for the GPSC presidential seat. Greeley received 32 votes to Katinas' 13 votes and Pape's eight votes.

Venturi said his work will now emphasize helping to find alternative methods of funding. "We need to find alternatives to bail out the students who need funding," he said. "We need to see what sources are still available for students to use." Venturi also said the University must look for places to make legitimate cuts that will not have dramatic effects.

After her re-election, Greeley said she hoped she could look at the margin of her victory as a "commitment of faith that we can do it better.

"If we're real excited and impressed with all the ideas people had to see how the council can work better," she said. "The election generated a lot of good ideas.

Greeley said she sees the GPSC presidential job as multifaceted. "The president should See GPSC, Page 3

Morris statue to be unveiled Saturday

By Vicki Olgesby
Staff Writer

The statue of Delyte W. Morris will officially become a part of Morris Library Saturday. The ceremony will begin at 2 p.m. in the Mississippi Room.

The heroic-size bronze statue, sculpted by Freda Brilliant, will be unveiled in a private ceremony at 10 a.m. More than 500 people who have been invited have indicated they will attend the dedication, according to Terry Mathias, special assistant to the vice president for government, relations and development.

The dedication will be part of a weekend of events celebrating Delyte W. Morris, which comes just on the heels of the 100th anniversary of the death of the man who was SIU president from 1968 to 1979. Other activities include a convocation address by the president of the SIU Foundation Board of Directors, Delyte Morris' widow in the ceremony. The statue and its temporary pedestal together stand more than 10 feet tall.

The statue will be unveiled and accepted by Dorothy Morris, widow of the late president, son Peter Morris, grandsons Brett and Trevor Morris and President Albert Somit.

Jerome Glassman of Mount Vernon, vice chairman of the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education and a University open house.

More than 300 people donated money to the SIU Foundation for the statue, which cost $100,000. Delyte Morris said for the sculpturing of the statue in his spare time in 1980.

Speakers at the dedication will include Ivan Eliot of the Illinois Commission on Board of Trustees; Patricia Husnaker of Belleville, president of the Alhambra Association, Chancellor Kenneth Shaw, and Jerry Cook, president of Undergraduate Student Organization.

The ceremony will be broadcast live on WSIU-TV, Channel 6, and WUSI-TV, Channel 16. An overflow seating area with television monitors will also be set up in Morris Library Auditorium.

James L. Fisher, president of the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education, will deliver the convocation address, which is open to the public, at 3:30 p.m. in Shroddy Auditorium.

Fisher, who has been president of CASE since 1978, is a native of Decatur. He has served as president of Towson State University in Baltimore and as a White House adviser and consultant in higher education and business.

There will also be a campuswide open house from 1 to 7 p.m. A multi-image slide presentation, "Southern Illinois," will be shown at 1 and 2 p.m. in the Mississippi Room.

A second slide show, "SIU," will be shown at 3:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at the same lecture.

Campus tours will start at 12:30 p.m. A free train is scheduled to leave the Student Center every hour.

Tensions mount in Chicago race

CHICAGO (AP) — Democrat Harold Washington, feeling the heat of mounting criticism in a tight, and increasingly bitter mayoral campaign, Thursday lashed out angrily at a heckler who needed the candidate about a past incident for failure to file income-tax returns.

Washington, a 63-year-old white Republican, is seeking the nomination to run against his Senate Democratic colleague, Emmanuel J. Cleary, in the March 7 primary.

"And I see nothing in here about what this means to people like me, someone who's in the process of setting up a portfolio for retirement," Klimstra said.

Kenneth Peterson, chairman of library affairs, said he felt that with this proposal, the board was "being taken off the hook regarding financial exigency."

"But what we are facing?" Peterson asked. "Why cover it up?"

Klimstra said he felt un-comfortable dealing with a proposal that didn't have plan attached to it explaining how to deal with the problem.

"If the faculty is to respond sensitively to a shortfall of $10 to $15 million, they have time to generate a response to some phantom figure they've been handed," he said.

The proposal would also permit the implementation of midyear salary reductions, as well as procedures to implement fiscal year salary reductions by appropriate notice prior to the beginning of the particular year.

Somit said the legal counsel has wrestled with the problem for more than a year and has decided on a separate board item would be the best solution.

Somit reminded the council to keep the "ifs" in mind.

"If we were to have a salary reduction, would that go onto next year's contract? We just don't know," he said. "But we hope arguments for and against it, if we were to have a salary reduction, will be stated forcibly."*

Dean candidates to hold open sessions

The three candidates for the position of dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts will hold open sessions during the next few weeks to answer questions from students and faculty.

All sessions will be in the Communications Building.

O. Franklin Keweserby, from Indiana University-Purdue University at Fort Wayne, will hold sessions on Wednesday, April 20, at 11 a.m. and Thursday, April 21, at 11 a.m.

The third candidate, John Urice, from the State University of New York, Binghamton, will meet with students at 8:45 a.m. Tuesday in Room 1012. He will meet with members of the faculty at 2 p.m. Monday in Room 2005.

Kwit Sanders, SIU government relations officer, will meet with students at 8:45 a.m. on Tuesday in Room 1012. He will meet with members of the faculty at 2 p.m. Monday in Room 2005.

China cancels exchange programs

PEKING (AP) — China on Thursday canceled all remaining sports and cultural exchange programs with the United States this year in sharp retaliation for America's granting political asylum to a leading woman tennis player.

Among other things, the decision means the Chinese won't see "Star War," and the Americans won't see China's volleyball champs play.

China's Culture Ministry and the All-China Sports Federation announced the cancellation of eight cultural exchange programs and China's withdrawal from 10 international tournaments in the United States in 1983.

U.S. proposal rebuffed by Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States recently proposed mutual ceilings on long-range bombers and air-launched cruise missiles, but was rebuffed by a "caustic and acerbic" Soviet Union response, Reagan administration officials said Thursday.

"To date the Soviet response in this round has been dilatory and disappointing," Larry Speakes, the White House spokesman, said in confirming that a new U.S. proposal was tabled last month in Geneva, Switzerland.

It was the first time the administration formally offered in the talks to impose numerical ceilings on strategic bombers and air-launched cruise missiles.

be reactive to the administration and proactive to the students' concerns. "I think the financial aid lobby group is an important start," she said. "But I think we have to do more lobbying."

Gayetty said she had contacted Keith Sanders, the University legislative liaison, and she feels strongly that the council can work with him and the lobbying group.

The GPSC has scheduled a trip to Springfield on April 19 to discuss Gov. James Thompson's proposed tax increase with legislators.

Venturi said he hopes to show that the GPSC does support the tax increase. He said the group will try to convince legislators of the need for the increase, especially in higher education.

Kasinas, a doctoral student in higher education, said after the election that access is still the key issue facing graduate students. "I will support Ann and the council in any activities that they might think I can be of council help," he said. "But I'm glad I had the opportunity to present my view to the council."

After the election, the GPSC passed a resolution on a fee allocation request from the Mid-America Peace Project.

The council unanimously agreed to allocate $450 to assist in the funding of "The Future of our Planet: A Nuclear War Conference." They're hoping for $50,000 as well.

A conference is scheduled to run all day April 15 and 16, responding to the call for Irene Florist, 607 S. Illinois Ave., will donate 1,000 carnations to the cause next week, said owner Don Bailey. The flowers will be sold by members of the American Marketing Association for $2 each from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday through Friday near the north end of Fairer Hall. All proceeds will go to the GPSC fund.

Hairbirds, 703 S. Illinois Ave., will conduct a six-hour "cut-a-thon" from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. Manager Ken Pryor said prices will be trimmed in half for men and 75 cents for women. He said three hair stylists will be on hand for the cut-a-thon and the goal is to raise $500 for McFarlin.

Bebe, 521 S. Illinois Ave., will host a costume party for the benefit of the Harold McFarlin Fund. Hairbirds, 703 S. He said three hair stylists will be on hand for the cut-a-thon and the goal is to raise $500 for McFarlin.

El Greco's restaurant, 515 S. Illinois Ave., will donate 25 cents from the sale of each sandwich purchased on each Thursday of the month. Manager John Miller said he hopes to raise at least $500 for the fund in April.

The Printing Plant, 606 S. Illinois Ave., has also helped the cause by printing over 500 posters and thousands of bank statement stubs free of charge. Owner Greg Vertrees is a former student of McFarlin, who taught Russian history for 12 years before going on leave because of his heart condition.

Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers in Carbondale showed fast-food chains a heart by donating $250 from the sale of french fries to the fund.

The Murdale Shopping Center merchants have also helped the McFarlin fund by contributing money or merchandise, a fund-raising organizer said.

Sculptor lets the bronze speak

By James Deck

Her small ranch home in Carbondale, Illinois, is more than just a studio with an ample supply of tools and materials. It is also a place where a young sculptor can find inspiration and peace. "My studio is my sanctuary," says Fredda Brilliant. "It's where I can retreat from the world and focus on my work."

Fredda Brilliant has been sculpting for over 20 years and her work is widely recognized for its depth and emotional quality. She is known for her portraits of prominent figures, such as Sir Isaac Newton, which she created for a national museum in the UK. Her latest work, a bronze statue of Isaac Newton, will be unveiled in the lobby of the new building of the University of Illinois at Carbondale next month.

The sculptor's approach to portraiture is unique. She believes that "a portrait is not just a likeness of a person, but a reflection of their character and personality." She uses a variety of techniques, including bronze casting and direct carving, to convey the essence of her subjects.

"I am always looking for ways to improve my craft," says Fredda Brilliant. "I am constantly experimenting with new techniques and materials."

Fredda Brilliant has been recognized with numerous awards for her work, including the prestigious National Medal of Arts. She is also a member of the National Sculpture Society and the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

Fredda Brilliant's work is featured in prominent collections across the country, including the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and the Smithsonian Institution in Washington D.C.

"I am proud of my work and I hope that it will continue to inspire others," says Fredda Brilliant. "I am looking forward to seeing the new building of the University of Illinois at Carbondale and the unveiling of my Newton statue."
Dietician says cut salt, sugar and fats

By Jeanne Hunter

Fad diet books, TV commercials and magazine advertisements generally appeal to the emotional side of dieting, not to the nutritional side, said Barbara McCleary, dietitian for University Housing.

Before beginning a new diet, she said students should be sure that they have a reliable information source, such as a nutritionist or a dietitian.

She warned students to stay away from diets that recommend the elimination of a food group, since all food groups are important.

She said eating too much sugar, salt or fat is what is hazardous.

Soft drinks contain a vast amount of sugar. Each 12-ounce can has nine teaspoons of sugar in it. Sugar is rapidly used by the body so individuals will become hungry again shortly after ingesting it.

Sugar has been linked to cavities and obesity. She said that to help themselves cut down on sugar, people should check ingredient labels and substitute fresh fruits and vegetables for Sodas.

Snacking is a major cause of the high salt intake. McCleary said Americans eat between six and 18 grams of salt each day and too much salt is synonymous with high blood pressure.

Potato chips, pretzels, peanuts and popcorn have a high, obvious salt content. Hot dogs, TV dinners, cau-""

During work I often look into a mirror at the sculpture - this gives me yet another dimension, for the mirror reflection presents it in such a way it sort of helps me to catch my work unexpectedly, unawares. I see it in another light and angle - a fresh vision of what I have done. To sum up, I can then see my work is finally finished.

MY PARENTS were very strict critics. I had great respect for them because of that, realizing this attitude arose out of well-wishing for me. No matter how good my work is in sculpture, as a little girl, or whatever I did, my father never, never praised me for perfection. He always said: "Tomorrow you will do better, because you have learned more today than what you knew yesterday." I therefore strove for a time when Daddy would say: "Excellent!"

But if he said "not bad," I ran to my girl friends with joy exclaiming: "My work is wonderful, because Daddy said: 'Not bad.'"

This parental training made me a perfectionist; making me work myself to a standstill, never happy until my work was perfect.

When I looked at my work and thought "not bad," I smiled to myself, feeling I had got nowhere. This was a terrible strain on all the senses. It was a challenge to exceed oneself. One's greatest competition is oneself.

‘Great strides’ in child welfare aim at first-abuse prevention

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

Those in the field of child abuse prevention are optimistic.

"In the near future, there will be a new direction in prevention," said Norman Jacob, adoption coordinator for the East St. Louis Region of the Department of Children and Family Services. "We're making great strides in child welfare."

Jacob was one of four speakers Tuesday on "New Directions in Child Abuse Prevention," part of the 1983 Human Resources Conference. The "Chicago model," a treatment program geared toward dealing with sexual abuse and preventing a second incident, will most likely be initiated statewide soon, he said.

Sexual abuse usually develops over time so it is important to break the cycle early, he explained. The Chicago model uses the threat of prosecution as a deterrent.

"The court, we have no clout," he said.

Along with preventing incidents of abuse, Jacob said trying to keep the children in the home is a priority.

"Removing children from their homes is disruptive," said Dr. Barbara Meddin, a human resources consultant in Southern Illinois. "We are trying to prevent unnecessary removal — the longer a child is removed, the more the chance of being returned goes down."

Meddin said child abuse is on the rise but deaths resulting from abuse are decreasing.

She stressed that counselors need to learn to identify high-risk abuse cases.

First, characteristics and behavior of the child should be noted, such as age and activity to protect himself. The characteristics of the caretaker should also be noted, she said, as in their ability and willingness to protect the child.

The characteristics of the perpetrator should be considered, she said, explaining that it’s easier to deal with those who identify hurt their child than those who do it intentionally.

The quality of the environment should be looked at too, since she said there is a direct correlation between abuse and economic conditions and unemployment.

The two other speakers, Luana Atkins and John Lutzker, helped parents who have abused their children or are potential abusers deal with their problems.

Atkins, executive director of Parents Anonymous in Illinois, said "Each of us has the potential to harm the ones we love."

PA is more traditional therapeutic help — a self-help group — that can serve as a bridge to professional counseling, she said.

Lutzker is the coordinator of the Behavior Analysis and Therapy program of the Rehabilitation Institute at SIUC and the program coordinator of Project 12-5 Ways, which works to treat and prevent child abuse.

The program provides services teaching parents how to manage high stress situations, how to give their children emotional rewards, stress reduction, self-control training, among many other things.

Training is also provided for children, he said, such as shoeless tying, stopping bed-wetting, and hygiene.

FDA approves contraceptive sponge

WASHINGTON AP — The Food and Drug Administration has approved an over-the-counter contraceptive sponge for women which is as effective as the diaphragm.

The new product will be sold under the brand name Today by V.L. Corp. of Costa Mesa, Calif. It is expected to be available in drug stores nationwide by mid-year selling for about $1 per sponge.

The contraceptive sponge will be filled with spermicide which prevents conception in three ways: by releasing a chemical that inactivates sperm, blocking the cervix so that sperm cannot enter and trap the egg, and absorbing semen so that fewer sperm are free in the cervical canal.

FDA spokeswoman Fay Atkins said the sponge has an about 85 percent effectiveness rate, roughly the same range as for a diaphragm.

Diaphragms, like birth control pills and intrauterine devices must be obtained by prescription. The company is promoting the sponge as an inexpensive and convenient alternative to the prescription products. The new product is effective for 24 hours.

The sponge also reportedly has no significant side effects.

Student plays provoke thought

By Joanna Hunter
Staff Writer

Wednesday night's "An Evening of New Plays," was entertaining and occasionally, thought provoking.

"Four Plays" comprised of the student written and directed plays, "Family Secret," and "Violet's monologue" is being presented in the Laboratory Theater at 7:30.

Calhoun-Gray and John Rastrick as Daniel Gray played a young love-struck couple deciding to buy a piece of land that was part of the Calhoun heritage.

Author Pam Billingsley did a fine job of bringing Amilla through the play and into a conversation with Abigail Calhoun Gray, a concurrent monologue that merged into a single conversation.

The 15 to 16 minute critique sessions between the individual plays is bad idea. Perhaps these sessions should be held during only one or two performances. Even better, they could be held after the plays so only those who were seriously interested would attend.

The sessions, while valuable to the actors, authors and directors weren't of interest to everyone. They may have even deterred interest in seeing the plays. Who wants to pay $2 to attend a classroom-type review session.

Soprano will present recital

Martha Wursten, soprano, will present a graduate student recital in the First Baptist Foundation Chapel. Accompanying her will be Richard Wursten.

Included in Wursten's performance will be works by Lully, Handel, Bach, Mozart and Bizet.

The performance is free and the public is invited to attend.

Sexism, humor mesh in play

By Cynthia Rector
Staff Writer

Tod Alcott, who began writing in a high school in a creative writing class "because it sounded interesting," recently wrote a comic play about sexism, because he wants to make people think.

The play "Bloody Murder: or Girls! Girls! Girls!" will be performed at 8 p.m. Friday night in Ballroom B. The play is self-produced: the price is nothing.

For Alcott, a former member of Cut Real Comedy, his feminist convictions and his sense of the bizarre aren't as incongruous as some might anticipate.

"I don't think there's anything that can't be understood better through comedy or laughter," Tod said in an introspective way. When discussing his work, he is sometimes meticulous, as though he were comparing at his typewriter. Other times sentences role out of his mouth -- when he does improvisory comedy and when he gets excited about a subject.

"In this particular case it wasn't that difficult to make sexist characters funny, because they are funny in real life."

Tod's close friend Pat Murray is directing the play. "She taught me almost everything I know about sexism so I couldn't think of anyone better qualified."

Neither could Tod. Tod, a freelance writer, has written seven plays in the little over a year since he began. He cites Harold Pinter and Eugene O'Neill as major playwrighting influences, but his biggest influence, especially for "Bloody Murder," is Samuel Beckett.

"A couple of Christmasses ago Pat bought me a copy of "Waiting for Godot," which inspired me to write an absurdistic kind of play. I read a great deal of Beckett and the whole play was kind of written on a Samuel Beckett high."

Tod chose to produce Bloody Murder rather than another play because he feels what it is said is relevant in Carbondale's type of audience and he feels the time is ripe.

He wants to point out that while a concern about sexism and feminism initiated the script for "Bloody Murder," and is a strong theme in the play, the play is really about all kinds of repression.

"The woman in the play could just as easily be any kind of a minority. All sorts of things could be given meaning in the play."

Audience members are invited to a critique session as soon as the play has concluded. Tod wants feedback on his work. So far, he says he's shown the script to a number of friends but he is anxious to expose it to a much larger audience.

Tod's comedic influences have been Monty Python, Woody Allen, Steve Martin and most recently late-night king David Letterman.

"Yes, the play is funny. Or, it should be funny. We're trying our darndest to see that it's funny," Tod promises.

He hopes people will see "Bloody Murder" because "I feel it deals with a lot of very important issues but not in a way that makes people feel guilty or awful or anything like that. It's something that you can enjoy but still learn from."

No one is sponsoring this play. All expenses have come out of the pockets of cast members and director.

Piano students to give recital

The advanced piano students of Steven Barwick, professor in the School of Music, will present their annual Piano Concerto Concert at 8 p.m. Friday.

The concert will be in Shryock Auditorium.

Seven pianists will perform works ranging from Mozart's Concerto in A Major to Ger­ shwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." Of unusual interest will be the Concerto for Left Hand Alone by Maurice Ravel. Movements from concertos by Chopin and Rubinstein will also be featured.

The students are Jeanne Deneal, Clair Sellars, Mahn­ Hee Kang, Chi-Kun Liao, Roger Tyler, Donna Haney and Betev Edmonds.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Liquid diets provide nutrients, but take money, dietician says

By Mary Pries
Staff Writer

The fad diet
It's a popular and seemingly easy way to shed some pounds. But before trying a fad diet, dietician Jan Endres said a person should get a picture of the diet and see if he can live on it.

In a presentation at Memorial Hospital in Carbondale, Endres showed slides of a typical meal plan for various diets. Endres explained how seeing the pictures could affect a person's decision about trying to lose weight.

For the past year, Endres has worked with the Illinois State Council on Nutrition to evaluate several diets. The diets were rated on how well they fulfilled recommended dietary allowances and the need for energy.

Only four of the 16 evaluated diets met the RDA for nutrients, energy.

Endres said many liquid diets not only don't give a person everything he needs, but they also lack much of what he needs — money. Canned powders to add to low-cal beverages, for example, sell for about $1.82 per day.

"Dieters depend on food, not just liquids or supplements," she said. "Some time ago there was a diet pill called Metra-Cal. That helped some women lose weight. But when they stopped taking it and returned to their old eating habits, they actually gained back more weight."

Endres said when a person loses weight without doing exercise, he almost always gains the weight back sooner or later. "It has to be a commitment for life to a diet and exercise program," she said.

Endres said a person should get a picture of the diet and see if he can live on it.

Job loss is like death, divorce according to church speaker

By Danse Schembert
Staff Writer

Since a job provides financial and emotional security, a sense of loss occurs when a person loses a job, according to Denis Junge, doctoral student in guidance and educational psychology.

"The effects of job loss are similar to other types of losses, such as death or divorce," Junge said Tuesday night at St. Francis Xavier Church in the second of a series of discussions sponsored by the Interchurch Council, which deals with the unemployed.

While the loss may not be as intense as losing a loved one, Junge said, a person usually deals with it in much the same way by going through a cycle of stages.

The first stage is the shock stage, which Junge said can occur in the type of situation where a boss informs an employee that he has been laid off with no prior notice.

"During this stage," he explained, "the person is sort of numb and confused. They may also go through a short period of pain."

When a person is ready to face a job loss, Junge said they progress into the denial stage.

"The person says, 'I won't out and found that job I can find another one.' Some people turn to alcohol during this period and totally obliterate the reality that they don't have a job," he said.

As a person becomes more conscious of his situation, he may become angry, Junge said. He added that a person experiences frustration, rejection and guilt during this stage and may attribute these feelings to being treated unfairly.

The person may manifest his anger in two ways, according to Junge. The anger can outwardly be directed toward a spouse or children, or inwardly which leads to the depression stage.

"All the rejection and guilt a person feels is directed inward, and they start feeling inadequate. Therefore, they tell themselves, they are inadequate," Junge said. "This is the lowest point of depression. The person can be very sad, pessimistic, or lethargic."

"During the depression stage, a person may give up on not look for a job, or it can be a time when a person decides to take action. He decides things aren't that bad and realizes it is up to him to go out and do something."

The decision to do something leads a person into the acceptance stage, which contains a high degree of rational thinking on behalf of the individual, Junge said.

"The person goes out and takes action and does not persecute himself. They don't attribute all the bad experiences to himself, which cause bad feelings within himself," he said.

Because a job provides in personal relations, structure in one's life, and a feeling of being needed, Junge said it is normal to experience a sense of loss when that job is done.

"If a person recognizes their loss and tries to come up with some strategies to substitute for that loss, then they can go into the stage of acceptance," he said. "This loss situation can then turn into a positive situation for positive and creative growth."
Women in theater listing compiled

A listing of women in theater has been compiled by Arey, business manager for the Department of Theater at SIU-C.

The "1982-83 Directory of Women in Theater in China," is a 3-page listing of women working in professional and amateur theater, as well as theater departments in colleges and universities throughout the United States.

The directory is aimed at encouraging the sharing of information among women in theater, she said. It provides names, home and office addresses, areas of specialization, current occupations, and educational backgrounds for women in theater.

Arey said the directory will be published annually. Free copies of the directory are available from Arey at the Department of Theater.

Future bright for women netters

By Sherry Chienhall
Staff Writer

Women’s tennis coach Judy Auld has a positive outlook for the season, starting to see the light at the end of the tunnel.

Not that the tunnel has been that dark, with the Salukis putting up an 11-4 spring slate and a 24-4 overall record, but Auld’s roster appears to be filled with potential for the conference championship.

Friday, Auld’s team will travel to Louisville to compete in a round-robin tournament with Louisville, Kentucky, and Illinois-Chicago. SIU-C will again be without the services of Amanda Allen and Stacy Sherman, the team’s most consistent players so far this season.

Auld said the picture is beginning to brighten, though with Allen probably returning to practice Monday and Sherman a probable returner for the conference meet.

The weekend tournament outlook is not as bleak as it could be. Auld said, "If we play well and pick up points throughout the lineup, we can win it," she said. "We always have a chance, we just have to play extremely well and be strong mentally and physically. We’re taking the same team we had in Mississippi last week, and we came through with a big win over Alabama-Montgomery.

Depth has been the Salukis’ strong point this season. When新鲜 players and Allen were scratched from the lineup, Maurere Harney moved up to the number five singles spot, and freshman Kris Stauffer stepped into the sixth spot. Both Harney and Stauffer have held their own on the courts, with Harney owning the best win-loss record on the team.

"I’m just thankful that we have the depth that people can step in when they’re called on," Auld said. "We still have the depth to do well this weekend, although everyone realizes we would be stronger with Amanda and Stacy.

“They’re all aware of what they have to do," she said. "They need to have a positive attitude, and I think they do. It’s important in tennis to be mentally strong, and I think that’s a big factor in our favor.”

Even with depth and attitude in their corner, the Salukis will need to play exceptional tennis in Louisville to come away with three wins. Kentucky is the tournament favorite, but still within SIU-C’s reach, according to Auld.

Louisville will also be a major concern for the Salukis, with the Cardinals seeking to average a 9-0 setback in SIU-C in the fall season. Auld said her team was extremely up for the Louisville match and will have to play well to repeat a win, since Louisville will probably be up for the match this time.

She said Chicago-Circle has not been extremely strong in the past and probably lacks the depth to challenge the Salukis.

Rugby host Western on muddy home field

Mud, mud and more mud. The Saluki Ruggers are up to their knees in mud.

"Both of our fields are totally muddy," said Mike Marion, back coach of the SIU-C men’s rugby team.

Nevertheless, the Salukis will host Western Illinois this weekend after being idle last weekend and placing second at Rolla, Mo. the weekend before.

The ruggers have spent all week in preparation for Western, even though Western has beaten the Salukis in four years.

The game will start at 1 p.m. Saturday either at the rugby pitch or on a field behind the third base of Abe Martin Field, depending on the weather.

"(Western) have a lot of key players," said Marion, "and even though they haven’t beaten us in four years, I think they’re going to be a tough match.

According to Marion, the ruggers have spent the past two weeks healing from brutal matches in Rolla. The Salukis returned from Rolla with three wins and two losses, giving them a season record of 5-3.

The Salukis have lost two players for the season, Kelly Rawling, who has a knee injury, and John Gladock, who injured his back.

During the last weekend of games the Salukis had some exceptional performances, according Marion, with Gary Civil scoring four tries in one game.

"They played a great tourney," Marion said. "He’s an outstanding back.

According to Marion, the Salukis also got great pack play.

"... Illinois State is the game. It's such an intense rivalry, and it has been for years."

SIU-C has been shown less than courteous treatment in its pool assignment. The Salukis will compete round-robin style against Illinois-Chicago, Michigan State, and a Missouri club which they fell to three times in the fall season.

Following the completion of round robin play, the teams will enter bracket competition on Saturday, seeded according to the outcome of pool play.

Among the other entries in the Normal classic are Eastern Illinois, Indiana State, Miami (Ohio), Western Michigan, Southwest Missouri, St. Louis, Illinois Central College and the host Redbirds.

The SIU-C archrivals at last week's SEmotion discus, javelin and shot-put. Hyder of Missouri. Hyder was shut out in the 5,000 at Indiana, SIU-C's Debra Davis was shut out in the 12-team field-events element featuring two of the best athletes in women's collegiate athletics, the host Redbirds and the Salukis, who somehow got a peak by Mother Nature.

"SIU-C will not, in fact, be cast in the same pool as SIU, a scheduling tactic probably intended to give the archrivals a chance to score points. Stevens and Missouri's Renea State, and Lori Ann Bertram own but the distance crew, Lori Ann Bertram voted the most outstanding to Rhonda McClausland in the workhorse houseful of runners as well. Baseball team leaves home hoping to find good weather

Joe Tavisko inherited a 16-25 ball club at Miami of Ohio, and had reason to be at a 14-6 start this season. And that’s without leading up on a lot of talent during the offseason.

“IT's exactly the same team as last year,” Tavisko said. “I’m the In-formation Director Dave Young. He’s given them confidence.”

Tavisko also gave his baserunners the green light, and his Indians have been on the breakers ever since. After 21 games they had swiped 48 bases in 87 attempts. Nine players have four or more stolen bases.

But this Friday and Saturday in a four-game series, they will have to go up against visiting Saluki catcher Steve Boyd, who believes, mainly, that the best baserunner is a dead baserunner. Opponents have stolen only 13 bases on Boyd this season, and Saluki pitchers have picked off 10 runners.

The Redbirds basepath exploits and an accompanying 31-5 team batting average might inspire fear on some hostasts, but the Salukis have historically burned them out time and time again. SIU-C is 24-5 against Miami.

The Salukis are 11-8 this season, change another shot wish season, and Coach Ichy Jones thinks it’s about time his team started ceiling an at-large berth in the NCAA tournament, just in case conference rival Wichita State is as good as its shown so far.

“We’re going to have to win 60-70 percent to be considered as an at-large team,” said Jones. “We’ve got to look at this as a conference series.

“You’ve got to win three out of four. You can’t spill. And every time you don’t win three of four you have to win four of four.”

Jones will send a rusty pitcher staff to face the Indians in a pair of seven inning doubleheaders in Ohio, as the Salukis have played just once in the last two weeks. Rain en-tinguished most of a 13 game homestand.

Richard Ellis will pitch in the first game Friday, and Jones will follow him, in no particular order, with Jay Bellisimo, Gary Bockhorn, and Rick Wyczko.

Joe Tavisko says the long layoff will cut his starters stay on the mound by about 30 pitches, but that it shouldn’t take more than one or two outings to get back to complete-game shape.

The Redbirds, who played four games this week despite rainy conditions (they have a tradition of playing in shine, or wet field) will contest Friday with lefty ace Don O’Brien (6-1, 1.97) and probably righthander Scot Arnold (3-0, 3.27)

The Indians cover their in-field with a tarp, so a wet infield wouldn’t slow them, or help Boyd shoot them down.

Tracksters in for dog, cat fight

Quick, how fast is Missouri’s Rufina Ubah?

“Well,” says Mizzou’s track coach Bob Brown, “at the Commonwealth Games in Australia, she ran 11.18 seconds in the 100-meters into the wind. Now you can judge for yourself. I’d say that was about 11-flat. That’s fast.”

Sure is. But women’s coach Claudia Blackman has only one thing to say about the arrival of Ubah to McNeese Stadium Saturday.

“I hope the Accutran is working,” she said. “If the weather stays with us, I think we could see at least three people qualify in that race.”

Unlike years past, the Salukis will have something to say about the outcome. Coach Blackman will send her prized Ubah and top cat, Sonya Brown, to the meet. Ubah is the toughest competition thus far for freshmen from Bar­bados, West Indies, and it will also give track and field en­thusiasts a chance to see just how fast Blackman really is.

Ubah was sixth at the NCAA Indoor Championships in March, and is the Nigerian and West African record holder at 110-meters. According to Weas­ter, her times haven’t been in the locals outdoors because her adjustment to American life is taking a little time.

“When she first came here, she hadn’t run for three months,” said Weas. “She’s had to adjust to one way of life and especially to the cold weather.”

Joining Ubah in the fast lane is Rose Jackson, an 11.5 spee­der. That is a notch under Blackman’s best of 11.97. EIU’s Brown will also be a threat. She has run 11.8 already this year.

Most of the 100-meter runners will get the call in the 200. Missouri’s Rosalyn Dunlap, who is coming off an injury, heads the field there and will be challenged by Blackman and SIU-C’s Ann Lavine. Ubah and Brown are also entered, and according to Blackman, it will be just as close as the 100-meter race.

The team title, however, may go to Mizzou. The Tigers have tremendous depth and return the bulk of a team that finished one-two in five events last year to win the meet with 111 points.

Blackman would like nothing better than to upset the Tigers. The Salukis are coming off a disappointing meet in Indiana. They are better than the 21 points scored in last week’s loss to the Hoosiers and Illinois, she says, and now that she have

Basket of fun

Someone has to do it, and it’s trackman Gary Munson. The basket, full of sweets from competitors, has to be kept dry and close to the athletes, and this was the best way to do it. The Salukis are in Knoxville, Tenn., this weekend.

It’s been ten long days since the Saluki softballers have been able to attend which a few games in between the late March-early April tempest that has engulfed the Midwest. Ten days of nothing but the doldrums of practice and waiting for a break in the weather. In that span the Salukis, 9-5, have seen nearly a dozen ball games escape like the ripples in the puddles that have made mire out of infielders across the region.

On Friday Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer’s squad will try to gain a reprieve from the See SOFTBALL, Page 73
