Student Center plans eleven-day shutdown

Dedicated football players will have to find somewhere else to practice their art when the Student Center closes down from Dec. 23 to Jan. 2.

Director John Corker said Tuesday the 11 day shutdown is the first in the center’s history. In previous years, the building has been closed only four days during Christmas break.

The building is being closed in hopes of saving between $11,000 and $13,000. Corker said, “With the loss of $368,000 in retained tuition, we are having to cut costs and make up losses in the building.”

The major part of the savings will be through utility conservation. Corker said. Lights will be turned off and temperatures will be reduced to 55 degrees. Security persons will remain on duty throughout the Christmas break.

“It’s an emergency situation and one we hope will only be one year thing,” Corker said.

The center’s 50 civil and administrative staff will be on vacation during the period. No layoffs are planned.

Corker said he hopes the problem can be solved in a way “least harmful to the University community.”

Everyone is aware of the financial problems we’re in,” Corker said.

City Council to consider sale of urban renewal land

By Steve Hahn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council will formally consider the sale of 3.4 acres of government urban renewal land at their formal meeting Monday night.

The proposed use of the land is development of 53 apartment units and a new church building. The five parcels of land making up the 3.4 acres are part of a 13-parcel tract which has recently been considered by the council for a low income housing proposal.

If the sale is approved, four parcels will be sold for $23,650 to Charles Goss, a buyer for Cherry Realty Company Inc., for the construction of the apartment buildings. The other parcel would be sold to Andrew’s Episcopal Church.

The city bought the land as part of the federal urban renewal program in the late 1960s. The five parcels making up the 3.4 acres are part of a 12-parcel tract which has recently been considered by the council for a low income housing proposal.

If the sale is approved one year ago for federal rent subsidies, but he considered the rents set by the government to be too low. The possibility of getting the federal program is still under consideration, he said.

The other two parcels will be used for conventional housing.

Under the urban renewal program, cities converted land they considered to be blighted to what they considered to be better uses. National controversy has arisen because cities have demolished housing for the poor and replaced it with housing for persons with middle and upper incomes.

Council Hill House decision expected

By Steve Hahn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council will make a formal decision on the application for a special use permit for Hill House during its next meeting Monday night.

Listening to both sides of what has been a six-month controversy, council members Monday showed no apparent signs of either favoring or opposing the application. No new evidence was heard.

A special use permit is an official exception to a land use zone. Both Hill Houses, located at 206 W. Cherry St. and 112 S. Beveridge St., had previously been zoned as rooming houses by the city. But after an investigation spurred by neighborhood criticism, the city determined that the houses fall into the category of licensed institutions.

Licensed institutions are required to have a special use permit to operate in a residentially zone area. Both Hill Houses are located in neighborhoods zoned for multiple family residential use.

Speaking before the council Monday, William Broom, attorney for those opposing the use permit said, “The question is not, ‘Is this a good thing?’ The question is whether this is the right place for it.”

But Paul Reifman, Hill House director told the council, “There is nothing different between this and when black and Jews moved into a neighborhood. This is prejudice.”

The Planning Commission held two public hearings on the application in November, recommending unanimously to grant the permit. The council presented with several statements over the summer by James B. Hewette, 502 S. University Ave., the most vocal Hill House opponent.

Seven questions dealing with the applications for both houses were considered before the commission made the positive recommendation. The majority of the commissioners favored granting the permit on six of the seven questions. On the seventh question, the vote was three to three.

The question asked if the granting of the special use permit will be “injurious to the use and enjoyment of other property owners in the immediate vicinity for the purposes (of the zone) already permitted, (or) substantially diminish and reduce property values in the neighborhood.”

Hewette contends that because of the volume, height question, which he considers to be the most important question, the applications can’t be approved as presented.

Other questions deal with the effect the special use permit will have on the environment and stability of the neighborhood; on the public welfare; on the development and improvement of the surrounding property; on utilities, roads and drainage; on traffic; and, on its conformity to the zoning area.

Hewette has charged that Hill House is not managed, that its residents are degraded, and that the whole operation is a waste of taxpayer’s money. But Reifman said he and the drug rehabilitation operation have been subjected to a witch-hunt.

The staff report presented to the council before the meeting stated, “All available evidence strongly indicates that concern and apprehension about Hill House type facilities grow out of either misconceptions or lack of knowledge about their purposes and who resides in them.”

Hewette, however, told the council that the report does not represent the whole story and does not state specifics. His wife Adelle, also told the council that the public hearings minutes, minutes presented to the council were not complete because they omitted her testimony.

After ruling out wage and price controls, Springfield's elementary schools to be declared an economy. Parent's claim may call for tax rebate.

President-elect Carter is looking at the possibility of a tax rebate during the Christmas season to bring more money to the people. He said he was pleased the district had given the court a decision to proceed. He said he hoped the people of Springfield would choose not to pay taxes as a form of protest. Carter also said he was in favor of giving more money to the people of Springfield to help them with their economic struggles.
Filing date nears for city candidates

Budding politicians, take note: petitions are available at the city clerk’s office for the Feb. 23, 1977 Carbondale City Council primary election. Leilani Weiss, assistant city clerk, said ballots will be filed starting Dec. 15 until 5 p.m. on Dec. 27. Each prospective candidate’s petition must have a minimum of 211 signatures from voters registered within the Carbondale district. Weiss said an economic disclosure statement must be filed at the Jackson County Clerk’s Office to filing the candidacy petition with the City Clerk’s Office.

The city council is made up of four council members elected at large and the mayor. The seats now held by Archie Jones and Hans Fisher are up for election next spring. A city council candidate must be at least 21-years-old, a registered voter and a resident of Carbondale for at least one year. A council member’s term lasts four years.

After the February primary election, two candidates for each seat will run in the April 19, 1977 general election.

As chairman, Kelley announced his recommendations for board committee appointments. Kelley’s nominations will be voted on at the board meeting Wednesday before they become official. Nominations for members of the committees of the whole are: Finance committee, Dominguez; Appropriations,なかった; Executive committee, Lang and Chalmers; and the Appropriations committee, Thompson, Decker and Chalmes.

F-Senate seating plan up to faculty

By Joel Spencer

Despite considerable dissent, the Faculty Senate voted Wednesday to recommend a new representation system for the seating of Faculty Senate members for the 1977-78 school year.

Under the new system, the Faculty Senate would consist of 20 or 25 members. The addition would give the School of Technical Careers and the School of Communications and Fine Arts one more representation each.

John Baker, associate professor of political science, proposed the new system, whereby each Faculty Senate constituency would be entitled to one representative for every 4.7 faculty members.

Baker said the representation system determined by dividing the total number of faculty by 20. By establishing the number of members at 30, "a workable number of members would be achieved," he said.

The new Senate structure allocates one representative per 55 faculty members in each constituency.

The recommendation will be brought to the entire faculty in a referendum this spring.

Opposition to Baker's proposal was voiced by Walter G. Robinson, coordinator of the Rehabilitation Institute, and other senate members concerned the establishment of a fixed number of senate members. Robinson said he felt consideration of the proposal should be postponed until the January senate meeting.

Under the new system, the only constituency with less than the proposed quota of 4.7 members would be the Law School; which has 19 faculty members. Under the present working papers of the Senate, each faculty constituency is guaranteed one senate representative.

The senate also voted to recommend to the faculty the establishment of the Budget Committee as a standing senate committee. The committee is now operating on an ad hoc basis.

The senate also voted to reaffirm its support of the University's acceptance of associate degrees from community colleges as equivalent to SIU's general studies requirements.

Frank Horton, vice president of academic affairs, said he felt the University has one of the finest relationships with community colleges of any institution in the state. "I think the Faculty Senate did the right thing in reaffirming its present position on the matter," Horton said.

Court: Pregnancy no reason for sick leave

By Richard Carrell

WASHINGTON (AP)—Company doctors have said, and state law says, women must have a doctor's certificate to include pregnancy coverage for workers, women said they will be treated in the same manner as a man is. "It is discrimination," the woman said.

Linda Devlin, the attorney who wrote a brief on behalf of the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in support of women workers, called the decision "the most significant reversal of discrimination in the courts.

"Women have finally been brought into the mainstream of American society," said Devlin.

"The court has acknowledged that women are treated equally under the law," Devlin said. "The record clearly shows that women are entitled to the same rights as men."

"We're very pleased," said Devlin. "We believe that the right to work and receive equal pay for equal work is a basic human right."

Consideration by board on tenure...

Thursday, the SIU Board of Trustees will hear a proposal by Ray Riehschmann, president of the Graduate Student Council, regarding the need for student representation on the board. The purpose is to provide a forum for a discussion of student concerns. The board must also determine whether to extend the Board of Trustees to a larger body of officials that SIU students can turn to regarding student input on tenure.

The administration has been asked repeatedly by graduates and undergraduates alike to allow student input regarding the tenure process. We have been ignored.

Tenure has been a tough subject for the administration to deal with. Faculty members who have been here before 1974 remember with no small amount of disgust the termination of 104 of their brethren for reasons of "financial exigencies" that were doubted then and now. And it was just one year ago last month that SIU settled a lawsuit out of court with Doug Allen, one of the University's more famous instances of tenure denial.

A statement by James Brow, board secretary, to the effect that low salaries were the reason for SIU not allowing student representation is not an acceptable explanation. It is the responsibility of the president for academic affairs, the reason for such action, and the need for student representation. It is proposed an almost even split between teaching and research as criteria for tenure and promotion. He plays no role in that.

The administration is quite obviously uninterested in involving students in regard to tenure. It is our fervent hope that the Board of Trustees is interested in what students have to say in the interests of avoiding the creation of a revolving-door faculty.

...and Vietnamese tuition important

On Thursday, the Board of Trustees will consider a proposal from the Vietnamese Student Association (VSA) that Vietnam be granted "financial exigencies" that charged in-state instead of out-of-state tuition. We feel that SIU should grant the VSA request, without qualification.

On Sept. 26, 1975, Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student services, addressed a memorandum to SIU President Warren Brandt concerning in-state tuition for Vietnamese students. Swinburne suggested that Brandt reconsider his negative position on the matter. In addition, Swinburne suggested that the SIU administration facilitate placing in-state tuition to the refugees, and recommended that Brandt volunteer the Board of Trustees at the November 1975 meeting.

After more than a year, no such proposal has ever been placed before the board.

According to group for plead to group the people before the Board of Trustees is to first have its proposals denied by Brandt; in the case of the Viet-name refugees and their urgent desire and need for in-state tuition, this has occurred--repeatedly.

This is more a moral than a political issue. Out-of-state tuition is more than double what Illinois residents pay, and for all practical purposes, Vietnamese refugees are neither Illinois residents nor are they economic residents. They have no country to return to. Convexboxes wint who wish to attend a university charged in-state tuition can move to an area that has much instruction. But is what the SIU admission office: The refugee student is no more than the most to move elsewhere in order to get in-state tuition.

The SIU pocketbook won't be damaged to any great extent. By the way, the $1,200 that would cost at this point only 39 refugee students will be affected by the board's decision. But that decision will have long-term consequences for the future of the University. The University can be expected to show compassion for the refugees. There is no good reason for the board to deny the VSA proposal. Numerous universities across the country have invited the refugees. Illinois State and Southeast Missouri State have seen it fit to grant in-state tuition to refugees forced to make the university their home.

Caption reveals media 'bias' against PLO

I am writing in regards to the Daily Egyptian story on the December 3rd speech made by Dr. Sabri, the observer for the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO). A quote in the story says that Dr. Sabri "was in the audience of the meeting that wasquish, especially in light of the 1971-1972 PLO meeting in Tunis." The implication is that the meeting was poorly attended or that Dr. Sabri attended the meeting. I know this to be false. I was present at the meeting.

Reader suspects Zionism 'Big Brother' exists

The December 3rd D.E. contained an article concerning the Jewish Anti-Defamation League's investigation of Hanan Raham, the PLO officer and his travel restrictions. Justin Fingers, ADL spokesman, maintained that "The purpose of the investigation was not to harass Hanan Raham's right to speak out. We, in effect, help to say that he is not allowed to travel to Carbondale or to Havana. However, if Dr. Sabri attended the meeting, such a statement as "that meeting was poorly attended" is simply not true. This is an attempt to silence anyone who wants to speak out against the PLO's actions.

Humiliation is factor behind causes of rape

Ever feel that you cannot, unlock your door fast enough? Maybe you are afraid to go to the bathroom in the middle of the night, even adequate lighting allay your fears? Who is it that?

You could blame the women who have been raped if you refused to report the incident because they face the humiliation of having to deal with the shame and pain of rape. The assailant could be acquitted, as most are.

Since "Bring Me My Revolver" was reported to the police, only 12 were reported to the Carbonale Police Department. If rape is a crime, the assailant could be acquitted, as most are.

Liberation struggle of PLO raises moral questions

By Yoram Joshua, President
Israel Student Organization

The Jordanian newspaper "Al Difaa" of Sept. 6, 1964 contains this comment made by a Palestinian: "We were masters in our land, happy with our lot...but overnight everything changed. The Arab government told us, 'Get out so that we can get in.' So we got out but the Arab Governments did not get in.

On the Israeli side, the "Assembly of Palestine Jewry" (Va'ad Leumi) issued this appeal on October 2, 1947 to the Arabs: "The Jewish People...the hand of sincere friendship and brotherhood to the Arab people and calls them to cooperate as free and equal allies for the sake of peace and progress for the benefit of their respective countries.

Viewpoint

It is clear from the above two statements and many others found in both Jewish and Arab sources that the Jews never expelled any inhabitants of the land. Does Mr. Hassan Rahman of the PLO truly believe that the state of Israel and the Jewish people are as morally corrupt and insensate as he tells us? Does he believe that the Jews have no compassion for the suffering of thousands of men, women, and children who have endured so much in the name of the Middle East conflict? Could he so willfully inflict suffering upon our Arab cousins after the persecution and suffering that our people have known for the past two thousand years since our exile from our ancient homeland?

If the goal of Zionism is to "oppress the Arab people," as Mr. Rahman stated, then why limit that oppression to merely "displacement of an entire nation?" Why not? Because from the very moment of Israel's independence, the rights of the Arabs have been guaranteed, documented clearly in Israel's constitution and practiced in today's Israel.

The very acceptance of the 1947 UN partition resolution as opposed to the Arab rejection—demonstrates Jewish readiness to live peacefully with the Arabs. It has been the invading Arab troops and the misled Arab Palestinians who have, for the last 28 years, consistently denied the rights of Jews, as well as any chance for peaceful coexistence with them.

How can the Israelis believe Hassan Rahman when he says that he wants to live peacefully with the Jews and yet, at the same time, his organization denies the basic right of self-determination to Jews?

Moreover, his infamous leader Yassir Arafat said in the "New Republic," November 15, 1974: "We will never stop until we can go back home and Israel is destroyed....The goal of our struggle is the end of Israel and there can be no compromise or deviations...Peace for us means Israel's destruction and nothing else." Last Thursday night Rahman denied that statement, therefore denying his own leader!

How can we trust the Arab leaders when they say one thing and believe in another? The sole sufferers of the whole situation are the Israelis, who are forced to live in fear of a war once a week, and the Palestinian Arabs, who are systematically misled by their fellow Arab leaders.

This should be clear to all. There must be a reciprocal relationship between Jews and Arabs in the Middle East. Each side should recognize the other's right to exist. But as long as the Rahmans and the PLO of the Arab nations hold, there cannot be peace in this vital part of the world.

Finals week induces metamorphosis in students

By Timothy J. Tucker
Student Writer

What is the force that transforms an ordinary piece of coal into a valuable diamond? Pressure.

What causes beer to flow freely from a tap? Practice.

And what is behind the transformation of the common, unhappy student into a frantic, anxiety-ridden studying machine? Insane pressure.

With the threat of final examinations hovering menacingly over their heads, many students have become afflicted with the tragic syndrome of paranoia. With only a single possibility of making up previously lost material, the students have confronted the problem and reacted accordingly—they have panicked.

During finals week students undergo an amazing metamorphosis. The typical hedonistic lifestyle of the Palestine Liberation Organization is deployed on campuses. All thoughts of parties and pleasures usually consumed in the previous two months have been pushed off the back burner until the final examination is completed.

Procrastination is out of the equation. There is only one way out—the only plausible solution to the pressure—study. Study hard. Study fast. Study long.

Assembled at a table in the Student Center like a band of desperate punk rockers, Barry Steinberg, a typical SIU student, and a few of his peers vigorously tear through textbooks.

"Like mindless serfs they slave away at their assigned book, cursing their fate and vowing, 'If they always do as this point in the semester, never to allow themselves to fall behind again,' " Barry tells an observer.

"We have gone 17 days without a single vacation. September isn't too bad," Barry tells one of his friends. "The bad I didn't start reading it and decided to do something else."

"I'm going to need a wheelchair full of cigarettes to finish this term paper...one good final exam out."

If you can just manage to stay awake for the next 48 hours I think I'll have a chance," another sufferer adds.

The pathetic scene inside the Student Center resembles a Hieronymus Bosch portrait. Students huddled up on coffee and cigarette-wielded around like aimless zombies. Tables are cluttered with mountains of books and notes, ash trays filled to overflowing and empty coffee cups abound.

The pressure is awesome. After hours of torturous studying students begin to turn inward, attempting to find some excuse, seeking some cosmic revelation that will justify the punishments they are suffering.

"Are finals really this important? they ask. "What is all this about, anyway?"

As the hours wear on into the night, new priorities are being established. Staying awake for seven or eight hours straight, including a proper meal, are just a few of these priorities.

All that seems to matter now is the day to day survival. As the nights wear on the students slowly scream, "I've had enough of this torture. I'm going downtown for a beer...another beer!"

It was as if the indignant protest of one spoke for them all. Slowly at first, books begin to close and are stuffed in backpacks, notebooks and belongings, and in restless retreat, walk out the Student Center doors.

"Everyone has his own limit and once the threshold of pain has been crossed it is sometimes better to admit defeat rather than hang on."

It is not necessary to be a Hepburn fan to find this book interesting, though the unpredictable Hepburn character is well-explored. Perhaps more interesting is the author's revelation of the people other than actors involved in stage and film careers. The effect on the finished movie or theatrical production the writers, producers, directors and others have little to do with this.

The part of the book which makes one aware of the necessity of revealing, particularly from, two exilver performers is the full text of Sarah Y. Mason to prepare a screen play. The screenwriter John Tracy ascribed the two other authors and decided to be as faithful to the book as possible. The two writers sat with the typewriters behind the cameras during filming and provided notes and provided new pages to the script where needed. One day both Hepburn was absent from the set. Washington returned he realized his mistake and asked Hepburn who had decided the entire action. "Where were you! We can't proceed with work. This scene...it...I..." Hepburn removed it to take off the page from his typewriter and handed it to the author. Charles Highham included many such anecdotes in his writing and he came to the task with a great background. He was a leading show business journalist in Australia before coming to live in America. He has a decided New York Times as a Hollywood correspondent. The most notable contribution might be the fact that he has used with wide public appeal and was of interest to a wide variety of readers.

Thompson plans national group speech in Florida

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. James R. Thompson will address the National Conference of State Government Relations on Friday in Florida, marking his third appearance at an out-of-state affair for the governor since stepping into office a little more than a month ago.

Thompson was unanimously re-elected before any other group in Illinois since winning office.

The first scheduled conference was for Wednesday morning in Chicago, when a breakfast meeting with a group that was later to spring on 8,000 women at the state offices, said David Gilbert, Thompson's press secretary.

Gilbert said the group was to be addressed by the governor, Michael J. Howlett, who was Thompson's opponent in the gubernatorial campaign.

The group, said Gilbert, will regroup on Thursday.

The governor-elect was to have flown down on Monday night but a flight from Chicago was canceled.

Visitation, Caroling top agenda of holiday festivities at Bethel

By Linda Rose
Student Writer

Inside the sanctuary, the altar is decorated with bells and Christmas paper, and the pulpit is adorned with poinsettias. Decorations for Christmas will soon be surrounded by gifts and large presentation boxes filled with special seasonal treats—apples, oranges, nuts and mint. This is the setting at Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church, 518 E. Jackson, approx. one week before Christmas.

These and other aspects of how Bethel celebrates Christmas were the topic of an interview Sunday with Rev. M. Thomas Harrell, pastor of Bethel.

As he relaxed in a dining room chair in the parsonage next to the church, the short, stout man of the cloth explained the celebration at Christmas at Bethel begins with a Thanksgiving Advent service. These services begin the Wednesday before Thanksgiving and continue every Wednesday up until Christmas, he said. Advent services include a sermon, special messages and meditations.

Also during this time, the Rev. Harrell added, Advent folders are distributed for special Christmas offerings. In addition, the Evangelistic Committee, a special church committee, is directed to visit non-members and members of Bethel who are not regular attenders, and to present people an invitation to worship at Bethel during Advent services.

Feeding through black-framed glasses, the pastor emphasized that during the holiday season, Bethel does not forget the elderly, shut-ins and those in nursing homes. On Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day, he said, the Evangelistic Committee distributes dinners to these people. The nursing homes visited included Valley View, Bethany Home, the И.С. Nursing Home, and West Jackson County Nursing Home and Emergency Nursing Home.

Even though there is no service on Thanksgiving Day, the pastor pointed out, “we certainly like to celebrate the day of Thanksgiving especially commemorating being thankful for the birth of the Lord Jesus Christ and the year’s blessings.”

Environmental teachers to meet

Student arrested for stealing $800 in roommate’s checks

An SIU student was arrested after he allegedly stole three checks mailed to his roommate, University Police said Tuesday.

Mark J. Kudish, 18, a freshman in business, was arrested by police Monday and charged with theft over $150, after his roommate, Joseph F. Basalser, 18, reported the theft to police.

Police said Kudish, who lives with Basalser in 607 Schneider Tower, admitted taking the checks, which totaled $790.50. Carbondale police also reported an armed robbery Monday at the Wenco service station, 511 E. Walnut St.

Weco’s station manager, Miles B. Hapeman, told police a man displayed a pistol at 9:50 p.m. and took $450 in cash, plus some coins and a carton of cigarettes, police said.

The man, who fled on foot towards South Graham Street, was described as a black male, in his early to middle 20s, 5’9” to 5’10”, weighing 180 to 200 pounds and wearing a black wool coat and checked trousers, police said.

Black Affairs to host area service projects

By Sherry Bonds

Five service projects will be sponsored by the Black Affairs Council (BAC) through the support of the University of Illinois at Carbondale and the Black Student Association. Each service project will be supervised by a co-sponsor, according to Darold Tucker, coordinator of BAC.

The service projects consist of a prison program, a tutorial program, a food drive, a recruitment program, and the creation of a brothel-big sister program.

The prison program allows black students to serve as volunteers at Marion Federal Penitentiary. The purpose of the program is to increase opportunities for inter-personal communication for the blacks in prison.

The tutoring program offers assistance to students in need of help. The program provides individual and group instruction and assistance by college students in such basic subjects as reading, writing, arithmetic, and math.

The food drive is an attempt to collect food from black students and faculty to redistribute it to needy black families in the community.

The families are selected by caseworkers at the Hope Haven Center, Tucker said.

The recruitment program provides blacks enrolled at SIU with a professional counselor to offer services.

The brothel-big sister program allows black students to volunteer as mentors to young girls in Carbondale.

The program is designed to assist black students to find out about the black campus and to learn about the black community.

SIU grad pans Plains, finds changes wrought by Carter

Editor's note: Mark Hanes, a 1974 SIU graduate who lives in Plains, Ill., devoting a book on the Rev. Canon Lennon's attempt to integrate President-elect Jimmy Carter's Plains Baptist Church, King's ac- tion services and widespread publicity two days before the election. The Church is in the town of Plains, Georgia. The pastor is Rev. F. F. Hines. It was also on a look book of Illinois General Assembly.

By Mark Hanes

PLAINS, Ga. — Even since Jimmy Carter was a boy, his hometown has been the subject of a lot of attention, partly because they report news when it breaks. Just the influx of reporters and various government officials and security personnel that accompany them have altered the landscape. There are no hotels in Plains, everybody has to sleep in nearby Americus. There are no rooms for tourists here, so they must sleep 40 miles away in Cordele or Albany. Meanwhile, over in Plains, the post office is planning a 40-room addition soon, and these will be a major hotel in Plains.

WANTED
Salukis off and running for Valley title, NCAA berth

The 1976-77 Saluki basketball season is in full swing, and the 18th-ranked cagers are all to their best start in five years with a 4-0 record. The fans have been treated to some exciting action already, especially the "slammer" or slam dunk, which was legalized again this season. The Salukis have an excellent chance to appear in the NCAA tournament this season. A rough road is ahead of them, and the major obstacle in their path will be the Valley post-season tournament. The winner of that tournament will appear in the NCAA tournament.

The Salukis can do themselves a favor by winning the Valley conference. Behind the shooting of Mike Glenn, the ball handling and passing of Corky and Wayne Abrams, and the rebounding of Richard Fend and Gary Wilson, the Salukis have their sights set on the NCAA post season battle.

Coach Paul Lambert's troops will host Millikin Wednesday night at the Arena, then take off for Pittsburgh to compete in the Pittsburgh Classic. The Salukis will face Pittsburgh Friday night, and will face either Duquesne or Hofstra Saturday night.

These games will be a real test for the Salukis. After opening with a fairly easy home schedule, the teams from the East will give the Salukis an idea of where they stand.

Stabler - best QB in NFL?

OAKLAND (AP) — Ken Stabler of the Oakland Raiders isn't ready to crown himself king of the National Football League quarter­backs — at least not for another month.

The seventh-year pro out of Alabama has assured himself of personal single-season bests for pass completions, yardage and touchdowns passes, but he refuses to label himself the best in the league.

"Every quarterback feels he’s the best, but the Super Bowl is what everybody measures us by," he said after Monday night's convincing 2-29 victory over Cincinnati. "I won't know if I'm the best until the season's over on Jan. 1."

Oakland Coach John Madden isn’t reluctant to proclaim his 30-year-old southpaw quarterback the best in the league.

"He's had a just a great year," Madden said. "You add up his numbers and they're just amazing."

Cincinnati Coach Bill Johnson agreed: "Stabler is without a doubt the best quarterback in professional football."

Johnson had just witnessed Stabler's 16-for-30, 217-yard performance against what had been rated the AFC's best pass defense. Stabler tossed scoring strikes of 34, 45 and 7 yards.

The effort increased Stabler’s 1976 totals to 194 completions in 311 attempts, 217 per­cent, for 2,737 yards and 21 touchdowns. In his All-Pro 1974 season, Stabler completed 175 of 315 for 2,609 yards and 26 touch­downs.

He hasn’t had a bad game this year, and the 5-foot-11, 215-pounder says, "Give credit to the line and the receivers. When you get time to throw the ball you’re going to complete passes."

And receivers Cliff Branch, Dave Casper and Fred Biletnikoff are among the league's best.

Bert Jones of the Baltimore Colts and Steve Grogan of the New England may be leading Stabler this season in national publicity, but the Oakland passer says, "I’m not that interested in publicity or recognition."

Small colleges ‘come to play’ Salukis

By Rick Kersoi
DailyEgyptian Sports Editor

The undefeated Saluki basketball team, now 15-0, took a trip to Millikin College at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Arena. A win in the game would push the Salukis to 20 wins in five years and their best record at the beginning of a season since the 1994-95 team won the first 22 games.

Millikin is 3-1 and holds an 18-5 lead in the schools’ long history of basketball games against the schools.

After a 20-year layoff, the series has been around Millikin and at Millikin, and it’s current streak of playing small college basketball teams.

The Millikin Big Blue are coached by former SIU star Joe Ramsey who captured a 54-56 team in 1966. Ramsey, who will be making his appearance in the season’s playing days, ranks as the No. 1 scorer in SIU history with 1,000 career points. His Millikin career ended with his 1973 NCAA Division I college basketball season before being three years of public school ball. Ramsey is in his second year as head coach of the Decatur school.

Every college team that SIU has faced so far has come into the games sky-high and looked like they were playing over their heads. Lambert feels that the schools come into the games played up toward beating the Salukis.

“Sure, there’s no doubt about it,” he said. “But the same thing happens when we play ranked teams.

“Now, when these teams play us they have nothing to lose and they really take it to us. What we have to do is show them why No. 1 is No. 1,” he said.

The Salukis are currently ranked 18th by Associated Press and United Press International. SIU dropped a notch in the AP poll when Glenco, Mass., ahead of the Salukis. Lambert held a closed practice for the team Tuesday and went over the Monday game film with the team.

“The thing to do is to go over the mistakes that we made,” he said. “When a team like Northeast Oklahoma shoots .390 and scores only 61 points, that’s okay with me. What concerns me is that we scored only 63 points.”

Lambert also added that he wasn’t very pleased about his team defense which let the Redmen control virtually the entire game.

“A big factor is that we didn’t generate enough offense with our defense. I’ve said that we didn’t put pressure on the other team like I thought we were capable of doing,” the coach added. “We didn’t force them to start their offense quick enough.

“About the only part of the game against Northeast Oklahoma that pleased Lambert was that the Salukis didn’t fold in the latter stages of the game.

“They did a super job keeping their lead intact for two minutes and they had to come from behind to tie the score a couple times.

“The greatest thing is that Mike (Gleem) missed a shot at the end of the game, got his own rebound, and then put it back in.”

Can Saluki cagers finish undefeated?

What have we here?

A 4-0 basketball team, one that All-America candidate Mike Glenn says is good enough to go to the semifinals next March in Atlanta.

Could it be that the Salukis are no longer a “small college” basketball team? Do they really belong in the Top 20?

The answer is “Yes.” The Salukis have arrived. Coach Paul Lambert has set as one of the team’s goals “to get the most wins ever for an SIU basketball team.”

That record is currently held by the 1967 version of the Salukis which went 34-2 and won the National Invitational Tournament. That team was led by a 20-point-per-game Walt Frazier. This year’s team is led by another highly underrated guard named Mike Glenn.

Right now, Glenn is the only one who makes the Salukis go. So does Becky and Wayne Abrams, Richard Pleas and Thompson Wilson, Bill Williams, Al Grant and a host of others.

Granted, the beginning of the schedule is easy, but the teams that they beat have been by name, and the smaller ones. The Salukis are off unblemished in the schedule which are made up far too easy.

For the first time since the NCAA dynasty began in 1967, the Salukis are good enough to go all the way to the national championship, which is a sure bet to win the national championship.

Michigan is bound to lose a couple games, and so are Marshall and Wisconsin. What’s important is who wins in March, when you do the best of the end.

But the bigger question is, “Could the Salukis win the national championship?”

No. SIU has never won the NCAA’s smaller sports have been known to do so, but it’s a lot harder in basketball. It’s just not in the cards for SIU to do it, because they do have a chance, however small. It may be Greensboro that it all takes.

Back off

Korch on Sports

But realistically, the chances aren’t very good, and I’m sure that Lambert would be the first to admit it. Last year’s team finished 16-16 (in which case, we are really good to be about a .500 season), but lost four games in the closing minutes when a little more experience and a better bench may have won the games. This year’s team has that extra experience and the desire to win.

Now that Missouri has been beaten, the Salukis cagers shouldn’t lose any games the rest of the season, and should finish 24-4. The team (unless, in another strike) will be favored in every game until the NCAA regional next March. Which means that SIU won’t lose any games unless the team is upset.

But that’s not to say that SIU will finish undefeated, because the Salukis are bound to be upset and will lose a few games before the regular season is over.

So I’ll say SIU record will be 24-4, but one of the losses won’t be to Wichita State because SIU is better than the Shockers, even at Wichita. It seems that SIU always gets “up” for the big games. But I think that the Salukis will have a couple more off nights before the season is over and lose a couple of the lesser teams in the conference.

But 24-2 will still be a great record, which should put SIU in the top 10 in the country. Then, when the NCAA playoffs start, the team is good enough to advance to the quarterfinals. Being one of the top eight teams in the country isn’t bad (unless you’re UCLA).

I’ll agree that the Salukis didn’t look very impressive in the last two of the first three home games of the season, but they showed off the other two, especially the game against Missouri, what they can do.

The team hasn’t done it’s “big man” to grab all the rebounds, but Wilson can hold his own with any front five inches taller. And don’t be surprised to see Al Grant starting the season in over. He’s 6-9, has a good shooting touch, and he rebounds pretty well.

But the biggest surprise has to be Wayne Abrams, the first guard point at SIU since Perry Ellis left.

The team needed a player who could drive and this kid can drive, although he sometimes has a tendency to overdo it a little.

The Salukis can run, shoot (over 500), play good defense, and beat the press and zones. They have a good coach and they have Mike Glenn, the Bison. What more do you want. (How bout not all those close games)?

In the last few years, there hasn’t been anything really as crowded pleasuring as a Gary Wilson behind the back slam dunk. If he keep it up, he may have a basket that Mike Glenn had to do with by jumping up.

But for a 30-time around game Bratlie, there’s Glenn 25-foot bombs shot to the tune of “Two, two, two” from the Arena crowd every time he makes or misses a shot.

And when the gate gets touch, the crowd gets loud, and we mean loud. The Salukis are the team on to another victory.

So stay tuned to what should end up being the best season ever for SIU basketball season. Just ask Mike Glenn, if you can ever catch him away from the Arena where he’s constantly jumping in three long boards.

But remember, in the event of major injury, all these predictions will self-destruct.
