USG fears members overlooked by council

TIM CHAMBERLAIN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The long-awaited Residential Leasing Task Force appointments were recommended at Tuesday night's City Council meeting, but the Undergraduate Student Government city affairs commissioner said her office had not been contacted.

Connie Howard, the USG city affairs commissioner, was concerned that her office had not been contacted prior to the announcement Tuesday night.

"We've been sitting here waiting for a phone call from them, but they haven't called," Howard said. "I'm not happy about it."

City Manager Jeff Doherty said the only reason USG has not been contacted to this point was because his office has been busy with other activities. He said the list from Tuesday night contained recommendations, and he planned to contact USG Wednesday afternoon as well as the others named on the committee. Mayor Neil Dillard said the committee was put together by getting two recommendations from each council member Monday and Tuesday, and he put the list together at the last minute Tuesday night. He said this was the reason no one had been contacted prior to Tuesday's City Council meeting.

Howard also said the language of the appointments was vague in its reference to USG and Graduate and Professional Student Council representatives: While the appointments named specific landlords, it called for "two representatives from SIUC Undergraduate Student Government" and "two representatives from SIUC Graduate and Professional Student Council."

"They need to put in some clarification on that," Howard said. "I don't understand because they're so meticulous on everything else, but this is left wide open."

Howard said she would expect USG to send the city affairs commissioner and either the president or the housing commissioner, though USG President Jackie Smith would have input in the decision. Eight of the 11 landlords on the task force were on the previous landlord/tenant committee. These landlords are Raul Ayala, Don Bryant Jr., Shirley Meyer, Bonnie Owen, Jeff Pauline, Rolf Schilling, Mike Wadiak and Kevin Williams. New additions to the landlord portion of the committee are Steve Burroughs and Leon Scott, with an additional landlord to be named later. The representatives from SIUC administration are Ed Jones, director of University Housing, and a representative from the chancellor's office. The at-large representative named is community member Priscilla Pimentel, who spoke against the proposed ordinances at the March 30 council meeting because they would give "a false sense of security."

Since the target date for a report by the task force to the council is April 20, Dillard said the city manager was trying to set up a meeting for the group right away.

"Since we probably won't be able to have a meeting on Thursday or Friday, we'll try to schedule something for early next week," Dillard said.

Authorities nab book bag thieves

Upon arrest, suspects confess to three unreported area burglaries

DAVID FERRARA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Three Carbondale men linked to at least six area book bag thefts have helped University and Carbondale police recover more than $1,000 worth of items.

Carbondale Police arrested John S. Hughes, 28, and charged him with felony theft Saturday afternoon on a Jackson County warrant issued by SIU Police in relation to several thefts at the University Bookstore in the Student Center.

"We have knowledge of his involvement in five," SIU Police Lt. Todd Sigler said.

Sigler said Hughes admitted to the five book bag thefts at the bookstore.

"Those I feel comfortable talking to you about. The others we're still working on," Sigler said.

Hughes was apprehended on Wall Street near the intersection of Oak Street by Carbondale authorities who received a videotape printout of Hughes about a week ago from SIU Police.

SIU Police, who are investigating thefts from the bookstore, said it is likely Hughes worked alone when he allegedly committed the book bag thefts.

"I have no information that would lead me to believe that there is anyone else at this time," Sigler said.

Carbondale authorities recognized him as the suspect and took Hughes to Jackson County Jail; where he remains pending a court appearance.

Uriah Lee Scott, 22, and Michael J. McReynolds, 31, also were arrested by Carbondale authorities and have been connected to book bag thefts from a string of auto burglaries the two reportedly committed.

Scott was detained March 1 at the Saluki II Bookstore, 502 S. Illinois Ave., while attempting to sell back stolen books.

His alleged accomplice, McReynolds, fled the scene when he saw police coming but was later arrested at his residence and charged with felony theft.

The two also sold books back at 710 Bookstore, 710 S. Illinois Ave., before attempting to sell books back at the other bookstore.

A total of eight books, valued at $300 and stolen from an SIUC student, were recovered by police at the bookstores.

Police originally believed Scott and McReynolds were linked to only two auto burglaries in Carbondale, but they admitted to three others after being taken into custody.

Scott and McReynolds confessed to auto burglaries mainly in the northwest side of the city, but police said three of the burglaries have yet to be reported by the victims.

"We're just looking for other people that have been victimized and haven't reported it," Carbondale Police community resource officer Don Elliott said.

Upon their arrest, police said, Scott and McReynolds toured Carbondale to salvage various items from pawn shops, trash receptacles, garages and a residence the two shared in the 300 block of West Pecan Street.

"I spent several hours driving around with them recovering items," Carbondale Police detective Don Barrett said.

Some items, such as identification cards, were destroyed, police said.

Scott and McReynolds were both taken to Jackson County Jail. McReynolds is scheduled for a preliminary hearing at 9 a.m. April 20.

McReynolds and Hughes were being detained as of press time. Scott has since been released from the jail, but his court date was not available Wednesday.

With the string of recent book bag thefts on campus, University Bookstore manager Jim Skiersch said he has seen an increase of free locker use at his store.

Feminist author to speak at Faner museum

ASTARIA L. DILLARD
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Daphne Patai was a professor of women studies for 10 years but left because she became discouraged about the kind of education her students were getting about feminism in the program.

Patai has questioned feminism in her past two books — "Heterophobia: Sexual Harassment and the Future of Feminism" and her 1992 book "Professing Feminism: Cautionary Tales from the Strange World of Women's Studies," co-authored with Noretta Koertge.

Daphne Patai

In Patai's latest book, she critiques sexual harassment and the radical feminist literature that underlies it. In "Professing Feminism," she discussed how academic feminism had become corrupted by ideological policing.

As a feminist, professor and author, Patai will be speaking to SIUC students at 7 tonight in the University Museum Auditorium in Faner Hall.

The speech is sponsored by the Young America's Foundation, SIUC Graduate School, SIUC Women's Studies and the SIUC College Republicans. The event is free and open to the public.

Patai is coming to SIUC to talk about sexual harassment.

"I think sexual harassment is having a bad effect in the workplace and school," Patai said. "It is making people suspicious of one another and always has their looking for potential injuries."

Patai said she is looking forward to speaking to SIUC students and expressing her beliefs, especially on a certain brochure

Coalition lends women a helping hand

KENDRA THORSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Marva Nelson spent several years of her life turning colors for her husband — all of them were black and blue.

After the beatings became unbearable, Nelson decided to break the silence surrounding the abuse. In her journey for women equality and safety, she has taken on many pro-active roles.

Nelson is the facilitator for the Feminist Action Coalition, 1006 Chautauqua St., a registered student organization that serves as a helping hand to other groups on campus and supports issues affecting women.

The FAC is co-sponsoring the visit of Katie Koestner, a woman who was a victim of date rape during her freshman year of college. Koestner will be promoting campus safety at 7:30 tonight in Lawson Hall, room 141.

Nelson believes college students must be produced by the University.

"The brochure on sexual harassment states that sexual harassment is 'as subtle as a look or as blatant as rape,'" she said. "This is a good example of the kind of things that I think are wrong with the way sexual battles are being fought at universities."

Jonathan Bean, professor of history, has worked with Patai in the past on issues of feminism and sexual harassment and invited her to speak.

Bean said Patai is arguing for a return of a different form of feminism that does not put men and women at odds.

"She highlights double standards and institutionalized sexism," Bean said. "She analyzes the feminist theory that underlines discuss date rape issues because they are at high risk.

"I think if nothing else, people need to know these things will happen," Nelson said. "It helps to know there is someone willing to speak out about their experiences. People need to be more vocal."

Nelson said some of the greatest misunderstandings of feminists are age-old, including the idea that men are excluded from advocating the rights of women.

"I think maybe the largest misconception is that feminists hate men and they are separatists," she said. "This is not the case at all — we welcome all types of feminists. This group is educational and

Free alcohol screening at Wellness Center

The Wellness Center is offering a free alcohol assessment to SIUC students today as part of the first-ever National Alcohol Screening Day.

The anonymous alcohol screening provides students at the opportunity to gauge their standing among other alcohol users. The screening is an educational tool to inform students of potential problems their alcohol use can cause.

The comprehensive screening is only an assessment, but individuals concerned about their alcohol usage can be referred to support or treatment centers.

Students can participate from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the Shack office at the Student Center and from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at Truethood Hall.

Grand jury indicts two Virginia football players

Two football players at the University of Virginia have been indicted on felony charges in connection with a campus brawl that injured two other students.

Senior defensive back Adrian Burnim was charged with two counts of malicious wounding, and sophomore Antoine Womack was charged with one count of malicious wounding. Another man, Kevin D. Cromartie, who isn't a student at UVA, also was charged with one count of malicious wounding.

The trio is expected in court again August 11. Their attorneys have said the men will plead not guilty to the charges and request a jury trial.

The charges resulted from a Feb. 7 fight in which the three men were among five people accused of beating UVA students Jonathan Dean and Cabal Thornton. Dean and Thornton testified before a grand jury April 1 that they were returning from a late-night party when they were attacked. Dean and Thornton said they were disoriented during the beatings and unable to tell exactly what was happening around them. Dean, however, said he was certain that Womack was among his attackers. Dean said Womack straddled his legs and kicked him in the back repeatedly.

Thornton told the Grand Jury that Burnim punched him in the face when he tried to intervene on Dean's behalf.

If convicted, Burnim could face up to 40 years in prison. Womack and Cromartie face up to 20 years each.

Two other football players, Devon Simmons and John Duckett, pleaded guilty to misdemeanor charges tied to the same case. They have been suspended from the football team indefinitely.

Because of the extremely warm and moist temperatures, black flies (above) have become a nuisance to many windshields and horses. Super 7, a fly repellent, has been frequently used at the SIUC Horse Center.

Black flies invade Carbondale, SIUC

BURKE SPEAKER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

While some insects drained the blood of horses at the SIUC Horse Center Wednesday, most swarmed around their prey and merely awaited the chance to attack.

The horses thrashed about near the fence, attempting to divert the attacks by kicking and rubbing against each other, but their attempts were in vain.

"We're having big problems," said Marcy Christiansen, associate herdsman at the SIUC Horse Center. "The horses just run and run and run all day. They push up against the fence to try to get (the insects) off. We're going through the (insect repellent) like water."

This is just one result of an influx of black flies, also known as buffalo gnats, that are sweeping through Carbondale and the surrounding area. The flies attack horses and livestock, leaving them bloody and worked up.

The black fly outbreak is the worst in four years, according to J.E. McPherson, professor of zoology.

McPherson said the insects usually emerge during an extended period of time, but the sudden increase in high temperatures caused the 1/4-inch pests to show up within a week.

The female black flies will seek blood — used for the production of their eggs — and burrow beneath the necks and bellies hair of livestock.

Christiansen said the horses rub up against fences to try to rid themselves of the tiny predators. The horses will run themselves into heat and exhaustion, making the feeding process nearly impossible.

"When the horses become overheated, we can't feed them. They will get colic, which is like a belly ache, and they can twist a gut," Christiansen said. "This causes the blood supply to be cut off to that section, and that part of the intestine will decay and die."

Christiansen said that if not for immediate medical treatment, the horse's intestinal tract will become blocked and the horse will die.

Luckily for Southern Illinois residents, the species of black flies in this area do not bite humans, although the black flies in the north do attack people.

"They go after livestock and pets down here," McPherson said. "They very rarely attack us — they annoy us but don't bite us as much as the ones up North do."

Flowers and Neill have voting appeal

As Carbondale gears up for the April 13 general election, residents are trying to decide which candidates are deserving of their votes and support. At the DAILY EGYPTIAN we've sat down and spoke with each candidate individually and in the next two days we'll reveal our insights into who are the best candidates for the job.

Overwhelmingly, the editorial board supports Carl Flowers. At the end of all the candidate interviews we sat down and voted for which two City Council candidates we should endorse and the first name on everyone's lips was Carl Flowers.

This is man that tape records every single City Council meeting and keeps them in a library. No other candidate had such an outstanding example of commitment. If nothing else that's a testament to his preparation for the position. His desire to be informed and involved is evident and reflects his love of Carbondale. Flowers presents himself as very knowledgeable about campus and community issues and comes to the table with solid ideas and a willingness to fight for a consensus opinion, a quality especially valuable with the wars that have been waged on the Council recently.

Our other City Council endorsement goes to incumbent Mike Neill. Neill impressed us as the most knowledgeable and intelligent of all the City Council candidates. He has a strong business sense and although he's a little quiet at meetings, he knows the issues and how to get things accomplished. Neill said he believes in the importance of retention and making students feel at home when they come to Carbondale and that's what we all want. Neill speaks softly but his involvement on numerous community advisory boards shouts his commitment. Neill may be part of the existing Carbondale political machine, but he goes about it with realistic vision and concrete information and for that he gets our vote.

The other two candidates — Brad Cole and Corene McDaniel — both had fatal flaws that turned us off. While we agree with many of the platforms Brad Cole is campaigning on and truly believe he would represent students, we simply don't trust him. When asked about his previous involvement with SIUC Undergraduate Student Government, Cole was very defensive and accusatory, going as far as to threaten legal action if we wrote a story regarding his past — a story we had no knowledge or intention of writing.

If Cole is so media sensitive, maybe he has good reason, but it's not because any reporters are now, or ever were, "out to get" him. Brad Cole seemed to be more pro-Brad Cole than anything else.

Our objections to Corene McDaniel aren't because we don't trust her, but because we don't feel she's as prepared as the other candidates to take a seat on the City Council. McDaniel came across as being more into "looking into" things and waiting, than taking action directed at change and we believe enough of that goes on already.

Guest columnist should stop name-calling and grow up

Dear Editor,

I find it difficult to understand how students at a university can defy their learning experience by turning out to be so bigoted as Patrick Gamer. In his guest column, he calls security officers at Wal-Mart "white trash" with "petty brains." I suggest that the petty brain was the one who wrote the column and refused to accept responsibility for his actions.

This type of behavior indicates a gross lack of maturity on your part, Mr. Gamer. Those security officers were doing what they are paid to do while you were shoplifting safety pins. Whether or not you intended to pay for them isn't the issue. You took them.

Name calling is not an indication of an educated mind. And you being a member of the "educated elite" and holding any type of leadership position is truly frightening. I highly recommend graduate school in your immediate future. And I seriously doubt that the security guards envy your position in the food chain. You need to rethink your position, stop name-calling and grow up.

Bonnie Wilkerson
SIUC Alumna

This year Carbondale residents have a tough choice at the polls. Many of the candidates take the same stance on issues and have similar plans of action. From landlord/tenant problems to an endangered mall, Carbondale needs solid leadership to improve the quality of life.

The EGYPTIAN chose to endorse Flowers and Neill because they were the best of the available options to do this.

Flowers is very genuine in his enthusiasm to be involved in the future of Carbondale and comes across not only as a quality candidate but as an individual with deep integrity. In short, he's a good man and we believe he'll make a good City Council member.

Neill has proved to be capable and worthy of his position. Judging from his family's long-term residence, their family tree has Southern Illinois engraved on its trunk. This can only speak to his vision of Carbondale's capabilities. His perseverance despite the tragic recent loss of his sister demonstrates his drive to be part of that vision.

For all those reasons we support Carl Flowers and Mike Neill in their efforts this election. No matter who you vote for this election make an informed decision. Know what the candidates stand for and what they will do to benefit Carbondale. Examine the various campaign literature, listen to the arguments and then vote for the candidate that best represents your needs. For City Council, the EGYPTIAN places its faith in Carl Flowers and Mike Neill.

Hey landlords, look below for a great deal!

Carbondale landlords, have we got a deal for you! Are you one of those overlooked property owners burdened by the excess ball of a conscience? Or maybe your fingers don't fly across the calculator with the same old youthful vigor? Does the opposite sex look at you like you're some sort of hideous, bloodsucking parasite? Well, throw out those running shoes and put your barbells in the closet — unless you've rented it to someone. It's time to get with the real program — The Slimland 2000 Program.

Slimland 2000, the ethics-reducing, income-producing wonder, is the only fitness program on the market geared to you, the Carbondale landlord. This isn't one of those routines where you prepare some powdered concoction, which tastes amazingly like wet powder, and drink it three times a day instead of eating.

No, the only shakes you'll have to deal with are the ones you experience when you can't find your wallet. Best of all, the Slimland program is cheap and painless for nearly everyone, except about one-third of the city's population.

First of all, you need a nutritious food source, one without additives like money, good lawyers, or — yuck — rights. Let's see ... STUDENTS! They can be kept extremely lean by holding them to a strict diet of mustard sandwiches for one week out of every month, right after paying rent. You can go through them like peanuts and not gain an ounce. Save the wallet for dessert, though. It's especially lean and contains the nutrients you really crave.

Are we ready for a workout now? Okay! Our first exercise is called "laughing all the way to the bank." This is great for the cardiovascular system. I should know. I do it twice a month, when someone actually pays me for this column.

Once you feel like you're good and warmed up, we'll move on to the wheelbarrow-full-of-money relay. The object is to pass the wheelbarrow off to your accountant, who passes it to your lawyer. All the while, they have to dodge building codes, complaining tenants and obnoxious columnists. Look at you now — you're a lean, mean capitalist machine!

You do need one piece of equipment, though — a treadmill. Calm down, you don't actually have to get on it. It's only for the City Council. As you can keep them running in place for years at a time, you can feel that flab by humanity and decency melting away. When you're in a festive mood, stick a few students on there, too. If they're exhausted they put up less of a fight at mealtime.

And, best of all, the Slimland 2000 Program is available at a reasonable price, which we can't disclose right now, but trust us.

There are no hidden charges that you know of, just a small deposit that we cheerfully refund when you return all materials to us in better shape than you got them, master Arabic calligraphy with your feet and do a flawless impersonation of Placido Domingo singing "I Don't Like the Drugs (But the Drugs Like Me)."

Here's the true testimonial to the wonders of Slimland 2000 — we have no testimonials! Hardly anyone who completed the program would return our calls, and the ones that did denied being landlords. Success! No more scruples to drag around, no more conscience sapping your energy. You still look the same, but who cares? You're rich! So slum up and slim down with Slimland 2000!

Friends remember student killed in weekend Giant City Road crash

KAREN BLATTER
STUDENT AFFAIRS EDITOR

Beth Sieffert is able to look down at her colorful toenails and remember her close friend Carol Synnott.

Sieffert begins to giggle when she recalls why Carol painted her toes a few days ago. While Beth was hanging out with friends in her dorm room, Carol saw Beth's bare feet and went at them with a bottle of nail polish.

"The color will fade over time, but the impact Carol has left on my life will never leave me," Beth said.

Synnott

Synnott, a senior in aviation management from Naperville, died Saturday afternoon in a car accident that occurred on Giant City Road.

Synnott was coming from one of her favorite spots, Giant City State Park, to pick up two of her friends at University Mall.

Because of 1 1/2 inches of rain that fell Friday and Saturday, the roads were covered with water.

The crash is believed to have been caused by Synnott's vehicle, a 1987 Toyota Tercel, which started to hydroplane and fishtail. Synnott lost control, and the car went into the oncoming lane.

An oncoming vehicle struck Synnott's at the driver's side front corner. The impact pushed the driver's door in.

The driver of the other car, Tonya Hearn of Carterville, was taken to the hospital and released on Sunday.

Synnott was wearing a seat belt, but according to authorities, with or without a seat belt, Synnott would have been killed.

Carol will be buried today in Naperville.

She has two grandfathers, one grandmother, both parents, three brothers, four sisters and nine nieces and nephews.

Sieffert, who will be a sophomore at John A. Logan College, met Carol a year ago at Calvary C-campus Church.

Carol was a very active member of the church and dedicated her life to God.

"We went out to eat after church, and then we went hiking," Sieffert said. "We just became close friends."

The two spent more time together and decided to pray together. The more time they spent together, the closer they got.

Sieffert said that when they prayed together, not only did they share their days, but they shared deep things with each other and with God.

Even though Carol was majoring in aviation management, her true dream was to be a Christian missionary.

Gladys Itotia, a junior in special education from Kenya, has known Carol for three years and became close friends with her during the past year.

Itotia said there will be many things she admired and will miss about Carol, but nothing more than her faith.

"She loved God, and she loved to help others," she said. "The thing she wanted most was for people to gain a relationship with God."

Sieffert said Carol was planning to use her aviation skills to better promote the Word of God.

"To her, aviation was cool, but her heart changed," she said. "She was going to use aviation to be a missionary and go to different countries."

Sieffert said that even though she will miss having Carol in her life, she knows Carol is in a better life.

"I can't be sad right now," she said. "Carol is with him right now, and she is much more happy."

Lincoln Land College, SIUC announce joint educational resource center in Springfield

ASTARIA L. DILLARD
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Officials at SIUC's Department of Workforce Education and Development recently announced a partnership with Lincoln Land College in Springfield to operate the nation's largest educational resource center of its kind.

SIUC assumed responsibility for the Office of Educational Services in January and hoped to relocate the office in late summer from the University of Illinois-Springfield campus to the Lincoln Land College campus.

OES provides research, referrals and curriculum materials to the nation's vocational and guidance counselors, teachers and trainers in corporate and business settings.

Some programs and materials offered by OES include:

- The Education to Careers Program, a statewide program that links schools and businesses in a joint venture that prepare young people for productive careers.

- The State Gender Equity Resource Center, which encourages students to consider non-traditional careers.

- Parenting and self-esteem-building materials to help bolster performance by children and adults.

Rebecca Woodhull, OES director, said the office asked if they could join SIUC.

"The Department of Education and Workforce Development at SIUC has always been supportive of our mission," said Woodhull, an SIUC graduate. "Our mission is to serve educators, counselors, administrators and help develop and revise their curriculum."

Woodhull said SIUC and the OES are in the "getting acquainted" stage right now. She said the people at SIUC have been wonderful and nice to work with.

John Washburn, a professor in workforce education, was responsible for the contract on campus.

"I see it as a major initiative for this department," he said. "It broadens our work in the workforce development area."

Woodhull said the center is bringing fresh activities and ideas to SIUC. She said they are the largest curriculum center in the United States and they serve the entire United States, not just Illinois.

She also said SIUC is attracted to the center because they worked with the education workforce military base program at SIUC.

"An addition for SIUC is that we work a lot with trainers in agencies, such as DECA (Department of Commerce and Community Affairs), training people in Springfield," Woodhull said. "They get their training from us, that gives SIUC a new audience."

Woodhull said the plan for the center, which is primarily funded by state and federal grants, is to move into a larger facility in Springfield and have a one-stop resource for educators and trainers.

"They can come to our center and get everything they need at once," she said.

The TRUTH about cats and dogs

Only one-fourth of the 15 million pets that end up in animal shelters each year make it out alive.

Stacey Garcia (left), shelter director of the Humane Society of Southern Illinois, with the help of Sherry Mullins holding the dog, inserts a needle containing a controlled substance which puts the animal to sleep. This procedure is quick and painless for the animals.

Dan Roach and two other kennel workers at the Humane Society of Southern Illinois took one last look over files, gathered syringes and prepared to put 15 unwanted animals to sleep Monday afternoon.

"You try not to think about it as much as possible," Roach said. "What makes me angry is that we have to do this in the first place."

A CLOUD OF DESPAIR

Fifteen million cats and dogs end up in animal shelters each year, but only one-fourth of those animals will be recovered by their owners or adopted into new homes. The rest are left unwanted to face a grim future — death.

According to the Humane Society of Southern Illinois, 95 Humane Road, more than 5,000 animals were put to death in Jackson County last year — 80 percent of the 6,494 animals they took in.

Roach, a student at John A. Logan College, said euthanizing animals is the hardest task he undertakes at the shelter because some of the animals are put to sleep without ever experiencing life.

grab a puppy it is just as innocent and defenseless as my child at home," Roach said. "They don't know what's going on. They are scared, and they haven't had a chance at all."

According to Stacey Garcia, shelter director of the Humane Society of Southern Illinois, the upcoming months are plagued by an increase of unwanted animal litters adding to an already alarming pet overpopulation.

Garcia said the number of unwanted animals is primarily a result of pets that have been allowed to roam and breed without control.

"Most of the animals we euthanize were brought into this world because pet owners didn't get their animals spayed or neutered," she said. "We have to put them to sleep because we have no room."

Roach said each time he puts an animal to sleep he experiences hostility toward society's irresponsibility that leads to the unwanted number of cats and dogs.

"I wish people would come in for just one day and see what we have to do," Roach said. "I think, then, they would spay and neuter their pets."

A RAY OF HOPE

In a corner office of the shelter, Garcia cradles a small sleeping two-month-old boxer puppy nicknamed Norma Jean and proceeds to explain the puppy's situation.

Having been taken into the shelter by her owner as a result of a landlord's request, Norma Jean will soon be adopted after two more weeks of needed care at the shelter.

The Humane Society's Adopt-A-Pet program is able to find suitable animals like Norma Jean a home that can provide them with adequate care. Currently, the shelter has 22 dogs, four puppies, five cats, four bunnies and one gerbil available for adoption.

After new owners pay an adoption fee ($50 for dogs and $40 for cats) and complete the application process, their adopted animals are sent directly from the shelter to a veterinarian. After being examined, vaccinated and spayed or neutered, they are given to their new owners.

Rebecca Hancock, a sophomore in photography from Newburgh, Ind., has her hands full with two animals she has adopted within the last month from the Humane Society but said the experience has been valuable.

"I have always had a dog in my life," Hancock said. "When I moved here I felt, like I was missing something. My pets are friends I'll never lose."

Hancock said caring for her cat, Orko, and her Australian shepherd mix, Feyd, consumes most of her time.

"Every time I am not in class, I am with my dog," she said. "I even take it to the bars with me — it's my child."

Members of the community will have the opportunity to interact with animals in the adoption program Saturday at Trolley Park as part of a pet fair sponsored by the Humane Society. The fair also will showcase a pet psychic and information on training, housebreaking and veterinary care for pets.

"A lot of people do not want to come out to the shelter and see the animals in cages," Garcia said. "We want to increase awareness for the shelter so people can see the animals that we have up for adoption and all that we have to offer out here."

New food service location offers convenience

SPREADING OUT: Officials to consider additional satellite facilities depending on success of law building snack shop.

RHONDA SCIARRA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

While buying a blueberry bagel and a cup of Vanilla Nut coffee at the two-room snack shop in the Lesar Law Building, Kelly Choate is saving time and energy.

Choate, a third-year law student from Marion, is usually forced to venture off campus in search of breakfast or lunch.

Choate said the opening of the Lesar Law satellite is advantageous because she usually spends most of her day within the building.

SNACK SHOP

The Lesar Law Satellite is opened from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. Monday through Friday and is adjacent to the Lesar Law Library.

offering coffee, donuts, fruits, sandwiches and other snack foods. The shop is managed by Chartwells, SIUC's dining service.

Chartwells Coffee has opened the Lesar Law satellite on a trial basis until the end of the semester, while the recent proposal of a coffee cart in the Communications Building remains on postponement.

Steve Kauf, director of Chartwells Coffee, said plans for the coffee cart in the Communications Building would not be pursued until next fall because of the opening of the satellite location.

Kauf said the opening of the satellite location offers an alternative for students and faculty who cannot make it to the Student Center.

"Anytime you can get the product closer to the customer it's a better thing. In the long run it is more of a service than anything else."

— STEVE KAUF
DIRECTOR, CHARTWELLS COFFEE

"Anytime you can get the product closer to the customer it's a better thing," Kauf said. "In the long run it is more of a service than anything else."

Tom Britton, associate dean in the School of Law, has received positive feedback from people within the building.

"We have been working with students and Chartwells to provide this service," he said. "We wanted to see if there would be a positive response and there has been."

Kauf said that before the winter break, options to offer food service outside of the Student Center were first considered because of suggestions from Chancellor Jo Ann Argersinger.

"The idea has always been around that it would be nice to have some types of food services outside of the Student Center," he said.

Input from the University community and a Student Center Food Service committee resulted in efforts to secure possible locations for food service across campus.

Harvey Welch, vice chancellor for Student Affairs, said among all places considered, the Law School was the best suitable location to start.

"We began to look at various locations — the Communications Building, the Library, the Recreation Center and the Law building," Welch said. "Each of them presented some concerns, but it looked like the law school was the most viable to get started."

Welch said other future locations may be looked into depending on the success of the satellite location.

"We plan on operating the satellite, seeing how it goes, then making subsequent decisions based upon what happens there," he said. "We are trying to be responsive to the needs of students, faculty and staff."

THEFTS

"I know more people are locking their bags up," he said.

But Skiersch, who was not aware of Hughes' arrest, said he thinks book bag theft, which has been called "a much broader problem," is not on the decline.

"Has the problem stopped? No. It's not rocket science here," Skiersch said. "I don't think it would be a good idea to let your guard down now."

Skiersch said book bag thefts increase at the end of semesters because of textbook sell-back.

"It gets worse between here and the end of the semester," he said. "Not just here in the bookstore at the book drop. I'm talking about all over."

Lt. Todd Sigler said the two city police departments often work together on investigations.

"We make it a practice to try and share information in and around campus," Sigler said.

Police and bookstore managers have said the problem of book bag theft is at least a campus-wide problem.

They also agree that, in the wake of the three arrests, the problem has not been solved.

"I would never say let your guard down," Sigler said.

DASH participants overcome obstacles with horses, of courses

Suzanne Gorrell sits tall with a proud smile on her face as she rides a stout chestnut horse named Brussels around an indoor arena Monday night.

Her wheelchair remains empty, pushed aside in the aisle of the 30-stall barn.

Keeping the same look on her face after the ride, Gorrell, a senior in rehabilitation from Carbondale, says riding a horse is a welcome break from her usual mode of transportation.

"I am up above everyone else's heads, and they all look up at me for a change," she says. "Having the horse underneath you feels powerful."

Gorrell, along with other SIUC students and community members with disabilities, participates every semester in the Disabled Student Horseback Riding Program through the Recreation Center.

The DASH program began March 22 and will continue meeting every Monday for three weeks at LeCheval De Boskeydell, 83 Furlong Lane. During the Monday night sessions, participants — with assistance from volunteers — concentrate on their riding position while working at the walk and trotting gaits.

Marjorie Malkin, associate professor of therapeutic recreation and riding instructor for the program, has been working with DASH participants since the beginning of the program five years ago. Malkin said although the program is geared toward recreational advantages, riders with disabilities have experienced therapeutic benefits.

"Participants have experienced gains in balance, flexibility, strength and an increased ability to do activities of daily life," Malkin said. "They're perceived confidence and control increases."

Gorrell, left with brain damage because of a head injury, said riding horses has enabled her to overcome obstacles that she never could in physical therapy.

"Things I spent years trying to do in therapy I was able to do after two years of riding horses," she said. "Since I have been horseback riding, my balance has improved 110 percent."

Mark O'Donoghue, riding instructor and owner of the stables, said the benefits of riding affect both the mind and body of the riders.

"Psychologically, it gives a more optimistic outlook on life to clients who have been trapped in a wheelchair," he said. "Physically, the animal is a living creature that allows the riders to become mobile."

Cally Anderson, a sophomore in recreation from Mt. Zion, is one of many student volunteers who assist the riders. The volunteers tack up horses, help the riders on and off the horse and are there for support.

"The program helps the riders work their bodies and teaches them to ride on their own as much as they can," Anderson said. "You can see that the riders improve each week — they become more secure with the horse."

Anderson said in the few weeks of volunteering she has seen relationships form between the riders and the horses.

"I think all people enjoy horses," she said. "I think animals appreciate the interaction with people."

Malkin said the recreation offered through horseback riding has a stronger influence than using an exercise machine because a personal connection develops between the horse and rider.

"Horses are sensitive to the needs of a rider," she said. "Riders feel a genuine relationship with a horse that they do not feel with an exercise bike."

Once-funded using federal grants, the DASH program now relies heavily on sponsorship from the community to underwrite the cost of horseback riding each semester.

O'Donoghue said support and funding for therapeutic horseback riding is constantly needed.

"Riding for people with disabilities requires so much human contact as far as support purposes," O'Donoghue said. "It is cost-prohibitive because of the amount of manpower necessary to keep clients safe."

According to Gorrell, the horses are more than just a way to get around — they are her friends.

"There is something about the horse," Gorrell said. "If I am depressed I come out here with the horses and it helps."

As the group leaves the farm, Gorrell only can anticipate her next ride on Brussels.

"I wish I could do it more often," she said. "I go into horse withdrawal. Brussels — he's the coolest horse in the whole world."

Greylight Theater performs local poet's humorous 'Enemy Towers'

MATT SMENOS
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Brash humor is hidden behind the scenes in "The Enemy Towers," a story about art, academia and sexuality.

"It's a very interesting little script," said Don Elwell, the writer and director for the Greylight Theater collective.

THEATER

"The Enemy Towers" will be performed at the Olds Douglas School Art Place, 900 Douglas St., in Murphysboro Thursday through Sunday. A $5 donation is asked at the door. For more information call 687-1566.

her way through graduate school and the other who is just sleeping through graduate school. A laughable school custodian plays the part of chorus throughout the piece.

The play contains projected art images to enhance the sets throughout and runs in conjunction with an art exhibit that contains work reflecting themes of the script.

The name of the Greylight Theater comes from a poem written by Elwell, who has a doctorate in theater from the Union Institute in Cincinnati, Ohio. In the poem he named an old forgotten theater, "The house of gray light," and described how the theater was then rediscovered.

The Greylight theater group has been active for almost two and a half years and is going strong, Elwell said. With plays covering the gamut from satirical commentary to children's interactive theater.

"The Enemy Towers" was written by Kenneth Bowe, a local spoken word poet who can be seen performing at the Longbranch Coffee House, 100 E. Jackson. Enemy Towers was directed by Jason Hedrick of the Greylight Theater collective who also has directed other plays such as

"Dapples and grays," which was performed last year.

Despite the numerous conflicts in the play, Elwell said "The Enemy Towers" is extremely well-written.

"I feel that the script is extremely well done, a really complex piece of drama," he said.

However, the Greylight Theater is doing more than just local projects. Elwell said the Greylight collective has become one of the largest non-academic producers of scripts in the United States.

The collective is made up of more than 60 writers, actors and directors and is hoping to have a fully professional staff in the next two to five years.

Another project in the works with the Greylight Theater are "WWW.Elsinore.DK," a corporate version of Hamlet.

Although it may be difficult to describe all the fundamentals of the play, Elwell encourages everyone to come out and see the performance.

"Come and see Enemy Towers," Elwell said,

"It is very interesting."

COALITION

informative for both men and women. It is a supportive environment for women on campus.

Beverly Stitt, director of the FAC, said the group agrees on activities unanimously without direction from those in leadership roles.

"Generally the entire group decides what we will do," Stitt said. "We don't focus on hierarchy — it is the feminist idea."

The FAC gives women the opportunity to feel supported by others having the same interests, and women discuss with others the issues appealing to them.

"I think the Feminist Action Coalition gives the women a group of people from all different majors that share the interests with them," she said.

"We are thoroughly focused on women, they [the members] have a sense of belonging."

In addition to the aid they give to other women's groups, the FAC takes part in a variety of activities during the semester.

The group attempted to dispel myths of feminists by posting fliers monthly around campus.

The group focuses on academics, reading and discussing pertinent issues in meetings, such as media issues and the way women are viewed by society.

Carol Sommer, campus safety representative, said the first project the group will work on is the "Brown Bag Discussion Topic: Katie Koestner's Presentation" noon Friday in the Student Center Activity Room A.

Sommer said there is a need for other women's groups on campus but it is very important for groups to learn to network.

"There are strength in numbers — separate we are all tiny pockets of the University," she said. "If we all get together, we have a louder voice and a greater amount of resources."

Black flies live as larvae in shallow, clear and fast moving rivers and streams. The larvae transform in the water to adult flies and rise to the surface of the water on air bubbles, according to the Iowa insect information page.

The flies can be found swarming around the University and splattered on many people's car windshields.

"For some reason they're attracted to cars," McPherson said.

McPherson said the troubles should be completed within the month, as the adult flies' life expectancy is about three weeks.

But for now, Christiansen said the problem persists.

"I hope it gets better," Christiansen said.

"Right now it's a problem sun up to sun down."

Humpty-Hump returns to Carbondale

by Jason J. Adams

THORRIE T. RAINEY
ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR

That ridiculous nose, signature voice, off-the-wall lyrics, clothes and crazy dance moves. They can only belong to one person — hip-hop artist Humpty-Hump.

This comical character and the other members of Digital Underground are back.

The multi-gold and platinum artists make a powerful return to the Carbondale community, encompassing the hypnotic grooves, sharp rhythms and melodies that made them famous.

The funk-inspired group will have the audience doing the group's signature move, "The Humpty Dance," at 10 tonight at the Copper Dragon Brewing Co., 700 E. Grand Ave.

Since the early '90s, Digital Underground created a strong presence within the hip-hop world with its fresh theatrical sound and performance and incorporating multiple characters (Shock-G, M.C Blowfish and Humpty Hump) with popular collaborators such as the rap group the Luniz.

In an era where pop music was popular, Digital Underground found an audience that was mad for the P-Funk-inspired rap.

In 1990, they released "Sex Packets." The album contained hit singles such as "The Humpty Dance" and "Freaks of the Industry."

The LP quickly climbed the charts, and during the next year the group gained popularity with all audiences and continued to tour around the country.

"This is An EP Release" was the second album from the group, which collaborated with new artists who soon gained attention from the entire industry.

"The Same Song" another popular song from the group featured the debut performance of the late Tupac Shakur.

In 1992, "Sons of the P" was released into the music world with a mass amount of funkledic samples and also featuring Parliament member George Clinton.

The album also addressed more serious topics such as the comical song "No Nöze Job" that addressed plastic surgery and the retreat from ethnicity.

Their latest album "Where's the Gravy?" promises to bring the their innovated sound with a new twist that made them so popular to their fans.

With their distinct signature sound and up-beat lyrics, Digital Underground remains in the hearts of faithful fans everywhere.

So come out to the Copper Dragon and experience hip-hop with a funkafied twist.

INFO

• Digital Underground will be performing at the Copper Dragon Brewing Co., 700 E. Grand Ave., tonight. Tickets are $8 in advance. For more information call 549-2319.

Rip Lee Pryor displays true love of '50 blues

MATT SMENOS
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

From University housing to House of Blues. That is the dream of Rip Lee.

A carpenter/maintenance worker for SIUC by day, Richard Lee Pryor hopes to one day take his music to the big time. As leader of the Rip Lee Blues Band, Pryor works in the Carbondale area at such venues as My Brother's Place, 1013 E. Main St., and Finch Penny Pub, 700 E. Grand Ave.

The band has undergone many changes in the decade since its formation, such as different band members and locations. One thing has remained the same, however. Pryor said the '50s-style blues has remained consistent throughout.

"The '50s-style blues differs from other blues music in its sound.

"Delta blues, for instance, has more of a single guitar sound, whereas blues in the fifties still had a big-band sound, with a lot of different instruments," Pryor said.

Despite Pryor's hopes for expansion, his beginnings were simple. Born in Chicago, Pryor said his first musical experiences were playing guitar with his father when he was a boy.

One big inspiration throughout his life was Chuck Berry. Pryor said. Recently the band got to open for Chuck Berry in St. Louis at the Blueberry Hill nightclub, and Pryor got a chance to meet one of his heroes.

"It was a great experience meeting Chuck Berry — it really made my night, and I got his autograph," Pryor said.

Having made such a famous acquaintance, Pryor says he enjoys meeting new people every day.

"I like meeting the new students every year around campus. I get along with them, and some of them know me," Pryor said.

Pryor has been working for SIUC maintenance for 20 years. In this time he has been making an effort to "feel out" the music business and make plans for after he retires from SIUC.

His first CD, "Pitch a Boogie Woogie," is already available at his concerts. Pryor hopes to release a second album, possibly to be titled "Second Chance," in the near future.

Pryor described his music as satisfying and he likes to make the crowds happy. His major efforts as of now are trying to finish strong at SIUC so that he can go into the music business full time.

"After I retire I plan to continue playing as long as I can," Pryor said.

Michigan State's fraternities to ban alcohol

PEGGY WALSH-SARNECKI
KNIGHT-RIDDER NEWSPAPERS

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Michigan State University fraternities are voluntarily banning alcohol at house parties after July 1.

MSU is the only university in Michigan where all the fraternities on campus plan to ban alcohol, university officials said Tuesday. The idea is to put the focus back on scholarship and brotherhood instead of parties and drinking.

It's the beginning of a national trend," said Billy Molasso, director of greek life. "Only a handful of universities have taken this step."

MSU's ban was recommended by the Alcohol Action Team, a coalition of university, student and community members working on ways to discourage binge drinking.

MSU convened the coalition after a May 1998 student riot following the university's decision to ban alcohol at Munn Field, the students' favorite place for football game tailgate parties.

University officials stressed the ban was voluntary.

"It wasn't the president telling the Greeks what to do," said Kristen Teeten, university spokeswoman. "It was an action team recommendation that the Greeks took on." Beginning in July, MSU's fraternities and their 1,500 members will hold all parties with alcohol at restaurants or other public sites, said Jason Rosenbaum, Interfraternity Council president.

This means professional bartenders and bouncers will take charge of how much students drink and try to prevent underage drinking. Fraternity members typically tend bar themselves when parties are held in their chapter houses. Professionals are much more likely to maintain stricter control, Molasso said.

Professionals are no guarantee, however. MSU student Bradley McCue died last November after drinking 24 shots to celebrate his 21st birthday. McCue was celebrating at Rick's American Cafe, an East Lansing bar. Rick's was closed for 30 days as a result of McCue's death, a spokesperson for the Michigan Liquor Control Commission said.

Members who are 21 and older will still be able to drink in their rooms, but alcohol will be banned from all common areas for all members, including those of legal drinking age. Sororities have been alcohol-free since the 1980s, Molasso said.

"It's going to promote safer living-learning environments more conducive to academics, and still allow members to go out and have a good time," Rosenbaum said.

There are questions about whether some fraternities will cheat on the ban or whether it can be enforced.

A 1997 Harvard School of Public Health study on campus drinking found that almost half of college men and about one-third of college women binge drink. Those numbers double for fraternity and sorority members.

Binge drinking is defined as five drinks at one sitting for men and four for women.

Nondrinkers suffer from binge drinking through car accidents, assaults and sexual abuse. About 75 percent to 90 percent of campus violence is linked to drinking, the Harvard study found.

"There are a number of things you can do to promote responsible behavior when it comes to the use of drugs and alcohol," said Gregory Peoples, dean of students at Eastern Michigan University, where alcohol at fraternity houses is regulated, but not banned.

"Banning alcohol is problematic, and I think that the education and alcohol awareness is probably a better way to go," he said.

Oakland University has one fraternity house; Wayne State University has two. The OU fraternity can serve beer; liquor is allowed at WSU's. Those caught cheating on the ban at MSU will face penalties, Rosenbaum said, including community service, fines or suspension.

"Everyone won't go along with it, I will be the first to admit," Rosenbaum said.

"With any major change, there's going to be opposition, and you have to deal with each situation accordingly. It takes time to implement this."

Six out of 26 fraternities voted against the ban, but all agreed to support it after the vote, he said.

Alcohol-free greek housing is a small, but growing trend nationwide, said Nancy Schulte of George Mason University in Fairfax, Va. Last year, Schulte led a national symposium on campus alcohol practices for the Inter-Association Task Force on Alcohol and other Substance Abuse Issues, a group of 22 higher education associations.

"It's not surprising to me that we would see more groups starting to make their own determinations that they don't want to be part of that group that's leading to fatalities, they want to go back to their roots of brotherhood," Schulte said.

"And what's so nice about it is it's not being mandated," Schulte said. "It's coming from within their groups, so it's going to stick.

That's where the campus culture is changing."

The change will make partying more expensive for fraternities.

"Obviously it's more expensive to go out and rent a banquet hall," Rosenbaum said. But he didn't expect this to mean members would be paying higher dues. Instead, he said, the fraternities may end up throwing fewer parties.

A side benefit will be increased revenues for East Lansing banquet facilities, Rosenbaum said. He estimated MSU's fraternities and sororities hold up to 400 parties each semester.

MSU's notoriety as the campus that threw the biggest and wildest post-basketball riot has overshadowed the fraternities' alcohol ban, university officials said.

Students rioted March 27, after the Spartans lost to Duke in the basketball Final Four. The riot frustrated many of those working to curtail student drinking.

Molasso said the riot only made the fraternities more convinced they need to be leaders in promoting responsible drinking.

"If anything, it's going to hasten some of the changes we're making," Molasso said. "We have the benefit of being a very visible part of the campus. When we do something and do it right, other people will take our lead."

Judge dismisses lesbian lawsuit

COLLEGE PRESS EXCHANGE

NEW YORK — A New York state judge has ruled that Yeshiva University's medical school can bar two lesbian students and their domestic partners from living in campus-owned housing for married students.

Justice Franklin Weissberg dismissed the suit filed by Sara Levin and Maggie Jones against the university, saying that the university's policies do not have a negative impact on homosexual students' abilities to get housing on campus.

"Although a gay or lesbian student may be unable to reside with his or her non-student partner in university apartments, (the medical school's) policy does not prevent the student herself from living there," he wrote in his ruling.

Levin and Jones had claimed the medical school's housing policy discriminates against unmarried and gay students because it requires prospective students to prove they are legally married. Same-sex marriages are not recognized in New York.

"The plaintiffs' real complaint lies not with the defendants but, rather, with the refusal of the New York State Legislature to sanction same-sex marriages," Weissberg's ruling states.

Levin and Jones initially moved into campus housing but eventually left to be with their partners. Both said they must pay significantly more than the $600 required of couples living in college apartments, and that they also face much longer commutes to school.

An attorney representing the women said they would appeal Weissberg's ruling.

Conviction upheld in Manson T-shirt case

COLLEGE PRESS EXCHANGE

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — A circuit court judge has denied an appeal by a Murray State University student who was convicted of harassment for wearing a Marilyn Manson T-shirt at a local festival.

Marshall Circuit Judge Dennis Foust upheld Venus "Star" Morgan's 1998 District Court conviction and $250 fine for wearing the shirt to "Tater Days," a festival in western Kentucky. Foust said he failed to see how what Morgan did was a matter of free speech.

Morgan wore the shirt, bearing an image of the singer — who is known for performing lewd acts on stage and singing about murder, rape and self-mutilation — and a six-word phrase from his song, "White Trash." The phrase contains an obscenity and the word "God."

Three people complained to police about the shirt. When Morgan refused to change her clothes, she was cited for harassment.

"Were Morgan singing the song on the street corner at Tater Day, this might create another issue," Foust wrote in his order upholding the conviction.

"However, by wearing a T-shirt displaying one particular phrase from a song, she is essentially repeating this same lyric over and over. This, in the court's opinion, is what creates a separately identifiable conduct which separates it from constitutionally protected free speech."

Morgan told the Associated Press that she views the conviction as a violation of her rights to free speech.

"I think it was clearly speech," she said. "It meant something to me. I think it means being your own kid, being who you want to be, unlike this community, who is trying to force God down your throat."

Morgan's attorney, David Harshaw of the American Civil Liberties Union of Kentucky, he would appeal Foust's April 1 ruling to the state's Court of Appeals. Meanwhile, Morgan said she's planning to attend this year's Tater Days festival. And while she hasn't decided what T-shirt she'll wear, she said she would make sure it "made a statement."

BLATANT RACIAL DISCRIMINATION AT CITY HALL?
The Facts Speak for Themselves

Fact

- Neil Dillard said at a recent city council meeting that the city doesn't have a problem with its hiring and promotion practices. John Budsllick says we do.
- According to the City Manager's sworn testimony the Carbondale Police Department has not met it's affirmative action goals one time the entire 12 years Dillard has been in office.
- The requirements for promotion in the Carbondale Police Department were changed to deny Patrolman Gerald Edwards his promotion.
- The City of Carbondale paid Gerald Edwards $150,000 and gave him a promotion to settle his discrimination suit.

Senior golfer struggles on 17th and 18th holes

SHANDEL RICHARDSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC senior golfer Kory Neisen had the dial set on cruise control before hitting reverse on the final two holes.

Neisen led the individual field at the Arkansas State University Indian Classic Tuesday in Jonesboro, Ark., through 16 holes on the final day of competition.

Then his gears changed. He bogeyed the 17th and 18th holes, keeping him from winning the medalist title.

Neisen, who shot a three-round total of 224, wound up with a fourth-place finish. Bart Burton of Arkansas State won the tournament with a score of 219.

"(Neisen) had it right where he wanted to," SIUC golf coach Leroy Newton said. "He hit a ball over the green and the yardage was wrong on it, and as a result he got a bogey. And then he just missed a chip shot on last hole which would have tied him for second."

As a team, the Salukis ended up in 11th place out of 16 teams. They finished the three-day event, shooting a 941. Arkansas State (905), the University of South Florida (913) and Oral Roberts University (919) made up the top three.

Other Saluki finishers included junior Justin Long (22nd), senior Brad Kerr (54th), senior Ryan Browning (57th) and senior Phillip Moss (79th).

The tournament, SIUC's fourth of the season, marked the fourth time they have played on the road. The Salukis don't compete at Crab Orchard Golf Course in Carbondale all season.

"It's a disadvantage," Newton said. "We play on an unfamiliar course every tournament, and that's why Kory probably lost."

But Newton needs to turn his attention away from Neisen's flaw at the end and concentrate more on the rapidly approaching Missouri Valley Conference Championships April 24-27 in Wichita, Kan.

Four MVC teams finished ahead of the Salukis in Jonesboro (Wichita State University, Southwest Missouri State University, Illinois State University and Drake University), but Newton said his team is progressing as the season grows.

"We're right where we want to be," Newton said. "We're getting better and starting to play well enough and school are starting to have to respect us."

CROSS COUNTRY

Salukis receive honor

The SIUC men's cross country team was named a member of the 1998 All-Academic Cross Country Team Tuesday by the United States Cross Country Coaches Association.

The Salukis ranked tied for third in the nation with a team grade point average of 3.38 during the fall semester. Tied with SIUC was Missouri Valley Conference member Creighton University.

The Salukis were just .03 behind the University of Arkansas, who finished in first place.

Placing in the top ten, SIUC earned a "with distinction" tag to the All-Academic honor, given to all teams with a 3.0 average. This year a total of 40 schools brought home the award.

This honor marks the third time in four years that SIUC has received USCCCA All-Academic recognition.

The team is coached by Bill Cornell.

nobody out the Salukis couldn't find a way to cross home plate.

But in the eighth inning trailing 3-1, the Salukis would get home runs by Houston and freshman third baseman Jeff Stanek tying the game at three, quickly erasing all the offensive woes of late for SIUC.

Those runs only marked the start of what became a very intriguing ballgame.

In the 11th inning, freshman Jake Alley (2-1) gave up two runs with two outs, giving the Indians a 5-3 lead heading into the bottom half of the inning.

The Salukis would quickly replace the pair of runs scored by SEMO with a two-out bloop hit to center field by junior Scott Boyd with two outs. Both Kyle Kohlberg (3-for-4) and senior Joe Schley (3-for-6) scored on the play.

"It seemed like we haven't been in the games, and this past weekend was one of the worst performances I've had in a long time," Boyd said. "But finally we strung something together somehow. The baseball gods must have been looking down on us or whatever."

Riding a three-game losing streak into the game, the Salukis wanted to make sure the drought would end before heading into Creighton University this weekend.

"We needed a win and probably the way we came back on several occasions, if we would have ended up somehow losing this game, it would have been a tough loss," SIUC coach Dan Callahan said.

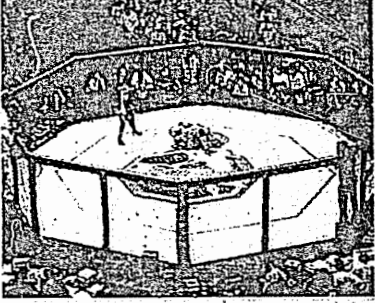

Senior Brad Heuring, who was cleared to pitch after recovering from flu-like symptoms, went 5 2/3 innings, giving up three runs (none earned) on three strikeouts and three walks.

Freshman Pat Hon pitched in relief of Heuring during the sixth inning and did not allow any runs to score in 2 1/3 innings. But on defense, SIUC committed four errors on the afternoon, giving the team 57 on the season.

The biggest step, however, for the Salukis was their ability to comeback offensively despite Callahan's cautious demeanor.

"The thing that is more surprising than anything is when you see that we have 16 hits but we only score six runs," Callahan said. "It seems a little bit surprising. I really don't know if we swung the bat that well, but we swung the bat well in clutch situations."

A milestone win for Auld

Women's tennis team gives its coach her 350th career victory

PAUL WLEKINSKI
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC women's tennis coach Judy Auld's goal is clear — 500 career coaching victories before she retires.

The Salukis gave the 25th-year coach her 350th career coaching win Tuesday in impressive fashion, defeating Missouri Valley Conference rival the University of Evansville 8-0 in Evansville, Ind.

UPCOMING

• The SIUC women's tennis team welcomes MVC opponents to town this weekend, facing Wichita State University at 10 a.m. Saturday and Southwest Missouri State University at 10 a.m. Sunday.

"Well, you know what's interesting, back years and years ago we used to play a lot more matches," Auld said about the mark. "It's interesting. It's something you don't think about until someone points it out to you."

The NCAA now restricts teams to just 25 matches a year, so the pace of obtaining 500 wins has been slowed to a seemingly walking pace. But Auld has her eye on 400 for now, and if she can consistently produce teams as strong as this year's squad, Auld may never want to leave.

"I didn't really know where I was until Bryan (McGowan, assistant sports information director) said something to me about it," Auld said. "It would really be nice, especially with the group that's starting now, to at least get up to 400 or more. I think it's very feasible, too."

The Salukis, with five of their six starters being freshman, had little trouble disposing of the Lady Purple Aces Tuesday. Freshmen Simona Petutiu (6-1, 6-3), Pamela Floro (6-2, 6-2), Erika Ochoa (6-1, 6-3), Taryn Esrock (6-1, 6-3) and Monica Villarreal (6-0, 6-1) all cruised to easy victories.

The lone sophomore on the scorecard, Keri Crandall, battled through three sets before defeating the Aces' Rhonda Place, 7-5, 6-7, 6-2.

In doubles play, Petutiu and Floro teamed up in the No. 1 spot to defeat Angela Sabella and Brandee Fox 8-2, while Ochoa and Esrock did the same with a 9-7 score. Both teams decided not to play No. 3 doubles because Crandall's singles match lasted too long.

"If I can keep on having teams like this and, just with the type of people they are, yes, it makes it much, much more enjoyable," Auld said.

"My goal hopefully for this team is to get us ranked nationally. I don't know if it is there for us this year. We definitely have to win the conference championship to even be considered, but I think it's there for us."

It takes one match at a time to reach 400 career wins, 500 career wins, conference championships, national rankings, and Auld and the Salukis know this.

The next step will be at 10 a.m. Saturday when Wichita State University comes to Carbondale, followed by the arrival of Southwest Missouri State University at 10 a.m. Sunday.

"Outside of Bradley, any team in our conference can beat each other on any given day," Auld said. "Since we are playing at home, it's nice to have support from the University. I also want to keep them from losing their focus with playing at home."

runs (three unearned) on three costly Saluki errors.

The four runs given up by Stremsterfer broke a 30.2-inning scoreless streak.

"Erin wasn't quite as sharp — she didn't throw quite as hard, but you can't expect her to throw a shutout everyday," Brechtelsbauer said.

Stremsterfer also ran into trouble in the sixth inning with a 7-4 lead. After loading the bases with no one out, Brechtelsbauer brought in junior Carisa Winters.

Winters shut down the Otahkians, forcing an infield pop-up and striking out the last two batters of the inning. She pitched two innings in relief to pick up her fifth save on the year, while Stremsterfer improved her record to 12-5 on the year.

Beard and Campbell provided the offense spark for the Salukis in game one. Campbell went 1-for-2 with two RBIs to complement Beard's three-RBI game.

The solid hitting toward the Salukis' bottom of the lineup, Beard and Campbell, the No. 7 and 8 hitters for the Salukis, showed the depth in the Saluki roster this year.

"Everybody's contributing, and I think what you're going to find when the season is over with, you may not find a lot of individual honors — I think you're going to find team honors," Brechtelsbauer said.

First baseman delivers the game-winning hit in the extra inning

MIKE BJORKLUND
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.

These simple words might have been echoing through the mind of SIUC first baseman Jeff Houston as he made the most of his two situations to win the ball game for the Saluki baseball team.

Houston (3-for-5, 2 RBI), who after getting thrown out at home plate in the 10th inning, was able to get a second chance at the same plate and make the most out of it, hitting the game-winning shot to left field in the 11th. "I thought I was safe at home anyway," Houston said. "It was a close play it could have went either way, but I'm glad to come back and get the win."

The run provided the Salukis a thrilling 6-5 comeback victory over Southeast Missouri State University (12-17) Wednesday afternoon at Abe Martin Field.

At 21-7, SIUC never looked to be in the game offensively, only scoring one run in seven innings. Even with the bases loaded in the seventh inning with Shortstop Joe Meeks (7) lunges for a pick-off throw from catcher Kyle Kohlberg during the Salukis' win over Southeast Missouri State. Meeks missed the throw and the runner was safe.

Home sweep home

Sofiball team takes two from Southeast Missouri State

COREY CUSICK
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC junior softball pitcher Tracy Remspecher teased Southeast Missouri State University and then burst SEMO's bubble of hope.

Remspecher loaded the bases with Olahkians in the top of the second inning in game two of a doubleheader Wednesday at IAW Fields.

After loading the bases, Remspecher even toyed with the next hitter, spotting her a 3-0 count, only to deplete SEMO's hopes by forcing three straight infield pop-ups. Two went to junior shortstop Jamie Campbell and one to junior second baseman Lori Greiner to end the inning.

OK, maybe Remspecher didn't spot the Olahkians anything, but she may have saved the Salukis from a great deal of trouble in a 0-0 tie.

After battling through that rough second inning, Remspecher and the Salukis cruised to a short game win over the Olahkians 9-1 in five innings. The Salukis (25-13) also won the first game 7-4 to sweep the doubleheader and win their season-high sixth straight game.

"What a job. I was really pleased to see (Remspecher) come back and do that," said Saluki head coach Kay Brechtelsbauer. "She needs some innings, and we didn't want to take her out at that point."

Remspecher (4-0) pitched five innings, allowing five hits, one run and striking out two.

In the Salukis' bottom half of the third, sophomore Erin Stremsterfer provided the offense with a jump start by cranking a three-run homer, her fourth on the year.

Stremsterfer went 2-for-3 with five RBIs for the game. Her only out came when Olahkian senior center fielder Anne Trieb robbed Stremsterfer of another home run.

"Erin, again, had a great offensive day," Brechtelsbauer said. "She nailed one, and she had (a home run) taken away from her earlier in the day."

In game one of the doubleheader, the Salukis jumped out of the gate with five runs in the first inning, three of which were knocked in by senior third baseman Nikki Beard.

Five runs is normally plenty of support for Stremsterfer, who pitched game one, but she ran into trouble in the fifth inning. She gave up four
