Tehran hijackers surrender

By The Associated Press

Iranian troops stormed a hijacked Kuwaiti airliner at Tehran airport Sunday night and the four hijackers who had threatened to blow up the plane, themselves and their hostages surrendered, the official Iranian news agency said.

The Islamic Republic News Agency said the hijackers and the seven remaining hostages, including two Americans, walked down the landing steps of the Kuwait Airways jetliner with their hands raised.

The news agency reported that troops charged aboard the Airbus A-300 at 11:45 p.m., 3:15 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

The attack ended the hijacking that began last Tuesday. During the siege at the Tehran airport, the hijackers killed two Americans and two Kuwaitis, but also released most of the 161 passengers and crew who had been on the plane.

The hijackers had released seven hostages earlier Sunday, after saying that they had wired the plane with explosives.

The agency had reported a short time earlier that the hijackers had announced their last will and testament and sent a "last will" that they would blow up the plane if everyone aboard if their demands were not met.

The hijackers also told the airport control tower that they were saying their final prayers, IRNA said. The hijackers then broke off radio contact.

The news agency quoted the newly released hostages as saying there were seven hostages left aboard: two Americans, one Briton said to be the pilot, and four Arabs, believed to be Kuwaitis.

The hostages freed before the raid also were quoted as saying they believed the hijackers would blow up the hijacked plane "because they prepared everything."

Ambulances and fire engines surrounded the Airbus at a distance.

IRNA said that shortly before the warning the hijackers dragged a Kuwaiti passenger, one of about 15 hostages still believed aboard at that time, to the landing steps and started beating him. The screaming man pleaded for the hijackers' demands to be met, IRNA reported.

Voters asked for cuts, Reagan says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan hopes to build congressional support for his ambitious deficit-reduction effort by arguing that last month's election returns translate directly into his plan to freeze, reduce or eliminate almost all domestic federal programs.

"In the November elections, the people made clear that first and foremost, they wanted to continue policies that would assure strong economic growth," Reagan said during a meeting with reporters Friday.

Now Reagan and his senior advisers are moving to convince legislators that they can stand to take the strong medicine Reagan is prescribing to meet his goal of holding total federal spending for the 1986 fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1 to current levels.

Accomplishing that objective will take $42 billion in savings next year. The president ordered his Cabinet last week to come up with $33.6 billion in domestic spending cuts.

To do that, Reagan has tentatively agreed on a broad program that includes drastic steps such as a 5 percent pay cut for federal workers, reductions in welfare programs, elimination of the Small Business Administration and cuts in federal grants to local governments.

Things getting tight, library official says

By Karen Wiltberger
Staff Writer

It's becoming harder to find space to crack a book at Morris Library because more and more books are there to crack, library officials say.

Sidney Matthews, assistant director of library services, said 1,995 3-foot-long shelves have been added this semester to house an increasing number of volumes, which grows an average 30,000 to 35,000 volumes per year.

He said the shelves at Morris Library are "jam packed" to the point where not a single book can be added to some shelves. Ideally, shelves should not be more than three-fourths filled, Matthews said.

Darrell Jenkins, director of library services, said the library is designed to hold 1 million volumes, but contains more than 1.6 million volumes. Shelving has been added to every floor but the first floor, he said.

Since Librarian George Black said the ideal amount of library space would hold 25 percent of the student population, but Morris Library has had only the space to hold 10 percent. "Things are getting awfully tight," he said.

Jenkins said the library is either compressing the space between tables or moving the tables to lounge areas. "Actually, seating space is not reduced," he said.

Matthews said because the library is technically full, shelves had to be added anywhere possible. He said one of the reasons why the shelves were added this year is the library had enough money to purchase new equipment. Other shelves, however, were taken from the old law library, he said.

Vice Chancellor James Brown said the funds for a $1.6 million library storage facility, requested to be released in October, have not yet been released. The funds, Brown said, are tied up in the Legislature until it is authorized to sell bonds, which would pay for the building.

Brown said the Legislature is due to finish its veto session next week, and the University will then be notified about the release of funds.

Matthews said he hopes a new storage building would provide enough space to house a 500,000 volumes, leaving Morris Library with about 100,000 excess volumes. At this point, Matthews said, it is not known how much space would be allocated for library materials, or how many volumes would be transferred.

Black said the impression of the fifth and sixth floors is that of terrible overcrowding.

This semester another row of shelving has been added by the windows on both floors.

ISC committee dismisses 5 complaints

By David Liss
Staff Writer

The International Student Council Advisory Committee has dismissed five complaints against the ISC executive committee which were part of an investigation by the Undergraduate Student Organization.

The ISC committee met on Nov. 29 and "decided that all charges were either invalid or unjustified and were therefore dismissed," according to a memo from Tarun Edwin, committee chairman.

The Advisory Committee took up the investigation after the USO Committee on Internal Affairs granted an appeal from the ISC on Nov. 12 to allow for internal resolution. The ISC committee released a report Friday explaining its decisions in the Nov. 29 meeting.

The USO committee will continue the investigation "if desired by the complainants."

committee chairman John D. Rutledge said. He said the USO committee will look at the ISC committee report and use it to "weigh any requests" by the complainants for further investigation.

Two of the charges deal with a special election held between two Iranian student groups, the Iranian Student Union and the Iranian Student Association.

One charge is, as stated in a USO committee memo, "the ISC Executive Committee broke its promise ... by refusing to seat the winning organization of a special election held on April 20, 1984, between Iranian student groups."

The ISC committee said in its report that, according to the minutes of the Jan. 26 ISC meeting, three months before the special election, the "ISC General Assembly passed a resolution to recognize the ISU as a member of the ISC."

Officials call air, water safe but ban meat sales in Bhopal

BHOPAL, India (AP) — Authorities banned the sale of meat in Bhopal on Sunday but declared the city's air and water "safe" after last week's poison gas disaster that killed nearly 2,000 residents. Doctors said they were receiving new cases — people experiencing delayed effects from last week's poison gas leak from a pesticide plant — and that viral pneumonia was posing a new danger to those with lungs damaged by the gas. An estimated 200,000 citizens were stricken by the gas. The methyl isocyanate gas that escaped from the Union Carbide plant on Dec. 2 ruined crops around Bhopal and could keep agricultural land barren for years, Calcutta's Amrita Bazar Patrika newspaper on Sunday quoted scientists as saying. The newspaper estimated crop loss at about $5.2 million.

Farm company declines comment on merger

TORONTO (AP) — A spokesman for Massey-Ferguson Ltd. has declined comment on a possible merger of its farm machinery operations with those of Allis Chalmers Corp. of Milwaukee. "These aren't things that we would make a comment about," Peter Lowry said Saturday. He said rumors of such a merger have been circulating for the past seven to 10 days. News reports published Friday quoted industry sources as saying the two companies were talking about forming a new North American venture to make and sell farm tractors and self-propelled combines.

Weekend negotiations bring no end to teachers strike

CHICAGO (AP) — Weary representatives of the striking Chicago teachers and the city's school board recessed talks Sunday after negotiating for more than 30 straight hours to end the week-long strike that has idled the nation's third largest school system. Negotiations are scheduled to resume at 9 a.m. Monday. The marathon session began at 11 a.m. Saturday. The strike, which began Dec. 3, has idled about 40,000 school employees, including about 28,000 teachers, as well as the 430,000 students of the city's 596 public schools. Late Saturday, board negotiators reportedly offered striking teachers a salary increase of one-half of 1 percent and a onetime 1 percent bonus. The salary increase would take place in January, meaning that the teachers would receive only a one-quarter percent pay raise this year. The Chicago Teachers Union has demanded a 10 percent pay raise, but the school board has insisted that no money is in the budget for such an increase.

Bank could have trouble finding new directors

CHICAGO (AP) — Continental Illinois Corp. may have trouble finding new directors to replace those stepping down at the request of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., some banking industry observers say. Ten board members were asked last week not to stand for re-election at Continental's annual stockholder meeting in April. Nine agreed, and a 10th submitted his resignation, effective Dec. 17. The board members served the corporation at the time its subsidiary, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co., made bad loans that almost led to the bank's collapse. But in July, the FDIC announced a $4.5 billion rescue plan in which it took control of 90 percent of the bank's assets. All but three of the affected directors are current or former top officers of large Chicago-area corporations.

Physician own lawyer in third malpractice suit

JOLIET (AP) — Dr. James Rogers, acting as his own attorney in a third malpractice lawsuit, said Sunday he was confident of victory as he prepared to go to court Monday. The case — a $1 million lawsuit being tried in Will County Circuit Court — was filed against Rogers and Silver Cross Hospital in Joliet by the family of a patient who suffered a fatal heart attack. Rogers said the hospital would be represented by a lawyer but that he would be his own counsel. Jury selection begins Monday. Rogers said he'll win the case because of the preparation he's done and because "a doctor knows a case better than 99.9 percent of lawyers."

Employees protest ban on anti-village speech

MOUNT ZION (AP) — Employees of this Macon County community are protesting an administrative regulation prohibiting village employees from publicly criticizing village policies. The ban may infringe upon the employees' rights to free speech, according to the American Civil Liberties Union. "I would guess that there would be First Amendment questions raised. I don't believe the village board has the right to limit the speech of the employees in such a manner," said Nancy Bothne, ACLU legislative and field representative. A copy of the regulation was sent anonymously to the Decatur Herald & Review newspaper.

Council to discuss FAA school plans

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

Plans for bringing the Federal Aviation Administration Management Training School to Carbondale will be considered by the City Council on Monday.

The council will hold a public hearing on plans to apply for a grant from the Illinois Community Development Assistance Program to help finance the school.

The now-closed International Hall at 1101 S. Wall St. is being considered for the training school. The owners of building and developers of the project, Darel Tiegs, Lewis Smith and Nicholas Adkins, have requested that the city secure a $250,000 grant from CDAP.

The council is expected to vote on whether to authorize an application for the grant. The deadline for filing an application for the CDAP grant is Dec. 17.

If the city receives the grant, the money will be loaned to the TSA Partnership, Inc. at an interest rate of about 5 percent, according to information supplied to the council by Franklyn Moreno, director of economic development. No exact price has been determined but estimates have indicated that the project may cost $18 million.

The SIU-C School of Technical Careers initiated the bid for the training school which is currently located at Cameron University in Lawton, Okla.

The FAA is considering several other locations around the country and is expected to make a decision on the site in September 1985.

If the FAA chooses Carbondale for the new school, SIU-C would lease the building from the developers, and sublease the building to the FAA.

The application for the CDAP indicates that the training school would put about $5 million into the Carbondale economy each year. The training school would include facilities for FAA management personnel from around the country.

The FAA has requested that the school contain at least 83,000 usable square feet to house dormitories, classrooms, offices and food service facilities.

The council will also discuss a proposal on the city takeover of the Shawnee Solar Project and revamping of the Carbondale Energy Division.

Donald Monty, community development director, has proposed that the Energy Division be combined with the city's Division of Renewal and Housing.

Energy Coordinator Robert Pauls would assume operation of Shawnee Solar's office at 808 S. Forest St. The building is owned by SIU-C, and the University administration has said that the $10-a-year rent charged to Shawnee Solar would also be charged to the city, Monty said.

Pauls said in a report to the council that the city will not have to appropriate any additional money for the Energy Division to assume control of Shawnee Solar. He said that budget adjustments could cover the cost needed for the division to take over Shawnee Solar.

ISC: Five complaints dismissed

That finding, according to the report, also invalidated a second charge that the ISC executive committee violated its constitution "by placing the Iranian Student Union in the ISC General Assembly without a vote of acceptance by that body."

The ISU was recognized by the General Assembly in name and constitution only, ISC President Aris Kotsioris said. The special election was held to choose an executive for the organization, not to choose between two Iranian student groups, Edwin said.

A representative of the Iranian Student Association said that the organization's complaint would continue.

The ISC committee found a third charge that the ISC executive committee violated its constitution "by changing its bylaws without allowing the ISC General Assembly to vote on the proposed changes" to be invalid.

The report referred to a motion passed by the ISC General Assembly on Nov. 8 that acknowledged the set of bylaws as having been approved by previous councils.

The remaining two charges accuse the ISC executive committee of terminating Choong Kwei Mooi from the post of administrative secretary without proper justification or compensation.

The ISC committee stated in its report that the ISC president had the power to fire the administrative secretary with no explanation, and that Mooi had "refused to accept payment for her services."

Collection for USO book co-op begins Tuesday

By David Liss
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization-sponsored book co-op, which "gives students a chance to set their own prices for their books," will begin Tuesday, said USO Chief of Staff David Strong.

There are three steps to the book co-op, Strong said. The first, book collection, will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday in the south lobby of the Student Center.

During collection, students may bring in their books and find out if they are scheduled to be used next semester, Strong said. The students then fill out contracts, listing the prices they want for their books.

"Prices generally run from 100 percent for new books, 75 percent for used books and 50 percent for so called buy-backs," Strong said.

The advantage, he said, is that students are able to set the prices they want, "whereas at the bookstore you have to accept what they give you." The only disadvantage, he said, is that students do not get money for their books right away.

The second step is selling the books, which will take place from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Jan. 14 through 18 in Student Center Ballroom A, Strong said.

"On the average we take in 1,900 books and sell 1,200 to 1,400 of those," he said, referring to figures from the last two years. The books are usually cheaper than those sold at local bookstores, he said, because they are not marked up by the USO, but sold for the prices set by the seller.

The third step, cash disbursement, will take place on Jan. 21-22 in Ballroom A and in the USO office after those dates, Strong said.

To collect their money, students must present their valid student identification cards and contracts, he said. If students' books are sold they get their money, minus a 10 percent commission which goes to USO. If not, the books are returned to the students, who can still sell them to bookstores, he said.

The 10 percent commission goes toward paying for the cost of administering the book co-op, Strong said, which includes cost of insurance for lost books. Any profit goes into the Student Activity fee, to be disbursed by the USO to registered student organizations throughout the year, he said.

USO phone bill too long overdue

THE MATTER OF THE $660.30 PHONE BILL charged to the Undergraduate Student Organization in the name of Stephanie Jackson, former USO vice president, remains unresolved and, regrettably, nearly forgotten.

The bill, for calls made in April and May of this year, includes $298.65 in charges to the St. Louis number of the National Organization of Black University and College Students, where a male friend of Jackson's was employed. USO President Andy Leighton said in August that the USO has little or no connection to the organization.

In addition, 10 calls totaling $92.88 were placed to a Waukegan number listed in the name of Dorothy Jackson, at the same address listed as Jackson's home address.

The University has been seeking Jackson's justification for the calls since August. An adequate response has yet to be delivered for the calls to St. Louis and Waukegan.

Not much has happened lately; the University has been waiting since Sept. 15 for a response to its latest request from Jackson justifying the unexplained calls.

IT HAS BEEN NEARLY SIX MONTHS since the charges were discovered and University officials are still waiting for Jackson to contact them and explain the legitimacy of the calls. It would seem that if the calls are, indeed, legitimate, Jackson would be more than anxious to clear her name.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, which has jurisdiction over the USO, recently characterized the situation by saying that a relatively private matter has become too public.

But the situation goes beyond a "private matter." More than $600 in phone bills were accumulated in a two-month period at the expense of every SIU-C student who contributes to the Student Activity Fee, not to mention a demoralizing breach of faith by our student government. Free phone expenses aren't part of the benefits of being a student leader.

Part of the outrageous phone bill has been explained in a satisfactory manner, according to Swinburne. However, Swinburne declined to reveal the explanation until the entire matter is resolved.

Swinburne said that the University would send another letter to Jackson seeking explanation. This time, the University should be a little more aggressive in solving the matter and restoring some of the integrity of the USO.

Maybe instead of mailing her another letter they should call her on the telephone. It seems to be her preferred way of communicating.

Substitutes rejected by students

We, as a concerned group of Carbondale Community High School students, in stating our position on the present strike, would like to clarify that we are pro-education, and not pro-teachers.

We are asking students to refuse a substitute education and offer unity to an organized movement for a qualified education. Substitute teachers cannot adequately provide this level of education and their use would only prolong our dead-end situation.

We are staying out of the classrooms until offered a quality education. In hope of obtaining community support, we ask for your help in closing the gap between these two factions providing us with our accustomed learning opportunities. — Jennifer Daesch and Jeff Stuart, Carbondale. Note: This letter was signed by four other people.

Human Rights Day a moment for the U.S., world to reflect

By Lisa Eisenbauer
Staff Writer

Though many Americans probably aren't aware of it, today is International Human Rights Day. It is the anniversary of the United Nations' adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in 1948.

The declaration states that the "Recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world."

The reason that this day seems to be taken lightly by most Americans is probably because our freedoms of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness have been explicitly granted and are well protected.

But in an appallingly high number of nations this is not the case. While we Americans take in stride our rights to form and advocate our own political beliefs and practice our religions, citizens of such countries as Afghanistan, South Africa and Turkey are tortured, sometimes put to death, for doing the same things.

International, a worldwide human rights organization, a third of the governments of the world use or tolerate the use of torture to control citizens, though the practice is universally condemned.

In one of its reports, "Torture in the Eighties," Amnesty International cites charges of torture against 96 countries. These charges include use of electric shock during interrogations in the Philippines, administration of pain-causing drugs to alleged dissidents in the Soviet Union and solitary confinement of prisoners in cells totally devoid of light for up to a year in Rwanda.

It may be hard for some Americans to be concerned about problems so far away, but the problem — and perhaps some of the solutions — are closer than they may seem.

In 1982, for example, our government stood idly by while an American company shipped electric cattle prods — designed to keep huge animals under control by sending shock waves through their bodies — to the South African police department.

America has the means to end or at least discourage human rights violations in many nations. In fact, our government appears to be well on its way to doing just that. Congress passed and President Reagan recently signed a resolution denouncing human rights abuses in other countries.

The goal of the resolution is to eliminate the use of torture by governments and to continue efforts to develop standards to be observed by all nations to ensure that human rights will not be denied.

This is a commendable move on the part of our leaders. They have taken a step forward in the struggle to see that all people are allowed to voice their concerns, expose injustice and take action to improve their living conditions.

As our leaders have done in part by passing this resolution, Americans should do what they can — i.e., write letters to government officials, refuse to invest in nonconforming nations — to let the world know that they will not knowingly tolerate human rights abuses anywhere in the world.

AS ONE OF the world's major economic and political forces,

ACCORDING TO Amnesty

Research tools lost

Vice President Guyon's comment in last Friday's Daily Egyptian that the loss of library subscriptions to Vogue and the Pope County Journal of Extension does not affect the quality of Morris Library's holdings, indicates his unawareness of the research needs of some curricula, and the archival responsibility incumbent on all major research libraries.

Vogue is acquired not to provide recreational reading for fashion-conscious coeds, but as a prime research journal for Clothing and Textiles, and Interior Design majors. Older volumes of Vogue are in constant demand by such users as Theater majors, who need costume design ideas for particular time periods.

Publications such as the Pope County Journal of Extension represent the prime research material for future generations of Southern Illinois historians. Where else but at the major regional research library should copies of such publications be made permanently available?

Just as the University of Illinois assumes responsibility for collecting newspapers and other local publications from the central and northern parts of the state, so SIU-C should be the archival library for similar materials for the southern countries. The bewilderingly diverse demands for apparent trivia, which pass across Morris Library's reference desks, belie the claim that such materials have no redeeming value.

The loss of publications such as these, and the many cancellations we have been forced into, will certainly diminish the value of Morris Library to future generations of users. — George Black, Science Division, Morris Library.

Desire to read unusual fiction inspires creation of magazine

By Susan Sarkauskas
Staff Writer

Like all good writers, David Tamke dares to imagine the unknown.

Tamke dreamt of a fiction magazine that would provide those writers in Southern Illinois who were ineligible to be published in SIU-C's Grassroots magazine with the opportunity to be read. Unlike many people, however, Tamke acted on that dream, and founded Rusty Edge, a biannual literary magazine.

The first issue was published in April 1984, and, Tamke said, was well received by the community. "We got a lot of good work, and it went over well," he said. "Good things were said about it."

Tamke produces the magazine, which in its second issue contained 18 original works of poetry, prose, and short fiction. Line art and photography were also featured. He and co-editor, Dean Jones, and production and layout assistant, Lisa Abromitis, earn no salaries, as the magazine is a not-for-profit

'We got a lot of good work, and good things were said about it.'

venture. In fact, Tamke said, he has lost money on it.

Tamke said that he started the magazine because "it seemed to me like there wasn't really a forum...for faculty and graduate students" as well as other writers and poets. "A literary magazine open to anyone in Southern Illinois" is his motto.

The name "Rusty Edge" came out of a brainstorming session Tamke, Jones, and Abromitis had. "It kind of exemplified some of the style of the material, which is on the edge, experimental, offbeat. We cater to the more unusual taste," Tamke said. The magazine is his answer, in a way, to what he called the conservatism of Grassroots, the student magazine published by the SIU-C English Department.

The Rusty Edge has received critical support from English faculty members and graduate students, Tamke said. He welcomes financial support, too. Tamke said he is considering applying for grant money from the Illinois Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Humanities, to defray the costs of production.

Rusty Edge's second issue is on sale at Book World for $1. "One dollar is a real good price," Tamke said. "It's not pretentious, but it's not too small. I think you get more than $1 worth."

Tamke has set a tentative deadline of March 1, 1985, for submissions for the spring issue. Letters of inquiry and submissions can be sent to Rusty Edge, c/o David Tamke, 407 E. Walnut St., Carbondale, Ill., 62901. Line art and photography are needed as well as stories, poems, and prose.

Museum shows student work

Exhibits created by SIU-C students in the course "Introduction to Museology" will be on display at the University Museum through Wednesday.

"Commemorative Monuments," by Burnett Sasseen, features photos of sculptures found in Southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee.

"Portraits of Famous People by Famous Artists," by Michael Buesking, Pete G. Morava and Yvonne Moreno includes works in bronze and iron, oil paintings, drawings, photographs and prints.

"When Postcards Were Fun," by Rick Pere, is a collection of turn-of-the-century and earlier greeting cards portraying social concerns in a lighthearted manner.

"Kukri Knives from Nepal," by Steven Bobinski, Patty Prine and Kristin Stauffer, shows knives used by Nepal's Gurkha fighters.

"A New Home for Art at SIU-C," by Karen Kowalski, includes photographs, designs and a building model that proposes a solution to widely-scattered art and design facilities on campus.

Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

Young actor needed for 'Wedding' role

A young actor is needed to complete the casting of McLeod Theater's spring production of "The Member of the Wedding," by Carson McCullers.

Director David Stevens is seeking a child with a strong voice, age 8 to 12 and under 5 feet 2 inches, preferably shorter. The role to be filled is that of John Henry, an important character in the play. A heavy schedule of rehearsals will begin Jan. 6 and continue until the play opens Jan. 31.

Auditions are by appointment only and are in the form of an interview. Appointments can be made through the Theater Department at 453-5741. Interviews will be conducted until Dec. 19.

Singers, actors unite; operetta 'Pirates of Penzance' soars

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

If the pirate king was a little off-key at times, and if the nanny sang a bit too faintly, it really did not matter.

Trivialities are trivialities, good performances are good performances, and the joint production by the theater department and School of Music at McLeod Theater Wednesday of one of the world's most popular comic operettas "Pirates of Pen-zance," was indeed very good.

Productions; the many art forms involved can cause directors to pull out clumps of hair at a time. For instance, actors who can sing and singers who can act are not always lounging around the theater, waiting to be casted. Then there is the problem of coordinating the orchestration with the vagaries of the plot, playing with enough gusto to have the proper impact, yet modulating the score so as not to drown the actors' voices.

Director and choreographer George Finney can be credited with pulling the various aspects together and arranging the members of the cast in such a fashion that they did not look like they were tripping over one another — often a major problem in productions of this size. Conductor Daniel Mellado also did an excellent job guiding orchestra members through the 32 musical numbers — they never missed a beat.

"Pirates" is a fanciful tale about a pirate called Frederic (Doug Hawkins), who has been indentured to a band of pirates through an error of his adoring nanny (Beth Perry). When a clause in his contract free him on his 21st birthday, Frederic leaves the pirates, vowing to exterminate them as the evil-doers that they are, and in the meantime find out whether there is any woman on earth who is prettier than his elderly nurse, whom he feels obliged to marry and who has told him that, as women go, she's quite gorgeous.

Problems arise, however, when Frederic meets the 15 daughters of the very affable major-general (played with a terrific sense of humor by Eric McCluskey), who is more interested in mathematics and the fascinations of the hypoteneuse than in warfare. Frederic falls in love with daughter Mabel (Cecilia Wagner), but the pirates fall in love with the other daughters which, combined with the fact that Frederic rejoins them after finding out that he was born on a leap year and therefore will not be free of his indentures until the distant year of 1940, causes all manner of confusion.

Cecilia Wagner makes a good Mabel, one minute forthrightly flirtatious, and the next minute, abashed and coy. Her voice is a beautiful one, and strong, which put the luckless Hawkins' voice — a very average sort for an operetta — at considerable disadvantage.

Hawkins makes a better actor, however, and he played the part of hapless hero to the hilt.

These were minor irritations, however, to be expected in student performances, and the bountiful zeal with which the cast performed, along with the very picturesque scenery and costumes, smoothed the rough edges and made the production a highly enjoyable one.

Lip list glosses over ordinary folks

OAK BROOK (AP) — John DeLorean, Boy George, the Statue of Liberty and Joan Rivers — their kissers adorned newspapers, magazines and television screens during 1984. And now, they're among those named the world's 12 "Most Beautiful Lips" of the year.

In the past, there was astronaut Sally K. Ride's "most out of this world lips." But this time, it's the refurbished Statue of Liberty that stands head and shoulders above the rest with the "most restored lips" of the year. The fifth annual selections, announced Monday, play lip service to the unique role lips play daily in communication, said Richard K. Green, executive vice president of Blistex Inc., the contest sponsor.

"While the celebrities who become household names in the course of a year are all very different, one feature — their lips — remains crucial to their image," said Green, whose company makes medicated lip care products.

Automaker DeLorean, whose court battles made headlines this year, was selected as having the "most tried and true lips."

Boy George of the British rock band Culture Club rates the "most cultured lips" while Prince Charles, married to Princess Diana, has "the most Di-vine" lips.

Comedienne Joan Rivers, who's famous for her catty jokes, has the "cattiest lips."

Vietnamese Study Center may be reactivated

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

The time has come, some University personnel believe, to reactivate the Vietnamese Study Center, which has been nearly defunct since the mid-1970s when it became the campus focus of student opposition to America's role in the Vietnam war.

Charles Klasek, associate vice president for academic affairs and research, said that the University has asked the U.S. Department of Education for $136,836 for "enhancement of the Indochina studies program" during the next two years. SIU-C should hear after the first of the year if the money will be granted by July as hoped, Klasek said.

The center was started in 1969 when SIU-C President Delyte Morris obtained a $1 million grant from the Agency for International Development. Its goal, then and now, is "scholarly study of and research on the language, literature and culture of Indochina," said Dinh-Hoa Nguyen, the center's director since 1972.

Nguyen, a professor of linguistics and English from Saigon, said he came to SIU-C in 1969 to work at the center because the offer was "such a challenge." He said it seemed like a dream to him to be part of a university program devoted to Vietnamese study.

The center has not received any funding since the AID grant ran out in 1974, although Nguyen said he has kept it alive by donating some of his time to activities like those it once had been funded to perform.

He said the student protests that all but sounded the death knell for the center were misplaced. "They thought wrongly that this center was set up by some shadowy agencies — to do what, I don't know."

What the center was doing was coordinating courses on Vietnam that were taught through departments, conducting research on life in the region and publishing a journal for Vietnamese scholars, Nguyen said.

Each summer until 1976 the center conducted an intensive eight to 10 week course on the Vietnamese language. Nguyen said that students from as far away as New York, Hawaii and Singapore came to SIU-C to take this course, which was funded by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The center also subscribed to periodicals and newspapers and bought many books, some of which are housed in Morris Library, for its collection. "We have the material," Nguyen said. "We just need the money to get things going."

He said that now is a good time to revive the center because the DOC has been generous toward similar programs recently. That might be because there are 500,000 Vietnamese refugees in the United States and because the "Vietnam experience" has made people think about why it happened and how the nation can avoid similar wars in the future, Nguyen said.

If the money is granted, he said, it would be used to improve the center's collection of books, arrange lectures and coordinate new course to encourage study on Vietnam.

William Turley, a Vietnamese specialist in the political science department, said the center is a "legitimate academic enterprise" and that there is no reason it should not seek funding. He agreed with Nguyen that the protests that surrounded the center in the past were not justified. "Using federal money to fund Vietnamese studies connected the center in the minds of some people to the war in Vietnam," he said.

Turley said the main purpose of the center has always been to provide a kind of "clearinghouse of information" for scholars but noted that the supporters of the center would "very much like the chance to enhance students' interest in things Vietnamese."

A trio of shocking Third World tragedies — more than 2,000 people gassed or burned to death in India, Mexico and Brazil — shows how industrialization often outruns environmental and safety controls in developing nations.

In all three of this year's industrial disasters, slum-dwellers were the victims and their crowded conditions multiplied the death toll from the fires or poisonous fumes.

Squatters in countless Third World cities are clustered on land no one else wants — including areas around dangerous fuel or chemical sites. Some nations do not have zoning laws separating industrial and residential areas. In those that have controls, safety inspection and enforcement is often lax.

The dangers in these unregulated environments are sometimes more insidious than explosive: deadly wastes from industrial plants that slowly poison the air or drinking water.

The disaster last week in the central Indian city of Bhopal may have been the deadliest industrial accident worldwide in recent years.

An American-built insecticide plant leaked poisonous gas that within hours killed or fatally injured at least 2,000 local residents, and blinded, sterilized or otherwise sickened thousands of others. Many victims lived in a teeming slum adjacent to the plant.

Potentially hazardous facilities are scattered throughout India's crowded cities. After a cooking-gas plant exploded last year in New Delhi, killing more than 30 people, government officials said it would be moved, but it still operates in the same location.

The Brazilian and Mexican disasters both involved squatters and government petroleum companies.

In the southern Brazilian town of Cubatao last Feb. 25, fire from a leaking gasoline pipeline incinerated the flimsy huts of hundreds of squatters on the surrounding marshland. About 500 people were killed.

On Nov. 19 in Mexico City, storage tanks at a liquid petroleum gas facility exploded in a firestorm that devastated a housing area packed with poor Mexicans, many of them squatters. At least 452 people were killed.

In the Mexican case, the gas-distribution complex was there before the houses, but no zoning regulations existed to prevent the residential area from rising up within 200 yards of the dangerous site.

In some cases, environmentalists claim, industries in developed nations intentionally move their safety hazards to Third World countries where few controls exist.

Some examples they cite: the dumping of dangerous PCB wastes in Mexico by American companies, the building of oil refineries on tiny Caribbean islands to overcome the fear of spills in the United States, and the shifting of much of Australia's asbestos processing to nearby Indonesia, where controls on the dangerous material are not as tight.

Students create, install Nepal museum exhibit

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

In most courses at the end of the semester all students have to show for their work is a bunch of old tests and papers. But the work that students in Art 447 and Anthropology 450a have done is on display for the public to see.

Students in those courses have spent the semester finding out about the workings of a museum and as a final project have created their own exhibits, which are currently on display at the University Museum in Faner Hall.

ART 447, "Introduction to Museology," and Anthropology 450a, "Museum Studies," are similar in that students in both learn the basics of how to research and install an exhibit, but they concentrate on the different fields of art and anthropology.

Students in both courses "are involved in all aspects including installation in the gallery," said

Evert Johnson, instructor for Art 447.

"We take them through all the areas — planning, logistics, handling objects, and the visual aspects of mounting, matting, and framing."

Students get involved early in the semester when they choose a subject for their exhibition. Generally, they must choose to exhibit something that the museum has in its collection.

STUDENTS IN the anthropology course chose Nepal as the subject for their exhibition, partly because the museum had enough objects in that area for a fairly diverse exhibit to be prepared, said John Whitlock, instructor for the anthropology class.

They chose five types of objects to research and display — Nepalese folk jewelry, hats and shoes, bronzes, masks, and a section of photos contributed by an anthropology professor which demonstrate the demographics of disease in Nepal.

THE CLASS divided into five sections of about three people, each who worked on each of the five displays. They then had to research each section to find out about such things as why the people use these objects and what they are used for. They do this mostly by reading, but in one case a student talked to a student from Nepal about Nepalese dress.

The collection hadn't been researched before, so "that way the museum benefits too" because the students must research the project, said Kelly Cichy, the graduate student who worked with them on the project.

STUDENTS MUST also prepare signs and labels for their exhibit, and then decide the best way to display the objects for viewers. Then after a semester's work, the objects are ready to be installed.

The Nepalese exhibit will be on display on the third floor of Faner Hall above the museum until the end of the spring semester, Cichy said.

THE ART students' exhibits will be on display in the University Museum until Dec. 12 and are more varied than those of the anthropology students.

One is a display of humorous and interesting postcards from 1900 to 1920. Another is of portraits of famous people, from Gandhi to Daniel Boone to Thomas Jefferson, all done by famous artists.

There is also a collection of "kukri knives," which are used by soldiers from Nepal. Each knife has a small notch at the top which soldiers use to stab themselves very slightly for luck before going to battle.

ANOTHER STUDENT has constructed a model of "A New Home for Art at SIU-C," which shows a proposed site which would combine all aspects of art and design courses, which are currently scattered across campus, into one building.

Another display is of photographs of interesting monuments within a 60-mile radius of Paducah, Ky.

These students went through much a similar process as the anthropology students in researching their subjects, writing labels, and determining the best ways to display them.

Cichy said SIU-C is "one of the few institutions that offer this opportunity to students." Many of the students have plans to go into museum work after they are graduated.

Apartment building gas main ignites; residents evacuated

Several residents of a Carbondale apartment building were evacuated Friday morning by the Carbondale Fire Department after a nearby gas main ignited, Fire Chief Charles McCaughan said.

The main, located at 207 W. Walnut St., apparently caught fire after a dump truck slid on an ice-covered alley behind the Southern Illinois Gem Co. and tore out a gas meter at about 5 a.m., the chief said. The main ignited, and shot up flames of up to 30-feet high. McCaughan said the fire caused about $2,500 damage to the Gem Co. building and burnt down an electrical wire which had been strung above it. No one was injured by the fire and residents of nearby apartments were evacuated, he said.

Fire department personnel remained on the scene until workers from the Central Illinois Public Service Co. had repaired the break at about 8 p.m.

Revelers 'made merry' at dinner

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

Even the bonafide baked boar's head made it to the king's table, as did a capacity crowd of almost 400 revelers, who crowded the Student Center Ballrooms Thursday to eat, drink, and generally be merry at the Eighth Annual Madrigal Dinner.

Last year the bear's head "disappeared."

"No one knows what happened to it," said usher Ray Piattoni. A fake boar's head was used instead to present to the "king" of the madrigals, he said.

But this year there were no such surprises, and the dinners, which are becoming a tradition at SIU, went off without a hitch.

Each year before the Christmas holidays begin, the School of Music and the graphics, dance and theater departments pool talents with the Student Center Food Service and programming offices to produce a Christmas by Tudor England royalty.

The atmosphere of a Renaissance Christmas feast is faithfully reproduced, from the processional entrance of the royal court, the pranks of the court jesters and jugglers, the trumpeting heralds and the jousting events, right down to the wintermix vegetables served for dinner.

This year the "royal court" was a choir from the Music Department, who led the toasts to the wassail served, and sang carols. A medieval lord, a ruler from the East and their two sidekicks (Lee Shackleford, Dave Duncan, Don Evans and Brent Lappin) duelled for the audience, and afterward the admiring queen (Tammy Rosa) flirted with the Eastern sidekick (Brent Lappin) while her lady-in-waiting (Veronica Petrillo) carried on similarly with the royal errand boy (Mike Hornsby).

After the "flaming pudding" was served, the royal musicians made music on the harpischord (Donna Haney), the sitar (Tilak Outta) and guitars (Mike Hankins, Brian Watson and Debra O'Neil), after which the royal dancers performed (Lisa Booth, Theresa Kelley, Cindy Mueller, Charles Grundy and Lori Rollings).

The drinking of wassail stemmed from the old Anglo-Saxon drinking pledge "waes-hael," which means "be in good health." It was the custom at early Saxon feasts to toast the lord of the manor in this way.

Packers overcome Payton, Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Third-string quarterback Rich Campbell's 43-yard touchdown pass to Phil Epps with 34 seconds remaining lifted the Green Bay Packers to a 20-14 victory over the Chicago Bears on Sunday, all but killing Bear hopes of a home-field advantage in the National Football League playoffs.

Campbell, filling in for Randy Wright, who was injured in the first half, directed the 71-yard drive in six plays to give the Packers a 7-8 record, while the Bears, champions of the National Conference Central, dropped to 9-6.

The Packers won the game despite Walter Payton's heroics. Payton rushed for 175 yards and one touchdown and passed for another.

Payton, who played quarterback in the Bears last series of the first half and threw an interception, flipped a 2-yard touchdown pass on the halfback option to Matt Suhey in the third quarter, giving the Bears a 7-7 tie.

Del Rodgers took the ensuing kickoff and returned it 97 yards for a touchdown and a 13-7 lead as the Packers missed the extra point attempt when holder Bucky Scribner fumbled the snap and threw a wild pass.

Late in the third quarter, Dave Duerson intercepted a Campbell pass at the Green Bay 33-yard line. Six plays later, Payton broke two tackles and raced 7 yards for the touchdown. Bob Thomas' kick put the Bears ahead.

Both teams started backup quarterbacks, Rusty Lisch for Chicago and Wright for Green Bay. Wright started in place of Lynn Dickey who had started 43 straight games but suffered headaches as a result of a back injury.

Wright went down when his knee buckled late in the first half and was replaced by Campbell, who put the Packers on the board with a 3-yard touchdown pass to Ed West for a 7-0 halftime lead.

The Bears staggered and stumbled through the first half as they turned the ball over four times, three on fumbles and one on a pass interception.

They were guilty of roughing the kicker when the Packers retained possession on a fourth down, and they also were drawn off sides on a fourth down play which enabled Green Bay again to retain possession.

Still, it took the Packers most of the half before they finally scored to take a 7-0 lead at intermission.

After Wright went down, Campbell took over and was incomplete on a fourth down pass attempt with Chicago taking over on its own 26. But Lisch fumbled on the third down and George Cundy recovered at the Packer 37-yard line.

Campbell completed 17 yard passes to Phillip Epps and Gerry Ellis before he flipped a 3-yard touchdown pass to Ed West.

National League MVP Ryne Sandberg and Cy Young Award winner Rick Sutcliffe, but fell one game short World Series trip because of their inability to win in San Diego.

After beating the Padres in the first two games at Wrigley Field, Cub fans all across the country were preparing themselves for a battle with the Tigers, but after three straight losses in San Diego, the Cubs had to settle for watching the Series on TV.

Big Red beats Giants, stay in playoff hunt

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Neil Lomax threw three touchdown passes and Ottis Anderson ran 12 yards in the fourth quarter for the tie-breaking score as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the New York Giants 31-21 Sunday to remain in contention for a National Football League playoff berth and put a serious crimp in the Giants' postseason hopes.

Lomax, under a heavy rush all day, completed 23 of 33 passes for 300 yards and threw TD passes of 4 yards to Pat Tilley, 44 to Stump Mitchell and 35 yards to Roy Green on a fourth-down play. He also became the sixth quarterback in NFL history to throw for over 4,000 yards in a season; he now has 4,146 passing yards.

But it wasn't until Anderson, held in check most of the game by the swarming Giants' linebackers, bolted around left end with 12:17 left in the game that the Cardinals were able to dispose of the Giants, who kept bouncing back every time St. Louis seemed ready to break open the game. The TD snapped a 21-21 tie.

The victory gave the Cardinals a 9-6 record, the same as the Giants, who entered the game in a tie with Dallas and Washington for the National Football Conference East Division lead.

Lomax, who had been intercepted four times by the Giants in a 16-10 loss earlier in the season, was masterful, darting away from a New York pass rush that still managed to sack him five times. He never was more masterful than on the 74-yard, 12-play drive for the tie-breaking touchdown, in which he twice scrambled out of trouble to complete key third-down passes.

Neil O'Donoghue's 34-yard field goal with 4:54 left provided insurance for the Cards.

New York's main weapon was Joe Morris, who gained 107 yards in 16 carries to become the first Giants' running back this year to rush for more than 100 yards in a game.

The Giants had the lead only once in the game. After Neil O'Donoghue missed a 40-yard field-goal attempt for St. Louis early in the first quarter, New York drove 77 yards in 11 plays for a 7-0 lead, the touchdown coming on a 5-yard pass from Phil Simms to Lionel Manuel.

After losing another chance when Anderson fumbled at the New York 32, the Cards tied it at 7-7 midway in the second quarter on the pass from Lomax to Tilley at the end of 54-yard, eight-play drive highlighted by a 20-yard halfback option pass from Stump Mitchell to Earl Ferrell.

The Giants tied it 21-21 with 3:59 left in the third period, going 59 yards in six plays, all of them on the ground.

AS MANY predicted, the 1984 NCAA basketball title game matched the two giants of college ball. Patrick Ewing and Akeem Olajuwon, and once again, Houston Coach Guy Lewis left as the runner-up.

Ewing led Coach John Thompson's Georgetown Hoyas to their first-ever NCAA Championship, as the seven-foot center guided the Hoyas suffocating defense with intimidation and blocked shots (133). With strong support from guard Gene Smith, the Georgetown defense was too much for Olajuwon, Michael Young and the Houston offense to overcome.

The passing year also marked the first time in five years that the New York Islanders went home without the Stanley Cup Trophy tucked under their arms, as the Edmonton Oilers took away their NHL crown.

Mike Bossy and Dennis Potvin were just not enough to stop the Wayne Gretzky-powered Oilers in the Stanley Cup finals. The Edmonton offense scored an NHL-record 446 goals in 1983-84 and continued their scoring rampage throughout the playoffs.

Gretzky scored 67 goals in the regular season, and amassed an incredible 205 points, and yes, of course, was honored as the NHL's top player again in 1984.

Looking ahead to 1985, maybe Ewing will lead the Hoyas to another title in his senior year, and maybe, just maybe, the Chicago Cubs will actually go to the World Series. Only time will tell. But one thing is for sure, and that is that Gretzky will score a ton of points in '85.

UTEP coach Don Haskins has had great success in his 24 years with the Miners. He led the team to the 1966 national title.

SHOOTOUT: Miners claim title

rebounding advantage.

The loss overshadowed a strong performance by Bibbens, who scored 20 points on 10 of 13 shots from the field and pulled down 15 rebounds. Both were game-high totals.

"Coach (Allen) Van Winkle emphasized at halftime that we had to get off to a quick start and play hard," Bibbens said. "I wish we're more poised because sometimes we took the shots too quick, and we should have taken more time off the clock and pass it around until someone was open. I wish we came on top but we did play a good game."

Center Kenny Perry had 14 points and Bufford added 13 for the Salukis, who dropped to 5-1 this year.

Van Winkle wasn't disappointed with the Salukis performance.

"YOU DON'T feel that bad, losing to a team that would be in the top of our league," Van Winkle said. "Everybody likes to win but what I think is important is we did a lot of good things in the 40 minutes.

"Offensively, I thought we attacked their zone much better in the second half when we hit our first three shots, but it didn't take them much time to get going. Texas-El Paso played well in the final 19 minutes."

The Salukis advanced to the championship game by defeating Navy 75-72 Friday night and surviving its one-two knockout punch of 6-foot-11, 215-pound center David Robinson and 6-7, 235-pound forward Vernon Butler.

Robinson scored a game-high 31 points on 13 of 19 shots from the field, pulled down 13 rebounds and had four blocked shots. Butler muscled his way for 21 points on 9 of 15 shots and had a game-high 15 rebounds.

"Robinson and Butler are good players and they can certainly play in our league (the Missouri Valley Conference)," Van Winkle said. "I wouldn't be surprised if Robinson wouldn't be the best player in our conference."

The Salukis took the lead for good on a basket by Perry from

HASKINS: Among the elite

Texas Western beat Utah 85-78 to capture the West regional title and then upended Kentucky 72-65 for the national championship. The Miners were led by guard Bobby Joe Hill, who was named to the all-tournament team.

"Our man-to-man defense got us through the tournament," Haskins said. "It was our bread-and-butter and we played it well. A team can dominate with good defense."

SINCE THAT time, Haskins said he has seen drastic changes within college basketball. Considered to be one of the top defensive coaches in the country, Haskins said defense has undergone as much change as any other facet of the game.

"Everybody used to play man-to-man, but we're getting to where we play zone most of the time now," he said. "It seems that when you get a lead, you tend to stay back in a zone. We've played more zone this year than we used to play in a whole season."

The abundance of talent present in college basketball today is another major change, Haskins said.

"There were great athletes then, but they were more scattered," he said. "There is so much talent now, that the smaller schools can win against the bigger ones. There is enough talent to get around. It's not unusual to see an NAIA team beat a Division I team anymore."

Haskins, 62, said he has no intentions of retiring from coaching in the near future. His team was ranked in the Top Twenty nationally for all of last season, and the Miners are off to a 4-1 start this year.

"I'll stay at Texas-El Paso because I like coaching," he said. "But a lot of it depends on how well I do. We're all finding so many great players that you better find some yourself if you want to stay in the business. I'll coach as long as we are successful."

Haskins has coached some top players at UTEP, including Fred Reynolds, a 6-6 forward who was a second-round NBA draft choice this year. But he said Nate Archibald, who played for UTEP from 1968-1971, was the best player he's had. Archibald, who played in the National Basketball Association for 14 years, was the league's Most Valuable Player in 1973.

"He was really special," Haskins said of Archibald. "The funny thing was I was the only coach to offer him a scholarship."

Navy's Robinson develops in a big way

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

For someone who didn't go out for basketball until he was a senior in high school, Navy sophomore center David Robinson has come a long way in three years.

Robinson — who scored 68 points, had 31 rebounds, and shot 65.9 percent from the field in two games at the Saluki Shootout II — was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player Saturday night.

Throughout the tournament, the 6-foot-11, 215-pound Robinson displayed a soft shooting touch from the outside and thrilled the Arena crowd with his two-handed slam dunks.

Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle praised Robinson Friday night after he scored 31 points, pulled down 13 rebounds and had four slam dunks in Navy's 75-72 loss to SIU-C.

"IF YOU gave me a choice between Creighton's Benoit Benjamin and Robinson, I would take Robinson after seeing him tonight," Van Winkle said. Benjamin is considered to be one of the top centers in college basketball.

"Benoit is physically bigger, but there is no question Robinson runs the floor better, is good on the board and plays good defense. If he can add four or five feet to his shooting range, I think he can play power forward. I think he can be a great pro product."

Robinson picked up where he left off Saturday in the consolation game against Western Illinois, scoring a career-high 37 points and adding 18 rebounds to help the Midshipmen post an 80-74 victory.

Not bad for a player who quit his ninth grade junior high basketball team because he wasn't getting enough playing time as a 5-9 forward.

Robinson didn't go out for basketball again until his senior year at Osbourn High School in Manassas, Va., where he averaged 15 points and 12 rebounds per game. He said he had scholarship offers from Division I school Virginia Military Institute and a few Division II schools, but selected the Naval Academy because of its strong academic program.

Navy's David Robinson goes up for a slam dunk over Saluki defenders Bernard Campbell (21) and Kenny Perry. Robinson was named the MVP of last weekend's Saluki Shootout II.

"When I visited the Academy, I liked it," Robinson said. "It wasn't like I expected, because I thought people in the military academy would be kind of weird but they weren't any different than me. They had a good academic reputation and a good engineering program and that is what sold me."

ROBINSON SAID his father, Ambrose, spent 21 years in the Navy but encouraged him to attend VMI.

"What he told me about the Navy is that he liked it, but he surprised me when he wanted me to go to VMI," Robinson said. "He had high hopes for me in basketball and thought I was better than I was. But he was fair and said he would back me 100 percent wherever I wanted to go, and now he is real happy that I picked Navy."

When Robinson entered the academy he was only 6-7, and Navy coach Paul Evans had to get a waiver for him because the entrance limitation is 6-6. Waivers can be granted to players up to 6-8.

In his freshman season, Robinson averaged 7.6 points and four rebounds as a reserve center to help the Midshipmen post a 24-8 season. The 24 wins are the most victories ever for a service-academy team.

But Robinson said he almost quit the basketball team last season because he was tired of getting banged around in practice by 6-10, 230-pound Cliff Maurer, then the Midshipmen's starting center.

But in the off-season Robinson grew two inches and with the help of a weight training program gained 20 pounds.

Through six games this season, Robinson is averaging 26.3 points and 11.5 rebounds for the Midshipmen, who have a 4-2 record. But Robinson said he isn't thinking about professional basketball yet.

"BASKETBALL IS a game to me and it's fun but I don't look at myself as a star," he said. "I'm not real happy with some parts of my play, like rebounding. I'm working hard and I hope to get better. I would like to play in the pro's, but right now I'm far from it."

Bunyan places 4th in half-marathon

Former SIU-C cross country standout Chris Bunyan made quite an impression in his road racing debut in the Citrus Bowl Half-Marathon at Orlando, Fla. on Saturday.

Bunyan, who completed his collegiate career last month by earning All-America honors for the third time, finished fourth in the half-marathon which featured some of the top distance runners in the world.

Larry Green, a former Florida State standout, set a world record in the 13.1 mile event with a time of 1 hour, 1 minute and 27 seconds. Bunyan recorded a time of 1:02.39 in the race.

"I'm real happy because it's my first road race outside collegiate competition," Bunyan said Sunday. "It's a good start for my road race career. I made a name for myself right away."

Bunyan nearly finished second, but was edged by Brian Dunne and Keith Brantly. Dunne was second (1:02.13) and Brantly placed third (1:02.27). John Wellerding finished fifth with a time of 1:02.42.

"It was tight up front," he said. "We went through the first mile in 4:30 and we went through the sixth mile in 28:25. That set me back a bit. It is an incredibly quick pace."

Bunyan said he plans to compete in another half-marathon in the future, but his immediate goal is to compete in a full marathon.

"I'm looking for a marathon to run in, probably by late January," he said.

Men cagers to battle Chicago St.

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's basketball team, coming off a second-place finish in the Saluki Shootout II, hopes to get back on the winning track on Monday night against Chicago State. Tip-off is set for 7:35 p.m. at the Arena.

Chicago State enters the game with a 2-5 record, losing at Boise State 81-61 Saturday.

The Salukis probable starting lineup will consist of guards Nate Bufford (16.2 points per game) and Roy Birch (11.5), forwards Cleveland Bibbens (14.3) and Bernard Campbell (13.2) and center Kenny Perry (9.8).

Bibbens has come on strong in his last three games, averaging 17.3 points and 12 rebounds.

"David Robinson of Navy (the Most Valuable Player of the Shootout) is one of the finest players in the country," Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle said. "But if they had to give two MVP awards, Cleveland should get one. He is working hard and wants to play well and has dedicated himself to playing better defense this year."

After the Chicago State game, the Salukis (5-1 overall) face Murray State on Wednesday night and Mississippi Valley State on Saturday afternoon at the Arena.

SIU-C will play Purdue on Dec. 20 and Central Florida on Dec. 31 in road games before opening Missouri Valley Conference play against Tulsa on Jan. 5 at the Arena. The Golden Hurricane is favored to win the MVC title this season.

Cleveland Bibbens (50) of SIU-C battles UTEP's Donnell Allen for a rebound during the championship game of the Saluki Shootout II on Saturday. Kenny Perry (44) looks on. UTEP won, 77-75.

UTEP claims title in Saluki Shootout II

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The Texas-El Paso men's basketball team showed the Salukis why its favored to repeat as Western Athletic Conference champions this season.

UTEP overcame SIU-C's 55 percent shooting from the field and used a well-balanced scoring attack to notch a 77-75 victory Saturday night in the championship game of the Saluki Shootout II.

The Miners, who were led by forward Juden Smith with 20 points, also shot well from the field. They connected on 35 of 65 shots for a 53.8 shooting percentage.

"WE SHOT and rebounded well, and we didn't make any mistakes and it still was a squeaker," UTEP Coach Don Haskins said. "We played as well as we can and I was impressed with Southern Illinois. They have a fine basketball team."

In the first six minutes of the game, the score was tied four times and there were two lead changes before UTEP guard Luster Goodwin hit a field goal to give them a 15-13 lead.

UTEP took its biggest lead of the first half, 25-16, at the 10:06 mark on a basket by Smith. The Salukis then rallied behind forward Bernard Campbell to cut the Miners' halftime lead to three points.

Campbell scored 12 of his 18 points in the final 10 minutes of the half to help the Salukis outscore UTEP 20-14 to cut the halftime deficit to 39-36.

The Salukis got off to a quick start in the second half, scoring the first six points on field goals by guard Nate Bufford, forward Cleveland Bibbens, and Campbell to take a 42-39 lead at the 18:21 mark.

SIU-C twice opened up five-point leads at 47-42 and 49-44 but UTEP came back and took the lead for good at 52-51 on a fastbreak layup by guard Kent Lockhart.

UTEP took two seven-point leads, at 64-57 and 68-61, before the Salukis made a final comeback attempt. Baskets by Campbell and Roy Birch sliced the deficit to 73-71 with 1:09 left, but UTEP killed time off the 45-second clock and Smith scored on a backdoor play to give them a 75-71 lead with 37 seconds remaining.

Bufford countered with an 18-footer to slice the deficit to 75-73 with 24 seconds left, but UTEP forward Kevin Hamilton hit two free throws with nine seconds remaining to seal the victory.

THE MINERS, who improved to 4-1 overall, also received double figure scoring from Goodwin (19), Hamilton (13), and 6-10 center Dave Feitl (10). Smith pulled down 11 rebounds to help UTEP post a 37-24

Highlights abound in 1984 sports year

As 1984 comes to an end, it will be remembered by sports fans for, among other things, as the year of the Los Angeles Olympics, the Detroit Tigers and the Georgetown Hoyas.

It will also be remembered as the year the Chicago Cubs almost did it, and the year that the New York Islanders failed to do it.

With the Soviets missing in L.A., the Americans ran away with a record number of medals but the Games will probably be remembered most for the disappointment of Mary Decker.

DECKER, THE American record holder in the 1,500 and 3,000-meter runs, came to the Games as America's sweetheart and the heavy favorite to capture the gold medal in the 3,000.

From the Press Box
Stan Goff

Decker's decade-long quest for Olympic gold was destroyed, however, when she collided with Great Britain's Zola Budd in the finals of the 3,000. The 92-pound Budd hit Decker's thigh with her left foot while trying to pass the American. Decker crashed to the ground and watched in pain as Romania's Maricica Puica won the race.

Decker's loss aside, the United States came away with more than their share of victories in L.A. in '84.

Carl Lewis matched Jesse Owens' 1936 record of winning four gold medals, while Valerie Brisco-Hooks led the women's track brigade with three golds and three Olympic records.

The men's gymnastics team, led by Mitch Gaylord and Bart Conner, stole the gold from the favored world-champion Chinese, and the women, sparked by 16-year-old Mary Lou Retton and her gold in the all-around, finished a strong second to Romania.

To say that the Americans dominated the basketball play would be an understatement. The men, coached by Bobby Knight and led by Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins, outscored their opponents by an average of 39.2 points a game en route to the gold. The gold came just as easily to the American women, who were led by Pam McGee and Cheryl Miller, as they won the title game 85-55.

WHILE THE Americans were dominating the world (with the exception of the Soviets), the Tigers were dominating major league baseball.

Detroit, under the guidance of Sparky Anderson, led the American League East from star to finish and breezed by the Royals and the Padres without working up a sweat in post-season play.

Shorstop Alan Trammell was named MVP of the Tigers' five-game World Series triumph, but Jack Morris and Kirk Gibson were just as vital in setting back the Padres.

If it is any consolation to the Padres, they were responsible for preventing 1984 from being the year that the Chicago Cubs had waited a long time for.

The Cubs won their first divisional title ever, thanks to

UTEP coach Haskins belongs to an elite group

By Mike Frey
Staff Writer

A trivia question: Name the nine active coaches who have won NCAA Division I basketball championships.

To the average fan, most of these coaches are household names and would be easy to identify. There is Bobby Knight of Indiana, Dean Smith of North Carolina and Denny Crum of Louisville, among others.

But perhaps the least recognizable name among this distinguished group paid a visit to Carbondale this weekend. His team, the University of Texas-El Paso Miners, captured the championship of the Saluki Shootout II by defeating SIU-C 77-75 Saturday after blasting Western Illinois the previous night.

Don Haskins is in his 24th season at UTEP and, as in previous years, is achieving success with a minimum of fanfare. The win over SIU-C marked Haskins' 423rd career coaching victory.

IN THAT time, he has guided seven teams to the NCAA tournament and achieved the ultimate goal by leading the Miners (then known as Texas Western) to the 1966 national title.

The Miners national title came at a time when UCLA was dominating college basketball. Before 1966, the Bruins had won consecutive national crowns and after 1966 they won seven straight titles before North Carolina State broke the string in 1974.

John Wooden, the legendary coach who led UCLA to 10 national titles, said Haskins' performance in 1966 was the best coaching job he'd ever witnessed. He later compared the performance of North Carolina State's Jim Valvano in 1983 to Haskins' master effort.

Despite Wooden's compliment, Haskins said solid defense and a bit of luck were the main factors that propelled the Miners to a national crown. He downplayed his own contribution.

"ANYTIME YOU win the national championship, you feel honored," Haskins said Friday evening. "It's something every coach goes for. I don't know that we had superior coaching or a superior team. We won a lot of close games in the tournament, and we had a great defensive and rebounding team."

The road to the national title was a rocky one for Texas Western. The Miners handled Oklahoma City easily in the first round of the West regional, but gained overtime victories in their next two games. The Miners downed Cincinnati 78-76 in one overtime before edging Kansas 81-80 in double overtime to advance to the West regional championship.
