Committee streamlines Halloween celebration

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The party is over. The Halloween Core Committee emphasized in its meeting Wednesday morning that this year's Halloween celebration in Carbondale will be completely different from what it has been in the past.

The consumption of alcohol in public will be illegal, student housing both on- and off-campus will limit the amount of guests they will allow during Halloween weekend and the street activities, such as live bands and food booths have been cancelled.

"This is the consistent message we're trying to get out: the party is over," Jeff Doherty, deputy city manager and member of the core committee, said.

Doherty said the Carbondale City Council has proposed an ordinance that will repeal the Halloween Fair Days regulations that allowed public consumption of alcohol during the celebration. In addition, Ordinance 89 would close the local bars at 1 a.m. on Friday, Oct. 27, and Saturday, Oct. 28, and ban the sale of alcohol in glass containers from 2 a.m. Oct. 26 to 1 p.m. on Oct. 29. During the meeting, the committee motioned its support of the ordinance.

Sam McVay, director of Student Health Services, said student residence halls will restrict the number of overnight guests they will allow. He said the Wall Street Quads and Lewis Park will also limit the sizes of the parties that will occur in those areas over the Halloween weekend and the number of people "crashing" overnight.

James Prowell, executive director of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, said the food booths and other activities on the Strip were cancelled in

Morris library ranks 7th in nation

By Britt Parrott
Staff Writer

Morris Library has been ranked seventh out of the top 50 libraries in the nation by the On-line Computer Library Center in Ohio.

The ranking refers to the library's ability to share its resources with other libraries.

Kenneth G. Peterson, dean of library affairs, said, "The ranking is a credit both to the quality of (our) collections and the service of our inter-library loans department."

At the top of the ranking is University Microfilms International, a private firm in Ann Arbor, Michigan, that produces copies of microfilms. It is followed by the libraries at Arizona State, the University of Arizona at Tucson, the University of Illinois at Urbana, UCLA, and the city of Dallas.

Some colleges that SIU-C outranked are the University of California at Berkeley, Indiana University at Bloomington, the University of Texas at Austin, Ohio State, Purdue and Pennsylvania State University, he said.

Peterson also mentioned the importance of the valuable library computer system that links to 33 university libraries in Illinois.

The ranking is based on how many items each library lends in a year. For the 1987-88 year, Morris Library lent 53,429 items. For 1988-89, the figure dropped to 51,777, he said.

He added that this summer's increased budget, along with $250,000 in additional University funding, will help bolster the recent decline in the library.

"That boost will get us back on track with acquisitions of books, journals and other materials as well as equipment and software for computer supported activities," Peterson said.

Director says post office cuts will not affect University mail

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Although Carbondale's economy will suffer a $1.25 million blow when the local post office loses about 40 employees, it will not affect the University mail service, according to Harry Wirth, director of service enterprises, said.

As director of service enterprises, Wirth is in charge of the campus mail system and said the University "expects no decrease in mail service" due to the loss of postal jobs nationwide.

The United States Postal Service announced Tuesday it will remove about 1,000 administrative and managerial positions nationwide in order to consolidate.

Effective Sept. 23, the postal service anticipates saving $30 to $35 million a year through the consolidation.

The Carbondale Post Office will lose about 38 managers and between 12 and 15 clerks, Hubert Goforth, Carbondale Postmaster, said.

"Since these jobs are mostly administrative, the mail deliveries will not be hindered at all," Goforth said. "The only problem is that $1.25 million is pretty big payroll loss for Carbondale."

The lost jobs in Carbondale are related to Carbondale's role as regional center for 250 post offices, ranging from Effingham to Cairo.

"Carbondale's position as a regional center will be transferred to St. Louis," Goforth said.

Employees nationwide affected by the consolidation will be reassigned to different positions within a commuting distance when possible.

State reviews project to clean up highways

The Illinois Department of Transportation began evaluating a pilot program Wednesday calling for Illinois citizens to clean up state highways.

The Adopt-a-Highway litter control program depends on volunteer groups to adopt a portion of an Illinois highway and keep it litter-free.

U.S. offers aid in Colombian drug war

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (UPI) — President George Bush reiterated support for Colombia in its battle against drug lords Wednesday and his administration offered $2 million in training and technical assistance to the South American nation.

At a rare mid-vacation news conference on the lawn of his seaside home, Bush cautioned that there are no plans to send U.S. combat troops to Colombia, and later in Washington his administration announced that its first move was designed to improve protection of Colombian judges and other law enforcement officials.

In another area of world concern, the president applauded what Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev had urged the head of Poland's Communist Party to cooperate in the new government led by the Solidarity labor movement. Bush said, "I feel these statements attributed to Mr. Gorbachev are very positive."

The session with reporters in Maine was a departure from Bush's recent course of ignoring questions as he focuses on fishing, golf and other activities. He discussed broad foreign policy issues and domestic legislation for 45 minutes.

Asked about Colombia, Bush said, "We want to be in a position to help them in any way we can. We're in discussion with Colombians right now, today, in Washington. I have to wait and see what they feel is most helpful to them."

Later in Washington, Attorney General Richard Thornburgh announced that the $2 million assistance package agreed upon by his Justice Department and the State Department would authorize his agency's International Criminal Investigative Training Assistance Program to develop courses for Colombian law enforcement officials in investigations and protection techniques.

The Justice Department said the program also would direct an extensive evaluation of forensic laboratory capabilities in Colombia but would not commit U.S. personnel as bodyguards to judges and other officials.

Algerian worker hijacks large Air France jetliner

PARIS (UPI) — An Algerian immigrant who pretended to be armed hijacked an Air France plane on which he was being deported but was arrested when the plane landed in Algiers, the airline said. All 102 passengers were released unharmed. Said Djamel, 30, an Algerian worker who was being deported from France for disturbing the peace, took control of the Airbus 300-A for two hours during Flight 2323 from Paris to Algiers, the airline said.

Two Palestinians killed in military protest

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The military arrested dozens of Palestinians in a campaign Wednesday to reduce violence in the West Bank, while in the Gaza Strip two Palestinians were killed and 10 wounded in clashes with Israeli soldiers. Most Gaza Strip residents continued boycotting their jobs within Israel to protest military-imposed restrictions on entering the country. Also in Gaza, Palestinian hospital workers staged a sit-in search of Ahli Hospital for stone-throwers, Palestinian sources said. The soldiers entered Ahli after stones were thrown from the hospital's courtyard and apprehended four suspects.

Soviet newspaper criticizes Yuri Andropov

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet newspaper Wednesday called Yuri Andropov the "Last Stalinist" boss in the first open criticism of the former Soviet leader considered at home and in the West as a reformer and mentor of Mikhail Gorbachev. Komsomolskaya Pravda, the daily of the Communist Youth League, also pulled the wraps off Andropov's 15-year career as the head of the dreaded KGB secret police, calling him "the most enigmatic figure" of the Brezhnev era.

Beijing University president replaced

BEIJING (UPI) — The president of prestigious Beijing University, a center of the student-led democracy movement this spring, was replaced Wednesday and a senior government official said the college should maintain "political integrity." The replacement of Ding Shisun, 62, a moderate believed to have sympathized with many of the students' protest demands, has been expected since the June crackdown on the pro-democracy demonstrations.

Firefighters have Idaho blaze under control

BOISE (UPI) — Firefighters working in a light rain corralled the largest wildfire burning in the nation, a month old blaze in Boise National Forest that destroyed 25 homes and a resort lodge, officials said Wednesday. The 46,500 acre Lowman fire, 70 miles northeast of Boise, was contained Tuesday night after an all-day drizzle. Some 1,150 firefighters continued mopping up the blaze. The fire was sparked by lightning July 26 and destroyed the homes and Haven Lodge near Lowman three days later.

Corrections/Clarifications

Clyde Forrest is a consultant to Illinois Department of Transportation. This was incorrectly stated in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian.

The planning commission is expected to make a recommendation to the city council after the meeting.

Tom Redmond said that if the city council adopts certain preservation ordinances and if residents from a designated preservation district oppose it, the city council would be hesitant to enforce such an ordinance.

Carnival to feature music, games and comedy

By Christine Broda
Staff Writer

You have probably seen the posters, flyers and advertisements by now.

The Student Center's Annual Open House on Friday promises an evening of wild craziness, live music, comedy, games, prizes and more.

What more? How about oatmeal wrestling, wacky catfish races, blacktie bowling, the dating game, human gyroscope, palm reader Helen Taylor and SIU's own improvisational group, Gig Street.

"If this isn't enough, listed under "other highlights" are Harmless T. Jester, Velcro Wall, the huge "Pile O' Clay," free bowling and billiards and food specials. All for $1.99 cheap, Michael Blank, assistant director of the Student Center, said.

The ideas for the events radiated from the offices of the Student Center and the Student Programming Council in brainstorming sessions which pulled the whole thing together, Blank said.

"There will be many things happening that people will never see again," Blank said, speaking of the Glo-Bowling and Oatmeal Wrestling.

Marsha the Masher, Marsha Trammel, who will be wrestling, said she knows all the moves and feels confident that her experience as a high school cheerleader has provided her with an extra advantage.

Special features of the carnival include the Gyro and the Velcro Wall, which may be recognizable from the David Letterman show.

The "Hulking Beefcake and Voluptuous Vamps" will match up at 10 p.m. in the Ballrooms.

Blank said the wrestling will take place in a 16-by-16 foot ring filled with oatmeal, apples, nutmeg, and brown sugar, with cream pouring from the ceiling.

"In the past the program didn't have enough guts to it," Blank said, before describing the Glo-Bowling which he said will take place in the bowling alley, which will be completely darkened except for the glowing pins and black light posters.

The Mississippi Downs, sponsored by the Association of Collegiate Entrepreneurs and the Egyptian Divers Scuba Club, will begin at 10:30 p.m. in the Roman Room.

Phil Walsh, executive vice president of ACE, said that as far as they know, this is the first time that catfish have ever been raced.

The fish, which will be shipped in from Logan Helow Fish Farm, will race down a track made of PCV, a hard plastic pipe, that has been cut in half to form a trough.

Walsh said fish betting is allowed, but only with fake money that can later be traded in for prizes.

Gig Street, the University's improvisational and comedy group will be performing at 8:15 p.m. in the Roman Room. John Weagly, director, said the performance will consist of prepared skits, improvisational games and a lot of audience participation.

Other special features of the carnival include the Gyro and the Velcro Wall, which may be recognizable from the David Letterman show. The Gyro more or less defies description as well as gravity and the Velcro Wall is something similar to the flystrip. The suit will be provided.

Some of the less physical activities will include miniature golf, palm reading and the two movies of the night will be "Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure" and "Texas Chainsaw Massacre."

The Comedy Cellar also will begin the night of the carnival with comedian Ed Fiala. His credits include TV appearances on "The Tonight Show," "Oprah Winfrey," "Phil Donahue" and numerous comedy clubs. In 1984, Fiala was named the "Funniest Person in Illinois."

Rainbow's End Preschool will be providing free babysitting for the event.

Christian-metal band to play Marion Friday

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

Barren Cross may sound similar to other heavy metal bands, but their stance on Christianity and social issues sets them apart.

Jim LaVerde, bass player, said the band takes a stand on a lot of political issues. "We take really strong stands. It's the personality of the band," he said.

Songs such as "Killers of the Unborn," a song protesting abortion, causes some controversy, but LaVerde said it's how the band feels and they don't hold back with their lyrics.

Inspiration for their song lyrics come from everyday life and from their own personal convictions, he said. Issues such as drugs, cults, prevention of teen suicide, and religion are put into songs that leave no doubt as to how the band feels. Musically, the band is influenced by bands such as Rush, Yes, Rainbow and Iron Maiden.

The band from Los Angeles was formed in 1981 by guitarist Ray Parris and drummer Steve Whitaker as a high school band. They were later joined by Mike Lee, vocalist, and LaVerde by 1983 they were playing in clubs and wherever else they could.

Tickets are $12 at the door and $10 at Disc Jockey Records in University Mall; Sound Core, 122 S. Illinois Ave.; and Gospel Land in Murdale Shopping Center.

Jim LaVerde. The band will appear at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Marion Civic Center.

More women at SIU, but still not at the top

THE WOMEN on this campus are finally getting some equality. It has been over a year since Seymour Bryson was named as the assistant to the president for affirmative action and equal opportunity programs and this relationship has shown some profitable action.

A report submitted to President Guyon by Bryson stated that the proportion of women on the University's payroll has increased from 39.5 percent in 1979 to 45 percent in 1988.

Also, what was cited as the most important increase, was the number of full-time faculty positions held by women. This is up from 20.5 percent in 1979 to 25.9 percent in 1988.

WE THINK this is admirable. But we accept this with caution because of underlying problems that do not seem to have been addressed. Does this report mean that women are finally getting the recognition, as well as the authority that they deserve? We think not.

More women are obviously being hired to fill faculty positions, but as Uma Sekaran, coordinator of the University Women's Professional Advancement, said, what about tenure. Tenure would be a great way to secure these women's roles as a faculty members, without fear that they may be released after a one-year term. Why should a woman, or for that fact a man, come to this University, give their time and commitment as well as academic abilities, and not receive the just position with tenure. As with any gender of faculty, the University must be appealing if we are to secure the top-notch scholars.

WE ALSO would like to address the fact that the gender situation has changed very little from last summer concerning women who hold top-ranking positions: Positions which have such duties as distributing money and the power of direction over a large number of people. A fancy title does not necessarily mean one has power, and this is very evident at SIU-C.

Editorials from summer 1988 indicated that the first woman found, after going through the highest ranking positions at this University, was the ombudsman. As we recall the gender ball game ended with a score of 27 to 152, with, of course, the 27 representing the number of women who hold administrative positions as well as high-ranking faculty positions. Has this number changed? Maybe, give or take a few.

BUT THE issue is not just how many women can the University employ, plop a "sounds very important" title on the door of her office and expect everyone to shut up about gender equality. We not only want but expect this administration take bigger leaps in their advancement toward equality, not only in gender but in all aspects.

The University needs to realize that this is no longer a man's world, and a woman's place is no longer behind a pretty and facetious title.

Man who hears from Elvis Presley wants people to believe his stories

By Rheta Grimsley Johnson
Scripps Howard News Service

The major gets phone calls from Elvis. Not the colonel, the major.

"It's the cotton-pickin' truth. My friend called me last just a few weeks ago after he held his grandbaby for the first time. He said 'and this is a wonderful quote. 'I held my grandbaby, but I couldn't see her for the tears.'"

Maj. Bill Smith of Fort Worth, Texas... author, record producer, showman, songwriter... usually refers to Elvis as "my friend" because he believes his telephone is tapped by those trying to find where Elvis lives.

Smith stays in trouble with Graceland officials; angry Presley fans warn him to "let Elvis rest in peace." Smith's own family doubts him.

"But it's the cotton-pickin' truth. I said to my own son: 'Do you think your Dad's a liar? Do you think he's a fool? Well then... How do dead people rest in peace anyway? I always wanted somebody to tell me that."

A conversation with Smith is a roller coaster ride. You hold on.

"You caught me reading in Genesis. I read from the Good Book every morning. Did you see me on 'Gerald'?"

Elvis first telephoned in June 1980. "We talked for eight hours the first time." The last time they chatted was "four or five weeks ago." He says there have been many other calls in between.

Elvis, Smith's story goes, faked his death to escape the "prison of Graceland." The corpse in the casket was just "a rented, 52-pound, wax dummy."

The supermarket tabloids have related his story; so have NBC, CBS, ABC and the BBC. It is a story he sticks to:

The real Elvis, when he gets lonely, calls his old friend, Major Smith.

But now he stays busy trying to convince the world Elvis lives.

"All that bawling and squalling going on over in Memphis. It's bullock! I tell my friend, 'They're trying to make you a god.' There's only one God."

Smith says Elvis had wanted to "come back" last October but changed his mind. Too bad for Smith, who said his friend had authorized him to handle all publicity.

"For one thing, he wasn't going to upstage the marriage of his daughter."

Smith maintains a multimedia arsenal of what he calls proof: a tape of Elvis talking, another of him singing a song written in 1980, "I Love a Rainy Night." Oh, and there is Smith's book, "Memphis Mystery: Requiem for Elvis."

But his most interesting evidence is what Smith calls "the million dollar photograph" of Muhammad Ali, Jesse Jackson and a man he says is the King taken upon Ali's release from a New York hospital in 1984.

He has but one response for naysayers and Doubting Thomases: "At least say this to me. Say, 'I hope you're right, you ol' kook. I hope you're right."

Today's 'gentler' nation rolled back to 1941

By Thomas Sowell
Scripps Howard News Service

An experimental time machine has malfunctioned, transporting President Bush and Secretary of State James Baker back to 1941. The date is Dec. 7th and the Japanese have just bombed Pearl Harbor. At a White House news conference, the president and the secretary of state face a crowd of agitated reporters.

"When are we going to declare war on Japan, Mr. President?"

"Well, I'm new here, as you know. And I don't want to take precipitous action before I get the lay of the land."

"But we've been bombed, Mr. President! That's an act of war." "I know we've been bombed and I share the heartbreak and outrage of the American people."

Secretary of State Baker adds: "The president has already demonstrated his feelings on this. People could hear the sob in his voice when he broadcast his first response to this terrible news."

"Thank you, Jim. And let me add that we are going to let Japan know, in no uncertain terms, that this kind of behavior is just unacceptable."

An astonished reporter says: "We have just been slapped across the face in front of the whole world. If we don't strike back, that will encourage more Pearl Harbors... and how many more can we survive?"

"You misunderstand me. Of course we are going to take action. The question is what kind of action: Military? Diplomatic? Economic sanctions? All these options are being considered."

"This sure doesn't sound like what President Roosevelt would have done."

"We each have our own style and I am my own man. Secretary Baker and I have come back here from a more complex society, where we think in terms of multiple options instead of simplistic responses. Tell them some of the options we are considering, Jim."

"First of all, we are sending a naval task force out on maneuvers in the general vicinity of Japan, as a show of strength. Right now, as we speak, my staff is drafting a toughly worded message to Japan, saying that we won't tolerate such outrages. It seems to me that Japan's behavior has been — well, dastardly, wouldn't you say, Mr. President?"

"Yeah, Jim, I think we can go that far."

"Would you say that this is a day that will live in infamy?" asks a familiar voice.

"Is that Sam Donaldson?"

"Yes, Mr. President. I got caught up in the time machine, too."

"How will the 1980s do without you, Sam?"

"I don't know."

"Well, Sam, getting back to your question, some people might call this 'a day that will live in infamy,' but I don't believe in rhetorical overkill."

"But look what Japan has done — a massive sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, right in the middle of 'peace' talks."

"I know that, Sam. And I'm angry, I'm hurt, I'm outraged."

"Yes, but what are you going to do about it, Mr. President?"

"We are doing plenty about it. We have recalled our ambassador from Japan. We have suspended cultural exchanges, we have stopped all exports to Japan..."

... Except for Boeing airplanes," Baker injects.

"Thank you, Jim. I'd forgotten about that."

"But Mr. President, what does Japan have to do for you to take military action — hang an American and send you the pictures?"

"Let's not confuse different issues here, Sam. We haven't completely ruled out the military option. However, we need to take a few more days to assess the situation."

"What will you know in a few more days that you don't know now?"

"Well, for one thing, the public opinion polls will be out then."

Tips for better semester

Want a happier school year? Try these tips from an old bizzard who's been through four years of college — twice.

1. Expose yourself. No, not that way. Expose yourself to all the ideas you can. Take all the liberal arts courses your schedule will allow, then stay an extra semester for more!

Load up on art, literature, music, philosophy, all those courses that expand your intellectual horizons. Remember the words attributed to Einstein: "Imagination is more important than knowledge." Build on your imagination by exposing yourself to liberal arts.

2. Get organized. How about spending next finals week this year? Seeing a movie each night. Get eight hours sleep each night. Get A's or your tests each day. Sound good? It's easy. Start studying for your finals now. This works for GRE's and state boards too. Take it from one who's done it. Of course, there was that time an entire semester of calculus was memorized in one sleepless night.

3. Have fun. Nothing else renews and refreshes like fun. Do whatever it takes to bring laughter into your life, as long as you respect the emotional and physical safety of others. Sing, dance, tell jokes, even try something silly once in a while. It's all great tonic, it's perfectly legal and it's free!

Ready for one last piece of advice?

Remains of Rep. Leland, 8 others returned to U.S. soil

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Hailed as "nine fallen heroes of peace," the remains of Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, and eight other Americans killed in an Ethiopian plane crash were returned to U.S. soil Wednesday.

Nine caskets bearing the remains of members of a U.S. congressional delegation, killed during a hunger mission to Ethiopia, were lifted from an Air Force C-141 aircraft at Andrews Air Force Base by a joint military honor guard. A crowd of more than 300 congresspersons, family members and aides watched the solemn ceremony.

As the caskets were loaded into a row of black and silver hearses, House speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said, "We gather here to honor nine fallen heroes of peace."

Foley said, "Each of these talented and able individuals was on a mission of peace, humanity and compassion. Let us dedicate ourselves to those values for which they gave their lives."

Among the mourners was Leland's mother, Alice Rains, who wiped tears from her eyes as she held onto Leland's brother, Gaston.

Among more than two dozen members of Congress who stood under the blazing sun were several from Leland's home state of Texas, including former House Speaker Jim Wright.

Leland's mother and brother, and his cousin, Cecil Cooper, were to accompany the Texas congressman's remains back to his hometown of Houston, aboard a military C-135 aircraft.

Several dozen congresspersons went to the Air Force base in suburban Washington to honor Leland. They included Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., head of the Congressional Black Caucus;

Rep. Alan Wheat, D-Mo., who travelled to Ethiopia after Leland was reported missing; and Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo.

The nine Americans were flown back to the United States from Rhein-Main Air Base near Frankfurt, after a flight from Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

A private burial service for Leland was scheduled for Thursday in Houston.

Leland, 44, was chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger. He died along with eight other Americans and seven Ethiopians on August 7, when their plane crashed during stormy weather. They were en route to a Sudanese refugee camp at Fugnido.

The twin-engine plane hit a mountain 34 miles east of the town of Gambela in the highlands of western Ethiopia.

In return, the state provides vests for the workers, trash bags and a sign with the group's name along the portion of the highway, which the group has agreed to clean.

Barbara Welk, IDOT public information officer said the Adopt-a-Highway program will be evaluated for a few months and should be enacted in a year.

Illinois will join 12 states are in the process of establishing the program and 12 additional states, which recently have established their own Adopt-a-Highway programs.

A program in Illinois would cover 16,000 miles of highway, Welk said.

The Missouri Department of Transportation initiated the program in 1987 and IDOT Roadside Management Supervisor Charlie Smith said he suspects it has saved money for the state.

"We have no hard figures but it has been a very good program for Missouri," Smith said.

The Adopt-a-Highway program originated in Texas where Bobby Evans, a district engineer for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation, and District Public Affairs Officer Billy Black introduced the program in 1985.

The Texas Highway Commission approached the department for an answer to the state's litter problem.

Evans and Black responded with the Adopt-a-Highway program as a "new, innovative" way to clean up Texas, Black said.

"We are overwhelmed by the acceptance of the program with other states," he said.

Black said other states now contact him directly for ideas and information for starting their own Adopt-a-Highway programs.

"It (the program) was a shot in the dark stemmed from $25 millicia spent on litter pickups each year," Black said.

The Tyler Civitan Club was the first organization in the United States to adopt a portion of highway to keep litter-free and Civitan President Linda Jones said that gives the club "a bit of satisfaction."

The club cleans a stretch of visible highway near Tyler at least four times a year.

"We pick up everything from paper and beer bottles to old cars and furniture, which people leave by the side of the road," Jones said.

Groups such as the Rotary Club, local garden clubs, other civic groups and Boy Scout troops also were among the first in Texas to participate in the program.

The Texas department manager of special programs said since the program's introduction, litter has been reduced by 64 percent.

"The highways are much cleaner thanks to the combined effort of public awareness programs and the volunteers," Karen LeFever said.

The Texas program has grown from 850 volunteer groups in 1985 to 3,320 groups currently cleaning 6,858 miles of highway.

Prowell called the people who pack the streets "the least-desirable characteristic of the Halloween celebration."

Ed Hogan, chief of Carbondale Police, said police will be much stricter in enforcing underaged drinking laws and other regulations this year. He said he expects the number of arrests to be higher this Halloween because of this strictness.

"Halloween as we knew it no longer exists," Hogan said.

Jack Dyer, executive director of University Relations and University presidential appointee to the committee, introduced a media blitz designed to inform as many people as possible about what they can expect from Halloween this year.

Dyer said he plans to distribute 150,000 flyers with the new Halloween rules on them, provide news releases for newspapers across the state, explain the new regulations on local television news broadcasts and send public service announcements to television stations as far away as Champaign and Decatur.

"My goal is to have people say: 'If you'll just shut up, I promise I won't come to Halloween.'" Dyer said.

Since 1982 a dozen Colombian Supreme Court justices, 50 judges, an attorney general, a justice minister, a leading presidential candidate and "scores of prosecutors, police and journalists...have been murdered for standing up to the drug cartels," according to Thornburgh's department.

After the latest string of assassinations, Colombian President Virgilio Barco announced a crackdown that includes the revival of a treaty allowing indicted narcotics kingpins to be extradicted to the United States.

On another topic, Bush said

Vice President Dan Quayle properly presented the administration's position Monday when he said the United States has a "moral obligation" to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels and wants to continue aid to them even after the free elections promised for February by the leftist government.

Bush also reiterated to reporters his opposition to abortion, reaffirmed his support for a constitutional amendment to prohibit desecration of the American flag and declared he was having a "delightful" three-week break.

After the news conference

Bush led journalists to his private tennis court, where his wife, Barbara, was engaged in a doubles match with family and friends. Mrs. Bush had a routine examination for a thyroid condition Tuesday that prompted doctors to prescribe a cortisone treatment to correct a nagging problem with double vision.

Asked how she was feeling, the first lady playfully crossed her eyes, contorted her face and joked, "My eyes are perfect." She then said more seriously, "I feel wonderful," and was visibly grateful when the crowd departed so she again could concentrate on her game.

Journalism student selected for congressional internship

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

A senior in the School of Journalism will be leaving for Washington, D.C., next semester, after winning an internship as a congressional aide.

Kimberly Clarke, associate editorial page editor for the Daily Egyptian, was accepted into the 1990 Sears Congressional Internship Program. She will begin the three-month program as a congressional junior staff member Feb. 1, 1990.

Kimberly Clarke

"I'd say it was Kim's grades and practical experience that prompted her acceptance. We look for students that are interested in public affairs reporting and that have an understanding of the legislative process."

—Julius E. Dickens

Clarke, who served as student editor of the Daily Egyptian during the 1989 summer semester, is the second student from SIU-C in the last two years to be accepted into the program. Walter Jaehrig, director of the School of Journalism, said this is helping the school's prestige.

"It is certainly a big pat on the back for us," Jaehrig said. "It shows we're producing students who can be nationally competitive."

Clarke, who is from Quincy, said she was encouraged to apply by Robert Spellman, an assistant professor in the School of Journalism as well as last year's SIU-C intern Pat Harrison.

"I talked to Pat right after he got back," she said. "He told me to go ahead and send in the application. Professor Spellman helped a lot also."

Clarke said she learned of her acceptance after the summer semester ended and she returned to her hometown.

"I found this letter laying on my bed. My mother told me she was going to throw it away because it had been there two weeks and she thought it was an advertisement."

"I'd say it was Kim's grades and practical experience that prompted her acceptance," Julius E. Dickens, coordinator of the program in Washington D.C., said. "We look for students that are interested in public affairs reporting and that have an understanding of the legislative process."

Though Sears Roebuck has sponsored the program for the last 20 years, Dickens said 1990 will be the last.

"After 20 years you have to re-evaluate your goals," Dickens explained. The company is looking for a sponsor to take over the program, he said, adding that Sears will be concentrating more on elementary and secondary education.

Dickens said the students will be in a position to closely observe the workings of Capitol Hill.

Though Sears Roebuck has sponsored the program for the last 20 years, Dickens said 1990 will be the last.

"They will live in Washington, which is an education in itself," he said. The students also will work at the State Department, Supreme Court and White House buildings, Dickens said.

Clarke, who hopes to work in politics, said the program is a great opportunity.

"I'm going to meet a lot of people and make some important contacts," she said. "Hands on experience is really important to me."

GPSC announces reception, picnic

By Jeanne Bickler
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Council will sponsor an afternoon of fun, food and music with a picnic luau from noon to 6 p.m. Saturday.

The free picnic, which will be held in Turley Park, is an opportunity for graduate and professional students to meet in an informal, fun atmosphere, Trudy Hale, GPSC president, said.

Graduate and professional students can feast on roast pig, barbecued chicken and punch free of charge.

"In the past we have had receptions for the students, but they were too stuffy. It will offer graduate students a chance to meet in a less organized fashion," Hale said.

While at the picnic, graduate and professional students can feast on a meal of roast pig, barbecued chicken and punch free of charge. The Jim Sumner Band, a local blues band, will provide the entertainment.

All graduate and professional students and their family and friends are invited, Hale said. Members of the University administration also will be present.

Hale said in the past, the event has attracted between 300 and 500 students and costs around $2400. This year's event is hoping to attract just as many students at a lower cost, around $2000. Some of the funding for the picnic comes from GPSC and the Graduate School.

Graduate school can be a very isolating experience, Hale said.

U.S. education budgets reap record windfall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A record $353 billion will be spent on U.S. education in 1989-90, with spending per student reaching $5,246 in elementary and secondary schools and $14,923 in higher education, the government predicted Wednesday.

In its annual back-to-school forecast, the Education Department also said total enrollment, teacher salaries and the number of bachelor's degrees will increase this year, while the number of high school graduates will decline.

The department said education expenditures from all sources, adjusted for inflation, will rise 1.8 percent this year to a level 32 percent higher than in 1980-81. Spending per pupil in constant dollars will go up 1.3 percent in elementary and secondary schools and 0.4 percent in higher education.

However, the country is spending a smaller percentage of its wealth, as measured by the gross national product, on education than in the mid-1970s. Education this year will account for about 6.8 percent of GNP, down from about 7.4 percent last decade, department statistician Tom Snyder said.

And Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos said despite a "generous investment" by the American people, education remains a "national crisis." Tests of math and science achievement, for example, show U.S. students lagging behind those in countries that spend less per pupil.

"The education deficit continues to grow," he said.

The forecast said average public school teacher salaries will increase 5.5 percent this year to $31,200. Adjusted for inflation, salaries will be about 20 percent higher than in 1980-81, but only 6.3 percent above 1973-74.

Total enrollment will rise by 400,000 to 58.7 million, continuing an increase that began in 1985 as children born to members of the baby-boom generation started entering schools in large numbers.

Postal Service, FBI investigating gag

ATLANTA (UPI) — FBI agents and Postal Service inspectors tried Tuesday to trace the source of a booby-trapped package that spewed noxious gas at the Southeastern regional headquarters of the NAACP, injuring 15 people.

The package, containing a tear-gas bomb, sent the gas through the office Monday, forcing the evacuation of the building.

The FBI said the package apparently was dropped into a mailbox, not mailed across the counter, making it difficult to trace.

"We are investigating, but we have nothing further to say other than what has already been said," said FBI Special Agent Rosario Diader. "The device is in the hands of the postal inspectors."

The FBI was authorized to conduct a civil rights investigation of the incident. The designation permits the use of broader federal civil rights laws, while postal officials could charge a suspect only with mailing hazardous materials.

The white cardboard package containing the gas-bomb was postmarked Sunday in Atlanta. Postal officials said this means it almost certainly was dropped into a box somewhere in the metro area, not mailed across the counter at a post office Saturday morning, removing any possibility that postal workers might recall the person who mailed it.

The tear-gas bomb went off when the box was opened, spewing white fumes that spread quickly through air conditioning ducts. Eight people were overcome in medical offices on the top two floors of the three-story building.

Neither Earl T. Shinhoster, regional executive director of the NAACP, nor secretary Murlene Murray, who opened the "priority mail" package about 12:25 p.m. on the second floor, was injured. They fled downstairs the instant they saw the gas.

The victims, including a 4-month-old girl and another 12 years old, were taken to Grady Memorial Hospital and Georgia Baptist Medical Center. They suffered eye irritations and congestion from the acrid fumes but no serious injuries, said Dr. Michael F. Levin, director of Grady's medical emergency clinic. All were released by Monday evening.

Shinhoster said none of the NAACP office's four other employees was in at the time.

Giant mirrored satellites could offer help to Earth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gigantic orbiting mirrors may offer a solution — albeit a very costly one — to Earth's anticipated woes with global warming if pollution control efforts fail, a Swiss scientist said Wednesday.

In a letter published in the British journal Nature, Walter Seifritz said he thinks it is unlikely humans will do much in the near future to reduce pollution that threatens to boost the planet's temperature.

Carbon dioxide and other gases generated by fuel consumption and burning of tropical forests warm Earth's atmosphere by trapping solar heat like a greenhouse.

Many scientists predict if current pollution trends continue, Earth's temperature could rise 4 to 9 degrees over the next 70 years. Such an increase would cause a marked rise in sea levels and dramatic climate changes.

If efforts to cut emission of so-called greenhouse gases fail and serious global warming occurs, Seifritz contends "a remote but feasible possibility" would be to lower temperatures by artificially blocking the amount of sunlight reaching Earth.

"To compensate for a temperature increase of 2.5 degrees Kelvin (4.5 degrees Fahrenheit), the solar radiation must be reduced by about 3.5 percent. The task could be done by satellites bearing large, lightweight mirrors," wrote the professor from Switzerland's Schurrer Institute.

Under Seifritz's unusual plan, a satellite bearing 45 million tons of aluminum mirrors would be stationed at a point where it will always stand between the Earth and the sun. That position — which astronomers call a Lagrange point — is 900,000 miles from Earth.

The gargantuan 20-year effort would cost 6 percent of the gross national product of the world per year, which is "roughly equivalent to its total annual military expenditure," Seifritz wrote.

Seifritz said there are a few potential drawbacks to his far-out scenario.

Relatives of Newton questioned

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Slain black revolutionary Huey Newton, who seemed "really worried" about something, spent his last hours drinking gin with an ex-lover, who denied Newton was in the crime-ridden neighborhood to buy drugs.

Four police detectives working on Newton's murder questioned friends and family Wednesday, trying to trace what may have brought him to the rundown area of town, rampant with crack dealers and drug trafficking.

"They have been very cooperative," Lt. Mike Sims said. He declined to discuss details, but said detectives gained some helpful information.

Family members said they would talk publicly about the case later.

Newton, co-founder of the militant Black Panther Party whose followers regarded him as a hero for his radical politics but who was denounced as a mere violent criminal by his critics, was gunned down on a sidewalk Tuesday.

An autopsy was conducted Tuesday but results were not expected for at least a week, Sims said.

No witnesses to the killing have come forward. Newton, 47, was found unconscious on his back, with three bullet holes in the head, on the bloody pavement. He died at a hospital.

An autopsy was conducted Tuesday but results were not expected for at least a week, Sims said.

Pat Wright, who said she was Newton's former lover and was with him hours before his killing, denied speculation Newton frequented the neighborhood to buy drugs.

"He was in good spirits but there was something he was really worried about," Wright said.

Wright said Newton visited her at about 10:30 p.m. Monday and shared a fifth of gin before leaving about three hours later.

She said Newton used drugs, but was not consumed by cocaine.

"They keep saying what he was doing in the area was buying crack," Wright said. "But he lived here. He stayed here. This was where he belonged."

Police said a possible drug link to the murder was being investigated but they had found no evidence.

Newton served 90 days at San Quentin Prison earlier this year after being picked up on a parole violation for possessing cocaine. He was found under the influence of narcotics in another parole violation in July 1968.

A car registered to Newton's wife, Frederika Newton of Berkeley, was found near where he was slain.

Friends said the Newtons had periods of estrangement but had been living together in Berkeley during the past month.

Others said Newton was frequently seen at a liquor store in the west Oakland neighborhood where he drank wine with street people.

New Dreyfuss film takes an unusual look at gambling

By Robert Kemnitz
Student Writer

When I heard that Richard Dreyfuss of "Close Encounters" and "The Goodbye Girl" had a new film coming out, I wagered that the odds were one to five that it would be a great movie.

Film Review

Then I saw that David Johansen was also in it and dropped the odds to five to one against. Then I was informed Johansen would not sing and I leveled the bet out to even money.

In "Let It Ride," Dreyfuss stars as Jack Trotter, a late night taxi driver who at the opening of the film, states to his wife, played by Terri Garr, that he has quit gambling for good. Obviously he hasn't. David Johansen plays Trotter's very dimwitted friend. Big surprise there. The rest of the film concerns itself with Dreyfuss' character performing everyone's dream of an uninterrupted winning streak.

Surprisingly enough, the film makes absolutely no attempt at an anti-gambling message. In fact, the opposite is almost true with the films big message, "You could be walking around lucky and never know it." But with all the "message films" in the last few years, it's sort of refreshing to see anything different.

The problem, however, is that besides the magic of repeated trips to collect his winnings, which becomes very boring, the film tells no other story. After the first half hour you realize that he can't lose and any tension is lost.

A good game to play in this film is to count the number of times the overhead microphone drops on screen. One would expect a cinematographer to know what he's doing, but in a world where film projectionist's can't center a film on screen for $14 an hour, it should come as no great surprise.

The atmosphere somewhat makes up for this. In a style reminiscent of "Bull Durham," the film allows us to enter Dreyfuss' thoughts for his insight. We see the entire world of the racetrack. The $2 dollar betters sitting in a slimy bar, the jockey's club with people dropping thousands of dollars, and even a few moments to consider the even bathroom attendant.

The atmosphere and the performances are really all there is to recommend in this movie. Everybody is rather stupid and crazy, which isn't so bad because the movie is a comedy. Dr. yfuss is fine as the loser on a winning streak. Johansen is fine playing, I suspect, a little bit of himself. The major award goes to Jennifer Tilly for in the sleaziest red dress someone could almost wear.

"Let It Ride" is not so much the lesson in the movie as "Play It Safe." If you're a big Dreyfuss fan you might put up the money for a matinee. Otherwise, wait for the to show at a theater where all showings are a dollar.

Rend Lake offers electrical class

Beginning in September and continuing through December, Rend Lake College will conduct annual "Electrical Retraining" classes for both surface and underground coal miners who need to renew their electrical cards.

"Electrical Retraining" classes will be offered during the day, evenings and Saturdays, according to the college's electrical coordinator Chuck Foster. The college has been authorized by the Mine Safety and Health Administration to offer these one-day, eight-hour classes.

Prospective students are asked to contact the Industrial Technology and Mining Department in advance to register. The cost is $11.50 per person. Students are encouraged to sign up as soon as possible, Foster indicated, because enrollments are limited and sessions usually fill quickly.

To register or to find out more about the "Electrical Retraining" classes planned during the next four months, individuals should contact Rend Lake College personnel at 1-437-5321, ext. 271, or toll-free 1-800-642-7776. College hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Police Blotter

A Carbondale man was arrested early Wednesday morning and charged with obstructing an officer.

William J. Budsluck, 25, of Rt. 9 in Carbondale, was arrested at 2:20 a.m. at the Corner of Grand and Illinois avenues.

Budsluck, who was intoxicated, according to police, and another pedestrian were observed stumbling and falling at the intersection by a University Security Police officer. The officer approached the two men and instructed them to continue on their way. The two men continued a few yards and Budsluck stopped and refused to proceed. Budsluck taunted the officer and was arrested, according to police.

Budsluck was unable to post the $100 bond and was taken to the Jackson County Jail.

France's ships sail in spite of warning

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A French naval force neared the Lebanese coast Wednesday on what it said was a humanitarian mission despite Moslem militia threats to attack the ships and targets inside France.

The Soviet Union and the United Nations launched fresh efforts, meanwhile, to halt the civil war and resume Arab League peace efforts in Lebanon.

France has said its ships are going to Lebanon to aid French citizens there and deliver food and medicine, but Syria-backed Moslem forces charged the warships are on a mission to assist Christian forces and threatened to attack the ships and targets in

Lebanese political sources said Moscow was seeking to persuade Syria to avoid military confrontation with the French force.

Paris itself if France intervenes militarily.

The French navy said six of the eight ships, including an aircraft carrier, that were headed toward Lebanon were about 200 miles from the country's coast by Wednesday afternoon. Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said the bulk of the force was within 100 miles late Wednesday.

The French ships were well outside the range of Moslem and Syrian cannons that have kept Christian ports under constant bombardment.

Mitterrand: Naval force on safeguard mission

PARIS (UPI) — President Francois Mitterrand, responding to criticism of French involvement in Lebanon, said Wednesday no country can dictate France's foreign policy but stressed that France did not intend to intervene militarily.

Mitterrand, addressing members of his Cabinet, reiterated that the French naval task force heading toward the Lebanese coast was on a mission to protect French citizens, presidential spokesman Hubert Vedrine said.

"When France announces a mission of safeguard, and only safeguard, some people do not want to hear the meaning of words and pretend to confuse safeguard and military action," Mitterrand said. "Others wrongly imagine that the French navy is or will be at their disposal."

Leaders of Iranian and Syrian-backed militia groups in Lebanon threatened Tuesday to retaliate if the French armada offers support for Lebanese Christian forces in the civil war.

"No country or group has the right to dictate to France what it must do about Lebanon," Mitterrand said. "France acts and will act according to international law, to protect its nationals first, with the idea of protecting all the suffering Lebanese communities, Damascus radio reported that Gennady Tarasov, a special envoy of Soviet Foreign Minister Edward Shevardnadze, held talks on Lebanon Wednesday in the Syrian capital with Foreign Minister Farouk Al Sharaa.

"All Lebanese forces should use their (forces) to prevent further deterioration in the situation," Tarasov said.

Lebanese political sources said Moscow was seeking to persuade Syria, its main ally in the Arab world, to avoid military confrontation with the French force on the grounds that Paris had declared the fleet would not engage in military action.

Beirut radio stations said the Soviet envoy was expected to arrive in the Lebanese capital Thursday.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar also announced Wednesday that he is sending special Middle East envoy Jean-Claude Aime to Morocco, Algeria and Saudi Arabia later this week to ask them to revive Arab League peace efforts.

Perez de Cuellar is acting under a request by the Security Council which asked him to follow up on an Aug. 15 Council appeal for an immediate cease-fire in Lebanon and the resumption of Arab League peace efforts.

The three Arab countries gave up their efforts in July and an earlier effort by a group of six countries headed by Kuwait got no results.

Earlier Wednesday, French Ambassador Rene Ais, said after meeting Christian leader Gen. Michel Aoun that the French force would enter Lebanese territorial waters within 24 hours and initially take up positions several miles offshore.

whatever their belief."

France sent a total of eight warships toward the Lebanese coast on a mission of "help and protection," coinciding with diplomatic efforts to prevent the resurgence of Moslem-Christian fighting.

The navy said six of the ships had arrived within 200 nautical miles of the Lebanese coast by Wednesday afternoon, and reports from Lebanon said some of the ships were within 100 miles of the coast.

But French Defense Minister Jean Pierre Chevenement announced late Wednesday that the frigate Estienne-D'Orves Aviso would be pulled back and that two other ships would return to France in a shuffling of the naval task force.

"This is just a normal step for a safeguard mission," Chevenement said. "France has to keep control of its politics."

Sheikh Zohair Kanj, an official of the so-called "Gathering of the Moslem Scholars" in Lebanon, said earlier that any "stupid" act by the French warships would prompt Moslem retaliation "in the heartland of France, especially Paris."

"We do not define our policies in relation to pressure and threats made by others," a Foreign Ministry spokesman said Wednesday.

WSIU-TV gets wire service

E. J. Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

WSIU-TV will have the ability to bring national and international news clips to their student-run news broadcast, thanks to an endowment from a local television station.

John Williams, vice president and general manager of WPSD-TV in Paducah, presented a check for $2,360 to Joe S. Foote, chairperson of the radio and television department, during a brief ceremony Wednesday morning.

The money will cover the cost of one year of CNN Newsource, a video wire service that is fed by satellite nine times each weekday to subscribing broadcast stations for use in their broadcasts.

John Williams, vice president and general manager of WPSD-TV in Paducah, presented a check for $2,360 to the radio-television department. The money will cover the cost of one year of CNN Newsource, a video wire service fed by satellite.

"It's a highly beneficial addition," Williams said. "It will train students to be able to work for our company or any company."

"This is another example of our partnership with local broadcast companies," Foote added. "Newsource will allow students to see how stations package their news."

Also covered by the endowment is the cost of a printer and a signal decoder. The printer will copy scripts that can be used with the visual feeds.

SIU-C was nominated by WPSD-TV to receive the CNN Newsource Award of Excellence. The nominating station then agrees to pay the technical costs involved.

"We have hired many SIU-C graduates, all of them of high quality," Williams said. The program is intended to involve the nation's top communications institutions, he said.

Ken Keller, a professor in radio-television, said the station's format will not change a lot at first.

"It will still be a local focus," Keller said. "It will help a great deal in sports coverage though."

Keller said WSIU-TV hopes to have the system in place by the time it begins broadcasting the news program Sept. 25.

Their way

Our way.

You can save literally days of work between now and graduation. Simply by using an HP calculator. To keep you from endlessly retracing your steps, ours have built-in shortcuts. Such as the unique HP Solve function for creating your own formulas. Menus, labels and prompts. Program libraries. Algebraic or RPN models.

Better algorithms and chip design help you finish much faster and more accurately than their way. So, whether you're in engineering, business, finance, life or social sciences, we've got the best calculator for you. For as little as $49.95. Check it out at your campus bookstore or HP retailer.

There is a better way.

Hoosier basketball releases report on recruiting incident

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — The NCAA is investigating a basketball recruiting violation by two Indiana University assistant coaches that school officials said was accidental, a university report released Wednesday said.

The 64-page report said an error by a member of the academic counseling office led to an unintentional recruiting violation by Joby Wright and Ron Felling in trying to sign high school prospect Lawrence Funderburke of Columbus, Ohio.

Funderburke was to sign with Indiana early on the morning of the first day of the signing period last April. But Funderburke caught an early plane for Louisville, Ky., where he was to play in an all-star game. Wright and Felling followed from Columbus and attempted to sign him to a letter of intent, violating a rule passed last January limiting contact with athletes around the time of all-star games.

"The error was made in our academic counseling office," said Haydn Murray, Indiana's faculty representative. "The coaches were not at fault because they checked in before going to Louisville and were told they would not be in violation of Rule 13.1.5.2a. It's evident there was an unintentional violation of rule 13.1.5.2a, new legislation passed at the NCAA convention in January 1989."

The report said Felling and Wright contacted school officials but were unknowingly given inaccurate information by Anita House, an Indiana administrative assistant for academics in the athletic department since 1980. She did not know of the change in NCAA regulations because the information was accidentally not included in a memo from Murray to Bob Knight's assistants and the academic department.

Albert Velasquez, an assistant counsel for IU, spoke Tuesday with David Berst, the assistant NCAA director for enforcement, the report said.

Velasquez said, in a memo released as part of the report, that Berst told him the school would suffer no adverse effects if the story is corroborated, but could suffer penalties if the coaches' statements were found to be misrepresentations of what took place.

Clemson targeted in NCAA probe

CLEMSON, S.C. (UPI) — The NCAA, following several days of rumors, notified Clemson University Wednesday that the school is the target of a preliminary inquiry into its athletic policies and practices.

The letter from NCAA official David Berst to Clemson President Max Lennon arrived a week after the first unconfirmed reports that the NCAA was looking into recruiting practices within the Clemson football program.

"Information has been received indicating that possible violations of NCAA regulations have occurred on the part of the institution and its representatives," the letter said. "As of this date, the information has not been sufficiently investigated to determine whether an official inquiry is warranted. Consequently, the NCAA enforcement staff has undertaken a preliminary inquiry."

Clemson was placed on a two-year NCAA probation in 1982 for 70 rules violations. Clemson won the national championship in 1981.

Berst, the NCAA's assistant executive director for enforcement, said in the letter that Clemson will be notified if the inquiry turns up a basis for a full investigation or if the case is closed because of lack of evidence.

Lennon, in a written response to Berst, promised the university's cooperation in reviewing the allegations.

"Our highest priority is the integrity of Clemson University," he said.

"Clemson University pledges complete cooperation and support on the part of everyone affiliated with Clemson to move with dispatch to resolve the issue."

Dokes to fight on Thursday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Michael Dokes, who would rather be training to fight heavyweight champion Mike Tyson, instead will battle Wesley Watson Thursday night at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum.

Dokes, 38-2-2 with 24 knockouts, was offered a fight against Tyson later this year, but negotiations died after a five-minute discussion between Dokes' manager Marty Cohen and Tyson's promoter Don King. Tyson and King instead settled on Razor Ruddock as the opponent for a November bout.

"I'm not disappointed, but I'm disillusioned with Don King because I thought we had a good relationship," Dokes said. "I never anticipated a Tyson-Dokes fight because it was all heresay. We never got together to discuss terms and consummate the deal.

"I wouldn't have accepted one million dollars, but it would've been nice to be able to turn it down or talk about it across the table."

King called Cohen, who turns 92 Thursday, on July 27 — one day after Cohen was released from a hospital after receiving an artificial right hip. He offered $1 million; Cohen asked for $3 million. King never called back.

Quarterback troubles plague football Cards

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — With the future of ailing Neil Lomax in doubt, quarterback is the big question mark for the Phoenix Cardinals heading into the 1989 season.

Lomax, who has passed for 2,500-yards for six straight seasons, was sidelined in preseason by an arthritic left hip that became a serious problem late last season.

While Lomax gave no signs of retiring and was continuing therapy, Cardinals Coach Gene Stallings went on with the job of finding a successor. Gary Hogeboom, Timm Rosenbach and Tom Tupa are the candidates.

Phoenix signed Hogeboom in the offseason as an insurance policy for Lomax. The policy cost $3.27 million over four years and Hogeboom, who showed few signs of stardom in his previous nine years with Dallas and Indianapolis, did little in early training camp to tie down the starting job.

Rosenbach was selected in the supplemental draft after he decided to bypass his senior season at Washington State. But the rookie missed valuable training camp time before he signed with Phoenix, and is unlikely to be ready to play much early in the season.

Tupa, actually drafted as a punter more than a quarterback in 1988, spent his rookie year on the bench but pleased Stallings in the first exhibition game this year by engineering a last-minute, game-tying 99-yard touchdown drive.

Once the quarterback problem is solved, the winner will team up with one of the best tandem of wide receivers in the NFL, J.T. Smith and Roy Green. Smith needs 36 receptions to reach 500 for his career and 29 yards to reach the 6,000-yard plateau. Green needs only three touchdown receptions for a career club record 60.

The offensive line looks strong and will be led by tackle Luis Sharpe.

Defensively, there is room for improvement all around, but especially in the secondary.

"The name of the game is points and we gave up too many points," Stallings said. "We need to pressure the quarterback more. We need to play the end run better. And we've got to get some turnovers."

meter best of 30:11.0 would have won this year's Missouri Valley Conference championship by more than a minute.

"I think he could come in as a freshman and become our top man instantly," Cornell said. "A lot will depend on how he adjusts to the situation as well."

Cornell also added former Centralia High School stars Nick Schwartz and Neal West. Schwartz and West transferred from the University of Alabama and were heavily recruited by Cornell throughout their high school careers. "I went after both of these guys hard, but they elected to go to Alabama," Cornell said. "There's been some coaching changes at Alabama and I think they both wanted to run closer to home. I'm extremely pleased they elected to come to SIU."

West, who will be a sophomore, was one of the premier distance runners in the midwest in high school. He earned all-state honors in cross country twice, and was all-state in track once. As a senior he was eighth in the state cross country meet and sixth in the state 3,200-meter run. "I am hoping that he will become one of my top five men," Cornell said.

Schwartz competed indoors at Alabama this past season, but red-shirted the cross country and outdoor track seasons. He was the 1988 Illinois state champion at 1600-meters and was picked as the Southern Illinois "Trackman of the Year."

Schwartz's status for the season is uncertain right now. He has a stress fracture in his femur. "We are not sure if he will be able to run cross country this season, Cornell said." Schwartz and West received their unconditional releases from the Alabama athletic department and are eligible immediately.

Bernard Henry, a middle-distance runner from St. Lucia, West Indies also was signed by Cornell. Henry has bests of :48.87 at 400-meters and 1:51.2 at 800-meters.

"Bernard is more of a quarter and half-miler but he has been a pleasant surprise in the longer distances as well so far," Cornell said. "We hope that he steadily improves and its a matter of how he adjusts. I am impressed with his talent and the way he has looked in workouts. He's run mostly on grass and I'm eager to see what he can do on good tracks."

beat someone," Hartzog said. "We've been down at the bottom of the MVC in men's golf for several years."

Hartzog has managed to turn the team around and things are starting to look up for the 1989-90 season. "We were competitive in all but two tournaments we played in last season," Hartzog said. "I expect the team to be significantly better than we were a year ago."

Hartzog considers senior Mike Cowen, juniors Mark Bellas and Brit Pavelonis and sophomores Sean English and Sean Leckrone as the top five returning players this fall.

"I really expect a big year from Cowen. He's really a solid golfer. Bellas should be outstanding, he's on the verge of becoming a great player," Hartzog said.

Besides these players, who have nine letters between them, several others should make an impact in the future.

Hartzog said sophomore David Lewis, who was redshirted last season, along with a group of incoming freshman will keep the team competitive over the next few years.

"Basso is a good sports bookmaker used by the mob," Jerry Gladen, chief investigator for the Chicago Crime Commission, told UPI.

Basso was one of a dozen Chicago bookmakers whose records were seized with federal warrants, the Sun-Times said.

The new twist in the investigation ties in with a wide-ranging federal gambling investigation that has been under way in Chicago for years, Gladden said.

Federal investigators and baseball's private investigators are trying to determine whether Rose's telephone number appears in Basso phone records.

Report says driver died of AIDS virus

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Stock car driver Tim Richmond died after a two-and-a-half-year battle with AIDS, which he contracted through heterosexual activity, his personal doctor said Wednesday.

"He was at the height of his career, and he was struck down by AIDS," Dr. David Dodson told a news conference at Good Samaritan Hospital, where the racing car driver died Aug. 13. "If Tim can be struck down by this, it shows that anyone can."

Richmond was diagnosed with pneumocystis pneumonia, an infection commonly associated with AIDS, in December 1986, the end of his best racing season ever, Dodson said. The diagnosis was done at the Cleveland Clinic in Ohio.

Dodson said Richmond had an aversion to needles and told him he did not use intravenous drugs. Although Richmond attributed his illness to his sexual activity, Dodson said he could not trace it to an individual sexual encounter.

The doctor also could not say how sexually active Richmond was prior to his diagnosis, or whether he had sex with prostitutes.

"Tim! Richmond died from complications of acquired immune deficiency syndrome," Dodson said. "He absolutely did not get AIDS from intravenous drug use, homosexual activity, or a blood transfusion."

Despite Dodson's statements, drivers and officials in NASCAR, who said they had suspected Richmond died of AIDS, believed he used drugs while living a fast lifestyle.

"You couldn't talk to him about slowing down. It was hard for him to see which way the world was going, really," NASCAR driver Dale Earnhardt said. "A lot of friends talked to him. They wanted him to slow down, but Tim did what he wanted. He just handled things differently."

Richmond, 34, died after slipping quietly into a coma at Good Samaritan Hospital. Doctors at the time said he died of pneumonia and refused to give further details at the request of his family.

Richmond's parents and his sister, who live in Deerfield Beach, chose to go public Wednesday with the celebrity's AIDS death in the hope that others like him could be spared his fate, Dodson said.

"They lost a son to AIDS and they don't want anybody else to lose a son," Dodson said.

Dodson said Richmond refrained from having sex after his diagnosis.

No-name rookies demand millions

Scrips Howard News Service

Be honest. Confess. You'd never heard of Tim Worley, one of sportsdom's latest millionaires.

And if somebody told you a fellow by the name of Burt Grossman demanded millions, too, your first question would be: Did he wield a blue-steel revolver or a sawed-off shotgun?

It takes a real football potato to know these are two first-round selections in the 1989 NFL college draft. Both were among the first 10 picked, as was Eric Hill.

Oh? Hill doesn't ring a bell, either?

Of the first 10 selections, only three have agreed to play this season.

This year it's more fashionable than ever to be a rookie holdout. It's because the No. 1 pick in the draft, UCLA quarterback Troy Aikman, signed an unprecedented $11.2 million deal to play six years for Dallas.

With that, No. 2 pick Tony Mandarich stamped his foot and his Adam's apple rang his head. He's demanding millions a year, too.

But that's trouble. The trouble is, Mandarich is an offensive lineman. At least defensive linemen show up on TV and the All-Madden Team.

But an offensive lineman, whose job it is to block and not get penalties, isn't supposed to be a millionaire. That's why the NFL has the pension fund, for offensive linemen.

But because Mandarich won't take lineman wages from Green Bay, No. 3 pick Barry Sanders is biding his time before signing with Detroit. Sanders is the Heisman Trophy winner from Oklahoma State, thus a marquee-name running back. He'll be darned if he signs for fewer millions than some blue-collar lineman like Mandarich.

So it's the holdout game; standing dominoes.

Rose suspended for 5 years

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pete Rose and Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti have agreed on a suspension that will remove the Cincinnati manager from baseball for five years, United Press International learned Wednesday night.

The agreement, which saves baseball's all-time hit leader from a lifetime ban, involves rehabilitation from gambling, a well-placed baseball source said.

Giamatti has called a news conference for 8 a.m. in New York Thursday to make the announcement.

The deal comes five days before Rose and Giamatti were to go to federal court in Columbus, Ohio, with the commissioner's jurisdiction at issue. Rose has claimed the commissioner is biased in the case and is seeking to have someone other than Giamatti judge him.

Under baseball rules, Rose faces banishment from baseball if it was found he bet on his own team. Baseball's special investigator has concluded Rose did bet on the Reds, but the manager has repeatedly denied it.

The latest development marks the apparent end to a story that has shadowed baseball since spring training and dragged the game through one of its biggest scandals.

Rose, for years the very symbol of baseball, was accused not only of gambling on the game he played with such unrelenting verve, but depicted as a man consumed with sports betting and drawn into a seedy world of bookmakers and bet runners. He was said to have run up gambling debts of more than $400,000 and faced the possibility of prosecution on tax evasion charges.

Word of Rose's imminent suspension came a day after the 48-year-old manager's wife gave birth to a girl in Cincinnati and one the same day federal agents and baseball's private investigators reportedly pored over records of Chicago bookies to try and determine whether Rose bet on his own team.

Among those under investigation in Dominic Basso, a mid-level bookie with connections to organized crime, Chicago radio station WBBM-AM and the Chicago Sun-Times reported. Basso was convicted on syndicated gambling charges earlier this year in Du Page County and served a relatively light work-rel ease sentence.

Harvey's departure stuns players, staff

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

There is some disappointment in the air concerning Tony Harvey's untimely departure from SIU-C.

Harvey left his teammates and coaching staff believing he would return for the fall semester. As it turned out, Harvey decided not to let anyone know of his true intentions until two days after the fall semester started.

No one is quite sure what Harvey's plans are for this fall. Two things are for sure: he will not play for SIU-C and he will not be playing Division I basketball for at least one year.

Because of his later than last minute timing, Athletic Director Jim Hart decided not to release Harvey from his agreement with the University. This means Harvey cannot accept a scholarship from another school for one year, but he can still transfer.

Hart said if Harvey would have notified the school earlier in the summer it may have been a different situation, but the timing of his decision really placed SIU-C's basketball program at a disadvantage. Hart felt it wasn't appropriate to grant Harvey an outright release.

Dorothy Harvey, Tony's mother, called SIU Tuesday and let school officials know Tony would not return for the fall. Her only explanation was her son wanted to play closer to home, Gautier, Miss.

A major speculation was Harvey left school after academic problems. Grade point averages cannot be obtained, but according to Admissions and Records, Harvey was pre-registered for fall classes.

Rumors have surfaced indicating Harvey might transfer to the University of Texas-El Paso or Kansas State. Bobby McCullum, former assistant coach at SIU-C, now an assistant coach at K-State, said he did not know where Harvey was planning to transfer. Officials at UTEP also denied any knowledge of Harvey's plans.

"The first I learned Harvey asked for a release was yesterday (Tuesday). When the Southern Illinoisan called me," McCullum said, "I don't have any idea where he plans to transfer."

McCullum also said Harvey seemed a little frustrated early last season, but it was a typical reaction for anyone in his position.

The decision to leave school also came as a surprise to Harvey's teammates. Junior guard Sterling Mahan said he talked to Harvey several weeks ago but he gave no indication he would not return to school. "We'll just have to come together as a team," Mahan said.

Junior forward Rick Shipley was optimistic about the upcoming season. "We can fill in as a team. Everybody will have to try harder," Shipley said. "I think Tony could have helped. We'll just have to see who can pick up the slack and get the job done."

Head coach Rich Herrin said the morale of the players has not been affected. "I think the players will group together," he said. "We did everything possible as a University and a staff to let Harvey know he was welcome here. It just wasn't enough."

Harvey started 30 games as a freshman for the Salukis. He averaged 6.9 points, 5.2 rebounds and 2.1 blocks per game.

Tony Harvey, shown here dunking against Creighton last season at the Arena, informed the University Tuesday of his decision to leave and seek a university closer to his Mississippi home.

Hartzog's goal to win MVC championship

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

Low Hartzog is beginning his fourth year as head coach of SIU-C men's golf team and is setting his sights on the Missouri Valley Conference championship.

In the MVC championship tournament last spring the Salukis finished fourth after a spirited rally in the final round. The team showed a lot of character that day, Hartzog said.

"They were playing in 34-degree weather, 10 degrees with the windchill factor," Hartzog said. "The kids had to make up nine strokes in the final round to finish fourth."

"When I started as golf coach three years ago, it was difficult getting our players to believe they could go out and

Cornell anticipates success from new, returning runners

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's cross country team will look for continued success from its returning runners and added depth from new recruits when its season opens Sept. 9 in a home meet against Kansas.

"It is too early to tell what will happen but we are really excited about the season," said SIU-C coach Bill Cornell.

David Beauchem, the Salukis senior team captain, returns to the team this season and Cornell has been pleased with him so far in practice. "David is our top returning person from the conference meet last season," Cornell said. Beauchem finished eighth in the conference meet.

Cornell also will be looking forward to the return of senior Paul Burkinshaw, junior Mike Kershaw and sophomores Mark Stuart and Vaughan Harry, who all placed in the top 25 of the conference meet last season.

The Salukis also are looking for pleasant surprises from a group of new recruits added to the team this season. Gerald Owen from Dyfed, Wales possibly could step in and become the team's top runner, according to Cornell. Owen is the Welsh national junior cross country champion. His 10,000-
