Brammell Appointed to New Assistant Deanship

P.R. Brammell, professor of educational administration and supervision, has been appointed to a newly created assistant deanship in the College of Education.

The new post will give special attention to graduate programs and research in the College of Education.

Brammell joins Troy W. Edwards as an assistant dean in the office of Dean Elmer J. Clark.

Brammell said his immediate attention will be directed toward working with the College of Education faculty in matters involving the pattern of organization of the college in line with the revised statutes of the University, and promoting the development of graduate programs in the Education College.

A native of Kansas, Brammell joined the faculty of the Department of Educational Administration and Supervision at Southern five years ago. He came here from the University of Connecticut, where he had been on the faculty since 1932. For the last 20 years at Connecticut, he was dean of the School of Education. He also had charge of the summer session and for three years was acting dean of the Graduate School.

Other posts held by Brammell were at the University of Colorado, University of Washington, Mount Holyoke College in Massachusetts and in the U. S. Office of Education at Washington.

Brammell, who has his doctoral degree from the University of Washington, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

He has written a book, "Your Schools and Mine," published in 1952, and numerous professional articles. He has been active for years in the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

★ Students Ask Better Seating At McAndrew

A bill concerning seating at McAndrew stadium was sent to committee for further study at Thursday night's meeting of the Carbondale Campus Student Council.

The bill provides authorization for representatives of the student council to meet with Donald N. Boydston, athletic director, to arrange for possible seating of students in the grandstand area on the west side of the stadium during the football season.

Up to now student seating has been in the east bleachers at a reduced rate. The goal is to provide seats for students who wish them in the grandstand at a reduced rate. The seats ordinarily sell for $2.50.

A second bill was sent to committee concerning the seating priority in the Arena for basketball contests. The aim of the council is to have priority given to those who hold season tickets for fall and winter quarter, first; those with winter quarter season tickets, second and those without season tickets, last.

Prof at Virginia U. Will Talk Here On Shakespeare

Fredson Bowers, chairman of the Department of English at the University of Virginia, will speak on "Shakespeare's Tragic Reconciliations" at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Davis Auditorium of the Wham Education Building.

Bowers is the author of "Principles of Bibliographical Description," "Dramatic Works of Thomas Dekker," "On Editing Shakespeare and Elizabethan Dramatists," and "Whitman's Manuscripts for the 1860 'Leaves of Grass.'" The lecture, sponsored by the Department of English, is open to the public.

Pedestrian Bridge Project Postponed

The construction of a 570-foot-long pedestrian overpass spanning U.S. 51 and the Illinois Central Railroad tracks has been postponed for the time being.

Construction was originally planned to begin this summer for completion in the fall. Bids have not been called

2 Officials From Thailand Studying Area; SIU Faculty Invited to Meet Them at Coffee

A coffee will be held at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the University Center for two visitors to SIU from Thailand.

The visitors, Potchana Chamnarn and Puchinarong Smit, are traveling in the United States as participants in the foreign specialists program sponsored by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the Department of State.

They arrived at SIU Sunday and will spend a week touring the SIU area and talking with area experts on redevelopment and regional planning.

Chamnarn is special deputy governor for accelerated rural development in Nakorn Phanom Province and also serves as mayor of Nakorn Phanom, a city of 15,000.

Smit is chief district officer, Thungchang, Nan Province. The governor of Nan Province recently assigned him to a Ministry of Interior mobile information team which operated throughout most of the province.

Both men's work involves responsibilities in local, municipal and other levels of government, including in-service training of employees. Community development, education, public health, rural roads, housing, recreation and police administration are also part of their jobs.

Much of their work involves rural areas, so they are interested in knowing about farm extension activities and in seeing agricultural production.

The coffee is being held so the visitors may meet more of the SIU faculty and to give the faculty an opportunity to meet them.

It will be held in Ballroom C.

Motorists Asked To Avoid Area

Work began Monday on the blacktopping of two portions of Campus Drive.

The two spots are an area south and east of the turn into the Thompson Point Residence Halls drive, and an area north of the turn onto campus drive leading to Small Group Housing.

A spokesman for the Physical Plant asked motorists to detour around the areas being repaired if possible. Campus Drive will still be open to one-way traffic, but if the traffic pattern is heavy, the road will be congested.

Temporary ramps have been installed for disabled students, so that they may cross Campus Drive. These ramps are as close to the permanent ramps as possible, considering the repair work.

Work on Campus Drive will continue all of this week and for two or three days of next week.

In other work on campus roads, the deadend street that runs between the Women's Gym and Old Main is being broken up and removed.

Removal of the street is part of a project planned by University Architects. The street will be filled in and landscaped.

The road originally was one of the main entrances to the old campus when it consisted of four buildings. It became dead-end when U. S. 51 was moved east of the campus to its present location.

The road has not been used for a number of years except as a service entrance to the old gymnasium and the rear of Wheeler Hall, where the AFROTC supply room is located.

Shute Is Going to South Dakota

Milton Shute, assistant professor of agricultural engineering, has accepted a position at South Dakota State University, Brookings, beginning in September. His resignation, effective Sept. 1, was accepted by the SIU Board of Trustees.

He will be an associate professor of agricultural engineering in charge of South Dakota State's farm structures program. A native of Wollaston, Mass., he is a graduate of the University of Georgia. He obtained his master's degree from Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., and his doctorate from the University of Missouri last year.

He came to the SIU faculty in 1955 from Georgia. Shute is a specialist in farm structures.

NEW BOARD MEMBER — Guy Hitt (center) attended his first meeting of the SIU Board of Trustees last week. Hitt, president and chairman of the Bank of Zeigler and chairman of the board of the Bank of Benton, succeeds Cen-

How to Succeed in Dating With 48 Cents, Or Free Fun and Games Offered at SIU

By John Ochotnický

When Thomas Paine wrote "what we obtain too cheap, we esteem too lightly," he obviously wasn't writing to a group of campus Casanovas.

Case in point: Joe Doakes has been eying a blond classmate in Taxidermy 499 for the better part of the quarter. He plots his course, makes his move and succeeds in getting a date with her.

The problem? He hasn't the cash to make a big splash. Well, Joe, where do you go with only 48 cents and a RAM button?

Lucky for Joe and others in his situation, the men behind the scenes at Southern have made it available for him to have a date that will cost nothing.

Once Joe picks up his date, there are a variety of things to do and places to go that will not so much as dent his wallet, unless he wants to treat her to a pack of gum.

On Friday and Saturday nights, dances are held in the Roman Room of the University Center. For the more intellectual lovers there are various lectures on campus, some spiced with showings of slides or films.

During the warm weather the beach at the Lake-on-the-Campus offers an opportunity for the more athletically inclined, not to mention hiking along the various trails that weave in and out around the campus.

All the activities, save the stage show and the game itself, during the Homecoming are gratis. If Joe has only one date a year, he should make it then.

The seasonal holidays see a profusion of things to do, such as dances, song-fests and the like. Add to this the events of Parents' Day, the Freshman Talent Show, Harmony Week and Tournament Week and the list grows as leaps and bounds.

Even when good ol' Mom comes to visit Joey he can show her a good time during Mom's Day on campus.

The list of things to do goes on ad nauseum; Spring Festival, International Night, Southern Follies, Saluquarama, Sunday Seminars, etc., etc., etc.

Actually, there is much to do for free or almost free, but Joe and his contemporaries have to take the initiative. Perhaps the male should carry two "little black books." One would be per usual, the other would contain a listing of the week's events that are free.

Joe has dropped off his date now. He happily jingles his 43 cents (he got her the gum after all) and the RAM button as he walks back to his residence. Well done, Mr. Rockefeller!

Student Fined $25 On Liquor Charge

Herman Vallo, 19, a sophomore from Chicago, was fined $25 and $5 in court costs in Jackson County Circuit Court Monday on charges that he illegally attempted to buy alcoholic beverages.

A spokesman for the Office of Student General Affairs said Vallo presented an altered Selective Service card at a Carbondale liquor store when asked to prove his age. The clerk turned him over to authorities.

The Selective Service card will be sent to Vallo's draft board, the spokesman said. Other University action is pending.

Famous Case Recalled In Production at SIU

Take a chorus of town-people singing:

Gimme that old-time religion,
It was good enough for father,
It was good enough for mother,
It's good enough for me!

Add the carnival spirit of a small Southern town celebrating the Fourth of July in 1925.

Spice with three dashes of the ghosts of Clarence Darrow, William Jennings Bryan and H. L. Mucken.

For a catalyst, throw in Darwin's "Origin of Species." This was the explosive formula which created an issue known around the world as the "Scopes monkey trial."

It took place 40 years ago this summer in the small town of Dayton, Tenn.

Traces of the issue are still alive today as demonstrated by the popularity of the dramatization of the trial by playwrights Jerome Lawrence and Robert Edwin Lee. Their play is called "Inherit the Wind," a title derived

Moslem Meeting Scheduled for SIU

The Moslem Students Association on the SIU campus will be host for the annual convention of their national organization from both the United States and Canada.

The convention will be held Sept. 2 through 5 in the University Center and the Seminar Room of the Agriculture Building.

The more than 150 delegates to the convention will live in an off-campus dormitory.

The program for the convention is now being planned.

Moslem students who will be remaining in Carbondale between summer and fall terms are invited to attend.

The Southern Players stress the modern-day appropriateness of the issues in their production of "Inherit the Wind," which will be presented in the air-conditioned Southern Playhouse at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

Director Christian H. Moe, associate professor of theater, said, "We hope to show that what happened 40 years ago could have happened yesterday, or today or tomorrow."

The trial of the State of Tennessee vs. John Thomas Scopes was called to decide the legality of teaching high school students the theory of evolution based on Darwin's "Origin of Species." Many more issues were involved, however, and it was these which attracted the authors to the story and the Southern Players to the production. They treat it less as history and more as illustrations of academic freedom, political opportunism and ugly bigotry.

Tickets for "Inherit the Wind" may be purchased for $1.25 at the Playhouse box office, open from 10-11 a.m. and 3-4 p.m. daily. It is also open at 7 o'clock on performance nights.

University Must Be 'Beacon'

By Robert M. Hutchins

In our task of reforming the American university, we have first to keep the professors on campus. A simple, workable way of doing this is to double their salaries and require them to turn their outside earnings over to the university.

The next thing we have to do is to get them concerned about the welfare of the university. A simple, workable way of doing this is to require them to look to the university for their support and to make them responsible for it by refusing to allow them to pass the buck to the administration, board of regents or trustees. The administration should be elected by them for short terms and the regents or trustees should not be permitted to intervene in educational matters.

These changes would initiate the transformation of the university into a thinking community. But they would not be enough. No community of any kind is possible in an institution that is at once a degree factory, a center of research and a home-away-from-home for adolescents. A community can exist only if the members of it are united in a common purpose. It can exist only if it is small enough to permit communication among the members and then only if they speak a language that is intelligible to all.

Also, at this point, we must remember that students should be members of the academic community. They must be qualified to participate in its intellectual life.

Their purpose has to be the same as that of the community or they will thwart and disrupt its work.

A simple, workable definition of the university is that it is a center of independent thought. That means that everybody in it should be interested in, qualified for and engaged in independent thought. Insistence on this would reduce the number of professors in any American university by 50% and the number of students by at least as much.

This requirement would wipe out all the professors who are repeating old lectures, digging up miscellaneous facts, conducting random experiments or just "hanging around."

It would also get rid of all the courses that are designed simply to transmit information or teach material that should have been learned in high school, as well as material that merely familiarizes the student with vocational routines or tells him the answers to questions he should work out for himself.

It would exclude students who come to the university because they do not know what else to do, who are after a degree in order to get a job or who merely want to have fun.

The community would then cease to be a "diploma mill" or a home-away-from-home for adolescents. And its role as a center of research would change. Most academic research today is the mere accumulation of data. The research worker is counting things, without much regard to the utility of the operation. Such work is without intellectual content and should be conducted outside the university.

A university should be a center of research in the sense that everybody in it is searching for the truth. The community should share in a common quest. Such a university would be a beacon—not a mirror.

'Cronyism' Blast Lacks Validity

For the most part President Johnson's nomination of Washington lawyer Abe Fortas to succeed United Nations Ambassador Goldberg on the Supreme court has met with reaction ranging from general approval to high praise. Few if any have questioned Fortas' legal ability which, a committee of the American Bar association recognizes as of the highest order.

There are those however who tag the appointment as "cronyism." They base this on the fact that the President and his nominee are long time friends and that Fortas has done Johnson legal work and advised on certain public issues. Rep. Durward S. Hall [R., Mo.] has called for a Senate investigation of the appointee's qualifications and corporate connections. He points to what he says are "ominous implications concerning improper use of influence in high councils of government."

The easiest complaint to make when a Supreme court nominee is opposed because of his views or on partisan grounds is to say that it is "cronyism." Why is it that those who make this charge seem to know so little about its history?

Three Republican Appointees

Let's consider three Republican appointees to the Supreme court—Lincoln's appointment of David Davis of Illinois in 1862, Hayes' appointment of Stanley Matthews of Ohio in 1881, and Coolidge's appointment of Harlan F. Stone of New York in 1925.

Davis was called Lincoln's "closest friend." They were intimates on the Illinois prairie circuit. Davis led the forces that brought about Lincoln's nomination in 1860. He helped open and run the pre-convention Lincoln headquarters in Chicago. Jesse Fell said that to Davis "more than to any other man are the American people indebted for the nomination of Abraham Lincoln."

Hayes knew Matthews well at Kenyon college, as Cincinnati lawyer and as fellow regimental officer in the Civil war. Matthews campaigned for Hayes in 1876 and when the disputed returns went before the electoral commission, Matthews as special counsel argued the line that was accepted in the bitter controversy: That put Hayes over Tilden by one vote!

Real Charges Against Fortas

Coolidge and Stone both came from rural, upper New England. They were fellow Amherst students, and remained close friends. Coolidge appointed Stone attorney general and then elevated him to the Supreme court. Stone, Matthews, and Davis all had judicial talents and this is not to criticize them as Supreme court members. But it does put the "cronyism" charge against Fortas in historical perspective.

The real complaint against Abe Fortas is that he will keep intact the progressive, forward looking majority that was made up of Warren, Black, Douglas, Brennan and Goldberg. His critics do not like his views. They do not like the historic work he did as appointed counsel for Clarence Earl Gideon in behalf of an accused person's right to be defended. They do not like his voluntary service for more than 100 government employes in so-called loyalty charges raised in the McCarthy hysteria. These services are all to Fortas' credit and constitute qualifications for the Supreme court seat.

Letters to the Editor

CRAM Jams RAM With Spirited Yawn

As founder and president of CRAM (a campus organization dedicated to student-faculty apathy), I have been quite pleased with this summer's apparent lack of interest in anything on the part of our gloriously apathetic student body. This lack of interest has been demonstrated by the few letters that have appeared on your page. SIU apathy, however, is now under vicious attack and I would like to set things right back in their usual rut before everything that CRAM has worked for is destroyed.

An extremely alarming letter was published in the Daily Egyptian on Aug. 3, in which Michael J. Povich dared to raise a cry for more student reaction. By calling for "a comment or two from the faculty or students," this Mr. Povich has slapped the face of every typical student on this campus. He has purposefully set out to undermine the basic feeling of the vast majority of SIU students and faculty—apathy.

During last spring's frightfully active RAM campaign, CRAM held steadfast to the ho-hum principles that have made SIU students so apathetic. In a letter to the Daily Egyptian at that time, I promised my fellow students and members that "CRAM will stand as a beacon of apathy on the SIU campus, opposing and crushing any student organization which attempts to do anything about any problem. As a result, for the first time students on this campus are organized into one great voice of apathy that will be heard across the land."

I mean to keep my promise. Remember: After a few brief weeks of turmoil, RAM succumbed to the wrath of CRAM's unyielding disinterest. Neither will I now permit any person to come along and tear down the wall of complacency. Therefore, I am demanding that Mr. Povich immediately retract his blatant remarks and apologize to our student body for upsetting its tranquil unawareness.

Our students, you see, needn't be afraid of becoming involved in any issue as long as CRAM is on the watch. And CRAM is indeed on the watch. So, fellow students, proudly lift your apathetic heads skyward and give a great big SIU yawn; your cool indifference is safe.

Tax on Motorbikes May Raise Mayor Out of Poverty

In regard to the proposed Carbondale motorbike tax, I must offer my complete support. Few townsfolk and fewer students realize that Carbondale's mayor, Mr. Miller, receives a salary of less than three thousand dollars per year. By President Johnson's standards this would put Mr. Miller in the poverty category. It is my sincere hope that with this tax and possibly a few others (say a tax on tennis shoes or something) we might raise this town's fine mayor out of the poverty category.

4 Bodies Recovered

Titan Missile Silo Fire May Have Killed 48

SEARCHY, Ark. (AP)—Air Force personnel began bringing bodies out of a Titan II missile silo Monday night after fire broke out in it earlier in the day, apparently trapping 48 civilian workers inside.

Four bodies were brought out of the silo about 7:20 p.m. (CST). Capt Douglas Wood, public information officer at the site, said another 44 civilians were unaccounted for an presumed inside the missile complex. Their fate was unknown.

Identities of the four dead men were not available.

Earlier, heat and smoke had thwarted attempts of Air Force firefighters to get down into the silo and determine the condition of the men inside the launch tube.

President Johnson ordered that every effort be made to save the missing men, the White House announced in Washington.

The Titan missile, designed to carry atomic warheads continental distances, was in position but the Air Force said it did not burn.

The Air Force stressed that there was no danger of a nuclear blast.

The silo, 15 miles northwest of this central Arkansas town, was undergoing slight revision and updating at the hands of 51 civilian workmen.

Billowing smoke and heat prevented the Air Force from establishing lines of communication even three hours after the fire started.

One of the workmen, Hubert A Saunders, 59, of Conway, a paint foreman, said his fellow workmen were trapped in the silo. He said the fire started when a diesel engine exploded.

The Air Force declined comment on cause of the fire. Saunders and Gary Wayne Lay, 18, of Clinton were hospitalized here. Saunders suffered smoke inhalation. Lay suffered smoke inhalation and first-degree burns of the head, neck, arms and legs.

Saunders said he thought a third man might have gotten out, but the Air Force and hospitals in the area could not confirm this.

Later in his hospital bed, Saunders said he was in the launch tube when fire and smoke billowed into the chamber.

"The lights went out," he said. "All I remember is hearing someone say, 'Help me, help me'. I couldn't see a thing. I got out."

"It was horrible," Lay said from his bed. "If it hadn't been for God I don't guess I'd ever have gotten out. Men were screaming and crying. I heard a man say 'Help me, God, help me'."

The Titan II carries a nuclear warhead that becomes armed sometime after launch.

Normally, the silo is manned by a crew of two officers and two airmen. But during updating work they sometimes leave the silo, or remain in their communications center, which is separated by three steel doors from the silo, where the 108-foot Titan II is kept ready for launch.

The Titan II has a range of 6,000 miles and reaches top speeds of 18,000 miles per hour, the Air Force said.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus said he dispatched eight state police units and ordered Civil Defense units to the site of the missile silo fire.

Viet Nam Guerrillas

Down American Jet

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Viet Cong guerrillas shot down a U.S. Air Force F100 fighter and sniped at a government road-clearing party Monday to maintain a 66-day-old siege of the special forces camp at Duc Co, 220 miles northeast of Saigon.

Singapore Independent After Malaysian Split

SINGAPORE (AP)—Premier Lee Kuan Yew charted a neutral course Monday for newly independent Singapore and said he hoped for diplomatic relations and trade with Indonesia and trade with Red China.

His statement brought an angry blast from Prime Minister Abdul Rahman in Kuala Lumpur, capital of the Federation of Malaysia.

Warning against diplomatic relations with Indonesia, which has sworn to crush Malaysia, Rahman told a news conference.

"If they do that, the obvious intention is to harm our interests. We can't allow that to happen. We would take action."

The federation's decision to oust Singapore was good news in Indonesia and brought pre-dictions from Chinese Communist papers in Hong Kong that the federation faced dissolution.

With the departure of Singapore, the federation consists of Malaya and the Borneo states of Sarawak and Sabah. In Jakarta, First Deputy Premier Subandrio said Indonesia will recognize Singapore if it "proclaims itself an independent state."

The sudden and dramatic move to cut Singapore loose from the federation was aimed at sealing off a bitter racial political feud between largely Chinese Singapore and federal leaders most of whom are Malays. But it was followed almost immediately by fresh storm signals.

Skirtless Dresses Next?

Leg Crossing Out of Vogue With New 'Thigh-High' Skirts

By Eddy Gilmore

LONDON (AP)—The sky-high hemline—just about the shortest skirt on record—made its first appearance in London ready-to-wear shops Monday.

The most logical reaction was—wow!

One little number was described as "thigh-high."

All of them were four to five inches above the knee.

Sales were said to be brisk. Gaspd the Evening News: "Lop another two inches off these hems and we'll be verging on the skirtless dress."

The sky-high hemline created an immediate and real problem for the wearers—how to sit down. Leg-crossing appeared to be out.

As the skirts shot up, Barbara Griggs, fashion writer for the Evening Standard said:

"The shorter skirt poses a tricky problem: How not to reveal a messy composite of stocking welt, faintly bulging thigh, garter belt and girdle if you happen to cross your legs too incautiously or allow your skirt to ride up too far."

With the thigh-high skirt, a lot is very obvious. One of the most obvious facts is that the skirthikers have outdistanced the British underwear-makers.

How's a girl going to bridge that gap.

Miss Griggs suggested the American panty girdle—which British girls have never embraced—might be the answer to the sky-high hemline.

But—

"Find your panty girdle," she said, "and you're up against another problem—how to find a nylon that's exactly the right length for the normally nonadjustable suspenders of the panty girdle."

Kerner Signs School Aid Bill Despite Appropriation Deficit

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—A bill increasing state aid to schools from $252 a pupil was signed Monday by Gov. Otto Kerner.

the $559 million total will last until January 1967 at the $330 equalization level.

Kerner also approved a $59 million appropriation which will fall short about $10.1 million in meeting full payments to grade and high schools over the next two years.

The deficit could be made up in a special legislative session or by the 1967 regular session, through a supplementary appropriation.

'Beware of Boys'

Those Letters From Home Maintain Pipeline Of Unsolicited Parental Advice to Students

By Mike Schwebel

"PLEASE! Don't lose the family heirlooms out of your naval pit!

So wrote one very deeply concerned mother to her daughter on campus.

Her pleas were sparked by her daughter's penchant for cunningly decorating her navel with one of the family jewels each time she dons a bikini.

Admittedly not all students get such unusual pleas in the letters they receive from home. But most of them do get advice—generally unsolicited and unwanted—in generous amounts in almost every letter from home.

"Beware of the boys" is still the leader in motherly advice, students contacting in an informal survey told the Daily Egyptian.

"Don't get married because there are plenty of boys back home on the farm," wrote one parent, who perhaps hadn't noticed that Southern is 18th in enrollment throughout the nation.

The sun gets involved in many heated letters, as evidenced by the threat, "Don't come back home with a sun tan. I'll know you haven't been studying," received by one probably not-so-palefaced coed.

"Don't go to beach parties. They're not nice," penned another.

One student was instructed, "Don't wear that new bathing suit you just bought." Topless maybe?

Appearance plays a large role in correspondence also. Knocking daughter's knees, a mother wrote "Don't wear your dresses so short. Your knees aren't that pretty." Add to this "You're too fat, so lay off the Spudnuts," and you find one very dejected girl.

"Trim the fringe off your cutoffs, and for God's sake, get some new tennis shoes," wrote one observing parent. "Trim your toenails," ordered one, getting to the bottom of things.

In the miscellaneous column, place the motherly advice "Don't walk in front of the cannon. You might show yourself."

"I miss you—cleaning up in the kitchen," was the way one parent felt about her daughter's absence.

"Are you sure school ends Aug. 28," asked another.

"Jack thinks it ends around Sept. 7. Better check on that." And then there is always the comforting letter just after you flunked your mid-term, "Remember, you can always come home to Momma."

With Hondas on the road and in the news, the advice of "Don't get run over by a Honda" is quite moving also.

Perhaps the most intriguing of all comes in the form of what might be called an authentic alphabet serial.

"Did you take Ted's tennis shoes back with you," questioned mother in installment one.

Installment two brought the plot to its height of suspense. "If you have Ted's shoes, send them. We think Curt took Dad's suitcoat back with him."

Now the questions are, did our secret agent have Ted's shoes in the first place, and if he did, did he send them back? Did Curt really take Dad's suitcoat back? Or if our secret agent didn't have Ted's shoes, where were they? And if Curt didn't take Dad's suitcoat back with him, where is it?

Installment three? It hasn't arrived yet!

R. BUCKMINSTER FULLER ON CAMPUS

Buckminster Fuller Patents New Model of Geodesic Dome

Move over, geodesic dome; the monohex dome may replace you.

R. Buckminster Fuller, inventor of the geodesic dome, was granted a patent this week for a modified version that he calls the monohex.

The patent was cited as the "Patent of the Week" by The New York Times in its Aug. 7 issue.

Fuller is a research professor in the Department of Design at SIU.

Nearly 4,000 geodesic domes, according to Fuller, have been built in 50 countries. The construction requires no internal pillars or supports.

The domes have been made of aluminum, steel, wood, concrete, plastics and even paper.

The inventor believes the monohex design will be popular in countries where cement is plentiful, but steel is in short supply.

The units composing the monohex were described by The New York Times as being made of prestressed concrete, in which the reinforcement bars are under tension.

One form of the monohex described in Patent 3,197,929 has numerous circular openings of uniform size. These holes, Fuller said, may be filled with windows "or manhole covers."

The monohex design was followed in the Cinerama Theater recently built in Hollywood. Fuller described the theater as a hemisphere 200 feet in diameter and 100 feet high, with excellent acoustics.

Last week the inventor, who was 70 in July, returned to the United States from Israel and visited Princeton and New York. He will not return to the SIU campus for several more weeks.

Bats Silenced, Salukis Lose 2 of 3 to St. Louis

Southern Cuts Loose in Finale With Winning 10-Run Burst

By Joe Cook

The Salukis weren't hitting in two out of three games Sunday.

As a result, they lost the first two games to St. Louis University, when they were throttled at bat by Billiken hurlers Bob Tolemeo and John Marcum. The scores were 2-1 and 5-0.

But SIU bats boomed in the third game and the Salukis won it, 10-7.

Sunday's first game, won by the Billikens 2-1 in eight innings, was as frustrating as the rainy weather which forced the postponement of Friday night's game and the doubleheader Saturday.

Ron Guthman threw a two-hit shut out for seven innings for the Salukis, but Southern couldn't score in regulation time. Poor base running cost the Salukis a couple of scoring chances in the fifth and seventh innings.

In the fifth, Frank Limbaugh led off with a single, went to second on a throwing error by Billiken catcher Tom Daly, and advanced to third on a wild pitch.

Later, with one out and Lee McRoy at bat, Southern tried a squeeze play, but Limbaugh was an easy out when McRoy missed the pitch. McRoy then followed with a broken-sacrifice by Jack Brown and moved to third when Billiken shortstop Jim Murphy fumbled Limbaugh's grounder for an error. Limbaugh promptly stole second, but the inning ended in two rundown plays.

With runners on second and third and one out, Nick Solis grounded to shortstop Murphy who fired to catcher Daly. Daly threw to third baseman Jerry Boehmer, who tagged Hacker in the rundown and then fired to second baseman Bill Ryan who tagged Limbaugh who was trying to get back to second.

Meanwhile Guthman was having no trouble with the Billiken batters. He struck out eight in seven innings. He was taken out for a pinch hitter in the eighth when the Salukis pushed across their only run.

McRoy led off with a single to right and moved to second when Stafford singled to left. Bill Hentze fled to left, but Mike Lyons, pinch hitting for Guthman, drew a walk to load the bases.

Pappone then hit a sacrifice fly to left, and McRoy scored. Hacker ended the threat by lining hard to center.

Steve McCollum came on in the bottom of the eighth, but couldn't preserve the one-run lead for Guthman.

After first baseman Bill Hahn tripled to right, McCollum hit right fielder Dan Flaherty with a pitch to put runners on at the corners. Murphy hit a line drive to Brown in left, and when he threw to second to try to double Flaherty, Hahn scored. Flaherty would have been out but Pappone dropped the throw for an error.

Pinch hitter John Marcum then singled to center. Flaherty advanced to third and scored when Solis bobbled the hit for the second Saluki error in the inning.

In the second game, Marcum threw a two-hitter at the Salukis in a route-going effort. Southern's only two hits and base runners came in the fifth when Solis singled down the line in left and McRoy followed with a single up the middle.

Bob Ash duelled Marcum for three innings, but then gave up three runs in the fourth and two more in the sixth.

Ash allowed St. Louis only six hits, but five of them went for extra bases.

In the final game the Salukis tagged two Billiken hurlers,

LEE McROY WAS THE LEADING SALUKI BATTER IN THE THREE GAMES.

Jack Hummel and Rich Hansman, for 10 hits and 10 runs.

The Salukis jumped on Hummel for three runs in the first and then knocked him out of the box with a seven-run attack in the fourth.

Limbaugh singled in the first Saluki run and McRoy followed with a double to drive in two more.

Four Billiken errors, two walks and five singles were responsible for the seven Saluki runs in the fourth.

Mike Lyle, who started the game, pitched shutout ball until the fourth when two doubles, a walk, and throwing error by catcher Hentze gave St. Louis its first two runs.

St. Louis added five more runs in the final inning and had the tying run on first when Guthman, the third pitcher Coach Rich (Itchy) Jones used in the seventh, got Carl Gentile to ground out to second for the last out.

Southern had another opportunity to score in the top of the seventh. Rich Hacker led off with a single to right, was advanced to second on a

Fun With a Purpose

Inches Melt Away for Faculty In Noon-Time Exercise Group

By Mike Schwebel

A dozen or so University faculty and staff members often miss lunch these days, and while the majority of their colleagues are intently putting on inches around the middle, they are just as intently taking them off.

A noon physical fitness hour, begun last fall by Edward J. Shea and Ronald G. Knowlton of the Department of Physical Education, is getting nothing but praise, and results, from the participants.

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, the summer group meets in the Arena for exercises geared to the ability and stamina of each individual.

Led by Knowlton, whose tall, sturdy frame illustrates immediately that he practices what he preaches, the period begins with a 15-minute workout of progressive exercises.

After that—you name it. The men have a wide choice of recreational activities to choose from, including basketball, volleyball, tennis and the very popular paddleball.

"The summer group actually wasn't planned," said Knowlton, "but the interest shown by the men was enough to warrant it."

Four Bandits Get $1,500 at Tavern

Four bandits wearing dark glasses, straw hats and white gloves robbed the Midland Inn, on old Route 13, west of Carbondale, of an estimated $1,500 early Monday morning. Jackson County authorities said an undetermined amount of cash was also taken from patrons.

The getaway car, which belongs to the owner of the tavern, was found abandoned in Carbondale.

Air Force, the program is for strength, flexibility, and endurance.

"The work is done in a relatively short time," explained Knowlton, "and is basically a fitness program geared to middle-aged people, who need it."

While attendance averages about 12 men this summer, there are around 20 regulars during the rest of the year. Knowlton has hopes for an increase of interest this fall, due to use of the research laboratory of the department.

"We have one of the best research laboratories in the country," he said.

Knowlton emphasized the importance of exercise to the middle-aged group.

"It is in the middle-aged years where men become conscious of their weight and lack of stamina. The 5-BX program is progressive and well-controlled, and maintenance levels are not the same for all ages. People are different, and this is recognized in the sessions."

He also cited the great interest in the importance of exercise in preventing heart attacks and other health hazards. During the workouts he watches the men closely to see if they are putting too much strain into the exercises.

"I have never had to stop anyone from doing too much," he related. "The men are motivated for a purpose, and everyone in the group understands that they are different.

We want them to learn about themselves and their capabilities. We would welcome the most unfit man on campus to join us."

Participants now range in age from 28 to 51, but there is no minimum or maximum age limit. It is preferred that participants bring a medical clearance before beginning the workouts.

Knowlton cited the 45-to-50-year-age range, as the most critical time for exercising. "It is a preventive agent for their health," he said. "Organic fitness is most important, and probably the biggest problem of the academic man today is his postural structure. There are no body builders or weight lifters involved in the workouts."

In a typical workout, in between grunts, groans, and occasional jokes, the pounds peel off.

Joseph P. Vavra, associate professor of plant industry, who started in the program last fall, admitted that he had felt sluggish before he began the routines.

"Now I've lost 15 pounds, and hope to lose 10 more," he commented. "I feel better, sleep better, and it helps me on my job."

Harry W. McMurtrie, associate University architect, started at the spring quarter, and has taken off 8 pounds. "I hope to lose another five or 10," he said.

Missing the workouts can have its effect, according to Bill Maurizio, a state trooper who started in April but recently missed the sessions for a month.

"I've put back on the pounds I had taken off," he said, "but I hope to take them off again pretty soon."

With the success shown by Knowlton's program, it's a good bet that there will be a lot more pounds shed in the future.
