Soybean oil may be fuel for farmers

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

Researchers at SIU-C are saying that a possible solution to the fuel crunch—especially when it comes to powering farm machinery—may be found in a crop prevalent in Southern Illinois—soybeans. Different mixtures of soybean oil and diesel fuel performed well in short term tests conducted earlier this year by Robert Wolff, associate professor in the Department of Agriculture Education and Mechanization.

The mixture should undergo long term testing before farmers start pouring soybean oil in their tractors, but it does have the potential to be used as a renewable fuel source in compression engines, Wolff said.

Wolff said he is interested in finding alternative fuels to use in agricultural machinery that get the "crops in and out" because of the tightening of the world oil supply.

Soybean oil is just one of the many vegetable oils being tested as possible fuel sources, according to Thomas Jefferson, professor in the Department of Thermal and Environmental Engineering. Soybean oil is being investigated because "it's something Illinois could produce a bunch of," he said.

The research was financed by a $13,000 grant from the Illinois Soybean Program Operating Board, Wolff said.

Wolff said mixtures of slightly purified soybean oil and diesel fuel in 10 percent increments ranging from pure diesel fuel to pure degummed soybean oil were tested. Starting capability, power performance and efficiency of the 10 mixtures were tested when used in a Ford 4000 power unit diesel tractor.

Reagan orders agencies to ask for less funds than budgeted

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a new drive to save additional billions in 1982, the Reagan administration is ordering federal agencies to stick to leaner budgets proposed by the president last spring rather than higher spending ceilings approved by Congress in July.

Ed Dale, a spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget, said Wednesday the administration will try to make sure Congress doesn't fill agency coffers to the brim in cases where the spending ceiling exceeds the budget requests President Reagan made in March.

Toward that end, departments have been instructed to draft budgets based on the president's figures, said Dale.

The administration also is challenging Congress to accept the reduced spending plans by raising the prospect that Reagan may veto appropriations bills exceeding his original spending plans.

In what may turn into a second showdown over the budget, administration officials said they still hope to salvage up to $4 billion in spending cuts that Congress rejected when it adopted a new budget, and to net even larger savings in programs that await action.

Although Congress approved most of the cuts sought by Reagan, it would not slash some programs as deeply as he wanted. The new drive gives the administration a second shot at achieving its initial spending targets and is likely to spark vehement opposition.

The administration, which is fighting to keep the 1982 budget deficit from climbing higher than its official forecast, plans to seek the additional savings for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 through congressional appropriations bills.

The budget bills enacted into law so far this year set ceilings on federal spending for different programs, but the appropriations bills will provide the actual money.

1981 loan requests hit record numbers

By Tim Capps
Staff Writer

Spurred by announced federal policy changes, students are applying for Illinois Guaranteed Loans in record numbers. Joseph Camille, Student Work and Financial Assistance director, said.

"We've already processed almost as many applications for this fall alone than for the entire 80-81 school year. We've received over 12,500 applications in just the first two weeks of August," Camille said.

He said students are trying to submit applications before Oct. 1 so they can be processed under the old rules. But there is not much time left.

Gus Bode

Gus says that when the line for loans stretches out of sight, can another kind of bread line be far behind?

"We cannot guarantee that requests submitted after Sep. 14 will be processed by the Oct. 1 deadline," said Camille.

Jo Palmer, the program's acting director for planning and budget, said all changes but one have been enacted. She said the $30,000 income cap which goes into effect Oct. 1 is apparently what has students worried.

If a student's adjusted family income is over $30,000, he or she will have to submit to a needs analysis by the University. The University will then determine how much the student will receive.

Other changes include a loan maximum of $2,500 for all undergraduates and a $5,000 maximum for graduate students. The repayment rate has been increased from $30 to $600 per year and a 5 percent federal origination fee is now deducted before the student receives the money.

But this may not be the last of the changes.

"The new administration decided there has to be budget cuts in order to balance the budget," Palmer said, "and I believe we will see still more cuts."

Law students to rejoin GSC; accept fee offer

By Julie Gaudagnoli
Staff Writer

Law students voted today to return to the Graduate Student Council, Lisa Franke, president of the Student Bar Association, said.

The SBA also voted to accept the offer of $1,100 from the GSC for the 1981-1982 school year, Franke said.

After about a year of heated controversy over the distribution of law students' fees, the SBA voted to pull out of the GSC in October of 1979. Franke said the SBA felt the fee guidelines did not adequately meet the special needs of students in professional fields.

Since then, the GSC has added a special support area to the guidelines to help provide for these special fee needs, she said.

Franke said she is "optimistic that we'll be able to agree on the guidelines." She said it is very important that the GSC and the SBA confront the administration together "in a formidable, united voice."

The fee allocations board of the GSC will meet to determine whether GSC funds are being used efficiently, Franke said. The board will submit its findings in January, she said.

Weinberger says 'we're behind'

Military increase urged

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Wednesday the nation must act quickly to end the Soviet Union's military lead, but said even so he could reach agreement with budget-cutters on defense spending.

Maintaining that "we're way behind," Weinberger said the United States needs to "do a lot very quickly to close the window of vulnerability that people refer to in this decade."

At the same time, he said, "we're appreciative of the economic problems...."

Weinberger spoke to reporters before meeting with Budget Director David Stockman and presidential counselor Edwin Meese III on the defense budgets for fiscal 1983 and 1984.

He held out hope that the administration could spend what it needs to rebuild its defenses and still achieve President Reagan's goal of balancing the budget by 1984.

"It's a matter of trying to do things that we all want to do as quickly and efficiently as we can with due regard to the economy," he said. He also agreed with Deputy White House Press Secretary Larry Speakes that this may be accomplished by increasing defense spending less than 7 percent a year, a figure Reagan previously has said he was committed to.

Weinberger said he had come armed with specific recommendations on the MX system amid reports that Reagan has ruled out the so-called racetrack system as a basic mode for the missile but still was considering a land-based scheme.

Weinberger said he had "continued to gather the information that was requested and we have a rather large program ready that can be fitted into the general defense program we have planned."

Stockman, the president's chief budget-cutter, recommended last week that the defense budget for 1983 and 1984 be cut by $10 billion to $20 billion a year for the next two years to balance the budget and save off even deeper cuts in social programs.

Indiana company stops nuclear plant proposal

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP) — After 10 years of fighting legal and regulatory battles, Northern Indiana Public Service Co. Wednesday abandoned its plans to build Bailey Nuclear I, the controversial power plant proposed for the Indiana shores of Lake Michigan.

NIPSCO chairman Edmond A. Schroer, in a statement, blamed the plant's cancellation on the lengthy legal fight, saying that during the decade of litigation the plant's estimated cost soared to a level the utility could not afford.

"Ultimately, the project became a victim of one lengthy delay after another," he said at an afternoon news conference. Opponents have stalled the proposal for 10 years, during which time the estimated costs have risen from $187 million to $1.8 billion, Schroer said.

NIPSCO had originally hoped to get the plant on line in 1976 and recently was aiming for a 1989 startup date, Schroer said. The utility said in a statement, however, that if they persisted with the project, the startup could be delayed until 1991, bringing the plant's cost to $2.13 billion.

"Cost increases of this magnitude are simply not bearable," Schroer said, adding the utility had spent $205 million on the plant, and would seek to raise customers' rates to cover those expenses.

"Bailey was not an issue in the last rate case (before the Indiana Public Service Commission) but it will be in the next rate case," Schroer said.

Opponents had argued the plant, located 35 miles from Chicago's Loop and abutting the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore near Gary, was too close to population centers and environmentally unsound.

Bob Vollen, attorney for one of the opponents the Business and Professional People in the Public Interest, said the plant failed to comply with any of six siting criteria that have been proposed by an NRC task force — but not yet adopted by the agency.

In addition, the highest-ranking NRC official in the Midwest, James G. Keppler, recommended last January that the project be scuttled.

Lieutenant governor race heats up

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Being lieutenant governor may have left Dave O'Neal cold, but a red-hot Republican battle is shaping up for the job between Illinois House Speaker George H. Ryan and state Sen. Donald R. Totten.

And the race could pit the White House against the Statehouse.

Totten, a conservative from Hoffman Estates who ran President Reagan's past two campaigns in Illinois, confirmed Wednesday he will seek the GOP nomination for the state's number-two job.

Totten said from his suburban Chicago office he probably would open his campaign of- ficially about Sept. 10.

On Sept. 17, U.S. Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis is to appear at a Chicago-area fundraiser in his behalf, Totten said.

Ryan said Tuesday chances were "pretty good" he would seek the party's nomination for lieutenant governor — with the backing of Gov. James R. Thompson.

Ryan said he probably would have an announcement within a week.

Asked if he had the support of Thompson — his potential running mate — Ryan replied: "That's the only way I'll run. I think the governor will be with me."

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Wednesday they will restart long-stalled talks on Palestinian autonomy.

But their two-day summit left unresolved key differences between them, they indicated.

Meeting reporters at Sadat's summer home in this Mediterranean port, they said the talks will resume Sept. 23 and 24 between their foreign ministers.

South Africa invades Angola

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Prime P.W. Botha said Wednesday his troops were engaged in combat in Angola against black guerrillas fighting for control of South-West Africa.

Angola was reported ordering a general mobilization of its armed forces in response to what it has termed an invasion and attempt by the South Africans to occupy the southern part of its country.

In New York, a spokesman for U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim was cutting short his Austrian vacation because of the developments, which brought condemnation by Western powers on Wednesday.

Scientists attempt to repair Voyager after platform jam

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists worked Wednesday to fix a platform on Voyager 2 that jammed after the ship swept past Saturn, leaving its television cameras aiming uselessly into space as it began a five-year journey to Uranus. Scientists said the malfunction, which occurred shortly after Voyager skimmed 63,000 miles above the giant planet, might have been caused by a collision with debris from one of Saturn's rings.

Despite the problem, chief scientist Edward Stone said he was happy.

"We have accomplished most, if not all, of our major scientific objectives," Stone said at a news conference.

Mission director Richard Laefer said emergency actions were taken at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, nearly a billion miles from the ailing spacecraft, to protect the two television cameras and three other instruments on the disabled platform.

He said engineers were trying to "get the data and start figuring out what the possibilities might be."

"I personally have hopes of figuring this out real quick," Laefer said, but conceded the problem may defy solution.

"The spacecraft is perfect (otherwise)" and was in two-way communication with mission controllers, said JPL spokesman Frank Bristow.

But Laefer said the platform, mounted on the end of a long boom, won't rotate horizontally to aim its sensors at the desired targets. However, he said, it still can move up and down and it may be possible to accomplish the lateral movement by shifting the entire spacecraft if the platform remains frozen.

The platform became stuck while radio signals to Earth were blocked as Voyager was dipping behind Saturn.

The spacecraft dove through a sparse region of the rings during that period, and champagne corks popped here when signals were received at 1:59 a.m. CDT Tuesday, marking its completed passage.

But radioed data received 33 minutes later disclosed the problem.

Scientists had said earlier that crossing through the rings might be risky, because of the chance of collision with debris in the rings.

Engineers, who worked all day and night Tuesday and well into Wednesday, were awaiting playback of pictures and data recorded during the radio blackout behind Saturn. Like the flight recorder in a downed airplane, the tape may reveal what happened and when.

But all experiments still to be conducted when the malfunction occurred were irrevocably lost, apparently including planned close encounters with the moons Tethys and Rhea.

The mission up to that point "exceeded our fondest dreams," photography team scientist David Morrison said late Tuesday.

Despite the problem, Voyager began a 1.76 billion-mile trip that will take it past Uranus in 1986. Laefer said that even if the problems are permanent, "we should be able ... to do more than a simple mission" at Uranus by shifting the craft to aim its cameras.

Campus Mail Service reduces staff, deliveries

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

In an effort to cut costs, the Campus Mail Service has reduced the number of student workers it hires and will discontinue its usual twice-daily mail deliveries for fall semester, according to Harry Wirth, director of the mail service.

Instead, deliveries will be made only once each day, as they were during the summer semester.

"This is a decision that was made at the presidential staff level in an attempt to save money," Wirth said. "I don't have any idea if it's permanent or not, but it has been decided to continue once a day deliveries through this year."

By hiring six student workers less than usual, the service will save between $10,000 and $15,000 per year, Wirth said.

"We have 11 or 12 workers making deliveries in the morning, and if we had afternoon deliveries we would need that many then, too."

"This way, we only kept five or six afternoon workers to pick up and sort the mail," he said.

Mail delivery and pickups are now made between 9 a.m. and noon. The schedule will continue throughout the year, except for areas which had an afternoon pickup in the summer.

Bar owner appeals decision

The owner of Dass Fass has appealed to the Illinois Liquor Control Commission to overturn the Carbondale Liquor Commission's refusal to grant him a liquor license for the establishment.

A hearing on the appeal, filed last week, is scheduled for Oct. 28 in Springfield.

Herb Vogel, owner of the bar at 517 S. Illinois Ave., was denied a liquor license by the city because of a "Halloween ordinance" which prohibits granting new liquor licenses to bars on Illinois Avenue between Grand Avenue and Walnut Street, including bars that have gone out of business. The ordinance allows operating bars to renew their licenses.

Student's tragic death may not have been in vain

It often happens in this day and age that witnesses to crimes decide not to get involved, not to report what they have seen to the police.

One is reminded of the incident which occurred in New York several years ago when a young woman was beaten to death in the courtyard of a crowded apartment complex—within earshot of hundreds of people—and not one person would come to her aid or testify later about what had happened.

Here in Carbondale we have experienced a somewhat similar tragedy recently. Susan Schumake, an SIU-C student, was found raped and murdered on the University campus. Authorities believe that she was killed during the daylight hours of Aug. 17 in an area where there is fairly consistent pedestrian and auto traffic. And yet, for more than a week the police reported no new developments in the case.

The question which begged to be asked was "How could such a crime be committed during the daylight hours in such an easily accessible area without anyone noticing something unusual?"

It all began to sound disturbingly familiar. But something has begun to happen. The efforts of the police, the efforts of the local media and, most importantly, the response of the general citizenry have begun to yield a wealth of new information, according to Carbondale Police Lt. Terry Murphy.

"This is the most response we have gotten to date on any case where citizen assistance was requested," Murphy said. "We are constantly getting new information."

It is, of course, still too early for Carbondale authorities to reveal the exact nature of what they have discovered and the case is still unsolved. But something is happening. The case is not lying dormant. People are responding in a true spirit of concern—concern about the fate of Susan Schumake, concern for her family and friends, concern for the safety of us all. That response is heartening.

But this is no time to fall back into complacency. The murderer has not yet been found. If you have any information, no matter how insignificant you may think it to be, call the Carbondale Police, the SIU-C Police or the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation.

If, by doing so, you can help make life a little bit safer in Carbondale, Susan Schumake's death will not have been in vain.

An open letter to Reagan

Editor's note: Professor Christensen sent the original of this letter to President Reagan early this month in the wake of the presidential decision to begin production of the neutron bomb. He has not yet received a reply.

By David E. Christensen
Professor of Geography

DEAR PRESIDENT REAGAN:

You are recognized as a strong advocate of saving the taxpayers' money and you are cutting programs that, in your judgment, have not given the taxpayers a reasonable return in services.

However, you seem to believe that our national security can be achieved only through greater military expenditures.

The very facts that the arms race between the United States and the Soviet Union continues, and that the security of our nation has not been achieved over the decades are clear evidence of the failure to achieve national security through more and more military expenditure.

ARE THERE ALTERNATIVES to our spending more and more of the taxpayers' money on a non-functional approach to achieving national security?

A first reaction might be that we cannot afford to experiment with something as vital and precious as our national security, but it seems more intelligent to try a new approach that has a chance of providing national security than to continue to give false hope to our people and escalate spending of the national treasure on an approach that actually undermines our physical and economic security in both the short and long run.

PEOPLE WHO REMEMBER a bit of history should have learned the following:

—Increases in "defense" spending lead to arms races which in the long run decrease national security and jeopardize maintenance of peace.

—Arms races lead to wars, proving the futility of this approach toward achieving or maintaining national security over the long term.

—Wars do not solve the problems that brought them on. Wars only change for a time the balance of power among the nations and access to critical resources.

—Arms races and wars also waste people and resources and divert valuable goods, services and talent to non-productive military uses.

—Through the ages, competing communities in the world have grown in scale from tribes to nations.

—At each level, war has been eliminated by enlarging the size of the functioning community and granting to the enlarged community the power to police disagreements among its members.

CONSIDERING THESE SIX POINTS, how can we break out of the "military superiority syndrome"? Perhaps by seeking world security instead!

At present the United Nations is the only viable international organization available to act on behalf of all the world's nations and peoples to try to keep the peace and control the anarchy among nations.

As a logical alternative to the dead-end military superiority approach to national defense, we could seek arms-reducing pacts like the SALT agreements and use our national influence to enlarge the powers of the UN to deal with international incidents and frictions.

We would have to do this knowing full well that conflicts and disagreements would not always be resolved to the satisfaction of all involved parties— including ourselves.

A LASTING PEACE would disadvantage— in the short term— the many individuals, corporations and communities that are heavily dependent on the military for their livelihood; but against this "cost," surely peace and world stability would be a far greater benefit.

The economic and political power of our militarily oriented corporations and communities, to say nothing of the lobbying power of the Pentagon itself, could discourage many leaders from pursuing a course that might reduce military-related profits, economic bases or power.

Presidents Nixon and Carter both worked to achieve reasonable SALT agreements and tried to deal with world problems with personal, highly focused diplomatic efforts. They also escalated military spending. But their efforts hardly resulted in a more peaceful, stable world.

THE FATES OF ALL NATIONS, including our own, now are so intertwined and interdependent that any realistic and lasting security-finding effort must be on a world scale.

I am writing to you in the hope that, as a new president, you will be open to some insights that, if followed, could help this nation and the world move into a new age with more peace, security and prosperity.

We voters must find leadership— leadership with a world orientation— that will help find and shift our national security emphasis to a new way and not blindly pursue endlessly expensive approaches that have proved themselves inadequate and obsolete.

Letter Depoliticize Simon conflict

Simon vs. National Conservative Political Action Committee is an issue of campaign financing, methods and ethics common to all individuals and groups, regardless of party, who participate in American politics. Those concerned about the campaign ethics of groups such as NCPAC and PROPAC (the liberal equivalent of NCPAC) should take a moment to consider the fact that the same standard of ethics has been employed by factions of political groups and media for decades.

Following Watergate, an effort to raise the standard of campaign ethics and accountability resulted in significant campaign finance reforms.

In a case questioning the constitutionality of the campaign finance laws, the Supreme Court in 1976 (Buckley v. Valeo) ruled that while Congress might limit contributions to a candidate's campaign, it could not limit individuals or informal ad hoc groups (such as NCPAC, PROPAC and Americans For Change) in making expenditures to express their own views in support of, or in opposition to, candidates.

So there are two avenues for contributing towards the election of a candidate. One way is to contribute to a candidate's official campaign. The contribution will be limited and disclosed. By limiting contributions, obvious conflicts of interest are avoided, and the candidate is forced to communicate with and solicit contributions from a larger group.

The other avenue is to contribute to a campaign or conduct a campaign of one's own either for or against a candidate. Contributions and expenditures are unlimited as long as there is no connection or coordination with the candidate's official campaign.

Both avenues require public responsibility for determining potential conflicts of interest on one hand and for evaluating both the source and content of campaign related information on the other hand. Both avenues are completely legal. Neither avenue is unethical. Only the people involved can be unethical.

Hopefully we have not forgotten how brutal and unethical campaigns could be before PACs came on the scene. It would be injurious to believe that PACs are now the only purveyors of unethical campaign tactics.

I suggest we depoliticize this Simon v. NCPAC conflict and approach the campaign for U.S. Representative in the 24th District in a responsible manner by accepting our responsibility as media consumers to evaluate our information and by focusing public debate on the immediate national issues.

Jaywalkers face ticketing

By Douglas Hamm
Staff Writer

If pedestrians don't start using more care when crossing streets and intersections, the SIU-C Security Police may start enforcing city jaywalking codes, according to Lt. Marvin Braswell, of the SIU-C police.

"We've been receiving a lot of comments from citizens about people walking out in front of cars. We haven't actively enforced jaywalking codes in the past, but if the problem keeps growing, we may have to start enforcing them," Braswell said.

Braswell said the problem of people entering intersections and forcing cars to stop or swerve is a "major" one and that it seems to be a bigger problem this semester. He said the problem is that students step off curbs, hoping that cars will stop for them.

"The key to the problem is in right-of-way," Braswell said. "Students shouldn't press their luck even if they have the right-of-way."

At intersections with crossing lights, pedestrians may enter the street when the "Walk" light flashes. If the light is flashing "Don't Walk," pedestrians shouldn't cross the intersection.

At unlit crossings, pedestrians should enter the street early enough so that drivers have ample time to yield. If pedestrians cross a street too early and cause a car to have an accident, they are liable for the accident.

"This is a courtesy-type situation," Braswell said. "You yield to the person who is there first. If you have time to cross a street without impeding traffic, then it is okay to cross. Never enter an intersection if it will be difficult for traffic to stop."

Braswell said he is not putting all the blame on pedestrians.

"There are a lot of drivers who just won't stop for pedestrians. You can't depend on the traffic to stop for you," he said.

Braswell said the problem is "more noticeable" at the beginning of a semester. He added that in his 18 years as an SIU-C police officer, he has not seen the problem as serious as it is this semester.

"We haven't had any serious accidents yet, but we can't wait until someone gets hurt to do something," Braswell said. "We are trying to alert persons and educate the public about the hazards of walking carelessly."

Joyce Schemonia, statistical clerk for the SIU-C security office, said Wednesday that as of July 31, this year there has been only one pedestrian struck by a vehicle. That incident occurred in a parking lot and not an intersection.

Old Main's image may fade away

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

The Old Main Building, gone from campus since it was destroyed by fire 12 years ago, may soon disappear from SIU-C service awards, where its image can still be seen.

A proposal to replace the picture of Old Main with a likeness of the fountain in front of Davies Gymnasium is now being examined by Charles Daugherty, acting director of communication services.

"We think it's something people will be able to identify with more easily, since many people here don't remember the Old Main anymore," Daugherty said. "The boy and girl on the statue would be a good emblem."

The service awards are presented to faculty members and civil service employees at the University in recognition of service, Daugherty said. Any final decision on changing the symbol on the awards would be made by President Albert Somit.

"President Somit has expressed some interest in the proposal, but right now we're still looking into it," Daugherty said. "A final decision to either go ahead or drop the idea will be made by Sept. 15."

Daugherty said he plans to consult alumni groups and members of the University community to get their reactions before a decision is made.

No plans are being considered to change the seal of the University, on which the Old Main Building also appears. Such a change would require action by the Board of Trustees, according to Daugherty.

"The seal is another thing," Daugherty said. "I would not propose to change that."

The fountain, which is made of bronze, depicts two characters from the French novel "Paul and Virginia," according to Pete Brown, coordinator of the University News Service. It was donated to the University by the class of 1887, the same year the Old Main Building was dedicated.

State cleaning up radioactive plant

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Illinois has begun cleaning up part of a radioactive plant in Ottawa that has been sitting idle for three years, Gov. James R. Thompson's office said Wednesday.

Workers for a private sheet metal company began removing the Luminous Processes Inc.'s ventilation stack, which is suspected of leaking radioactivity when it rains, the announcement said.

The company, which used the radioactive material tritium to make luminous watch dials, closed nearly three years ago after the Nuclear Regulatory Commission pulled its license to use such materials.

Illinois sued the firm for failing to meet health and worker safety standards, and has asked the LaSalle County Circuit Court to order the firm to clean up the plant. The legal case is pending.

As part of the suit, the state is asking the company to pay for the cleanup.

Ottawa officials have complained that children play near the empty plant, whose insides have been detected emitting low-level radioactivity from residues of the watch dial operations.

Mike McCann, state Nuclear Safety Department director of the cleanup project, was quoted in the announcement as saying contamination inside the plant is "well in excess of agency standards."

The building "cannot be safely occupied until a thorough cleanup is accomplished," McCann said in the statement.

The governor's office also said state highway workers will fence off parts of two parking lots next to the plant beginning Thursday.

Diversity, power mark 'Pretenders II'

By Alan Sculley

Review

Pretenders II, the Pretenders, Sire Records. Reviewer's rating: 3 1/2 stars (4 stars tops).

devastating rocker.

These songs also remind the listener of another aspect of the band's style which was prevalent on the debut album the stance of vocalist-songwriter Chrissie Hynde as the tough chick. But other songs find Hynde and the band venturing into a more subdued and softer sound.

On "I Go To Sleep," Hynde compliments the relaxed pace of the song with lyrics and vocals that reveal a vulnerable aspect of her personality that has not emerged on her other music. Several other songs also carry this quieter sound, an aspect which gives a sense of maturity to the group's sound.

Hynde's vocal style is another source of progress for the band. While always distinctive, her vocals on the first album often took a backseat to the guitar-heavy instrumentals. On "Pretenders II," however, Hynde's vocals, which are more powerful and striking, highlight several songs.

Obviously little had can be said about "Pretenders II." In fact, the main defect of the album is the inclusion of two previously-released songs, "Talk of the Town" and "Message of Love." Both are excellent songs, but they seem out of place on this album, which finds this band making refreshing additions to its already accomplished style.

To quote some cliches, the Pretenders are on the cutting edge of rock and roll. If "Pretenders II" is indicative of the development this band will show on coming albums, there can be little doubt that the Pretenders will be one of the few bands that matter during the 1980s.

Du Quoin loses Nelson show; Pride to replace

Country music performer Willie Nelson will be unable to appear at the Du Quoin State Fair Friday, Sept. 4, because of illness, and Charley Pride has been scheduled to appear in his place on that date, according to fair officials.

Pride, a local favorite, will appear with special guest star Janie Fricke. Ticket prices remain at $12 and $10, and showtimes are 6 p.m. and 10 p.m.

Fair officials also announced that Nelson had agreed to honor his Du Quoin date at the 1982 Du Quoin State Fair. Full details regarding Nelson's 1982 appearance are forthcoming, they said. Ticket stubs from this year's show may be used to gain seating preference for the 1982 date, but payment must accompany the stub.

Tickets previously purchased to the Willie Nelson shows will be honored for the Charley Pride and Janie Fricke performances. Ticket-holders desiring refunds can obtain them at the fair ticket office only prior to performances.

For refunds, tickets may be mailed to the fair ticket office at P.O. Box 191, Du Quoin, Ill. 62832. These must be post-marked no later than Sept. 1.

Ticket office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. until Friday, August 28 when the ticket office will be open from 8 a.m. until intermission of the last evening show.

Turbine research not just tilting at windmills

By Jennifer Polk
Staff Writer

Dr. Curtis Dodd

the highest point in the area."

Dodd is director of a three-year project studying ways to protect wind turbines from lightning. The project is funded by the U.S. Department of Energy and overseen by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Thomas McCalla and David Begley, associate professors in electrical science and engineering at SIU-C, and James G. Smith, chairman of the department, are also participating in the project.

The researchers are studying wind turbines across the country, including five experimental installations in Ohio, Rhode Island, Texas, North Carolina and New Mexico.

Dodd said the question isn't whether or not a turbine will be hit, but how bad the damage will be when it is.

"If a wooden blade on a turbine gets hit by lightning, it literally shatters," he said. "Steel blades won't be destroyed, but they can act as conductors and steer an electrical charge right to the circuits and sensors that control the generating units or the gears and bearings that turn the shaft. The charge may arc over onto power lines and there's no guarantee that it won't cause damage to home wiring."

Dodd and his research team have experimented with lightning rods as one of the methods to improve the grounding of wind turbines and their blades.

"We can put lightning rods on the towers, but not on the blades themselves," Dodd said. "The rods would interfere with the rhythm of the turbine and cut down on the power produced. They can play only a minor role."

The study has also focused on the experimental use of metallic tape along the edge of turbine blades to act as a conductor. Wooden blades can be covered with screen wire, then Fiberglas and then a coat of paint. The wire will act as a conductor. Sensitive instrument wires can be housed in metal conduits to protect them from lightning.

Though experts disagree on the future of wind turbines as an energy source, Dodd feels that they have great potential in some areas.

"Not all areas are suitable for wind turbines," he said. "There has to be a certain amount of wind during the year to make it worthwhile. States that used windmills before can probably use them for agricultural purposes like pumping water and irrigation."

Illinois is not a particularly good state for wind turbines, Dodd said, but some states have programs that encourage their use.

WINDMILLS from Page 8

"I think it's partly a matter of anticipating energy costs," Dodd said. "For instance, if a wind turbine generates electricity at eight cents per kilowatt hour while electricity sells at five cents per kilowatt hour, then it's not economical. But suppose the price of electricity goes to 20 cents per kilowatt hour over a period of five or six years. Then the wind turbine is economically practical.

FRED'S
IS NOT SQUARE DANCE

WHO IS FRED?

Fred was a coal miner who liked to dance and party on Saturday nights. But he also was a family man. He wanted to go someplace where he and his entire family could have fun... but didn't cost too much (in other words cheap). There were only so many weddings, Jacob Days, Snow-fests, Ava & Sasser Homecomings to go to. The fraternal clubs were for members only. The Strip didn't play country music (real country music, the kind you can clog to), and if you're a drinking man the strip became too expensive.

The only solution for Fred was to build his own place, where young and old could go, to hear country music pure and simple, and bring their own coolers to cut costs.

In 1968, Fred built his dance barn and instantly became a part of the cultural tradition of Southern Illinois.

If you enjoy Southern Illinois, Giant City Park, The Pomona General Store, Little Grassy Lake, and Ma Hales...

CHICAGO (AP) — The lithe, tanned young man garbed only in bandanna and gym shorts weaves in and out of traffic on his roller skates, eyes swimming and hips gyrating to a backbeat only he can hear — perhaps the only thing he can hear.

It's a familiar summer scene in the city. The miniature, battery-run stereo cassette unit that hooks onto any belt and transmits tunes through featherweight earphones has possessed Americans on the move.

It has them so possessed, a Chicago alderman believes, that tuned-in traveling audiophiles are tuning out the real world around them, endangering both their own safety and that of others.

So Alderman Louis P. Farina has asked the City Council to ban the use of "any radio, tape player or other device with earphones ... while operating a bicycle, motorcycle, moped, snowmobile or any other such device on the public way." The proposed ordinance, which advises a minimum $50 fine for each offense, is scheduled for a council vote Sept. 14.

Farina tuned in to the problem while driving to work

Aug. 18 when he had to swerve to avoid a "tuned-out" cyclist on a collision course with the alderman's car. The biker never heard Farina's car horn.

"Some of the manufacturers and retailers don't like my move because headsets are the hottest item on their market today, and radio commentators are unhappy because it will interfere with their listening audience," said Farina. "But if I can save one life I'll be happy because they (stereo headsets) are very dangerous."

Manufacturers sold an estimated 750,000 units worldwide in 1979, 805,000 in 1980 and are expected to sell 1.5 million this year, according to Ralph Jones of the Electronics Industry Association in Washington D.C. He estimated total 1981 retail sales would reach $200 million.

"We can't make enough of them," says Bill Baker, vice-president of corporate communications for Sony Corp. of America, whose parent company two years ago pioneered stereo headsets with the Soundabout, now called the Walkman.

Rick Puntill, a sales representative with Pacific Stereo in Chicago, says sales are "double last year — we can't keep any in stock." Puntill links the units' popularity to America's fitness fix.

"People are getting into bicycling, jogging, skiing, and it's a lot more enjoyable with nice music going," he said.

Fixing sore bodies is Spackman's job

By Cindy L. Echols
Student Writer

The worst aftereffect of participation in sports is often nothing more than a bruised ego. But the services of Robert "Doc" Spackman stand ready to treat the more tangible aches and pains.

"I take care of students, faculty, staff and alumni," said Spackman, a certified athletics trainer who treats people for sports-related injuries.

Spackman said he treated 687 clients last spring—436 males and 251 females. The most common injuries during the spring semester were knee, back and ankle ailments and shoulder and foot injuries.

"I wasn't as busy this summer because a lot of students don't know I'm here," explained Spackman, who formerly was athletic trainer for the Saluki teams.

Spackman's service is a division of the Student Wellness Resource Center. His office is located next to the basketball gymnasium on the lower level of the Recreation Center.

"Doc" is available for consultation from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Appointments to see him can be made at the equipment desk on the lower level of the Recreation Center.

"No other universities offer a service to students like the program here," said Mike Dunn, director of the Center.

Hardly a day goes by when someone doesn't get injured, Spackman said. Most of the injuries are sports-related, and Spackman said it's hard to find a doctor who can treat these types of injuries.

"Most people can't get well going to a regular doctor," Spackman said, "because they don't take the time to work on the injury long enough."

"If you can move the injured area, I can show you how to strengthen it," he said.

Spackman reports a 95 percent recovery rate if the injured person follows his program.

"People have to learn to listen to their bodies," Spack-

Board looks to stop city water

By Andrew Strang
Staff Writer

The Murdale Water District Board of Trustees threatened Tuesday to obtain a court injunction against Carbondale if the city begins providing water to 26 homes on Tower Road, but the board withdrew their threat of court action against the owners of the homes if they agree to accept the city water.

While the board said any attempt to obtain an injunction would first need their approval, members agreed that approval would probably be given if Carbondale proceeds with the hook-ups.

"If they start moving or disconnecting our lines, I recommend that we start moving immediately," William Ridgeway, board attorney, said.

"The issue is: can they take our property and rights to property without paying us," Ridgeway said. "Can they bother our lines, take our customers and jeopardize the contracts we have?"

The dispute revolves around the question of who will provide water service to the homes on Tower Road. Presently, the water district is providing water but Carbondale is providing sewer service to the homes.

For six years, Carbondale has been unsuccessfully trying to purchase the district's facilities that provide water to 515 customers who live in the city limits. But a price has never been agreed upon, according to Jack Foster, director of water and sewer services for Carbondale.

In an effort to settle the issue, possibly in court, the city council last month decided to begin providing water service to Tower Road residents, Foster said.

"The intention of the city is to force a decision," Foster said. Ridgeway told the board that he believes, based on an Illinois court case, that a court injunction would be granted. He declined, however, to name the case because he did not want to aid the city attorneys if the issue ever reaches court.

When attempting to get homeowners to authorize the city to connect its water service, City Manager Carroll Fry had pointed out a local ordinance that allows the city to cut off sewer service to any building that refuses city water. He later said no action would be taken against those owners that did not sign the authorization.

man said. He emphasizes treating symptoms, not just combating the problem with aspirin and painkillers.

Spackman said he sees a lot of 25-year-olds who have the bodies of 35-year-olds.

"For the masses, fitness ends at age 15," he said. "After this age they begin to drive cars and stop riding a bike or walking."

Many students are not physically active during winter months and try to jump back into strenuous exercise when warm weather returns, he said. These people are likely to end up with injuries.

In addition to injuries, Spackman "treats the whole person," he said. Pocket-sized fitness booklets, written by Spackman, help prescribe a fitness program tailored to the individual's needs.

"Everyone who sees one of our booklets on fitness wants to introduce it into their program," he said. "Eight major league baseball clubs use the baseball fitness book, and the National Basketball Association has adopted our basketball book for their program."

If he encounters a program he is unable to handle, Spackman refers the client to the Student Wellness Resource Center.

In resigning from office earlier this month, O'Neal complained the job was too confining and basically had no significance in state government.

But there's no shortage of Republicans angling for the party nod to fill the office, which remains vacant until after the 1982 election.

Ryan and Totten are expected to join a field already including Sen. Prescott Bloom of Peoria, former Rep. James Nowlan, now a University of Illinois professor, and Rep. Herbert Huskey of Oak Lawn.

With Totten able to draw on White House support, his tilt with Ryan could turn out to be a power struggle between Reagan and Thompson.

Asked if the primary fight could ever get to that point,

Local teachers

still picketing;

no negotiations on

By The Associated Press

Teachers manned picket lines in four Southern Illinois school districts Wednesday as contract negotiations broke down.

Some 60 teachers in the Trico Community Unit School District near Campbell Hill, in Jackson County, were off the job as more than 1,000 students received an extended summer vacation. A meeting has been set with a federal mediator for Friday, according to Superintendent Jim Davis.

An estimated 590 teachers were off the job at Granite City in Madison County where 10,500 students were to return to classes this week. In O'Fallon, 80 teachers at the elementary school were off the job but district officials were attempting to hold classes for some 1,800 students.

In the Zeigler-Royalton District in Franklin County, another 40 teachers were off the job as classes were called off for more than 800 students.

Teachers in Sandoval have held informational picketing every day for 45 minutes before school starts but have been teaching classes. Talks with a federal mediator are set for Thursday night. Talks are also continuing at schools in Benton, Cairo, Mount Vernon, Salem and the Shawnee District in Wolf Lake where teachers are working without contracts.

Totten said: "It probably will." Ryan disagreed.

"I can't believe the White House would come into the state of Illinois and get into a power struggle with the one governor who's been its biggest supporter," he said.

Although not an early supporter of Reagan's campaign last year, Thompson has been a vocal backer of the president's policies.

Ryan, 47, is from Kankakee, and would add geographic as well as political balance to a ticket headed by Thompson.

NUCLEAR from Page 2

NIPSCO had said July 31 that the project might be abandoned if it continued to face legal and regulatory problems. The company had been seeking approval from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to renew its construction permit, which expired in 1979.

Although construction of the plant began in 1974, the plant is reported to be only about 1 percent complete. Work at the plant stopped in 1977, when federal officials ordered a halt so they could examine plans for the plant's foundation.

University Mall, Carbondale & N. Park Herrin

By Daniel Q. Haney
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A new drug made from penicillin reduces levels of cholesterol in the blood and may prevent hardening of the arteries, an underlying cause of the heart attacks and strokes that kill 800,000 Americans a year, researchers say.

A study shows that the experimental drug compactin is effective in people with an inherited defect that produces high blood cholesterol levels and leads to premature heart disease.

Doctors familiar with the research say it may someday have a wider application in preventing heart disease for millions of otherwise healthy people who have too much cholesterol in their blood.

The new study was directed by Dr. Hiroshi Mabuchi at Kanazawa University School of Medicine in Japan and published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The Japanese doctors gave compactin to seven people with hypercholesterolemia. Such victims often have two or three times the usual levels of cholesterol in their blood. They are five times more likely than normal to have heart disease, which often appears when they are in their 40s.

The patients, including a woman and three of her children, took small doses of the drug for 24 weeks. Their blood levels of a form of cholesterol called low-density lipoprotein, or LDL, fell 29 percent. Their levels of high-density lipoprotein, which protects against heart disease, were unchanged.

Researchers also reported no adverse side effects.

LDL causes fatty deposits on the blood vessels and makes them narrow and clog. This condition, called hardening of the arteries or atherosclerosis, contributes directly to the heart attack and stroke that make heart disease America's No. 1 killer.

In an accompanying editorial, Drs. Michael S. Brown and Joseph L. Goldstein of the University of Texas Health Science Center said the development of compactin "assumes great importance."

Gag order issued on delayed trial for bomb incident

OLNEY (AP) — A trial for a suspect in an Olney bombing incident has been delayed and a Richland County circuit judge has imposed a gag order on the case.

Leonard Ezell, 28, had a preliminary hearing Monday and was bound over to stand trial on charges of attempted murder and aggravated arson by Judge Lawrence Arnold, who also granted a request for a gag order by defense attorney Ray Fehrenbacher. The order prohibits the news media from printing any information from Monday's hearing.

Richland County State's Attorney Brad Vaughn did not object to the gag and said that rulings on such issues are vague.

Ezell turned himself in to county authorities Aug. 9 after being sought in the Aug. 4 bombing of the Carol Brown residence in Olney.

Authorities arrested Ezell's wife Mary and Daniel Dvorak, 19, Monday on charges related to the case. Mrs. Ezell was charged with aiding and abetting the unlawful making of a destructive device.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY
AT CARBONDALE

Under the University policy on the Release of Student Information and Public Law 93380 as amended, the University may make accessible to any person external to the University "directory information" concerning a student, unless that student notifies the Office of Admissions and Records that he or she objects to the release of such information. Directory information is considered to be public in nature and will be released at any time upon request without prior approval from the student. Notice is therefore given that directory information listed below in respect to each student enrolled at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale will be available to any person unless the student files in writing with the Office of Admissions and Records a request to restrict release of student directory information to external sources.

The University has designated as directory information the following student information:

Student name.
 Student local address and telephone number.
 Student home address and telephone number.
 Date-of-birth.
 Current term hours carried.
 Classification (freshman, sophomore, etc.).
 Academic unit.
 Major.
 Dates of attendance.
 Degrees and honors earned and dates.
 The most previous educational agency or institution attended prior to enrollment at Southern Illinois University.
 Participation in officially recognized activity or sport and weight, height and pictures of members of athletic teams.
 Picture.

Any student enrolled for the Fall Semester who does not wish to have released any or all of the above listed items of information should contact, in person, the Office of Admissions and Records, Woody Hall by Thursday, Sept. 3, 1981. Students who elect to restrict release of student information must sign a statement to that effect. The restriction on the release of student information will be valid until September 1, 1982, and must be renewed annually each Fall Semester.

Students who wish to verify or correct the existing student directory information must also contact in person, the Office of Admissions and Records, Woody Hall.

Amtrak announces route cutback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amtrak, threatened earlier this year by President Reagan's budget cuts, announced Wednesday a route network that eliminates some unprofitable trains but keeps most of the system intact.

Amtrak President Alan S. Boyd said 90 percent of service now provided will continue after September, when the 1982 fiscal year begins.

A number of trains that have failed to attract enough passengers to meet congressional requirements will be eliminated, however, and trips along the successful Northeast Corridor as well as between Chicago and Milwaukee will be curtailed.

Boyd said the new routes and other cost-cutting efforts will allow the system to operate within the $735 million subsidy provided by Congress for the next fiscal year. Amtrak originally had asked for $960 million and said it could run the full system on $842 million.

The Amtrak trains that will stop running Oct. 1 are:

—The "Shenandoah," which runs from Washington to Cincinnati.

—The "North Star," an overnight train running between Chicago and St. Paul, Minn. Amtrak will introduce daily service on the "Empire Builder" to replace the "North Star."

—The "Pacific International," running between Seattle and Vancouver, B.C.

In addition, Amtrak announced that two state-supported trains, run by Amtrak—the commuter line "Beacon Hill," between New Haven, Conn., and Boston, and the "Black Hawk" between Chicago and Dubuque, Iowa—will be discontinued because the states did not want to pick up the costs.

The reduction in trip frequencies center along the Northeast Corridor between Boston and Washington but also affected a number of other trains around the country.

Clarification

In a story on day care services offered on campus that appeared in the Day Egyptian Monday, August 25, one item was inadvertently left out. The Rainbow's End preschool offers day care for the children of students, faculty or staff. The preschool, operated under SIU's Office of Student Development, is located at 925 Giant City Road.

The Amtrak Metroliners will be reduced from 27 to 24 a day between Washington and New York and from 10 to nine a day between Boston and New York. Boyd said the change will save Amtrak $13.4 million.

Boyd, who predicted earlier that service would have to be cut by 15 percent to cope with the budget cuts, said Wednesday that costs had been cut by a variety of means in addition to route changes, saving $87 million.

Previous cost-cutting programs announced by Amtrak included a 25 percent reduction of headquarters staff and changes in food services.

HIS FIRST YEAR OUT OF COLLEGE, FRANK QUACKENBUSH RENOVATED THREE BUILDINGS, WORKED ON A DAM, PAVED A ROAD, AND BUILT TWO CHOPPER PADS.

Most of the engineers I graduated with probably would wind up as assistant engineers or simply do field work. Maybe doing the details for somebody else's design or supervising some small aspect of construction.

But my first year as an Engineer Lt., I've designed many of my own projects and supervised the construction on everything from baseball dugouts to the concrete work on a dam. Earthmoving, grading, filling, paving, concrete work, masonry — you name it, I've supervised it.

Whether I stay in the Army or go into civilian construction work later, I've got experience that some engineers won't have when they're 37.

Frank Quackenbush, second in command of the University of Arkansas ROTC, is a member of Army ROTC.

The engine started readily at room temperature and at its full operating temperature range of 180-190 degrees Fahrenheit when any combination of the fuel and oil was used, including pure degummed soybean oil, Wolff said.

The tractor also performed very similarly across the board in terms of horse power, Wolff said.

An analysis of some of the physical properties of the mixtures was made at the start of the study in September 1980, he said.

Soybean oil is slightly more dense than diesel fuel and the amount of energy yielded from a sample when burned is about 85 percent of that of diesel fuel, Jefferson said.

The biggest difference is between the viscosity or "how readily the stuff flows," Jefferson said. Soybean oil is about 10 times as viscous as diesel fuel, he said.

Jefferson said he expected these differences to cause a decrease in the efficiency of the engine as more soybean oil was added. Actually little appreciable difference was discovered in the tests.

The price of the fuel mixture is not yet economically competitive, Wolff said. Soybean oil ranges from $1.80 to $2.2 a gallon and diesel fuel is about $1.10 per gallon, he said.

However, the mixture could become more economical in the future or during emergency oil shortages, Wolff said. The marketing aspects of soybean oil is still being researched, he said.

Stewardess lawsuit settled

CHICAGO (AP) — United Airlines flight attendants who become pregnant will be allowed to continue working up to 27 weeks under a consent decree signed in federal court, court records showed Wednesday.

The agreement, approved by U.S. District Judge Marvin E. Aspen, ends a seven-year-old lawsuit filed against the airline by the Association of Flight Attendants.

In January 1979, United changed its policy on pregnant attendants to one almost the same as spelled out in the consent decree, according to Michael B. Erp, attorney for the attendants.

Under that policy, attendants may choose to continue working for up to 27 weeks before going on medical leave without any interruption in seniority.

Parking tickets being issued

By Douglas Hamm
Staff Writer

If you haven't bought a 1981-82 parking decal, there is a strong possibility that you will be ticketed for parking on-campus because the Parking Division began ticketing illegally parked cars this week, according to Marilyn Hogan, campus parking manager.

Hogan said cars with 1980-81 decals can park on campus this week because those decals are good until Aug. 30, but beginning Sept. 1, they will be ticketed. She added that parking decals are required for driving a car on campus.

All campus parking lots are designated by decal colors. Yellow decals cost $2, red decals $10 and blue decals (for faculty and staff) $30.

Hogan said a $10 fine is assessed for each ticket and all unpaid accounts are sent to the Bursar's Office, which bills for the tickets. She said that after a person has three or more unpaid tickets, the name is placed on a "tow list." A person whose car is towed away must pay the towing charge to retrieve the car.

Hogan said the driveway in front of the Student Center and the west side of University Avenue at Woody Hall are both no-parking zones and cars parked there will be towed.

Hogan offered some advice on keeping from being ticketed and towed:

"Drivers should be familiar with parking rules and regulations, register their cars, know where parking lots are located and call the Parking Division if they have any questions."

Hogan said that visitors to SIU-C can go to the Parking Division, in Washington Square, and get a guest permit at no charge.

Backgammon play expanding to 4-team league

The SIU-C Backgammon Club is going to form a league this fall for the first time.

The league, scheduled to begin Sept. 15, will consist of four teams to a division and four players to a team. It will take approximately six weeks for all the teams to play each other, according to club President Jimmy Gevas.

Two nine-point matches will be played per night and it will take two weeks to finish playing a team, which will help alleviate boredom Gevas said. This guarantees participants at least four games per night, he said.

A fee of $20 per team will be charged so that trophies can be awarded to the league champion at the end of the season. The league is also seeking team sponsors.

A tournament is tentatively scheduled for Sept. 12 and details will be announced later. Potential sponsors or players can contact Gevas at 549-5555.

Dempsey keeps 24 walk-ons ; kicker puts on impressive show

Rod Furlow
Staff Writer

Twenty-four athletes attended Tuesday night's Saluki football tryout and Coach Rey Dempsey invited them all to stay around.

The walk-ons will learn team plays, practice with the team, go through the winter conditioning program, and report for spring practice if they stay with the team, Dempsey said. "We'll let them cut them selves, we won't cut them," Dempsey said. "We got our full scholarships cut to seven, and we have to do everything we can to make up for that. Taking a close look at walk-ons is one way we can compensate."

The walk-on who impressed Dempsey the most was placekicker and punter Bruce Monahan of Granite City.

"He did real well. We knew about him before, but that was before he dropped 65 pounds," Dempsey said. "Now he looks like a pretty good prospect."

A pair of freshmen from Chicago also impressed Dempsey. Alfred Coleman ran the 40-yard dash in 4.65 seconds, and Troy Anderson ran it in 4.7. Both want to play defensive back.

"You have these tryouts, and you're lucky if you get one or two guys who run it under five seconds," Dempsey said. "We had a lot of times from 4.9 to 5.1. If those guys hang around and go through winter conditioning, they could improve on those times."

Dempsey said the walk-ons would have a chance to beat out some of the 80 to 85 players who dress for home games by out-playing them in practice.

"The bottom guys dressing will know they have to scrap to keep the spots," Dempsey said. With the season opening Sept. 5, Dempsey said the starting lineup for the team should be set after the team's scrimmage at 8 p.m. Friday at Bleyer Field.

"We should know by Sunday. The tightest spot right now is for wide receiver, with three guys going for two spots."

Women athletes benefit from board

Keeping womens' sports a cohesive unit, voting on committees in the women's athletics department, and promoting the athletes themselves, are some of the duties of the Student Athletic Advisory Board.

Chairperson Cindy Clausen, senior field hockey player, said the board offers athletes a chance to learn more about the department.

"The board consists of 11 women athletes, one from each team," Clausen said. "Two athletes are on each of the four department committees—scholarships, general policy, budget, and scheduling.

"The committees also consist of community and faculty members, both athletic and non-athletic," she said. "Since one of the athletes has a vote on the committee, the athletes are have a direct voice in the department's actions."

The committee representatives report to the board at its meeting every two weeks. The teams are kept informed of the department's actions and how they will affect them, she said.

The meetings allow the teams to keep in touch with the views of players on other teams, she said. This way the women's teams are one cohesive unit, rather than 11 separate ones, according to Clausen.

Last year, the board ran a campaign urging the increase of the student athletic fee. A referendum concerning the fee increase will be held this fall. Clausen said that the board plans to urge the retention of the increase.

"We are also concerned about the possible merger of the athletics departments," she said. "But we have to wait until a decision is made before we take any action."

Cindy Scott, the board's advisor and women's basketball coach, said the board plays a part in setting departmental policy.

Iorg's hit rallies Cards to 9-4 win

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dane Iorg's bases-loaded triple keyed an eight-run outburst in the fifth inning, rallying the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-4 triumph over the San Francisco Giants Wednesday.

The free-swinging contest, highlighted by 13 Giants hits and 12 by St. Louis, also featured a fracas in the St. Louis dugout. Whitey Herzog, the Cards' manager, angrily jerked Garry Templeton from the edge of the playing field after the stormy St. Louis shortstop was ejected by plate umpire Bruce Froemming.

Templeton had made several obscene gestures to the St. Louis crowd after being booted.

Trailing 2-1 at the start of the fifth, the Cards jumped on San Francisco left-hander Gary Lavelle, 9-5, after Sixto Lezcano doubled and Darrell Porter struck out.

Tito Landrum walked on four pitches and Ken Oberkfell singled to shallow center to load the bases. After Fred Breunig relieved Lavelle, the pinch-triple by Iorg cleared the bases. A wild pitch, Porter's two-run single, and run-producing singles by Mike Ramsey and Tommy Herr came later in the inning.

In another close contest, Steve Dillard belted a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Chicago Cubs an 9-7 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Valley football race may be rerun of '80

By Rod Furlow
Staff Writer

After a long summer of watching TV reruns, most viewers look forward to fall for its new network programs. But one Missouri Valley Conference football team wouldn't mind a rerun of last season's Valley race.

The Tulsa Golden Hurricane, which won the conference with a 4-1 record, is considered by Valley coaches to again capture the conference crown this season.

For some other MVC teams, especially SIU-C and New Mexico State, a repeat of last season would be a nightmare. New Mexico State stayed out of last place with a 1-4-1 record, ahead of the 1-5 Salukis.

Although Tulsa is favored to win the Valley race, Coach John Cooper must compensate for the loss of some valuable athletes to graduation.

"We lost some great players, but I feel we have enough people back to again be considered a challenger for the title," Cooper said. "The teams that played us toughest last year were New Mexico State and Wichita State."

Tulsa's losses to graduation might drop it below Wichita State in the race, but New Mexico State's defense will have to improve from last season to shock Tulsa.

At 4-1-1, the Shockers finished a nail bite behind Tulsa and they beat the Hurricane 23-10. Wichita State will have seven starters returning from both its offensive and defensive squads, compared to five on each Tulsa squad.

Shocker quarterback Prince McJunkins, a junior, will have last season's MVC Newcomer of the Year to throw to again. That's flanker Reuben Eckels, who caught 23 passes, two for touchdowns, as a freshman.

McJunkins should have plenty of time to throw, because four offensive linemen are returning. And if he wants to hand off, fullback Bret Ingalls and tailback Darren Wilson will also be back.

If the Shocker offense can improve on its total offense, which ranked next-to-last in the Valley last season, Wichita State could win the conference—if last season's second-ranked defense in the Valley can hold despite a graduation-depleted secondary.

Indiana State has also lost much of its defensive secondary, from which only one starter return. But the Sycamores have experience everywhere else. Nine offensive starters and eight defensive ones will return.

Five of the offensive starters were all-MVC selections, and four of them made up the Sycamore passing game. Split end Eddie Ruffin, tight end Hubert Moore, wide receiver Kirk Wilson, and quarterback Reggie Allen will terrorize the inexperienced secondaries around the Valley.

Another all-MVC was linebacker Craig Shaffer, who will again team with Dan Maher, giving ISU experience behind the line.

With the spotty secondary and the strong passing game, the Sycamores could be in some wild, bomb-filled games.

Drake scored a lot of points last year with the 10th-ranked team in the nation in total offense, but MVC Offensive Player of the Year Rick Casko has graduated.

That leaves the quarterbacking job to junior Gary Yagelski, who had knee surgery after a spring-game injury, or junior college transfer Greg Ostowski.

Whoever the quarterback is, he'll have junior flanker Pat Dunsmore as a target. Dunsmore led the conference with 41 receptions for 701 yards.

Drake had another conference leader in junior fullback Amero Ware, who rushed for 964 yards.

Drake's defense was fifth in the Valley in total yards, but six starters are back. Returning linebacker and secondary starters teamed for 11 interceptions last year, but only one of the starters is in the secondary.

Great Britain's Steve Ovett sets new world record in mile

KOBLENZ, West Germany (AP)—Steve Ovett of Great Britain set a new world record in the mile Wednesday, covering the distance in 3 minutes, 48.40 seconds to break Sebastian Coe's week-old mark.

Coe, Ovett's countryman, had run a 3:48.53 mile in a meet in Zurich, Switzerland.

Ovett's dazzling performance was the highlight of the meet, which brought together leading track and field athletes from the United States, West Germany, the Soviet Union and other countries.

Steve Scott of the United States won the 1,500-meter race in 3:31.94 — an American record, the fourth best in history and close to Ovett's world record of 3:31.36. The old American record of 3:33.1 was set by Jim Ryun of Kansas in 1967.

Meanwhile, world record holder Henry Rono of Kenya posted the year's best time in the 5,000 meters, finishing in 13:12.15.

Ovett, performing before 22,000 fans on the same track where he set the world record in the 1,500 meters a year ago, outduelled James Robinson of the United States in the mile.
