Republicans Nominate Dick Nixon

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Richard Milhouse Nixon, who battled a loser's image to build a political comeback, swept to his second Republican presidential nomination early Thursday.

When the rhythmic roll call of the states reached Wisconsin, Nixon's vote reached the 667 majority which won him the prize, his party's 29th nomination for the White House.

And the Republican National Convention exploded into tumult, with cheering, sign-waving Nixon partisans leading the surging roar.

Nixon wound up the roll call with 692 votes. New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller got 287, California Gov. Ronald Reagan received 182.

And when the call was completed, with Nixon the winner, states which had cast votes for other candidates began switching their ballots to the nominee.

It came after 7 1/2 hours of nominating speeches and of carefully rehearsed and staged demonstrations for the contenders: Nixon, Rockefeller, Reagan.

And so Nixon, who once wrote a book about the six crises of his political life surmounted the seventh.

It climaxed a studied, meticulously organized—but nonetheless dramatic—return to the Republican pinnacle by a man who six years ago uttered his own bitter political obituary.

That was in Los Angeles, the morning after Nixon lost his bid to become governor of California. Haggard, exhausted, Nixon faced a news conference and proclaimed:

"You won't have Nixon to kick around any longer because, gentlemen, this is my last press conference."

He left the native state from which he had been elected to the House, then to the Senate, leaving Congress to become Dwight D. Eisenhower's vice president, moved to New York and became a Wall Street lawyer.

But politics remained his real profession. And in the aftermath of the Republicans' devastating 1964 defeat, party professionals began talking of Nixon as a contender again for presidential nomination.

And Nixon was soon on the road, campaigning for GOP candidates, addressing fund raising functions, building a bulging stock of political favors due.

The off-year elections of 1966 produced a Republican comeback and Nixon, an ardent campaigner for the party's nominees, shared in the triumph.

That began in earnest, but under cover, the campaign he climaxed in Miami Beach.

"This is not my last press conference," he said on Feb. 1, formally announcing the candidacy he carried through seven presidential primaries.

He came to Miami Beach only Monday, already in command of the convention, and recalled the 1960 race he lost to Kennedy by the slimmest of margins.

Black Resource Center Proposed

Building May Be Converted

By Inez Rencher
(Second of a Series)

The old store-front building at East Chestnut and North Marion Streets, damaged by fire and evacuated earlier this year, may be converted to a resource center for Carbondale's black community dwellers.

Restless children with nothing to do may be able to go inside the building for constructive recreation instead of using it as an object for rock throwing.

Frustrated youths, accustomed to leaning on the building for lack of anything better to do may go inside for meaningful discussion or a game of pool or a dance session.

Gross, Schleuter to Receive First SIU English Doctorate

Dalton Gross and Paul Schleuter will receive the first doctoral degrees in the history of the Department of English. The doctoral program was approved in 1961, according to Howard H. Webb Jr., chairman of the department.

There are presently between 65 and 75 graduate students who are working towards a Ph. D. Webb said.

Gross, who was the first student in the doctoral program, did his dissertation on the "Letters of George Sterling," he received his masters degree from SIU. A native of Decorah, Iowa, Gross will take the position of assistant professor of English at Southwest Texas State Teachers College this fall.

Schleuter, from Oak Lawn, Ill., will take a similar position at the University of Evansville, Ind. He received his master's degree at the University of Denver. "Novels of Doris Lessing" is the topic of his dissertation.

With the cooperation of the University Services to Carbondale office at SIU, Simon said the organization has planned to renovate the building, formerly Anderson's Grocery Store.

"We don't have any money," he said, "but we could work and donate, if SIU would let it up."

The proposed neighborhood center will be discussed Thursday night at the meeting of the tentatively named Northeast Community Development Congress by its 20 representatives chosen in an all-neighborhood election July 13.

The Congress will solicit aid from SIU's University Service to Carbondale office in the project.

"We will be involved," Walter Robinson, director of the office, said.

Robinson said SIU already has leased and renovated the building.

Simon said the organization will probably ask the University office to supply permanent toilet and kitchen facilities for the building. He said temporary partitions for other rooms would be most feasible since the building will serve as an all-purpose center.

The old grocery store is located in the Northeast's Area Three, extending from south of East Willow Street to East Green Street. The predominantly black community was permanently divided by a Congress committee initially for the purpose of conducting the community election.

Teachers Study Earth Science

Thirty-three secondary school teachers from 16 states and Canada are finishing eight weeks of study this Friday at SIU's first summer institute in earth science.

Teachers admitted to the course had at least three years of experience which included teaching at least one science course.

David L. Jones, associate professor of geology, and Stanley E. Harris, professor of geology, SIU Department of Geology, are the institute directors.

Jones says increasingly schools are replacing the traditional general science and physical science subjects with the more inclusive earth science courses in grades seven through nine.

Because only a limited number of colleges and universities so far have had degree programs in the earth science field, the demand for trained teachers far exceeds the present supply. Earth science summer institutes can help fill the gap, Jones says.

Implement Report Now

During the past few summers, many cities in the United States have experienced riots in ghetto areas. After these summer disturbances, much sorrow and waste were left behind. What was the real cause behind these riots and how can future riots be avoided?

During the tragic summer months of 1967, some 72 cities in 22 states were wrecked with explosions of arson, looting and murder. After the summer was over, 83 persons had been killed and another 1,897 had been injured—not to mention the property destroyed—valued at many millions of dollars. This is such a waste of life and property, it seems a shame that the riots couldn't have been stopped before they began.

The President's National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders stated that the riots were a form of social protest by noncriminals and are justified as such by a majority of Negroes. The Commission also suggested that future riots could only be prevented by transforming the Negro slums and the institutions and attitudes that have created them. The Commission made sweeping recommendations at federal and local levels in law enforcement, welfare, employment, education and the news media. Although just a minority of these recommendations have been put into force, there appears to be a letup in the number and severity of riots in the cities this year, although the summer is only half over.

With this decrease of riots in mind, a greater effort should be made to meet the recommendations made by the Commission to help cut this violence in American cities. Too many lives and too much property has been destroyed already. Now is the time to put an end to this problem before it becomes worse.

What Kind of World?

Change the Teacher's Idea of Ghetto Pupil

By Robert M. Hutchins

What determines a child's success or failure in school?

We have known for a long time that what is called "socio-economic status" is a very important factor. It appears to have the same effect all over the world. In every country the children from the "best" homes go furthest and are most successful in the educational system. The available figures suggest that the situation is the same under all political and economic regimes.

But why is this so? one reason may be that the schools are set up by and for the middle class. The pupil from the slums when he comes to school finds himself confronting an alien culture. The middle-class child, on the other hand, lives at school in an environment that is simply an extension of his home.

The slum child has a hard time getting adjusted; he falls further and further behind, and finally drops out. This is the normal process in this country.

To abolish the slums, to get children away from "bad" homes, to make all homes "good," or to remodel the schools so that they reflect the homes in the slums—these are all vast undertakings, and the last, at least, is highly dubious. But can the problem of an alien culture faced by the disadvantaged be solved in any other way? If it cannot be solved, then the disadvantaged child will continue to fail in school unless he receives an enormous amount of "compensatory education" by way of individual tutoring. Even that may not work.

Prof. Robert Rosenthal of Harvard and Lenore F. Jacobson, principal of an elementary school in San Francisco, have published in Scientific American the results of an experiment offering hope of simpler, cheaper and more effective methods. These methods involve nothing more than changing the expectations of teachers.

The central idea of the experiment was that of the self-fulfilling prophecy; that is, that one person's prediction of another's behavior somehow comes to be realized. The experimenters chose at random about five children in each class of a south San Francisco school and told the teachers that these children could be expected to show unusual intellectual gains in the coming year.

The difference between these children and the rest was entirely in the minds of the teachers.

The children were tested throughout the year. The results indicated strongly that children from whom the teachers expected greater gains made such gains. When asked to describe the classroom behavior of these children, the teachers said they had a better chance of being successful in later life and were happier, more curious and more interesting than the others. They were also more appealing, better adjusted, more affectionate and less in need of social approval. In short, they were better in every way.

A horrifying aspect of the results was that the most unfavorable ratings were given to those children in low-ability or slow-track classrooms who gained the most intellectually. These children had dared to behave contrary to the expectations of their teachers!

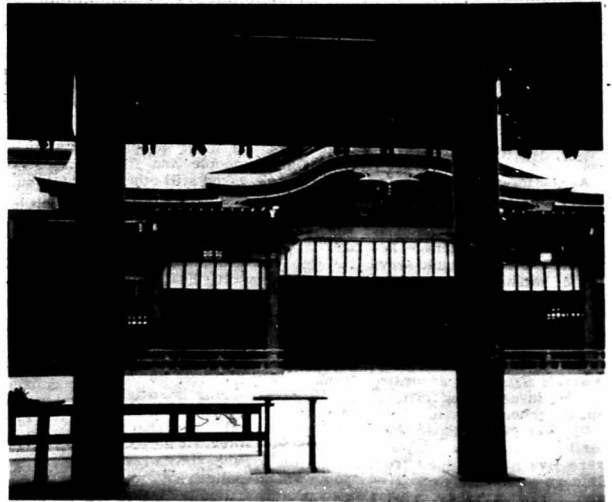

The experimenters say: "Evidently it is likely to be difficult for a slow-track child, even if his IQ is rising, to be seen by his teacher as well adjusted and as a potentially successful student."

Here may lie the explanation of the effects of socio-economic status on schooling. Teachers of a higher socio-economic status expect pupils of a lower socio-economic status to fail.

Rebuilt Japanese Shrine Seen Yearly by Millions

Photos, Text

By John Durbin

The Tokyo-Meiji Jingu, a Shinto shrine of national prayer for peace and prosperity, was built in 1920 to honor a past emperor of Japan. The shrine buildings were destroyed by fire during World War II, however, and were reconstructed to their present state in 1958.

The shrine grounds which include the main shrine, the beautiful inner gardens and spacious park area, honors Emperor Meiji who reigned during the so-called Meiji Period from 1867-1912.

Emperor Meiji was born on November 3, 1852 and at the age of 16 became the 122nd emperor of Japan. He died July 30, 1912.

According to Japanese historians, during the Meiji Period outstanding national progress was made in the areas of politics, economics, industry, transportation and culture.

Because of the leadership displayed by Emperor Meiji during this period, the Japanese people were compelled to see that this shrine be built in his honor.

The shrine grounds, located in the Shibuya ward of the city of Tokyo, occupy an area of about 300 acres. This land was closely connected with the Emperor Meiji during his lifetime. Being a dry peaceful area, it was selected as the most suitable place to build a shrine in honor of the emperor.

The rebuilding of the shrine, following its devastation, cost about 600,000,000 yen ($1.7 million) and the funds were raised entirely by voluntary subscriptions from the people of Japan.

The architectural style is called "nagare-zukuri" and represents the beauty of the traditional, uniquely Japanese architecture. The materials used are Japanese cypress wood, the best lumber produced in Japan.

The largest festival of the year is celebrated on November 3, the birthday of Emperor Meiji. In this as in all other festivals prayers of thanksgiving, prayers for national prosperity, happiness for the people and for world peace are always offered to the deities.

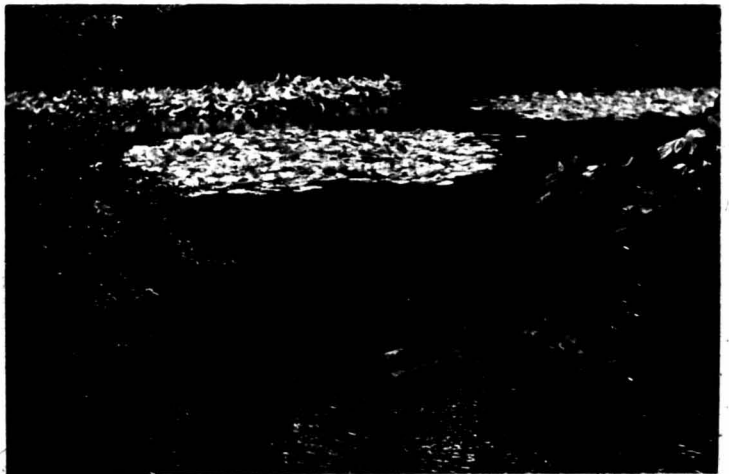

About 8 million persons visit the shrine annually with about 3 million of the worshippers paying New Year's visits during the first three days of each New Year.

The Inner Gardens are closely connected with the Emperor Meiji who had made various plans for the gardens in order to give recreation and enjoyment to his Empress Shoken.

Empress Shoken was especially fond of these Gardens, in the pond where carp swim and water lilies bloom.

'Raid' Called Routine Investigation

14 Arrested for Drinking at Noisy Party

By Kevin Cole

A routine disturbance investigation that netted Carbondale police 14 persons--most of them SIU students--on charges of underage acceptance of liquor could serve as a warning to would-be young drinkers of the future.

The arrests followed citizen complaints brought on by a "loud, unorganized party" at 709 S. Illinois Ave., about midnight Saturday, according to the investigating officer, Sgt. Clarence Johnson.

"It was one of those chain parties," he said. "There were five fellows down from Chicago--all well over 21--who threw a party. They asked a few people--also well over 21--and these people asked other people and the other people asked still other people.

"First thing you know, you've got people there who don't know a soul in the place, but who just heard there was a party going on. That party Saturday night ended up with about 50 people," he said.

One campus source commented that "it (arrest) never happens to you unless you think it won't. You get 40 or 50 guys boozing it up and making a lot of noise and you think you'll be allright. That's when you get hit."

The disturbance investigation, which police say was inaccurately called a "raid" in another news report, began when a caller complained of excessive noise in the area.

"All such complaints are checked out," Sgt. Johnson said, "and if there seem to be some young-looking drinkers we can, in accordance with state laws and city ordinances, check identification for underage drinkers. It isn't just student parties. We can do the same thing in a tavern or restaurant."

Sgt. Johnson said three or four complaints are received every weekend, but that only an average of five student arrests a month are made for underage acceptance of liquor (UAL). A charge that often accompanies UAL is disorderly conduct, Sgt. Johnson said.

Carbondale Police Chief Jack Hazel said that to use the word "raid" to describe what happened Saturday night would be misleading. An actual raid, he said, involves securing a search warrant from the county and using it within 72 hours after issuance.

"We tell the judge about when and where we plan to pull off the raid and what we expect to get. After the raid, we present him with whatever evidence we were able to get--gambling equipment or whatever," Chief Hazel said.

"A raid is well-planned and executed according to a definite schedule," he said.

Carbondale police have not executed a raid for some six years, Chief Hazel said.

"Saturday night's investigation was a spontaneous thing that grew out of a routine investigation," he said.

Five of the 14 arrested Saturday night will appear in Jackson County Circuit Court Aug. 12. The other nine paid the $25 fine plus $5 costs.

The University is notified of all student arrests, Sgt. Johnson said.

In turn, students arrested are "strongly requested" to notify their parents, according to Joseph Zaleski, assistant dean of student affairs. "If, within a reasonable length of time, the student does not notify them, then an agency of the University does it."

Another campus source said that for some students, "notifying their parents is worse punishment than jail, fine, police record and judicial board action combined."

All 14 persons arrested on UAL charges were males. Sgt. Johnson said there were some women at the party, but that most of them were older than 21, and therefore not held.

He said, however, that while he was checking identifications at the party, two girls approached him and told him they were only 18, but had not been drinking. When Johnson turned to consult with his partner, the two girls fled.

Curfew Imposed For Second Night in Harvey

HARVEY, Ill. (AP)—Authorities differed Wednesday on the cause of disturbances in which seven policemen and a woman were shot, but they agreed on a curfew and more police as necessary precautions for Wednesday night.

Undersheriff Bernard Carey of Cook County Chicago said the disturbances by Negro youths late Tuesday night bore signs of having been planned, possibly by a militant group known as the Black Elephants.

The police department of Harvey, a suburb south of Chicago, however, issued a report saying that in its opinion the trouble was "a spontaneous movement by a small group of malcontents..."

"It was not a racial conflict," the department report said.

There was little property damage, although the trouble started when some 75 Negroes began throwing rocks at passing cars in an area which suffered racial rioting in 1964. Police said they sent five squad cars into the trouble area and began dispersing the rock throwers. As five of the officers were returning to their car they were struck by pellets from a single shotgun blast.

Undersheriff Carey said that of the 12 persons arrested, 10 are members of the Black Elephants. He said there definitely was advance planning to some degree.

The fatal shooting of a Negro youth by a white policeman, has been cited as contributing to bitter feelings between Negroes and police and the source of the recent disturbances.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide in the fatal shooting just hours before the trouble began Tuesday.

Scores of state, county and local police brought calm to the area within a few hours and instituted a curfew.

The curfew was imposed again Wednesday night and extra police officers were put on patrol and on standby.

Student Pleads Guilty To Phony ID Charge

Richard A. Patterson, a sophomore from Carbondale, was fined $100 plus costs in circuit court in Murphysboro Monday after pleading guilty to a charge of using false identification.

Patterson said he used false identification to obtain intoxicants at Speedy's, north of DeSoto, on July 27.

North Vietnam Asked To Free U.S. Airmen

PARIS (AP)—W. Averell Harriman, U.S. peace negotiator, announced Wednesday the forthcoming release of 14 North Vietnamese sailors held by the United States. He asked freedom for more U.S. airmen held in North Vietnam.

Freeing the sailors was a gesture of goodwill like the recent North Vietnamese release of three American pilots, he said after meeting at the peace table with Hanoi's delegates.

"I asked for a list of those being held as an act of humanity," Harriman told newsmen.

He appealed especially for the names of those injured, and of those held for a long time.

The chief North Vietnamese delegate at the session, Ambassador Ha Van Lau, said his government takes a humane attitude toward the men it holds. The North Vietnamese claim to have captured about 1,000 American airmen. They have released six this year.

A U.S. spokesman said the 14 sailors, captured in 1966 when torpedo boats attacked U.S. vessels, are the last North Vietnamese in American hands and they will be freed soon.

Lau said he would consult his government about how to handle the release. Most North Vietnamese captured by U.S. forces have been turned over to the South Vietnamese.

Harriman had no progress to report from the 16th session of the talks, which are now almost three months old. Another meeting will be held next Wednesday.

The North Vietnamese insisted, as they have from the start, that the United States must stop bombing them before the talks can go on to other subjects. Harriman recalled that President Johnson already had limited the bombing.

So far, he said, there had been no response that would justify the risks that a complete bombing halt would bring for U.S. troops.

The North Vietnamese have insisted that it was slander to say that they had troops in the South. But Lau referred to U.S. proposals on limiting North Vietnamese infiltration as an escalation of American terms for stopping the bombs. He did not deny that the North Vietnamese are infiltrating.

Telephone Cable Cut In Downtown Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Telephone service on 19 of the 46 floors of the bustling Field Building, 135 S. LaSalle St., was disrupted Wednesday by the cutting of a cable carrying 2,400 wires.

"It looks like the cable was cut about two-thirds of the way through with a hacksaw," said a spokesman for the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., whose installers and repairmen have been on strike since May. "It is one of the most serious cable cuts in Chicago in years."

With an estimated 600 to 800 telephones in the building knocked out, service to scores of business and professional offices was disrupted.

The cable was cut in early afternoon and an Illinois Bell spokesman said several hours would be required to restore full service.

Police were called in to investigate.

Black Rally Turns Into Rock-Throwing Disorder

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A black rally that was to have lasted for 12 hours broke up in a rash of rock-throwing and looting that hit five streets in Miami's Northwest section Wednesday evening.

Three people were hit by a barrage of rocks and concrete that began shortly after police agreed to withdraw from the rally place. None of the injuries was believed serious.

Community leaders asked police to seal off the area, one of the city's largest predominantly Negro sections, to all white people. They also asked bars and stores in the area to close.

An hour after the police left, looters began hitting stores along Northwest 62nd Street from 12th to 17th Avenues as crowds surged back and forth, cheering them on.

The Negroes had been attending a scheduled 12-hour

"Vote Power" rally at which they were to discuss problems common to their race. The rally was interrupted in late afternoon when officers began assembling outside the building.

Shortly before 7 p.m., the officers pulled back and the wave of rock-throwing began.

Bob Johnson, a young non-violent Black Nationalist and one of the organizers of the meeting, said the incident developed because police began assembling at a nearby street intersection.

"We were trying to give our people some of their black culture," he said. "The people we are trying to reach, they can't sit down in peaceful assembly without being harassed."

"If 10 black people get together they call it a riot, but 3,000 white people can get together and they call it a convention," chimed in a young man who said he was "Larry Johnson, 21, old enough to get the gas chamber."

9 Miners Trapped By Explosion

GREENVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Nine men were reported trapped Wednesday following an explosion in a coal mine south of this small community in western Kentucky.

The Muhlenberg County Sheriff's Department also reported that at least six coal miners were being treated at a hospital here for injuries suffered in the accident at the River Queen mine.

A shift foreman said rescue workers were being hampered by dense smoke, gaseous fumes and high temperatures in the mine.

At one point, the 10-man rescue team reached an area in the mine where the temperature was reported above 200 degrees Fahrenheit.

The exact location and depth of the miners was not known in the underground catacomb of tunnels and shafts.

Attempts were under way, however, to drill an air shaft into the mine at a point where the miners were believed to be trapped.

It was not known immediately what caused the explosion inside the mine.

Consulting Offered On Minerals, Land

Is this gold or uranium or something valuable?

This is a question asked of Daniel N. Miller, chairman of the Department of Geology, about a dozen times during the year.

"About once a month people come into my office wondering if they've found something valuable," Miller said.

"I look over their rock or specimen or ore and give them my opinion, and then I refer them to a specialist or a professional service organization for a final judgment as to its value," he said.

Of the specimens that are brought in, only a few have any value at all, Miller stated. "Maybe one or two may be redeemed for money, but its a very small sum."

Miller said the department has had many unusual requests from the public. He cited some students who came in with specimens as one example.

"Students see fossils which have been exposed in ledges or walls along state highways and they bring these in to ask if they're of value, but they turn out to be worth pennies," he said.

"Some foreign students often come in and want to know if their vial of crystals or rock, which has been handed down by their parents or their parents' parents, is of value," Miller said.

Miller said there is no cost for the verbal evaluation and the only item which is required is the time to look the specimen over. He added, "Chemical analysis requires more time and is costly."

Although the department may not be able to cheer up the amateur prospector, it may be able to help some people. A farmer who comes in and inquires about his land may be helped, Miller said. The department has a specialist who can help solve the problem of drilling a well.

The department has hundreds of maps which may be used to seek out oil, water, or coal areas and give the information the land owner may wish to know. And department personnel can also give an honest opinion as to the type of land or crops most suitable for needs.

Many questions asked require professional judgment, Miller asserted. In these cases, persons are referred to the Illinois Geological Survey Service in Urbana, he said. This is a professional service set up by the University of Illinois to answer questions which the public may have.

The chairman commented "We don't mind helping if we can and a lot of times we can answer other questions people may have regarding property."

'Theologically Sound Doctrine'

Rev. Hentschel Supports Edict

The Rev. Cletus Hentschel, S.T.L., director of SIU's Newman Catholic Student Center, has issued a statement in support of Pope Paul VI and the recent edict restating the ban on artificial birth control.

"In this era of conflict, confusion, consternation, it is refreshing to hear the forthright, firm and unwavering voice of the head of Christendom," The Rev. Hentschel said.

Pope Paul's 33-page birth control encyclical, "Humanae Vitae," issued July 29, has received some opposition from Roman Catholics.

The Rev. Hentschel referred to the Pope's edict, however, as "theologically and morally sound doctrine."

"It will restore man's love of human life itself, love of one another as human persons," he said. "It will re-establish the realization that there is nothing so precious in human life as human life itself and that the gift of human life, together with the means of its transmission, is not man-made but God-given."

Spahn's Success Suggests Managerial Spot

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—They practically had to drag Warren Spahn screaming and kicking out of the National League when his pitching days ended after the 1965 season.

But the gum chewing, balding perennial from Buffalo, N.Y., is on his way back—this time as a manager.

The still trim 47-year-old Spahn, the winningest left hander in major league history with 363 victories who now manages the Tulsa Oilers, is mum on when he thinks he'll be ready to manage in the majors. He is just as quiet on another subject close to his heart—baseball's Hall of Fame.

There are many who feel Spahn will be voted into Cooperstown in 1971 after the customary five year waiting period.

Spahn, in his second year as Oiler manager in the Eastern Division of the Pacific Coast League, had 13 seasons in which he won 20 or more games, equaling the great Christy Mathewson's feat and only three behind Cy Young's record 16.

Major league expansion will open more managerial jobs but Spahn wants to look hard before he leaps.

"I'd have to weigh the prospects because those teams are not going to win the first few years," says Spahn. "I think I'd rather have a front office job with an expansion club than manage one. I would first like to have an offer to consider, but I'm happy where I am."

And where Spahn is happens to be one step away from the majors. Tulsa is the top farm club of the St. Louis Cardinals.

A. Ray Smith, Oiler owner, believes Spahn will make the Hall of Fame on the first ballot and that he'll manage in the majors.

"He is one of the best," Smith says. "He's smart and he knows the game. He knows how to handle the men."

Spahn took the Oilers last year as the team nose-dived from the 1966 league pennant to the cellar. But this year he had the Oilers in first place in midseason.

"I'm doing what I always wanted to do after ending my playing career," says Spahn. "This year we've got a great bunch of kids."

He thinks three pitchers, Mike Torrez, Chuck Taylor and Clay Kirby, have a bright baseball future.

Torrez came to the Oilers after starting with St. Louis and was optioned out to get more work. "When he goes back," says Spahn, "he will be a starter."

"Taylor is the best pitcher we've had this spring. Kirby has just turned 20 and is a fine prospect."

Spahn has strong opinions on the lack of hitting in the majors this year. While blaming the batters, he also credits the pitchers.

"Early in the year I would have said it was the weather," says Spahn. "But now I'm inclined to say the pitchers have learned their business better than the hitters. Everybody is swinging from their hips, trying to hit the ball out of the park."

Spahn had his first years with the Braves, first in Boston then in Milwaukee. He pitched two no-hitters in the twilight of his career which shows 63 shutouts, second only to Eddie Plank's 70.

In 1964 Milwaukee sold him to the Mets. After the Mets put him on waivers in 1965 he pitched for San Francisco and ended the season with a 7-16 record. He still hoped to pitch after the Giants released him.

His comeback as a manager is more for the love of the game than for money. For several years he earned about $80,000 and he now owns a 3,000-acre ranch near Hartshorne in southeastern Oklahoma, his winter home.

Braves Slap Cubs, 10-2

ATLANTA (AP)—George Stone's two-out single and airtight pitching led the Atlanta Braves to a 10-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday night.

Stone, making only his second start for the Braves this season, bounced a bases-loaded single back through the middle in the second inning to end Ken Holtzman's scoreless inning striding at 28.

The rookie left-hander had a two strike count when he singled, scoring Joe Torre and Deron Johnson. Felipe Alou, extending his hitting streak to 12 games, singled to score Marty Martinez, and Stone scored when Felix Millan beat out an infield hit.

The Braves added another run in the sixth when Tommie Aaron singled, went to third on Deron Johnson's hit-and-run single and scored while Martinez was bouncing out.

Stone got his third RBI of the night when the Braves wrapped it up with a five-run, seven-hit seventh inning.

Olympic Trials Beckon Women Gymnasts

By Barb Leebens

Hard work, many hours of practice, endurance, strength, will power and flexibility form the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle in the life of four SIU women gymnasts training for the Olympic tryouts next weekend in Long Beach, Calif.

Since the end of the regular school year, Joanne Hashimoto, Linda Scott, Sue Rogers, and Terry Spencer have been training from one to five hours daily in the Arena.

"This summer we have dwelled on building the girls' strength, keeping them in top physical condition, and building up their endurance," Coach Herb Vogel said. "We geared the program so the contestants will be in top physical form about two weeks before the Olympic tryouts. Girl for girl, I think that I can say that this has happened. A couple of the girls have improved as much as 75 percent."

Basically the girls work together and help each other correct their faults, Vogel said. "Sometimes we have a prescription session where

Herb Vogel

I coach one girl and work only on her faults."

Mock meets are set up for the girls to run through as if the practice were a meet. The girl is allowed only one try at the event and she must attempt to do her very best.

"Sometimes during a girl's routine I will intentionally ignore her," Vogel said. "This is to teach her that she is the only person who cares whether or not she makes the team, and that she should control her emotions and learn to concentrate on giving her best performance."

In the summer training sessions, Vogel has aimed at teaching the girls to get keyed up for their routine and not for the whole meet. He wants them to feel that the meet is just like one of their practices. This is to develop control of their mind as well as their body.

"I can guarantee you that all the girls will be a little shook-up at the trials," Vogel said, "but this is because these are the final trials and there will be a lot of pressure on the individual."

Next week the practice schedule will be changed to 7:30 p.m. to 11. The night practice is to prepare the girls for California because all the events will be held at night in order to attract big paying crowds.

"We need these practices to help us adjust to sitting around in California all day long and performing at night," Vogel said. "The girls are used to performing in the afternoon."

"We have tried to develop all four girls so they will all make the team. Before Donna Schaefer was injured we were hoping for 50 percent of the 10 member team to be from SIU," Vogel said.

"In terms of preparation we are ready today," Vogel said. "We stand as good a chance as anyone else. We will rest up for the next two weeks and try not to overload the girls so that when the time rolls around, they will be ready."

IM Schedule Set

Four games are scheduled today midway in the second round in the SIU Intramural Softball League Tournament.

Delta Chi will meet the Mets on field number 1, TKE will host RU on field two, Forest Hall will take on CGA on field four and Kaline Comets will play the Storm Troopers on field six.

All games will begin at 6:20 p.m.

Last Monday CGA edged the Politicos 2 to 1, Rathole drubbed Life 24-18, Forest Hall nipped Microbiology 5-4 and RU beat the Storm Troopers 31-14.

Decision on Novick Taken Under Study

The disciplinary action taken against former student Stuart Novick by the University was reviewed yesterday in an all day closed hearing at the President's Office.

This was the first formal hearing given to Novick since disciplinary action was taken against him by the University. Irving W. Adams, assistant dean of student affairs and the hearing officer at the proceeding, would not comment about any conclusions or decisions reached in the hearing.

"I cannot come to any decision in the matter until I can carefully review the transcript of today's hearing," Adams said.

Novick was barred from campus last May by the administration for the alleged use of "incendiary" and "inflammatory" language in speeches he made on campus. Novick later appeared on campus June 2 to address a student government banquet at the request of then student body president, Raymond Lenzi. Novick was subsequently charged with "criminal trespass" on University property by State's Attorney Richard E. Richman.

Also at Wednesday's hearing were C. Richard Grunty, University legal counsel, and Novick's attorney, David Goldberger, a representative from the Chicago office of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Four witnesses were called to testify at Novick's hearing. They were Thomas Davis, assistant professor of English; Charles G. Stalon, assistant professor of economics; Sally Veilands, a reporter from the Southern Illinoisian, and Brian Treusch, a staff reporter for the Daily Egyptian.

"I testified for Novick because he is, in my opinion, innocent," Davis said.

Davis said he attended all the meetings at which Novick spoke during the spring quarter. He said he wrote to the American Civil Liberties Union's Chicago office requesting that Goldberger allow him to testify.

"In a free and open university—a university which can invite the leader of a Nazi party to the campus—it seems to me an injustice that a student leader would be barred from the campus, particularly without a hearing," Davis said.

Action against Novick was taken by the administration with no prior hearing. The University is also withholding Novick's registration for one year.

Mrs. Veilands also volunteered to speak in Novick's behalf. She said she attended the May 8 meeting of the Student Coalition at which Novick spoke just before black students were apprehended in an incident at President Morris' office.

"He (Novick) seemed very much opposed to any kind of violent demonstration," she said, "and was probably one of the prime people responsible for the incident at the President's Office being no more than an 'incident.'"

"In an atmosphere charged with emotion, he became a stabilizing force by telling people that their actions had to be made as individuals rather than as a 'coalition.'"

At the May 8 meeting some of the students present reportedly urged uniting with black students in staging a sit-in to present student grievances.
