Coroner rules homicide in former student's death

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

Although the death of former SIU-C student Daniel J. Doherty has been ruled a homicide in coroner's inquest Carbondale police believe it did not result accidentally from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Joseph Walter, SIU-C student who was found dead of a gunshot wound in his dorm room on July 26 in the bedroom at 900 E. Campus St. Police were told by a witness that Doherty had told investigators officers that he would not be coming to class the next day. Walter was found dead at the trailer of the time of the shooting.

Jackson County Coroner Don Ragland said a coroner's jury will hear evidence in the case next Tuesday.

The transcript of the inquest will be turned over to the police to supplement their investigation. It was being typed Wednesday.

"The circumstances and evidence presently available indicate that the wound may have been self-inflicted," Walter said.

"It still appears from certain circumstances that the wound was self-inflicted but we are continuing the investigation as if it were a homicide to assure that nothing has been overlooked and that all leads are concluded," he said.

Paige Wilson, a 22-year-old SIU-C student and Doherty's roommate, was at the trailer when officers arrived there. A "medium-sized man" who was wearing a green shirt fired one shot at a trailer that was occupied by Wilson's parents, police said.

Doherty was last enrolled in the University in the fall semester 1982.

Collection agencies seek Bursar bills

By Anna Flasa

Some former students with delinquent accounts are finding it is practically, if not guiltily conscience, to be dealt with by collection agencies seeking payment for bills that have risen 33 percent.

The University's collection agency policy, implemented in April, has been deemed a success by Robert Brewer, assistant vice-president for financial affairs.

Some 1,200 delinquent accounts receive three letters over a 12-month period, and 90 of possible collection agency action if no attempt at payment is made. According to Robert Brewer, assistant vice-president, Bill, the accounts turn over to either the United Advertising or American Credit and Collections, an additional charge of 33 percent of the total bill is added.

Brewer estimated that 750 of all accounts have been turned over to the agencies so far. He said that since SIU-C has a close to a 15 percent return on accounts so far.

"The figures given in an trend to be misleading," Brewer said.

"There is a continuous shifting of the accounts," he said. "But we're still seeing an immediate response in some instances from the accounts turned over."

"We have a set date back to the spring of 1982 to the practice. All is is used to other universities, including the University of Illinois.

Brewer said occasional complaints have been received, but that most students question the debt rather than the process. Brewer said it is part of the learning process that the students have to learn that the something is going to happen to guarantee payment," Brewer said.

Alleged rapist given six extra charges

Six additional charges, including rape and deviate sexual assault, against Kevin L. Simmons, who was convicted of attempted rape of a 15-year-old girl last weekend, Carbondale police said.

The charges stem from the rape of a 23-year-old woman in a Freeman Street apartment June 11. According to the statement, an apartment, raped her, denied her a car or she escaped through the window of the apartment, police said. She is still facing charges of sexual assault, the Carbondale police said.

Six additional charges against Simmons were filed by the Carbondale police this week.

"The figures given in an trend to be misleading," Brewer said.

Company closes waste dump

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The company that owns a large waste dump continues to oppose the site being closed, the company said Wednesday it will close the site, but the announcement apparently did not alter plans by state lawyers to proceed with closing the site.

"The attorney general's office is still faced with the site not being a site," said Richard Bevans, a Chicago lawyer handling the state's suit against U.S. Ecology Co., which operates the Springfield dump.

A statement released Wednesday by U.S. Ecology said the company was forced to shut down the facility in Bureau County, Illinois, because it was no longer practical to keep the site open because of limited disposal capacity.

The facility, which was closed by the state in 1982, runs 2.81 acres on a hill that was closed since 1973.

The Springfield facility marks the third large hazardous waste site in Illinois. The move will leave five state-owned sites remaining.

"The site is closed," said Bevans, who is the company's general counsel. "It did not close because of a lack of disposal capacity." The plan must be approved by the state and public hearings on the proposed plan have been conducted by the state since 1982. The mayor, who has been closed since 1973.

U.S. Ecology has received the courts' order to close the site on the city's South Side into a garbage dump.

The Springfield facility has been accused of mishandling toxic wastes in disposal sites in several states, including Illinois, charges the company denies.

The nuclear waste dump, also known as a subject of a state suit, has been closed since 1973.

Antibody defect may cause AIDS

BOSTON (AP) -- Victims of AIDS have a defect in the blood cells that make antibodies, a virus that once was kept at bay because of acquired immunity. The tragedy of the discovery may be caused by a virus that is present in the body of the patient with AIDS.

Researchers are still not sure of the significance of the discovery, but they say the damage may be caused by a virus that is present in the body of the patient with AIDS.

AIDS has struck more than 2,000 people in the United States, most of them homosexual men, drug addicts or Haitian immigrants.

U.S. aid to El Salvador not enough

SAN SALVADOR (AP) -- At the rate of more than 500,000 a day, U.S. non-military, economic aid has been pouring into El Salvador from the United States. Much of it being used to provide housing, food for the war and medical care for 500,000 refugees uprooted by war.

In an interview shortly before he left El Salvador, former U.S. Ambassador Dean R. Hinton said the government was "barely keeping afloat," even with the U.S. aid.

Judge axes Reagan scholarship

EUREKA (AP) -- Nearly 500,000 bequested to a Eureka College scholarship fund honoring President Reagan is now expected to be split among 156 heirs, an attorney said.

The will of Sidney Winkler, a Chomsky farmer who died in March 1982, was witnessed by Woodford County Circuit Judge Sam Harrod and his brother Dan, the county public defender. But a McLean County judge ruled that the will in January after questions arose about Winkler's signature on the will and it was discovered to have been improperly witnessed.

Dean faces drunken driving charges

By Anne Flanze
Staff Writer

A Sept. 7 court date has been set for Robert Ratcliffe, dean of Continuing Education, charged with drunken driving after a University vehicle he was driving struck a house trailer Aug 6.

Ratcliffe and Mr. and Mrs. John Childers were injured when Ratcliffe's car crossed U.S. Route 1 south at Rockyhill Road and struck the trailer 11 feet off its foundation.

John Guyon, vice-president for academic affairs, confirmed that Ratcliffe was attending a picnic at the SIUC Touch of Nature Environmental Center near Little Grassy Lake on the night of the accident. Guyon said liquor was served at the picnic.

According to Phil Lindberg, director of Public Safety, the National-athletic picnic was a gathering of community members and University employees involved in the summer conference series held at the center.

Lindberg said the center, a division of the Office of Continuing Education, has a liquor license and is often used by both University and outside groups for conferences and functions of this type.

Food service for the function was paid for by both the Office of Continuing Education and community groups, including the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce and the Carbondale Police Department, he said.

According to Eric Wisette, chief investigator for the Illinois Liquor Control Commission, the center's liquor permits both the sale and serving of liquor.

Guyon said he believes the University will try to get a license, which expires Aug. 31, 1983.

Guyon said he does not believe there is any specific policy regarding use of University vehicles and consumption of alcohol.

Linda Childers, who said she is six months pregnant, was treated at Carbondale Memorial Hospital for a leg injury and a cut on her arm.

John Childers, who sustained a broken wrist when Ratcliffe's car hit the rear part of the trailer, has retained attorney Fred Shapiro of Murphy-Brown.

Shapiro said that a witness told him that he saw Carbondale police remove what the witnesses called "a substance" from Ratcliffe's car after the accident.

Jackson County Sheriff William Kilquist refused to release a report on the investigation of the accident.

Dick Higgenson, University legal counsel, said SIUC is covered in case of a lawsuit.

"The University does have liability insurance and drug store shop insurance is included within that," Higgenson said.

Drum shop insurance covers an agency which serves liquor for liability in the event of liquor-related accidents or incidents.

Three years ago the Student Center also had a liquor license, according to John Corker, director of the Student Center.

"The license was revoked by the state liquor board when it was discovered we were in a dry township and outside of Carbondale's city limits," he said.

McAlroy Stadium and the Arena are also outside city limits, he said.

Corker said that liquor is allowed at University functions as long as it has been approved through the proper channels.

Outside groups using the center who wish to bring in liquor must purchase a special license.

burglary.

He was arrested after an incident on the southeast side in which a father was awakened by the sound of his daughter crying and accused a man in the hallway. He shot the man in the leg with a gun.

Simmons was treated at Carbondale Memorial Hospital for a bullet wound in his right leg before being transported to jail.

Robert Burke, a third-year law student, began questioning the policy after his own account was turned over.

Burke said he is concerned with what he called the possible harassment of students with dependent accounts.

According to Burke, whoever employs a collection agency could be held liable for that agency's actions.

Speakes multiplies 'bunny' problems

LOS ANGELES (AP) - President Reagan's chief spokesman louned a sarcastic barrage on Wednesday at Barbara Honegger, the Justice Department official who quit in protest over sex discrimination policies, saying she once had an important role as a "bunny" at the White House Easter egg roll.

Bunny suit. I've never done it and I'm ashamed to admit it." In Washington, Ms. Honegger asked after hearing of the Speakes remarks. "You think they'd try to do this to a man" she asked. "I think we have done it.

They're just putting their feet in concrete on that. They're getting in deeper and deeper.

As for the "bunny business," Speakes, the president's top spokesman, "I think she was playing an important role as a volunteer in the Easter Egg roll to make sure that all the visitors to the White House had a good time and it was not an admirable thing to do," said Speakes. "It's not easy to dress up in that hot bunny suit. I've never done it and I'm ashamed to admit it."

In Washington, Ms. Honegger asked after hearing of the Speakes remarks. "You think they'd try to do this to a man" she asked. "I think we have done it. We're just putting our feet in concrete on that. They're getting in deeper and deeper.

Later, Speakes said, "I wasn't being demeaning. I was being funny."

Speakes' remarks about Ms. Honegger were made by Acting Justice Department spokesman Tom DeCair's characterization of her as a "low-level minion."

She was paid $27,000 annually at the department.

Speakes took issue with Ms. Honegger's description of her job as heading a Justice Department's gender discrimination review designed to identify laws that discriminate.

Post-Aquino policy

LAST SUNDAY, a Bangladesh Aquino, self-exiled leader of the opposition to Ferdinand Marcos' right-wing regime in the Philippines, was shot and killed as he set foot on his native soil for the first time in four years.

Prior to Aquino's return, Marcos' wife warned, "If he comes back, he's dead." Aquino was the leader of the popular opposition in the Philippines until he was imprisoned by the military. When he was sent to the U.S. for medical treatment, he stayed.

Aquino was a revolutionary, a freedom fighter. But he fought with ideas, not weapons. In a statement delivered to a House subcommittee on chronic foreign affairs earlier this summer, Aquino said, "We must transcend our petty selves, forget our hurts and bitterness and take revenge against those who are above, all love of country prevail during our graviest hour."

WHILE THE CAMERAS of CBS and Cable News Network rolled at a Manila airport Sunday, an assassin dressed as a mechanic fired the fatal shot, and was then immediately killed by security guards. Reports differ as to who pulled the trigger.

Marcos has ordered a complete investigation and promised to help the U.S. government's powers toward "bringing the perpetrators to justice."

The problem is that those perpetrators may be within the government itself.

President Marcos is suspect, but he is also a political leader who has been guided by the military, which feared Aquino's leadership in an opposition that could bring Marcos down.

Marcos has cut all free elections, the economy is in tatters and the country is taking arms against the government.

We have given Marcos everything he has asked for. His government has had our blessing, our protection and a lot of our money. In return, Marcos should be held accountable for his government's actions.

Parasquat scare creeps toward local crop

PARASQUAT makes me sick. And everybody might be. Nobody knows for sure. Nobody knows how.

Already the Reagan administration has sprayed fields just 50 miles from my home in Illinois. No one knows how dangerous this spray is. Nobody knows how long it's been. Nobody knows how much.

The paraquat scare is just a method used by pot activists to get a public opinion against growing cannabis. It's a tactic, a way to make the pot campos and send in the air and send in ground crews to pull it up and burn it.

THE DEA says that paraquat is the only way they can keep up with pot growers. After aerial spraying, they hope a helicopter to hover a few feet over the individual pot patches and dump the chemical, they hope, only on the pot plants.

Letters

Touchof Nature deserves apology.

I have been reading the DE letter. Touch of Nature, for six years, and for the first time I consider it necessary to submit a list of names. The letter Stecknick's Aug. 22 comments and Touch of Nature are the reason.

I contend that his criticism of TON was both inaccurate and severely out of line. I was employed for three summers in the handicapped camp program and therefore had qualified the facts. My training and experience as a camp counselor in an area with waterfowl specialist not only prepared me for my responsibility on TON, but were also instrumental in the development of my career and knowledge.

I challenge Mr. Stecknick to find a former TON Camp 2 staff member who does not feel he or she was trained or well qualified to meet his or her obligations. I will provide a list of names and addresses.

The same campers have been returning year after year for three decades only because of a continually caring and talented group of camp counselors and staff. All information provided by TON, several handicapped individuals I know personally have found their way to college here at SIU and several others are striving for or have achieved independent living. It is my understanding that TON's handicapped camp is even receiving national achievements through its optional adventure-style programming.

It is unfortunate that a legal accident did occur on a camping expedition. Just so. Stecknick claimed to know the facts surrounding this incident yet he does not have one.

Other accusations were equally off-base, such as, "My neighbors tell me of above ground fires." Well, my neighbors tell me that In the same neighborhood I do not have one. Mr. Stecknick, you owe Touch of Nature an apology for misrepresenting a program, which so many of us in previous involvement have found to be a self-exilled educational experience.

Risky business

By Liz Myers

"Risky Business" is a movie about every high school teenager's fantasy — their parents going on vacation — their school's把 the movie as a lighthearted look at the spoiled kids from the suburbs, but also at the reality of prostitution. "Risky Business" shows these beautiful upper class call girls, not as doing something taboo, but instead as engaging in a highly prosperous money making business.

The footage of Chicago is one of the movie's major assets, which is in the rest of the city. The movie is a well-developed film which provides movie fans with a refreshing escape from reality.
Two new fight songs will be added this year to the repertoire of the Marching Salukis.

One of the new songs, written by Bob Pina, SIUC alumnus, has incorporated bits of the theme songs from each of the professional sports teams in St. Louis.

The second was written by music student Jon Patton of Morris. All of the fight songs are nameless but the titles and lyrics will be completed by band members at the Saluki Band Camp.

The Marching Salukis, whose costumes include tuxedos and Homburg hats, are expected to number more than 150 members this year. Director Michael Hanes said. About 60 percent of those are non-music majors.

The band has performed before St. Louis Cardinals football fans each season since 1965. This year’s appearance is set for Oct. 24, when the Big Red face the San Francisco Giants. That performance comes a year after the Marching Salukis brought their sound to the second game of the 1982 baseball World Series at Busch Stadium.

The Marching Salukis will work again this year with an expanded version of an electronic keyboard and amplifier system that first deployed in 1981. The band has also made such innovations as a percussion section on wheels and a rolling baby grand piano.

Crag Ryterski of Granite City and David T. Henderson of Park Forest are the band’s two drum majors.

The Saluki Shakers pompon squad, under the direction of Jill Pinta, has 15 members returning from last year. Tryouts for additional members will be held during the first week of school and Hanes said he would like to see about 24 members on the squad.

Two baton twirlers will return from last year’s group and Hanes said another two may be added.

Two metal art works on display

Two metal art exhibits will be displayed until Sept. 16 at SIUC one at the University Museum in Faner Hall and the other in the Museum’s Mitchell Gallery in Quigley Hall.

The exhibit “Kyoto Metal: An Exhibition of Contemporary Japanese Metalworks” was organized by Harlan Butt, a professor at North Texas State University in Denton, and can be seen in the north wing of Faner Hall. The exhibit includes 50 utilitarian objects created by master craftsmen continuing traditions that are hundreds of years old and have been passed down from generation to generation in families of craftsmen in the city of Kyoto.

James Wallace, director of National Ornamental Metal Museum in Memphis, Tennessee, organized the “Hinge, Hump & Knob” exhibit in Mitchell Gallery. The exhibit contains only of functional iron objects made to be used on doors. The exhibit mixes older historical examples of the blacksmith’s art with contemporary works.

A public reception will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Aug. 22 at the University Museum’s gallery. The Museum is open Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. “Kyoto Metal” will also be open on Sundays from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Man guilty of massacring 13; panel to decide his sentence

SEATTLE (AP) — A King County Superior Court jury Wednesday found Benjamin Ng, a 20-year-old Hong Kong immi-

Ng and two others were charged in the slayings of 13 people who were gunned down after being robbed and bagged by Wah Mee, a gambling club whose name means “Beautiful Place.”
Carbondale interchurch unit sponsoring free food bank

The Carbondale Interchurch Council is sponsoring a free food bank for the needy open 1 a.m. Monday through Friday at the University Baptist Church, 705 S. Oaklane in Carbondale.

Since it began in March, the food bank has distributed food to about 300 families, said Else Speck, a volunteer. About one-third of that number has been SIUC students, she said.

The food, donated by the three member churches of the Carbondale Interchurch Council, is purchased for 12 cents a pound from an International Food Bank in St. Louis and is available to families and individuals whose food stamps have run out or have no money to purchase food, Speck said.

The amount of food an individual receives varies, depending on family size and demand, Speck said. People are asked to limit their visits to the bank to one per month.

Most of the food available is bread. Sometimes potatoes, rice, and peanut butter are also available, Speck said.

"I want to emphasize that the station is being operated by students," Buren McRaven, director of the SIU Broadcasting Service, says. "Positions are open to all students, not only to radio-TV majors," he adds.

"We'll be working very close with the organizations on campus," Hankins says. "We'll be featuring special programs which are something completely different." The station fulfills a twofold purpose: to train students and to offer area service.

WSRV is owned by the Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees, and is operated solely by SIU students.

The transmitter is located on the University Farm, and one fourth-mile Northwest of Carbondale. The station has one of the strongest radio signals in Southern Illinois.

WSRV-FM has a range of approximately 75 miles. It will be in operation from 3:10 p.m. daily until Oct. 1. The time will then be extended on weekends from 12 noon to 10 p.m.

The station operates on 220 watts. In the near future, the complete operation will be handled from the control room on campus. At the present, a student engineer is on duty at the transmitter.

Officials refused to release operational expenditure figures.

The SIU Broadcasting Service will continue to tape programs for area stations. Richard Nary and Robert Gwyn, who are supervisors of the broadcasting service, are Joe McRaven, associate director, is assisted by Joe Leonard.

Network, Synergy offer help; both groups need volunteers

By Joanna Ingvarsdotter
Student Writer

The Synergy crisis Intervention Center at 505 S. Illinois and the Jackson County Network, a phone line for counseling, information and referrals, provide crisis service to adults and non-students 24 hours a day.

Network supervisor Jan Mestayer of the county administrative coordinator Laura Rutter say the two agencies deal with a variety of problems. As McGraw said of the Jackson County Network: “You name the problem and we get it. The Jackson County Network and Synergy are in need of volunteers.”

McGraw said the Network needs about 30 more volunteers for fall semester and will hold training sessions from 6 to 9 p.m. Aug. 29 to Sept. 2 at 604 E. College in Carbondale. Persons desiring to volunteer may call 549-3333.

Rutter said Synergy “is always looking for volunteers” and contains training sessions for volunteers each semester. Training for fall semester is tentatively set for the third week of October.

Persons interested in volunteering at Synergy may call the number listed above to make an appointment for an interview.

The Jackson County Network is tax-funded and works closely with hospitals and police departments in Carbondale and neighboring cities. On weekdays the Network is staffed from 8 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. week days. It takes crisis calls for Perry County.

McGraw said the majority of the Network calls come from county residents but noted the network does receive calls from SIU students.

The Network was opened in 1975 by the Jackson County Community Mental Health Center. McGraw said the center serves as the parent organization for the network.

“It surmounts our budget and provides professional back-up and insurance training. The center tries to help in any way it can,” McGraw said. The professional staff of the mental health center can be mobilized to go to the scene of an emergency—they’re our back-up regardless.

Rutter said a unique aspect of Synergy is its walk-in service.

“Anyone can walk in off the street and talk to someone right that minute,” she said.

The Synergy office started in 1970 as a drug abuse agency. However, today, students and non-students seek help from Synergy for a variety of problems. For example: someone broke up with a boyfriend and needs to talk; someone wants to know where the AA meeting is tonight; someone wants drug identification; someone is on the street looking for someone he ran out of gasoline in Carbondale; a wife calls and says her husband is drinking too much.

The majority of problems Synergy has dealt with in 1980 include personal relationships and decision-making problems. Rutter said:

“People say Synergy volunteers ‘would never make decisions for people, but we can help them decide what to do by looking at their options.”

“Every behavior fulfills a need,” she said. “The drinking fulfills a certain need. If an alcoholic calls us and wants to change his behavior, we will find another way to fulfill his needs.”

Future network is 14 state presently run Synergy. All are volunteers except for Rutter. More than 50 other volunteers—including businessmen, students and Carbondale residents—help with shifts which involve answering the phone and taking with walk-ins.

All volunteers go through 40 hours of training before covering a shift on their own. Rutter said.

Synergy is funded in part through the United Way. Some funds are provided by the SIU U-Health Service and the Undergraduate Student Organization. Other money is raised through bake sales, gift cards, concerts, and other fund-raising activities.

Rutter said.

“When Synergy opened in 1970, it gained national attention. Money started coming in and they started paying the staff.” Rutter said. “But when the money ran out this year and it looked like the agency was going to close, the volunteers got together and formed a new staff. The current staff is the first in many years to be a volunteer staff.”

University Park building continues

From Pages Of The Past

Immediately north of University Park, Hart said, the current plan would provide housing for about 3,500 persons. And Hart said this figure is considered an optimum for a housing development organization. It amounts to a “community,” he pointed out.

Chairmen of subcommittees to discuss the Phase II development have been announced by J. Albin Yoke, housing coordinator. They include Harold Hales, educational philosophy; John Nielsen, individual student requirements; George Cornell, senior student requirements; and Carlin Richart, common building.

The basic plans were discussed at a committee meeting last week.

Network, Synergy offer help; both groups need volunteers

By Joanna Ingvarsdotter
Student Writer

The Synergy crisis Intervention Center at 505 S. Illinois and the Jackson County Network, a phone line for counseling, information and referrals, provide crisis service to adults and non-students 24 hours a day.

Network supervisor Jan Mestayer of the county administrative coordinator Laura Rutter say the two agencies deal with a variety of problems. As McGraw said of the Jackson County Network: “You name the problem and we get it. The Jackson County Network and Synergy are in need of volunteers.”

McGraw said the Network needs about 30 more volunteers for fall semester and will hold training sessions from 6 to 9 p.m. Aug. 29 to Sept. 2 at 604 E. College in Carbondale. Persons desiring to volunteer may call 549-3333.

Rutter said Synergy “is always looking for volunteers” and contains training sessions for volunteers each semester. Training for fall semester is tentatively set for the third week of October.

Persons interested in volunteering at Synergy may call the number listed above to make an appointment for an interview.

The Jackson County Network is tax-funded and works closely with hospitals and police departments in Carbondale and neighboring cities. On weekdays the Network is staffed from 8 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. week days. It takes crisis calls for Perry County.

McGraw said the majority of the Network calls come from county residents but noted the network does receive calls from SIU students.

The Network was opened in 1975 by the Jackson County Community Mental Health Center. McGraw said the center serves as the parent organization for the network.

“It surmounts our budget and provides professional back-up and insurance training. The center tries to help in any way it can,” McGraw said. The professional staff of the mental health center can be mobilized to go to the scene of an emergency—they’re our back-up regardless.

Rutter said a unique aspect of Synergy is its walk-in service.

“Anyone can walk in off the street and talk to someone right that minute,” she said.

The Synergy office started in 1970 as a drug abuse agency. However, today, students and non-students seek help from Synergy for a variety of problems. For example: someone broke up with a boyfriend and needs to talk; someone wants to know where the AA meeting is tonight; someone wants drug identification; someone is on the street looking for someone he ran out of gasoline in Carbondale; a wife calls and says her husband is drinking too much.

The majority of problems Synergy has dealt with in 1980 include personal relationships and decision-making problems. Rutter said:

“People say Synergy volunteers ‘would never make decisions for people, but we can help them decide what to do by looking at their options.”

“Every behavior fulfills a need,” she said. “The drinking fulfills a certain need. If an alcoholic calls us and wants to change his behavior, we will find another way to fulfill his needs.”

Future network is 14 state presently run Synergy. All are volunteers except for Rutter. More than 50 other volunteers—including businessmen, students and Carbondale residents—help with shifts which involve answering the phone and taking with walk-ins.

All volunteers go through 40 hours of training before covering a shift on their own. Rutter said.

Synergy is funded in part through the United Way. Some funds are provided by the SIU U-Health Service and the Undergraduate Student Organization. Other money is raised through bake sales, gift cards, concerts, and other fund-raising activities.

Rutter said.

“When Synergy opened in 1970, it gained national attention. Money started coming in and they started paying the staff.” Rutter said. “But when the money ran out this year and it looked like the agency was going to close, the volunteers got together and formed a new staff. The current staff is the first in many years to be a volunteer staff.”

List spring quarter, AWS members warned that women students refrain from wearing slacks or Bermuda shorts to classes, to the library, or to the Union. Many instructors will not allow women to wear slacks to evening classes or Saturday classes. Women students are not allowed to go through cafeteria lines if they are wearing slacks or Bermuda shorts. We would like to know why there is so much objection to women students wearing attractive casual apparel. Women students themselves object to the wearing of slacks or tight Bermuda shorts. Furthermore, fashion designers have created complete lines of casual apparel. For these two reasons, the casual outfits of college women are as neat and attractive as a skirt and sweater combination.

Can as much be said for the "black boots, dirty terry levis, T-shirt, and greasy hair-styles" of some of the "Harry Highschoolers" who are under the false impression that hobo fashions are more attractive than collegiate dress? Many freshmen boys and some upperclassmen wear this kind of apparel to class, to the library, to the Union, and to the cafeteria. Their outfits are not only unbecoming but often times are accompanied by unpleasant odors. We MHN has not asked our men students wear neat, clean clothes. To our knowledge no professors has.

Medical School faculty win grants

Two grants from the Homer and Edith Nowakski Eye Research Fund have been given to SIU School of Medicine faculty. Enzo Giacobini, professor and chairman of pharmacology, was awarded $7,850 to study the decline of pupillary function during old age.

Paul Hargrave, professor of medical biochemistry, D. Wayne Bolen, professor of chemistry and medical biochemistry, and J. Hugh McDowell, visiting assistant professor of biochemistry, received a $6,028 award.

The co-investigators are studying the molecular and enzymatic properties of the enzyme, rho protein kinase. This is the second Nowakski award for Hargrave.

reprimanded a man student for appearing in this type of apparel. Nor have they refused admission to the cafeteria. We women students do not object to men students wearing clean levis and a nice shirt or sweatshirt. In fact, such an outfit can look very masculine. However, we do object to the wearing of levis that appear to fall down, levis that are past the "scoop" look but rather in the frayed, hole, and ripped seam stage. Such levis are unattractive looking and disgusting to women students.

If levis in this condition are combined with boots and long haircuts, the general appearance of the wearer is disgusting to anyone who looks at him. It is amazing that anyone who is in college does not have the intelligence to remove this. We wish these "Harry Highschoolers" would look at college men. However, if their appearance does not improve, we suggest that some upperclassmen have a few bull sessions with them. The cafeteria should also prohibit them from appearing at meals in this type of apparel. If measures are not taken, then the objections to women students wearing neat, attractive casual apparel will be ridiculous.
Southern Illinois businessmen devise 12-point economic plan

By Debra Colburn
Staff Writer

Southern Illinois' economy is in for a turn around if Fred Thompson, chairman of the Chief Executives Council of Southern Illinois Incorporated and other area businessmen have their way.

A 12-point action plan for the area's economic development has been devised. Thompson said that a lot of program organizational, has been made. "People are beginning to believe the economic condition can be improved."

The first point of the 12-point plan concerns the needs of the elderly. Eldon Hall of Allen Industries Inc. in Herrin was the chairman of the committee. He developed a prototype plan of an elderly community. Hall's work with the project was cut short when he was granted a promotion that required him to leave the area. His replacement on the committee has not been named.

Thompson is the chairman of the committee that is seeking to change state laws and administration that have an adverse effect on the business climate. He said that an economic impact analysis that would function in the same way that an environmental impact analysis does is needed.

Art Heins, of the Olm Corp., heads up the committee that is seeking to end the duplication of services and eliminate unnecessary governments.

According to Thompson, tourism is one of the area's most visible economic opportunities not yet tapped efficiently. Joy Bell of the Ed Jones Co. in Carbondale is chairman of the committee that is trying to improve tourism facilities and their promotion.

One of the committees deals with coal research and development. P.H. Roberts of Inland Steel Co. in Seneca is its chairman.

The transportation network has been surveyed by a committee and is found to be adequate, according to Thompson. Many areas need attention, but basically everything is in place, he said.

Methods used to make communities better places to live are being examined by another committee. According to Thompson, growing communities, outside of the Southern Illinois area, will be used in an analysis of local communities to find areas that need improvement.

A single organization to coordinate activities that would bring jobs into the area is being planned. The organization would be formed by a union of the state, community colleges and SIU-C. The community is trying to harness the efforts of the University and colleges, tax dollars and the creativity of the private sector, according to Thompson.

Richard Hartman, of World Color Press in Sparta, is leading a committee to build a more cooperative, productive labor management climate and make labor partners in area growth.

From Pages of The Past

John Lonergan, University landscape architect, said 7,000 linear feet of sidewalks will radiate from the $4 million circular structure. In addition, he said, new sidewalks will parallel the campus drive from the arena to the Agriculture Building, and will connect the arena and the baseball field.

But all work is not for the walker. A 30-foot roadway leads to the arena and permanent parking lots for 700 cars are under construction.

Elderly not chasing fast food jobs

By Sheila Rogers
Staff Writer

Senior citizens who remain in the workforce may be squeezing student job-seekers out of restaurant jobs nationally, but "that's not the case in Carbondale, at least in fast-food restaurants."

According to Stephanie Golliher, manager of the McDonald's restaurant in the Murdock Shopping Center, there hasn't been any applications from senior citizens. In general, "we haven't had any applications, I don't know why," Golliher said.

McDonald's does have a woman about 50-years-old who works as a hostess and coordinator in advertising. But all the other workers are about college age, she said.

Golliher, who has worked at McDonald's in the area for the past ten years, doesn't recall any older people working at the restaurant.

Loretta Woolsey, the assistant manager at Wendy's, 500 E. Walnut, said that she is about the oldest person working at Wendy's.

"The last two people that they hired were older," she said. The two positions were former employee positions. The two positions were former employee positions. The two positions were former employee positions.

Woolsey said that if she were doing the hiring, the age of the applicant would not make a difference in her decision.

"It all depends on the person," she said.

Woolsey said that Wendy's has received quite a few job applications, mainly from students coming back to school.

The manager at Taco Bell, 412 E. Walnut, said that Taco Bell also doesn't have any senior citizens working there. The manager, who asked not to be identified, said that if you're in charge of hiring, each person would be taken into account individually.

"The job requires a lot of hustle. A younger person in high school has a higher energy level and you can expect more from them," the manager said.

Taco Bell has also received many job applications, mostly from returning students.

An assistant manager, who also asked not to be identified, said that an older person would have a hard time doing the work that the workers at the restaurant do.

"Considering the work that we do, I don't see how a 50-year-old person could stand here and do the work that we do."

Friends criticize WSIU-TV for buying typesetting unit

By Dave Saelee
Staff Writer

Some "Friends of WSIU-TV" were angered when they discovered Festival '83 Telethon donations - which they bought to be used for programming - were used instead to buy a phototypesetter.

The station recently received criticism from two members of "Friends" after they bought the typesetter last June for approximately $20,000, according to Allan Pizzato, WSIU-TV station manager.

Jacqueline Mueller of Car- terville, an employee of SIUC Printing Service and a six-year member of "Friends," said that by watching the telethon, she was led to believe any money she donated would be used for programming. She said she, as well as her friends who are also members of "Friends," were given no indication donations would be used to purchase a phototypesetter.

Mueller added that she was also upset because she found out about the purchase from a friend who is an employee of WSIU-TV, and not from an announcement by the station.

Pizzato said no announcement was made when they bought the phototypesetter because the station does not announce every purchase it makes.

Tom Cottingham of Mur- phyboro, another upset viewer whose wife was a former employee of the station, said he believes the money spent to purchase the typesetter should have been used to rehire two station employees whose contracts were not renewed in order to keep the station's../...

Pizzato said the purchase of the typesetter had been planned for by the station for over a year and at the time the telethon was broadcast, no decision had been made to purchase the equipment.

He explained the station bought the typesetter to help alleviate the time element problem they face when printing and sending out the monthly programming guide.

Since they cannot control when information is to be printed, it will become available to them, he said, this creates a problem because the station works on a time deadline to deliver the guide to the public before the programs are broadcast.

"We made the decision to improve the guide instead of dropping it," he said.

Ceremonies for commencement set

Published May 28, 1982

Approximately 334 Southern Illinois University students are candidates for degrees to be awarded by President Deloye W. Morris at the 77th annual commencement to be held Sunday, June 8, at 7 p.m. at McAndrew Stadium.

Dr. Kurt von Schuschnigg, former chancellor of Austria, will present the commencement address. Dr. von Schuschnigg is the author of several books, including, "My Austria," and "Austrian Requiem." He was chancellor of Austria from 1934 to 1938. In 1938, he was forced to resign his position by the German government. Dr. von Schuschnigg was held in solitary confinement in various prison and concentration camps until his liberation by the American Fifth Army in 1945.

From Pages of The Past

President Deloye W. Morris will confer two honorary degrees during this year's commencement. Recipients of the degrees will be Dr. Percival Bailey and Dr. Chester Hanford.

Dr. Bailey is now a member of the University of Illinois Medical School in Chicago. He is also director of the Illinois Neuropsychiatric Institute in Chicago. Dr. Bailey will receive the honorary Doctor of Science degree.

Dr. Hanford is to receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Dr. Hanford is now a professor of government at Harvard. He was formerly dean of Harvard College.

Dr. Frank L. Eversull, vice-chairman of the SIU Board of Trustees, will give the commencement invocation.

Delores Ihnedl, a member of the graduating class, will present a musical solo, and selections for the processional and recessional will be played by the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra.

According to the Registrar's office, of the 334 students who are to receive degrees, 34 are candidates for degrees of Bachelor of Arts in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Of this number there are approximately 47 men and several women.

Three women in the College of Education are candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Music Education, and 101 candidates, approximately 104 women and 87 men, for Bachelor of Science degrees.

About 32 students are candidates for degrees in the College of Vocations and Professions. Thirty-one students, approximately five women and 25 men, are to receive Bachelor of Science degrees. One woman is to be awarded the degree of Bachelor of Music.

In the Graduate school, 54 degrees are to be conferred.

New commercial developments bring revenue to Carbondale

By Karen Terry
Staff Writer

Three new commercial development projects in Carbondale have created 200 new jobs and about $60 more will open up when a local department store moves into facilities across town.

A new Kroger grocery store, located across from the Ramada Inn on west Route 13, opened July 13. The store employs about 80 people, one-fourth of whom work full-time, according to manager Dennis Tripplett.

The city issued $1 million in industrial revenue bonds for the Kroger project. Under conditions of the bond issue agreement between Kroger and the city, the city is not responsible for any debts incurred by the grocery store and Kroger will pay back the bonds.

Another $1.15 million in bonds was issued to Lee Eisenberger and Associates, developers of the University Mall, a 31,000-square-foot shopping center located across from the Third and University Inn. According to manager Jim Bell, the mall contains 50 shops and features prime rib, steaks and fresh seafood served at Prime Time's lounge.

The recently-opened Kroger store west of Murphysboro employs 80.

The store, which employs 20 people full-time, has a swimming pool, but no banquet or meeting rooms.

Business has been "excellent" at Prime Time, located next to the Best Inn, according to manager John Darling.

The inn, which employs 20 people full-time, has a swimming pool, but no banquet or meeting rooms.

Another $3.45 million in bonds will be issued to the city of Carbondale to construct the new Kroger store, west of Main St., and will help supply the store with fresh produce. The store is expected to open for business before Christmas.

But he believes the new store should be open for business before Christmas. The new store will cost the same amount and type of department stores, but will offer a wider range of merchandise because of additional space, Hogland said.

Don Mosty, the city's director of community development, said Wal-Mart will pay the original costs of paving streets and installing the lines — improvements to city property — and the city will repay Wal-Mart out of city sales tax generated by the store.
Foreign students are big part of SIU-C's athletics program

By Charles Victor
Staff Writer

International students have become part of the SIU-C's sports programs.

According to Seeley, international students in many sports include nine swimmers, four tracksters, three tennis players, one basketball player, and a gymnast last year. International student figures were lower in women's athletics. Women's Sports Information Director Mitch Parkinson said the program has two foreign athletes from six different countries.

"We have two Olympic hopefuls in the program. Amanda Martin from Zimbabwe in swimming and Denise Blackman in basketball," Parkinson said. "Martin has a good shot for the 1961 Olympics, but Blackman is still young and has some way to go."

Blackman finished last season with 104 points -- 48 more than any other SIU-C athlete who scored a season. Blackman and her compatriot Ann Marie Lavine are expected to become SIU-C's first national qualifiers since 1978 in both the 100- and 200-meter dash.

Blackman holds the school 100 and 200 meter records since last May and was ranked fifth nationally in the 300-meter dash. Swimmer Martin is an All-American in three breaststroke events and one relay. She now holds three individuals' school records and two pool records.

Assistant Coach Mark Boerner said Martin has placed in nationals every year she has been at SIU-C.

"She is fantastic and has been working very hard this summer. We can look forward to another super year," he said.

Both Martin and Blackman hold their own in academics as well, maintaining GPAs well over 3.0. Martin scored a perfect 4.0 last fall to keep her overall GPA at 3.7.

Boerner said two other international students of high caliber are coming to SIU-C this fall. Butterfly stroke specialist Arnel Airakseim from Sweden and Claudia Zierold of Switz-ard are expected to join the SIU-C squad after the European Championships in Rome this year.

SIU-C does not actively recruit foreign athletes. According to Seeley and Parkinson, coaches sometimes find promising athletes in international meets or coaching clinics, but mostly升降 foreign athletes hear of SIU-C through word of mouth.

For example, there is a former Filipino member of the SIU tennis team who is now a coach in his country and occasionally recommends players to come here," he said.

"We need to have a talent search and coach the best they see in India," he said.

Martin said she is not actively recruited by the program, but her coach, who had been coaching her in India, recommended her to SIU-C.

"He felt that I had a good shot at national and international success," she said.

At least one foreign athlete has already received a scholarship from SIU-C. According to Parkinson, the athlete is a student from Sweden who is attending SIU-C on a scholarship and is expected to compete in the national championships.

"He has been very impressive," Parkinson said. "He is a very strong athlete and has a great attitude."

conducted by a committee headed by Oliver Koistinen.
Currently enrolled "unclassified" students (coded 07-51) will need to petition to change into some degree unit prior to advance registering for the winter quarter, Graham said.
Adult students taking a few courses not to be counted for degrees may continue as Adult Education Unclassified students (coded 07-64).
The coordinator's advice to students with below "C" averages is that they should begin immediately to improve their study habits in an attempt to stay off scholastic probation.
Students on scholastic probation will be dropped if they fail to make 'C' average for the current quarter," he warned.
"These students should not be registered to take more than 14 credit hours," he said. "Special counseling services are available at the Counseling and Testing Center for these students. Probation students should prepare assignments daily to achieve well above the minimum 'C' average," Graham said.
Further inquiry about scholastic probation as well as education offerings and work opportunities outside the University setting should be made at the Academic Placement Center or the Counseling and Testing Center, the coordinator added.

Rec Center offers special programs

By Mary Kausepke

Student Writer

If you are a disabled student, an international student or a student who fails, you can participate in a wide variety of recreational activities offered by the Special Populations Program at the Recreation Center.

Rick Green, coordinator of the Special Populations Program, has designed recreational programs to meet the needs of those students falling under these three categories.
The program offers disabled students many different types of recreation. Green said, "We don't consider recreation just sports," Green said. "I divide my programs up into sports, outdoor and social activities." Disabled students can participate in several sports including, wheelchair basketball and floor hockey, dancing, swimming, track and bowling.
"The bowling program is very popular," Green said. "It attracted about 26 students last year."
Some special events include basketball games for a floor hockey tournament, cross country, snowmobiling for the visually impaired and a sailing workshop.
Individual weight training programs are also offered. Students may contact Green and he will pair them with an instructor or a volunteer who will design a program to fit their needs.
"I think it's a bit of success with this in the spring," Green said.

A plight of minorities is that they often feel they are not being fairly represented and that their chances of being heard are small.

At SIU-C the Undergraduate Student Organization has offered the minority student something he doesn’t get—a direct pipeline to the administration.

The Minority Affairs Commission was set up a year ago to be that pipeline. The commission attempts to see that the needs of international, handicapped and black students are met, as well as those of veterans and girls.

The commission deals with both individual students and their representative organizations.

Bill Fuller, USO co-chief of staff, said the commission serves as a watchdog for the concerns of minority students and involves itself in almost all aspects of the student’s life. An example, Fuller said, is the commission’s work in making changes in University Housing easier. The commission recognizes that many students might have difficulties in adjusting to a roommate, and would like to see the restrictions on space changes relaxed. The matter is still being negotiated.

Another commission project was to have handrails placed on the bridges in Thompson Woods for handicapped students.

Steve Petrow, who served as commissioner last spring, said, “You try to put yourself in the place of the minority student. What are some of the problems he faces? And, how can we eliminate them?”

The commission urged the University to put Braille signs in all the elevators and to purchase a Braille machine. Petrow said.

Some future projects, according to Petrow, include having electric doors put in the Student Center and the Recreation Center, and to have beepers on traffic lights in Carbondale repaired. The beepers tell blind persons when it is safe to cross the street.

“I think the Minority Affairs Commission is very beneficial to the school,” Petrow said. “It’s something they should keep up and get more people involved in.”
Greek college to honor SIU with festivities
Published May 9, 1983

Tomorrow, May 10, will be Southern Illinois University Day at Anatolia College in Carbondale. Greece Southern will be honored for giving "support for a day" to this small Greek college located on the mountain slopes above the city of Thebes, Greece. Last month here on the SIU campus, a collection was taken to provide $125, the amount necessary to run the college for a day. The Student Council sponsored an auction at which the major part of the $125 was received. The Student Council made up the difference and the money was sent to the college.

Dr. J. J. Tudor of Southern's sociology department has been in communication with the administration at the Greek college, and according to reports, many Greek festivals are being planned for tomorrow which had been set as a festival day at Anatolia.

The girls will dance in native Greek folk costumes and early native dress, and several athletic events have been planned. People are expected to attend from some of Greece's largest cities. Noted Greek national figures are to speak at the ceremonies.

According to releases from the college, several Anatolia students are to write reports on the day which are to be forwarded to the Egyptian. There is a chance that several pictures will be sent to SIU, and if so they will be printed in the Egyptian.

The enrollment at Anatolia College at present is 619 students. The school has pupils from the seventh grade up to college sophomores. It is, in reality, a two-year college.

Southern's library and bookstore have contributed books which will be sent to the college. Several organizations on campus have contributed subscriptions which will also be sent in an effort to aid the war-stricken school.

Slow-down, price wars mark computer industry

By Belinda Edmonds
Staff Writer

Since the advent of the affordable home computer, the home computer business has been increasing in leaps and bounds.

But recently Texas Instruments Inc., one of the largest manufacturers of home computers, has suddenly found itself perilously close to financial ruin in a market thought to guarantee large profits. Promising questions on whether the home computer business is heading for a crash.

However, Craig Martin, president of Illinois Computer Mart Inc. in Carbondale, said the only computer businesses that have been hurt are those who deal chiefly in the "toy-type" computers, models that are cheap and concentrate on video games.

The home computer industry as a whole is still an extremely prosperous venture. Martin said, and overall sales are high.

"Our computers are in the educational or business field," explained Martin. "It is not their primary purpose to play games!"

Still less sophisticated computer users are enjoying popular demand locally.

Al Saponar, manager of the Radio Shack in the Madison Shopping Center, said that the majority of computers sold at his store are in the lower and middle price ranges.

He said that Radio Shack has found it necessary to cut prices in order to compete for a section of the booming home computer market.

Saponar said he believes Texas Instruments' problems are due to their lack of proper management rather than to any decrease in the market for cheaper computers. But some feel that there has been a definite slowing down of the industry because of excess production and disastrous price wars.

In response to the sudden demand for home computers, businesses have been turning out products and slashing prices at a rate which was once unthinkable. Timex Corp. has reduced the price of its original $150 home computer to below $50, but despite this sales have continued to fall off.

The computer market is becoming increasingly sophisticated and analysts predict that the buyers will be buying more business-oriented computers in the future, rather than models which can only teach one how to program or to play games.

Meanwhile, questions are being raised as to whether Texas Instruments will have to abandon the home computer business altogether and whether there will be any other companies following in its footsteps.

Semester plan is student poll topic

Published Feb. 26, 1952

During spring term registration which is to be held March 17, all students will have an opportunity to voice their opinion on whether Southern Illinois University should adopt the semester plan. A questionnaire circulated to students at that time by the Student Council recently solicited an opinion from students on the subject of the adoption of the semester plan here at SIU.

The Student Council thought all students should be given the opportunity to express their opinion on the issue, thus arguments for and against the quarter plan:

- Campus Briefs-

- The purpose for final examinations is to test students in their understanding of the semester plan.
- Arguments against the semester plan:
  1. Time spent in registration and on final examinations is less, since both examinations would be held only twice in a regular school year in place of only twice in a year.
  2. There would be less confusion in subject matter since courses would not be started and stopped as often.
  3. In those cases in which the present four or five hour courses are changed to three semester hours the student will have more time to get a better grasp of the same subject material.
  4. It provides a student teaching plan which is more co-ordination with elementary and secondary schools, which is on the semester basis.
  5. It allows more time for students to meet requirements within the course, such as term papers, observations, reports, etc.
  6. Most colleges and universities are on the semester basis, thus transfer to another college or university would be less difficult.
  7. It would give a student a full year to prove his ability before or after he is placed on probation.
  8. There would probably be very few five semester hour courses, thus few classes would meet every day in the week.

Arguments for the quarter plan:

1. It would be difficult to change credits, lock-in schedules, etc. to fit the semester plan.
2. The quarter system increases opportunity for rapid progress of students since they may graduate at three times during the regular school year as opposed to only twice.
3. The quarter system provides greater variety in subject matter and in structures during the year.
4. The quarter system provides a better opportunity for students to charge their majors.
5. Under the semester plan, there would be many more than four and five hour courses, thus the average student would carry more courses at one time.

A SPECIAL meeting will be held for radio-television students at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Teachers Center. Chairman Sam Swan and representatives from all radio-television student organizations will speak to the group.

development. "All too often we don't understand what other people need and want," Thompson said. Southern Illinois, according to Thompson, is reputed to be an area where it is difficult to get people to work. Thompson said that no one has related the 12 points. No negative feedback has been given.

Student Work has more jobs open this year

From Pages of The Past

Published Sept. 25, 1983

Frank Adams, director of the Student Work Program, said more students are seeking employment this term than ever before, and there are more jobs to be had.

Adams estimated that by the middle of October from 2,700 to 3,000 students would be working on campus and another 1,200 to 1,400 off-campus within a 50-mile radius.

Adams said the greatest demand for workers comes from employees needing stenographers. "Any girl with two years of shorthand and typing need never worry about being out of a job while going to school," he said.

Adams said that sometime during the school year about 50 percent of the enrolled students would have worked at one time or another, and he estimated that during the summer term 6 percent would have worked.

The director said many jobs are still open in food service and maintenance.

PUBLIC NOTICE
DIRECTORY INFORMATION
SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY
AT CARBONDALE

Under the University policy on the Release of Student Information and Public Law 92-380 as amended, the University may make accessible to any person external to the University "directory information" concerning a student, unless that student notifies the Office of Admissions and Records that he or she objects to the release of such information. Directory information is considered to be public in nature and will be released at any time upon request without prior approval from the student. Notices is therefore given that directory information listed below in respect to each student enrolled at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale will be available to any person unless the student files in writing with the Office of Admissions and Records a request to restrict release of directory information to external sources.

The University has designated as directory information the following student information:

- Student name
- Student local address and telephone number
- Student home address and telephone number
- Date of birth
- Current term hours carried
- Classification (freshman, sophomore, etc.)
- Accident unit
- Major
- Dates of attendance
- Degrees and honors earned and dates
- The most previous educational agency or institution attended prior to enrollment at Southern Illinois University
- Participation in officially recognized activity or sport and weight, height and picture of members of athletic teams
- Picture

Any student enrolled for the Fall Semester who does not wish to have released any or all of the above listed items of information should contact in person, the Office of Admissions and Records, Woody Hall by Thursday, Sept. 1, 1983. Students who elect to restrict release of student information must submit a statement to that effect. The restriction on the release of student information will be valid until September 1, 1984, and must be renewed annually each Fall Semester.

SIUC students who are fit and smart enough can become involved in the fastest growing program of its kind in the country. It is called Army Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC), the SIU-C unit, while only 20 years old, is the fastest growing in the United States, according to Maj. Larry Livingood, program chairman of the Army ROTC unit. The unit was established in the summer of 1962 and has since grown to include 300 members. The growth is due to the unit's success in recruiting men and women. "This obviously shows students are interested in Army ROTC," said Costello said. "We are now able to offer students the opportunity to join ROTC and earn their commission in the Armed Services."

The purpose of the ROTC, Costello said, is to teach college students to become officers. The unit offers many opportunities for students to become officers. The primary attributes ROTC looks for in a candidate are academic standing and physical qualities. Height: standards run from 60 inches to 72 inches for women. Weight standards are also set according to height. Enthusiasm for various training is a factor the ROTC considers.

To join the ROTC, an applicant must pass a Cadet Evaluation Battery, a series of medical and physical tests required of anyone joining any branch of the armed forces. Those who pass the CEB are interviewed before being approved by a recruiting officer. Costello said, "Applications usually get through the CEB, but an applicant must have a grade point average of 3.0 or better to join the program. But to be an ROTC scholarship, a GPA of 3.0 or better is required. Scholastic awards fall into two categories: state and federal. Each year the state provides funding for 10 scholarships each for the Army and Air Force ROTC programs at SIU-C. Both programs are merit scholarships. Which are awarded for merit, are awarded on a 3.0 or 4-year basis. In the early '60s, at that time the unit numbered 750, but that policy was dropped because of pressure from the anti-Vietnam War movement.

The state scholarship offers only tuition, while the federal offer covers tuition, fees and books. ROTC is not particular about a student's field of study. "All majors are applicable to the Army in one way or another," Costello said. The Air Force ROTC also accepts students from all fields of study. "If an art or philosophy major wants to be a pilot or navigator," said Lt. Col. Robert J. Causey, commander of Air Force ROTC at SIU-C, "all they have to do is take the classes and make the grades."

Both Air Force and Army ROTC offer a two-year basic program and a four-year advanced program. Applicants must be 27 years old or younger for acceptance, Costello said. Veterans are automatically placed in the advanced program. The primary goal is to attract freshmen or sophomore interested in flying. Those with the top grades are accepted into the advanced program. About 36 percent of the freshmen who enter the program make it to their junior year.

The Army two-year program includes a six-week summer training camp at Fort Knox, Ky. The four-year program also includes six weeks of summer training at Fort Riley, Kan. Both camps are for men and women.

Recruits in the two-year program summer camp are paid $100 per month, and four-year program recruits are paid $200 per month while at camp. Twenty-two seniors and juniors were enrolled in Army ROTC over the summer — 11 of whom were women. Causey said that ROTC offered a two-year program of study. "There are bound to be some students who change their mind and drop out," said Costello, a winner of the George Marshall Award as top cadet in 1963. Causey said that ROTC is not as required as it was three years ago. Today, there is a greater variety of ROTC programs. "What's in it for you?"

It is all add up to? Convenience. Low prices and help when you need it. A return on your investment. Through the door of the University Bookstore. That's what's in it for you.

City schools desegregated in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — About 300 black St. Louis students were expected to enroll in the Rileauhe School District in St. Louis County today, marking the beginning of the court-approved desegregation plan to desegregate city schools.

The plan, approved July 5 by U.S. District William L. Hungate after months of negotiations, is still under fire from state officials who have an uneasy pending on federal court. Missouri Attorney General John Ashcroft raised the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Tuesday to day implementing the plan, saying that the delay would be less disruptive to students than dismantling the plan in progress.

Under the desegregation plan, 15,000 black students are to be transferred within five years from city schools to schools in suburban St. Louis County.

Most of the other 15 St. Louis County districts are scheduled to open school within a month and classes will begin at city schools Sept. 7.

Saluki athletes gain recognition in international summer games

SIU-C athletes were as hot as the weather over the summer, with several Saluki Claims making notable appearances in international competitions and rewriting the university record book.

In the Pan American Games in Calgary, Canada, swimming Pablo Restrepo brough home silver for the Salukis, finishing second in the 200 breaststroke in 2:20.3 and third in the 100 breaststroke in 1:09.8, a new SIU-C record. Carlos Henao finished sixth in the 100 backstroke in a lifetime best 59.6. Henao and Restrepo also paced a Colombian relay team to a fifth-place finish.

Saluki teammate Giovanni Frigo finished fifth in the 100 and 200 breaststrokes, in 59.1 and 2.07.5, both lifetime bests. He also swam a Venezuelan medley relay which finished third.

The men's and women's swimming teams both caused a few waves at the United States Senor National Championships in Clovis, Calif., where the men placed 10th overall.

Sophomore Gary Brinkman of South Bend, Ind., won the 400 freestyle in 3:37.3 and ninth in the 200 free in 1:49.4, both school records. Brinkman also finished 11th in the 1500 free at 15:41.7 and 17th in the 100 free, with a 1:04.9 split. All four of Brinkman's times are now South African records.

Restrepo claimed two more place finishes, in the 100 and 200 breaststroke, in 1:04.0 and 2:08.2. Former Saluki Rodrigo VonJoanne finished 10th in the 200 IM with a new high 1:55.8 and eighth in the 200 IM medley relay.

The Saluki 400 medley relay team of Henao, Restrepo, VonJoanne and Barry Hahn closed out the meet with a 3:39.2 which would have been good for fourth place in the Pan Am, but gave time to the Saluki's close place finish at the senior nationals.

Noted athlete Cesar II-C diver from England, will compete next in the European Championships.

At the Pan American Games, Saluki graduate Brian Babcock took a silver medal in all-around in the 14.1. Babcock, a 9.55 pommel horse for second place, 9.6 on rings for fourth, 5.7 on high bar for fourth and 9.5 on parallel bars for sixth place.

Babcock said Wednesday that although almost two points separated first and second, the scoring was indicative of how close the competition was.

"The scoring was so biased it was almost no-situation," he said. "I had to hope I made no mistakes and the Cuban screwed up. Even the crowd was bad, booing during and after performances. The worst possible conditions to perform under."

Babcock passed up a meet this week to rest for the World Championship trials in Budapest, Hungary, for another week, a 14.0.

At the World Track and Field Championships in Helsinki, Finland, SUU-C stamper Mike Frank finished second in the 400-meter in 45.22, behind Jamaica's Ben Cenner, who took the title in 45.0.

Saluki hurdler David Lee claimed sixth place in the 400 hurdles at Helsinki. The women's swimming team also fared well in summer competition.

Junior Amanda Martin was the only SIU-C swimmer at the National Sports Festival in Colorado Springs, claiming third-place finishes in the 100 and 200 breaststroke in 1:17.6 and 2.48.3.

At the World University Games in Edmonton, Canada, sophomore Stacy Westfall finished fifth in the 200 fly in 2:17.6. Junior Joanester Coetzee took fifth in the 50 free in 25.54 and sixth in the 100 free in 2:24.4. Pam Ratcliffe finished 10th in the 200 IM in 2:24.4.

Martin was also invited to compete at the World University Games, but was ineligible because she had not yet acquired U.S. citizenship.

At the Senior Nationals in Clovis, Coetzee was the highest Saluki finisher, taking fifth in the 1:50 free as sophomore Roxanne Cullin finished eighth in the 100 free in 1:49.18 and 16th in the 100 back in 1:55.70.

Cyclist Day Beeser was expected to gain entry to the U.S. Pan Am team, but he was cut from the qualifying race when the frame broke on his bike, which was a test model for the Olympic team.

Cubs win behind Rainey’s one hitter

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago right-hander Chuck Rainey pitched a hitless ball for eight and two-thirds innings before Eddie Milner singled up the middle for Cincinnati’s only hit as the Cubs defeated the Reds 3-0 Wednesday.

Rainey, bidding for the first National League no-hitter since 1981, struck out five batters and walked two in the first five innings before issuing a leadoff walk on a 3-2 pitch to Milner in the sixth.

Rainey kept the Reds off balance with a assortment of off-speed pitches and a good sinker and sharp-breaking slider. He gave up 16 grounders on 20 outs on the scoreboard as Cincinnati cannot play at the same time, but there is no jealousy between them.

“The more I push myself, the more she’ll push herself and we’ll be better off to be off for it,” Waasby said.

“Rainey has helped each other more than last year because we don’t have a goalie coach. Waasby added. “If we see something wrong, we’ll tell each other.”

Rainey’s battle with the ball was scoredless until the sixth, the Cubs chased Joes Mario Soto for a run.

won that game if Cuoco wasn’t in goal. She was on.”

Cuoco recorded 12 saves out of 21 shots-on-goal in a 3-1 SHU victory.

On the hockey field the two are easy to distinguish. Waasby is a mite at least since taking a shot in the face last year against Western Illinois in the season finale and is still playing out.

“When I got in the face, that opened my eyes,” Waasby said. “I’d never had that before. It was not to get hit in the eye or to break my nose. I’ve seen a lot of people get hit. It’s scary.”

Cuoco, though, does not like for her goalie to be hit unless she is forced to wear one.

“I had to wear one in high school,” Cuoco said. “Here, I didn’t have to wear one and I didn’t even need to.”

Both goalies know they cannot play at the same time, but there is no jealousy between them.

“When I push myself, the more she’ll push herself and we’ll be better off to be off for it,” Waasby said.

“Rainey has helped each other more than last year because we don’t have a goalie coach. Waasby added. “If we see something wrong, we’ll tell each other.”

Budget crisis on athletics' horizon

SIU-C President Albert Somit hinted Wednesday that it may be necessary to tone sports and raise student athlete fees to save the athletic department from a huge deficit in fiscal year 1984.
To meet a deficit for fiscal 1984, the Intercollegiate Athletic Department was forced to $127,245 from its working cash surplus, leaving only $31,600 in reserve.
"We are starting now at a possible deficit in 1985 upward of $200,000 at least," said Somit, who appeared briefly at the intercollegiate athletics advisory board meeting Wednesday. "Next year we'll have to solve some problems."
Somit announced that Bruce Swinburne, vice president of student affairs, will prepare a budget proposal for fiscal 1985 and present it to the IAAC Nov. 1.
Swinburne said "the implication was that sports would have to be dropped." Swinburne agreed, with an assessment of the situation as "drastic."
Somit noted that the student athletic fee of $30 had not been raised in four years, while purchasing power and the number of students were decreasing. Earlier, men's athletic director Lew Hartzog pointed out that SIU-C students do not pay the highest athletic fee in the MVC.
Swinburne said the task of preparing budget comments for fiscal 1985 and Somit listed five points that will be the basis of the process.
Swinburne will have to work under the assumption that SIU-C will lose $100,000 in state revenue, that there will be a 3 percent decrease in money from student fees, that there will be a 5 percent increase in ticket sales, that a $100,000 reserve must be maintained and that the budget will have to be balanced.
"We've never brought in a deficit budget," said Swinburne, adding that he hadn't formulated any exact recommendations yet. He said he was scheduled to meet with Hartzog and women's athletic director Charlotte West Tuesday.
"If we spent cash reserves will put fiscal 1984 in the red, but "that tactic will come close to exhausting the reserve as it now stands," said Swinburne.
"A budget of this size without a reserve" he said.
The IAAC discussed the possibility of hiring a full-time fundraiser to bring in more contributions. That had been rejected in the past, but Hartzog said he was warming to the idea and Swinburne said he would actively push for a professional fundraiser in the next few weeks. Swinburne, along with the athletic departments, d'd most of the fundraising in the past.
"We did okay," he said, "but we didn't raise significant new dollars."
Swinburne said most of the SIU-C alumni had not been asked for contributions.
"My feeling has changed," said Hartzog, "I really need a fundraiser might make the difference."
He stressed, though, that he was giving the idea the most careful thought of the three big contributors recently.
Hartzog's athletic department was budgeted $1.7 million for 1984, more than $100,000 less than it spent last year. Football was budgeted $210,000, down $23,000 from what it spent, and basketball was budgeted $147,000, down $3,000 from it's 1983 spending.
Women's athletics was budgeted $908,446, down slightly from what was spent in 1983. Softball was budgeted $220,000, almost half what it spent last year and basketball was budgeted $34,000, $20,000 less than it spent.
In other action the IAAC re-elected Dick Bortz, associate professor in vocational educational studies, an ex-officio, and put off until next month the election of a chairperson, and to fill the board the following year.
The IAAC also voted unanimously to waive its complimentary tickets to Saluki athletic events.

Experienced duo tends goal for fielders

This is a tale of two goalies - both play for the SIU-C field hockey squad. Both started out playing halfback on their school's soccer teams as sophomores, both were taught to goal, but similarities begin to end there.
Juniors Lisa Cuecci and Sandy Wasley are the outstanding duo for the Salukis this year, as they were last year.
This year there is a marked difference.
Last season, Wasley was the returning starter and the topper the team looked to in big situations.
Last year Wasley was a rambler player, from the backfield, where she had started as a freshman two years ago on the junior varsity team that went undefeated.
By her own admission, Wasley played mostly against the weaker teams that SIU-C faced.
"Last year, I didn't have any confidence in myself," Wasley said. "I was defeated, 3-0, 10 percent more.
The main reason for Wasley's improvement was her participation in the Olympic Development Program. Walsley had been dropped from the "A camp" last summer and had been dropped from the "B camp" but could not attend because of her job.
"I learned a lot about my positioning, about being patient," Wasley said. "Last summer, I want to go through the whole thing. My goal is to make 'A camp.'" This year, Wasley is hoping to play more against the strongest teams.
"If I can play more against the better teams, I'll be happy," she said. "But whoever is playing the best at that time I'm going to be playing."
Cuecci, originally starting as a halfback, has evolved into a goalie.
"I didn't have anything as far as field hockey, but not because I had any problem of position in the backfield," she said. "I played basketball throughout high school.""Cuecci still has to maintain her speed to better a little bit of running the ball, but it's a good pace to that still to go around and watch soap operas.
"I wanted to be a halfback, but the goalie had graduated the year before. They put me in goal because my basketball coach said I was fearless. It worked out pretty good. I don't have many complaints."
Cuecci gives a lot of credit to Kenda Cunningham, a former goalie coach at SIU-C who left last season for a job in St. Louis.
"Anything I've done here as far as anything goalie-wise, Kenda has shown me the right way to do it," Cuecci said. "I had gotten put in the goal to stop the ball," she said. "My (high school) coach didn't know anything about field hockey and I didn't know anything about field hockey. I just went out to do what I could to stop the ball from going in the net.
"Coach Jules Illner said that he had economy of in her style since she was taught by Cunningham throughout her career, while Cuecci has had to learn everything about being a goalie in the time that she's been at SIU-C.
"Sandy is a little more orthodox in her style of play," Illner said. "Cuecci has a quicker reaction time, but when there's some pressure, she resorts back to her old style of play."
Another difference between the two, Illner said, is that Cuecci talks to the defense more about positioning than Wasley does, which helps out when the ball comes near the goal.
"Cuecci is also more of an upfield player," Illner said. "Sandy is more steady."
"Two years ago when we played St. Louis, there was no question that we wouldn't have seen GOALLERS, Page 21

Successful play...
